BOOK REVIEW DIGEST

1943

LIBRARY
OF THE
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO
CALIFORNIA

THE
BOOK REVIEW DIGEST

THIRTY-NINTH ANNUAL CUMULATION

MARCH 1943 TO FEBRUARY 1944 INCLUSIVE

EDITED BY MERTICE M. JAMES
AND DOROTHY BROWN

MANAGING EDITOR
SADIE BRACHFELD

Property of Graduate Theological Union
Return to
San Francisco Theological Seminary

NEW YORK
THE H. W. WILSON COMPANY
1944

Published 1944
Printed in the United States of Anerica

This complete edition is produced in full compliance with the Government's regulations for conserving paper and other essential materials.

PREFACE

The thirty-ninth Annual volume of the Book Review Digest contains in one alphabet information on approximately 3700 books of 1942 and 1943 imprint which have appeared in monthly issues of the Digest. Books with 1944 imprint will be found in numbers of the Digest beginning with March 1944.

In former years it was not the policy of the Book Review Digest to include many textbooks or technical books. Because of the war, the demand for books in these classifications, has increased, and many more have been reviewed in periodicals of a general nature. Hence this annual number contains a larger proportion of technical books than ever before.

The list of periodicals from which reviews are clipped and digested remains the same. On February 14, 1943, the name of the Herald Tribune Sunday book review section, formerly called Books, was changed to Weekly Book Review.

Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2026

https://archive.org/details/book-review-digest_1943-1944

Publications from which Digests of Reviews are made

Am Anthropol—American Anthropologist. $6. American Anthropological Association, B. Weitzner, American Museum of Natural History, New York

Am Chem Soc J—Journal of the American Chemical Society. $8.50. Charles L. Parsons, sec, 1155 16th St, NW, Washington 6, D.C.

Am Econ R—American Economic Review. Paul T. Homan, managing ed. $5; free to members. American Economic Assn, Evanston, Ill.

Am Hist R—American Historical Review. Guy Stanton Ford, managing ed. $5; free to members of the American Historical Assn. Macmillan Co, 60 Fifth Av, New York

Am J Psychol—American Journal of Psychology. $6.50. Morrill Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

Am J Pub Health—American Journal of Public Health and The Nation's Health. H. S. Mustard, ed. $5. American Public Health Assn, 1790 Broadway, New York 19

Am J Soc—American Journal of Sociology. Herbert Blumer, ed. $5. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago

Am Pol Sci R—American Political Science Review. Frederic A. Ogg, managing ed. $5; free to members. American Political Science Assn, 450-458 Ahnaip St, Menasha, Wis.

Am Soc R—American Sociological Review. $4 (to libraries $3; to students $2.50) American Sociological Society, C. Taeuber, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C.

Ann Am Acad—Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. Thorsten Sellin, ed. $5; free to members. 3457 Walnut St, Philadelphia 4

Atlantic—Atlantic Bookshelf of the Atlantic Monthly. $5. Atlantic Monthly Co, 8 Arlington St, Boston 16

Book Week—Chicago Sun, 400 W. Madison St, Chicago, Ill.

Booklist—Booklist. $3. American Library Assn, 520 N Michigan Av, Chicago

Bookmark—Bookmark. 50c New York State Library, University of the State of New York press, Albany

Books—New York Herald Tribune Books. $1. N Y Tribune, Inc, Publisher, 230 W 41st St, New York
Name of book section changed to Weekly Book Review, February 14, 1943

Boston Globe—Boston Globe $8.40 P.O. Box 189, Boston, Mass.

Canadian Forum—Canadian Forum. Eleanor Godfrey, managing ed. $2. Canadian Forum, Ltd, 28 Wellington St, W, Toronto 1, Canada

Canadian Hist R—Canadian Historical Review. $2. University of Toronto Press, Toronto 5

Cath World—Catholic World. James M. Gillis, ed. $4. Missionary Society of St Paul the Apostle, 401 W 59th St, New York 19

Chem & Eng N—Chemical and Engineering News. $2. American Chemical Society, Charles L. Parsons, sec, 1155 16th St, NW, Washington 6, D.C.

Chem & Met Eng—Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering. $3. McGraw-Hill Publishing Co, Inc, 330 W 42d St, New York 18

Christian Century—Christian Century. Charles Clayton Morrison, ed. $4. Christian Century Press, 407 S Dearborn St, Chicago 5

Christian Science Monitor (Atlantic ed)—Christian Science Monitor. $12. Christian Science Publishing Society, 1 Norway St, Boston 15

Churchman—Churchman. $5. Churchman Company, 425 Fourth Av, New York

Class Philol—Classical Philology. $4. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Commonweal—Commonweal. Edward Skillin, jr., ed. $5. Commonweal Pub. Co, Inc, 386 Fourth Av, New York 16

Crozer Q—Crozer Quarterly. $1.50. Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa.

Current Hist—Current History. D. G. Redmond, ed. $3. Events Pub. Co, Inc, 5528 W Oxford St, Philadelphia 31

Economist. £3. Economist Newspaper, Ltd, Brettenham House, Lancaster Place, London, WC 2

El School J—Elementary School Journal. R. W. Tyler and others, eds. $2.50. Dept. of Education, University of Chicago, 5835 Kimbark Av, Chicago 37

Eng N—Engineering News-Record. $5. McGraw-Hill Publishing Co, Inc, 330 W 42d St, New York 18

Eng Hist R—English Historical Review. 32s. Longmans, Green & Co, Ltd, 43 Albert Drive, London, SW 19 ($7.50. 55 Fifth Av, New York)

Ethics—Ethics. $4. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Foreign Affairs—Foreign Affairs. Hamilton Fish Armstrong, ed. $5. Council on Foreign Relations, Inc, 45 E 65th St, New York 21

Geog R—Geographical Review. $5. American Geographical Society, Broadway & 156th St, New York 32

Harvard Business R—Harvard Business Review. $5. McGraw-Hill Book Co, Inc, 330 W 42d St, New York 18

Hibbert J—Hibbert Journal. 10s. George Allen & Unwin, Ltd, 40 Museum St, London, WC 1 ($2.50. Leroy Phillips, 178 Tremont St, Boston)

Horn Bk—Horn Book. Bertha E. Mahony, ed. $2.50. Horn Book, Inc, 264 Boylston St, Boston 16

J Geol—Journal of Geology. $6. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

J Home Econ—Journal of Home Economics. Helen P. Hostetter, ed. $2.50. American Home Economics Assn, 620 Mills Bldg, Washington 6, D.C.

J Philos—Journal of Philosophy. $4. 515 W 116th St, New York 27

J Phys Chem—The Journal of Physical Chemistry. $10. Williams & Wilkins Co, Mt Royal & Guilford Avs, Baltimore 2, Md.

J Pol Econ—Journal of Political Economy. Jacob Viner and F. H. Knight, eds. $5. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

J Religion—Journal of Religion. $4. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Library J—Library Journal. Karl Brown, ed. $5. R. R. Bowker Co, 62 W 45th St, New York 19

Library Q—Library Quarterly. $5. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Management R—Management Review. $5. American Management Assn, 330 W 42d St, New York 18

Manchester Guardian—Manchester Guardian. 78s. Manchester Guardian, 3 Cross St, Manchester; Guardian Newspapers, Inc, 220 W 42d St, New York

Mod Philol—Modern Philology. $5. University of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago 37

Nation—Nation. Freda Kirchwey, ed. $5. Nation, Inc, 55 Fifth Av, New York 3

Nature—Nature. £4 10s. Macmillan & Co, Ltd, St Martin's St, London, WC 2 ($22.50 Macmillan Co, 60 Fifth Av, New York 11)

New Eng Q—New England Quarterly. $4. M. Ellis, 200 Stevens Hall, Orono, Me.

New Repub—New Republic. Bruce Bliven and others, eds. $5. Editorial Publications, Inc, 40 E 49th St, New York 17

New Statesman & Nation—New Statesman and Nation. 32s 6d. 10 Great Turnstile, London, WC 1

N Y New Tech Bks—New York Public Library New Technical Books. 25c N Y Public Library, Fifth Av & 42d St, N.Y.

N Y Times—New York Times Book Review. $2. N Y Times Co, Pub, Times Square, New York 18

New Yorker—New Yorker. H. W. Ross, ed. $6. F-R. Pub. Corp, 25 W 43d St, New York 18

News Ed—News Edition (American Chemical Society) $2; single numbers 15c. American Chemical Society, Washington, D.C.

Name changed to Chemical and Engineering News, January 10, 1942

No Am—North American Review. $4. North American Review Corp, 420 Madison Av, New York

Pacific Affairs—Pacific Affairs. $2. 1 E 54th St, New York 22

Poetry—Poetry. Peter DeVries and Marion Strobel, eds. $3. 232 E Erie St, Chicago 11

Pol Sci Q—Political Science Quarterly. John A. Krout, managing ed. $5; free to members. Academy of Political Science, Columbia University, New York

Sat R of Lit—Saturday Review of Literature. Norman Cousins, ed. $5. Saturday Review Associates, Inc, 25 W 45th St, New York 19

School & Society—School and Society. William C. Bagley, ed. $5. free to members of the Society for the Advancement of Education. Science Press, N Queen St and McGovern Av, Lancaster, Pa.

School Arts—School Arts. Pedro deLemos, ed. $4. School Arts. Printers Bldg, 44 Portland St, Worcester 8, Mass.

School R—School Review. R. W. Tyler and others, eds. $2.50. Dept. of Education, University of Chicago, 5835 Kimbark Av, Chicago 37

Scientific Bk Club R—Scientific Book Club Review. Subscription. Scientific Book Club, Inc, 80 Lafayette St, New York

Social Educ—Social Education. $2. 1201 Sixteenth St, NW, Washington, D.C.

Social Forces—Social Forces. $4. Williams & Wilkins Co, Baltimore 2

Social Studies—Social Studies. $2. McKinley Publishing Co, 809-811 N 19th St, Philadelphia

Special Libraries—Special Libraries. $5. Special Libraries Assn, 31 East Tenth St, New York 3

Spec—Spectator. The Spectator, Ltd. 30s. 99 Gower St, London, WC 1

Springf'd Republican—Springfield Republican. $14. Republican Publishing Co, 32 Cypress St, Springfield, Mass.

Copies of this paper came in irregularly from February 19, 1942 until October 1st.

Subscription Bks Bul—Subscription Books Bulletin. $2. American Library Association, 520 N Michigan Av, Chicago

Survey—Survey Midmonthly. Paul Kellogg, ed. $3. Survey Associates, Inc, 112 E 19th St, New York 3

Survey G—Survey Graphic. Paul Kellogg, ed. $3. Survey Associates, Inc, 112 E 19th St, New York 3

Theatre Arts—Theatre Arts. Edith J. R. Isaacs, ed. $3.50. Theatre Arts, Inc, 40 E 49th St, New York 17

Time—Time. Henry R. Luce and Manfred Gottfried, eds. $5. Time, Inc, 330 E 22d St, Chicago 16

Times [London] Lit Sup—Times Literary Supplement. 17s 4d. Times Publishing Co. Ltd, Printing House Square, London, E.C. 4; $4.15. The Times (London), North American Office, 280 Broadway, New York

Weekly Book Review—New York Herald Tribune Books. $1. N Y Tribune, Inc, Publisher, 230 W 41st St, New York

Name of book section was changed from Books, February 14, 1943

Yale R ns—Yale Review. Helen MacAfee, managing ed. $3. Yale Review, Drawer 1729, New Haven, Conn.

In addition to the above list the Book Review Digest sometimes quotes from Cleveland Open Shelf; Columbia Law Review; Harvard Law Review; Pratt Institute Quarterly; Publishers' Weekly; Review of Scientific Instruments; Wisconsin Library Bulletin; Yale Law Journal; and other bulletins and papers.

Explanations

The descriptive note is separated from critical notices of a book by a dash.

The plus and minus signs preceding the name of the magazine indicate the degree of favor or disfavor of the entire review.

In the reference to a magazine, the first number refers to the volume, the next to the page, the letters to the date and the last figures to the number of words in the review.

Book Review Digest

Devoted to the Valuation of Current Literature

Cumulation of monthly numbers March 1943—February 1944

ABBOT, ANTHONY, pseud. See Oursler, F.

ABBOTT, JANE LUDLOW (DRAKE) (MRS FRANK ABBOTT). Yours for the asking. 309p $2 Lippincott

43-1295

A shy young minister with his charming wife, whom he had married after a five-weeks' acquaintance, go to a parish in the Kentucky mountains. The story is of their first year, which has its full quota of readjustment and near tragedies.

"The sugar content of 'Yours for the Asking' is not as high as it has been in some of Jane Abbott's recent novels, and most readers will find the rationing a distinct gain. Characters are more firmly drawn, and the story is handled in a manner that gives one a greater illusion of reality." Lisle Bell

+ Books p18 Ja 31 '43 230w

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean

N Y Times p20 Ja 31 '43 160w

Wis Lib Bul 39:41 Mr '43

ABEL, MRS THEODORA (MEAD), and KINDER, MRS ELAINE (FLITNER). Subnormal adolescent girl. 215p $2.50 Columbia univ. press

136.762 Children, Abnormal and backward. Girls. Adolescence 42-24858

"An interesting discussion of the subnormal adolescent girl within her home, at school, in industry, in an institution, with additional chapters on the seriously maladjusted girl, the community's problem, and origins and control." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

School & Society 56:448 N 7 '42 30w

"The authors of this compact and interesting study are particularly qualified to present us with firsthand knowledge of the subnormal girl, as both have spent a number of years in daily contact with her. . . All who read this book will unite in the authors' plea that the public make more use of the practical knowledge regarding the subnormal which is now available. The excellent bibliography offers stimulating suggestions as to sources of further information on the subject." E. T. Burr

+ Survey 79:90 Mr '43 480w

ABEND, HALLETT. My life in China, 1926-1941. 396p $3 Harcourt

951.042 China—Politics and government. Chinese-Japanese war, 1931-. Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 43-15741

Reminiscences of a New York Times correspondent who went to the Far East in 1926, supposedly for a short vacation, and stayed until 1941. He portrays with accuracy and insight the gradual organization of the Chinese, and the growth of Japanese power on the mainland of Asia. Index.

"Abend is a newspaperman. He went to China to get a 'story'. The stories in his book are extremely well written. As to the history of that period, Abend does not write it, nor did he seemingly intend to." C. C. Cheng

Book Week p9 N 21 '43 270w

Booklist 40:90 N 15 '43

"Next to spending those fifteen turbulent but formative years personally in China, there can scarcely be a better way to get a vivid impression of the events leading up to the time of America's involvement in the war and an acute feel of the situation than to read Abend's book."

+ Christian Century 60:1304 N 10 '43 200w

"Abend's book is good, but not good enough." W. F. Sands

Commonweal 39:257 D 24 '43 500w

"Washington of Dec. 6, 1941, provides the springboard for one of Mr. Abend's most thoughtful comments on American war psychology, and his book is illuminatingly packed with such provocative and fateful pictures of the path down which we idled before Pearl Harbor—and along which we are in danger of blindly wandering in the future. . . Here is a book which can well serve as a manual in designing our eventual policy in Asia." John Goette

+ N Y Times p8 N 7 '43 1600w

"Much familiar material, but continuously interesting for its self-portrait of a sound reporter at work under exceptionally difficult conditions."

+ New Yorker 19:107 N 6 '43 70w

"The book has style and bristles with frankness. It is the story of a man who learned the hard way about the fateful meaning of the rising tide from Japan. . . All in all, this is an important book. May many in high offices read it and heed its warnings." H. W. Weigert

+ Sat R of Lit 26:6 N 6 '43 650w

"'My Life In China' is more than memoir or autobiography, for it paints an authentic picture of the background of Chinese affairs, gives illuminating portraits of leading figures and discloses stories hitherto unpublished. Despite an occasional lapse into a display of overimportance and an occasional touch of petty arrogance, Hallett Abend has turned out a readable, worth-while book concerning bygone days whose effects are still with us. His past reputation will make many readers ponder carefully what, in the concluding chapters, he predicts as to the future of China and Japan." P. J. Searles

+ Weekly Book Review p6 N 7 '43 1200w

Wis Lib Bul 39:157 D '43

Subject and title index at end of alphabet

ABEND, HALLETT. Pacific charter; our destiny in Asia. 302p $2.50 Doubleday

950 Eastern question (Far East). Reconstruction (1939-). World war, 1939—East (Far East) 43-588

The author was for many years the New York Times correspondent in the Orient. On the basis of the knowledge gained during those years Mr Abend has written a realistic study of "the Far East and the problems of the Far Pacific." It is his contention that we must make a concrete declaration of our peace aims in the Pacific, and that there must be no "soft peace." Partial contents: Wanted: Blueprints for peace; China and Japan; For the Filipinos; France in the Orient; Thailand for the Thais; What of the Dutch? Princes in Malaya; Anti-British Burma; And India; What of Australia? New Zealand looks ahead; Matsuoka in reserve; Konoye the gambler; No soft peace!

"Unquestionably there are points of view and conclusions expressed in Pacific Charter with which there will be disagreement. There will be a natural temptation to compare it with other volumes, such as Mr. Peffer's Basis of Peace, in certain respects to the disadvantage of Pacific Charter. Its scope is broader, but there is, for example, more internal inconsistency, and the analysis in support of the conclusions presented is less complete. Nevertheless it is a book that should have a wide reading, and the conclusions presented should be given careful consideration by those who are marking out the lines of present policy." H. M. Vinacke
+ — Am Pol Sci R 37:740 Ag '43 600w

Booklist 39:221 F 1 '43

Bookmark 4:14 My '43

"What will perhaps arrest most attention in the book is the revelation of some hitherto unwritten history, in which Mr. Abend himself figured as an American correspondent." Nathaniel Peffer
+ Books p6 Ja 24 '43 700w

Reviewed by H. W. Harris
Boston Globe p19 Ja 13 '43 800w

"This is a well informed, carefully constructed, thought-provoking book, and, although the author sets himself down as in favor of 'intelligent prejudice,' the arguments with which he supports his opinion are not easy to answer, and his chapters will give great help to an impartial critic."
+ Cath World 157:558 Ag '43 270w

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 25 '43 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Ap '43

"Naturally enough, many will disagree with Abend's analysis of the problems of particular territories. Few will be bored however, by his realistic, straight-from-the-shoulder commentary." Carol Thompson
+ Current Hist 4:154 Ap '43 500w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:16 Jl '43 60w

"Timely and readable. Recommended for understanding of East Asia's problems and the necessary 'blue-prints' for enduring peace." M. J. Messler
+ Library J 68:33 Ja 1 '43 110w

"Though primarily written for Americans this book deserves study by all." O. M.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 S 15 '43 150w

Reviewed by W. L. Holland
Nation 157:105 Jl 24 '43 1000w

Reviewed by J. B. Powell
New Repub 108:323 Mr 8 '43 450w

"Mr Abend has achieved an unusual combination: vivid reminiscent reporting of the cities and countries which he knows so well, and stimulating forecasting of the shape of things to come in the Orient. His book deserves a wide audience." W. H. Chamberlin
+ N Y Times p1 Ja 17 '43 1300w

New Yorker 18:52 Ja 9 '43 80w

"Even those who feel they possess a knowledge of the Far East sufficiently basic to disagree with the premises in this book, will find this book well worth their reading. As for the others, read 'Pacific Charter' and be the wiser therefor." John Goette
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:5 F 27 '43 700w

Scientific Bk Club R 14:4 F '43 120w

Reviewed by F. L. Reinstein
Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 24 '43 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p410 Ag 28 '43 480w

Wis Lib Bul 39:40 Mr '43

ABERNETHY, BYRON R. Liberty concepts in labor relations. 119p $2.50 Am. council on public affairs

331.1 Labor laws and legislation—U.S. Liberty. Industrial relations 43-7765

"Dr. Abernethy examines here the fundamental liberties and privileges involved in labor-management conflict, analyzes the significance of political theory in this field, and seeks to evolve a basis for reconciling the discordant attitudes." Management R

"The treatment is elementary but effective, simple but fundamental. The tone is fair and temperate. Positions are supported by pertinent statements from representative leaders of public opinion on both sides." S. H. Patterson
+ Am Soc R 8:362 Je '43 250w

"Despite an avowal of impartiality, the book smacks of anti-management bias."
Management R 32:196 My '43 50w

Social Studies 34:286 O '43 50w

ABRAMSON, HAROLD ALEXANDER; MOYER, LAURENCE SORVER, and GORIN, MANUEL H. Electrophoresis of proteins and the chemistry of cell surfaces. 341p il $6 Reinhold

547.8 Proteins. Cells. Electrochemistry 42-20742

"Discussions designed to aid research into the surface chemistry of living cells, outlining and emphasizing the connections of the proteins to their biological functions." N Y New Tech Bks

"It must be reluctantly said that the authors have missed a chance to write a much needed book. The material is at hand, but it needs organizing. What we really know should be separated from guesswork. The terminology needs much revision to allow for precision of statement. The good work needs separating from the bad. And, particularly, the outlook on the field covered should have the perspective that comes only from careful thought and slow composition." D. A. MacInnes
— + Chem & Eng N 21:574 Ap 25 '43 700w

"The authors must be commended for their conscientious compilation and coordination of a vast amount of information. The text makes interesting reading."
+ Chem & Met Eng 50:168 Ja '43 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 27:37 Jl '42

ADAMIC, LOUIS. My native land. 507p il $3.75 Harper

949.7 Yugoslavia. World war, 1939—Yugoslavia 43-16027

The author of The Native's Return, writes again of his fatherland, stressing particularly its history since World war I, and the culmination of that history in the present chaotic conditions.

Reviewed by Martin Flavin
Atlantic 173:123 F '44 350w

Reviewed by H. L. Reich
Book Week p1 N 7 '43 650w

Booklist 40:110 D 1 '43

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley
Cath World 158:310 D '43 360w

Reviewed by H. E. Fey
Christian Century 61:146 F 2 '44 950w

"This is not an easy book to read, because the picture so carefully drawn is the picture of a confusing mess, but it should be studied by those who would understand the problems that our peace-makers must solve." W. L. Caswell

Churchman 157:18 D 15 '43 420w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '43

"Mr. Adamic is writing here as a pamphleteer, not as a historian, and it is perhaps unfair to ask that he substantiate his every assertion. Nevertheless, I wish he had been a little more careful about his facts, many of which are demonstrably mistaken, and a little less eager to bend his somewhat dubious source material to fit the purposes of his argument. . . Moreover, since he was born in Slovenia, Mr. Adamic writes from a strongly Slovenian and therefore pro-Croatian point of view and ignores the many arguments in favor of the Serbian cause. I think he minimizes unduly the pertinent if unpalatable facts that it was the Serbs alone who fought the Germans in the beginning. . . For my part, I find it difficult to forget that Croatian Communists, like their comrades in France, refused to fight for their country until after the Germans invaded Russia." Leigh White

Nation 157:702 D 11 '43 950w

Reviewed by Bogdan Raditsa

New Repub 109:692 N 15 '43 1750w

" 'My Native Land' is a vital book, full of the most challenging observations. In a way it goes far beyond the confines of a small Balkan country and deals with issues which all the world will have to face. Mr Adamic is tremendously outspoken in his criticism of governments and statesmen. It is refreshing to read him—even though, naturally, not all can agree with all his views and conclusions." Emil Lengyel

+ N Y Times p7 N 7 '43 1300w

"Badly organized and sometimes rather loose in its generalizations, but effectively written, strong on new material, and full of valuable, sometimes startling insights into the tangle of Yugoslav factional warfare under the German and the Italian occupation."

+ — New Yorker 19:106 N 6 '43 90w

Reviewed by Milan Herzog

+ Sat R of Lit 26:29 D 4 '43 1150w

" 'My Native Land' is a valuable book even if half of the author's opinions should prove partly in error. For it is rich in information nowhere else available, it is eloquently written and best of all it will grip many readers because it is pointed up vividly—often tragically —by personal portraits of participants in the struggle." Marshall Bragdon

+ — Springf'd Republican p6 N 13 '43 650w

Reviewed by H. D. Gideonse

Survey G 33:27 Ja '44 600w

"Whether one agrees with Adamic or not, one must admit he knows the subject of which he writes. His book, though somewhat unorganized in form, is stimulating and provocative. It is an important book; a book no thinking American, interested in the world of tomorrow, should miss." Robert St John

+ Weekly Book Review p3 N 7 '43 2000w

ADAMS, BROOKS. Law of civilization and decay; an essay on history; with an introd. by Charles A. Beard. 360p $3.50 Knopf

901 Civilization—History. History—Philosophy. Degeneration 43-6796

Revised edition of an American classic, first published in this country in 1896, altho it appeared earlier in England. It is a study in historiography in which the author's theory is "based upon the scientific principle that the law of force and energy is of universal application in nature" and that "the economic organism tends to supersede the emotional and martial. . . At length a point must be reached when pressure can go no further—disintegration may set in, the civilized population may perish . . . because the energy of the race has been exhausted. . . The survivors must probably remain inert until supplied with fresh energetic material by the infusion of barbarian blood." There is a long introductory essay by Charles A. Beard. Index.

Reviewed by Rushton Coulborn

Am Hist R 49:77 O '43 950w

"Dr. Beard's introduction is to be regarded as an important chapter in the intellectual history of the United States." J. J. Robbins

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:762 Ag '43 300w

"Essentially the book is a diatribe, but it is powerfully argued and gives evidence of thorough scholarship. Readers of Spengler or Sorokin who have not yet read Adams have many surprises in store for them."

Am Soc R 8:623 O '43 100w

"Without the helpful criticism of Charles A. Beard it would have been quite inopportune in times like these to re-edit a book that virtually smothers all hope for a better future. Yet, despite Adams' brand of pessimism (which reached its zenith in Oswald Spengler's 'The Decline of the West') the book still has great value for the reader of today, who again is made to realize that the bitter struggle between the monied class and the debtor has extended over thousands of years, and still goes on, but that the aspects of the outcome—contrary to Brooks Adams' theory—have greatly improved for the poor and for civilization." H. L. Reich

+ Book Week p6 Je 13 '43 600w

Ethics 54:65 O '43 300w

Reviewed by E. C. Richards

N Y Times p3 Je 13 '43 460w

Reviewed by D. J. Pierce

Pol Sci Q 58:437 S '43 850w

" 'Your book,' wrote Henry to Brooks, 'is a Bible of Chaos.' That may be, but it is a majestic and ordered chaos and he who reads it cannot deny in it a deep internal justice." Lovell Thompson

Sat R of Lit 26:30 Je 19 '43 1050w

"In the light of modern historical trends Mr Adams's work may be considered one-sided and even in some respects dated, but in its own right, as well as because of its importance in the development of American historical writing, it is even today an interesting and thought-provoking study. . . At any rate, the book, in spite of, or perhaps because of, its limitations is a fascinating study. It is stimulating reading and deserves the thoughtful attention of everyone interested in the history of men and of ideas." W. H. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 12 '43 1150w

ADAMS, CHARLOTTE. You'll eat it up; a menu for every day and every occasion. 308p $2.50 Barrows

641.5 Cookery. Menus 43-6695

This book by the former food editor of PM is divided into two parts. The first part consists of menus, season by season, with shopping lists and lists of staples to be checked for each menu. The second section contains the recipes, all of which are measured to serve four people. Index.

"Its refreshing to read, in the author's foreword, that the book is for 'the present emergency—and long, long after.' What if some of the ingredients called for are out for the duration—there'll come a day when they will be back on our shelves. And, meanwhile, this book brings you numerous recipes to chart the way to appetizing meals in these rationed days." Helen Henley

+ Christian Science Monitor p8 Jl 9 '43 90w

"Mrs. Adams's book does not deal entirely with wartime problems, but there are many menus and recipes which fit into our changing times for lunches and dinners allowing the vitamins to fall where they may. After all, cook books are for all time and this one has been written with a view to the future when rationing will have become history." Jeanne Owen

N Y Times p26 My 23 '43 180w

ADAMS, CLEVE FRANKLIN (JOHN SPAIN, pseud). Death is like that. 253p $2 Dutton 43-14975

Detective story.

ADAMS, C. F.—Continued

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p5 O 17 '43 140w

"The story is loosely constructed and has little to recommend it." Isaac Anderson
— N Y Times p14 O 17 '43 140w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 110w

"Take this however you like, as the genuine hard-boiled stuff or just fooling around with a prize cast of screwballs, this is highly entertaining for the most part. . . Mr. Spain's grim tales hide plenty of honest if ribald amusement." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p24 O 17 '43 180w

ADAMS, CLEVE FRANKLIN (JOHN SPAIN, pseud). Up jumped the devil. 242p $2 Reynal 43-7357

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p9 My 30 '43 250w

"Violent action from start to finish, but not all of it makes sense." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 My 23 '43 100w

"Good hard-boiled stuff."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:44 My 22 '43 50w

"Seems to us that Cleve F. Adams is best of the hard-boiled mystifiers. 'Up Jumped the Devil' converted us to underworld stuff again, after all our efforts to rise above it—maybe because Mr. Adams knows his job." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p30 My 23 '43 400w

ADAMS, DALE. Fun with cards. 118p $1 Barnes, A.S.

795.4 Cards 43-6397

"This book contains the most popular card games that are played today. . . A wide variety has been chosen, with games to suit any mood and any occasion—and any number of players. Even the lone player who enjoys his Solitaire will find interesting new and old games to intrigue him." Foreword

Book Week p6 Ap 25 '43 70w
Wis Lib Bul 39:83 Je '43

ADAMS, EUSTACE LANE. Death charter. 252p $2 Coward-McCann
43-7236

Spy story, with a yacht outward bound from Miami for the scene of action. The two young brothers who owned the yacht made the mistake of rescuing three Nazi flyers, and with the one Nazi already aboard, in disguise, the boys had their hands full, until one of them found a way to circumvent the captors.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p6 Je 6 '43 160w

"A swiftly paced story of espionage and German ruthlessness and brutality and of stubborn resistance and quick thinking on the part of the Ames brothers, their crew and two of the passengers. The climax of the story is as satisfying as it is sensational." I. A.
+ N Y Times p14 Je 13 '43 240w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p21 My 16 '43 200w

ADAMS, HAROLD W. Aircraft hydraulics. 159p il $1.75 McGraw

629.135 Airplanes—Hydraulic equipment
43-8131

"The purpose of this book is to give the student the basic rules and principles underlying the design of hydraulic systems used in modern aircraft, in order that he may be able to understand present systems and develop future ones. Thus the emphasis is on the engineering aspects of the subject rather than on the details of systems in current use. The author covers hydrodynamics and design requirements for aircraft hydraulic systems and for the units used on such systems. The book also deals with present-day drafting, manufacture, installation, testing, and maintenance procedure for both systems and units." (Publisher's note) Index.

Book Week p10 N 28 '43 70w
Booklist 39:458 Jl 15 '43
Library J 67:1066 D 1 '42 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:22 Ap '43

Reviewed by L. S. Marks
N Y Times p16 Jl 25 '43 260w

"Done in an expert manner." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p17 Je 13 '43 130w

ADAMS, JAMES TRUSLOW. The American; the making of a new man. 404p $3 Scribner

973 National characteristics, American. U.S.—History 43-51259

Scholarly study of the evolution of the American temperament, considering the effects of politics, religion, the frontier, foreign affairs, economics in the making of the present-day American. Index.

"It is a book worthy of its subject and one which, in extracting from history the elements which have shaped our national character, will help us and others to realize what we are and why."
+ Atlantic 172:131 N '43 120w

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 S 26 '43 550w

Booklist 40:45 O 1 '43

Reviewed by C. W. Thompson
Cath World 158:312 D '43 500w

"Making allowance for his habit of criticizing New England and for the rather sweeping nature of his generalizations, his book is informative, provocative, lively in style, and good for a reader's proportion and perspective." W. K. R.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p13 O 2 '43 700w

"The work will be found refreshing, in the best sense of the word, informative and entertaining." William Callahan
+ Commonweal 39:19 O 22 '43 700w

"Recommended as a timely and scholarly study." A. R. Eaton
+ Library J 68:723 S 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by Albert Guérard
Nation 157:560 N 13 '43 1000w

Reviewed by Francis Brown
N Y Times p7 S 26 '43 900w

"A comprehensive, readable job, with here and there a new insight. You may feel, though, that rugged individualism has been played up at the expense of the lend-a-hand spirit. The author's Boston-baiting is amusing, but his rationalization of slavery's benefits to the slaves may strike you as a good deal less than that."
+ — New Yorker 19:85 S 25 '43 90w

"On the whole, the book is disappointing. It is adequate and competent; but coming from an author whose ability to produce brilliant historical prose has been proved, that is not enough. Some day this theme will inspire a great historical study; some day there will be a book with the vivid eloquence of a Mark Twain discussing 'Life on the Mississippi' and the rich scholarship of a Constance Rourke revealing the American humor. But this one is not it. This one belongs on a different shelf from Mr. Adams's 'Epic of America' or his 'Founding of New England.'" W. S. Lynch
— + Sat R of Lit 26:22 O 16 '43 1100w

Reviewed by S. L. Jackson
Springf'd Republican p7e S 26 '43 750w

Reviewed by Oscar Zeichner
Survey G 32:452 N '43 420w

"Mr. Adams writes luminously, learnedly, charmingly and, for the most part, plausibly of the composition and characteristics of that strange creature known, for lack of a more exact appellation, as the American. . . I am acquainted with no other work that within as small a compass presents as lucid an account of the major forces that have moulded and shaped the lives of the dwellers upon this continent. No historian whose work any rational man can read has ever written altogether without bias, but Mr. Adams has come much closer to doing so than most; and for that reason every strongly prejudiced reader will suspect him of leaning toward the side of the ungodly." G. W. Johnson
+ Weekly Book Review p1 S 19 '43 1700w
Wis Lib Bul 39:144 N '43

ADAMS, JAMES TRUSLOW, ed. Atlas of American history; R. V. Coleman, managing editor. 297-360p 147pl maps $10 Scribner
911 U.S.—Historical geography—Maps
Map43-126

Series of 147 maps portraying American history "through the location of places as they actually existed and exactly when they existed at a given time." The atlas is intended as a companion volume to the Dictionary of American History (Book Review Digest, 1940). They span the years from pre-Columbian America to 1912, when the last of the forty-eight states was admitted to the Union. Index.

"There is really no need for a review of this impressive product of American historical scholarship. It should be sufficient to say that from the standpoint of utility, workmanship, and scholarship the volume measures up to the high standard of the six volumes of the Dictionary of American History, which it is intended to supplement." G. M. Stephenson
+ Am Hist R 49:107 O '43 440w

Reviewed by W. J. Petersen
Ann Am Acad 229:196 S '43 500w

Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky
Book Week p4 Je 6 '43 140w

Reviewed by L. J. Burpee
Canadian Hist R 24:425 D '43 750w

"Back of each map lies the careful work of a corps of supervisors and an advisory council of historians and map-makers. Every student of the book will inevitably wish something had been included that he fails to find, but the hardest problem the makers of the book had to face, says the editor, was to know where to stop. Local history had to be omitted except as it had a direct bearing on national history. As it stands, this single volume is visual revelation of the United States and its entire history." W. K. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 5 '43 700w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:161 O '43 10w

Reviewed by R. H. Brown
Geog R 33:683 O '43 950w

Reviewed by J. L. Wheeler
Library J 68:776 O 1 '43 750w

Reviewed by Oscar Handlin
New Eng Q 16:681 D '43 600w

"Any atlas prepared with such painstaking care should be a good one, and the 'Atlas of American History' is excellent—so far as it goes. Its editors are well aware that their achievement is not complete, that many additional maps might have been included in the volume. Perhaps it is not a matter of 'might' but of 'should.' The ultimate decision rests with what theory of history is to be considered, and in this regard there is no denying that the editors of the Atlas have been both conservative and conventional." Francis Brown
+ — N Y Times p17 My 30 '43 900w

"A first-rate, intelligently organized series of maps that make clear most of the aspects of our history in which place names are important."
+ New Yorker 19:75 My 22 '43 20w

"This volume is a notable service to the study of American history. It takes the place of dozens of separate works which, when pieced together, add up to a cartographical story of America. But that is only one of its major accomplishments. In addition to presenting a geographical record in compact, unified form, it serves as a fascinating study of the unfolding development of the United States." Norman Cousins
+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 Jl 3 '43 340w

"Although the foreword does not mention the Atlas of the Historical Geography of the United States, by Charles O. Paullin, edited by John K. Wright, published jointly by the Carnegie Institution of Washington and the American Geographical Society in 1932, it would seem that the editors of the title under review have made an effort not to duplicate the wealth of social, economic and political maps and tables in that excellent treatise. Whatever the intention, they have done a good job in providing easily read maps listing the important names and places in the history of the nation. Libraries and schools having the Paullin atlas will find, as has been noted, little actual duplication in the title under review. In fact, the two atlases are complementary. Where funds are extremely limited, Harper's Atlas of American History will prove satisfactory and is much less expensive. Atlas of American History is recommended."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:33 O '43 1400w

"The present Atlas is designed, its editor tells us, to aid not only the professional historian but the high school and college student, and to that end it is 'concise, easy to use, and authoritative.'" H. S. Commager
+ Weekly Book Review p10 Jl 25 '43 800w

ADAMS, VEOTTA MCKINLEY. Captain Joe and the Eskimo; pictures by Barney Tobey. [40p] $1.25 Scott, W.R.
43-51287

Picture-story book for primary grades, showing the attempts of a ship captain to rescue an Eskimo boy from an ice floe. Every effort of the captain was frustrated by the boy's lack of knowledge of white ways, but eventually he succeeded in saving himself by making his own use of the captain's offerings.

Booklist 40:81 N 1 '43

"A jolly story with robustly humorous pictures." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:401 N '43 30w

"Pictures, icy blue and black, are caricatured in the manner that small children like. Barney Tobey has given them personality and humor. . . A good 'funny' book for primary grades." J. E. Wooster
+ Library J 68:892 N 1 '43 60w

ADDIS, HUGH. Night over the wood. 287p $2 Dodd 43-3659

Detective story.

"It may please the reader who likes his crime gory rather than subtle. The fussy will be bored until cousin Arthur enters. Rather a puzzling mixture of shopworn melodrama and brighter moments."
N Y Times p8 Mr 14 '43 120w

"Chilling, but rather over-written, tale of family chickens that came home to roost—and kill. Some fantastic characters and good detecting. Middling."
Sat R of Lit 26:21 Mr 6 '43 40w

"Crime and kidding are capitally mixed."
+ Time 41:84 Mr 1 '43 30w

ADLER, KURT, ed. Songs of many wars; from the sixteenth to the twentieth century. 221p $3 Howell, Soskin
784.71 War songs 43-11941

Collection of martial songs from many nations, arranged under the following headings: Religious and feudal wars; Reform and its crises; Thirty years' war to French revolution; Napoleon to the revolts of 1848; The American

ADLER, KURT—Continued
Civil war; To the first World war; Between World wars; Global war. Includes words and music, with at least one verse in the original language, when it is other than English. Index.

Booklist 40:74 N 1 '43

"It is a pleasure to recommend this book to all Americans who have an interest in the spirit of their allies; 'the fighters in all lands and in all ages for liberty and independence.' The contents of this novel collection will provide many pleasant hours of entertainment for those who enjoy making music in the home." Willard Rhodes
+ Sat R of Lit 26:38 O 16 '43 850w

"The wonder is that the book does not break out into singing, it holds so much that had to be sung. Men have gone to prison for some of those tunes and to the guillotine for others, but they went singing."
+ Weekly Book Review p20 Ag 29 '43 410w

ADSHEAD, GLADYS L. Casco; pictures by Else Bostleman. 63p $1.50 Oxford
Seals (animals)—Legends and stories 43-5898

Story of a baby seal and its mother. Casco was born on an island off the coast of Maine. When Casco was still a baby he swam off one day and it might have gone hard with him if he had not been found by an affectionate collie dog and his master. For children five to eight.

"This is a pleasant little story of an unusual friendship between a dog and a seal, aided by the dog's master through summer days. Young children will enjoy it and learn from it something about seashore life on the Maine coast." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:237 Jl '43 70w

"This friendly little story of a lovable seal, and a lovable dog, will readily catch the imagination of boys and girls from 5 to 8." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p20 My 2 '43 280w

"These sea creatures talk freely among themselves, but not with mankind: they are lovable creatures a little child would welcome as companions, and Casco really did do what he does in this book, right there on the Maine coast one summer not so long ago." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p23 My 23 '43 280w

Wis Lib Bul 39:124 O '43

AEROLOGY for pilots; pub. under the supervision of the Training division, Bur. of aeronautics, U.S. navy. (Flight preparation training ser) 107p il maps $1.25 McGraw 629.1324 Meteorology in aeronautics 43-6072

"This book is concerned with the influence of the weather on flying. Since we are living at the bottom of the same air as that through which the aviator flies, any one who wants to learn about meteorology in an easy manner can read it with benefit. A good part is concerned with the interpretation of weather maps using the new type, based on air mass analysis, that was just coming into use when censorship made them secret. Relaxation of these rules may soon make such maps available once more, and then this book may find a still wider distribution, aside from the naval cadets who will use it." Weekly Book Review

---

"This is an entertaining book on meteorology."
+ Book Week p10 My 23 '43 110w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p45 N 14 '43 200w

AGAR, HERBERT. A time for greatness. 301p $2.50 Little [7s 6d Eyre]
917.3 U.S.—Civilization. U.S.—Politics and government. U.S.—Economic policy. Democracy 42-36297

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Bookmark 5:4 Ja '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:370 Ja '43 30w

Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 26 '43 250w

Reviewed by John Corbin
Sat R of Lit 26:23 Mr 20 '43 360w

"This is a good book, with a special interest for English readers because it shows the difference between English and American types of self-criticism. Modern English critics of England incline towards a certain intellectual superiority, a certain 'sniffiness' about ordinary people. These critics write for a sophisticated audience; they go in fear of saying anything which may be damned as commonplace. Some American critics have indeed learned to project a kind of ultra-bilious ray which kills everything in its narrow path, but most American criticism of America is robust, positive and, one may add, entertaining. The critics do not lack hitting power. They are not afraid of repeating something which has been said before; their method is to make neat epigrams of the obvious and thus to transform lumps of lead into bullets. Mr. Agar's bullets hit the target almost every time." E. L. Woodward
+ Spec 170:247 Mr 12 '43 750w

"Mr. Agar's trumpet sounds with no uncertain note; it will be heard as an injunction to plain duty (and enlightened self interest also) provided that its hearers have the energy and adaptability to rise to it."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p124 Mr 13 '43 500w

"It may be that Agar, by implication at least, underestimates some of the practical limitations on idealism that have been pointed out by 'realists.' Geopolitists, 'scientific' sociologists, and legal and diplomatic historians have gathered some facts that a non-romantic idealist should consider. Moreover, most of the realists, including particularly those who profess a skepticism of theory, arrange the facts they select in impressive (although considerably variegated) theoretical patterns. Agar's special virtue is that he acknowledges and makes clear his theoretical and ethical bias. He sets forth his bias persuasively, showing how deeply it is rooted in the American tradition and presenting in defense of it some important evidence that a non-romantic realist must consider." F. W. Coker
+ Yale R n s 32:577 spring '43 1150w

AGETON, ARTHUR AINSLEY. Naval officer's guide. (Whittlesey house publication) 514p il $3 McGraw 359 U.S.—Navy—Officers' handbooks 43-4401

"This book is designed to serve as a compendium of useful information for the guidance of the individual commissioned officer of the United States Navy. . . While the opinions or assertions contained in this guide are the author's and are not to be considered as official or as reflecting the views of the Navy Department or of the naval service at large, no effort has been spared to make this work authoritative." Pref.

"An authoritative, instructive and interesting handbook which should prove a welcome and valued gift to the new naval officer." D. McC.
+ Book Week p9 Ap 11 '43 140w

Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky
Book Week p5 Je 20 '43 40w

"Obviously this isn't a book to be read at a single sitting. But it is a book with which every naval officer should be familiar and one that he will be wise to have handy at all times for reference use. In that role it will serve him exceedingly well." W. H. Fetridge
+ Book Week p2 Je 27 '43 340w

Booklist 39:327 Ap 15 '43
Library J 67:1066 D 1 '42 30w

"As a compendium of information for the guidance of newly commissioned Waves and Ensigns, this handbook is essential, thorough, basic, instructive, authoritative and withal a highly readable reference volume." Lloyd Shearer
+ N Y Times p32 Ap 4 '43 320w

"This superb manual is the answer to a young and inexperienced naval officer's prayer —and is worth the attention of all naval men, even those who have been at sea for years." Paul Schubert
+ Sat R of Lit 26:34 Ag 21 '43 310w

"No present or prospective naval officer should be without Commander Ageton's excellently prepared, complete yet compact compendium." P. J. Searles
+ Weekly Book Review p13 My 9 '43 500w

AGHION, RAOUL. Fighting French. 315p il maps $3 Holt

940.541244 France—Free France movement. World war, 1939—France 43-7051

A young French diplomat and scholar, now head of the Fighting French in New York gives an account of the Fighting French movement. He includes his own experiences in Syria and North Africa at the time of the fall of France and immediately thereafter, and gives new light on the Syrian, Lybian and North African campaigns, the Dakar episode, and the underground press. Illustrated with photographs. Index.

"Raoul Aglion's book is excellent background reading for the De Gaulle-Giraud negotiations and for the coming liberation of France. . . Nobody can read it without understanding why the French people are almost unanimously behind De Gaulle today, both in continental France and in Africa." Robert Lasch
+ Book Week p1 Je 13 '43 800w
Booklist 39:442 Jl 1 '43
Bookmark 4:11 My '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Jl '43

"The author, authority on French law, is a member of the staff of the Foreign Office of the French National Committee. Stationed in Syria when France fell, he was among the first to resign from the diplomatic service, head for Egypt and heed the call of General de Gaulle. His book is authoritative, reserved yet dramatic, without trace of rancor, giving credit where it is due." William Agar
+ Commonweal 38:374 Jl 30 '43 550w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:158 O '43 30w

"Though author is ardent partisan, book remarkably objective. . . Recommended for all public and college libraries." H. H. A. Bernt
+ Library J 68:361 My 1 '43 80w

"Raoul Aglion can speak of the Fighting French with authority. He was one of the first members of the French diplomatic service to rally to General de Gaulle and he is now in New York on the staff of the French National Committee. He has written a concise and modest book; the ardent patriot in him is constantly held in check by the jurist. There is no lack of passion and drama in these pages, but they are revealed only through a sober recital of the facts." Albert Guerard
+ Nation 156:839 Je 12 '43 800w

Reviewed by Varian Fry
New Repub 109:84 Jl 19 '43 240w

"There have been enough books to tell us in what way Frenchmen of this war were lacking, and precisely what they failed to do. There was a vital need for a history such as this, which gives us, in maps, in photographs and in facts and figures, the exact record of what Frenchmen as individuals of unfaltering courage have accomplished since their country's fall. It should be conclusive proof to the doubting that if a great military defeat took place in France in 1940, a great renaissance took place as well." Kay Boyle
+ N Y Times p5 My 30 '43 1500w

"A good job, but the author seems inclined to be a trifle too tactful on occasion."
+ — New Yorker 19:87 Je 5 '43 70w

"He has successfully presented the cause of Fighting France and its first advocate, Gen de Gaulle. One of the most pertinent aspects of the book is its exposition of the scope of the governmental and civic reforms which this military regime has effected in the colonies to implement the military situation. The book is dramatic because the situation itself is fraught with drama, but it decidedly merits attention as a valuable addition to factual war literature." L. S. Munn
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 13 '43 800w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
Survey G 32:456 N '43 200w

"This book suffers from overdiscretion, but it is the bible of the Fighting French. If you want to know how one man—a rather obscure Brigadier General who had been all but hounded out of the French Army for being right—saved not only the French soul (yes, laugh!) but a quarter of the French Empire as well, then read it. And if at the end you are still able to believe that Henri Giraud rather than Charles de Gaulle has a right to be Number One among the Frenchmen fighting on our side, then I am abnormal—or you are." E. A. Mowrer
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Je 6 '43 1550w

AGLION, RAOUL. See Aghion, R.

AIKEN, CONRAD POTTER. Brownstone eclogues, and other poems. 99p $2 Duell

811 42-51524

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Booklist 39:315 Ap 1 '43

"More satisfying than work previously published is Conrad Aiken's new collection, 'Brownstone Eclogues and Other Poems.' The shorter pieces are exquisite, and we like particularly 'Who Shapes a Balustrade.' . . Longer poems like 'Blues for Ruby Matrix' become monotonous and burdened with too many words." Pearl Strachan
+ — Christian Science Monitor p13 F 13 '43 230w

"'Brownstone Eclogues' marks a new stage in Aiken. There is a new concreteness in it; the imagery is derived from metropolitan life, from hospitals, amusement parks, churches, parks, theatre marquees, taxis and radios. And, as often in Aiken, the surface of the writing is 'too poetic': too rich, too decorated and too lyrical. This is the reason why Aiken is often admired for the wrong reasons by people who have just begun to read verse, who think of verse as merely pretty language, whose taste has been formed and frozen by admiration of the rich descriptions of Keats. And this is another of the reasons why Jarrell and Miss Bogan condemn Aiken as merely rhetorical. But underneath the overrich surface of Aiken's poetry there is another and original richness, a richness of attitude and feeling." Delmore Schwartz
+ — New Repub 108:292 Mr 1 '43 900w

"On the whole, the present offering serves to confirm Aiken as one of America's front rank poets—one that can be counted on to give us the old exquisite wine in new bottles." Gustav Davidson
+ Sat R of Lit 26:48 Ap 17 '43 270w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Drew
Weekly Book Review p24 My 16 '43 500w

AIR navigation. (Flight preparation training ser) 7 pts pts 1-3 79;81;80p il maps ea $1 McGraw

629.1325 Navigation (aeronautics) (43-3907)

"Part I is an introduction to world geography via a text and illustrations almost as simple as, and using some of the technique of, comic strips. Part II deals with the elements of aerial navigation." (N Y New Tech Bks)

AIR navigation—Continued
Part III deals with dead reckoning and lines of position. All are published under the supervision of the training division, bureau of aeronautics, United States navy.

Library J 68:476 Je 1 '43 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:22 Ap '43 (Review of parts 1 & 2)

Reviewed by Theodore English
N Y Times p10 My 16 '43 180w (Review of parts 1 & 2)

Reviewed by Theodore English
N Y Times p20 Ag 15 '43 80w (Review of pt 3)

"The treatment is rather light and unorthodox, with touches of humor that should maintain the student's interest. If the four remaining volumes on air navigation explain their subjects as clearly as do the first three, the set will form an admirable one, not only for instructing the flyer, but also for giving the layman full details on a technical subject." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p22 Je 27 '43 360w

AIR news yearbook [1942] ed. by Phillip Andrews. 264p il $3.75 Duell

629.13 Aeronautics—Yearbooks (43-51048)

Oblong album of photographs and text describing types of planes in current use.

Booklist 39:286 Mr 15 '43

Library J 68:211 Mr 1 '43 50w

"Air News Yearbook is one of the better books of its type, and within the limits of today's military restrictions Phillip Andrews has done a good job. . . The pictures of the various planes carry no captions beyond the name and number. But all the additional data that can be printed at this time appear at the end of the book. More information is thus available than could be included in a caption, but skipping constantly to the end of the book becomes almost a reflex. Whether the plan is an improvement over the arrangement in similar volumes is for the individual reader to decide." F. P. G.
+ N Y Times p25 Ap 4 '43 200w

AIRCRAFT navigation. 2pts in 1 146p il $2; school ed $1.50 Macmillan [5s Cambridge]

629.1325 Navigation (aeronautics) 43-12021

"The aim in writing this book has been to give to all who are interested in air navigation, and have had no previous instruction, a concise introduction to the various subjects of which they must become masters before they can claim to be competent navigators." (Pref.) Contents: pt.1, Theory, by H. Stewart and A. Nichols; pt.2, Practice, by S. A. Walling and J. C. Hill.

"Carefully but not thrillingly written. Includes a circular slide rule for solving navigation problems." L. E. Grinter
+ Book Week p10 O 3 '43 20w

"It is a simple, direct statement of elementary principles of aircraft navigation, without any frills. It is a book for study rather than entertainment." L. E. Grinter
Book Week p10 N 7 '43 60w

Library J 68:670 S 1 '43 30w

ALBEE, FRED HOUDLETT. Surgeon's fight to rebuild men; an autobiography; foreword by Lowell Thomas. 349p il $3.50 Dutton

B or 92 Surgeons—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 43-2912

Autobiography of a famous orthopedic surgeon, originator of bone-graft surgery. His interest in surgery dates back to his boyhood on a rocky Maine farm, where he helped his grandfather to graft fruit trees. To date Dr Albee has performed over 30,000 operations, and at least 7,000 bone grafts. Index.

"The book lacks continuity, even though there is a disingenuous attempt to show that his career as a bone graft surgeon was largely determined by observing his grandfather graft apple trees. The style is jerky, due to the author's tendency frequently to go rather far afield. In thus doing, he makes numerous loose, inaccurate statements. . . Much space is devoted to the Carrel-Dakin treatment, leaving the reader with the impression that this is still the preferred treatment, while only seven lines are devoted to the Orr technic, which is one of several technics which have practically superseded the Carrel-Dakin method." E. G. Huber
Am J Pub Health 33:749 Je '43 500w

Reviewed by E. L. Keyes
Commonweal 37:572 Mr 26 '43 100w

"Fascinating book." J. B. Fogg
+ Library J 67:1105 D 15 '42 90w

"Besides its intrinsic interest, the book is full of hope for humanity in general and for the physically handicapped in particular." E. F. Allen
+ N Y Times p9 Mr 28 '43 460w

"A sober but far from humorless record."
New Yorker 19:67 Mr 6 '43 50w

"Another book to add to your library of biographies and autobiographies of doctors. And a good one!"
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 Mr '43 330w

Special Libraries 34:173 My '43

Reviewed by Garry de N. Hough, Jr.
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 14 '43 320w

"As a literary man Dr. Albee is by no means at the top of the lengthening list of writing doctors, but he has an important story to tell and he manages to get it across." Stanley Walker
+ Weekly Book Review p23 Ap 11 '43 900w

Wis Lib Bul 39:71 My '43

ALBERT, ARTHUR LEMUEL. Electrical fundamentals of communication. 554p il $3.50 McGraw

537 Electricity. Communication and traffic 42-23964

"Deals with electrical fundamentals from the point of view of communications—telegraphy, telephony, and radio. Designed for beginning students, the treatment is elementary, yet at the same time maintains a high standard of technical accuracy and provides a sound foundation in the subject. Examples illustrating the electrical fundamentals are given throughout the text, and many of these are numerical solutions of typical problems and circuits found in communication." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 39:194 Ja 15 '43

"Practical, accurate explanation of fundamentals."
+ Library J 68:129 F 1 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:6 Ja '43

N Y New Tech Bks 28:53 Jl '43

"As may well happen in a first edition, there are some rough spots. These occur principally in mathematical derivations and in expositions which require close reasoning. On the other hand, the illustrative examples are well chosen and explained, the selection of topical material is excellent and the descriptions, though frequently very concise, are clear and readable. One gets the impression that the book will have a wide use." Henry Hartig
+ — R of Scientific Instruments 14:102 Ap '43 1400w

ALBION, ROBERT GREENHALGH, and POPE, JENNIE BARNES. Sea lanes in wartime; the American experience, 1775-1942. 367p $3.50 Norton

973 U.S.—History, Naval. Merchant marine —U.S. Shipping—U.S. 42-25802

History of the American merchant marine, and the American navy, thru our five major wars, from 1775 to the present. The early wars are considered chronologically; the world wars are studied topically. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by H. I. Chapelle
Am Hist R 48:804 Jl '43 750w

"This is a book that should be read by all students of international affairs and economics pertaining to trade. Those with visions of the future greatness of our country on the seas will derive valuable background from its contents. The volume is well indexed and embraces a comprehensive bibliography of books, reports, and studies of pertinent maritime literature." L. P. Lovette
+ Ann Am Acad 226:171 Mr '43 400w

Booklist 39:198 Ja 15 '43

"Scholarly in its sound research and analysis yet seamanlike in its realism, [the book] brings an entirely fresh note to present-day thinking about the war and all its problems; it should be read by every one who cares to search for the true inwardness of what is going on in the world today." Lincoln Colcord
+ Books p5 D 27 '42 1850w

"The book does not add anything new by way of general thesis but skilfully unfolds the complexities of international maritime law in wartime, expounds fairly the opposing points of view and provides page after page of interesting details about voyages, fights and prizes, pirates and privateers in the old sailing ship days. . . As I read on toward the end of the book, it began to irritate me: eventually I found the reason. . . It would have pleased me more if Professor Albion, whose Forests and Sea-Power was so good, had either stuck to his economic history pure and simple or written a plain, unvarnished tale in human terms. His attempt at combination is not too successful." A. R. M. Lower + — Canadian Hist R 24:421 D '43 600w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:581 Ap '43 20w

ALBRAND, MARTHA. Without orders. 282p $2.50 Little

43-12148

A young American, made a prisoner in Africa during the spring of 1943, wakens one morning to find himself not in a prison camp but in a private sanatorium near Rome. Why he is there and what happens to him during the next seven days make up a swiftly moving story of spies and underground movements in Italy today.

Reviewed by Konrad Bercovici
— Book Week p8 S 12 '43 550w

Booklist 40:13 S '43

Boston Globe p17 S 1 '43 350w

"The workmanship of the book is deft and experienced. The author's delineations of character are vigorous, though not subtle, and she knows how to carry her story forward yet build suspense. Probably to American readers the element of greatest interest in her novels is the European background which she employs with so much familiarity. With all this on the credit side, the prospective reader should not be led into over-exalted expectations, beyond that of a cleverly contrived plot and an engrossing story that does not rise to great heights or probe too deeply into the complexities of human impulses."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 S 11 '43 650w

"One of the best of the new murderless mysteries since 'Above Suspicion,' the book is so timely that it reads like yesterday's headlines. . . Tantalizing in its credibility, neatly and sparingly written, the authentic air of the book and its fine use of topical background more than compensate for the author's rather stingy characterization and detail. One feels that this book was written in a hurry." Catherine Maher
+ — N Y Times p5 Ag 22 '43 700w

"Timely if not overexciting."
New Yorker 19:88 S 11 '43 20w

"Miss Albrand is an expert in plot and suspense and although her book is certainly in the light reading class it is definitely a cut above the usual war thriller." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 12 '43 330w

"'Without Orders' has the unity and neatness of a first-rate short story of adventure. But it has too little material to stretch quite to the dimensions of a novel, and, while it is a capable and timely bit of fiction, it must therefore inevitably disappoint most readers of Miss Albrand's infinitely more compact and eventful 'No Surrender.'" Iris Barry
+ — Weekly Book Review p8 Ag 22 '43 450w

ALCOTT, CARROLL DUARD. My war with Japan. 368p $3 Holt

951.0425 Chinese—Japanese war, 1931-. Japan. World war, 1939-—Japan

43-51192

The author, a newspaperman and radio broadcaster, worked in the Orient for fifteen years. Quite early in his career he became aware of Japan's intentions and both his newspaper work and his radio comments won him the everlasting hatred of the Japanese warlords. This book is his report on Japan, an account of his personal adventures, and a strong warning that the Americans cannot afford to allow the Japanese Empire to survive this war.

"Alcott's book, although a mediocre literary job, stands high among works about the war, for its message on the true character of our enemies is based on bedrock fact and not on any theory that might be disputed. Alcott follows the behavior of the Japs in China purely from the standpoint of what he was able to observe and report. Every evidence of treachery, ruthlessness, arrogance, barbarism and paranoia which he recounts is something he himself has seen and had to contend with." Harold Ettlinger
+ — Book Week p3 Je 20 '43 500w

Booklist 39:442 Jl 1 '43

Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 18 '43 460w

Current Hist 5:80 S '43 100w

"Mr. Alcott's book builds up a picture of Japanese deception and brutality beyond comprehension. Reading Mr. Alcott—who tells his incredible story in a matter-of-fact way, with grim humor, never ranting—one comes to think that the Nazis are pleasant civilized people by comparison with their Far Eastern ally. 'My War with Japan' is a valuable contribution to our knowledge of the Pacific enemy." Marcus Duffield
+ Nation 157:78 Jl 17 '43 600w

Reviewed by Helen Mears
New Repub 109:293 Ag 30 '43 120w

"It would be unfair to consider the book a history, although the hasty and partly informed reader may gain the impression that it is. It is merely a book of hair-on-the chest reminiscences by a tough news man who could not be scared." Burton Crane
N Y Times p6 Je 13 '43 850w

"'My War with Japan' is an eminently readable chronicle of personal adventure—and a realistic survey of the mischievous and cruel ways by which Japan gained mastery in large areas of Asia." Mark Gayn
+ Sat R of Lit 26:16 Je 19 '43 1100w

Reviewed by Frederick Reinstein
Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 5 '43 550w

Time 41:102 Je 28 '43 150w

"Mr. Alcott's report of his war with Japan unfortunately is only a small part of his book. The rest is filled with rather poorly organized history and even more poorly thought out economic theories about the misfortunes of China. Mr. Alcott's forte was in fearlessly pricking the Japanese with his day-to-day accounts of their brutality, but his weakness was in venturing from this sphere which he knew so well into the broader social, political and economic implications of the struggle he witnessed. But even though his book may be limited in merit,

ALCOTT, C. D.—Continued
his courageous voice will always be remembered by the thousands who heard it in the Far East." Joseph Newman
+ — Weekly Book Review p3 Je 13 '43 1850w

ALDANOV, MARK, pseud. See Landau, M. A.

ALDEN, CARROLL STORRS, and WESTCOTT, ALLAN FERGUSON. The United States navy; a history. 452p il maps $5.50; educ ed $4 Lippincott

973 U.S.—History, Naval 43-8670

"The whole story of our naval development is traced from its humble beginnings in 1775 to the far-flung might of the two-ocean fleet of the present day. The authors [are] both of them long-time professors at the U. S. Naval Academy, department of English, history and government. . . The style is . . . suited to a book obviously intended to serve not only as a textbook for midshipmen, but also as an introduction to naval history which the general public might find both readable and rewarding." Weekly Book Review

"A generous quantity of maps, tables, and diagrams, together with a clear and easy style, makes this elementary work attractive. References are to general treatments of the subject and usually to secondary sources, state papers and documents being omitted." H. C. Cook
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:952 O '43 340w
Booklist 40:42 O 1 '43

"Interesting and instructive reading."
+ Current Hist 5:77 S '43 60w

"Will appeal to the general reader, who will profit greatly from it." A. B. Tourtellot
+ N Y Times p32 S 19 '43 180w

Reviewed by R. G. Albion
Sat R of Lit 26:14 N 13 '43 90w

"Remarkable in these times of stress is the cool temper of the book, its steadfast refusal to be drawn into argument. Most of the controversies which have stirred and quickened and kept our Navy from the doldrums of reaction—so frequently the end result of military organization—receive the barest mention, or no mention at all. When limited details are given these are so dispassionately presented that partisans of neither side can claim injury." R. F. Armknecht
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 29 '43 1000w

ALDEN, JACK, pseud. See Barrows, M.

ALDERFER, EVAN BENNER, and MICHL, HERMAN EDWARD. Economics of American industry. 566p il $4 McGraw

338.4 U.S.—Industries and resources 42-19092

"This book represents the revision of mimeographed material which has been used by [the authors] in courses at the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce. Its purpose is to present an introductory survey of the principal manufacturing industries in the United States. The reviewer has found it generally a model text which attains in a rare degree its purpose. In outline, the book is divided into nine parts entitled: The Plan of Study; The Metal Industries; The Metal Fabricating Industries; The Nonmetallic Industries; The Chemical Process Industries; The Textile and Allied Industries; The Apparel Industries; The Food, Liquor and Tobacco Industries; and The Changing Pattern of American Industry. Each section covering groups of industries contains chapters surveying specific industries. These chapters represent a skillful blending of a discussion of technical processes and economic characteristics." (Am Econ R) Bibliography. Index.

"The authors write clearly and have been able to sum up their views neatly without finding refuge in qualifying clauses so as to leave a thoroughly safe and flat statement. The bibliography is evidence of the varied sources of material on which the authors have drawn. The charts and illustrations have been selected carefully. The authors have done an excellent job in a difficult field. The reviewer knows of no other comparable study which rivals it in the combined fund of information assembled, the thoroughness of the analysis and the skill with which the background is handled." R. L. Weissman
+ Am Econ R 33:694 S '43 850w
Management R 32:118 Mr '43 40w

ALDINGTON, RICHARD. The Duke; being an account of the life and achievements of Arthur Wellesley, 1st duke of Wellington. 405p il maps $3.75 Viking

B or 92 Wellington, Arthur Wellesley, 1st duke of 43-14497

Portrait of the Duke of Wellington, covering his whole life span, from his boyhood in Ireland, to his death in England, in 1852. The author grew up in the shadow of Walmer Castle, one of the Duke's estates, which engendered his interest in stories of the "old duke." Index.

"Wellington has had his full share of biography, including a glittering, full-length portrait by Philip Guedalla. But Aldington's is the first portrayal which makes the Iron Duke a real man with real blood coursing through his veins. This book is also remarkable for its comprehensive picture of the Peninsular campaign." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 172:137 D '43 180w

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 O 17 '43 400w
Booklist 40:92 N 15 '43

"Although at times the author gets between his subject and the reader, he succeeds in presenting the Iron Duke as a vital and dominating figure as free of cruelty as he was of sentimentalism and double-dealing, who carried into civil life his belief in personal discipline and moral courage. This is a timely biography, heartening in its significance and told with verve and skill." J. J. Reilly
+ Cath World 158:408 Ja '44 470w

Reviewed by G. N. Shuster
Commonweal 39:187 D 3 '43 450w

"If library has Guedalla's Wellington (1931), it may not actually need this very readable biography, but the library will be making a great mistake not to buy it for its own sake." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 68:723 S 15 '43 100w

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison
Nation 157:736 D 18 '43 950w

"Others before Mr. Aldington have dealt adequately with the Peninsular campaign, and the highlight of Waterloo. He surpasses them in his skillful parade of a semi-revolutionary England that engaged the long aftermath of the Duke's political life. He does not operate a puppet but a man—human if not affectionate, punctilious if not cordial, and one who never deviated from duty as he saw it. . . Mr. Aldington has not met his Waterloo. He has taken some of the iron out of the Duke, and left him great while making him human." Cecil Roberts
+ N Y Times p3 O 10 '43 1250w

" 'The Duke' is an engrossing study. . . Mr. Aldington's achievement is a full-length portrait of this lonely soldier; no blemish is concealed, no argument in his favor is forgotten. Unlike so many biographers who come to worship their subject, he drew the character in bold, vigorous lines in the early chapters and wasted no space at all on chit-chat. . . Blessed is the figure which has a fine poet and a sensitive writer with a high regard for truth as its biographer. 'The Duke' is a masterly accomplishment." Louis Zara
+ Sat R of Lit 26:53 O 16 '43 850w
Springf'd Republican p10 N 9 '43 550w
Time 42:98 N 8 '43 1750w

"It is clear that Mr. Aldington, having lost his former 'liberal' standard of political and personal values does not always know what he admires and approves. But his adopted manner compels him to use epithets and to get cosy with his reader in the You-and-I-know fashion. . . Almost all Mr. Aldington's statements about France, and about all Frenchmen except Napoleon, are either frivolous or unfounded. Most of his generalities about men and affairs at large contain sneers and are sometimes contradictory. If the biographer applied to Wellington the snap judgments that dispose of other men . . . we should have an old-fashioned debunking 'life' in the style of Strachey. As it is, we have one in which the background and middle distance are debunked while the main figure is a hero, part well-drawn and part conventionalized as a strong, silent common sense sort of chap. It will be a matter for each reader to decide whether the narrative can survive the style." Jacques Barzum

— Weekly Book Review p3 O 10 '43 1300w
Wis Lib Bul 39:158 D '43

ALEGRIA, CIRO. The golden serpent; tr. from the Spanish by Harriet de Onís. 242p $2 Farrar 43-15351

The Marañon, a South American river, is the real hero of this story of the Indians who live their primitive, but not unhappy lives, at the mercy of that river. In a series of incidents the author relates the adventures of the old ferryman, Don Matías and his wife, their two sons, the beautiful village girls, and the white engineer who came to make a fortune, but died of a snake bite instead.

"For all its delicacy of treatment, this is a strong and beautiful book. Here Alegria writes of his home folk, of the scenes that he himself saw daily for many years of his life, of the violent battle of simple folk for survival. Hence his tale has the firm texture of things and people loved and understood, and at the same time is epic in its setting and theme." Carleton Beals

+ Book Week p6 O 31 '43 450w

"Exceedingly interesting story that adds to our understanding of the people and the country. Recommended." Emily Garnett

+ Library J 68:724 S 15 '43 70w

"As his characters talk, so Señor Alegría writes, with a wad of coca in his cheek and a faint smile in his eyes. His reader yields to the prevailing magic and wanders along contentedly through tales of Lucinda's abduction, the watch for the blue puma, the priest who said mass wholesale instead of retail and got stoned for it. And always the river sounds in his ears, as a primitive people adapt their skills and philosophies to the rough demands of their life. It is no small credit to the author's skill and that of his translator, Harriet de Onis, that the book's magic is powerful enough to hold even a tongue as alien as English." Mildred Adams

+ N Y Times p6 O 3 '43 650w

"The translation by Harriet de Onis is admirable, catching all the subtle overtones of poetry and humor and making us forget that we are dealing with an alien tongue." B. D. Wolfe

+ Weekly Book Review p4 D 12 '43 1050w

ALEKSANDER, IRINA. The running tide; tr. from the Russian by Bernard Guilbert Guerney. 264p $2.50 Duell
43-18554

"Here is a novel based on the life story of Valentina Orlikova, who visited this country recently in her line of duty—Third Mate on a ship of the Soviet merchant marine. Galina Sedova, as she is called in the novel, was ambitious for the life of a seaman even when she was still a child, living in the coastal city of Vladivostok. Her elderly friend, Captain Shilov, laughed at the idea of a 'chit of a girl' becoming a sailor and she answered gravely, 'Why not? A person can do anything at all in our country now.' Thus she places her confidence and fixes her dream. . . Here is the grim, heroic story of the defense of Leningrad, and of the participation in that struggle by a young girl whose husband was at the front and whose son was in occupied territory. Here is the story of the third mate of the Alexander Nevsky and her fight at sea against the Fascists." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by Ralph Peterson
Book Week p11 N 21 '43 500w
Booklist 40:198 F 1 '44

" 'The Running Tide' is highly readable. It is a book that is hard to lay aside."

+ Commonweal 39:146 N 26 '43 550w

"Its non-fictional aspects are by far the most interesting; Russia's educational system, the solution of the minority-group problem by insisting that each group maintain its identity without sacrificing its status, and finally the heroism of the Russian people portrayed in a description of the siege of Leningrad. The writing is journalistic with a human-interest slant."

+ New Repub 109:758 N 29 '43 90w

"Miss Aleksander has felt the epic power in a people's struggle for survival. If her tale is lacking in inner drama, the fault lies as much in the vastness of her theme as in her choice of a heroine, who is too sane to know 'conflicts.' " Nona Balakian

N Y Times p16 Ja 2 '44 340w
New Yorker 19:112 N 20 '43 110w

"This is a very spirited and glowing novel of contemporary Russia that calls upon us for only one small feat of orientation. We, who are accustomed to dozens of American novels in which the restless young man runs off to sea, must now imagine how it would be if the passion for ships and voyages should appear in a young girl instead, and how she would pursue this strange career." L. R. North

+ Sat R of Lit 26:57 D 4 '43 470w

Reviewed by Frederick Reinstein
Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 550w

" 'The Running Tide' is an epic of heroism and struggle, told in a simple almost quiet style, interpreted in terms of small, oddly significant events as well as great, more obviously important ones. It is a story of shocking horror, of atrocities, of bombed hospitals and sinking ships—but there is much more to it than this." Barbara Woollcott

+ Weekly Book Review p23 N 21 '43 600w

ALEXANDER, ELIZABETH. This is my son. 274p $2.50 Doubleday
43-15761

Thirteen years before the story opens Kathleen Wessling had left her illegitimate son in Europe to be adopted by German friends. When war breaks out Nik is sent by his German "mother" to her friend Mrs Wessling in America for protection, as the boy's name, that of his adopted father, is Jewish. Kathleen has hopes of turning her son into a true American but in the end is frustrated by the German demand for youth.

Reviewed by Edith Roberts
Book Week p34 D 5 '43 500w

"Unconvincing characterization weakens this novel of interesting plot." H. S. Taylor

+ — Library J 68:768 O 1 '43 70w

"This is one of many recent books to treat a serious subject romantically. Whether or not a 13-year-old German boy can be re-educated in the American way of life is certainly a question of the day. But the novel will be read rather for sentimental reasons than any other." E. L. Walton

N Y Times p16 O 24 '43 320w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 21 '43 440w

" 'This is My Son' ranks as an exceptional novel in more than one sense. The theme is unusual. The story is developed with depth of feeling and complete artistry. It is written in a style which brings out all the emotional and dramatic shadings of a plot which is both timely and timeless in appeal." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p10 O 17 '43 550w

ALEXANDER, RYLLIS CLAIR (MRS OMAR PANCOAST GOSLIN); GOSLIN, OMAR PANCOAST, and STOREN, HELEN FRANCES. American democracy today and tomorrow. 589p il $2.12 Harcourt

917.3 U.S.—Civilization. U.S.—Social conditions. U.S.—Politics and government. U.S. —Economic conditions 42-15127

"The authors have based their discussion of American life on the well-known postulate that curricular materials should be geared to the environment of the student. Unit I helps the student analyze himself from the viewpoint of heredity and environment. . . In Unit II the reader is taken out into the broader problems of home life, education, religion, race, and nationality. . . Units III, IV, and V explain our standard of living, economic institutions in both depression and boom times, and our economy in wartime. . . In Unit VI, the authors turn to our political organization. . . The last unit deals with America's role in the world." Social Educ

---

"The volume by the Goslins and Miss Storen breathes a Progressive air. It is perhaps the most attractive textbook on problems of American democracy to be published in recent years. It is full of excellently selected photographs, suggestive drawings, graphs, charts, activities, book lists, questions, and challenges for discussion. No topic is taboo; the subject matter ranges over the realms of economics, sociology, political science and civics, wartime America." W. W. Brickman

+ School & Society 58:412 N 20 '43 430w

"Probably the outstanding contribution which this book makes to the social studies curriculum is its extremely interesting format. In no sense does this derogate the organization and presentation of the textual content of the book, which is excellent indeed." J. W. Gannaway, Jr.

+ Social Educ 7:90 F '43 650w

Social Studies 33:288 O '42 20w

ALGUY, JEREMIAH S. Permanent world peace. 304p $3 Standard pub. co, inc, 112 W. 42d st, N.Y.

341.1 International cooperation. Peace. Reconstruction (1939-). League of nations 43-3069

"Pleads for the establishment, after the disarmament of the Axis Powers and their little satellites, of a Peace Union and a Peace Tribunal, of which the former would have as its basis the revised and implemented Covenant of the League of Nations, and the latter would rest upon the improved Statute and Rules of the Permanent Court of International Justice. Unlike many other peace planners, Mr. Alguy does not envisage dropping the experience gained by the League of Nations and starting some brand new experiment." Ann Am Acad

---

Reviewed by H. W. Stoke

Am Soc R 8:610 O '43 500w

"Interesting and out-spoken volume. . . Controversial though some of the recommendations may appear to be, it is the second part of the volume that is more likely to raise loud approvals, objections, or refusals, as the case may be. This is particularly true when the author enters, in some detail, the delicate field of boundary changes. . . However, it is only through clear thinking and plain talking that the complexities of international relations can be understood. It is because the volume contains both that it may be regarded as a stimulating contribution to the discussion of the problems of the postwar world." Josef Hanč

+ — Ann Am Acad 227:158 My '43 500w

"Like so many other fool proof peace plans now going the rounds Alguy's seems to be worked up not in this world at war but in the brain of one man who gets his mental exercise by tossing around the imponderables of international relations." R. H. Rovere

— Book Week p2 Ap 18 '43 200w

ALINGTON, CYRIL ARGENTINE. Christianity in England; an historical sketch. 191p $1.75 (4s) Oxford

274.2 Christianity. Great Britain—Church history [A42-5338]

"The author has given us a book with a fresh and new résumé of Christianity in England since its reintroduction there by Augustine. (He barely mentions its earlier preachment and the establishment of a church by missionaries from the Isle of Iona). Inevitably, Dr. Alington weaves into the functioning of Christianity in England, the church there. And it is always and ever the Church of England; provincial, self functioning and governing. The Church of England was never the Roman Catholic Church, as the author emphasizes, Papal domination over it was less than 500 years of its entire 1500 years history." Churchman

---

"The author tells this tremendous story with scrupulous fairness, not dodging the less creditable incidents and giving the dissenters a reasonable break. A clever and effective feature is the 'dialogues' interspersed through the narrative to give a realistic impression of various points of view at crucial moments."

+ — Christian Century 60:578 My 12 '43 230w

"The book well deserves a hearty reception of all looking for a simple, straightforward and unadorned account of the workings of Christianity in our mother country, from earliest times to the present." A. L. B-C.

+ Churchman 157:17 S 15 '43 150w

ALLAND, ALEXANDER. American counterpoint; introd. by Pearl S. Buck. 158p pl $3 Day

325.73 U.S.—Foreign population—Pictorial works 43-13121

"A text-and-picture 'family album' of Americans: a hundred and thirty sharp and for the most part unmannered photographs of Americans in all their diversity of national strains, religion, derivative cultures, and so on." New Yorker

---

"The level of photographic achievement is remarkably high throughout, justifying the praise which Alland has won from authorities in the field of photography." J. T. Frederick

+ Book Week p4 S 12 '43 160w

Booklist 40:39 O 1 '43

Christian Science Monitor p13 O 9 '43 230w

"Some of these pictures were seen at the New York World's Fair, for which Mr. Alland prepared a number of photographic murals to be used as background panorama for intercultural activities. All of them are excellent, and they show how rich is our culture, how varied our human stock, how strong our mutual heritage." Hal Borland

+ N Y Times p6 O 17 '43 360w

"A fine job, and a poignant object lesson against intolerance. Excellent introduction by Pearl S. Buck."

+ New Yorker 19:87 S 11 '43 40w

"Mr. Alland has done well by the healthy American children in his photographs, taking good advantage of them as attractive objects, but avoiding the sticky sentimentality of less competent photographers. . . [The book] lacks the individualized and the immediate approach to the problems of the immigrant and it is in a minor key as photography. However, it does supplement and bring up-to-date the observations and the hopes for America expressed a generation ago by other foreign-born Americans like Edward Bok, Michael Pupin, Mary Austin, and Jacob Riis." W. S. Lynch

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:16 S 25 '43 800w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 12 '43 220w

Reviewed by F. L. Kellogg

Survey G 37:457 N '43 70w

"It would be regrettable if the book were received merely as a photographic volume about polyglot America with an introduction by Pearl Buck. For one thing Mr. Alland, a skillful photographer with a nice hand at lighting, has done a rare series of photographs on Americans of today for which ethnologists will bless him when the country is twice as old. By dint of hard work (over the years), he has managed to mirror all of us, descendants of immigrants, so that we may examine our backgrounds, be proud of our cultural traces and thank God we are participating in the unfolding of the American idea." R. F. Crandell

+ Weekly Book Review p4 S 26 '43 550w

ALLEN, ADAM, pseud. of SAMUEL EPSTEIN and BERYL WILLIAMS. Dollar a share; with il. by Juan Oliver. 247p $2 Random house

43-5947

When the pupils of the Kent junior high school learned that they had an athletic coach but no equipment, their first reaction was anger, then despair. The idea of a cooperative store was suggested and they all worked to make it a success. For boys of grades seven to nine.

"The author has put forth more effort, it seems to us, into getting over the 'co-operative idea' than skill into the writing of his story—but the theme is timely and will appeal to the practical young reader." F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p10 S 23 '43 90w

"Not outstanding in plot or style and has type characters and situations, but it does give clear idea of working of a co-operative. Recommend if this type of book is needed." H. Y. Long

Library J 68:434 My 15 '43 110w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p7 Je 27 '43 300w

Wis Lib Bul 39:88 Je '43

ALLEN, ARTHUR. Art of preaching. 93p $1.75 Philosophical lib.

251 Preaching 43-9849

"A little book of British origin giving elementary instructions concerning the preparation and delivery of sermons." Christian Century

"Contains much good advice, simply and aptly phrased."

+ Christian Century 60:578 My 12 '43 30w

"One who has been in the ministry many years and has come face to face with its problems has a feeling of regret that this book was not written a generation ago. The book exalts the art of preaching. . . This is a book which should be in the hands of every young man who is looking forward to the ministry as his life's work." S. W. Melton

+ Crozer Q 20:265 Jl '43 250w

ALLEN, FREDERICK HAROLD. Psychotherapy with children. 311p $3.50 Norton

136.7 Child study. Children, Abnormal and backward 42-13785

"The philosophy and the method which Dr. Allen describes have grown out of his experience in the Philadelphia Child Guidance Clinic which he organized seventeen years ago and where he integrated the three disciplines of psychiatry, psychology, and social work, into a service which has exerted a profound influence upon the lives of individual children and upon the community. The book describes the problems which bring children to the clinic as by-products of the experience of growth, from birth to adult life." Survey

Reviewed by William Healy

Ann Am Acad 226:206 Mr '43 230w

Reviewed by E. R. Groves

Social Forces 21:362 Mr '43 350w

"For psychiatrists, psychologists, and social workers in clinical service this would seem to be an indispensable textbook. To parents and teachers the stories—to call them case illustrations is inadequate—will bring interest and insight into the life of childhood. To the general reader the book offers a reaffirmation of belief in the individual and in the constructive forces that can be released when the integrity of human personality is recognized and appreciated." Karl De Schweinitz

+ Survey 78:317 N '42 500w

ALLEN, GERTRUDE E. Everyday birds [il. by the author]. (Nursery bks) [41p] 85c Houghton

598.2 Birds—Juvenile literature 43-5607

Simply written descriptions of half-a-dozen birds—the robin, chickadee, woodpecker, crow, duck, and wren—with something of their habits and several illustrations in black and white for each one. For very young readers.

Booklist 39:373 My 15 '43

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 1 '43 50w

"Attractive pencil drawings will be a guide to identification, even for older children than those of nursery age. A lovely book for home use." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:168 My '43 50w

"One of new series called 'Nursery Books,' designed to be read to two- to five-year-olds. This one is recommended, even though it is slight in scope and treatment. May be used as third-grade reader." A. E. Brown

+ Library J 68:364 My 1 '43 70w

"This little book is full of life and charm with an authentic outdoor note."

+ N Y Times p16 My 16 '43 140w

"Good drawings. An aid to observation."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:30 My 15 '43 20w

"Based on the good idea that children love to recognize in books what they have seen around them, it gives them a stimulus to go on looking at birds." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 My 30 '43 150w

Wis Lib Bul 39:75 My '43

ALLEN, HERVEY. The forest and the fort. (The disinherited, v 1, bk 1) 344p $2.50 Farrar

43-4731

The first in a series of six historical novels about frontier life in America during the eighteenth century. Salathiel Albine, sometimes called Little Turtle, captured by the Shawnees when a child, is the central figure. He was brought up as the chief's son until he was grown and then was allowed to return to the white man's world. In besieged Fort Pitt, in 1763, Sal began his training and his return to the ways of his forefathers.

Atlantic 171:125 My '43 650w

"The author describes with fine realism the actors of his drama and the raw milieu in which they move; nevertheless, he seldom stoops to the use of obscene language, thereby proving that a gutter atmosphere can be produced without a profusion of ugly words. Even the most revolting episodes in the book leave no bad after-taste, because they are mitigated by Allen's magnificent and expressive style." Otto Eisenschiml

+ Book Week p1 Ap 11 '43 1050w

Booklist 39:333 Ap 15 '43

Bookmark 4:17 Mr '43

"The writing on the whole is good, though marred by occasional vulgarity, not so much of expression as of point of view. Now that the author has demonstrated his skill and ability with historical records, he may write a really good historical novel somewhere in the rest of the series."

Cath World 157:447 Jl '43 250w

"Recommended." H. G. Kelley

+ Library J 68:248 Mr 15 '43 70w

"First and last a good yarn, this is a novel politically illuminating." Harold Brighouse

+ Manchester Guardian p3 O 1 '43 250w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling

Nation 156:533 Ap 10 '43 170w

ALLEN, HERVEY—Continued

"This novel . . . is a kind of preliminary sketch for a big saga and therefore it is rather thin. It is not absolutely complete or satisfactory, but obviously it was not meant to be, for it is the first of a series of historical novels. . . Until more of this ambitious project is available it is impossible to pass more than preliminary judgment. . . This novel is going to be the beginning, I think, of a particularly interesting turn of American historical fiction. It is a far more ambitious project than 'Anthony Adverse,' and yet at the same time it is simpler, nearer home and, for its innovations, more traditionally American." P. M. Jack

+ N Y Times p3 Mr 28 '43 1050w

"Mr. Allen's indefatigable research suffices to make his braves, Englishmen, Quakers, mercenaries, and Irish maids authentic enough, even though there is wafted to us an occasional dusty odor from original documents used not wisely but too well. As storytelling, however, this is not up to 'Anthony Adverse'—a judgment which, one hopes, will have to be revised when the remaining five-sixths of 'The Disinherited' is available." Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 19:70 Mr 27 '43 290w

Reviewed by Struthers Burt

Sat R of Lit 26:13 Ap 17 '43 1450w

"Intense vitality and an eager reaching for vivid incidents combine in Hervey Allen's rapid, narrative style. Less admirable is his tendency to concentrate long, if lovingly, on surfaces. . . Salathiel Albine with muscles 'like fluid oak wood' and the movements of 'a young male panther' sets the superscale that marks the whole work for good and bad. And in his eager use of sentimental aspects of the Scottish border novel, Allen is capable of sinking to turgid depths."

+ — Time 41:102 Ap 5 '43 110w

Times [London] Lit Sup p485 O 9 '43 450w

"To his creation of a highly unique character, Allen has brought both his knowledge of history and his knowledge of humankind. Salathiel, as adopted son of the Shawnees and as member of the retinue of Captain Ecuyer, commandant of Fort Pitt, moves through the exciting narrative with the simplicity and the realism that only an expert hand can convey. In following his growth and his exploits one is lost in the eighteenth-century world he inhabits, and in this time of preoccupation with present-day warfare this is a rare accomplishment." Rose Feld

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Mr 28 '43 1400w

Wis Lib Bul 38:85 Je '43

Reviewed by Mark Schorer

Yale R n s 32:viii summer '43 90w

ALLEN, IDA COGSWELL (BAILEY) (MRS WILLIAM BREWSTER CHAPMAN). Double-quick cooking for part-time homemakers. 241p $2 Barrows

641.5 Cookery 43-6696

Useful cookbook for the war worker or any worker who must save time. Includes menus and recipes which take into account present-day shortages and substitutes. Partial contents: Planning double-quick meals; A good breakfast for a good day; Time-saving everyday family luncheons and dinners with available foods; Smart 30-40 minute dinners for bachelor girls and small families; Two-burner dinners and oven meals for kitchenettes and trailers; Foods that can be cooked ahead; The carried lunch; Gift foods for our service men. Index.

Booklist 39:421 Je 15 '43

"An excellent book for wartime needs. . . Here, indeed, is something to interest the woman who works part time or full time, or the woman who has no maid and rushes home after a day at the Red Cross to see that the family will be adequately fed. . . Unusual recipes are always of interest and, when in good taste—that is not a pun—in combining flavors, are very rare, indeed. Mrs. Allen has given us many in this book, and we know merely by reading recipes such as nut-stuffed acorn squash and brown rice cooked in fruit juices that they will please many a palate." Jeanne Owen

+ N Y Times p26 My 23 '43 220w

ALLEN, JOHN STUART, and others. Atoms, rocks and galaxies; a survey in physical science. rev ed 719p il maps $3.75 Harper

500 Science 42-50057

"Class use of this textbook has resulted in some changes in the text; the sections on physics and chemistry have been expanded." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1938.

Booklist 39:203 Ja 15 '43

"The chemical and physical sections of the book are excellent, the geological sections are quite satisfactory, and the astronomical passable in spite of numerous blunders. The book is to be recommended." L. C. Green

+ — R of Scientific Instruments 14:299 O '43 800w

ALLEN, MERRITT PARMELEE. Sun trail; decorations by Lee Townsend. 198p $2 Longmans

Smith, Jedediah Strong—Juvenile literature 43-14084

Fictionized account of the adventures of Jedediah Smith, the first white man to cross the country to California, and his companions, especially an eighteen-year-old boy, Bob Evans. For older boys.

Booklist 40:63 O 15 '43

"A lively 'western' of excellent quality."

+ Christian Century 60:1043 S 15 '43 40w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:411 N '43 100w

"Recommended for boys eleven to fourteen." Eleanor Kidder

+ Library J 68:729 S 15 '43 90w

"Founded on fact, this is a fine tale of endurance and achievement." Muriel Gilbert

+ Sat R of Lit 27:32 Ja 29 '44 270w

"Humorous, quick-stepping and vivid, this is a crackerjack of a yarn that should please any junior high school boy."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 29 '43 150w

"This fine story seems short because its tension never relaxes." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p7 O 10 '43 280w

Wis Lib Bul 40:13 Ja '44

ALLINGHAM, MARGERY (MRS P. YOUNGMAN CARTER). The Galantrys [Eng title: Dance of the years]. 312p $2.50 Little [10s 6d Joseph, M]

43-15071

James Galantry was born early in the nineteenth century, the son of an English gentleman and a gypsy girl whom Will Galantry at sixty had taken to wife to the scandal of his family and the countryside. The novel tells the story of James Galantry's life in Victorian England, the struggle between his two natures and his determination to become a respectable, middle-class Englishman.

"The style is crisp and entertaining. Characters appear on the page with a minimum of revealed effort, and at least three of the six generations are seen in the round. The device for picturing the fourth, fifth, and sixth generations is, I think, open to question." Sterling North

+ — Book Week p2 O 17 '43 400w

Booklist 40:114 D 1 '43

Boston Globe p17 O 27 '43 250w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott

Manchester Guardian p3 O 8 '43 150w

"Although Mrs. Carter, like so many of the English detective-story writers, is notably well-educated—and not ashamed of it—and despite the fact that in her hero's struggles to cope with his complicated heredity she had the material for a perfectly plausible psychological study, her novel sacrifices the realities of both fiction and social history to a quite eccentric interest in genetics. She is obsessed with the science of breeding. . . The result is neither convincing nor funny, just odd—especially the last section of her story, which is taken up with Galantry's vision of his descendants right down to their roles in the present war." Diana Trilling

— + Nation 157:505 O 30 '43 500w

"It is evident that the author knows her people thoroughly—too thoroughly, perhaps. Too often she asks us to take her word for them and not to demand proof in the writing. James is worked out carefully, and appealingly drawn. Sometimes he is a mirror reflecting his times and his country. Sometimes he is many-faceted. Always he is clear as a transparent jewel that shows its inner texture. . . But the novel races too fast for its protagonist. . . Mrs Carter's style is comfortable, with no strange angles at all. Perhaps, if she had been a little more daring, both in thought and writing, her novel might have more compelling interest, more original value." Eudora Welty
+ — N Y Times p6 O 31 '43 550w

"Mrs. Carter has an extraordinary sense of the class differentiations and class antagonisms of the English nineteenth century, of the role an advancing mercantilism came to play in English society, of the barbaric moral code that governed the lives of ladies and gentlemen. At times she writes as well as Galsworthy. But these fair words of praise apply only to the first half of the book, dealing with the life of James Galantry up to the death of his wife." Clifton Fadiman
+ — New Yorker 19:84 O 16 '43 270w

"There are moments when one suspects that Mrs. Carter—who as Margery Allingham has made her reputation as a writer of detective stories—is writing with her tongue in her cheek; but then comes a passage of obviously serious intent which prevents the critic from thus excusing the novel's astonishing naïveté. . . Young Will's life and adventures, I found as tedious as they are incredible. There are a few pleasant interludes." R. E. Roberts
Sat R of Lit 26:8 N 13 '43 380w

Reviewed by John Hampson
Spec 171:392 O 22 '43 170w

"The warmth and richness of this book is what counts. Few current novels offer such a passionately sincere portrayal of a large array of men and women." G. L. Joughin
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 17 '43 360w

"There is no hesitation in this recital of events, but the events themselves, it must be confessed, too often seem entirely arbitrary. Again and again there seems no particular reason, in fact, in spite of James's touchy and brooding preoccupation with his heredity, why he should have behaved as Miss Allingham says he did. . . This [is a] serious, sometimes engagingly level-headed but altogether too stiffly contrived piece of romantic fancy."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p497 O 16 '43 330w

"While the conflict of James's double inheritance is carried out throughout the book, the story bogs down in detail and characterization in its final pages. [Mrs] Carter brings it to a close in a manner that is both awkward and unreal. It is almost as though she had got bored with the Galantrys and sought a way to finish them off in short order." Rose Feld
+ — Weekly Book Review p8 O 17 '43 600w

ALLIS, OSWALD THOMPSON. The five books of Moses. 319p $3 Presbyterian & reformed pub. co, 525 Locust st, Philadelphia

222.1 Bible. Old Testament—Pentateuch
43-9730

"This is a book written to defend the Mosaic authorship of the Pentateuch. It is written because the author feels that the consequences of the rejection of the claim that the Pentateuch is Mosaic are serious indeed. In fact he is convinced that 'if we believe Moses, we will believe Christ, and, if we do not believe Moses, we will not believe Christ.'" (Crozer Q) Indexes.

Reviewed by W. A. Irwin
Christian Century 60:1105 S 29 '43 700w

"Dr. Allis knows his material, and at times his criticisms are pointed and sound, but on the whole his effort is a waste of time." R. C. M.
— + Churchman 157:31 Mr 15 '43 80w

"The author has read widely and has written an interesting book. On the whole it is scholarly in tone and presents fairly the position of those with whom the author disagrees violently. He has attempted a task which is usually associated with the efforts of men with much less talent and knowledge." J. B. Pritchard
Crozer Q 20:161 Ap '43 550w

Reviewed by W. A. Irwin
J Religion 23:289 O '43 950w

ALLMAN, NORWOOD FRANCIS. Shanghai lawyer. (Whittlesey house publication) 283p $2.50 McGraw

B or 92 Lawyers—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. China—Social life and customs 43-14958

An American lawyer, with an office in Shanghai, describes his experiences in China before the war, his stay in Hong Kong, where he was caught at the beginning of hostilities, his six months' imprisonment in the Stanley Interment camp, and his ultimate release and return to America on the Gripsholm.

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Book Week p3 O 10 '43 450w
Booklist 40:113 D 1 '43

"If not a literary masterpiece, this autobiography of a forceful, largely self-educated man gives a revealing picture of the exotic life led by the small band of Americans hanging by sufferance upon the fringe of an ancient civilization. . . To an old China hand like myself, the book brings nostalgic impulses; to the casual reader, the chronological disorder and the forceful language add to rather than detract from the enjoyment of reading. To the lawyer, the bald account of a frontier practice in a highly sophisticated form by a man who had both courage and an insight into the motives which actuate men and nations, should be of great interest." W. A. Seavey
+ Harvard Law R 57:265 D '43 1050w

"After numberless war-time books on the Orient which have been compounded of 'the stuff to feed the troops,' 'Shanghai Lawyer' is refreshing. It is honest. Its author has not bothered to edit history for our supposed benefit. He tells his story of twenty-seven years in China with good nature, humor and a matter-of-factness which is far more palatable than all tho wishful thinking-in-retrospect to which we have been treated." Burton Crane
+ N Y Times p8 O 31 '43 700w

"What could have been an enthralling record of a rich life is anything but enthralling because 'Judge' Allman and his collaborator, a former Shanghai newspaperwoman named Frances Russell Kay, have been unable to tell a good story well. It is a pity, for Mr. Allman has lived a full and satisfying life in circumstances out-of-the-ordinary and in places out-of-the-way. It is a shock too, for in Shanghai 'Judge' Allman was known as a fine raconteur and a highly literate man." Mark Gayn
Sat R of Lit 26:13 N 6 '43 800w

"The author was in Hongkong on business when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. Subsequently he spent six months as an internee in notorious Stanley Prison Camp. His account of that experience is restrained, and uncolored but revealingly graphic, and an antidote for some of the current books dealing with the subject." Victor Keen
+ Weekly Book Review p26 O 3 '43 900w
Wis Lib Bul 39:158 D '43

ALMSTEAD, FRANCIS E., and TUTHILL, F. R. L. Radio materiel guide. 242p il $2 McGraw

621.3841 Radio. Electric circuits 43-11877

Elementary textbook on radio comprising theory, tools, and equipment. Questions at ends of chapters. Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter
Book Week p18 N 21 '43 50w
Booklist 40:54 O 15 '43
Library J 68:574 Jl '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:53 Jl '43

"In their attempt to provide considerable background information on radio equipment, the authors leap great distances in going from one problem to the next. The result is almost hit or miss to the student who cannot leap." George Barrett
N Y Times p48 N 21 '43 100w

ALSCHULER, MRS ROSE (HAAS), ed. See National commission for young children. Children's centers

ALSOP, GULIELMA FELL, and MCBRIDE, MARY FRANCES. Arms and the girl. 302p $2.50 Vanguard

396 Woman—Health and hygiene. Marriage. World war, 1939—Women's work 43-14686

Guide for the war bride or war worker, to help her in the problems of readjustment, in the present wartime and in the peacetime which is coming. Partial contents: The girl goes to war; The girl in Washington; New activities of women in wartime; Food needs of the body; The balanced diet; Eating habits; Food rationing and food values; Personal life; Maturity; The wedding; The working bride; The soldier's leave; The fighting man's son; Other men; A woman's postwar world; Peacetime morale.

Booklist 40:107 D 1 '43

"There is undoubtedly need for such a book for older girls, but this title is not the answer." E. P. Nichols
Library J 68:578 Jl '43 80w

"Intensely timely, so much of it will outlast the war that peace will not work against it."
+ Weekly Book Review p14 O 24 '43 300w

ALTIERI, VETO JOSEPH. Gas chemists' book of standards for light oils and light oil products. 352p il $5; to members $3.50 Am. gas assn.

665.4 Mineral oils 43-8161

"This volume undertakes to present a summary of the standard specifications for, definitions of terms relating to, and standard methods of testing of a wide variety of the byproducts obtained during carbonization of coal or manufacture of water gas. The author has been assisted by a considerable number of his fellow members of the chemical committee of American Gas Association." Chem & Met Eng

"An authoritative working guide."
+ Chem & Eng N 21:1655 O 10 '43 50w

"The book is an authoritative volume representing the best judgment of the industry which does the most work in production of benzene, toluene, xylenes, solvent naphthas, and other light oil products. Any laboratory which has any responsibility for sampling, testing, or industry control in which these commodities are involved, will find the volume a valuable and authoritative guide to laboratory practice. Purchasing agents will also find it of real usefulness."
+ Chem & Met Eng 50:203 S '43 130w
Library J 68:669 S 1 '43 50w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:48 Jl '43

ALTON, MARGARET. The rise of Richard; il. by Jessie Robinson. 210p $2 Harper 43-13639

London in 1839 is the background for this story of Richard Baker, a kindly English boy, who befriended a shabby little French refugee girl. His family objected at first, but Richard was a staunch friend to Diana, and in time his loyalty paved the way for a happy ending. For ages ten to thirteen.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p3 N 14 '43 140w

"A friendly story in which the boys and girls are as much alive as the children next door." M. K. McElderry
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 29 '43 70w

"Background sounds authentic and style is both lively and colorful. Story lacks, however, the quality which would lift it above 'just fair.' Not recommended." M. N. Miller
Library J 68:895 N 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by M. B. Snow
Library J 68:895 N 1 '43 80w

"This is a merry portrait of a Victorian family in all its trappings and boys and girls will follow with real suspense the hard row which Richard tilled for friendship's sake. Jessie Robinson's illustrations convey the flavor of the period and the humor of Richard's awkward situations." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p6 S 19 '43 320w
New Yorker 19:126 D 4 '43 50w

AMBLER, ERIC. Intrigue; [his] great spy novels [with an introd. by Alfred Hitchcock]. 275;281;284;280p $2.95 Knopf 43-2933

Omnibus volume containing four novels on espionage. They are: Background to Danger; Cause for Alarm; A Coffin for Dimitrios; and Journey into Fear (Book Review Digest 1937, 1939, and 1940).

"Four superb spy stories." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p8 Mr 14 '43 60w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p8 Je 27 '43 50w
Booklist 39:336 Ap 15 '43

"A fine, economical style is joined in these novels to ingenious plot, thrilling incident and continuous action. To my mind, they are as far above the romans policiers that begin with the dead body of Sir Hubert in the Lodge, or the sinster figure slinking up an alley in Chicago, as Dumas is above Ellery Queen and Conan Doyle transcends Christie or Sayers." Arthur Krock
+ N Y Times p6 Jl 18 '43 240w

"For readers who were foolish enough not to read these fine novels when they were first published."
+ New Yorker 19:68 Mr 6 '43 50w

"For 'A Coffin for Dimitrios' alone it's worth its weight in coffee, and the other yarns are almost likewise. Necessary."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:16 F 27 '43 30w

"Even Mr Welles can't improve on what Mr Ambler has given us. 'Intrigue' is a bargain."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 21 '43 220w

"This is all Grade A stuff, required reading for espionage followers and a good bet for any person who could use some excitement." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p21 F 28 '43 280w

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF SCIENTIFIC WORKERS. Boston-Cambridge branch. Science from shipboard; a simple manual of information and instruction for those who cross the seas in ships to fight for freedom; prepared by a group of scientific writers and artists under the guidance of the Boston-Cambridge branch of the American association of scientific workers. 268p il $1.50; pa 25c Science service, 1719 N st, N.W, Washington, D.C.

508 Science 43-51178

"This is a unique book; it is composed of articles on astronomy, navigation, weather, oceanography, sea life, oceanic birds, and human physical reactions to life at sea. Although written for the instruction and entertainment of men in the services, the book contains information of general interest concisely presented." (Booklist) Also issued by the Infantry Journal, as What to Do Aboard a Transport.

Booklist 39:422 Je 15 '43

"The Red Cross is to be praised for making thousands of copies of this little book available to 'those who cross the sea in ships to fight for freedom.' When happier times have returned and once again we can sail the seas for pleasure it will surely continue to be the constant companion of many a voyager, making his journey of added interest since it fills a place previously empty in scientific literature." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p28 N 21 '43 750w

AMERICAN COUNCIL OF LEARNED SOCIETIES. Liberal education re-examined; its role in a democracy, by Theodore M. Greene [and others]. 134p $2 Harper

370.973 Education 43-51269

"This book embodies the final conclusions of a Committee, appointed by the American Council of Learned Societies, to inquire into the place of the humanities in education. It considers the present situation in respect to the value and use of the humanities and what our ultimate educational objectives are in relation to which the humanities should be evaluated. It is at once a re-definition of today's meaning of a liberal-arts education and a plea for such alterations in educational methods as will be designed to carry out the objectives set forth." (School & Society) Annotated bibliography.

"So fearful are the authors of the charge of indoctrination, even with respect to truth, that their defense of liberalism turns out to be more of a defense of the liberal method than of the truths and values upon which the perpetuation of that method inevitably depends." J. H. Hallowell

Am Pol Sci R 37:1138 D '43 420w

Booklist 40:39 O 1 '43

"Volume has practical as well as inspirational value for thoughtful reader, and, of course, for all educators." G. O. Kelley

+ Library J 68:529 Je 15 '43 90w

Reviewed by F. O. Matthiessen

New Repub 110:121 Ja 24 '44 1100w

School & Society 58:79 Jl 31 '43 100w

"That this is a generous and noble conception of education cannot be questioned. It is, however, a limited and partial conception. It refuses to face squarely and positively the basic problem of value and purpose in the present age." G. S. Counts

Survey G 32:508 D '43 450w

AMERICAN educator encyclopedia; Lorimer V. Cavins, editor in chief. 10v 4086p il maps keratol $49.50; to schools and libraries $39.90; loose-leaf supplements are issued four times a year, at a cost of 96c each including binder c1942 United educators inc, 6 N. Michigan av, Chicago

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries 43-5882

"This encyclopedia is designed for use by adults as well as children, primarily in the home and school. Earlier editions were reviewed in Subscription Books Bulletin, January 1930 and April 1938 [Book Review Digest, 1934, 1938]. Additional information regarding this set appeared in the July 1942 issue of Subscription Books Bulletin. . . The title page of this edition states that it is 'a thoroughly modern work designed to meet the needs of every age.' According to the Preface 'This encyclopedia supplies a compact and reliable source of information in the basic academic fields. It will . . . be useful to the many groups of adult readers, in addition to teachers, who can benefit by a readable condensation of such essential facts as it provides. It also has been so designed that students and teachers of the elementary grades may use it profitably in organized study or for general reference purposes. . . Up-to-dateness is probably more important today than ever before as a measure of a good encyclopedia.' " Subscription Bks Bul

"Considering this encyclopedia from the standpoint of use in the home, unevenness of revision in the scientific and industrial field constitutes a major weakness. Although an entry was found for Bakelite, there is no entry under plastics and no mention of synthetic resins under the subject Resins. There are short articles on Rayon, Nylon and Silk, Artificial. The Chemistry article has had no revision since 1931. . . Although this set has been designed for the use of teachers and students there is no attempt to approach subjects from the angle of the child's experience and little encouragement for him to pursue the subject further. . . Considering this edition from the standpoint of up-to-dateness the unevenness of revision is again evident. Although there is a five column article on World War II, the additional material under the names of the various countries, as France, Germany, Great Britain, Netherlands and Norway, covering events of 1935-41 is summarized in fifteen lines or less. . . Although the American Educator Encyclopedia contains useful material and its up-to-dateness is fair, the brevity of treatment, unevenness of revision, lack of clarity and appeal in articles, and weakness of technical information make it a questionable purchase for the home, school or public library. This edition is not recommended."

— Subscription Bks Bul 14:2 Ja '43 1300w

AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION. Booklist. $3 per year, 25c per single issue. Published semi-monthly October through July, and monthly in August and September. A.L.A.

016 Bibliography—Best books (5-18642)

"There are two main sources of free and inexpensive material included in The Booklist at irregular intervals during the year: the list of 'Free and inexpensive material' and 'U.S. public documents.' The 'Free and inexpensive material' list is published about fifteen times a year, totaling annually over 300 titles, including individual pamphlets, inexpensive books, and the new titles in important pamphlet series. Two or three times a year a portion of the list is specifically devoted to children's material, and includes both books and pamphlets. The books are annotated, but most of the pamphlets are not. A list of 'U.S. public documents' appears about eight times a year, and includes approximately 300 publications of the Federal government. All titles are grouped according to subjects, such as Aeronautics, Books and libraries, Consumers, Children, Health, Mexico, Conservation, and National parks. Descriptive annotations are given for all items." Subscription Bks Bul

"The care with which all pamphlet and ephemeral material is selected must be just as great as that given to books, if the vertical file collection is to be organized to serve the known needs of the library. This principle of evaluating free and inexpensive material has been carefully observed by The Booklist staff, with the result that all lists are highly selective. This is of particular importance to the small library or the small school where the librarian or teacher-librarian has little time to attempt a selection of the most accurate, authoritative, and up-to-date titles from the wealth of material now on the market. No advertising material of commercial firms is included. . . Considering that the greater part of the Booklist is devoted to new books the cost of the professional service for new worthwhile pamphlet materials is very small. The Booklist is recommended to the school and public library as a source for free and inexpensive materials."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 13:45 O '42 390w

AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION. Committee on public documents. Public documents and World war II; ed. by Jerome K. Wilcox, chairman; papers presented before the Committee, Milwaukee, June 23 & 25, 1942. 118p pa $2 A.L.A.

015 Government publications. U.S.—Government publications 42-50065

"A series of papers presented before the Committee on Public Documents, American Library Association, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, June 23 and 25, 1942. . . They deal in Part A, pp. 1-74, with United States government publications and in Part B, pp. 84-118, with publications of foreign governments, Great Britain, Canada, European governments in exile and groups of their nationals, and Latin-American governments. The major theme running through all the papers is how libraries may find what documents are being published." Am Pol Sci R

"These papers are valuable for the researcher on the track of current documents, for librarians anxious to preserve the records, and for persons responsible for establishing libraries and maintaining policies calculated to preserve the useful official materials." J. E. Stoner

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:563 Je '43 340w

Booklist 39:115 D 1 '42

AMERICAN SOCIAL PROBLEMS STUDY COMMITTEE. Guide for the study of American social problems. 181p pa $1 Columbia univ. press

302 Social problems. U.S.—Social conditions 43-644

"This book is prepared primarily for use by discussion groups in schools, colleges, clubs, churches, unions, and similar organizations and supplies bibliographies and references to materials, most of them inexpensive, which can be used in guiding intelligent, democratic discussion on such topics as the consumer, the worker, the farmer, women, the Negro, youth, education, housing, civil liberties, national unity, and the problem of security. The materials present varying points of view in matters of controversy." Crozer Q

Reviewed by Gordon Poteat

Crozer Q 20:173 Ap '43 150w

"The chapter on 'Community Councils' rather puts the cart before the horse. . . Similar changes of emphasis might have improved some of the other sections, but these few comments will at least indicate that the book is usable and is not too strong a crutch for a lazy discussion leader to depend completely upon. It will stimulate and guide but in conformance with good pedagogy will force the teacher to do his own preparing and assembling of material." L. E. Brown

+ — Library Q 13:360 O '43 850w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon

Springf'd Republican p6 D 12 '42 850w

AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR TESTING MATERIALS. Symposium on radiography; held at the thirty-ninth annual meeting, Atlantic City, N.J, June 30-July 1, 1936, and forty-fifth annual meeting, Atlantic City, N.J, June 23, 1942. 256p il $4 The society

620.112 Radiography. X-rays 43-9950

"Compilation of papers included in 1942 Symposium, plus revised and condensed papers from very extensive 1936 book. Latest developments in radiographic investigations for determining soundness of metals and metal parts." Library J

Library J 68:574 Jl '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:50 Jl '43

AMERY, LEOPOLD CHARLES MAURICE STENNETT. India and freedom. 122p pa $1.25 (3s 6d) Oxford

954 India—Politics and government. Great Britain—Colonies—India 42-24315

"The texts of a dozen speeches delivered by the Secretary of State for India and Burma between June 1940 and March 1942." Foreign Affairs

---

"This booklet, made up of assorted speeches by Secretary Amery during the past two years, is issued with obvious propagandist purpose." Sudhindra Bose

— Am Pol Sci R 37:752 Ag '43 250w

Christian Science Monitor p10 S 26 '42 600w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:587 Ap '43 20w

"A striking contrast to Gandhi's public sayings is found in India and Freedom, a collection of recent speeches by Mr. L. S. Amery, Secretary of State for India. They do not bear out the picture of Amery as a narrow-minded, die-hard Tory which some foreigners have formed. Rather the picture that emerges is one of a sincere and high-minded public official honestly doing the best he knows for India as well as his own country. The British have always done a better job of presenting their case than the Indians, and Mr. Amery is no exception." M. S. Farley

+ Pacific Affairs 16:380 S '43 140w

Times [London] Lit Sup p362 Jl 25 '42 700w

AMISS, JOHN M.; SHURTLEFF, GORDON KEITH, and MOLTZAU, HUGHITT G. Shop mathematics and shop theory. 360p il $1.60 Harper; $1.50 Chrysler corp. Dept. of industrial educ, 341 Massachusetts st, Detroit

621.75 Machine shop practice. Mathematics 43-6857; 42-16292

"Based on short apprentice training courses in Chrysler Corporation in shop mathematics and shop theory for high school graduates having background of algebra, geometry, physics, chemistry, mechanical drawing, and machine shop work. Includes superfinish, oilite bearings, plastics, and Chrysler engineering standards. Formerly published [1942] by the corporation." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter

Book Week p11 Jl 18 '43 50w

Library J 68:476 Je 1 '43 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:29 Ap '43

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p17 Je 20 '43 60w

AMORIM, ENRIQUE. The horse and his shadow; in the authorized translation by Richard L. O'Connell and James Graham Luján. 252p $2.50 Scribner 43-12146

A story of life on a large ranch in Uruguay. It is the story of the antagonisms of two brothers, the one the owner of the ranch, and the other a city man, a politician and scholar. It is also the story of the servant girl Bica, of the Polish refugees who have settled nearby, of Adelita, the beautiful mistress of the ranch, and of the great stallion, Don Juan which Marcelo has brought to his brother as a gift.

"Raw violence and rustic tranquillity, the clash of old and new worlds, simplicity and wisdom—Enrique Amorim has woven these elements into a remarkable effective and appealing novel—from a stylistic standpoint, at least." Jack Conroy

+ Book Week p6 Ag 22 '43 500w

Reviewed by L. M. Kinloch

Library J 68:624 Ag '43 90w

"The cheap, muddy prose of this Uruguayan novel stands like a wall between the reader and a truly powerful novelistic conception. Of course Mr. Amorim wrote his book in Spanish and it would be easy to blame the bad prose on his translators—except that there is sufficient proof that the translation is faithful and that Mr. Amorim himself fancies his stylistic mannerisms." Diana Trilling

+ — Nation 157:273 S 4 '43 700w

Reviewed by Eudora Welty
N Y Times p4 Ag 15 '43 700w

"Intimate and sometimes beautiful pictures of the unfamiliar life of a Uruguayan ranch do not suffice to make this more than a moderately interesting novel."
New Yorker 19:70 Ag 14 '43 140w

"It is not a great novel, but it is readable and interesting throughout and the translators have done a very good job in retaining a great deal of the flavor and strength of the original Spanish. Only two or three times does the English seem a bit forced whereas there is hardly a page not noticeable for its excellent rendition." S. M. Gross
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 15 '43 390w

"The tale is beautifully told and admirably constructed. The tendency of episode to escape from plot, so common in Latin American novels, is here completely mastered." B. D. Wolfe ..
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 8 '43 900w

ANAND, MULK RAJ. Letters on India. 159p $1.80 Transatlantic [6s Routledge]

915.4 India—Politics and government. India—Nationality. World war, 1939—India 43-9663

"Mr. Mulk Raj Anand's book consists of a series of letters, addressed to an English correspondent, on the Indian situation. . . Imperialism is the Original Sin. Every Englishman in India, from 'robber Clive to bloody Willingdon,' is tarred with the same brush. The Indian States are 'slimy and putrescent backwaters of a rotten system,' the 1935 Constitution a 'Charter of All Fools' Day,' and the Cripps' offer a dishonest trick which deceived nobody." Spec

"One of the finest political pamphlets of the war: evocative, clear, simple and comprehensive." H. S.
+ Canadian Forum 23:22 Ap '43 650w

"One-sided statements of the case, such as we find in this book, help neither side, and merely defeat their own ends." H. G. Rawlinson
Spec 170:248 Mr 12 '43 210w

"Mulk Raj Anand shows himself a Socialist of the most extreme kind. It is easy to depict the miserable state of the Indian peasant and Indian industrial worker, especially at the present time of food scarcity; but for this writer it is all the easier because he turns a blind eye to the legislative and other measures such as the cooperative movement which have been introduced to remedy that state. His tale of woe is pitched high so that he can work up to the solution of a planned industry evolved under socialism."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p312 Je 26 '43 270w

ANDERSON, ARTHUR G.; MANDEVILLE, MERTEN JOSEPH, and ANDERSON, JOHN MUELLER. Industrial management. 612p il $4.50 Ronald

658 Factory management. Efficiency, Industrial 42-19033

"This volume is a revision of Industrial Engineering and Factory Management [Book Review Digest, 1928] . . . The change in name appears to be justified by the broader scope of the new volume, and it recognizes the trend to use the term 'management' as a descriptive title for books in this field. The volume . . . contains full discussions of topics now usually found in such works, namely: scientific management, ownership, organization, location planning and construction of factory buildings, lighting, air conditioning, motion and time study, wages, purchasing, quality control, tool control, production control, industrial costs, and others. In addition, the authors have stressed the topics of public and personnel relations more fully than do most texts of this character. To this end, there are chapters on Public Relations, Industrial Progress, Human Relations, Personnel Department, Fatigue Among Workers, and Wages and Wage Systems." Ann Am Acad

"This book is particularly suitable for students in schools of business organization, and somewhat less suitable for engineering students who normally will receive full instruction in factory construction, heating, lighting, air conditioning, and similar subjects. It should be very useful for industrial executives who wish to broaden their knowledge of modern management." D. S. Kimball
+ Ann Am Acad 225:252 Ja '43 360w

"There is a tendency to go into disproportionate detail as to those techniques in which scientific management had its origin. This is perhaps of small moment except that the physical space devoted to them may give the student a corresponding sense of disproportion as to their importance in the field of management as a whole. Notwithstanding these comments as to specific problems, the book is a practical and useful text for the beginner. The authors have performed a useful service in modernizing an earlier edition. The rapidity of industrial development and the concurrent changes in technology require that the literature be truly inclusive."
+ — N Y Times p25 F 28 '43 450w

"The recently promoted supervisor should find 'Industrial Management' a means by which he can understand the larger problems of a business organization—and so fit himself for still further advancement." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p25 Mr 28 '43 300w

ANDERSON, CLARENCE WILLIAM. Big Red; pictures by [the author]. 64p $2 Macmillan

798.4 Man o' War (race horse) 43-12678

Biography of the famous race horse, Man o' War, illustrated with lithographs by the author-artist. For older boys and girls.

Booklist 40:75 N 1 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:418 N '43 60w

"Horse lovers of all ages will enjoy. As usual, Mr. Anderson's lithographs are superb. . . Will be easier to shelve than the earlier titles. Recommended." M. N. Miller
+ Library J 68:773 O 1 '43 90w

"This is really something new, a horse biography, not too technical, but satisfyingly informative, with, of course, lithographs by the author." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p12 D 26 '43 180w

Sat R of Lit 27:30 Ja 29 '44 150w

+ Springf'd Republican p8 S 15 '43 250w

"Admirable biography of a superhorse with every virtue of his race and all the marvels of a racer." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 N 14 '43 330w

Wis Lib Bul 40:7 Ja '44

ANDERSON, DWIGHT, and BAYLOUS, MARGARET. When doctors are rationed. 255p $2 Coward-McCann

610.69 Medical service 42-25910

"By showing how the government selects medical aid for its particular needs and services, the authors hope to point out to the civilian how he can make a wise choice whether for the first time or, if necessary, to replace the family physician. Advice is also offered on hospitals, on avoiding quacks, on being wary of home remedies, and on being a good patient. Conservative in approach but popularly written and of current interest. No index." Booklist

"The intent of this volume is excellent, namely to give the general public an insight into the problem of providing medical care and the procedures established to provide adequate medical service for both the military forces and the civilian population. The book succeeds in doing this, however, only moderately well and with uneven balance." Abel Wolman

ANDERSON, DWIGHT—Continued
+ — Am J Pub Health 33:450 Ap '43 550w
Booklist 39:194 Ja 15 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p22 N '42

"The war emergency provides the background against which Mr. Anderson and Miss Baylous paint a glowing picture of the medical profession. The functions and operation of the Procurement and Assignment Service in the selection of doctors for the armed services and for maintenance of civilian health are described in such rosy terms that the naive reader might conclude that such perfection surely had divine guidance. Those whose own experience has revealed unmet civilian and military medical needs will read with skepticism." H. P. H.
J Home Econ 35:242 Ap '43 230w

Reviewed by M. M. Davis
Survey G 32:28 Ja '43 500w

ANDERSON, EDWIN P., comp. Sheet metal pattern layouts. 1090p il $4 Audel

621.792 Sheet metal work—Pattern making 43-2073

"Practical treatise on all phases of sheet metal work, including pattern cutting and development." Library J

Library J 68:289 Ap 1 '43 10w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:17 Ja '43

ANDERSON, MRS EVA GREENSLIT. Chief Seattle. 390p il maps $4 Caxton printers

970.2 Seattle, chief of the Suquamish and allied tribes 43-9251

Popular biography based on extensive research and study, of the Indian Chief who gave the city of Seattle its name. An admirer of the white man, Seattle tried over and over again to bring white and red men into harmonious relationship but much of his endeavor was lost in tragic conflicts.

"Unfortunately the story is told in a style which might indicate that the book was intended for the very young, while at the same time, every page is dotted with numerals referring to notes of explanation. Such notes, although they indicate an extensive study of source material, do not add to the attraction of a book written in story form. It would have been much better had the author fully digested her source material, or had she used a more sophisticated style, in which such notes would be acceptable." M. I. T.
Canadian Forum 23:95 Jl '43 360w

Reviewed by Nona Balakian
N Y Times p24 Jl 25 '43 260w

ANDERSON, HOBSON DEWEY, and DAVIDSON, PERCY ERWIN. Ballots and the democratic class struggle; a study in the background of political education. 377p $4 Stanford univ. press

324.73 Voting. Politics, Practical. U.S.—Politics and government 43-1815

"The handbook value of this volume is the aid it gives political scientists, students in courses of citizenship, and professional politicians who would know what prompts persons to register and vote as they do. A second purpose of the book is to examine the contentions of both those who urge a blind faith in democratic ideals as the motivating force in political behavior and those believers in the Marxist notion of an inevitable class conflict which must result in the destruction of the existing political structures in the United States." (School & Society) Index.

Reviewed by Belle Zeller
Am Pol Sci R 37:524 Je '43 900w

"The authors draw upon an extensive literature, both sociological and economic. They draw heavily, for example, upon the extremely comprehensive reports of the Temporary National Economic Committee in Washington, of which Anderson has been the executive officer, and upon their own previous joint investigations of the American occupational structure. The result is a signal contribution to our understanding of American political behavior and social stratification. The reviewer would take issue most sharply with the third part of the book, on the ground that it exhibits a naive rationalism." Kingsley Davis
+ — Am Soc R 8:613 O '43 700w

"The authors have done a very useful job in making available their findings regarding the occupations, sex and party affiliations of the some 70,000 registrants of Alameda County during the years 1932-34. Where Anderson draws upon his actual experience in California politics the discussion is excellent, as in the description of the famous Sinclair campaign of 1934. The so-called 'Picture of the Electorate' which the authors present in the chapter on class consciousness and political behavior is also very well done. From the technical statistical point of view, the book leaves some things to be desired. Table headings do not completely identify the materials contained in the tables. When a coefficient of correlation is presented without giving the regression equation and certain other items, many questions may be asked." H. F. Gosnell
+ — Ann Am Acad 228:138 Jl '43 360w

Reviewed by George Soule
New Repub 109:342 S 6 '43 800w

"This is a stimulating and provocative book which social scientists should read with care." R. H. Ewing
+ Pol Sci Q 58:295 Je '43 850w

" 'Ballots and the Democratic Class Struggle' is not only the best study of the relationship between democratic practice and democratic theory, but the political scientist will find it unusually interesting for its methods which are both novel and successful. It gives a fascinating picture of the structure of American society, its behavior, its social values. Those who have been worried about our foreign-born citizens will find a great deal of reassurance in the parts of the study which show how rapidly they become Americanized in their political behavior. Altogether this is a 'must' for anyone interested in American politics and in a free society." P. F. Drucker
+ Sat R of Lit 26:40 Je 5 '43 950w
School & Society 57:168 F 6 '43 90w

ANDRES, EDWARD MATTHEW, and COCANOWER, CLAIR D. Economics and the consumer; with the editorial collaboration of Louise Pearson Mitchell [under the general editorship of Byron Hollinshead]. 553p il $3.50 Houghton

330 Economics. Consumption (economics) 42-18645

"The authors of this elementary text in economics have tried to develop it around economic situations and activities more or less familiar to their readers. It is written from the point of view of the consumer. But the authors believe that 'the problems of the consumer cannot be understood without an elementary knowledge of economic principles'; hence, the introductory chapters provide a brief survey of the economic process. Following this survey there are discussions of topics commonly considered in textbooks on consumer economics, supplemented by some less frequently included, such as taxation, fraud and gambling, communications, and recreation and travel. . . The closing chapter, 'The Economics of War and Peace,' touches on various problems with which we as consumers are faced at present, the shift to war economy—prices, priorities, rationing, war production, labor problems, inflation, government regulation—and concludes with an admonition that they be 'the subject of sober and thoughtful consideration by citizens.' " (J Home Econ) Index.

"The general organization of subject matter reflects the common failure of textbooks in the consumption field to distinguish clearly between a pure economics of consumption, an applied economics of consumption, and a private economics of household management. There is added, also, the further complication of an attempt to integrate materials on consumer economics with those customarily included in an elementary economics course. The result is something less than satisfactory, though the book is not devoid of merit as an introductory approach to economics. Beginners may find it more interesting than the usual text. . . On the whole, the chapters on consumer problems, representing the bulk of the book, are well done. They are well written and contain much useful information for consumers that students should easily grasp." R. C. Cave

+ — Am Econ R 33:194 Mr '43 800w

"Both students and instructors will appreciate the clear type and pertinent topical headings employed throughout the text. Each chapter is followed by a set of review questions, a few concrete problems, and a brief list of references. A well-organized index of twelve pages rounds out the set of student tools." A. L. Edwards

+ J Home Econ 35:240 Ap '43 280w

"The good features of this refreshing text more than offset certain shortages. It comes closer to meeting the needs of students and of society than most of its predecessors. The authors, without being reformers, go right to the heart of a problem." A. W. Troelstrup

+ — Social Educ 7:380 D '43 500w

ANDREWS, MATTHEW PAGE. The soul of a nation; the founding of Virginia and the projection of New England. 378p il maps $3.50 Scribner

975.5 Virginia—History—Colonial period. Massachusetts—History—Colonial period

43-12171

"A well-known historian gives us a more or less fresh interpretation of the founders' plans for Virginia and New England, based in part on newly discovered sources. The settlements, as first conceived, were not to be 'colonies' in the ordinary sense, he thinks; they represented a deliberate intent to transplant English rights and institutions to the New World." New Yorker

Reviewed by R. E. Brown

Am Pol Sci R 37:1126 D '43 340w

Reviewed by Sterling North

Book Week p3 Ag 29 '43 700w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 60:1167 O 13 '43 800w

"A substantial work." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 S 11 '43 850w

"The chief merit of The Soul of a Nation is the meticulous care shown in assembling and evaluating the evidence, old as well as new. No document seems to have been so obscure as to escape the author's scrutiny. . . Dr. Andrews has done a valuable service in disproving the old charge that the founding of Virginia was purely an economic venture, with nothing more behind it than sordid gain." T. J. Wertenbaker

+ New Eng Q 16:684 D '43 1050w

"Behind this book is a feeling that a democratic idea is tarnished by association with an economic fact, that there was something caddish about any historical character who openly admitted he wanted to make a better living. As a result Dr. Andrews squeezes tough, greedy mercantilism into his definition of idealism, and thus stretches the word so much it becomes virtually meaningless. His insistence that the builders of Jamestown thought only secondarily of personal gain is not supported by his evidence." E. F. Goldman

N Y Times p30 O 24 '43 500w

New Yorker 19:67 Ag 28 '43 70w

Reviewed by Virginius Dabney

Sat R of Lit 26:6 N 13 '43 800w

"After a reader has given up trying to find out what Mr Andrews believes to be the soul of a nation, and is left with the conclusion that perhaps to a Virginian anything to do with Virginia is related to America's soul, the book itself becomes an interesting and fascinating narrative of material of undoubted historical importance." C. D. Kean

+ — Springf'd Republican p10 D 7 '43 650w

Wis Lib Bul 39:144 N '43

ANDREWS, PHILLIP, ed. See Air news yearbook

ANDREWS, ROY CHAPMAN. Under a lucky star; a lifetime of adventure. 300p $3 Viking

B or 92 Scientific expeditions. Voyages and travels

43-51268

Autobiography of a noted American scientist, for many years a member of the staff of the American museum of natural history, and leader of numerous scientific expeditions, notably several to central Asia. The language is informal and non-technical and the book deals more with his travels and adventures than with his personal life or his scientific studies.

Reviewed by Thomas Barbour

Atlantic 172:131 N '43 120w

"'Under a Lucky Star' is not a thoughtful book, nor is it full of by-the-way information about natural history as you might expect or hope, but it's a book full of lively incident and description of far places. It's sure to appeal to all armchair fans of tiger shoots and tense moments with mutinous native bearers—for all of these familiar elements of adventure are here. As writing on natural history, this is a book much closer to Frank Buck than it is to William Beebe." Margedant Peters

Book Week p8 S 19 '43 360w

Booklist 40:45 O 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

Reviewed by Allan Taylor

N Y Times p7 S 19 '43 550w

"An energetic and pleasant book, touched with the warmth of a man who has been very busy doing the job he liked best, but with plenty of fun and humor too. The story goes rapidly and smoothly. Not much scientific detail, though."

+ New Yorker 19:86 S 11 '43 60w

"This is a book not for the scientist but for the general reader. Hence the explorer who wishes to follow in Andrews's footsteps will receive no practical advice. Because he is a scientist Andrews is more modest than he ought to be, despite his account of perils survived. Possibly his narrative would have gained if he had given us not only a record of adventures but something like a psychological self-portrait, a true autobiography. But there is no doubt that his book is good, and even exciting reading, even though he denies that he is a writer. He may not be a literary artist, but he knows how to present his facts effectively and simply because he is unpretentious." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:15 O 2 '43 800w

"Dr. Andrews enjoys a world-wide reputation as a famous scientific explorer, and his autobiography epitomizes the energy and raciness of his varied and traveled days." A. H. Compton & others

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:1 S '43 600w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p7e S 19 '43 650w

"There are few harsh words in this book. For the most part the people encountered by Dr. Andrews were all to the good. He alludes only briefly and obliquely to various schisms and feuds in the scientific world, and particularly at the museum. For the people there . . . he has only praise, sometimes of an extravagant nature. As for his own story, it is somewhat superficial, in his best lecture-platform manner, but it has the merits of sincerity and enthusiasm." Stanley Walker

+ — Weekly Book Review p4 S 12 '43 1100w

Wis Lib Bul 39:143 N '43

ANGEL, JOAN. Angel of the navy; with line il. by Betty Utley St. John. 201p $2 Hastings house

359.34 U.S. Naval reserve. Women's reserve. World war, 1939- —Women's work

43-51233

Account of the author's own experiences in the WAVES from induction, thru boot training, to her work as first class pharmacist's mate.

Booklist 40:1 S '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '43

ANGEL, JOAN—Continued

"Routine, hard work, thrills, and dates are all written about in breezy style, with youthful enthusiasm but with sincerity and pride in the service. Slight little story is made even more entertaining by Betty St. John's (author of Excess Baggage) drawings. Older girls especially will be keen about this book. Recommended for current purchase by circulating libraries generally." Jacqueline Overton

+ Library J 68:570 Jl '43 70w

"This saga of lady landlubbers turned into trim tars is told in straight style with a minimum of adjectives, a maximum of anecdote. It is an extremely readable tale. The reader learns the easy way; he finds out about regulations and procedures through the warmth of the author's personal experiences. . . The sketches by Betty Utley St. John sail right along with the story, alive with action and humor from stem to stern." Lucy Greenbaum

+ N Y Times p10 Ag 8 '43 800w

"A humorous but highly credible account." Catharine Redmond

+ Sat R of Lit 26:36 Ag 21 '43 180w

"Although the book is written in light vein the author inserts enough of the serious side of being a WAVE to prove that she, like most women in the armed services, finds a deep satisfaction in serving her country at a time when she is needed so much. The book contains many practical hints for would-be WAVES as to what to take with you and what to do or not to do at basic training school." E. R. Mallette

+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 19 '43 250w

" 'Angel of the Navy' is written with sincerity and high spirits, and the drawings are in the same key."

+ Weekly Book Review p16 Ag 8 '43 280w

ANGELL, SIR NORMAN. Let the people know. 245p $2.50 Viking

940.53 World war, 1939— . International cooperation 42-25462

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"This book should be read by many of the millions of people who did nothing to prevent this war, for it makes quite clear that the people of the democracies are themselves to blame. They cannot shift the responsibility to bad leaders, to the international bankers, or to anyone else, for at the close of the last war they saw—for a short time—that to be safe themselves they had to defend the safety of others. . . Let the People Know can be read with humility, especially by teachers and preachers, for it makes clear how sorely they failed to make simple truths plain." D. F. Fleming

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:947 O '43 850w

"It is not going to be easy to remove the many deep-seated sources of Anglo-American friction to which Mr. Angell refers. But it will do no good to gloss over them. They should be brought out into the open, as Mr. Angell has done, discussed, treated, and dispelled. Here is a job, a concrete assignment, to which patriotic citizens not otherwise engaged in war work might well devote their time. If the United States and Great Britain can stick together as effectively after the war as they are doing during the war, the prospects of a real victory are very bright." H. L. Childs

+ Ann Am Acad 226:160 Mr '43 650w

Bookmark 5:4 Ja '43

"Norman Angell can no longer assert, as he does in this book, that British propaganda has not been well done in this country. His presentation of the British case is a superbly persuading argument; and it is not a thing to be easily rejected. Indeed, it has its place in the present crisis, for its purpose is to bring Americans and British into a more harmonious co-operation. Confusion arises constantly, however, in his attempt to present the case as an American, and the reader must stop frequently to think of which country he is speaking when he talks of activities 'in this country.' " J. H. Fichter

+ — Cath World 157:101 Ap '43 700w

Commonweal 37:427 F 12 '43 750w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:3 Jl '43 30w

"For thirty years Norman Angell has given most of his great talent and energy to the cause of collective security, and perhaps because he has thought longer and worked harder at his job than most people his new book on the subject is a handbook for everybody who is interested in peace, and particularly for all those who are working on plans for peace. . . A sound, carefully argued book, which reads like a cross between a popular history and the script of an Information Please program." J. B. Reston

+ N Y Times p3 F 14 '43 1450w

Pratt p22 F '43

Wis Lib Bul 39:40 Mr '43

ANGELO, VALENTI. Look out yonder; il. by [the author]. 197p $2 Viking

43-51251

Story of a kindly family living in a shack colony near a levee in the San Joaquin valley. They all worked hard to save enough money for a farm, like the one which had been their home in Kansas, and in time their dreams came true. Grades four to six.

Booklist 40:49 O 1 '43

Cath World 158:316 D '43 50w

"Valenti Angelo has written another warmly human story of close family ties, love of home, with childhood and old age in happy companionship." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:405 N '43 100w

"Story is not without humor and ends happily with a harvest gathering at the Norton's new farm." E. D. Briggs

+ Library J 68:964 N 15 '43 90w

"In the books of Valenti Angelo we have learned to look for friendliness and humor, and a sense of the embracing goodness of the earth. 'Look Out Yonder' is no exception." A. T. E.

+ N Y Times p26 N 14 '43 280w

"Children from ten to fourteen, who are not wholly addicted to the rattling pace of adventure stories, will relish the perception and feeling of this unusual book."

+ New Yorker 19:124 D 4 '43 70w

ANNOTATED list of books, 10c to $1, 1941-1942. 10c Russell Reynolds, Ridgefield park, N.J.

028.5 Children's literature—Bibliography

"This is a list of inexpensive books from the presses of 20 publishers, including such standard publishers as Columbia university press, Random house, Macmillan, David McKay, Garden City press, Blue ribbon, Whitman publishing company, and others. . . Most of the books listed here do not appear in such lists as the Children's Catalog, partly because of the very low prices of the books listed. Included are such series as the Happy hour books, Little library, Children's favorites, Children's classics, Juveniles of distinction, Golden books, and others, most of which are well known to librarians. Fairly complete lists of these publishers series are given as compared to the few selected titles of these series appearing in the Children's Catalog." Subscription Bks Bul

"This list is recommended for the elementary and junior high schools and to public libraries which wish to build up collections of attractive, inexpensive book material."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 13:43 O '42 350w

ANSHEN, MRS RUTH NANDA, ed. Beyond victory. 291p $3.50 Harcourt

940.53144 Reconstruction (1939-). International cooperation 43-15742

"Nineteen essays, by as many well-known specialists, on the problems and choices of the postwar world, with an introduction and postscript by the editor." (New Yorker) Index.

"This book of essays is profoundly interesting and important, not only for the distinction of its contributors but because here is the best possible demonstration that the widest circles of our population are being swept along in the surge of a people's war, their thinking stimulated, their concepts clarified." A. D. Winspear

+ Book Week p18 N 21 '43 950w

Booklist 40:111 D 1 '43

"A book which, of all the books on postwar problems that have come to this desk, seems to contain the most stuff and the least stuffing." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 60:1368 N 24 '43 900w

Reviewed by Clifton Macon

Churchman 158:16 Ja 1 '44 300w

"Editor writes opening and closing essays, the first a brilliant summary of the rights of man. Recommended." Thelma Brackett

+ Library J 68:890 N 1 '43 110w

"Good writing, for the most part, if not especially distinguished. There are excellent pieces by Margaret Mead, Robert M. MacIver, and Rupert Emerson, among others."

+ New Yorker 19:107 N 6 '43 60w

"Not only did Ruth Nanda Anshen gather together an impressive company of statesmen, scholars, scientists and philosophers, but she contributed the opening and the closing essays, 'The Rights of Man,' and 'The Nature of Man,' and they measure up with the best." Albert Guerard

+ Weekly Book Review p32 N 28 '43 1000w

Wis Lib Bul 39:157 D '43

ANTHONY, BARBARA K., and BARNES, MARCILLENE. Explorers all; il. by Kreigh Collins; maps drawn by Harold Vander Werf. 112p $2 Fideler co, 48 N. Division av, Grand Rapids, Mich.

910.9 Explorers. Discoveries (in geography) 43-51075

"Brief accounts of 25 or more explorers from the Norsemen to Roy Chapman Andrews. . . Grades 4-7." Booklist

Booklist 39:356 My 1 '43

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p6 F 7 '43 280w

APPEL, BENJAMIN. Dark stain. 395p $2.75 Dial press 43-18559

"The story of Sam Miller, a New York cop, who was unwillingly forced to kill a crazed negro. This killing sets off a series of events that threatens to explode into riot. How an American Fascist group tries to exploit the situation gives the author an opportunity to tell a story that has all the elements of a thriller and all the threat of a warning." Publisher's note

"It is too melodramatic a plot to carry the freight of Mr. Appel's social documentation."

New Repub 110:62 Ja 10 '44 90w

"In a crowded, lively novel, Benjamin Appel's theme is the frightening significance of racial violence in a warring democracy, a violence incited and used by native enemies of democracy. . . And his appeal is to the timid and cautious, the prejudiced and indifferent—who of us is guiltless here?—who have let the evil breed. This is exciting material, certainly, and Appel adds to it further excitements of his own contrivance. But it seems to me the book fails as education or propaganda, just to the extent that it fails artistically." R. G. Davis

N Y Times p32 N 21 '43 550w

"Benjamin Appel has written a powerful novel based upon one of the great tragic themes in American life, the race hatred between black and white. The book is remarkable at once for its detachment and for the sharp new light which, by its very detachment, it casts upon the theme." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 26:19 N 20 '43 500w

"The author's style, previously exemplified in 'Brain Guy,' is clipped and brusque. He writes from the corner of his mouth. Sometimes the method is effective, sometimes it isn't. It works particularly well in the brief, flashlight-like impressions of various sections of Manhattan with which the book is dotted." Herbert Kupferberg

Weekly Book Review p16 N 7 '43 450w

ARCHAMBAULT, ALBERIC A. Mill village. 191p $2.50 Humphries 43-16366

"On a little farm in the Province of Quebec, back in the '70s, Benoni and Marie Gareau raised enough vegetables, grain and pigs for their needs—even with ten growing sons and daughters to provide for. . . But the older boys and girls had heard of the fabulous wages in the New England mills, and finally persuaded their father to migrate to Connecticut. 'Mill Village' is a simple and authentic chronicle of the family's adjustment to a strange environment." Weekly Book Review

"Judge Alberic A. Archambault has told the story of the Gareaus in a series of short chapters, intense in their action and their meaning. His novel is short, but it embraces a half century of vivid life in a New England mill village. He has wisely chosen the essential details which distinguish this racial group from others, and one can read in his book the merits and failings of the American life of the times." Jacques Ducharme

+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 3 '43 280w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p28 O 17 '43 150w

ARCINIEGAS, GERMAN. Germans in the conquest of America; tr. by Angel Flores. 217p map $2.50 Macmillan

973.19 America—Discovery and exploration. Germans in South America. South America—History 43-13948

"Colombian writer and diplomat (now in the United States) tells story of a 'sixteenth-century enterprise': the part played by Germans in early conquest of Latin America; financial intrigues of two German banking families, the Fuggers and Welsers, and the unsuccessful expeditions of explorers sent by these bankers. Concludes that Germans failed to gain control of region because they were interested solely in treasure, whereas the Spanish were concerned also with Christianization and colonization." Library J

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy

Book Week p5 O 3 '43 300w

"Popular rather than scholarly. Angel Flores' translation makes unusually sprightly and readable English. Will appeal to those more than casually interested in this restricted subject. Recommended for larger libraries." G. W. Wakefield

+ Library J 68:665 S 1 '43 110w

"Señor Arciniegas' book reads like the most incredible and breathless of detective stories. Sometimes one feels that this is a picaresque novel—certainly the rogues and rascals are legion—and all the other ingredients are there, rich beyond the dreams of a Gil Blas. . . And then, one realizes that this is the raw stuff of history—that the villains Señor Arciniegas pins down on his pages are all too real." Alvaro De Silva

+ N Y Times p22 O 17 '43 1050w

"The prose is inclined to be overexuberant even for such a violent theme, but the subject is interesting enough so that one can overlook defects of this nature." W. H. H.

+ — Springf'd Republican p6 O 18 '43 650w

"At the outset, Mr. Arciniegas rides his thesis a bit hard. He makes Charles I a German, though he was born and brought up in Flanders; makes all the foreigners which the latter brought to Spain into Germans, though most of them were Flemings. . . But, being a poet and a scholar, within a few pages he abandons his half-hearted attempts to establish a thesis and lets his tale float on the wondrous stream of the old chronicles. He is an impressionistic and romantic historian in love with the heroic deeds of exploration and conquest and the fresh marvels glimpsed by these medieval men as they burst into new lands of wonder. . . From these rich pages the true picture of the Germans in America emerges." B. D. Wolfe

ARCINIEGAS, GERMAN—Continued
+ — Weekly Book Review p5 S 26 '43 1150w

AREY, JOHN STUART. Night duty [Eng title: Night-work]. 244p $2.50 Doubleday [9s Eyre] 43-5110

A story of twenty-four hours in a London hospital during the days of the blitzkrieg.

"I liked Arey's style. Its restrained, clean lines draw people who come alive and are real. . . How they all react to bombing, to fire; how the hospital re-establishes its accustomed routine—that routine which makes the patients feel that a hospital is a place of security even during a blitz—make this an absorbing story, one of the best to come from wartime England." Dorsey McCarthy
+ Book Week p5 My 23 '43 40w

Booklist 39:368 My 15 '43

"Carefully selected characters from personnel and patients combine to give stirring picture of the complicated organization under fire, and to show clearly why Nazi airmen failed to disrupt its calm, efficient routine. Realistic treatment, but restrained writing keeps it from being a horror tale. Recommended." H. G. Kelley
+ Library J 68:327 Ap 15 '43 60w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p3 S 18 '42 110w

Reviewed by Margaret Wallace
N Y Times p16 Ap 25 '43 400w

"A modest and exceptionally competent first novel, slightly conventional in treatment, no doubt, but rich in the interaction of characters, and written clearly and quietly."
+ New Yorker 19:79 Ap 24 '43 50w

"A promising first novel. The book is technically very accomplished; Mr. Arey handles the complex structure with the ease of a practised writer. He has a sense of drama which he controls with the right degree of flexibility. . . The characterization is on the weak side, and minor characters carry the most conviction, and while we feel the implications behind the various situations are fully understood, we also feel cheated by the incomplete exploration of their possibilities. One hopes that this novel will be widely read on both sides of the Atlantic because of its authentic unsentimental reportage." John Hampson
+ — Spec 169:294 S 25 '42 270w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 9 '43 330w

Times [London] Lit Sup p560 N 14 '42 200w

"An interesting and valuable addition to the literature of the war." Diana Forbes-Robertson
+ Weekly Book Review p12 My 2 '43 450w

ARMSTRONG, CHARLOTTE. Case of the weird sisters. 279p $2 Coward-McCann 43-1891

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p20 Ja 17 '43 180w

"This is a pleasantly creepy yarn, excellently well written, filled with half-a-dozen fascinating characters and carried along from start to finish with the right assortment of humor, suspense and honest detecting. You really do find it difficult to put it down until it is done."
+ Boston Globe p19 Ja 27 '43 50w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p24 Ja 17 '43 200w

New Yorker 18:64 Ja 30 '43 100w

Sat R of Lit 26:20 F 6 '43 50w

"In 'The Case of the Weird Sisters,' the author develops the promise she exhibited in her first book, 'Lay on, MacDuff!' The book is well written and save for a few forgivable lapses, its interest is sustained." M. L.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 17 '43 170w

ARMSTRONG, DONALD BUDD, and HALLOCK, GRACE TABER. What to do till the doctor comes. 354p il $1 Simon & Schuster
614.8 First aid in illness and injury
43-9909

"A home manual for emergencies." The book is supposed to be hung by the medicine chest and a cord passing thru the top of the volume facilitates this. Complete directions for all types of first aid are contained in the book; the arrangement is alphabetical. Dr Armstrong is a vice president of the Metropolitan life insurance company; Grace Hallock is a member of his staff.

"It contains a wealth of information authoritatively presented. Its admirable brevity and critical selectivity combined with scientific accuracy make it possible to recommend this book without reservation. . . It is hoped that the low price will make this book as popular as it deserves to be." Israel Davidsohn, M.D.
+ Book Week p5 Ag 22 '43 320w

Booklist 40:4 S '43

"The book is a full, clear and reliable home manual for emergencies. Indeed, a more complete manual on what to know, what to have ready in the home, how to deal with sudden illness, accidental injury and even war injuries and catastrophes, has probably never been published." M. F. A. M.
+ N Y Times p23 Jl 18 '43 340w

"From removing a splinter to delivering a baby, information and directions are offered fully in such untechnical language that even an expectant father could understand them. It's a lot of value for the money and should be of material aid at a time when doctors are busier and more elusive than ever."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 29 '43 110w

"This family companion is so sensible, compact, detailed and well arranged that it may well be kept alongside the family medicine chest—a loop of cord running through the pages is provided for the purpose. It will be read through before it is put into place, by any one conscious of the responsibility now devolving upon the layman from absence in the army of so many physicians."
+ Weekly Book Review p19 Jl 18 '43 300w

ARMSTRONG, OSCAR VANCE, and ARMSTRONG, HELEN, comps. Prayer poems. 256p $1.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury
821.08 Religious poetry 43-252

"In a public library this anthology will be helpful in supplying poems for special occasions. The purpose of the collection, as indicated in the title, has been closely adhered to, but the range and variety of the poems brought together is surprising. As a suggestion: there are prayers for the home, for children, for friends; prayers for the New Year, Easter, Thanksgiving and Christmas; prayers for those at sea, for those who fly, prayers for the nation and for world brotherhood." (Wis Lib Bul) Indexes of subjects, authors, and first lines.

"A large majority of the names in the list of authors will be unfamiliar to most readers. But though the great poets have not been very heavily drawn upon, the reading of the book discloses the heartening fact that much sincere and satisfying poetry is being written by men and women whom it is no insult to call, in comparison with Shakespeare and Milton, 'minor poets.' "
Christian Century 60:19 Ja 6 '43 70w

Wis Lib Bul 39:25 F '43

ARMY-navy guide; foreword by George A. Herbst [ed. by Virginia French and Rosejeanne Slifer]. 320p il $1.50 Crown
355 U.S.—Armed forces 42-51284

In question and answer form the book gives information on the organization and administration of the United States army, navy, marine corps, coast guard, WAACS, and WAVES. Material includes such topics as: duties, dress, insignia, etiquet and customs, health and personal hygiene, medical department, etc. Glossaries of military and naval terms and slang. Bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 39:285 Mr 15 '43

"Information is authentic and complete, modern and up to date. The compilation has been effected with the assistance of numerous authorities and the result is unusual comprehensiveness." P. J. Searles

+ Books p21 Ja 17 '43 380w

ARMY play by play; five one-act plays; foreword by John Golden; sponsored by the Special service branch, Second service command, U.S. army, in collaboration with John Golden. 176p $2 Random house

812.08 American drama—Collections. U.S.—Army—Military life—Drama 43-15620

Five one-act plays, selected from the 115 submitted by enlisted men. Each was performed by service men at some army post and later they were produced in New York. Contents: Where e'er we go, by J. B. O'Dea; First cousins, by Kurt Kasznar; Button your lip, by I. G. Neiman; Mail call, by Ralph Nelson; Pack up your troubles, by A. D. Geto.

Booklist 40:89 N 15 '43

"They are good, sound, well constructed plays, without stilted heroics, without cynicism, neither sentimental nor hard-boiled. Mr. Golden is quite right in believing that this sort of play-writing and presentation by soldiers is good for army morale."

+ Christian Century 60:1305 N 10 '43 130w

"Excellent examples of the thinking of soldiers today. . . Highly recommended."

+ Library J 68:958 N 15 '43 50w

"One need not overestimate the quality of these plays to see in them the distance American theatre has traveled since World War I."

+ Theatre Arts 27:F2 D '43 150w

ASCH, SHALOM. The apostle; tr. by Maurice Samuel. 804p $3 Putnam

Paul, Saint—Fiction 43-51252

A novel based on the life of St Paul, by the author of The Nazarene (Book Review Digest, 1939). It is "primarily a work of exposition, an account of the growth of early Christian doctrine and the spread of Christianity, and an interpretation of Christianity as the culminating, finest step in Jewish religious development." (Yale R)

"In conception and execution the novel is magnificent, for the author has approached his subject with devotion and reverence and has written of it with almost Biblical simplicity."

+ Atlantic 172:131 O '43 100w

"I wish I could say this is a great book. I'm afraid it's not. It is authentic, there is every evidence of a high and burning seriousness in it. . . But it's dull reading. . . 'The Nazarene' was, in many respects, a lesser work, yet it was successful. 'The Apostle,' by contrast, is stuffy, tortured, infinitely prolonged—as if a great mind were suddenly opened to let the accumulation of years of concentration on one theme and subject pour out in toto, with no selection, no shading, no volition, no restraint." A. C. Spectorsky

— + Book Week p1 S 19 '43 750w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick

Book Week p10 O 3 '43 240w

Booklist 40:47 O 1 '43

Canadian Forum 23:191 N '43 450w

"In so far as this book preaches a doctrine regulative of Jewish-Christian relations, we find ourselves in complete accord. But when we pass on to the principles of faith behind the regulations, we must part company. . . But what is a much greater disappointment is that, though the author shows no personal hostility to St. Paul, he still retains the common Jewish view that the Apostle to the Gentiles was the real author of Christianity. Here, for once, he departs from the New Testament data which elsewhere he has followed so closely." E. H. Peters

+ — Cath World 158:98 O '43 1100w

"The novel is bound to arouse even more controversy than did its predecessor. Its quality as great literature, however, cannot be disputed; it is another mighty achievement by one of the greatest of contemporary writers and may well prove that mutual understanding and genuine appreciation are possible among the Jews and Christians of today as they were among those of Paul's day. All that is needed is a mediator of spiritual sensibility and warm humanity. Sholem Asch is such a mediator. His book deserves a place on the shelf of the immortals." K. M. Chworowsky

+ Christian Century 60:1136 O 6 '43 950w

Christian Science Monitor p12 O 2 '43 700w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '43

"For the sake of dramatic effect, Mr. Asch perhaps exaggerates a little the tensions between the Jerusalem Christians, the actual Disciples, and Paul's followers. One detects in him also a shying away from the miraculous, and he by implication attributes blood brothers to Christ—a position which Catholic theologians repudiate. Nor is he at all clear in his attitude toward Christ's divinity; if he were convinced of it, of course, he himself would be a Christian. But despite these things (and other details for scholars to dig out), one must heartily commend 'The Apostle.' It is reverent and deeply felt, and it casts light on a heritage we are all too likely to take for granted. But remember that it is fiction, not doctrine."

+ — Commonweal 38:588 O 1 '43 800w

"Recommended for all libraries." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 68:724 S 15 '43 70w

"As a lofty message to Christians and Jews, stressing the high ideals of brotherhood and exhibiting the spiritual ties that bind the Christian to the Jew, 'The Apostle' is of extreme value. But as a work of art it is inferior to 'The Nazarene,' and both novels appear somewhat anemic when compared with the author's brilliant and genuine characterization of Jewish life in 'Three Cities.'" Alfred Werner

+ — Nation 158:21 Ja 1 '44 950w

Reviewed by Alfred Kazin

New Repub 109:626 N 1 '43 1300w

"All in all, there can be little doubt that 'The Apostle' will take its place in the great tradition of the heroic novel. Though there is much learning in it, it is as much less 'intellectual' than, say, Thomas Mann's Joseph-novels as it is more intellectual than 'The Robe.' Yet it has much of the intense reader-interest of 'The Robe.' It will appeal to many classes of readers, including thousands who are weary of the implicational methods of much modern fiction." Edward Wagenknecht

+ N Y Times p3 S 19 '43 1300w

"'The Apostle' is a sequel to 'The Nazarene' and, like many sequels, inferior to its predecessor. It is a lesser book, just as Paul, its subject, is a lesser figure than his Master. But compared with the historical novels that pour from the presses, 'The Apostle' is a mature work. It is an act of faith, truly apostolic in its humility and simplicity. . . For me the book is too long and too slow, and I have not the wolfish appetite for theological argument that Paul and his co-workers apparently possessed. But it is impossible not to perceive the monumental quality of 'The Apostle,' not to admire the reverent spirit that produced it and its greater companion book, 'The Nazarene.'" Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 19:90 S 18 '43 650w

"As a tract for the times, 'The Apostle' is a superb success: that is, a man could read it and be repelled both by Israel and the Catholic church, but he could not read it and rationally attempt to combine loyalty to Christendom with repugnance to Israel. What about its merits as a novel? First, 'The Apostle'

ASCH, SHALOM—Continued
is admirable in its main task—the presentation of the central character. . . Then the novel is greatly abundant—almost too abundant—in its depiction of the world, Jewish, Christian, Pagan, in which these heroic people had to work and live. . . A last small point: why in an English translation of a German novel, should we suffer from such pedantry as Bar Naba for Barnabas, Silo for Silas, Rab Istephan for Stephen, Chananyah for Ananias? And if we are to have Yeshua instead of Jesus, why not Yokanaan for John, which is given through the book as Jochanan?" R. E. Roberts
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:17 S 18 '43 700w

"A profound and moving story deserving wide, sympathetic reading." C. D. Kean
+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 19 '43 1850w

"In his new book, 'The Apostle,' Sholem Asch has written a book which should stand beside 'The Nazarene.' Its erudition, its essential reverence for the two faiths concerned, its scholarly and dramatic portrayal of the Jew who spread the gospel to the gentiles will call forth the respect of every civilized and intelligent reader. The story of the life of Paul, as told by Mr. Asch, is one that could be powerfully effective in breaking down the barriers of prejudice and ignorance. For Mr. Asch probes the core of union in all peoples who profess their faith in God." Rose Feld
+ Weekly Book Review p3 S 19 '43 1300w

"Much of this material is interesting; some of it is frightfully dull. Always the learning and detail are overwhelming. Incontestably this is a great achievement. Reading the Book of Acts to see what tiny clues Mr. Asch has expanded into major episodes and what huge gaps in Paul's story he has filled with his own imaginings is a fascinating experience." Orville Prescott
+ — Yale R n s 33:vi autumn '43 600w

ASHBURN, FRANK DAVIS. Primer for parents; 12 to 18—the critical school years. 196p $2.50 Coward-McCann

373 Education, Secondary. Education—U.S. 44-1450

"Written by teacher (headmaster of Brooks School) who seems capable of taking himself out of that role and looking at education from various angles. . . Sketchy history of education; then gives in detail: motives of liberal education; methods suggesting changes; function of American public and independent (private) school." Library J

"Throughout the book an effort has been made to give the parent a better picture of the educational process as a whole; to enable him to estimate present standards of education and decide more wisely the choice he must make for his own child. It is a book to be read with pencil in hand because so many passages are worth marking, worth reading again." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p2 D 19 '43 400w

"This interesting, easy-to-read, slight book should be put in hands of teachers and members of boards of education as well as parents. Young adults could read it to advantage. . . Slightly biased toward liberal arts education and independent schools." E. F. Kelly
+ Library J 68:843 O 15 '43 80w

ASHLEY, ELLEN. Girl in overalls; a novel of women in defense today. 274p $2.50 Dodd 43-11958

Story of modern girl who proved to her old-fashioned mother that working in a bomber factory did not mean that she could not "get her man."

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p20 S 26 '43 120w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p20 S 19 '43 130w

ASHLEY-MONTAGU, MONTAGUE FRANCIS. Man's most dangerous myth: the fallacy of race; with a foreword by Aldous Huxley. 216p $2.25 Columbia univ. press

572 Race. Race problems 42-21794

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"To the current flood of books by Benedict, Hogben, Huxley, and others exposing the false ideas of race being propagated in the modern world, Dr. Montagu, associate professor of anatomy at the Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital in Philadelphia, has contributed one of the most searching and incisive of the briefer analyses yet to appear." L. J. Lee, Jr.
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:168 F '43 850w

Reviewed by E. V. Stonequist
Am Soc R 8:230 Ap '43 550w

"A popular presentation of the biological, psychological, and cultural aspects of the race question in relatively brief compass, with a strong and well-stated humanistic emphasis that will meet widespread response." F. H. Hankins
+ Ann Am Acad 227:191 My '43 700w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:578 Ap '43 20w

"If you know someone who is well educated, humane, intelligent, willing to face facts and without already formed opinions on race differences, you should refer him to this book. He would find it well written, convincing and important in its implications. He would see that there is no basis for belief in the biological superiority of any human group, however widely groups may differ physically and no matter how much individuals may vary." John Storck
+ New Repub 108:484 Ap 12 '43 650w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun
Pol Sci Q 58:450 S '43 550w

"Of the six or eight books in the last ten years which have attempted to debunk the racial hypothesis, this one is probably the most effective. The reviewer nominates it for some kind of prize for promoting better thinking and doing about race." G. B. Johnson
+ Social Forces 21:494 My '43 330w

ASKEW, WILLIAM CLARENCE. Europe and Italy's acquisition of Libya, 1911-1912. 317p $3.50 Duke univ. [21s Cambridge]

961.2 Turco-Italian war, 1911-1912. Libya. Europe—Politics 43-923

"This book on the acquisition of Libya by Italy . . . recalls in a serious and scholarly manner the diplomatic background of the conquest. It discusses European reactions to the Italo-Turkish war, the involvement of the Straits question and the consequent Russian interest in the Libyan problem, the effect on the balance of naval power in the Mediterranean, and the way in which the question was settled because others, more important, were reopened at that same moment." (Geog R) Bibliography. Index.

"Professor Askew deals in a thorough systematic study with one of the relatively neglected events of pre-World War history that has had a fateful postwar significance. The conflict well merits a monograph of this type, where all the important sources are canvassed, including the new Russian documents, and it is doubtful that eventual material from Italian and Turkish archives will materially change the picture here presented." E. C. Helmreich
+ Am Hist R 49:100 O '43 650w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:15 Jl '43 20w

Reviewed by Jean Gottmann
Geog R 33:522 Jl '43 380w

"Strongly recommended for college and large public libraries. Good bibliography." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 67:793 S 15 '42 70w

ASPLEY, JOHN CAMERON, and WHITMORE, EUGENE, eds. Handbook of industrial relations. 1056p il $10 Dartnell corp.

658.3 Industrial relations. Employment management 43-11442

"A reference book which covers practically every phase of personnel work from employment methods to settling labor disputes. Case histories are cited throughout the text." Management R

Library J 68:430 My 15 '43 30w
Management R 32:356 S '43 30w

ASTON, FRANCIS WILLIAM. Mass spectra and isotopes. 2d ed rev 276p il $7 Longmans [22s 6d Arnold, E. & co]

541.2 Isotopes. Spectrum analysis 43-932

"Second edition of a book published in 1933 [Book Review Digest, 1934]. The author (Nobel Laureate Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge) gives much attention to the section on nuclear chemistry, producing the evidence upon which the first International Tables of Stable Isotopes was drawn up in 1936. Also includes a new chapter in which a large number of accurate measurements of mass are tabulated." N Y New Tech Bks

"Rarely does one have the opportunity of having a complete survey of a field so fundamental to both chemistry and physics by the investigator most responsible for its initiation and completion. The work remains classic and indispensable." S. C. Lind
+ J Phys Chem 47:465 Je '43 150w
N Y New Tech Bks 27:57 O '42

"As hundreds of references to original work are given, the book is extremely valuable as a reference text. In our modern age in which physical apparatus has grown more and more complex and correspondingly more expensive, one cannot but marvel at the far reaching results obtained by Dr. Aston with his ruggedly simple spectrographs." A. O. C. Nier
+ R of Scientific Instruments 14:98 Ap '43 300w

ATHENIAN, pseud. See Lavra, S.

ATKINS, GAIUS GLENN, and FAGLEY, FREDERICK LOUIS. History of American Congregationalism. 432p $2 Pilgrim press

285.8 Congregational churches in the U.S. 42-18901

"The authors of this most excellent history of American Congregationalism take full account of its roots and origins—the development of the demand for individual liberty, the passion for a more thorough reformation of the church than the establishment in England, or even in Scotland, was willing to accept, and the rise of both separatist and non-separatist types of Puritanism. . . The book's important contribution is its orderly and accurate presentation of the history of Congregational growth, thought and achievement since the beginning of the federal period." Christian Century

"The wide scope of the work, the discussion of interesting questions, large and small, the accompanying notes, appendixes, and bibliography make this a useful, important, and welcome addition to the library of Congregationalism and a worthy example for historians of other denominations." M. H. Mitchell
+ Am Hist R 48:798 Jl '43 440w

"From many points of view the book by Atkins and Fagley is a very competent history of Congregationalism. . . Despite these qualities, the History of American Congregationalism falls short in other regards." J. M. Yinger
+ — Am Soc R 8:98 F '43 600w

"Dr. Fagley has been associate secretary of the National Council for the past twenty years and is the author of books on both Congregational and general church history. Dr Atkins' comprehensive scholarship and vivacious style are too well known to require praise. Few errors have found admission." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 59:1218 O 7 '42 950w

"Atkins and Fagley have seized upon the form of organization, as the enduring and essential principle of Congregationalism. As practising ministers they have learned the advantages of this particular type of organization. . . Their emphasis is therefore understandable and justifiable, but to this reviewer at least, it seems to elevate an incidental achievement of Congregationalism to a position of first importance. The greatness of the early Congregationalists—and they were great—lay in their faith, not in their organizing ability. For all that, however, the book is certainly the best history of Congregationalism yet to appear and the most readable piece of American church history in many years." E. S. Morgan
+ New Eng Q 16:320 Je '43 950w

ATWATER, MONTGOMERY MEIGS. Ski patrol. 237p $2 Random house

43-5782

Adventure story for older boys. Brad Davis, a young college ski champion, on a winter game patrol in the Rocky mountains with his two young uncles, tracks down and captures a renegade trapper.

"'Ski Patrol' holds a treasure chest of information on wild life and skiing. It is sure to meet the approval of those who enjoy a thrilling story and particularly those who are skiing enthusiasts." Robert Barry
+ Book Week p9 My 23 '43 110w
Booklist 39:390 Je 1 '43

"Not recommended for libraries." Dorotha Dawson
— Library J 68:578 Jl '43 50w

"Although exploits of a college youth seem a bit improbable at times, there is good character portrayal, atmosphere of outdoors is very well done, and there is much interesting information about forest service combined with swiftly moving plot and good adventure. Will be popular with boys from twelve to fifteen. Useful for remedial reading." M. A. Herr
+ — Library J 68:578 Jl '43 130w

"If the United States Forest Service has any medals to bestow it certainly ought to consider Lieutenant Atwater for his books in which he sets forth, without fanfare but with convincing authority, the long-range service which that department renders to the country and the fidelity and courage of its men. He can spin an absorbing yarn too." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p14 Jl 11 '43 240w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p8 Je 6 '43 430w
Wis Lib Bul 39:126 O '43

AUBIN, ROBERT ARNOLD, ed. London in flames, London in glory; poems on the fire and rebuilding of London, 1666-1709. 383p $4.50 Rutgers univ. press

821.08 London—Fire, 1666—Poetry. English poetry—Collections 43-52737

"This is a selection of political odes, addresses and broadsheets on the first Fire of London and the rebuilding that followed, written between 1666 and 1709 and put together by an American editor. Only two poems of importance are omitted; Dryden's lines in Annus Mirabilis and a broadside ballad, London Mourning in Ashes, which had already been edited." New Statesman & Nation

"If this volume is intended for the scholar, it may have some value. To three hundred pages of text and introductions, Aubin has added 70 pages of explanatory notes. This scholarly apparatus is strong but out of proportion to the small value of the verse it illuminates. In defense of effort expended on such a collection, the editor quotes Southey: 'Time does more for books than for wine, it gives worth to what originally was worthless.' It is just possible that Aubin has accepted Southey's thesis too eagerly and has followed it too literally." H. C. C.
Book Week p10 Mr 14 '43 200w

AUBIN, R. A.—Continued

"The result is a nicely bound volume of third-rate verse—for the Fire, it has been said, inspired more bad verse than it destroyed—but this is not to say that the collection is uninteresting. . . The notes by Mr. Aubin to these poems are very rewarding." V. S. Pritchett

+ — New Statesman & Nation 25:309 My 8 '43 1200w

AUGUSTINE, SAINT, bp. of HIPPO. Confessions; tr. by F. J. Sheed. [bks. 1-13] 354p $3 Sheed

242 43-6961

"This new translation, in modern English, includes not only books one to ten, which comprise the autobiography, but also books 11 to 13, a commentary on the first chapter of Genesis." Booklist

"A new translation into modern English, this book makes its chief appeal to the seeker of devotional literature, for it lacks all 'apparatus.' The rendering is so fluent and accurate, however, that for scholarly uses it might well supersede the standard translations if marginal numbers, notes, and thorough index were supplied."

+ Am Soc R 8:623 O '43 50w

Booklist 39:455 Jl 15 '43

"A good translation puts the reader in easy touch with the author's thought, and in this Mr. Sheed succeeds admirably in many difficult passages precisely because he does not strive for elegance of language. The volume is printed in good clear type, and makes a most pleasing appearance. It is especially welcome now that the other editions are unobtainable." E. H. Peters

+ Cath World 158:101 O '43 650w

Christian Century 60:1305 N 10 '43 70w

Reviewed by Robert Fitzgerald

Nation 157:696 D 11 '43 1300w

"This book is not difficult to read. It deals with those elemental simplicities which are the stuff of experience itself. To describe it as theology would be to define Shakespeare's 'Othello' as a textbook in English grammar. For this literature is a kind of blood transfusion—life poured into other lives that they may live—life not of a period alone; the essential life in man that is the same—to quote a phrase otherwise applied—yesterday, today and forever." P. W. Wilson

+ N Y Times p3 My 30 '43 400w

AULAIRE, MRS INGRI (MORTENSON) D', and AULAIRE, EDGAR PARIN D'. Don't count your chicks [il. by the authors]. [40p] $2.50 Doubleday

43-51293

Picture book illustrating Hans Christian Andersen's poem about the old woman who counted her chickens before they were hatched, with disastrous results.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney

Book Week p8 N 14 '43 90w

Booklist 40:81 N 1 '43

"Combines the universal charm of an ancient tale with a style of humor that is unmistakably American."

+ Cath World 158:315 D '43 50w

"'Tops' in our picture book parade is Ingri and Edgar Parin d'Aulaire's delightful book, 'Don't Count Your Chicks,' their finest work, we think, for little children. Thanks be, there is no cause for disappointment due to wartime economy in this generous large-paged book, teeming with fun-provoking, satisfying pictures in color, and a story to match." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 N 15 '43 140w

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 29 '43 70w

"The d'Aulaires have combined a proverb with humorous warmth and imagination."

+ Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 20w

"Particularly recommended for the pictures."

+ Commonweal 39:119 N 19 '43 20w

"The delightful pictures of country life make the book gay and rewarding for the nursery age." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:403 N '43 60w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore

Horn Bk 19:423 N '43 20w

Reviewed by Fritz Eichenberg

Horn Bk 20:17 Ja '44 130w

Reviewed by K. H. McAlarney

Library J 68:962 N 15 '43 70w

"A folk tale brought to new life with excellent pictures, rich in humorous detail." Lena Barksdale

+ Nation 157:591 N 20 '43 10w

"Never has the story been presented with a more enchanting gaiety and a more childlike spirit. Beginning with the delightfully absurd endpaper, continuing with the proud cock and hen who started the train of events, and the old woman gathering her eggs and planning her rosy future, the reader follows the story breathlessly until, in a dramatic climax which children find delightful, basket and eggs go crashing to the ground." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p6 N 14 '43 200w

New Yorker 19:119 D 4 '43 30w

Sat R of Lit 26:25 N 13 '43 140w

"The pictures are robustly funny in spirit and details that children love to pore over. It is a fine book for a child on a dark day." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p7 N 14 '43 380w

AUMENT, HUGH C. Airplane hydraulic systems; their operation and maintenance, a manual for mechanics. 120p il $2.25 Ronald

629.1352 Airplanes—Hydraulic equipment 43-7002

"Manual of operation and maintenance. Questions and answers. Author is instructor in airplane hydraulics, Roosevelt Field." Library J

Book Week p9 Ag 22 '43 50w

Library J 68:430 My 15 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:22 Ap '43

Reviewed by L. S. Marks

N Y Times p16 Jl 25 '43 80w

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p17 Je 13 '43 130w

AUSLANDER, JOSEPH. Unconquerables; salutes to the undying spirit of the Nazi-occupied countries [poems]. 59p $1 Simon & Schuster

811 World war, 1939—Poetry 43-17454

Poems on the second World war, many of them addressed specifically to the countries occupied by Nazi-hordes—Holland, France, Czechoslovakia, Greece. Certain of the poems have been previously published in the Saturday Evening Post, This Week, the New York Times, and the Washington Post.

Reviewed by Sterling North

Book Week p3 Ja 2 '44 400w

Booklist 40:193 F 1 '44

"Of these 'letters,' the one to the French is probably the best known, for it has been quoted often. But others are just as quotable. . . The volume is all of a piece with these 'letters,' all blazing with the bitter flame of war. For this book is the testament of a man who knows that no one can stand aside or aloof in this war on the festering evils of barbarism. These are white-hot words by a poet who knows that 'nothing can be as big as agony.' What he has set down here is a splendid tribute to 'the unconquerables' everywhere." Hal Borland

+ N Y Times p6 D 26 '43 280w

"The jacket of the book states: 'Here is poetry's homage to these men, women—and children—who are playing heroic roles in World War II.' Homage, certainly, but as poetry they leave one unsatisfied. With less haste, with more discipline, with a greater regard for the strict phrase and the inevitable word, Mr. Auslander could without sacrificing any warmth or earnestness of emotion, have written letters more worthy of his noble theme." S. H. Hay

Sat R of Lit 27:34 F 5 '44 850w

" 'The Unconquerables' is more than just one man's tribute to heroic men and women who have withstood unspeakable crimes; it is the expression of thousands of people who have watched these crimes and could do no more than endure them." E. P. Werby
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 9 '44 550w

"The poems are full of movement and color. Certainly they fulfill their purpose. They 'awake the heavy and oblivious heart' to a realization of the heroisms of the common man in all countries who prefers death to slavery; and no one can read them without a quickening of imaginative sympathy and admiration for all those indomitable spirits who, beaten and terrorized, still 'stand and strike back' by every means in their power." Elizabeth Drew
+ Weekly Book Review p10 Ja 23 '44 550w

AUSTEN, FREDERICK WILLIAM. Rectors of two Essex parishes and their times (from the 13th century to the 20th century). 475p il 30s Benham [English publication]

283 Church of England—Clergy A43-1596

"The rector since 1914 of the parishes of Stock and Ramsden Bellhouse in Mid-Essex, has told the story of those parishes from the 13th century down to present times. They are parishes of great antiquity, now united—but formerly, for many centuries, separate parishes. The author has had the happy thought of chronicling these typical English country parishes by telling what is to be told of their Rectors, thus providing side-lights on circumstances and people and manners and customs and incidents of village life throughout about nine centuries. The book thus deals with feudal times, with strange habits of life and thought in the Middle Ages, with the remarkable developments of the Tudor period and the Elizabethan era, and with the eventual though sometimes puzzling happenings of the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries." (Publisher's note) Index.

Manchester Guardian p3 My 7 '43 80w
Times [London] Lit Sup p179 Ap 10 '43 320w

AUSTIN, ALEXANDER BERRY. We landed at dawn; the story of the Dieppe raid. 217p $2 Harcourt [7s 6d Gollancz]

940.542 Dieppe raid, 1942. World war, 1939— Personal narratives, English 43-3297

Account of the training of the British commandos, culminating in the raid on Dieppe on August 19, 1942. The author is a London war correspondent who trained beforehand with the troops, and accompanied them on the raid.

Booklist 39:289 Mr 15 '43

"It required a rather extensive preamble, covering the training of the landing force and the author's experience with it as a visiting newspaperman, to build this story up to book size. But it is a marvelous piece of reporting, swift and vivid."
+ Christian Century 60:268 Mr 3 '43 90w

Reviewed by G. E. Shipler, Jr.
Churchman 157:16 Je 1 '43 100w
Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Ap '43

"The story of the Dieppe raid by the British and Canadian commandos is told in this book with vivid simplicity. Mr. Austin, correspondent of the London Daily Herald, was assigned to various units of the attacking troops and shared in their training; he was as much a part of the raid as any soldier in it; his narrative is tight and objective and pretty much a soldier's story with the additional advantage of his journalist's eye for significant detail." J. G. E. Hopkins
+ Commonweal 37:594 Ap 2 '43 210w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:8 Jl '43 20w
Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 29 '43 150w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield
Nation 156:351 Mr 6 '43 950w

"Mr. Austin tells his story with a warm appreciation of the human qualities of the men who fought and died. He wants his reader to know how they were trained, what they thought and said, how they felt going into battle and how they behaved coming out. This blending of two kinds of reporting, what he saw and felt personally with what he learned but did not witness, is the essence of his book. It adequately fulfills the promise of the subtitle. It is 'the story of the Dieppe raid.' " Craig Thompson
+ N Y Times p5 F 21 '43 1350w

"We like this book best when Mr. Austin turns to his own personal comments. After all, tactics in the field are the affair of the military man. It is stirring to read about heroism, particularly when such action pictures are as well handled as in this book. We are glad to have this author's opinion on the broader strategical and tactical concepts of the task which awaits the forces detailed for the coming invasion of Europe." Murray Harris
+ Sat R of Lit 26:7 F 27 '43 500w

Reviewed by Simon Harcourt-Smith
Spec 170:80 Ja 22 '43 650w

"With obvious restraint cramping him somewhat, Mr Austin has done a fine job of describing that bloody dawn landing." R. L.
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e F 14 '43 440w

"Certainly a book to absorb and make proud any Briton of a proper spirit."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p28 Ja 16 '43 650w

" 'We Landed at Dawn' is different. It is logical and quiet. It is a good text for invasion. Its humor is British. It is a strong book." John Hersey
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Mr 7 '43 480w

AUSTIN, EUGENE MUNGER. Harvest of the spirit. 169p $1.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

248 Christian life 43-2915

Fourteen chapters, or sermons, on the Christian way of life, grouped under the headings: Life lived in comradeship with God; Life lived buoyantly; Life lived with inner security and peace; Life lived with dauntless allegiance. The author is the minister of the Tioga Baptist Church, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Christian Century 60:235 F 24 '43 30w

"What makes a sermon good? Frankly I don't know, and I never knew any one else who (in my judgment) did either. Is it a trace of freshness, a dash of common sense, a modicum of honesty? I hope so. Anyhow, those who like to invest their cash in collections of sermons may well consider this one by a prominent Philadelphia minister." M. S. Enslin
+ Crozer Q 20:174 Ap '43 200w

AUSTIN, MRS MARGOT. Manuel's kite string, and other stories; pictured by [the author]. 112p $1.25 Scribner

43-3660

Five amusing stories for readers in third or fourth grade, or to be read aloud. The first story is about a little Mexican boy with a brand new kite and no string with which to fly it. When he found a piece of red wool and followed it along the ground Manuel both got into trouble, and out of it.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p10 Mr 28 '43 210w
Booklist 39:373 My 15 '43

"Though they lack something of the originality and the very definite charm of the author's 'Peter Churchmouse,' these five stories are gay, amusing little tales for 7 to 9 year olds, and the pictures in black and white have the same innocent drollery and fluent fancy as those in the author's earlier books, the same quiet charm." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p9 Jl 25 '43 210w

AUSTIN, MARGOT—Continued
"The combination of simple text, amusing pictures and happy spirit, makes 'Manuel's Kite String' an ideal book for children from three to seven. Small boys and girls will love every page and picture for Miss Austin is an outstanding story teller and her illustrations are amusing and well done. Her characters will become lovable make believe playmates for youngsters with any imagination." J. P.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 4 '43 130w

"The tales abound in repetition, as tales for the very young should do, and the innocent, lovable little pictures have the charm of babyhood." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Mr 21 '43 280w

Wis Lib Bul 39:124 O '43

AUSTIN, MRS MARGOT. Trumpet; pictured by [the author]. [40p] $1 Dutton
43-10685

The trials and tribulations of Parson Pease-Porridge and the little animals who lived in his church: Gabriel Churchkitten, Peter Churchmouse, and Trumpet Churchdog, the puppy who would howl. For very young children.

"Margot Austin's drawings are as enchanting as ever and children will like Trumpet as whole-heartedly as they have adopted Peter and Gabriel." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 Ag 15 '43 230w

"This third story of the absurd and engaging Peter Churchmouse retains the freshness and spontaneity of the first and the drawings have the same droll fun and childlike imagination." A. T. E.
+ N Y Times p18 N 14 '43 200w

"Children will love it all, especially the delightful drawings. There is no one who can equal Margot Austin in portraying worried-looking animals." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 25 '43 160w

"Its pictures have the sort of absurdity a four-year-old considers the height of humor. It is kind and jolly and I don't wonder babies like it; I think the better of them for doing so." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p7 Ag 15 '43 180w

Wis Lib Bul 39:146 N '43

AVERY, ROBERT. Murder on the downbeat. 256p $2 Arcadia 43-14649

Detective story.

"It is better as a panegyric on jazz than as a detective story." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 O 10 '43 100w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p8 D 19 '43 170w

AVIATION RESEARCH ASSOCIATES, incorporated. Parts of planes; il. by Thomas F. Lubé. (Young America's aviation lib) 64p $1 Harper

629.13 Airplanes—Juvenile literature
43-16630

Elementary text describing some parts of a plane and how they work: the engine, propeller, flight instruments, engine instruments, and navigation instruments. Grades four to seven. Glossary.

Booklist 40:150 D 15 '43

"Basic, non-technical explanations, with diagrams and drawings as understandable as the text."
+ New Yorker 19:134 D 4 '43 20w

AYLING, KEITH. Combat aviation. 253p il $2 Military service

623.74 Aeronautics, Military 43-9305

"Mr. Ayling, a British pilot in World War I, discusses the doctrine of air tactics developed in the present conflict. . . His 'Combat Aviation' does not, however, take in the subject of bombardment, although he discusses at some length the role of ground-air support. Formation for fighters and the way in which the larger ones are controlled, single combat, the principles of aerial guns and interceptions all are subjects upon which he touches." N Y Times

N Y New Tech Bks 28:40 Jl '43

Reviewed by D. W. Dresden
N Y Times p10 Ag 29 '43 160w

AYLING, KEITH. Flying furies; il. by Wallis Rigby. 45p $1.50 Nelson

623.746 Airplanes, Military 42-2528(

A nontechnical description of the military airplanes in use by both sides in this war. Illustrated with full-page plates in color of Hurricanes, Warhawks, Lockheed Lightnings, etc., and with line drawings.

Booklist 39:205 Ja 15 '43

"Slim volume, vividly gotten up, will surely impress itself on young readers. Only one feature to mar it: the black-out marks of censor. Recommended for boys and girls of fourteen up." Alice Vielehr
+ Library J 68:39 Ja 1 '43 80w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 8 '43 240w

AYLING, KEITH. Semper fidelis; the U.S. marines in action. 194p il $2 Houghton

359.96 U.S. Marine corps. World war, 1939— Solomon islands 43-15527

"The United States Marines have fought all over the world and are to be found in action today on sea, land and in the air. Keith Ayling tells their story in graphic terms, describing the desperate exploits of the heroes and aces of Guadalcanal and the heart-breaking stands at Wake Island and Midway. Some of the stories are told in the Marines' own words. Besides these thrilling accounts of daring action, there are chapters on the training and opportunities of the Marine Corps and a sketch of its history." Horn Bk

"If ever a fine book was penned, it is this one." H. B. Fischman
+ Book Week p10 N 14 '43 180w

Booklist 40:116 D 1 '43

"A moving story of the strong picture on the cover, painted under fire at Guadalcanal, is a dramatic accompaniment." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:419 N '43 100w

"Comprehensive, up-to-date and informative, yet quite readable. . . Recommended for older boys if not duplication of material." Evelyn Rosenbaum
+ Library J 68:1051 D 15 '43 60w

AYLING, KEITH. They fly for victory; il. by Grattan Condon. 215p $2.50 Nelson

940.5449 World war, 1939—Aerial operations. Aviators 43-14237

Begins with the aviator heroes of the first World war, and carries the story of aviation to the present. Has stories of the American, British, Canadian, Australian, Polish and Belgian flyers in the present war. For older boys.

"A plain, sincere, yet breathtaking account of the deeds of the heroes of the air who succeeded, where their progenitor, Icarus, failed. It is a book which makes one proud." P. M. Reich
+ Book Week p16 N 21 '43 180w

Booklist 40:116 D 1 '43

"Crammed with information, the book is vividly written and is significant, too, because of Mr. Ayling's stress on the importance of flying in the postwar world, particularly as a means of binding peoples and nations together. Recommended for young people, fourteen to sixteen, and adult readers, too." Elizabeth Burr
+ Library J 68:894 N 1 '43 80w

AYRES, FRANK. Basic mathematics for aviation; with an introd. by Henry E. Smith. 225p $3 Houghton

510 Mathematics 43-5602

"A concise treatment of arithmetic, algebra, geometry, and trigonometry for the aviation student. There is an appendix with instructions for the use of the protractor, which comes with the book. The appendix also contains brief tables of logarithms." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter
Book Week p10 O 3 '43 10w
Library J 68:574 Jl '43 30w
Sat R of Lit 26:33 Ag 21 '43 50w

" 'For a prospective officer candidate, facility in calculations and in clear thinking is nearly as important as courage and good intentions.' A book such as this will help him to acquire that facility." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p36 N 28 '43 150w

B

BABBITT, ARTHUR BRADFORD, and SWARTZ, DAVID J. Mechanical drawing, including blueprint reading. 217p il $1.50; school ed $1.20 Holt

744 Mechanical drawing 42-20916

"Aims to meet the broad requirements of any one- or two-year course in elementary mechanical drawing in the vocational school or junior and senior high school." School & Society

Library J 68:35 Ja 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:7 Ja '43
School & Society 57:195 F 13 '43 30w

BABSON, ROGER WARD. Looking ahead fifty years. 234p $2 Harper

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions. Business conditions—Forecasting. World war, 1939—Influence and results 42-25089

"A well-known prognosticator of business and financial conditions tries to anticipate developments of the next fifty years in business, economics and education." (Cleveland Open Shelf) Index.

"In addition to a general looseness of thought, many extreme views are found. It is held that 20 per cent of the people are unemployable because of the fifteen billion dollars spent on liquor, gambling, and the like (p. 150). It is asserted that in no case does labor union activity raise the real wages of workers (p. 177). The unfit (Democrats) multiply more rapidly than the fit (Republicans) (p. 152). Even more serious than the careless views indicated above is the utter failure to come to grips with the momentous problems of the future. There is no adequate discussion of the savings-investment-capital formation problem. On the whole, the book was disappointing." J. F. Cronin
— Ann Am Acad 226:186 Mr '43 360w
Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:582 Ap '43 20w

BACHE, CAROL. Paradox isle. 183p $2.50 Knopf

915.2 Japan—Social life and customs 43-17463

Essays and anecdotes on the author's experiences during her fourteen years of residence in Japan, where she was employed by the Military intelligence division of the General staff from 1928 to December 1941.

Booklist 40:181 Ja 15 '44

"Carrie M'Mahon has written a book about the Japanese. She is known as Carol Bache to the readers of The Atlantic Monthly, as Carrie MacMahon to the even wider circle of Americans and Europeans who knew her in Tokyo. Both groups will be happy to be told that the book is a good one. . . You will find little about war in these pages but you may, perhaps, acquire an understanding of Japanese character which you could never achieve from more pretentious works. Guileless little people are easily led little people, the natural prey of power-greedy militarists." Burton Crane
+ N Y Times p4 D 19 '43 650w

"Miss Bache's delightfully written essays are far more personal and entertaining than an abstract of her findings can be. . . Such a one is bound to introduce into her impressions of 'Paradox Isle' that indispensable human touch which enables you thoroughly to enjoy reading what she has to report." F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p4 D 5 '43 950w

BACHMANN, ERNEST THEODORE. They called him father; the life story of John Christian Frederick Heyer. 342p $1.75 United Lutheran pub.

B or 92 Heyer, John Christian Frederick 42-8523

"This volume was written in connection with the celebration in 1941 of the centennial of the American Lutheran Mission in India. It is the biography of 'Father' John Christian Frederick Heyer (1793-1873), who instituted his church's work in India and otherwise had a prominent share in the extension of Lutheranism in Pennsylvania and Minnesota." Am Hist R

"The study is objective, never sentimental. There is in it even a faint note of gentle cynicism now and then. . . A little adverse criticism might be indulged in, for the author seems not to know his India too well, even while he uses his sources faithfully. Among the more serious slips are allusions to Sanskrit as the 'oldest' language of India, to the pariahs as a 'caste,' and to an 'incarnation of the deity Siva.' Nevertheless, the book has color and charm in Heyer's own personality." J. C. Archer
+ — Am Hist R 48:389 Ja '43 210w

"Well written biography."
+ Christian Century 59:433 Ap 1 '42 70w

BAEZA, WALTER J. Course in powder metallurgy. 212p il $3.50 Reinhold

669 Metals, Powdered 43-6130

"A college text covering the bare essentials of a subject still in the early stages of its development. The inclusion of fifteen experiments enhances the book's usefulness as a teaching aid. The author is President of the Industrial Research Company." N Y New Tech Bks

"This little volume will be found useful as an elementary treatise by those who have recently become interested in this new field and desire general background information about its applications." Alexander Squire
+ Chem & Met Eng 50:203 S '43 200w
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Jl '43
Library J 68:289 Ap 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:30 Ap '43

Reviewed by C. M. Cosman
N Y Times p37 O 3 '43 600w

BAGLEY, WILLIAM CHANDLER. Soil exhaustion and the Civil war. 101p $2; pa $1.50 Am. council on public affairs

631.45 U.S.—History—Civil war—Causes. Soils—U.S. 42-17211

"The thesis put forward in this monograph is that soil exhaustion was a primary factor in producing the American Civil War. The author bases his contentions on the fact that southern soils were always subject to heavy depletion, on the theory that slavery prevented the use of conserving methods, and on the supposition that northern curtailment of slavery expansion brought the sections into conflict." J Pol Econ

Reviewed by R. B. Vance
— Am Hist R 49:159 O '43 300w

BAGLEY, W. C.—Continued

"The thesis breaks down at every point. It shows the danger in attempting to explain a movement as complicated as the coming of the Civil War by any single force or group of forces. It also shows the danger of attempting to write history without an adequate knowledge of facts." Avery Craven

— J Pol Econ 50:790 O '42 390w

BAGNOLD, RALPH ALGER. The physics of blown sand and desert dunes; with 16 pl and 84 diagrams in the text. 266p $5 Morrow [24s Methuen]

551.37 Sand dunes. Winds 43-2340

"Lieut.-Colonel Bagnold is well known for his scientific publications on desert sands and dunes, and for a book describing his travels in the Egyptian and Libyan Deserts. The present book combines these papers and much other original research into one comprehensive volume. . . The contents of the book are divided into three sections dealing respectively with the physics of grain movement, small-scale effects such as surface ripples and ridges, and large-scale dunes." Nature

---

"Bagnold's book is to be recommended alike to the geomorphologist, the sedimentary petrologist, and the engineer concerned with controlling sand movement and soil erosion by wind. Those accustomed to the purely naturalistic approach to earth science may find the vocabulary unfamiliar and the method of attack somewhat disconcerting, but, if they are discerning, they cannot fail to appreciate the new possibilities thus opened." H. T. U. Smith

+ Geog R 33:170 Ja '43 1450w
Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 30w

"Apart from its specific applications to definite problems, the general reader will be rewarded with a fascinating description of a natural phenomenon which appeals strongly to the imagination." H. Heywood

+ Nature 148:480 O 25 '41 900w

N Y New Tech Bks 27:55 O '42

"Very important treatise."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:4 Ja '43 330w

"This book is a real contribution to a previously ill-explored subject."

+ Spec 167:318 S 26 '41 260w

"The book is so lucidly written that it may be recommended confidently to lay readers as well as to specialists as an enjoyable account of important scientific research."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p362 Jl 26 '41 450w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p22 F 28 '43 100w

BAILEY, ALBERT EDWARD. Daily life in Bible times. 360p il maps $3 Scribner

220.93 Palestine—Social life and customs. Bible. Whole—Antiquities 43-15531

"How did the Biblical characters live? In what sort of homes? What did they wear? How did they eat? . . All these questions and many others Dr. Bailey answers. Since 'Bible times' covers a period from the very beginnings until well into our second century, his book describes many different eras and a multitude of places: Palestine, early Mesopotamia, Egypt, Syria, Babylonia, Antioch, Alexandria, the Roman Empire and Rome itself." Churchman

---

"The illustrations are numerous and good. On the whole the book makes interesting and instructive reading. It lacks the scientific precision of works by professional archeologists and Orientalists, but in a general way it is accurate and up to date." W. F. Stinespring

Christian Century 60:1401 D 1 '43 800w

"The book is written in popular style, and is profusely illustrated. It provides the reader with a veritable mine of authentic information on the background of the Scriptures." T. L. L.

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 18 '43 600w

"Unfailing accuracy in a work of this sort is probably not within human reach; there are occasional misstatements of fact and now and then a tendency to over-modernize, but these are minor blemishes. Dr. Bailey speaks not only from a thorough familiarity with the relevant literature but from wide personal acquaintance with the sites. Bibliography and index are excellent." B. S. E.

+ Churchman 157:14 D 1 '43 210w

Reviewed by I. G. Matthews
Crozer Q 21:90 Ja '44 150w

Wis Lib Bul 40:5 Ja '44

BAILEY, MRS BERNADINE (FREEMAN). The youngest WAAC; il. by Connie Moran. 269p $2 Messner

43-10690

Terry at twenty-one was just out of college and a little frivolous and spoiled. She joins the WAACS and goes to Fort Des Moines for her training, and gradually becomes accustomed to the discipline and happy too. For older girls.

"Bernadine Bailey is one of Chicago's best-known writers for young people. In 'The Youngest Waac' she has done an extremely creditable job of presenting an accurate and intimate picture of what life is like among the Waacs and in telling a good story at the same time." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p6 Jl 25 '43 340w

"Little actual plot, but many details of life of a WAAC. Seems made to order, to meet current interest. Not recommended." E. A. Groves

— Library J 68:730 S 15 '43 70w

"Easier reading and not so packed with information as Bars on Her Shoulders, by Stansbury. For girls thirteen to fifteen. Timely; of temporary value." Eleanor Kidder

+ Library J 68:730 S 15 '43 70w

BAILEY, FRANK EDGAR. British policy and the Turkish reform movement; a study in Anglo-Turkish relations, 1826-1853. 312p $3.50 Harvard univ. press

327.496 Turkey—Foreign relations—Great Britain. Great Britain—Foreign relations—Turkey A43-554

"[This work] represents a first attempt to approach the history of the early Turkish Reform Movement from the viewpoint of how far the sultans and other Turkish promoters of the Reform Movement were influenced by Western inspirations. . . The outlook of the present volume is necessarily specialized, inasmuch as it presents primarily the British side of the story and hardly the Turkish one, and also inasmuch as it does not and cannot deal with the French, Austrian, Prussian, and Russian checks and stimulations that were operating at the same time. A far-reaching topic is thus brought into small compass." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by V. J. Puryear
Am Hist R 48:786 Jl '43 500w

Reviewed by W. J. Cahnman
Am Pol Sci R 37:561 Je '43 450w

Reviewed by H. N. Howard
Ann Am Acad 227:164 My '43 360w

BAILEY, HENRY CHRISTOPHER. Mr Fortune finds a pig. 269p $2 Doubleday [8s 6d Gollancz]

43-51151

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p10 Ap 11 '43 230w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p8 Je 27 '43 30w

Booklist 39:369 My 15 '43

Bookmark 4:20 Mr '43

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 25:212 Mr 27 '43 30w

"Dialogue cryptic but amusing; sleuthing to match Reggie Fortune's previous performances." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p10 Ap 11 '43 130w

"Nice detecting, and cheerful, too."

+ New Yorker 19:84 Ap 17 '43 80w

"First class yarn, brimming with action and admirable sleuthing."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:54 Ap 17 '43 40w

" 'Mr Fortune Finds a Pig' is replete with Reggie's usual clipped witticisms, and all goes well until the author botches up his plot with Druidism, witchcraft and sacrificial altars. Less hocus-pocus and more clarity would have made a better mystery." L. S. M.

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 11 '43 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p129 Mr 13 '43 150w

"Its a fast, exciting yarn with top-drawer detectivism and a slightly top-heavy secret, easily the pick of the week's offerings." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p16 Ap 4 '43 250w

BAILEY, NEIL PHILLIPS. Principles of heat engineering. 264p il $2.75 Wiley

536 Heat 42-23278

"An over-all picture of the conversion of heat into useful work, from the introduction of the fundamentals to applications in compressors, internal-combustion engines, steam-power engineering and refrigeration." (Books) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 28:8 Ja '43

"Probably the best short treatise on the transformation and transfer of heat. . . The author's viewpoint is more that of a physicist than of an engineer and the book is an excellent foundation for students in heat engineering. From it they will obtain a modern view of this important subject." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p22 Ap 18 '43 130w

BAILEY, NORMAN R. Motion study for the supervisor. 111p $1.25 McGraw

658.542 Motion study 42-51095

Simply worded explanation of the fundamental principles of motion study for the foreman. Author is Wage Standards Engineer, Kodak Works, Eastman Kodak Company.

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '43

" 'Motion Study for the Supervisor' the author carefully explains, is not intended to make the supervisor himself a motion-study expert. Rather is it intended to give him a proper appreciation of that expert's work, so they will not conflict, but will function smoothly together." James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p25 Mr 28 '43 220w

BAILEY, THOMAS ANDREW. Policy of the United States toward the neutrals, 1917-1918. 520p maps $3.50 Johns Hopkins press

940.32273 European war, 1914-1918—U.S. U.S.—Foreign relations. Neutrality 42-25074

"The volume comprising the Albert Shaw Lectures on diplomatic history for 1941 . . . corrects the impression which some may have had that, after the United States became a belligerent in 1917, this country, inconsistently with the course it had followed as a neutral, disregarded in a sweeping and ruthless fashion the legal rights of neutral states. Professor Bailey makes it clear that he has written a history of policy and has not attempted to analyze the machinery through which the United States sought to carry out that policy. He has not undertaken to draw analogies between the other world war and the present one. He has given special attention to the idealism of President Wilson as it found expression in consideration for neutral states." Am Pol Sci R

"This is an excellent book. It is based on a thorough perusal of the relevant official material and on personal information obtained by the author from those who participated in the shaping and the execution of the policy toward the neutrals in the first World War." A. N. Sack

+ Am Hist R 48:833 Jl '43 490w

"A valuable contribution to the literature on the diplomacy of the World War of 1914-18." R. R. Wilson

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:337 Ap '43 800w

"These lectures combine a historical development of their subject matter with a treatise on numerous aspects of the law of nations. They are comprehensive in their scope, and yet as readable as their rather impersonal and even ponderous theme permits." L. M. Sears

+ Ann Am Acad 226:172 Mr '43 450w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:581 Ap '43 20w

"Professor Bailey's book has a double interest unusual in so solid an academic production. It is first of all a valuable contribution to the history of the last war and of American participation in it. But it has also a special interest for us to-day, when the very notion of neutral is questioned, when the practice of being a neutral involves far more tightrope walking than it did between 1914 and 1918, and when the revolutionary character of the present war has resulted in the reversal of the parts of many of the actors of the original play." D. W. B.

Manchester Guardian p3 My 28 '43 250w

"One valuable part of the volume deals with the negotiation of trade agreements between the United States and various neutrals. The material is full and illuminating with regard to these matters and should be of great interest to students of wartime economy. It makes remarkably good background reading for an understanding of the export control work in the present war. The book should add to the excellent reputation of its author." B. H. Williams

+ Pol Sci Q 58:278 Je '43 500w

BAILLIE, JOHN. Invitation to pilgrimage. 134p $1.50 Scribner [5s Oxford]

239 Christianity—Evidences 42-24529

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"To the thoughtful man of today, and especially to him who has lost his faith, Dr. Baillie offers this book as a Christian apologetic. It is so readable and timely that it cannot but commend itself." J. H. Titus

+ Churchman 157:15 Mr 1 '43 240w

"Much of the charm and relevance of Dr Baillie's book lies in the use he makes of his own spiritual experience. Like St Paul, he is very conscious of a conflict or tension in his own life which cannot otherwise be explained than as a struggle between his own will and the will of God. Apart from God, the moral and spiritual life of man is quite meaningless." W. B. Selbie

+ Hibbert J 41:182 Ja '43 1100w

"Invitation to Pilgrimage will give stout hearts to anxious preachers facing 1943 or, for that matter, to preachers facing any other year to come. Here is not only an invitation to a journey but courage for its undertaking." Gerald Knoff

+ J Religion 23:150 Ap '43 200w

BAIN, LESLIE BALOGH. Chaos or peace. 150p $2 Mill

940.53144 Reconstruction (1939-) 43-17540

A discussion of some of the problems which the United Nations will face after the defeat of Hitler. Contents: When tomorrow comes; Cleaning up the debris; Plans and planners; The problem of boundaries; The needs of a world democracy; Toward a new economy; After imperialism—what? Post-war fascism; Chaos or peace?

Christian Century 61:20 Ja 5 '44 50w

BAIN, L. B.—Continued
"Short, well-organized, logical contribution to the literature of the postwar world." Margaret Owen
+ Library J 68:957 N 15 '43 90w

BAIN, LESLIE BALOGH. War of confusion. 155p $2 Mill

940.53 World war, 1939—Causes. World politics 42-51200

Survey of the causes of the present war. The author, a radio news commentator and foreign correspondent, considers the divided loyalties and confused objectives of the nations at war; their comparative strengths, and the types of strategy now being employed.

"The undertaking is praiseworthy and [the authors] conclusions are not to be challenged. Mr. Bain's own analysis is competent but pedestrian and may not appeal to those who seek a nutshell explanation of what is going on."
Books p20 Ja 24 '43 300w

"Thoroughly intelligent survey."
+ Christian Century 60:82 Ja 20 '43 40w

"The weakness of this book lies in its inadequate presentation of the nature of the ideological conflict that underlies the war and, since Mr. Bain sets out to examine some of the reasons for the confusion which attends the present conflict, there is the more cause to regret that, in his otherwise commendable book, he did not delve more deeply into his determining aspect of it. This is a valuable book, more for what it does than for what it leaves undone." W. C. Kernan
+ — Churchman 157:15 Mr 1 '43 300w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:7 Jl '43 20w

BAINTON, ROLAND HERBERT. George Lincoln Burr, his life. See Burr, G. L. George Lincoln Burr

BAIRD, ALBERT CRAIG, ed. Representative American speeches: 1942-1943. (Reference shelf) 319p $1.25 Wilson, H.W.

815 Speeches, addresses, etc. (38-27962)

Partial contents: American war aims, by C. J. H. Hayes; What are we fighting for?, by Eduard Beneš; The menace of Japan, by J. C. Grew; Japan is first United States foe, by Madame Chiang Kai-shek; America's part in world reconstruction, by H. A. Wallace; Economic freedom for the world, by W. L. Willkie; America and Great Britain in the postwar world, by Anthony Eden; Lidice, by W. L. Willkie; Those incredible Russians, by Frazier Hunt; The war against inflation, by J. F. Byrnes; Truths that inspired Washington, by F. D. Roosevelt; The university in war and peace, by R. M. Hutchins; This nation under God, by R. W. Sockman; Faith of our fathers, by E. D. Jones; Judgment of nations, by F. J. Sheen. Biographical notes. Index. Cumulative author index, 1937-38 to 1942-43.

Booklist 40:148 D 15 '43
Christian Century 60:1474 D 15 '43 50w

BAIRNSFATHER, BRUCE. Jeeps and jests [with a foreword by Russell P. Hartle]. [112p] $2 Putnam

940.5497 World war, 1939—Humor, caricatures, etc. 43-51196

Collection of cartoons and drawings by the English cartoonist, creator of Old Bill. The present collection has a few evidences of Old Bill doing his bit in World war II, but mainly it shows the troubles of the American boys in Ireland and North Africa. The foreword is by the commanding officer of the AEF in Ireland.

"Bairnsfather's hand has lost none of its skill, and his 'old sea lion' is as salty as ever." Jack Conroy
+ Book Week p4 Je 27 '43 160w
Booklist 39:442 Jl 1 '43

"The Bairnsfather of 1918 has lost none of his keen power of observation or deftness. Yet, as we turn the pages, we are aware that something has changed. These boys, with their tanks and field radios, jeeps and planes, strike us as an abler and more self-sufficient lot. Instead of being frustrated by their environment, they give us the impression of having the situation well in hand. In short, they are not quite so funny as we remember ourselves to have been. . . So we welcome 'Jeeps and Jests' as we welcomed Private Hargrove and as we will welcome any book which resolves that curious entity known as the armed forces into the sensitive, bewildered, helpless and essentially human beings which compose it." Edward Streeter
+ — N Y Times p3 Je 27 '43 550w

"Fairly corny, by present sedate standards, but a half-dozen of the more satirical pictures are right on the nose."
New Yorker 19:71 Je 26 '43 50w
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 27 '43 110w

"A mighty busy man, Major General Russell P. Hartle, U. S. A., who commanded the American troops in Northern Ireland, found time to write a tribute to Bairnsfather's rare and humorous insight and to note that in future days records such as this would always draw a chuckle from the American soldiers who were there. Many of the sketches have appeared in the Army paper 'Stars and Stripes,' for which Bairnsfather is an accredited war corespondent." R. F. Crandell
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Je 27 '43 600w

BAKELESS, JOHN EDWIN. Tragicall history of Christopher Marlowe. 2v 375;432p il $7.50 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Marlowe, Christopher A42-5396

For descriptive note see Annual 1942.

"The most prominent virtue of this work appears to be its completeness. In a practical enterprise, however, completeness cannot be separated from a sense of proportion and even from the law of diminishing returns. . . A lack of proportion seems to run through the book, with unnecessary amplification of detail at some points and insufficient detail at others." M. E. Prior
— + Mod Philol 41:61 Ag '43 3150w

"The blurb forces the issue: John Bakeless has brought us the latest word, if not the last. He has already contributed a doctoral dissertation and a popular biography. The present work synthesizes the magpie scholarship of his thesis with the glib journalism of his earlier book. It cannot be said to do justice to its subject, or even to justify the various academic auspices under which it appears. Yet it is a typical product of our willingness to accept sheer enterprise as the ersatz for historical knowledge and critical insight." Harry Levin
— + New Repub 108:260 F 22 '43 1400w

"The book is definitive in a double sense. It is a final summary of Marlowe scholarship to date and it may well define a watershed in literary activity. One questions whether any large number of books of this nature will henceforth be produced on the English classics as we know them. Even scholars in the future may have the right to expect that books on poets shall be interpretative and not mere summaries of periodical material. The two volumes afford an imposing monument to a living poet and to a dying method." H. W. Wells
+ Sat R of Lit 26:10 F 6 '43 950w

"It is a life-work which has taken Dr. Bakeless almost as long to complete as Kit Marlowe to live and it will serve as the definitive study of that meteoric genius for many years to come."
+ Theatre Arts 27:259 Ap '43 280w

"This is, indeed, a monumental work, a biography, so to speak, to end biographies of Marlowe, a synthesis of all the new information accumulated by research workers during the last two decades. The foundation of sound, modern criticism of Marlowe was laid by John H. Ingram nearly forty years ago, but his biography was superseded when remarkable fresh discoveries were made in the 1920's. . . A bibliography notable for its length, exhaustiveness and admirable organization rounds out a work of scholarship which, it is safe to say, will be impressive for many years—unless as is possible, the Record Office and university and parish archives and family papers contain yet other documents awaiting the patient, mole-like activities of the investigators." S. C. Chew

+ Weekly Book Review p21 Mr 14 '43 1200w

"In reproducing printed material, Mr. Bakeless seems to have been very accurate. So much cannot, however, be said for his original treatment of manuscript sources. A better acquaintance with Elizabethan handwriting would have saved him from pitfalls; and it is unfortunate that he did not uniformly examine the original State Papers instead of relying on the Calendars, some of which are notoriously incomplete and even misleading in their summaries of documents." Leslie Hotson

Yale R n s 32:801 summer '43 900w

BAKER, DOROTHY (DODDS) (MRS HOWARD BAKER). Trio. 234p $2.50 Houghton

43-9798

The trio is composed of a brilliant French woman, professor in an American university; a beautiful young American student who is completely in the older woman's power; and a young man who is in love with the younger woman. The girl attempts to escape from her unhappy situation in order to marry the boy, and the end comes in an unexpected way.

"The story is familiar and unpleasant; the treatment here is skillful."

Atlantic 172:123 Ag '43 100w

"Orchids for Mrs. Baker. But it must also be remembered that orchids are parasitical." Sterling North

Book Week p3 Jl 11 '43 550w

Booklist 39:463 Jl 15 '43

"May become popular, but it is anything but pleasant and the abnormality will offend many." L. M. Kinloch

Library J 68:530 Je 15 '43 60w

"I find this a pleasant progression in a young writer, from jazz musicians to teachers of French literature, and I wish Mrs. Baker could have made the advance with both feet and a fully adventuring intellect. But it is precisely as a novel of the mind that 'Trio' fails, and quite despite Mrs. Baker's intention and craft. It is an enormously readable book, swift and tight, polished to the point of brilliance, and plotted with the kind of dramatic suspense which makes it impossible, once you have opened to its first page, to put it down again without racing through to the end. And yet, almost in the measure that we are seduced by Mrs. Baker's craft, we feel betrayed, finally, by the essential poverty of her thought." Diana Trilling

+ — Nation 157:51 Jl 10 '43 750w

"Instead of a novel, Mrs. Baker has written a very competent problem play, whose function is not, after all, to illuminate problems so much as to supply answers." Marjorie Farber

New Repub 109:116 Jl 26 '43 240w

"'Trio' represents an advance over 'Young Man With a Horn' in sheer technical virtuosity. But, all in all, it is a less impressive human document than Mrs. Baker's first novel, and it suffers from certain limitations which mark this entire group of literary craftsmen. The complex people in 'Trio' are handled well; a rather difficult theme is treated honestly; there are fresh descriptive passages in the entertaining, semi-tough prose that Mrs. Baker manages so efficiently. Yet everything in 'Trio' is a little too efficient, even a little too skillful." Maxwell Geismar

N Y Times p6 Jl 4 '43 700w

"The theme of her new book, 'Trio,' is the struggle within the heart of a young girl between the attractions of a fresh and normal love and the tyrannous claims of a Lesbian attachment. This theme happens to bore me, but my prejudices are overcome by Miss Baker's superb craftsmanship. . . The form of 'Trio' is beautiful. I should add that the theme is treated with perfect respect, cleanliness, and understanding, with not even a drop of sensationalism. The tensions that are born and grow among the three main characters are rendered with great control, and they lead inevitably to the violent climax, which in other hands might have been melodrama. An admirable book." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 19:62 Jl 10 '43 320w

"Mrs. Baker's novel is a beautiful fragment of work. It is not successful, not any sort of consummation, yet it has the qualities of art in it and serves to remind us how long we have been waiting for something else by the writer of 'Young Man with a Horn.' . . Why, then, is this not a whole or satisfying work? It is not, first, because it suffers from the distortions and limitations of a theatrical approach. . . And, second, Mrs. Baker has refused to come to any grips at all with her theme." N. L. Rothman

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:11 Jl 31 '43 550w

"The tight, hard confines of 'Trio' appear too narrow and unambitious for the skill with which the novel is written. . . Following the orderly classic outlines of a well-written play, the book represents the able handling of a difficult theme." J. K.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 18 '43 300w

Time 42:100 Jl 12 '43 480w

"In its genre, 'Trio' is a notable book. The portraits of the two women, the one scintillating and depraved, the other hypnotized and struggling, are deep with light and shadow. So is that of the boy who, though in love with the girl, is powerless in his instinctive reaction of revulsion. Now that Mrs. Baker has finished this novel which demanded to be written, as some novels do, I hope she will go on to something that will be of the same stature and appeal as her first book." Rose Feld

+ — Weekly Book Review p4 Jl 11 '43 650w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott

Yale R n s 33:xii autumn '43 200w

BAKER, EUSTACE THURMAN. Home veterinarian's handbook; a guide for handling emergencies in farm animals and poultry. 191p il $2.50 Macmillan

636.089 Veterinary medicine 43-5457

"A book on how to treat minor ailments and what to do in emergencies before the veterinarian arrives. Follows an alphabetical arrangement and is fully illustrated." (Wis Lib Bul) Index.

Booklist 39:421 Je 15 '43

Wis Lib Bul 39:105 Jl '43

BAKER, FRANK. Sweet chariot. 335p $2.50 Coward-McCann [9s Eyre]

43-4732

A fantasy with a realistic setting. The story relates how Mr. Spillett, English schoolmaster, met his guardian angel, Melchior; how they exchanged places and what happened in consequence.

Booklist 39:368 My 15 '43

"Excellent escape for war-torn world." J. M. Flexner

+ Library J 68:248 Mr 15 '43 100w

"Sweet Chariot is something in the nature of a parable, a witty and engaging romance with an implicit spiritual meaning." Wilfrid Gibson

+ Manchester Guardian p3 O 23 '42 90w

"Through all the fantastic happenings a keen sense of humor runs merrily. . . 'Sweet Chariot' is a charming and stimulating story, with no straining for the whimsical or over-quaint, which might so easily have spoiled it. Frank Baker tells an extravagant yarn with the sober realism of a well-documented historical novel." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p14 Mr 14 '43 1000w

"Rather long-winded but original fantasy. . . Mr. Baker makes the involvements sound probable, comic, and touching. You may, though, find him too pious and moralistic."

+ — New Yorker 19:70 Mr 20 '43 40w

BAKER, FRANK—Continued

"It is a familiar situation, one that has attracted many writers, for basic ideas for fantasy stories are notoriously scarce, so that the good ones must, of necessity, be used again and again. The thought of having an angel come down to earth to mingle with men has far-reaching possibilities and inevitable comic aspects. It is to Frank Baker's credit that he has imbued an old tale with new life and made it a delight to read." P. V. Stern

+ Sat R of Lit 26:13 Ap 3 '43 700w

Reviewed by Kate O'Brien

Spec 169:464 N 13 '42 100w

"'Sweet Chariot' is not everybody's book, nor is it as carefully considered as most of Mr. Baker's previous work, but there will certainly be a few readers who having lingeringly turned the last page, will find a place for the book on their own shelves as one to be read again and not lightly given away."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p545 N 7 '42 240w

"Mr. Baker has an imagination with music in it, and his book is constructed as richly as a symphony." L. T. Nicholl

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Mr 21 '43 1100w

BAKER, HAROLD VERNON. Children's contributions in elementary school general discussion. 150p $1.85 Teachers college

372 Discussion. Child study. Education of children 42-50685

"[Records] the changes that occur in the mental and the social orientation of children during the elementary-school years. . . Systematic records were kept of contributions made by the children during discussion periods. Although the discussions took place within the classroom and in the presence of the regular classroom teachers, there was a minimum of adult direction and participation. An attempt was made to have the discussion as 'free' as such activities can be in a classroom situation." El School J

Reviewed by S. B. Marks

El School J 43:433 Mr '43 700w

"This study makes an important addition to recognized changes that occur in the mental and social orientation of children during the elementary school years."

+ School & Society 56:104 Ag 1 '42 20w

BAKER, JOHN RANDAL. Scientific life. 154p $2.50 Macmillan [7s 6d Allen, G]

500 Science [A42-3828]

"This book is intended to reveal the special characteristics of the scientific mind and the nature of scientists as people, and to warn against the regimentation of society along lines that would lead to the decay of both science and technology. Dr. Baker is Lecturer in Zoology in the University of Oxford, and a few years ago collaborated with J. B. S. Haldane in the writing of 'Biology in Everyday Life.' Here he presents a most valuable critique of the mental habits and personal traits of successful scientists, with numerous anecdotal illustrations and some very pertinent comments on the drift toward totalitarianism in many phases of modern life." Scientific Bk Club R

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 30w

"We have recently been presented with many brilliant popular writings illustrating the effects of scientific discovery on society. This aspect has been overemphasised to the serious danger of pure science, the position of which becomes precarious once its value is seen mainly in this light. Dr. Baker has made a strong beginning to redress the balance. His vivid and enlightening account of the life and work of a number of great scientists may be read with pleasure for the sake of its intrinsic interest. But beyond that it provides a new guide to the central ideas of science, much blurred by recent materialistic interpretations. Best of all, the book is as simple and human as it is penetrating and conclusive." M. Polanyi

+ Manchester Guardian p3 S 4 '42 200w

"Dr. Baker's assertions that the planning of discovery is impossible, that scientists are unfitted to take part in politics, that they need not use more apparatus than can be carried on a butler's tray, etc., might have had some truth in the eighteenth century. But to-day they merely confirm scientists, in an outmoded and false opinion of their role, and statesmen and people in their opinion of the triviality of science." J. G. Crowther

New Statesman & Nation 24:114 Ag 15 '42 550w

N Y New Tech Bks 27:60 O '42

"It seems to this reviewer that Dr. Baker has missed the point of the recent writings of J. D. Bernal, J. G. Crowther and others, whom he blasts with scathing sarcasm, and it is doubtful whether he has read Mannheim's 'Man and Society in an Age of Reconstruction,' as he might well have done. He makes no distinction between 'liberty' and 'freedom,' such as Borgese has so aptly made. Instead of planning for freedom in an age of planning, he fires a shotgun at all planners. The result is a book that will undoubtedly be a stimulus to thinking along constructive lines as we seek to preserve and extend the values of science in an increasingly organized society, but it will by no means be the last word about the way in which that desirable objective is to be attained."

+ — Scientific Bk Club R 14:2 Jl '43 420w

"I believe that John Baker's book will also do a tremendous amount of good. It will arouse criticism and discussion on a subject that was in danger of being forgotten—the role of the scientist as a person. So much has been said about what 'science' can or should do that it is time critics gave attention to 'scientists as people,' as he puts it. Meanwhile people must work, and plan, so that Dr. Baker and his colleagues can conduct their unplanned research." James Fisher

+ — Spec 169:220 S 4 '42 380w

Times [London] Lit Sup p292 Je 13 '42 650w

BAKER, MRS LAURA NELSON. Wanted: women in war industry; the complete guide to a war factory job; with an introd. by Elinore M. Herrick. 215p il $2.50 Dutton

331.4 Woman—Employment. World war, 1939—Women's work 43-6501

Guide to factory work for women, describing the hows and whats for women who want to work in defense plants. Partial contents: How to get a job; How to get your training; Work in a factory and like it! Safe, comfortable jobs; What the well dressed worker wears; Riveting; Welding; Sewing; Inspection; A future in aircraft; If you have a trade or profession. Index.

Book Week p5 Je 27 '43 160w

Booklist 39:420 Je 15 '43

"A reliable and clearly written handbook. . . Those of you with good intentions but little information about finding your niche in the war effort would do well to heed Mrs. Baker's words of wisdom. . . The author has glamorized war jobs to some extent, principally in her emphasis on the atmosphere of camaraderie that exists among the workers. Parts of the book are repetitious and clutter up its purpose. . . But since the importance of womanpower has never been so vital as it is today, and since the need for it is increasing constantly, any book that can help women to allocate and acclimate themselves to factory work is worth any woman's time to read." Caroline Butts

+ — Boston Globe p18 My 19 '43 300w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '43

Library J 68:211 Mr 1 '43 10w

Reviewed by Lucy Greenbaum

N Y Times p16 Ag 1 '43 220w

Springf'd Republican p6 N 26 '43 60w

"Mrs. Baker's book is a timely, informative manual for women who want to join the ranks of those already at work." Philadelphia Carpenter

+ Survey 79:252 S '43 350w

Wis Lib Bul 39:82 Je '43

BAKER, MRS NINA (BROWN). Peter the Great; il. by Louis Slobodkin. 310p $2.50 Vanguard

B or 92 Peter I, the Great, emperor of Russia—Juvenile literature 43-16826

Fictionized biography of Peter the Great, Czar of Russia, written for junior and senior high schools. Bibliography. Index.

"This story of Peter the Great is a thick, solid book, but it is lively and entertaining every inch of the way. There is a magic to Nina Brown Baker's story-telling that whisks you swiftly into another age and country and carries you into the very feeling of another day." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p45 D 5 '43 200w

Booklist 40:167 Ja 1 '44

"A fine piece of creative writing... The vision and purpose of the man emerge against the colorful background of his period, and boys and girls will respond to his robust personality." M. K. McElderry

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 70w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale

Nation 157:593 N 20 '43 20w

"A pretty formidable character, this Peter the Great, to set before the young, yet one of such prodigious vitality that he should be a natural subject of interest to youth. Mrs. Baker, who has quietly proved herself one of the most capable writers of 'teen-aged biography today, has been equal to the task, bringing to it perspective, humor and a crisp, readable prose... This is a richly interesting book, partaking of its subject's own vigor." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p7 N 14 '43 400w

"A more than usually readable and well-written biography with which a twelve-year-old child can get off to a good start in Russian history."

+ New Yorker 19:136 D 4 '43 30w

"Louis Slobodkin's drawings in black and white help to make this biography one of the most interesting books for older boys and girls to come out this Christmas of 1943." R. R. Plant

+ Sat R of Lit 26:34 D 11 '43 320w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 30 '44 350w

BALABANOVA, ANZHELIKA. Tears. 157p pa $2 E. Laub pub. co, 270 Lafayette st, N.Y.

891.71

Collection of some seventy poems written in five different languages; French, Russian, Italian, German and English. The author is a Russian who has been a friend of the early Mussolini, Lenin and Trotsky. For her autobiography, My Life as a Rebel, see Book Review Digest, 1938.

"A volume which, though hardly a first-rate work of literature, must be unique as a literary curiosity and has its place in the revolutionary record." Edmund Wilson

Nation 157:615 N 27 '43 950w

"Quite often she strikes a theme in one language and repeats it in two or three other languages; giving, however, each time a genuinely new poem, not just a translation of the original. Her poetical style and her moods stem from expressionism, mindful of the ecstatic poetry written around 1918. Occasionally she is too rhetorical, and perhaps too often she uses hackneyed phraseology. Nevertheless, her poems are valuable as the lyrical manifesto of a 'Passionaria.'" Alfred Werner

+ — N Y Times p28 O 10 '43 550w

"[The] poems in English are admirable in sentiment but do not impress me very strongly as poetry." W. R. Benet

Sat R of Lit 26:24 O 16 '43 50w

BALDERSTON, JOHN LLOYD. Chicago blueprint. 127p pa $1 Knopf

43-17697

"This lengthy pamphlet, described on the title page as 'fiction—in form,' purports to be a translation of 'papers submitted to the Führer' by a group of German experts whose business it was to arrange for the disruption and invasion of this country. According to this Nazi 'Supreme High Control Board,' their task was facilitated by the publication on December 4, 1941, in several American newspapers (which are named), of the United States 'Joint Staff Report to the President,' which revealed many of the details of our war strategy." New Yorker

Reviewed by Robert Lasch

Book Week p6 S 12 '43 320w

"The structure of Mr. Balderston's pamphlet is highly confusing, and, I think, unfortunate." John Storck

N Y Times p26 S 26 '43 550w

New Yorker 19:86 S 11 '43 180w

BALDWIN, CLAUDE DAVID. Economic planning—its aims and implications. 188p $2.50; pa $2 Univ. of Ill.

338.91 Economic policy 42-36582

"In six chapters—'Definitions and Criticism'; 'The Objectives of Economic Planning'; 'The Place of a Pricing Mechanism'; 'The Organization of Production'; 'Distribution of Income and Allocation of Labor'; and 'Conclusions'—the author has made an exhaustive analytic survey of the 'theory of planning,' which is followed by a carefully organized bibliography. He has succeeded in being as impartial as one has a right to expect from a writer dealing with such a controversial subject." J Pol Econ

Reviewed by Joseph Mayer

Ann Am Acad 228:130 Jl '43 750w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:5 Jl '43 10w

"This thesis might well be made compulsory reading for all those who play at making a new economic order." M. J. Bonn

J Pol Econ 51:464 O '43 600w

BALDWIN, FAITH (MRS HUGH HAMLIN CUTHRELL). Washington, USA. 369p il $2.50 Farrar

43-1892

Six short stories about girls and young women in Washington in the early months of the war. Contents: Boarding house blues; Dina meets her match; Lady in danger; Society nurse; Someone in particular; Navy girl.

Booklist 39:294 Mr 15 '43

"Miss Baldwin must have been a whiz at geometry in her youth; her stories bristle with triangles and quadrangles and her Q. E. D. comes slickly on the last page. Occasionally, to be sure, she is unorthodox in her solutions, for more often than not it is the curved line which is the shortest distance between two points." Rose Feld

N Y Times p27 F 14 '43 700w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 28 '43 220w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p20 F 28 '43 250w

BALDWIN, FAITH (MRS HUGH HAMLIN CUTHRELL). You can't escape. 246p $2 Farrar

43-10322

Story of a New England girl who fled to New York to escape the sympathy of her friends, because she had been jilted. In New York she learned to get over her love for her faithless fiance, and found a more steadfast love.

"The background is smart, the conversation sharp and amusing and the characters credible. Altogether up to standard." Charlotte Dean

N Y Times p20 S 26 '43 180w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p16 Ag 29 '43 250w

BALDWIN, HANSON WEIGHTMAN. Navy at war; paintings and drawings by combat artists: Griffith Baily Coale [and others] with a commentary by Hanson W. Baldwin and an introd. by A. J. Hepburn. 160p $4 Morrow

940.545 World war, 1939—Naval operations. U.S.—Navy. World war, 1939—Pictorial works. Art, American 43-17241

Paintings and drawings of the various branches of the United States navy in action in the present war, with running commentary by Hanson Baldwin, naval and military editor of The New York Times.

"Early in this war five talented men of varying ages were commissioned as officers of the Navy and given the job of recording on canvas the Navy as each artist saw it in action. 'The Navy at War' is the first display of the results of their unique assignment and it proves the wisdom of the admirals in selecting them for this work." W. H. Fetridge

+ Book Week p6 Ja 16 '44 380w

Booklist 40:162 Ja 1 '44

"'The Navy at War' is attractively printed and bound in a cover of navy blue. It is a companion piece to 'Marines at War,' even if it is not its equal. Interesting as contemporary history as well as art, it helps to make the world struggle one of the best illustrated wars in history." Foster Hailey

+ N Y Times p9 D 26 '43 550w

"The difficulties of adequate reproduction of the artists' original work, especially in the matter of color, have been well overcome by the publishers of this book. Nearly one-quarter of the pictures are shown in full color, and the others are clear and true. The commentary of Mr Baldwin, while connected with the illustrations, is really a brief naval history of the war to date, and will be found most illuminating from beginning to end." J. R. S.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 9 '44 600w

BALDWIN, LELAND DEWITT. Story of the Americas; the discovery, settlement, and development of the new world. 720p maps $3.50 Simon & Schuster

970 America—History 43-10009

Anecdotal and informal in style this is a history of the Western Hemisphere from the days of Christopher Columbus to the development of the Good Neighbor policy by the United States. Index.

"The author, a former historian now a captain in the intelligence division, is no plodding investigator patiently pushing outward some specialized corner of the frontier of historical knowledge, but a lively writer with a taste for sweeping, even casual, generalization, a storyteller with a sense of comedy, a flair for adventure and a liking for the gargantuan." B. D. Wolfe

+ Book Week p8 Ag 15 '43 500w

Booklist 40:8 S '43

Reviewed by Paul Kiniery

Commonweal 38:517 S 10 '43 350w

Current Hist 5:77 S '43 120w

Reviewed by R. S. Alvarez

Library J 67:907 O 15 '42 90w

New Repub 109:346 S 6 '43 130w

"'The Story of the Americas' is a useful, competent book for Americans who need a historical background for understanding the Good Neighbor policy." Carl Bridenbaugh

+ — N Y Times p8 Ag 15 '43 700w

"Oversimplified at times, but on the whole fresh and stimulating stuff."

+ — New Yorker 19:72 Ag 14 '43 60w

Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 18 '43 650w

"It is an interesting and exciting volume, to be read by young or old with satisfaction. Mr. Baldwin has done a good job in reconstructing and bringing to life a lot of odd moments all the way from Canada to Argentina. He has not done so well in revealing the distinct and separate personalities of the many nations which resulted." Hubert Herring

+ — Weekly Book Review p3 Ag 22 '43 500w

Wis Lib Bul 39:144 N '43

BANE, SUDA LORENA, and LUTZ, RALPH HASWELL, eds. Blockade of Germany after the armistice, 1918-1919; sel. documents of the Supreme economic council, Superior blockade council, Am. relief administration, and other wartime organizations. (Hoover lib. on war, revolution, and peace. Publication) 874p $6 Stanford univ. press

940.452 European war, 1914-1918—Blockades. European war, 1914-1918—Food question. European war, 1914-1918—Germany 43-1478

"The materials of this volume present a documentary history of the food blockade, its expansion to the Baltic, the unremitting American effort to secure its relaxation before the peace was signed, as well as the relation of the blockade to censorship policies and contemporary public opinion of the blockade after the Armistice. The documents of this book have been selected mainly from the archives of the American Relief Administration in the Hoover Library." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by I. M. Stone

Am Pol Sci R 37:755 Ag '43 450w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:11 Jl '43 30w

Reviewed by J. G. Randall

J Pol Econ 51:567 D '43 550w

"It must be added, however, that, whilst the volume contributes to the published sources available to the historian, the general reader cannot get from it a clear and balanced idea of what happened unless he has closely studied the subject elsewhere. There is no connecting narrative to explain the course of events and to fill in the gaps. The value of the collection might have been doubled if there had been a substantial introduction by an historian, bringing out some of the salient facts and lessons." W. Arnold-Forster

Manchester Guardian p3 D 8 '43 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p590 D 11 '43 120w

BANNING, KENDALL. Our army today. 259p il $2.50 Funk

355 U.S.—Army 43-15700

"A popular survey of the army, with emphasis on its equipment and the training of soldiers in mechanized combat, insofar as military regulations allow it to be told, with the conclusion that 'the Army today is better than any publishable description of it can reveal.' (Foreword) A large part of the book is devoted to the air force, and one chapter tells how a psychologist weeds out draftees. Excellent photographs." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 40:87 N 15 '43

"Many anecdotes, clever summaries to several chapters. Good photographic illustrations. Recommened." F. W. Butler

+ Library J 68:964 N 15 '43 90w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 19 '43 140w

'The author, it is apparent, has taken the trouble to go to the training camps and see many of the things he writes about. There are indications of first-hand observation in a number of places rather than of reliance on written official sources as main background. A super-enthusiastic style, however, is a drawback for many readers." J. I. Greene

+ — Weekly Book Review p10 D 26 '43 500w

BANNING, MRS MARGARET (CULKIN). Letters from England, summer 1942. 315p $2.50 Harper

940.5342 World war, 1939—Great Britain. World war, 1939—Women's work 43-3429

An account of the author's trip to England in June of 1942, where she went to survey the war work being done by women. Told in the form of letters to her daughter in America, it describes what Mrs Banning observed, the people she met, the business of rationing, the recipes for saving food which she collected, etc.

"I wish that Mrs Banning had not chosen the 'letter' method for presentation of her valuable material. Her letters, addressed to her daughter, contain many family references and chit-chat concerning dinner parties, clothes, and friends, which, thrown in among more serious subjects, are distracting to the reader. Also, I feel her chapter, or letter, telling of her visit to Cliveden mars the general tone of the book. . . Nevertheless, 'Letters from England' adds considerably to the ever increasing proof that World War II is creating a changed world, a world in which thoughtful, responsible women . . . may take their place in planning for a permanent peace." Dorsey McCarthy
+ — Book Week p6 Mr 14 '43 650w
Booklist 39:316 Ap 1 '43
Cath World 157:335 Je '43 240w

"Perhaps Mrs. Banning has not told a great deal that her readers did not know already; but, because she was witness to so much of intelligent and righteous war activity, the public will feel its own appreciation quickened and clarified. The one unconvincing feature of the whole book is her device of giving out all this information in the form of letters, written home to her daughter. This will leave some of her readers incredulous; for only a sort of superwoman could, at the close of such crowded days as Mrs. Banning experienced, have sat down before a flickering coal fire and, with fingers growing steadily chillier, have set it all down on paper. It is just too much to credit." M. W.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 4 '43 550w

"This is a richly satisfying book answering a thousand and one questions that thinking Americans have been and are asking." J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p16 Mr 7 '43 400w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 7 '43 700w

Reviewed by Lorine Pruette
Weekly Book Review p6 Mr 14 '43 700w
Wis Lib Bul 39:72 My '43

BARBER, CHARLES WILLIAM. Illustrated outline of weather science. 248p maps $2.50 Pitman
551.5 Meteorology 43-2138

Textbook on meteorology based on methods used at the United States naval air station at Lakehurst, New Jersey. The author is Assistant officer-in-charge at the school. Contains map problems, questions for examination and study, tables, and index.

Library J 68:430 My 15 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:13 Ja '43

BARBOUR, RALPH HENRY. Mystery of the rubber boat; il. by Edward Caswell. 260p $2 Appleton-Century 43-3661

Mystery story for boys.

"Barbour has done a splendid job in creating a wholesome and intriguing mystery." Bill Simon
+ Book Week p6 Je 6 '43 110w

"As a whole the story is quite interesting although there is not much action. The mystery is not too hard to figure out and many boys will guess who the real villain is long before the author comes to the climax." J. F. R.
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 21 '43 110w

"War-time and spy stories for boys come together like ham and eggs. So this is a spy-story for twelve-year-old boys. Wait a moment. It's good. In fact, it's as good as they come." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p7 Jl 4 '43 450w

BARBOUR, RALPH HENRY. Mystery on the bayou; il. by Thomas McGowan. 237p $2 Appleton-Century 43-14570

Mystery story for young readers.

Cath World 158:317 D '43 60w

"Barbour is a past-master at story telling."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 110w

BARBOUR, THOMAS. Naturalist at large. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 314p il $3.50 Little B or 92 Naturalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Voyages and travels 43-14449

Autobiography of an American naturalist, who has been for years director of the University Museum at Harvard, and is a member of many of the important English and American scientific societies. The book is illustrated by many photographs. No index.

Booklist 40:58 O 15 '43

"Here is no staid recounting of dates and events in careful chronological outline. Reading this highly personal volume is rather like retiring to a club lounge after an unusually good dinner and settling down to listen to a man unburden himself of prejudices and carefully formed opinions: shrewd observations of men in all walks of life and comment on the strange processes of nature, together with a wealth of anecdotes tender or ridiculous. . . 'Naturalist at Large' is above all the genial record of a full-blooded human being who has known joy and tears and strenuous endeavor and who has lived a highly useful and rewarding life. It is a very real pleasure to have made his acquaintance in such delightfully unorthodox manner." Howard Devree
+ N Y Times p8 S 26 '43 850w

"This book—Mr. Barbour's first outside the field of pure science—is the humorous, delightful, and unaltered confession of the man, at last. What those confessions are like may be judged from the opening sentence: 'In the Home I am a poor Peruna-soaked Methodist, but in the Museum I am a High Church port-wine drinking Episcopalian.' " D. C. Peattie
+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 O 9 '43 600w

"Dr. Barbour is a giant of a man, who has lived to full capacity. His book reflects the many facets of his experiences in science, adventure, and friendliness."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:2 O '43 450w

"Barbour has an excellent sense of humor, and he tells many amusing tales about his experiences with live snakes which escaped while he was traveling with them, and of dissecting stranded whales condemned by boards of health. . . This is a charmingly written book, which makes one feel the enthusiasm of the author. The illustrations are excellent, and the only possible criticisms are too many Latin names, and a jumping around from one topic to another, perhaps unavoidable in describing such a rich and varied life." W. B. Kirkham
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 24 '43 500w

"In the latter chapters of 'Naturalist at Large' there are several personal pages which are among the most interesting in the book. Here Dr. Barbour tells among other things, of the tribulations of a man of huge proportions. Such delightful excursions into the past impart their particular flavor to the volume. If the reader cannot have the good fortune to see what Dr. Barbour saw, the next best thing is to have the good fortune to read his book." E. W. Teale
+ Weekly Book Review p5 O 3 '43 1300w
Wis Lib Bul 39:143 N '43

BARD, ERWIN WILKIE. Port of New York authority. 352p $3.50 Columbia univ. press

387.1 Port of New York authority 43-274

"A three-dimensional description and analysis of the Port of New York Authority, its manifold relations to the community, its contributions to the various problems with which it has dealt, and the conclusions which may be drawn from its experience." (Special Libraries) Index.

"The author has made a painstaking study of the subject and, while evidencing sympathy with the objectives of the Port Authority, attempts to present with impartiality the controversies in which it has been engaged." W. R. West

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:555 Je '43 350w

Special Libraries 34:27 Ja '43

BARGER, CLARENCE G. Automotive mechanics-1. 166p il $1.12 Am. bk.

629.2 Automobiles—Handbooks, manuals, etc. Motor trucks (43-2222)

Contents: The automobile; Chassis, running system, and body; Power unit; Power train; The cooling system; Index. Written to meet the first half of the Pre-induction Training Course in Fundamentals of Automotive Mechanics, jointly prepared by the War Department and the U. S. Office of Education. Covers a semester's work.

N Y New Tech Bks 28:40 Jl '43

"His definitions are crisp and tailored to the thought process of the student. His sketches are clean and to the point. His questions for discussion and his suggested exercises are well-stated and pertinent. The book is warmly recommended as a vocational or high-school text." J. M. Juran

+ N Y Times p26 Mr 28 '43 120w

School & Society 57:195 F 13 '43 50w

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p12 S 5 '43 80w

BARGER, HAROLD. Outlay and income in the United States, 1921-1938. (Conference on research in nat. income and wealth. Studies in income and wealth) 391p $2.50 Nat. bur. of economic research

339.373 Income. Consumption (economics) 42-50493

"A statement of national income, consumption, and capital formation data on a quarterly basis to make them useful for business cycle analysis." Am Soc R

Am Soc R 8:372 Je '43 20w

Reviewed by Melchior Palyi

Ann Am Acad 229:221 S '43 250w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:10 Jl '43 10w

"The principal merit of this book lies not in the presentation of statistics, which for the later years are now largely supplanted by more recent estimates, but rather in the discussion of concepts and statistical problems in income measurement." E. F. Denison

J Pol Econ 51:565 D '43 900w

BARGER, HAROLD, and LANDSBERG, HANS H. American agriculture, 1899-1939; a study of output, employment and productivity. 440p $3; to subs gratis Nat. bur. of economic research

338.1 Agriculture—U.S. Agriculture—Economic aspects 43-2979

"This is an attempt to bring together and appraise the results of a great number of studies dealing with farm production and employment changes since the turn of the century. It is presented in four parts: I, Agriculture as a Segment of the Nation's Economy; II, Output (An Over-All Picture and the Output of Individual Products); III, Employment and Productivity; and IV, Summary and Conclusions." Ann Am Acad

"While the book furnishes much information, it is not complete, nor conclusive, and is unfortunate in some of its implications when it discusses the place of agriculture in our economy." G. S. Wehrwein

Am Econ R 33:698 S '43 1000w

Reviewed by R. H. Anderson

Am J Soc 49:277 N '43 250w

"As a whole, the study provides a very useful and concise addition to the literature available on this subject, and one which every person concerned with problems of farm production and employment will do well to read." M. R. Benedict

+ Ann Am Acad 229:226 S '43 320w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:161 O '43 10w

Management R 32:118 Mr '43 40w

Reviewed by W. T. Ham

Pol Sci Q 58:454 S '43 600w

"As an over-all study of the broader aspects of historical trends in agricultural production, employment, and productivity, this work presents a rounded examination which should prove useful to students of agricultural problems. Although the time period covered by the data ends with 1939, the work bears on important current and postwar agricultural problems. . . Although the reviewer would take exception to some of the conclusions and generalizations presented, it appears to him that the authors have realistically described some of the important long-time factors which have operated in the past and which may continue to operate in the direction of a declining trend in the number of agricultural workers." Louis Ducoff

+ — Social Forces 22:230 D '43 950w

BARKER, ARTHUR EDWARD. Milton and the Puritan dilemma, 1641-1660. 440p $3.75 Univ. of Toronto press [Canadian publication]

B or 92 Milton, John A43-2578

"The 'dilemma' for Milton and other Puritans was the tension between the reliance upon scriptural authority and the degree of recognition they gave to a humanistic and naturalistic philosophy. . . The study is divided under headings that are related to the successive phases of the revolution and of Milton's evolving thought. He was liberty's anxious advocate and liberty was his constant plea. Our author has examined the nature of his proposals side by side with those of other advocates of liberty, such as Roger Williams and John Goodwin." Am Hist R

"The temporal range of the book is pretty strictly confined to the era of the Puritan ascendancy, though there are numerous useful references to the Protestant reformers. There are a few strange omissions. . . But other recent writers (such as Kelley, Sewell, Whiting, and Wolfe) have explored these matters. Mr. Barker is to be congratulated on a work of solid scholarship, a permanently valuable report upon the intellectual warfare of a highly significant period of English history." J. T. McNeill

+ Am Hist R 49:96 O '43 750w

"An important study of the crucial years of Milton's life." Edward Wagenknecht

+ N Y Times p10 My 23 '43 460w

"We have had to wait long for a dispassionate critical detailed study of [Milton's] thought such as Professor Barker has now supplied with great learning and patience. Milton's thought is not always easy to follow, and Professor Barker does not always write with an easy hand, but the book before us will be quite indispensable to all students of the poet and to all others as well who wish to understand the genesis of that conception of liberty under law which seems so peculiarly the possession of English-speaking peoples." William Haller

+ Sat R of Lit 26:18 D 18 '43 750w

BARKER, ERNEST. Britain and the British people. (World today) 141p il $1.25 (3s 6d) Oxford

942 Great Britain—Civilization. Great Britain—Politics and government A43-991

Resumé of the principal facts of English government and civil life. Contents: The British community; The genius of British parliamentarianism; The government of Britain; The English system of law; Religion and the churches in Britain; Matters of the mind; The community's care for its members. Index.

Reviewed by J. A. Fairlie
Am Pol Sci R 37:753 Ag '43 90w

Booklist 39:367 My 15 '43

Bookmark 4:15 My '43

Commonweal 38:77 My 7 '43 700w

"This is the England you see from a Cambridge college window: a very attractive England, here brilliantly depicted, but not all England by a long chalk." A. J. P. T.
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 13 '43 200w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun
Nation 157:188 Ag 14 '43 600w

"It will be a singularly erudite reader who does not close this notable little volume with a consciousness that his ideas about the country of his birth have been clarified, enlarged and given new and juster proportion. That is a considerable service for any author to render." H. W. H.
+ Spec 169:558 D 11 '42 650w

"There is a good deal of solid information packed into 136 pages, but, unfortunately, it is rather dull reading. Furthermore, it is, with rare exceptions, England and the English, not Britain and the British, that are under discussion—the Scotch, the Welsh and the Northern Irish are treated only incidentally. In addition, American readers are likely to be irritated by the complacency which tinges much of the text—that calm, well-bred assumption of superiority which is so much more annoying than loud-mouthed boasting. The author does not ignore imperfections in England and the English, but he somehow manages to imply that British faults are preferable to foreign virtues. This is doing a remarkable people a grave disservice and detracts from the value of a scholarly, if rather pedestrian, piece of writing." W. H. H.
Springf'd Republican p8 My 25 '43 280w

Times [London] Lit Sup p61 F 6 '43 1150w

BARKER, ERNEST. Reflections on government. 424p $6 (21s) Oxford

321.8 Democracy. Representative government and representation [A 42-4587]

Contents: Democratic government and its internal difficulties; Democracy and its external difficulties; Amendments to democracy; Alternatives to democracy.

"Here are informed, clear, moderate, and leisurely reflections on present-day democracies and dictatorships. They do not give an overall picture of either comparative government or political theory. They consider only governments in Europe, omit some of the important problems that these and other governments have had to face in recent years, and give slight attention to some of the practical consequences and ideological implications of the newer systems." F. W. Coker
+ — Am Pol Sci R 37:722 Ag '43 900w

"The style adds to the great charm of the book. There will be no historian or political scientist who will not read it with great profit and gratitude." Hans Kohn
+ Ann Am Acad 226:188 Mr '43 500w

"One of the more profound books on political theory and the nature of liberty that have appeared in recent years." R. G. Woolbert
+ Foreign Affairs 21:574 Ap '43 20w

"A great and notable book."
Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 29 '42 400w

Reviewed by H. J. Laski
New Statesman & Nation 24:14 Jl 4 '42 1200w

"There is a sense of disappointment, in finding that Professor Barker's vision of possibilities is not more daring. On the necessary 'Amendments to Democracy' he says little that has not been said before. . . But when all such deductions have been made, Professor Barker's book still stands out as one of the very best of the recent examinations of our present discontents. His great historical and philosophical knowledge, his eclectic approach and complete freedom from sectarianism give a rare breadth and richness to his argument." T. P. Peardon
+ — Pol Sci Q 58:433 S '43 900w

Reviewed by E. L. Woodward
Spec 169:40 Jl 10 '42 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p330 Jl 4 '42 2700w

BARKER, GEORGE. Sacred and secular elegies. (Poets of the year) unp $1 New directions

821 44-890

Elegies on contemporary themes by a young English poet who recently spent a year in this country.

"Barker writes beautifully within his tradition, but as yet he does not command the technical means to represent himself simply and honestly. Technical incompetence can make a liar out of any artist. No, the problems obstructing his complete development as a poet must be met the hardest way and by the strictest discipline. If Barker is the serious poet I think he is, he must stop his ears, he must wring the neck of his eloquence, he must modulate his voice. Only then will he be able to say what he wants to say of love and country, history, the river god of the blood, and whatever else." H. P. Lazarus
— + Nation 158:78 Ja 15 '44 550w

"Of Mr. Thomas' followers Mr. George Barker is the most original and the most brilliant, but also perhaps the most mannered. He has taken over the euphuism lock, stock and barrel; it is at times almost indistinguishable as style from his predecessor's, and it is no exaggeration to say that it can be very exhausting; but in his new book, 'Sacred and Secular Elegies,' he uses the method, even at its swollen worst, for his own purposes, and with much clearer definition and reference. Some of these elegies are very fine indeed; with a trifle less preciosity and affectation they could be superb." Conrad Aiken
+ — New Repub 110:26 Ja 3 '44 120w

Reviewed by W. R. Benet
Sat R of Lit 26:23 D 4 '43 140w

BARLONE, D. French officer's diary (23 August, 1939—1 October, 1940) tr. from the French by L. V. Cass; with a pref. by P. L. Legentilhomme. 156p maps $2 Macmillan [7s 6d Cambridge]

940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, French. World war, 1939—France 43-4742

"Impressions of a patient and concientious line officer who fought in the Battle of France, escaped to Morocco, and later joined de Gaulle in England. Covers the period between August, 1939, and October, 1940." New Yorker

"The thread of undying faith in France and the integrity of the French people, which runs throughout M. Barlone's book, is particularly encouraging and inspiring." I. S.
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 1 '43 390w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:8 Jl '43 40w

"The diary is an instructive as well as a most interesting document."
+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 5 '43 270w

Reviewed by Varian Fry
New Repub 109:83 Jl 19 '43 90w

BARLONE, D.—Continued

"Here is an unassuming, straightforward, sincere book about France! Not another attempt to explain her 'tragedy,' but a plain record of events. . . The book, in spite of some rather stilted phrases, is well translated and reads agreeably." Jerome Jenatton
+ New Statesman & Nation 24:395 D 12 '42 650w

"It is an admirably disciplined record, free of fine writing, exalted passages, emotional display. The tenderness Barlone has for his men, his outrage with the continued delays in action, his hopeless indignation at the lack of adequate equipment are tempered by the cool-headed control of the military man, the exacting man who will demand the last ounce of loyalty, rectitude and courage of himself, his superiors and of the men he leads." Kay Boyle
+ N Y Times p5 My 9 '43 1250w
New Yorker 19:70 Mr 20 '43 50w

"This diary is the honest, sincere document of a man who loved his country and realized that he and his country had been wantonly betrayed." H. B. Kranz
+ Sat R of Lit 26:36 Je 5 '43 600w

"Well worth publishing."
+ Spec 170:42 Ja 8 '43 120w
Times [London] Lit Sup p614 D 19 '42 360w

Reviewed by Raoul Aglion
Weekly Book Review p14 Ap 11 '43 800w

BARNE, KITTY (MRS ERIC STREATFEILD). We'll meet in England; il. by Steven Spurrier. 260p $2 Dodd [7s 6d Hamilton, H.]
43-4374

Two brave Norwegian children with the help of an elderly English sailor escape from Norway, and sail the old man's boat to England. On the way they pick up an exhausted R.A.F. man in his rubber float, and carry him along to Scotland, and thence to England. An unexpected ending brings happiness to all concerned.

"This is a thrilling tale—including the account of the storm they weathered, the rescue of a British airman, adrift in his rubber boat, and the happy ending when the unbelievable really happens." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 27 '43 180w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:173 My '43 100w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 19:235 Jl '43 70w

Reviewed by D. M. MacDonald
Library J 68:329 Ap 15 '43 50w

"Written with humor and realistic characterization, this is a rousing story, not only for its swift adventure but because it shows so plainly the patriotism of Norway thriving defiantly in the stifling air of German domination." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p8 Ap 11 '43 290w

"Not so unusual as the author's delightful 'Visitors from London' but nevertheless a well-written thriller for nine- to thirteen-year-olds."
+ New Yorker 19:67 My 29 '43 70w

"The story moves swiftly, brightened by the humor and quick wits of the entire family, who are admirably drawn." A. M. Jordan
+ Sat R of Lit 26:27 My 15 '43 90w

"The author writes with admirable spontaneity and humour, and all her characters are natural. Although the harsh reality of conditions in a Norwegian village under the German occupation is considerably toned down for juvenile consumption, so that even the antics of a German spy are a matter for amusement as much as fear, the author has used a topical and perfectly possible aspect of the present war—and one, moreover, that should be brought to the notice of children—to excellent effect."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p59 Ja 30 '43 150w

"It is Kitty Barne's best book." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p10 Mr 28 '43 500w

BARNES, HARRY ELMER. Social institutions in an era of world upheaval. 927p $5.35 Prentice-Hall

300 Social problems. Sociology 42-21948

"This volume is an appraisal of current American social institutions, with strong emphasis on changes and maladjustments, and on the necessity of modernizing and reconstructing them. It is divided into six parts. The first discusses the foundation, structure, and general crisis in institutions. Part II deals with the economic institutions of industry, capitalism and property. The third and longest part reviews the institutions of government and law, including a chapter on institutional aspects of war. Part IV describes modern communication agencies and the formation of public opinion. Family and community are briefly and rather inadequately dealt with in Part V. Part VI discusses religion, education, and recreational institutions." (Am Soc R) Bibliography. Index.

"Even with a generous allotment of space a review can hardly hope to do justice to a book of so encyclopedic character, packed with facts both fundamental and miscellaneous and crammed with the author's observations and with his many-faceted quotations. This is a book which one lays aside not only impressed with the vast reading of the author and with the sincerity and courage of his attack on the problems of modern civilization in its manifold aspects, but also enriched in valuable knowledge and interesting viewpoints. To our mind not the least important contribution of this work is that it challenges critical thought." Herbert von Beckerath
+ Am Econ R 33:652 S '43 1650w

Reviewed by H. E. Jensen
Am J Soc 49:190 S '43 550w

"The specialists in institutional sociology will judge the book to be somewhat weak on the theoretical side, and rather too strongly inclined in the direction of analyzing institutional disorganization. Little in the way of permanent theoretical value is contributed to institutional sociology, except in the analysis of economic and political institutions. It is also in order to wonder why the more systematic American sociological studies of the entire field of institutions were almost completely ignored in the course of what is obviously a careful analysis." Mapheus Smith
— + Am Soc R 8:243 Ap '43 480w

"The author's theory of social institutions is eclectic, and the approach is a combination of the historical and descriptive methods. One wonders why so many of the chapters were written in a scolding fashion, and regrets that there is little straight analysis and interpretation of social institutions as they operate in our society, without reference to subjective evaluations of them." J. H. Barnett
Ann Am Acad 227:198 My '43 500w

Reviewed by L. R. Wilson
Library Q 13:359 O '43 500w

"Packing it snugly in a rather deep-rooted analysis of the existing institutional order, the author has spun, with almost evangelical zeal, his indictment against modern society. The theme is not new, and the argument is sometimes tiresomely extended. But, underneath it all, the book projects a catholic perspective in focusing a wealth of factual material." J. E. Ivey, Jr.
+ — Social Forces 21:481 My '43 320w
Social Studies 34:48 Ja '43 40w

Reviewed by G. A. Lundberg
+ Survey 79:93 Mr '43 480w

BARNES, HARRY ELMER, and TEETERS, NEGLEY KING. New horizons in criminology; the American crime problem; foreword by Frank Tannenbaum. 1069p il maps $6; to schools $4.50 Prentice-Hall

364 Crime and criminals. Prisons 43-5197

"This book provides a comprehensive treatment of crime, criminals, punishment, and prisons. It is offered as a synthesis of existing knowledge and practice in the field. It thus supplies the basis for suggestions as to desirable future reforms in the repression of crime and the treatment of criminals." (Pref) Bibliography. Indexes.

"The general orientation of the book is that scientific social control and a rational system of criminal procedure are present possibilities. . . To the present reviewer such a position seems quite unrealistic. . . Whether there is agreement or disagreement with the authors, the book will be welcomed by many as the most complete and thorough compilation of materials in criminology now available in a single volume, well-written, and systematically organized for many class and reference uses." G. B. Vold

+ — Ann Am Acad 229:232 S '43 700w

"The book is obviously not for lay consumption. A thousand-word pamphlet, stressing, in oratorical overtones and with pungent examples, the horrors of prisons and prison practice and philosophy, would probably reach a wider audience and have more far-reaching and more immediate social effects. . . But the book does speak out courageously and with documentary data against the stupidity and near-barbarism which seem to characterize a good deal of our politically subordinated penological philosophy and practice. There is plenty of room in the text market for such a book. In addition, the college instructor of criminology will find 'New Horizons' a useful compendium to which to refer students for supplementary reading." M. M. Tumin

+ — N Y Times p26 N 7 '43 600w

Reviewed by Albert Morris

Social Forces 22:114 O '43 550w

"If the student of criminology could possess only one volume, he certainly would get more for his money out of this one than any other. . . The authors may seem inclined at times to give too much credence to the quoted statements of former convicts, some of whom have written very cleverly and very critically of their experiences. In some cases they seem to have accepted as facts, statements which this reviewer knows to be exaggerated." Sanford Bates

+ — Survey 79:207 Jl '43 800w

BARNES, NANCY. Carlota, American empress; il. by John Barber. 214p $2.50 Messner

B or 92 Charlotte, consort of Maximilian, emperor of Mexico—Juvenile literature 43-15883

Biography of Carlota, empress of Mexico, from her childhood in Belgium to the day of her death in 1927. For teen-age girls. Bibliography. Index.

"A thoroughly enjoyable book." Margaret Merrick

+ Book Week p10 N 14 '43 200w

Booklist 40:150 D 15 '43

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 50w

"[The] tragic story is vividly told by Miss Barnes, in conversational style, yet with a full list of authorities. Glimpses of the joys and sorrows of royalty and of the Europe that wrecked the dreams of Carlota and Maximilian lead up to the unhappy Mexican tragedy and the sad ending of their great romance." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:416 N '43 100w

"Offhand, one would hardly consider the story of Maximilian and Carlota, with its sounding of ambitious brass, its maze of mid-nineteenth century European and American politics, a particularly alluring one for older girls. Yet really good biographies, those filled with the breath of individual and collective life, have a way of finding their audience, and Miss Barnes' life of the unwelcome Empress of Mexico is really good." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 30 '44 240w

BARNETT, GRACE TRELEVEN, and BARNETT, OLIVE ELIZABETH. Fire beads; il. by the authors. 160p $1.75 Oxford

42-19648

Mystery story for boys and girls. The setting is a Montana camp.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p8 Ja 24 '43 380w

"These two authors, whose 'Homesteaders' Horses,' an excellent story with genuine humor and good characterization, appeared a year ago, have written another vigorous tale of the Western country. . . The authors tell a lively tale with humor and suspense, a fine outdoor atmosphere, natural and convincing characters and a plot that is fresh and original. The drawings give the feeling of the Western country." A. T. E.

+ N Y Times p44 N 15 '42 360w

BARNEY, DANFORD. Selected poems, old and new. 109p $2 Fine editions

811 42-50312

"It is the pervading philosophy of Barney's poems that is their most striking characteristic. It may be 'sardonic' (as Mr Bangs suggests [in his Foreword]) but it is thought-provoking. . . The present volume consists of poems selected from previous volumes, with eight or 10 later poems that have hitherto been unpublished." Springf'd Republican

"The performance is of high quality throughout. Practically every page yields passages of genuine poetry. . . His war poems, concerning his observations while in service during 1918, are as moving as those of Rupert Brooke, and deeper. Critical in the right places, they reveal a conviction of what endures." Pearl Strachan

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 F 13 '43 230w

Reviewed by A. M. Jakeman

Springf'd Republican p6 D 17 '42 330w

BARON, JOSEPH LOUIS, ed. Stars and sand, Jewish notes by non-Jewish notables. 555p il $2.50 Jewish pub.

296 Jews 43-8446

"Several hundred of the world's foremost statesmen and thinkers, beginning with the ancient church fathers and concluding with the present-day leaders in the war for democracy, Winston Churchill and Franklin D. Roosevelt, comment on fifteen major aspects of Jewish life and striving. The result is a storehouse of profound and eloquent observations on Jewish character, Jewish martyrdom and Jewish reconstruction, as seen through the eyes of religious authorities, national heroes and literary masters in all ages and lands." Christian Century

"One of the most notable and valuable anthologies this reviewer has ever happened upon. This book is intended for all men of good will, regardless of race and creed." J. M. Yard

+ Christian Century 60:895 Ag 4 '43 260w

"Reproductions of paintings and sculptures by old masters add no little to an absorbing volume which should prove something of a solace to Israel in a dark hour." John Cournos

+ N Y Times p24 Ag 29 '43 260w

BARON, SALO WITTMAYER. Jewish community; its history and structure to the American revolution. 3v ea $2.50 Jewish pub.

296 Jews—Political and social conditions. Jews—Bibliography 42-50823

"Dr. Baron, professor of Jewish history and literature in Columbia University, has studied the Jewish community in ancient Palestine, and in all the countries both east and west in which significant groups of Jews have been found by reason of exile or dispersion, down to the end of the eighteenth century. The scope of his research is reflected in almost an entire volume devoted to documentation and in a 110-page bibliography including works in Hebrew, Arabic and most of the important European languages." Christian Century

BARON, S. W.—Continued

"Because of [the author's] own direct observation of the Jewish scene here and abroad and his personal participation in community tasks, his historical knowledge and mastery of documents have an empirical frame of reference in present perception of living forms and trends. As fas as I know, this study of his is a pioneer work, the first of its kind with respect to both method and matter; comprehensive, sober, unpretentious, aiming neither to defend nor to attack but to understand." H. M. Kallen

+ Am J Soc 49:95 Jl '43 500w

"This work constitutes a magnificent contribution to several fields of knowledge; to Judaica, ethnic relations, and the growing literature on the sociology of community. It demonstrates, too, what an able scholar disciplined in several social sciences does with social analysis." B. B. Wessel

+ Ann Am Acad 229:230 S '43 550w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 60:489 Ap 21 '43 600w

Reviewed by Max Gruenewald
J Religion 23:294 O '43 700w

"The author of these three volumes on the Jewish Community is one of the outstanding Jewish scholars in America. . . His new work is a landmark in the writing of social history and should as such be of the greatest interest to sociologists. . . It is to be hoped that Professor Baron will soon be able to publish his work on the modern Jewish community to which this present work forms an indispensable introduction." W. J. Cahnman

+ Social Forces 22:111 O '43 1200w

BARR, EUGENE OSMUN. Flying men and medicine; the effects of flying upon the human body. 254p il $2.50 Funk

629.13256 Aeronautics—Medical aspects
43-5486

Simply written explanation of "the effects of flying upon the human body." The author is a doctor who is also an instructor in flying. He discusses the physical requirements for pilots, and shows flyers how to keep fit. Index.

Reviewed by C. E. Kossmann
— Am J Pub Health 33:1011 Ag '43 270w

Reviewed by Israel Davidsohn
Book Week p4 My 16 '43 70w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 67:949 N 1 '42 40w

"A simple, well-written exposition." Lloyd Shearer

+ N Y Times p22 Ap 25 '43 200w

BARRETT, CHARLES SANBORN. Structure of metals; crystallographic methods, principles, and data. 567p il $6 McGraw

669 Metallography 43-14110

"This book is intended to serve both as a text and as a reference book. The portions intended for classroom use have been written for courses in crystallography, particularly the courses offered to students of metallurgy. It is primarily intended for graduate courses, but a number of chapters are at a level appropriate for advanced undergraduate courses in applied x-rays, crystallography, and physical metallurgy. In an effort to make the book more readable, certain advanced topics on x-ray diffraction and various tables of data have been placed in appendixes, and laboratory manipulations that would not interest the general reader have been printed in smaller type." (Pref) Author is associate professor of metallurgical engineering, Carnegie Institute of technology. Index.

Library J 68:476 Je 1 '43 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:47 Jl '43

BARRETT, MONTE. Murder at Belle Camille. 288p $2 Bobbs 43-11950

Mystery story.

"Plot and characterization are neatly handled. But you may find the Old Southern Tradition stuff a little thick." Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p6 Ag 29 '43 180w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 Ag 22 '43 120w

"Below par."
— Sat R of Lit 26:16 S 4 '43 30w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 Ag 29 '43 200w

BARROWS, MARJORIE (JACK ALDEN, pseud). Cocky, the little helicopter; pictures by Clarence Biers. [40p] $1 Rand McNally
43-16767

Picture-story book about a smug little helicopter, laboring under the impression that its pilot was unnecessary. Cocky had to learn the truth the hard way.

"Recommended for libraries and classrooms where the very young demand for airplane stories exceeds the extremely meager supply." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 68:1050 D 15 '43 50w

"To link fantasy with fact, a photograph and description of a real helicopter, piloted by Sikorsky, are on the jacket-flap. The picture-book is a lark in bright colors for a four-year-old." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p7 N 14 '43 230w

BARROWS, MARJORIE (JACK ALDEN, pseud). Timothy Tiger; pictures by Keith Ward. [28p] 50c Rand McNally
43-15293

"Timothy is a tidy little tiger who loses his mother and goes searching through the jungle for someone to adopt him. Like Marjorie Barrows' popular 'Fraidy Cat,' this is of the 'hole book' variety. Timothy's head protrudes through each page, but you get quite an assortment of expression, thanks to the ears which change with the pictures." Book Week

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p2 N 14 '43 110w

"The theme is in the classic 'Little Black Sambo' tradition but as every mother or teacher knows, old themes are best." L. M. Palmer

+ N Y Times p18 N 14 '43 60w

BARROWS, MARJORIE (JACK ALDEN, pseud), and EATON, GEORGE, comps. Box office [a collection of famous short stories from which outstanding motion pictures have been made]. 291p $2 Ziff-Davis

Collection of stories from which motion pictures have been made. Contents: Night bus, by S. H. Adams; A friend of Napoleon, by Richard Connell; The most dangerous game, by Richard Connell; Crime without passion, by Ben Hecht; A double-dyed deceiver, by O. Henry; A retrieved reformation, by O. Henry; Rain, by W. S. Maugham; The vessel of wrath, by W. S. Maugham; Madame La Gimp, by Damon Runyon; Butch minds the baby, by Damon Runyon; The biscuit eater, by James Street; The failure, by Katharine Haviland-Taylor.

"All in all, this is a well-chosen and well-presented collection of stories indigenous to America and representative of the best in our short-story technique. The subjects range from the gay to the grim, from pathos to bathos, from introspection to the lightest fluff of nonsense, the only factor knitting them together into a group being their eminent success on the screen. Seeing them again in print makes me regret having missed some in their motion-picture versions—and wonder why others aren't revived for another film run." Betty Wood

+ Book Week p5 O 24 '43 550w
Booklist 40:183 Ja 15 '44

"In most of the stories in which the love interest is not dominant, one almost inevitably bumps into 'a guy and a gal' tacked on somewhere, or thrown aboard at the last moment. If you scoot along at a rapid rate you may miss them, but if you stop and look you are sure to find a couple holding hands. . . Two out of the twelve stories have an 'interesting' rather than a 'happy' ending. Otherwise—the sun shines brightly." D. T. Bazelon
N Y Times p26 N 7 '43 300w
Wis Lib Bul 39:159 D '43

BARRY, JOE. Pay-off. 256p $2 Arcadia 43-16522

Mystery story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p10 Ag 15 '43 180w
Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 Ag 8 '43 120w

"Joe Barry's activities as a radio announcer include a Sunday-night program of inspirational poetry readings. This tough mug tale might be letting off steam, eh, Joe?" Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p20 Ag 15 '43 180w

BARRY, JOE. The third degree. 256p $2 Mystery house 43-16764

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p15 N 21 '43 130w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p46 D 5 '43 180w

BARRY, PHILIP. Without love; a comedy in three acts. 221p $2 Coward-McCann 812 43-11870

A play produced in New York in 1942, but not hitherto published. It tells the story of a platonic marriage of a wealthy girl and a man who is working to induce Ireland to join England in the present conflict. The scene is Washington.

Booklist 40:7 S '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '43

"Will be a good little-theater play. Recommended for all drama collections."
+ Library J 68:726 S 15 '43 40w

BARSCHAK, ERNA. Innocent empress; an intimate study of Eugénie. 346p il $3.50 Dutton
B or 92 Eugénie, consort of Napoleon III, emperor of the French 43-11159

Biography of the Empress Eugénie, covering her life from adolescence to her death in 1920. The book is in the main a psychological study. The author is a psychologist who was a professor at Berlin State college for training teachers, and is now teaching in the United States. Index.

"It is not a fictionalized biography; it is the careful job of a student. It is never dull, for the author is a student of psychology, and the subject an extraordinary woman whose long, sad life spanned nearly a century. . . For anyone who likes to read of European personalities this should prove interesting. It is a happy mixture of political and psychological comment. The author is intelligent and perceptive, but refrains from drawing any Freudian conclusions. I am inclined to think this is wise procedure in a biography—the biographer is spared the charge of being arbitrary, and the reader can have the pleasure of drawing them for himself." Dorothy Hillyer
+ Boston Globe p15 Ag 4 '43 450w
Christian Science Monitor p12 S 4 '43 1050w

"Complete picture of beautiful, impulsive woman who believed she was destined to fulfill a great mission. Timely in that it recalls France of a recent past and may help reader to understand France of today. Recommended for purchase if funds permit." H. R. Burdett
+ Library J 68:570 Jl '43 140w
Reviewed by Jenny Ballou
N Y Times p31 S 19 '43 550w

"Rather shallow politically, but an intelligent and charming psychological study."
+ — New Yorker 19:72 Ag 14 '43 60w

"Miss Barschak, in this biography, has developed no strikingly original interpretation of Eugénie's character, and has presented no subtle revaluation of her social and historic importance. Nor has she told Eugénie's story, which for all its anticlimaxes has considerable dramatic quality, with that feeling for suspense which can give to some biographies the excitement of a novel. She has, however, with commendable industry combed through the masses of contemporary materials, and incorporated her findings into a narrative which is neatly organized and factually accurate." C. D. Abbott
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:10 Ag 21 '43 320w

"Dr Barschak is at her best when she is able to stress the alien quality of Eugenie, and her unconventional emancipation. Unfortunately, 'The Innocent Empress' is presented in an unskilled and routine style, which is heightened by certain scenes of sentimental emotionalism. The author has collected many interesting and revealing anecdotes and stories of Eugenie's life and has used them as an interpretation of her character, which was at once strong willed and intensely feminine; but she has been more successful in dealing with the scenes of Eugenie's childhood and youth and with the years of her widowhood than she has been in the important years as the empress." L. S. Munn
+ — Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 10 '43 500w
Time 42:100 Ag 23 '43 600w
Reviewed by Felizia Seyd
Weekly Book Review p8 Ag 15 '43 700w

BARSIS, MAX. They're all yours, Uncle Sam! [103p] il $2 Daye
940.5496 World war, 1939—Humor, caricatures, etc. U.S. Army. Women's army corps. U.S. Naval reserve. Women's reserve
43-14404

The story, in simple text and many cartoons, of how the twins, Claribelle and Maribelle, joined the Waves and the Wacs, respectively, and got their uniforms, their training, and a whole new outlook on life as Women in Arms.

"Barsis flings feminine curves on paper with a pen dipped in applejack, rather than acid, and the result is good clean fun for everyone!" Marguerite Lyon
+ Book Week p4 S 19 '43 180w

"All in all, 'They're All Yours, Uncle Sam,' is a witty harum-scarum collection of drawings and the title makes one a little envious of his Uncle Sam." S. J. Woolf
+ Sat R of Lit 26:57 O 16 '43 230w
Weekly Book Review p29 O 31 '43 180w

BART, BARRY. Book of battles; from Troy to Bataan; il. by [the author]. [60p] maps $1 Garden City pub. co.
904 Battles—Juvenile literature
42-50824

Short descriptions of sixteen of the major battles of all time, from the siege of Troy to Bataan. Each has a large color picture, a plan of the battle, and marginal drawings showing armor and weapons. Contents: The siege of Troy; The battle of Marathon; The battle of Arbela; The battle of Chalons; The battle of Hastings; The sieges of Acre: 1189, 1291; The defeat of the Spanish Armada; The battle of Saratoga; The battle of Trafalgar; The battle of Waterloo; The battle of Gettysburg; The battle of Verdun; The battle of

BART, BARRY—Continued
Jutland; The battle of Britain; The battle of Moscow; The battle of Bataan. Grades five to eight.

Booklist 39:297 Mr 15 '43

"A boy at all interested in tactics or weapons will welcome the small pictures that go into details on these matters; the book is a lively aid to history." M. L. Becker

+ Books p6 Ja 3 '43 300w

BARTEK, JOHN FRANCIS, and PARDUE, AUSTIN. Life out there; a story of faith and courage. 117p il $1.75 Scribner

940.548 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. Pacific ocean. Aeronautics —Accidents 43-8445

Sergeant Johnny Bartek's own account of the twenty-one days spent on a raft in the Pacific, after the plane carrying Captain Rickenbacker crashed. It was Bartek's Testament which the men used during those long days and nights of waiting. Sergeant Bartek was assisted in his writing by Austin Pardue, dean of St Paul's cathedral, Buffalo, who has also written about Johnny's family.

"One of the most vital, authentic stories yet to come from this war. . . I wish every young person in this country would read Johnny's book. From the moment of the disaster to the time when they strapped him to the wing of the rescue plane 21 days later, Johnny showed that the basic faith and character which his Czechoslovakian father and mother had given him would not fail in any emergency of life. Truly this is a great book of a great soul and it is wholly lacking in any form of cheap sentimentalism." Preston Bradley

+ Book Week p7 Je 6 '43 500w

Christian Century 60:719 Je 16 '43 200w

"Of the three books so far written about the epic adventure of Eddie Rickenbacker and the Flying Fortress crew . . . Life Out There is not the best, but it is probably the only one not 'ghost written.' For this is the story as it came from the lips of Johnny Bartek and was taken down by court stenographers. It may be a bit disjointed, and perhaps even confusing to any who may not have heard or read Captain Rickenbacker's or Lieutenant Whittaker's stories. But it has the merit of straight-forwardness and simplicity." M. W. B.

Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 30 '43 420w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 23 '43 220w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p12 Jl 11 '43 480w

BARTHOLOMEW, WILMER TILLETT. Acoustics of music. 242p il $3 Prentice-Hall

781.1 Music—Acoustics and physics 42-16017

"There are plenty of books on music, and plenty on sound and acoustics; the former written from the viewpoint of the artist, the latter from that of the physicist. But [this book] bridges these fields. Though intended for musicians and musical students, it deals clearly and scientifically with the field of sound. Discusses such topics as the nature of vibration, sound waves and their characteristics, vibratory sources of sound, harmony and scales, and hearing." Weekly Book Review

"The presentation of the subject matter in all sections save the last two seems to be adequate and well planned for a work of this size, but the writing, except in a few spots, leaves something to be desired. The subjects run down instead of ending. The purple passages are only mauve and there is a regrettable lack of punch. By these faults, Mr. Bartholomew misses the opportunity to sell an approach to music in addition to presenting merely a body of information. . . On the black side of the ledger, Mr. Bartholomew has done the best job so far in talking his way through the subject of acoustics, using the musician's language and the imagery of the musician. The musician may well find in this book a more familiar path to understanding the physical phenomena which form the basis of his art than in any other work which has come to this reviewer's attention." Harold Burris-Meyer

+ — R of Scientific Instruments 13:450 O '42 700w

"The author has produced a book that will aid musicians by making them better acquainted with the properties of the medium in which they work. It will be valuable also to the layman, since it is written with a minimum of technical terms." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p22 Je 6 '43 180w

BARTLETT, FRANCIS GRANT, and CRAWFORD, CLAUDE C. Art for all. 271p il $2.40 Harper

707 Art—Study and teaching 42-25524

"A book on 'art appreciation as related to dress, home, school and work.' (Subtitle). The two authors write from the school point of view, but the book, because it is simple and elementary in its approach, would be of value to any one interested in developing good taste in matters of dress, home furnishing or any other of the fields covered." Wis Lib Bul

School Arts 43:9a D '43 200w

"The merit of the book lies in the compilation and the excellent organization of material which has already appeared in various sources, in the spirited manner in which it is written, and in the up-to-date quality of the illustrations." K. D. Lee

+ School R 51:375 Je '43 700w

Wis Lib Bul 39:83 Je '43

BARTO, MRS EMILY NEWTON. Jack Horner; and, Song of sixpence; drawings and foreword by [the author]. [48p] 85c Longmans

43-15297

Illustrated version of two old nursery rhymes: Jack Horner and Song of Sixpence. An introduction gives the history and significance of the rhymes, which date back to the time of Henry VIII of England.

Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 20w

"Recommended in rebound edition for large libraries." B. W. Bell

Library J 68:892 N 1 '43 110w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 31 '43 90w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p8 O 24 '43 230w

Wis Lib Bul 39:160 D '43

BARTON, SIR WILLIAM. India's fateful hour. 157p il $1.50 Transatlantic [5s Murray, J]

954 India—Politics and government. World war, 1939—India [43-2177]

"A factual review of India's major problems and a level-headed analysis of the present situation. On the whole, Sir William defends British policy." Foreign Affairs

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:165 O '43 20w

"The author had a long and distinguished career in India, and writes with authority. Naturally his point of view is entirely British, but it is the point of view of one who gained and held the friendship of Indians of all sorts and conditions and there is not an unfair or unbalanced judgment in the book. . . Readers will find his character sketch of Gandhi in the last chapter most interesting and suggestive. The narrative includes Mr. Gandhi's arrest and some of its sequels." J. C.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 2 '42 130w

"Sir William Barton's book is an able defence of British rule in India against recent misrepresentations in both England and America." H. G. Rawlinson

+ Spec 170:180 F 19 '43 260w

Times [London] Lit Sup p6 Ja 2 '43 270w

BARUCH, MRS DOROTHY (WALTER). Pitter patter; pictures by Charles G. Shaw. [19p] $1 Scott,W.R.

Story and illustrations about a rainy day when everything got very wet except the small boy who wore galoshes, raincoat, and a hat. The book is cardboard and has a spiral binding.

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:817 O 15 '43 40w

"It has a lot of the 'sound' words—onomatopes to grown-ups—that youngsters like to hear and say." Lois Palmer
+ N Y Times p20 N 28 '43 80w

BARUCH, MRS DOROTHY (WALTER). You, your children, and war. 234p $2 Appleton-Century

940.53161 Child study. World war, 1939— Children 42-24563

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Reviewed by Leona Baumgartner
Am J Pub Health 34:78 Ja '44 60w

"The book has a simple, concise style in keeping with previous literary experiences, the author having written thirteen other books for children and others that have sought to reach the 'everyday' parent. Perhaps the text tends to over-simplify situations by example which the author recognizes, but in consideration of the audience sought, this is understandable. However, unhappy, fearful, and anxious people cannot be made happy, unafraid, and tranquil by merely telling them what gallant and courageous people do." W. L. Treadway
+ Ann Am Acad 226:205 Mr '43 380w

"Dr. Baruch's book points out through well-illustrated and easily understandable background material in psychology that the problems of bringing up children in wartime are not different in kind from other problems in bringing up children. . . There is more than wartime wisdom in this handbook on parental problems. It is the kind of book one is tempted to mail anonymously to a number of parents one knows." Margedent Peters
+ Book Week p8 Ap 25 '43 470w

Bookmark 4:3 My '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '43

"Surely here, as everywhere else, prevention is better than cure. If our efforts in this direction have failed, as Dr. Baruch implies, then we should either redouble them, or we should find new methods. We stand in urgent need of more books written with Dr. Baruch's vigor and earnestness, which stress this side of the picture." A. E. Benedict
+ Sat R of Lit 26:30 My 15 '43 950w

"Dr. Baruch has made a valuable contribution to the wider understanding of principles and attitudes that are still too closely confined to specialists and to individuals of exceptional insight. The chapter on boy-girl problems should be especially helpful to those who are concerned with adolescents." S. M. Gruenberg
+ Survey 79:62 F '43 300w

"Dr. Baruch writes informally and colorfully and she does not pull her punches. The poor parent has been wrong again, it seems, misled by the medical man's rigid schedules of feeding and the psychologist's warning against spoiling and coddling." Louise Pruette
+ Weekly Book Review p21 Ap 18 '43 800w

Wis Lib Bul 39:10 Ja '43

BARZUN, JACQUES. Romanticism and the modern ego. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 359p $2.75 Little

809 Romanticism 43-15826

The author "defines the perennial romantic viewpoint as a keen and vivid sense of the contrast between the potential nobility of man and the actual wretchedness of his state. He explains the special nineteenth-century romantic movement as a varied and complex attempt to build a new, post-Napoleonic world on the ruins of the old. . . Mr. Barzun makes clear that romanticism is not responsible for Fascism, that it is in essence realistic rather than escapist, and that the romanticist Rousseau is not the archdevil Irving Babbitt makes him out to be." New Yorker

"Jacques Barzun is associate professor of history at Columbia and, what is of more general value, one of the mainstays of the Sunday 'Invitation to Learning' broadcasts. His business is modern thought and culture; and his approach to it is lively, lucid and popular. His excellent book leaves you with the reflection that instead of tearing down the great Romantic figures as the origin of many of our present ills, we can, by reapproaching their work and record without prejudice or fantasy, actually draw strength and stature from these men." Peter Quinn
+ Book Week p8 N 28 '43 450w

"Undoubtedly this book, originally delivered as a set of lectures at the Lowell Institute, will be uncritically praised by some and categorically condemned by others. The true evaluation would seem to lie somewhere between. It will make Babbitt and More and the Humanists turn in their graves. Catholics will be irritated to find the author failing to see the inclusiveness and yet the stability of the Church. . . The book is very provocative all the way through, and unless it is read critically, it may add to the mental confusion it seeks to clarify." John Pick
Cath World 158:405 Ja '44 550w

Reviewed by J. H. Randall, Jr.
J Philos 40:635 N 11 '43 2050w

"Difficult reading; small general libraries definitely will not need." Margaret Owen
Library J 68:843 O 15 '43 90w

Reviewed by E. R. Bentley
Nation 158:46 Ja 8 '44 1400w

" 'Romanticism and the Modern Ego,' though it lacks the vast learning and high seriousness of 'Rousseau and Romanticism,' has all the intellectual flexibility and esthetic sympathy that are conspicuously absent from Babbitt's work. Mr. Barzun's approach is the more fruitful, because we have more to learn from the great achievements of the romanticists than from their little failings. But why, after successfully defending Rousseau, must he take the offensive against Locke and Montesquieu?" Harry Levin
+ — New Repub 109:584 O 25 '43 1200w

"Convinced that romanticism is a much misunderstood and at the same time a very living force, Professor Barzun outlines its origins, delineates its relation to classicism and to the modern ego, illustrates the contradictory usages to which the term romanticism itself has been put, and argues convincingly for its acceptance as a necessary tool for the reconstruction of society today and tomorrow. That the book does this would alone, of course, justify wide and thoughtful reading. In addition, it exemplifies an almost startling knowledge of music, painting, literature, philosophy and history. It is both lucid and brilliant." Merle Curti
+ N Y Times p9 D 19 '43 850w

"Beautifully organized and developed discussion." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:93 O 23 '43 180w

"Mr. Barzun has won his place in the front rank of our philosopher historians. Our only regret is that he did not carry his analysis further and our only criticism of his brilliantly written little volume is that it is too brief." Christian Gauss
+ Sat R of Lit 26:24 D 4 '43 1300w

"Mr. Barzun ends his book with admirable restraint. He does not prophesy and he does not advocate. He regards with equanimity the prospect that the warring years through which we are passing may be succeeded by a new and futile attempt at classical unity and order. He merely shows beyond peradventure that the world's destiny will ultimately be shaped, if not by us, then by others who have the courage, like the great romanticist, to risk all they have and are on their faith in man. . . Let us say simply that this is one of the books by which the temper of our time is tested." G. F. Whicher
Weekly Book Review p5 O 31 '43 1900w

BASCH, ANTONIN. Danube basin and the German economic sphere. 275p $3.50 Columbia univ. press

330.94 Danubian countries. Germany—Economic policy. Europe—Economic conditions 43-17095

"[This book] analyzes in detail, with many statistics, economic conditions in seven Danubian countries, including Greece, and their trade relations with Germany between 1920 and 1940. Their agriculture and industries are explained with their need for world markets and Germany's economic penetration, which ultimately dominated them, is described. Finally suggestions are made for their postwar reconstruction." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:157 Ja 1 '44

Christian Century 61:49 Ja 12 '44 100w

"This is an important monograph but not a popular book. Recommended for large libraries and those which are developing collections upon European conditions between two world wars. Also it will be of value where studies of postwar problems are in progress." F. L. D. Goodrich

+ Library J 68:957 N 15 '43 110w

New Repub 110:190 F 7 '44 210w

"Prof. Antonin Basch combines the statesman's practical aptitude with the scholar's knowledge of scientific method. He has held important positions in the political and academic world as the head of the research and central banking department of the national bank of his country, Czechoslovakia; her delegate to the International Bank of Basle, to the World Economic Conference at Geneva; a commercial attaché of the Czech Legation in Berlin; a member of the economic conference of the Little Entente; a teacher of economics at Prague and a visiting professor at Brown University." Emil Lengyel

+ N Y Times p16 Ja 30 '44 500w

"This volume will probably miss the wide reading it deserves, because of the sober style in which it is written and because of the many statistical tables with which the pages are interlarded. This is a pity, because here a man of reason and knowledge is speaking. The problems he describes are inescapable, the formulas already tried have proved impotent, and progress waits upon a fuller understanding by the western world of its own far-reaching economic connections." Alzada Comstock

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 4 '44 800w

BASIC science education series. ea 21c Row

600 Science—Juvenile literature

"The Basic Science Education Series is planned to include 65 Unitexts for science classes in the intermediate grades and junior high school. About half of the titles are still in preparation. Each book deals with a specific subject in the biological or physical sciences as the titles indicate: 'The sky about us,' 'Our ocean of air,' 'Birds,' 'Stories read from rocks.' 'Our servant of electricity.' Bertha Morris Parker, who teaches at the Laboratory Schools of the University of Chicago is described by the publishers as the supervising author. Her name appears as the author of each book, though on some title-pages a joint author or the name of the person who checked the book for scientific accuracy is also listed. The vocabulary is simple and the print is large. There are a few well-selected study questions at the end of each book." Subscription Bks Bul

"The books are of value as supplementary library materials for school and children's libraries. The information is accurate and readable. The illustrations, particularly those in color, add notably to the attractiveness of the books. . . Recommended as individual titles for all school and public libraries."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 13:44 O '42 320w

BASIC social education series. ea 21-40c Row

300 Sociology—Juvenile literature

"The Basic Social Education Series is designed for a social studies program extending from the first through the twelfth grades. Present plans provide for many titles on all grade levels; to date 22 have been published for the intermediate and junior high school grades. According to the publishers, 'Each book in the series covers some one aspect of the social environment which is of immediate concern and importance to the student, and of significance in the development of the social understandings and attitudes needed in a democracy.' " Subscription Bks Bul

"The books are of value as supplementary library materials for school and children's libraries. The information is accurate and readable. The illustrations, particularly those in color, add notably to the attractiveness of the books. . . Recommended as individual titles for all school and public libraries."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 13:44 O '42 320w

BASSECHES, NIKOLAUS. Unknown army; the nature and history of the Russian military forces; tr. by Marion Saerchinger. 239p $2.50 Viking

355 Russia—Army. Russia—History, Military 43-8967

A history of the development of the Russian army from the twelfth century to the time of Stalin. Besides tracing the historical backgrounds of the army, the author, an Austrian correspondent who has lived in Russia for twenty years, attempts to integrate the army with the Russian people, their leaders, and their environment. No index.

Am Soc R 8:624 O '43 50w

"Basseches' book certainly will help to clear up our misconception of Russia and it therefore is a contribution to the war effort." F. K. Richter

+ Book Week p6 Jl 18 '43 750w

Booklist 39:439 Jl 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

"The present author gives no statistics, neither his own nor the Soviet's. His theme is to approach the subject historically, and from inferences based on history. It is probably as accurate a method as any, and certainly a most interesting book is the result." J. R. Lewis

+ Current Hist 4:338 Jl '43 1000w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:163 O '43 20w

Manchester Guardian p3 N 19 '43 150w

"There are no sensational revelations or startling exposes in his analysis. There is little that could be called inside material. But Mr. Basseches has written the best background of the Soviet Army that this reviewer has seen. He has presented the facts simply and objectively; he has made no attempt to dramatize them. And the translator has turned out a lucid, readable job." H. C. Wolfe

+ N Y Times p6 Je 13 '43 1050w

"An extraordinarily interesting and readable study. . . Intelligent, nonstatistical, and generally objective, though a trifle arbitrary here and there. The translation is competent, on the whole."

+ — New Yorker 19:79 Je 19 '43 130w

"The book abounds in much shrewd observation, also in not a few ancient and unfounded generalizations. . . But these generalizations mar but slightly the exceptional quality of the book Mr. Basseches has written. It is scholarly and informing. To the historically-minded person it is an invaluable document." Maurice Hindus

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:9 Jl 10 '43 600w

Spec 171:392 O 22 '43 180w

BASSET, ELSIE. Cataloging manual for law libraries. 365p $5 Wilson, H.W.

025.3 Cataloging—Law. Classification—Books—Law 43-9

"General cataloging principles and procedures are explained with directions and suggestions for cataloging law books. Special problems of a law catalog, especially subject headings and classification, are treated in detail, with specific aids and outlines given in the appendixes. The book is for use of the cataloger of a general library transferred to a law library and for the person with a knowledge of law but no library training or experience. Bibliographies are carefully arranged by subject to meet the needs of both types of users." Booklist

Booklist 39:269 Mr 1 '43

"Miss Basset's A Cataloging Manual for Law Libraries is the first work in this special field, yet is so complete and well prepared that it will be the basis for the continued improvement of law library methods for many years. It is a valuable contribution to systematic, scientific law cataloging and should aid in establishing uniformity of methods and technique." H. H. Fort

+ Library J 68:245 Mr 15 '43 1300w

"This volume, together with Price's A Catalog for a Law Library of 15,000 Volumes, also published in 1942, will make the task of law catalogers in libraries, both large and small, immeasurably easier. It is a genuine pleasure to report a contribution such as this." O. C. Orman

+ Library Q 13:276 Jl '43 750w

BASSETT, SARA WARE. Anchorage. 182p $2 Doubleday

43-10063

Against her parents' wishes a fine Boston girl marries a handsome young waster, and the two go to live on Cape Cod. A crisis arises and the young husband makes a mess of his marriage, but not of his own life.

Booklist 39:463 Jl 15 '43

"Recommended." Catherine Van Dyne

+ Library J 68:476 Je 1 '43 70w

"There is nothing very new or striking about any of it and that, of course, is its principal charm. It evokes an emotion of recognition in most Americans." Margaret Wallace

+ N Y Times p12 Je 20 '43 440w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 110w

"Wholesome and folksy, touched with native humor and the spirit of neighborliness." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p16 Je 20 '43 220w

BASSO, HAMILTON. Mainstream. 246p $2.50 Reynal

920 National characteristics, American. U.S. —Biography 43-15107

Character study of one John Applegate, typical American small businessman. In order to show the heritage of John Applegate, the author picks out typical Americans—John Smith, Cotton Mather, Jefferson, Calhoun, Lincoln, Carnegie, and the two Roosevelts—and shows the effects of these men on his hero. Index.

"Whatever may be thought of 'Mainstream,' it cannot be denied that by his adroit use of the methods of historian, biographer and novelist in combination Hamilton Basso has made, for the time being at least, a significant contribution to the increasing lore about the American way of life." August Derleth

Book Week p2 O 24 '43 600w

Booklist 40:143 D 15 '43

Reviewed by W. F. Sands

Commonweal 39:100 N 12 '43 420w

"Thoughtful, interesting and readable study with no pretensions to authority or completeness and with admission of prejudice in favor of plain people. Recommended for all John Applegates." G. W. Hill

+ Library J 68:767 O 1 '43 110w

"The book provides unrationed food for thought, and entertainment with a most reasonable price ceiling. In other words, it is a rare bargain." Albert Guerard

+ Nation 157:765 D 25 '43 900w

"No one can doubt the anti-intellectualism of the plain people, which Mr. Basso makes much of; but he may have done less than justice to the place of folk art, whether of the traditional sort or its modern equivalents, in the lives of the people. But these, perhaps, are minor matters. In the broad outlines, in the sweep and in the beautiful economy of the work, above all in the thoughtful and judicious treatment of the main theme, this essay may well come to be regarded not only as a book of and for the times, but for tomorrow as well. One has to think at least three times before reading a book these days. 'Mainstream' will certainly be for many people a delightful and valuable experience." Merle Curti

+ — New Repub 109:690 N 15 '43 1050w

"A provocative and highly readable volume of biographical essays, all written with grace, eloquence and wit." F. L. Shuman

+ N Y Times p4 N 28 '43 800w

"The theory is highly arguable, the demonstration of it fresh and lively."

+ New Yorker 19:96 O 30 '43 70w

Reviewed by Jonathan Daniels

Sat R of Lit 27:7 Ja 22 '44 270w

Time 42:100 N 15 '43 1050w

"Beshrew me if I believe that picture is one of John Applegate. It is familiar enough, but it is a picture, not of Johnny in 1943, but of George Babbitt, in 1922. It is my firm conviction that there is an appreciable difference between the two. For example, I doubt that John Applegate retains Babbitt's faith in bigness, or much of his faith in the moral excellence of wealth. In short, I suspect Mr. Basso of having examined his main stream at a point considerably above the present crest of high water. However, that is mere opinion, and every man is entitled to his own. What is certain is that he has written an honest, an entertaining and an illuminating book." G. W. Johnson

+ — Weekly Book Review p4 O 24 '43 1650w

Wis Lib Bul 39:157 D '43

BATCHELDER, ANN. East of Bridgewater, and other poems; foreword by Bruce Gould. 112p $2 Dutton

811 43-13503

A volume of short poems, both light and serious in mood, reprinted from the Ladies Home Journal.

"Though one could hardly call Ann Batchelder a serious poet in the same way that the term is applied to the classic poets and some of our moderns, she is serious in her purpose and in her tone. She has a certain facility for handling her material and does not attempt something beyond her scope. There is a homely quality to these poems that many readers would enjoy should they go 'East of Bridgewater.'" E. P. W.

+ Springf'd Republican p6 D 13 '43 460w

"This is a volume of neatly turned, agreeable, unpretentious verses. . . The author writes pleasantly of her nostalgia for the country and the country town—for the hills, the brooks, the birds, the mill, the church, the streets, the haying and the snow. She composes charitable epitaphs for the neighbors, but her analysis of human relationships in general are perhaps too charitable to be very interesting."

Weekly Book Review p12 N 21 '43 300w

BATEMAN, ALAN MARA. Economic mineral deposits. 898p il maps $6.50 Wiley

553 Geology, Economic. Ore deposits

43-259

"Author is professor of economic geology at Yale University. Part I: General treatment of principles and processes. Part II: Discussions of various metals. Part III: Non-metallic minerals grouped by usage. Ready reference guide to all deposits of the world. For elementary and advanced students." (Library J) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter

Book Week p7 Je 6 '43 850w

Booklist 39:246 F 15 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Jl '43

BATEMAN, A. M.—Continued
Reviewed by R. R. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:5 Jl '43 40w

"The author of this latest American textbook on applied geology speaks from the rich background of an unusually varied experience as professor of economic geology at Yale University and as a successful consultant, an experience which he is now applying as chief of the Metals and Minerals Division of the Board of Economic Warfare. While the book is of moderate size, its range includes almost the entire field of applied geology—a range that few authors have had the temerity to enclose within the covers of a single volume." E. S. B.
+ J Geol 51:213 Ap '43 750w
Library J 67:1066 D 1 '42 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:14 Ja '43

"Dr. Alan Bateman's book, too modestly called elementary, includes not only the customary fundamentals of the technical field but something of the history and philosophy of the study of mineral deposits as well. An abundance of well-chosen diagrams constitutes a fundamental part of the book. Occasional word pictures add interest." Paul Kerr
+ N Y Times p27 Ap 4 '43 550w

BATES, HERBERT ERNEST (FLYING OFFICER X, pseud). There's something in the air, by Flying Officer X [Eng title: The greatest people in the world]. 172p $2 Knopf [2s Cape, J]
43-6006

Twenty-one short stories of the men who fly the R.A.F. planes—how they fight, and why, and what they do in their off time.

"There's Something in the Air is a perfect book for a mood in times like these. The mood is too tense, too painful to last, but it is recurrent, and in it Bates, the artist, well-nigh touches perfection." Ellery Sedgwick
+ Atlantic 172:127 Jl '43 240w
Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky
Book Week p5 Jl 4 '43 70w
Booklist 39:443 Jl 1 '43
Bookmark 4:17 My '43

"Very rarely has Mr. Bates included a story with an integrated plot. For the most part his object has been solely to produce character studies, short and clear, and of beautiful, incisive simplicity, so that we may unmistakably see what manner of men these are who are even now flying over Germany." W. K. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 4 '43 500w

"Mr. H. E. Bates has naturally turned out readable tales, but they are hardly more than that. An unprecedented form of State patronage seems to have sat heavily on the author, whose stories are too slickly turned, whose pilots are a thought too heroic (or seem so to Mr. Bates; the first of them would seem poisonous to most people), and one of whose aircraft, at least, is more than a thought too anthropomorphised." C. R.
Manchester Guardian p3 O 23 '42 100w
Reviewed by Muriel Rukeyser
New Repub 108:867 Je 28 '43 600w

"It is an open secret that this little book of stories about Bomber Command is the work of Mr. H. E. Bates, and it shows great intelligence and imagination on the part of someone in authority that he should have been given the opportunity of writing them." T. C. Worsley
+ New Statesman & Nation 24:294 O 31 '42 850w

"Here is sheer beauty in writing. This little volume of short pieces will give the reader a clearer conception of the combat's thinking, fighting, living, than anything that has come before. The little tales are gems cut from purest carbon, handed down so that they spit cold fire." Meyer Berger
+ N Y Times p3 My 16 '43 800w

"Mr. Bates is more interested in the character behind action than in action itself, and his twenty-one short sketches are predominantly character sketches. Action is there, but it is for the most part subsidiary or illustrative. The result is a quiet book, a designedly quiet book. At times a reader might feel that the author has pushed his design too far; that his reticences are almost exhibitionistic, his under-writing a kind of exaggeration, his silences thunderous. He throws lines away instead of leaning on them, he lowers his voice instead of raising it. But so do most of those of whom he is writing." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 Je 5 '43 750w

"Mr. Bates has foreseen the dangers of his undertaking, and I doubt if they could have been much better handled. To catch together the routine and the spirit of an airman's life today, he uses a free and gentle naturalism, which he manages to extend both inwardly and outwardly, through exposure of deeply private emotions, and also by means of an unstressed, universalising symbolism. His material is, of course, magnificent, and he makes very moving use of it. And if at times the emotion of the stories presses too close upon us, we must blame the time for that, not Mr. Bates." Kate O'Brien
+ Spec 169:366 O 16 '42 260w
Reviewed by Frederick Reinstein
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 13 '43 370w
Time 41:97 My 17 '43 380w

"Those who are interested in aviation will welcome this belated tribute to the men who fly against the enemy in bombers; so far 'Bomber Command' has been the 'silent service' of the R.A.F. The volume consists of several delightful cameos of bomber crews at work and play, tells of their reactions to danger and the responsibility of taking into action several other men and a valuable aircraft; and tells something, too, of the sort of men who have become pilots."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p537 O 31 '42 210w

"The root of all these stories of R. A. F. flyers is sacrifice. But Mr. Bates, being a true Anglo-Saxon and a true writer, keeps the root well underground. Sacrifice, implicit in every action, is never mentioned. No high-blown praise mars the account of daily heroism which is beyond words or praise. On the contrary, Mr. Bates writes so reticently, with so much understatement, and his young flyers exchange such brief and almost shame-faced talk about their feats, that only the streamlined modern Anglo-Saxon mind could appreciate the tribute which he pays them." Virgilia Sapieha
+ Weekly Book Review p3 My 30 '43 1150w

BATTLE, FLORENCE. Jerry goes fishing; pictures by Jack Merryweather. 60p 65c Beckley-Cardy 42-51984

"A book of first-grade vocabulary prepared for the pure fun of reading. Whimsical illustrations in color are furnished by Jack Merryweather." School & Society

School & Society 56:616 D 19 '43 20w
Wis Lib Bul 39:43 Mr '43

BAUDELAIRE, CHARLES PIERRE. Mirror of Baudelaire; adaptations by Charles Henri Ford; pref. by Paul Eluard and a drawing of Baudelaire by Matisse. $1; pa 50c New directions 841

Translations and the French originals of three Baudelaire poems: Le Voyage; Le Cygne; and Un Voyage à Cythère.

Reviewed by M. D. Zabel
Nation 156:781 My 29 '43 550w

"Mr. Ford chose to work on no more than three poems. . . Although they do not sufficiently show the rich variety of Baudelaire's flora, this concentration of effort on poems so memorable would seem to have been the part of wisdom. Unfortunately, however, Mr. Ford has not given his versions the patient polishing they require. That he has not troubled to follow either the cadences or the rhyme schemes of the originals is less excusable, since he has not used to advantage the liberty this refusal entailed. Instead, he has taken further freedoms. He capitalizes words that Baudelaire did not thus distinguish. He introduces adjectives and even metaphors of his own. He mistranslates. Indeed, what he has given us are, as he acknowledges, adaptations rather than translations, and they leave the reader almost as acutely aware of the hand of the adapter as of that of the poet." Babette Deutsch

New Repub 108:421 Mr 29 '43 300w

"The little volume is anything but a mirror of the poet. . . The translator indulges in that dangerous but not uncommon practice of putting in words that are not in the original. For instance, he translates La Circé tyrannique aux dangereux parfums as 'Oh the perfumes of Circe, the power and the pig.' There is neither 'power' nor 'pig' in the original text. But apart from the misrepresentations, nothing could be more remote from the spirit of Baudelaire than the rendering of the famous line, Le spectacle ennuyeux de l'immortel péché, as 'the tedious drama of undying sin.' Baudelaire meant 'immortal sin' in contrast to the theological 'mortal sin.' " M. M. Colum

— N Y Times p22 My 23 '43 280w

"The translations are odd in spots, but everything else, including the format, is all right."

+ — New Yorker 19:71 Mr 20 '43 50w

Reviewed by Edwin Honig

Poetry 62:283 Ag '43 330w

BAUER, WILLIAM WALDO, and BAUER, MRS FLORENCE ANNE (MARVYNE). Eat what you want! a sensible guide to good health through good eating; with an introd. by Morris Fishbein. 263p $2 Greenberg

612.39 Nutrition. Diet 42-23568

"This book tells how to get your necessary quota of vitamins, minerals, and calories without foregoing any of the joys of good food and how to recognize the wide variety of available foods and how to classify them in a broad, general way for their nutritional usefulness." (Publisher's note) Index.

"This volume contains a surprising amount of exact nutrition information, presented in a popular style by a trained publicist. It attempts to make the acquisition of this knowledge as painless as possible and succeeds very well if the reader be above average in intelligence, and does not object to a loquacious rather patronizing style of writing. The book is quite evidently addressed to the economic group that can afford and can purchase satisfactory diets, though Chapter VIII comes to grips with the problem of low-cost meals." D. F. Milam

+ Am J Pub Health 33:180 F '43 430w

Booklist 39:178 Ja 1 '43

Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 2 '43 600w

BAUGHMAN, HAROLD EUGENE. Aviation dictionary and reference guide; aerothesaurus. 2d ed 906p il $6.50 Aero pubs. inc.

629.13 Aeronautics—Dictionaries 42-18558

"Over 300 pages have been added to this edition by the expansion of the Dictionary and the Directory sections, and the inclusion of new topics such as Radio range orientation, and Radiotelephone transmission. An additional feature is a Guide to studies for airmen, which is a selection and classification of U.S. government publications." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 68:430 My 15 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:25 Ap '43

"Baughman's Aviation Dictionary and Reference Guide will be a useful addition to most libraries, and is recommended to all who are interested in aircraft manufacture, operation or maintenance, and in aeronautical education."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:36 O '43 480w

BAUM, ROBERT DAVID. Federal power commission and state utility regulation. 301p $3.75; pa $3 Am. council on public affairs

380.1682 Public utilities—U.S. U.S. Federal power commission 43-9263

"Full-length monograph on the Federal Power Commission based upon published books and articles, materials obtained at the Federal Power Commission, visits to two of the state utility commissions, questionnaires directed to twenty commissions, and conversations with members of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners and the North Dakota commission. Though sufficient materials are included to give the reader a clear picture of the Power Commission, its history, powers, and functions, the book is not primarily a study of internal organization and management, but rather a painstaking analysis of the manner in which the F.P.C. conducts itself in an area where state utility commissions have a concurrent interest." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by E. O. Malott

Am Econ R 33:692 S '43 1250w

"The study is in every way favorable to the federal agency. . . While this view is justified by the evidence presented, critics of centralization are likely to feel that Mr. Baum might have been less laudatory had he spent more time visiting and working with the state officials, or had he listened to some of the explosions which occur in city and town halls upon receipt of F.P.C. forms and questionnaires which are too often beyond the comprehension of reasonably competent public servants." J. H. Ferguson

+ — Am Pol Sci R 37:362 Ap '43 380w

"It should be said that Dr. Baum's book is the most authoritative, informative, and complete report on the procedures and experiences of Power Commission administration that has become available. It is relatively less authoritative, however, where the history and the process of state commission regulation are the subject of consideration." J. R. Foster

+ — Ann Am Acad 228:136 Jl '43 1050w

"On the whole, the work seems to be a careful, impartial, and complete survey. . . Not every reader will agree with the author's conclusions." G. K. Reiblich

+ — Harvard Law R 56:1348 Jl '43 1650w

Springf'd Republican p8 Jl 15 '43 90w

BAUM, VICKI. The weeping wood. 531p $3 Doubleday

43-15655

"A number of loosely knit tales, some of them rousing and dramatic, about people whose lives have been shaped in one way or another by rubber. Beginning in the Brazil of the seventeen-forties, the story jumps about from Boston in the middle of the last century, to the botanical gardens at Kew, to Sumatra just before the last war, to Nazi Germany, to Akron, Ohio, and to present-day Washington and New York." New Yorker

"The book has none of the usual defects of novels written to inform. Miss Baum has never forgotten that rubber is only interesting and important through its effect on people. Her book is about people, and the research behind her stories never intrudes on their brisk and easy telling." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 172:139 D '43 90w

" 'The Weeping Wood' is a singularly important war book, and in addition it is solid, lucid and clear history, the reading of which can aid every American in understanding his One War and his One World." Ralph Peterson

+ Book Week p1 O 17 '43 900w

Booklist 40:146 D 15 '43

Reviewed by Dorothy Hillyer

Boston Globe p17 O 27 '43 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '43

"Some of the writing in 'The Weeping Wood' is excellent—nervous and well articulated. Occasionally it drags a little, especially—and unfortunately—in the opening pages of the book.

BAUM, VICKI—Continued
It seems scarcely necessary to add that Miss Baum is inclined to spice her narrative with sex a little more than some readers might like, and certainly the cruelty which she recounts—historically accurate as it is—makes many of her pages sad indeed."
+ — Commonweal 39:233 D 17 '43 700w

"The first book treats only of things past; the second mainly of the present. Since the first book is semi-historical, the spots where fact and fiction are interwoven are obvious and, therefore, of no great concern. The practice of leavening fact with fiction is more objectionable in the second book because most readers will not be able to differentiate between the two. . . About the only redeeming feature of Miss Baum's book is the chapter 'American Mural.' " R. F. Wolf
— + New Repub 110:188 F 7 '44 850w

"The fifteen chapters are grim, gay, mercilessly ironic, romantic and horrible. The one dealing with the Putumayo atrocities is unbearably painful reading; the more so as it is based on proved facts from an official British blue book. Yet nothing could be frothier than 'Caprice Viennois,' a delightful variation on 'Buy me-a-mink-coat, Daddy!' theme. These two chapters represent the extremes. In between are dozens of other people whose destinies were shaped by rubber. . . It was a big job Miss Baum marked out for herself. She may well be satisfied, for it is hard to see how she could have done a better one." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p4 O 17 '43 400w

"The publishers call this the story of rubber, but thoroughgoing, prosaic readers may decide that a better way to learn about the subject is to look it up in any good encyclopedia."
New Yorker 19:87 O 16 '43 130w

" 'The Weeping Wood' was a prodigious undertaking even for a writer of Miss Baum's ability and that so varied and sprawling a theme has been given dramatic coherence is a distinctive writing achievement. Miss Baum's success with 'The Weeping Wood' is indeed phenomenal." L. S. Munn
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 24 '43 600w

"Miss Baum does not pull her punches and it will be odd if there are not some resentments and angry disavowals of fictionalized flashes of corporation tactics, factory methods, and governmental procedures. Events become embarrassingly actual when they appear in terms of the lives of individuals, rather than as dates and statistics. Because she is a first-rate storyteller, and this is a story of importance to the world as well as those who lived it, Miss Baum's book has the drama and suspense of a novel, crowded with convincing glimpses of people of colors, times and places." Mary Ross
+ Weekly Book Review p16 O 24 '43 850w

BAWDEN, ARTHUR TALBOT. Man's physical universe; a survey of physical science for colleges. rev ed 832p il $4 Macmillan
500 Science 43-1729

"Offers a comprehensive view of the most important facts in astronomy, geology, physics, meteorology and chemistry. The aim is to show the relation between science and technology and to aid the student in determining whether he wishes to specialize in any aspect of the field." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Index.

"The work is written in a very interesting style which often carries one on through descriptions of subjects with which he may already be familiar. The material, drawn from a wide variety of sources, is accurate and modern. The illustrations are numerous and striking. The indices are quite adequate. Some parts of the work would be quite suitable for high school use, others more for a general science course in junior college. . . Owing to the wide variety of topics any reader is sure to find something of interest to him treated in a way to invite further explorations—a good test for any text." S. C. Lind
+ J Phys Chem 47:411 My '43 350w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:16 Ja '43

BAXTER, BERNICE, and CASSIDY, ROSALIND FRANCES. Group experience; the democratic way. 218p $2.50 Harper
301.153 Group work. Leadership 43-17953

"Here is a study of actual experiences with group leadership in such typical situations as city-block organization under the OCD, and summer-camp activities under trained leadership. How leadership is democratically exercised in face-to-face groups, and how such groups can forward the processes of basic education are considered in specific terms and general principles." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"This is an expert analysis fortified by much illustrative material drawn from the wide experience of the authors."
+ Christian Century 60:1507 D 22 '43 80w

"It will serve as a guide for all who are preparing youth for participation in democracy and as a text for educators in both formal and informal leadership relations."
+ School & Society 58:431 N 27 '43 90w

"The book has been written primarily for young men and women who are preparing to guide youth toward responsible citizenship in a democracy. For those already engaged in such leadership, the book will be found to have possibly greater value. It is not a study to be easily mastered by the volunteer group leader who is not deeply interested in his task." E. M. R.
+ Springf'd Republican p8 Ja 13 '44 340w

BAYER, OLIVER WELD. Paper chase. 277p $2 Doubleday
43-10420

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p6 Jl 18 '43 230w

"Oliver Weld Bayer is a new author, who displays a genuine talent for mystification and suspense." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p8 Je 27 '43 160w

"Quick, light reading, and a promising first mystery."
+ New Yorker 19:72 Je 26 '43 100w

"Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:39 Je 19 '43 40w

"Try this for light, amusing bafflement." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p18 Je 20 '43 190w

BAYLER, WALTER LEWIS JOHN. Last man off Wake island; a first-person narrative as told to Cecil Carnes. 367p il maps $2.75 Bobbs
940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—Pacific ocean 43-6371

Account of the battles of Wake island, Midway and Guadalcanal as they appeared to Lieutenant Colonel Bayler. Colonel Bayler is a communications officer and radio expert, who was sent to Wake to install communications, and arrived on November 29, 1941. He was the last free American to leave the island before its fall. Index.

Atlantic 171:131 Je '43 120w

"This exciting, eventful volume packs informative and important material along with its powerful, dramatic punches. It deserves a place on your shelf with 'Guadalcanal Diary' and 'Into the Valley.' " David Costine
+ Book Week p1 My 16 '43 600w
Booklist 39:384 Je 1 '43
Bookmark 4:12 My '43

"It is the kind of narrative which combines the charm of actual history with the excitement of fiction told in lively up-to-date newspaper style."
+ Cath World 157:558 Ag '43 130w

"The account of the raids by land and sea on the American output is factual and informative, though the 'I' tends to monopolize the foreground overmuch and the technique of combining the personal and the intimate with the historically significant, is wanting. Consequently, much that is recorded seems trivial and banal. Nevertheless the book holds reader interest throughout the account of events on Wake Island." E. S.

Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 17 '43 230w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Jl '43

"'Last Man Off Wake Island' is no literary masterpiece, but it is good honest stuff and right from the heart. If you want a moving word picture of the life of one man in almost continuous battle, week in, week out, for almost a year, this is it. There are good maps and photographs and a complete roster of the marine detachment of the First Defense Battalion that fought on Wake Island. The collaboration of Cecil Carnes seems to have been decidedly useful." Jim Marshall
+ N Y Times p3 My 2 '43 1100w

"Most of his story is fresh and, as befits a Marine of the ancient breed, pithy and humorous."
+ New Yorker 19:83 My 8 '43 80w

"Col Bayler is the only man who has fought on all three islands and his personal narrative of these historic battles should have packed a dramatic wallop. But Cecil Carnes of the 'We the People' radio program, who put the book in its final shape, has seen fit to cloak the story with determinedly light-hearted verbiage. Thus in the midst of the most absorbing bits, the reader is often pulled up short by some sort of a wisecrack or offhand remark. Nevertheless, the kind of action that Col Bayler saw and participated in at Wake, Midway and Guadalcanal was so exciting in itself that the telling of it cannot be completely dulled even by an overly wordy literary style." M. R. B.
— + Springf'd Republican p7e My 2 '43 370w

"The fighting capacity of the United States Marine Corps has been so celebrated for so many years that it would seem a little difficult today to bring it any greater glory. Yet here is a book which adds its bit to the glowing record, and to the pride of Americans in their soldiers of the sea." Allen Raymond
+ Weekly Book Review p2 My 9 '43 1000w

Reviewed by J. D. Adams
Yale R ns 32:791 summer '43 50w

BEALS, CARLETON. Dawn over the Amazon. 536p $3 Duell
43-51209

"Thriller whose background is the third world war in 1950, following a peace in which the Allies have neglected to enforce their demand for unconditional surrender. Grant Hammond, an American engineer, is in South America with a plan to save the hemisphere and democracy through a super-TVA project for the Amazon valley when the Axis invades Chile and Brazil. The rest of the story concerns the effort to prevent a junction of the Nazis and Japs on the Amazon." (New Yorker) Glossary.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p3 Jl 11 '43 360w

Booklist 39:463 Jl 15 '43

Cath World 158:220 N '43 160w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Jl '43

"Will be read with interest by many wanting adventure, romance, or international affairs." Margaret Winning
+ Library J 68:530 Je 15 '43 130w

"I am mystified to understand why in these days of paper rationing a novel as large, foolish, and inept as Carleton Beals's 'Dawn over the Amazon' should be worth publishing. . . I may be in a minority in feeling that a trivial adventure-and-intrigue story set in South America in 1950, at the start of a new world war, is scarcely invigorating propaganda in 1943." Diana Trilling
— Nation 157:107 Jl 24 '43 220w

"The best writing in the book is the account of jungle travel and guerilla battles. If the casual reader does any skipping, it will be of the multitudinous love passages, which have a distressing sameness. The political and economic views of the Reaper and Hammond on the other hand, will merit rereading. Mr. Beals is thoroughly at home in Latin-America, politically and socially, as well as geographically, and, though he disclaims prophecy his voice is that of authority." N. B. Baker
+ — N Y Times p4 Jl 11 '43 700w

"From his intimate knowledge of South America, the author supplies interesting details of local color, but he does not come off nearly so well in characterization."
+ — New Yorker 19:70 Je 26 '43 130w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 1 '43 550w

Reviewed by George Conrad
Weekly Book Review p10 Je 27 '43 750w

BEALS, CARLETON. Rio Grande to Cape Horn. 377p $3.50 Houghton
918 Latin America 43-51253

An account of Latin America in its economic, social and political aspects and particularly in regard to the attitudes of the various countries toward the United States. Index.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 S 19 '43 500w

Booklist 40:45 O 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '43

"Another political, economic and historical appraisal of the other American Republics. Valuable to students or persons interested in a condensed, general knowledge of those countries. It does not, however, seem to add very much to Mr. Beals's previous book, 'Americas to the South,' except that it also endeavors to analyze the attitude of the Latin American Republics towards the United States." L. V. Vila
Commonweal 38:592 O 1 '43 140w

New Repub 109:497 O 11 '43 150w

"Carleton Beals spreads before the reader a true picture of Latin America in all her complexity; he shows you our neighbors, good and bad. . . Mr. Beals' style, although it stumbles in many spots, is full of irony, whimsy, color and sometimes poetry." Lloyd Mallan
+ — N Y Times p9 S 26 '43 950w

"Not too well organized, but entertaining and valuable for its understanding and its broad, factual grasp of regional and national qualities."
+ — New Yorker 19:88 O 2 '43 90w

"For all his years of experience with things Latin-American, there are times when the reader would be well advised to take Mr. Beals's remarks with a good pinch of salt." C. A. Hutchinson
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:48 O 16 '43 650w

"There was a day when Mr. Beals's writing always seemed to assume that the oppositionists were lily-white, and that all duly entrenched powers were foul. I do not get that impression from this book. He even gets quite lyrical over the contributions of the Mexican Foreign Minister—a little too lyrical, it seems to me. But no matter. By and large, he has done a discerning and a discriminating job." Hubert Herring
+ — Weekly Book Review p4 O 3 '43 900w

Wis Lib Bul 39:144 N '43

BEARD, CHARLES AUSTIN. The republic; conversations on fundamentals. 365p $3 Viking 342.73 U.S.—Politics and government
43-14333

Series of conversations in which the growth of the American republic is discussed. Partial contents: Democracy and rights under the constitution; Washington and Jefferson exemplify constitutionalism; Lincoln exemplifies constitutionalism; Domestic tranquility and common defense; Rights of American citizens; Freedom of speech and press; Religious liberty; Power and the control of power; Congress as power; The executive as power; The judiciary as power; Critique of the federal system; The republic in the world of nations; The fate and fortunes of our republic.

BEARD, C. A.—Continued

Reviewed by F. K. Richter
Book Week p2 O 17 '43 200w

Booklist 40:71 N 1 '43

Reviewed by F. H. Underhill
Canadian Forum 23:212 D '43 750w

Christian Science Monitor p14 O 18 '43 650w

"The outstanding point is that the author 'doesn't know.' Granted. Of course he doesn't know 'facts' of history that are scientifically demonstrable. He is forced, therefore, to record human reaction, to behaviorism, in a word. Out of human reactions, out of human behavior, he deduces American history. That is as dangerous in its results upon unformed minds as is the similar procedure of certain brilliant professors connected with the Harvard Law School. You bog down between scrupulosity, leaving a mental vacuum; and discarding any consideration of principle in favor of a hard mental 'new' positivism." W. F. Sands
— Commonweal 38:616 O 8 '43 350w

"Brilliant interpretation based on years of profound scholarship which will undoubtedly prove of lasting value. Highly recommended for all libraries." G. W. Wakefield
+ Library J 68:767 O 1 '43 110w

"It is an inspiring course in the fundamental issues of government and democracy. No intelligent person will find political science dull after reading it, whether he agrees with Beard or not. It should revolutionize the teaching of American government both on the college and the adult-education level." Sidney Hook
+ Nation 157:474 O 23 '43 1900w

Reviewed by Richard Hofstadter
New Repub 109:591 O 25 '43 1250w

"An informative and inspiring essay . . . firmly based on knowledge and richly furnished with illustrative detail. Yet here, as always, Dr. Beard wears his erudition lightly, drawing his references with equal facility from history and from historical writings, ancient and modern. . . Of one thing this reviewer is certain: He who reads the first of these conversations will read the twenty-one that are recorded in this book." J. A. Krout
+ N Y Times p3 O 3 '43 1250w

"Close reading is required at times, and occasionally the stuff is dated, but in the main this is good, hard scholarship made vital and entertaining. The chapters on our foreign relations will cause some back hair to rise."
+ New Yorker 19:99 O 9 '43 110w

Reviewed by C. S. Sydnor
Pol Sci Q 58:607 D '43 1000w

Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers
Sat R of Lit 26:5 O 9 '43 1750w

School & Society 58:479 D 18 '43 60w

"Everyone who has emerged from an argument about 'the American way of life' vexed and frustrated by the woolliness of the terms and concepts thrown back and forth, will find 'The Republic' to be a valuable discipline, an arsenal and a godsend. It is something to get in 343 pages the distilled learning and wisdom of Dr Beard's long studies, but the greatest achievement is the delightful readability of the book. For Dr Beard borrows the Socratic dialog and pulls off very successfully this semifictional form." Marshall Bragdon
+ Springf'd Republican p6 O 9 '43 750w

Reviewed by Phillips Bradley
Survey G 32:453 N '43 600w

"The particular symposium in The Republic that is devoted to foreign affairs turns out to be a brilliant and bitter catfight. As a tiger among lesser cats, Beard claws all his enemies in this particular chapter to death. . . The weakness of this foreign-policy symposium derives from its satirical intent, which is not in keeping with The Republic as a whole. . . Nevertheless, every last word of The Republic is stimulating, vibrant, energetic. Beard makes a wonderful prodder, a wonderful Socrates."
+ — Time 42:98 O 18 '43 1550w

"Charles A. Beard, who will be sixty-nine this year, has written just about his best book. And that makes it very good indeed. It is learned, of course; as learned a commentary as one could hope for on American constitutional law and history. But it is more than that, for it carries on every page the wisdom of rich and generous personality. At first blush there seems a kind of Roman austerity about it; but as one reads—and rereads—one finds another Beard: a Beard who is understanding, witty and compassionate. It is as though the qualities of Cicero and Montaigne were combined." L. M. Hacker
+ Weekly Book Review p1 O 10 '43 1950w

Wis Lib Bul 39:141 N '43

Reviewed by F. W. Coker
Yale R n s 33:352 winter '44 1200w

BEARD, CHARLES AUSTIN, and BEARD, MRS MARY (RITTER). American spirit; a study of the idea of civilization in the United States. (Rise of American civilization) 696p $5 Macmillan [21s Cape, J]

917.3 U.S.—Civilization. Civilization—Philosophy 42-50003

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Reviewed by Joseph Dorfman
Am Econ R 33:644 S '43 2050w

Reviewed by R. F. Nichols
Am Hist R 48:791 Jl '43 1250w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith
Am Pol Sci R 37:137 F '43 900w

"There is no doubt of the importance and originality of the task undertaken by Mr. and Mrs. Beard; and it would be hardly possible to find anybody better equipped with the historical knowledge necessary for such a task. But having unquestioningly accepted the validity of the original hypotheses, the definition of the problem and the reliability of the data, the present reviewer finds himself baffled and confused by the method. The authors were evidently faced with the familiar alternative of a theoretically objective and an evaluative approach to historical data." Florian Znaniecki
+ — Am Soc R 8:225 Ap '43 1800w

"Whether it be the sectional struggle of the Civil War and the effects of the war in replacing agrarian leadership by industrial forces, or an analysis of foreign criticism, the Beards bring to the task their well-known mastery of fact, an immense amount of new material, and the gift of insight into historical forces." F. J. Klingberg
+ Ann Am Acad 226:184 Mr '43 380w

"Though it is in a sense a climax to the great exploration of American history in the three preceding volumes, we have here a book that can be read by itself both for its historical interest and its bearing upon the overmastering issue of the present time—the purpose for which we are waging war." Alvin Adey
+ Current Hist 3:541 F '43 1000w

"As one who has been long indebted to these authors for their insight and scholarship, I confess to a certain real disappointment. I leave the book not quite clear what the 'idea of civilization' in America is. Nor do I feel that the idea is illuminated by the catalogue of quotations from all and sundry who have hazarded definitions of it, often incidentally in the course of other concerns. I am, furthermore—though the word and the idea appear often enough in American or in other writers —somewhat diffident of assent to the proposition that the course of American history has been controlled or directed or given momentum by such an 'idea.'" Irwin Edman
— + Nation 156:314 F 27 '43 550w

Reviewed by C. A. Barker
New Eng Q 16:331 Je '43 750w

"With the scope and verve and sweeping erudition we have learned to expect from the Beards they have now given us what is virtually a digest of American ideas and, in lesser degree, foreign ideas about America—with one or two notable omissions." Simeon Strunsky
+ N Y Times p2 F 7 '43 1900w

"The present reviewer is not convinced that the most useful way to deal with ideas is to attempt to force many ideas into a single concept. Ideas tend to fall into clusters. The patterns of these are useful for a better understanding of individual ideas. When separate ideas are fused into a gigantic single concept, this becomes so vague as to have a minimum of utility. The Beards themselves, in their second chapter . . . in demonstrating that the word, civilization, is very much on the lips of men of our day, describe a confusion as to the meaning and content of that term so great as to raise the most serious questions as to the validity of their thesis that it is a dynamic world-view. To assist in the clarification of this confusion the authors present, in the concluding pages of the volume, their own definition of the idea of civilization. It is eloquent, profound and inspiring; but it is a personal credo. The reviewer commends it to the consideration of all thoughtful Americans." R. H. Gabriel

+ Pol Sci Q 58:263 Je '43 1200w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon

Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 20 '43 650w

Wis Lib Bul 39:12 Ja '43

BEATY, JOHN YOCUM. Luther Burbank, plant magician; il. by Luis M. Henderson. 251p $2.50 Messner

B or 92 Burbank, Luther. Plant breeding
43-8256

Biography of America's plant wizard, whose first lessons in nature were received from Louis Agassiz. For junior and senior high schools. Contains a list of some of Burbank's most important plant creations, a chronology, and an index.

"Beaty has written a fine biography for the teen-aged of an extraordinary and interesting man." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p11 Ag 8 '43 400w

"Mr. Beaty writes from knowledge of the subject as well as from an acquaintance with Luther Burbank and his farms. He has given an excellent life story." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:243 Jl '43 100w

"Will be of interest to plant lovers and growers and, as there is no other biography so complete and accurate for children's use, will be of value at present." Augusta Anderson

+ Library J 68:627 Ag '43 90w

"Mr. Beaty writes a live and absorbing biography." A. M. Jordan

+ Sat R of Lit 26:40 Je 19 '43 70w

"There is every reason why John Beaty, who worked with Burbank on his autobiography, should write this life of him for young people. There is every reason why such a life should be laid before them: his career combines to an extraordinary degree sober fact with the element of the marvellous, genius with common sense, hard work with what the unthinking call luck. It is at once a nature story and one of strong human interest." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p7 Je 27 '43 500w

Wis Lib Bul 39:111 Jl '43

BEAUCHAMP, WILBUR LEE, and MAYFIELD, JOHN CUNLIFFE. Basic electricity. 312p il $1.60 Scott

621.3 Electricity. Electric engineering
43-5096

Prepared at the request of the War Department and the U. S. Office of Education in conformance with official pre-induction training course outline, No. PIT 101.

"Good at the beginner's level." L. E. Grinter

+ Book Week p6 Jl 11 '43 40w

Booklist 39:429 Je 15 '43

"Extremely simple and clear."

+ Library J 68:574 Jl '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:26 Ap '43

School & Society 57:514 My 1 '43 30w

BEBIE, JULES. Manual of explosives, military pyrotechnics, and chemical warfare agents; composition, properties, uses. 171p $2.50 Macmillan

662 Explosives. Fireworks. Chemical warfare
43-958

"This little book is a dictionary, of the encyclopedic type, of the names of many of the materials included under the three headings in the title, with emphasis upon explosives. It is intended 'to be of service to scientific and technical workers in the field of explosives and war chemicals and to students who are beginning to specialize in those subjects.' " Book Week

Reviewed by C. A. Tibbals

Book Week p8 Ap 11 '43 270w

Chem & Met Eng 50:195 Mr '43 80w

"The work is fairly complete and up-to-date with the exception of a very few of the newer explosive mixtures used in World War II which have not yet appeared in the literature. It appears to be carefully and accurately compiled. Dr. Bebie is to be congratulated on both the excellence and the timeliness of his little volume. The mechanics of the book, its format and printing, are of high quality." R. E. Montonna

+ J Phys Chem 47:465 Je '43 150w

Library J 68:211 Mr 1 '43 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:9 Ja '43

"Concise and convenient, this book will be useful to military and naval men, civil defense officers, and many others." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p14 My 30 '43 100w

BECHDOLT, FREDERICK RITCHIE. Hills of fear. 280p $2 Doubleday
43-7517

Western story.

"Here is another of Mr. Bechdolt's novels of present-day life in the Nevada mining country, a region he has made his particular field. It is not quite so good as its last two predecessors, but it is a lively, fast, and gripping yarn." G. W. Harris

+ — N Y Times p26 Ap 18 '43 260w

"Lively and skeery." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p16 Ap 4 '43 40w

BECHDOLT, JOHN ERNEST, and MERWIN, DECIE. Dulcie; or, Half-a-yard of linsey-woolsey. 71p il $1.50 Dutton 43-3847

Four stories about a little girl named Dulcie who lived in the early nineteenth century, and was always up to mischief in a small way. For third grade.

"It is all unexpected, pleasantly silly and thoroughly delightful. Third-graders will love it every bit as much as will their younger sisters and brothers." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p7 Ap 11 '43 310w

"Short, easy sentences make an easy-to-read book. Decie Merwin's pictures are quaint and very attractive." D. M. MacDonald

+ Library J 68:329 Ap 15 '43 40w

"Little children who like to read of accidents and catastrophies will be amused by Dulcie's mild difficulties. They will also be entertained by the way the narrative now and again drops into rhyme. Decie Merwin's drawings of early nineteenth-century boys and girls have grace and gaiety and a delicate childlike charm." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p9 Jl 25 '43 260w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 9 '43 110w

"Reading her adventures aloud is enlivened by a trick of breaking without warning into jingling rhyme—something little children love a family story-teller to do. At an extremely

BECHDOLT, J. E.—Continued
early age mere rhyming has something jolly about it, and to have it happen impromptu is particularly pleasant." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p9 My 23 '43 330w
Wis Lib Bul 39:87 Je '43

BECK, PHINEAS, pseud. See Chamberlain, S.

BECK, RICHARD, ed. Icelandic poems and stories; translations from modern Icelandic literature. (Am. Scandinavian foundation. Publications) 322p $3 Am.-Scandinavian foundation; Princeton univ. press

839.6 Icelandic literature, Modern—Translations into English A43-1234

"Iceland has had a literature for ten centuries. . . The American-Scandinavian foundation, through the medium of the Princeton University Press, has brought the record up to date with this collection of the work of the last century, starting with Bjarni Thorarensen, who died in 1841, and ending with Halldór Lazness, born in 1902. In his introduction Professor Beck points out that recent Icelandic literature has been affected both by the importation of romanticism from abroad and by a renewed interest in the native tradition." Nation

Reviewed by David Daiches
Book Week p5 Mr 21 '43 750w
Booklist 39:442 Jl 1 '43

"The writers have been drawn from the mature and established, not the unknown or experimental, which may to some extent account for the fact that most of the work is firm and tidy, disciplined rather than self-indulgent, strong but seldom passionate. There is little of mystery in it. Mr. Beck's editorial comments are very helpful in studying the selections." Pearl Strachan
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 17 '43 850w
Nation 156:714 My 15 '43 250w

"There are many good poems and stories in the collection, and there are brief biographies of their authors. They present a composite picture of Iceland and its people as seen by its poets and writers of fiction. The book is a valuable contribution to our knowledge of a country which is our ally and about which we have hitherto known far too little." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p24 Je 6 '43 410w

"A good deal of this poetry is beautiful. All of it is strong, with a fine durable texture characteristic of the people who produced it. . . The Icelanders, like most Scandinavians, are cautious and do not evaluate quickly, which may be why the volume contains no poetry written on World War II." Ruth Stephan
+ Poetry 62:228 Jl '43 550w

Reviewed by Evan Evans
Weekly Book Review p25 Je 27 '43 700w

Reviewed by A. B. Benson
Yale R n s 33:189 autumn '43 650w

BECKER, CHARLOTTE. Judy goes sailing. [32p] il 75c Scribner 43-3205

"In [this book] in a sailor cap, Judy has a little sail and a big picnic on the beach." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by Emily Hutson
Library J 68:329 Ap 15 '43 30w

"Likely to be as popular with three-year-olds as Judy's birthday and Christmas parties." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Je 13 '43 80w

BECKER, CHARLOTTE. Judy's farm visit [pictures in color by the author]. [32p] 75c Scribner 43-3204

"In [this book Judy] goes with Michael and Peggy to visit Grandfather, meets calves, piglets, kids, chicks and duckings, rides in a goat cart and uses it to take back a lost lamb to its mother." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p6 O 25 '43 50w

"Recommended." Emily Hutson
+ Library J 68:329 Ap 15 '43 30w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Je 13 '43 80w

BECKER, CHARLOTTE. Unlike twins [il. by the author]. [32p] 75c Scribner 43-14320

Story for pre-school age about the twins who were not alike, and their search for unlike dog twins.

Reviewed by Olive Brain
Library J 68:892 N 1 '43 30w

Reviewed by Lois Palmer
+ N Y Times p20 N 28 '43 30w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 3 '43 50w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p5 Ja 2 '44 80w
Wis Lib Bul 40:10 Ja '44

BECKER, CHARLOTTE. Unlike twins and the animals [il. by the author]. [32p] 75c Scribner 43-14319

Story of the winter party which the unlike twins gave for the animals.

Reviewed by Olive Brain
Library J 68:892 N 1 '43 30w

Reviewed by Lois Palmer
+ N Y Times p20 N 28 '43 30w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 3 '43 50w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p5 Ja 2 '44 80w

BECKER, HOWARD, and HILL, REUBEN LORENZO, eds. Marriage and the family; contributors: Howard Becker [and others]. 663p $4 Heath

392 Marriage. Family 42-22418

"Described as a tool book, this text discusses the numerous aspects of the family, presenting various points of view based on research in sociology, psychology, social psychology, and anthropology. Through the careful planning of the two editors, Howard Becker and Reuben Hill, the 26 chapters, each written by a different authority, form a progressive unit moving through the 7 sections: 'Contexts of Family Life,' 'Preparation for Marriage,' 'Physical Factors,' 'Marriage Interaction and Family Administration,' 'Problems of Parenthood,' 'Family Disorganization,' and 'Prospects for the Future.'" J Home Econ

"One cannot expect too much. The book is one of the best in the field. The editors have stimulated a score of essays that hang together better than most symposia; and a serious student can acquire from the book a vast amount of information concerning family relationships and some other valuable material thrown in for good measure." Clifford Kirkpatrick
+ — Am J Soc 49:192 S '43 280w

"Those in charge of 'marriage courses' should carefully examine this book with a view to its adoption. Persons contemplating marriage will find in it a helpful guide to the understanding of the various situations which will confront them. To the teacher of a 'traditional family course' the book presents the problem of whether such a course would be revitalized by including preparation for marriage materials. The book, integrating as it does the condensed views of eminent authorities in various fields, will be adopted by some as a textbook and by others as a valuable reference book." H. J. Locke
+ Am Soc R 8:233 Ap '43 320w

"While a book written by a capable author has its merits from the point of view of balance of material, unity, and so forth, the present volume, whose contributors number twenty-seven, clearly demonstrates an immense superiority over most one-author texts in this field of sociology. To begin with, most of the contributors have been selected because they were recognized experts in some aspect of the subject, with the result that there is an authoritative air and freshness of approach lacking in many works on marriage and the family. Moreover, while many symposiums are frightfully uneven in quality and coherence, the present volume holds together on an exceptionally high level of performance. Also, it shows the possibility of writing scientifically and entertainingly at the same time." R. H. Abrams

+ Ann Am Acad 227:195 My '43 290w

"The chapters 'War and the Family' and 'The Future of the Family' are especially timely. This is a very readable book which will tempt the student to proceed rapidly. Many statements are provocative and encourage the use of the selected reading lists and topics for discussion and reports found at the end of each chapter." L. A. Lynde

+ J Home Econ 35:175 Mr '43 200w

"This is one of the finest texts in the field. It is, perhaps in parts, a bit too theoretical for the undergraduate but this is more than compensated for by its sound devotion to scientific fact." E. P. Link

+ Social Forces 22:236 D '43 650w

Wis Lib Bul 39:182 D '42

BECKERATH, HERBERT VON. See Von Beckerath, H.

BEDIER, JULIE, pseud. See Bedier, Sister Mary Juliana

BEDIER, SISTER MARY JULIANA (JULIE BEDIER, pseud) A horse for Christmas; pictures by Louise Trevisan. [32p] $1 Longmans 43-15134

Story of one of the Catholic missions in China, and how the purloining of a paper horse, intended for a funeral, brought unexpected results.

Cath World 158:315 D '43 30w

"Not a necessity for every library. Will be useful in Catholic communities." Doris MacDonald

+ Library J 68:772 O 1 '43 90w

BEEBE, CATHERINE (MRS ROBB BEEBE). Christmas—this way! pictures [by] Robb Beebe. 56p $1 Oxford 43-10499

Story of everyday doings in a family where the two children try to make the time pass quickly between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

"Not quite so spontaneous as some of the Beebes' other titles, will be welcomed nevertheless by children from four to seven, as well as by their parents and teachers." E. G. Mullan

+ — Library J 68:727 S 15 '43 90w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

N Y Times p53 D 5 '43 120w

Wis Lib Bul 39:147 N '43

BEEBE, ELSWYTH THANE (RICKER) (MRS WILLIAM BEEBE) (ELSWYTH THANE, pseud). Dawn's early light. 317p $2.50 Duell 43-51181

Novel of Williamsburg, Virginia, from 1774 to the surrender at Yorktown. The hero is a young English schoolmaster; the heroine a very young American girl who first appears at the age of ten. For high school age.

"Occasionally, it must be admitted, Miss Thane writes a bit heavily. Occasionally, she takes you up to the glass showcase by the hand. But just occasionally. As a whole the background is well handled with the proper proportion of detail and suggestion. And once the author has worked herself free from the necessary expositions at the beginning of the book, she—and the reader—take the history in stride. I was especially impressed by Miss Thane's vivid recounting of the battle of Camden and by her characterization of the Swamp Fox, Francis Marion." E. J. Cronin

+ — Book Week p3 Jl 4 '43 380w

Booklist 39:426 Je 15 '43

Bookmark 4:19 My '43

Boston Globe p15 Ag 4 '43 210w

"The history is conventional, and love interest of a young schoolmaster and his pupil, who grows up to young lady of seventeen, is idealistic. Recommended as simple, readable tale for unsophisticated or high-school age reader." H. A. Wooster

+ Library J 68:363 My 1 '43 50w

"Unfortunately the opening chapters fail to make the hero very interesting and the other characters are shadowy—with one notable exception. She is Tibby Mawes, who first appears at the age of 10. . . It would seem that Miss Thane's successful treatment of history causes the comparative failure of the story. I do not subscribe to the odd notion that a historical novel is good in proportion to the historical background omitted; but, after all, this is a novel and the history should be integrated with the fiction." Clifford Dowdey

+ — N Y Times p14 My 23 '43 500w

"Those in search of a book which can safely be given to young people—or to an elderly maiden aunt—will find this one a godsend. It is likely, however, to go better with Aunt Agatha than with her jitterbugging nieces and nephews. They are probably too sophisticated for so simple and old-fashioned a tale." P. V. D. Stern

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:7 Je 26 '43 400w

"This is Miss Thane's first novel of American history, and one hopes it is not the last, since it seems to be a field admirably suited to her talent for pleasant, deftly handled romance." M. C. Blackman

+ Weekly Book Review p12 Je 6 '43 450w

Wis Lib Bul 39:110 Jl '43

BEEBE, GILBERT WHEELER. Contraception and fertility in the southern Appalachians. (Nat. com. on maternal health. Medical aspects of human fertility) 274p il $2.50 Wood

612.63 Birth control. Fecundity 42-19779

"The most recent definitive analysis of the effect of contraception on group fertility is Mr. Beebe's study of a service established in Logan County, West Virginia in 1936. This service, unlike those designed to serve women who need contraceptive advice for medical reasons, was a frank attempt to reduce fertility in a region of excessive population pressure." Am J Pub Health

Reviewed by G. K. Stix

Am J Pub Health 33:292 Mr '43 360w

Reviewed by N. E. Himes

Ann Am Acad 225:255 Ja '43 600w

"The study is a fine example of science in the service of individual and social welfare. Its value to the student is greatly increased by a careful appendix on method." R. B. Vance

+ Social Forces 22:110 O '43 260w

BEEBE, LUCIUS MORRIS. Snoot if you must; drawings by Rea Irvin. 296p $2.50 Appleton-Century

817 New York (city)—Social life and customs 43-16959

Chapters on New York cafe society by one of its leading exponents. "Through his syndicated column, 'This New York,' his theater column, 'Stage Asides,' and his news copy, he has reported a variety of aspects of the American scene. . . It is a sequence of vignettes and play-by-play accounts of persons, events, follies and magnificences that have engaged his attention. The common pattern is their concern for the gusty, the glamorous and the hilarious, for personalities of bounce and few inhibitions." (Publisher's note)

BEEBE, L. M.—Continued

Reviewed by Dale Harrison
Book Week p3 D 19 '43 360w

"The book is fascinating reading in spots because it is a peep show into the lives of Mr. Beebe's set, and a good quizzing glass through which to study Mr. Beebe. . . It's when he writes of his favorite saloon (Bleeck's Artists and Writers Restaurant on Fortieth Street) that Beebe gets nearest to earth. Reasonably good-humored throughout, he makes one exception when he gets piqued at Jack Kirkland, the playwright." Earl Wilson
+ N Y Times p5 N 28 '43 600w

New Yorker 19:99 D 18 '43 80w

"I see that Mr. Beebe's 'Snoot If You Must' (it is surely some dark, dark masochism that makes me say that title again) is widely advertised for the Christmas trade. It must be what I believe is known as a gift book. That is to say, a book which you wouldn't take on any other terms." Dorothy Parker
— Sat R of Lit 26:11 D 11 '43 430w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 12 '43 470w

Time 42:102 N 29 '43 700w

"Mr. Beebe has seen much and has no doubt been impressed by most of it. Whether what he has observed is of the slightest importance at this time must be a matter of taste; maybe it is. He has an excellent sense of what is amusing, but little feeling for anecdote. He seems to have a passion for inaccuracy. . . However, whatever its defects as social history or accurate reporting may be, Mr. Beebe's book shows an unfailing eye for nonsense, and the more raucous overtones of saloon life. For those who are bemused by such matters this book, by a word-painter in full cry, should provide some sort of solace in these trying days." Stanley Walker
+ — Weekly Book Review p8 N 28 '43 1000w

BEECHAM, SIR THOMAS, 2d bart. Mingled chime; an autobiography. 330p $3.50 Putnam

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 43-51136

Autobiography of the English composer and conductor, which traces his life from childhood in the 1880s to 1924. "Here is the verbal panorama of Sir Thomas's activities as conductor, operatic composer (with none other than Puccini's librettist for collaborator), founder—and savior—of English orchestra and opera companies, impresario, political observer, friend and champion of great composers, connoisseur of art, literature and the drama, and finally (in a role both unexpected and unwelcome to him) business man and, almost, but fortunately not quite, the sacrificial lamb of his friends' economic miscalculations." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 39:367 My 15 '43

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 22 '43 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Jl '43

"His contribution to English musical life deserves a more colorful account than this modest, impersonal story. Libraries with large music collections will need." Margaret Owen
+ Library J 68:326 Ap 15 '43 100w

"'A Mingled Chime,' whose title, to quote its author, 'suggests a selection of topics without limit,' is the musical autobiography we have long awaited and long been denied. I use the pronoun 'we' advisedly, for the book will have a wide appeal not only among musicians and lovers of music but among all who can relish the fearless brilliance, the caustic wit and the exquisitely chisled prose of one of the most indomitable and challenging personalities of our time. . . The only fault I have to find with this chronicle is in its scarcity of dates. This should be remedied in future editions, if only for the sake of the student and the musical historian. The volume stands as a record of high achievement: the work of a scholarly and brilliant artist and an intensely human man." Eugene Goossens
+ N Y Times p5 My 2 '43 1100w

Reviewed by P. H. Lang
Sat R of Lit 26:24 Je 26 '43 220w

"Sir Thomas Beecham's genuine achievements are well known; his personality—vivid, audacious, provocative—has been the source of much legend. An autobiography would seem to be just the kind of book for him to write, if he really cared to write it. He has chosen to give us only certain well known parts of his life story. . . Is self-revelation supposed to be the essence of autobiography? Sir Thomas serves plain notice on us that his life is his own business. . . But then, why compose an autobiography at all? Sir Thomas calls to mind the sensitive woman who wrote her correspondence on postcards but always marked them private." John Erskine
Weekly Book Review p3 My 9 '43 1100w

BEERBOHM, SIR MAX. Lytton Strachey. 37p $1 Knopf [1s 6d Cambridge]

B or 92 Strachey, Giles Lytton 43-16493

The Rede lecture of 1943, delivered at Cambridge university, contains the author's personal memories of Strachey, and a tribute to his work.

"The grace and affection with which it is written told me what I had almost forgotten—that the critical essay is very much alive in English print." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 172:125 O '43 40w

"To Strachey's surviving friends, Max's charming memories and genuine appreciation will come as a belated funeral oration in honour of the man they loved and admired. The choice could not be bettered; for among all his elders and contemporaries there was no one whose praise Strachey valued more highly than that of Max." Ralph Partridge
+ New Statesman & Nation 26:76 Jl 31 '43 1050w

"Beerbohm talks of the Eminent Victorian with tenderness and irony. But actually he has seized Strachey as a convenient opportunity to voice his own peculiar antipathies and dogmas. The device is a dexterous one. . . The tone is a new one for Beerbohm the essayist, although it bears a close resemblance to Beerbohm the caricaturist. There is a note of bitterness and even resentment; categories are drawn with hard, damaging lines, and attitudes are exaggerated with a heavy emphasis on their weakest features. It is only when Beerbohm pauses to complain that he becomes human and sympathetic." Christopher Lazare
N Y Times p18 Ja 16 '44 750w

"This remarkable essay, which was delivered as the Rede Lecture for 1943 at Cambridge by Sir Max Beerbohm, should be read by every young writer, for it is a quite outstanding example of good writing and penetrating criticism. Max Beerbohm is the perfect master of English prose today, unequalled by anyone living—if we exclude whatever men of genius may be using our language at the present time." W. J. Turner
+ Spec 171:40 Jl 9 '43 550w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p7e D 12 '43 600w

BEFFEL, EULALIE. Hero of Antietam. 255p $2.50 Dutton

43-11548

A somewhat farcical little novel about two Civil War generals who, with the coming of peace, find themselves living side by side in a small Illinois town. Their natural rivalry in military glory is further complicated by their marital and amorous adventures.

"Most persons in the book act as naturally as puppets on strings. Perhaps Miss Beffel means to be humorous but, if so, it is not clear to me whether she is poking fun at her characters, her readers or at some obscure evil against which she is crusading. This is Miss Beffel's first novel. That she is talented is attested by several good chapters and some clever turns of speech." Otto Eisenschiml

— + Book Week p8 Ag 22 '43 270w

'This is a first novel of some promise. The writing is uneven, pungent and vivid at times but jerky and hard to follow at others." Charlotte Dean

+ — N Y Times p12 Ag 15 '43 280w

"Told sympathetically and with a great deal of talent, 'The Hero of Antietam' is a remarkable first novel. It has nothing to do with the history or the politics of the post-Civil War era, but it is rich with feeling for those times. And Major General Matthew Yawn is an unusual and very honest and likable but unheroic hero. The book is fresh and genuine, a distinct departure from most novels in which the action takes place during the over-romanticized 1860's when war dominated the American scene." P. V. Stern

+ Sat R of Lit 26:17 S 18 '43 310w

" 'The Hero of Antietam' is an admirable, astonishing but sometimes extremely naive first novel. Miss Beffel imparts to her writing a wry, clipped humor which lends itself readily to such grotesque circumstances as involve the life and personal honor of Maj-Gen Yawn. Some passages show inexperience, her transitions are abrupt and frequently confusing, but Miss Beffel possesses a gusty ability to dramatize a scene with a brevity that would do credit to far more experienced novelists." L. S. Munn

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 29 '43 500w

"As nearly as one can decipher Eulalie Beffel's intention Major General Matthew Yawn, a dismounted and dismantled hero, should enlist your sympathy in spite of his pompous stupidity—a sorry figure to be sorry for. But since the author does not fill in the background of his life, and there is little on which to base a judgment or account for his not very bright behavior at the mature age of fifty-one, he emerges as a caricature in gold braid. . . Perhaps a man in his predicament is destined to do something foolish but Miss Beffel's narrative borders on the fantastic." George Conrad

— Weekly Book Review p10 Ag 22 '42 550w

BEHRMAN, SAMUEL NATHANIEL. The pirate. 209p $2 Random house

812 43-51114

Text of the play first produced on Broadway November 23, 1942. The Pirate was suggested by an idea in a play by Ludwig Fulda. The scene is an unnamed island in the West Indies, and it tells the story of the charming, bored wife of a dull husband, and a handsome mountebank who brings excitement and romance into her life.

"It can hardly be denied that Behrman is the best conversationalist of our theater. His characters do not merely talk polished, witty, civilized dialogue, they also think. In 'The Pirate' their dialogue is at its wittiest, but it sustains a relationship to Behrman alone. The mental gyrations necessary to relate them to the people who deliver the lines are something of a strain. One cannot help regretting also that in his concentration on the latest reincarnation of the romance of our two most skillful and civilized lovers, the great comic possibilities potential in the ex-pirate remain potential. They are a good job for George Bernard Shaw." Maurice Gnesin

Book Week p7 My 23 '43 500w

Booklist 39:351 My 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '43

"Better reading than listening to it indicated. Should be purchased by libraries with drama collections. Recommended."

+ Library J 68:328 Ap 15 '43 40w

"Being unfamiliar with the original, I cannot say in what spirit its author treated his fanciful tale, but in Mr. Behrman's version it becomes a harmlessly naughty bit of romantic fluff strongly suggestive of the libretto for a comic opera and intended merely to provide an extravagant romp for Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne." J. W. Krutch

Nation 155:659 D 12 '42 550w (Dramatic criticism)

Dramatic criticism by Stark Young

New Repub 107:792 D 14 '42 600w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton

Weekly Book Review p22 Jl 18 '43 80w

BEIM, MRS LORRAINE (LEVEY), and BEIM, JERROLD. Spotlight for Danny; il. by Corinne Malvern. 198p $1.75 Harcourt

43-3407

Danny was eleven and just an ordinary American boy when it was discovered that he photographed well. In the resultant trip to Hollywood Danny proved to be no actor, and after one picture, in which his part was very small, Danny came back to his little home town near New York, to the relief of all. Contains quite a bit about the making of movies.

"Wholesome reading for stage-struck youngsters and particularly easy for ten and eleven-year-olds who find most books difficult. Hard work is emphasized and the snobbery, jealousy, heartaches, and temperament found even among children. It is reiterated that genuine talent is necessary for even moderate success, and Danny goes home resolved not to choose a career until he discovers his own talent." M. B. Snow

+ Library J 68:291 Ap 1 '43 80w

"The book may be useful in disillusioning movie-struck youngsters on the subjects of Hollywood glamour and child actors, and though no masterpiece, it is readable and full of common sense."

+ New Yorker 19:68 My 29 '43 50w

"If mothers and fathers will place this book in the hands of small boys and girls, it may help them over the 'I want to be a movie star' phase." A. B. T.

Springf'd Republican p7e N 21 '43 140w

"A wholesome little story, it might save some screen-struck child a disappointment that will pain him more than it did Danny." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p7 F 28 '43 450w

BEITH, JOHN HAY (IAN HAY, pseud). Malta epic [Eng title: The unconquered isle]. 238p il $3 Appleton-Century [7s 6d Hodder]

940.53458 World war, 1939—Malta 43-15529

Story of the brave, much-bombed island of Malta, describing the quiet courage of native and British defenders, and of the Maltese civilians as well. The last four chapters contain a brief history of the island from Biblical times.

Booklist 40:111 D 1 '43

" 'Malta Epic' should have no difficulty finding a place for itself. This reviewer found it absorbing, not alone for its thrilling details of the plucky island's defense, but for its descriptions of two other great sieges." M. W. B.

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 Ja 8 '44 500w

"A highly readable text complemented by excellent half-tones conveys the intensity of the struggle and its importance for the winning of the whole war."

+ Commonweal 39:188 D 3 '43 40w

"Recommended for medium and large libraries as adding another square to complicated patchwork known as World War II." J. H. Berthel

+ Library J 68:844 O 15 '43 100w

Manchester Guardian p3 O 6 '43 60w

" 'Malta Epic' has a curiously old-fashioned quality. If this is the way it was in Malta, the people there must have approached and lived through their particular purgatory in a state of mind which was more common when Hay wrote 'The First Hundred Thousand' than it is now." W. R. Deuel

N Y Times p46 N 21 '43 650w

BEITH, J. H.—Continued

"The [last] four chapters are hardly worthy of the rest of the book, and are certainly not adequate to their glorious theme. The author obviously has not the equipment essential to anyone intending to write of Malta's history. . . The remaining thirteen chapters of the book are concerned with the present war, and here the author rises to the greatness of his subject. No attempt is made to turn the story into a drama or epic, with heroics true or false. Instead we have a plain, at times almost casual, but always moving, tale of Malta's reaction to the Italian and German attacks." S. H. F. Johnston

+ — Spec 171:364 O 15 '43 600w

"The author needs no introduction as the man who gave us in the last war 'The First Hundred Thousand.' In official life he is a British general. His new book contains many personal anecdotes of the Maltese and the westerners garrisoned on their island or protecting the convoys steaming to it; nevertheless, a little more mellowness and informality in the telling, and less repetition about the valor of all concerned, would have done no harm. Perhaps it is too much to expect a general who for a greater part of the present war was public relations director in the London war office to let his hair down the way the rest of us mortals like to do." G. W. B.

Springf'd Republican p10 N 17 '43 850w

Time 42:102 N 8 '43 550w

"An exceedingly readable tribute to a gallant tradition, worthily upheld by the present generation; but it is somewhat marred, for those who know Malta well, by a number of misspellings and inaccuracies. . . The author's appreciation and wholehearted admiration, however, may perhaps be thought to make up for lack of accuracy in history or detail."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p472 O 2 '43 1000w

"Malta's history is truly an epic, and Ian Hay's story is worthy of its subject. It is written in a matter-of-fact, gently humorous vein, full of the under-statement characteristic of his prose." R. B. Cochrane

+ Weekly Book Review p6 N 7 '43 1300w

BELDEN, JACK. Retreat with Stilwell. 368p maps $3 Knopf

940.542 World war, 1939—Burma. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. Stilwell, Joseph Warren 43-3011

Vivid account of the fighting in Burma, after the invasion by the Japanese, followed by the absolute defeat of the allied forces. The second part is a description of the flight across Burma to India of a little band of soldiers, civilians, and Burmese nurses, led by the American, Lieutenant General Stilwell, the only officer who had backbone enough to admit defeat.

"Of all American war correspondents in the Far East, 33-year-old Jack Belden has been in the thick of more savage fighting than anyone. Despite his modesty, he writes vividly of the exciting adventures of a correspondent, of high military commanders and their troops, and of the distraught native civilians caught in the cunningly planned Japanese occupation of vital Burma." John Goette

+ Book Week p6 My 30 '43 360w

Booklist 39:316 Ap 1 '43

Bookmark 4:11 Mr '43

"Through the years Mr. Belden has [been] kept covering China's struggle for newspapers and, latterly, magazines. And in his first book, Retreat With Stilwell, he emerges as a war writer of surprising distinction. Here, in style and with mental background sometimes approximating that of Lawrence of Arabia, Mr. Belden tells the tragic story of the loss of Burma. It is grim, bitter, yet stimulating: Mr. Belden puts down a torrent of hard facts, lightens them with his own personal experiences related with modesty and often with humor, and points morals which should be widely read and thought over." R. G.

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 12 '43 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Ap '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:9 Jl '43 60w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield

Nation 156:494 Ap 3 '43 500w

New Repub 108:390 Mr 22 '43 120w

"This book is a solid piece of workmanship, wrought by an assured hand which vividly evokes the odors, heats, sweats, thirsts, fatigues and heroisms of that weird and, at times, positively spooky campaign which was the opening of the war in Burma." Humphrey Cobb

+ N Y Times p3 Mr 14 '43 700w

" 'Retreat with Stilwell' is a good book for us to read not only because it tells a whale of a story but because it contains a damned good lesson for all of us, from Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt all the way down the line." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 19:65 Mr 6 '43 340w

"Rarely does a first book show the power and the cohesion of 'Retreat with Stilwell,' and the vigor of the work is all the more remarkable when it is balanced against the fact that during most of the period of writing Belden was exceedingly ill in a hospital." Hallett Abend

+ Sat R of Lit 26:7 Mr 13 '43 1250w

"It is a stirring account packed full of exciting incidents from start to finish." L. B. Kromer

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 28 '43 800w

Time 41:70 Mr 22 '43 900w

"This is a war book and, like all war books, it is about fighting, with notes on politics and propaganda for background. But it is also rich in trimmings, as other good war books are. There are descriptions in this such as that of the destruction of the oil wells and installations, the fire at Mandalay, the movements of exhausted soldiery under a cruel sun, and many others that are good writing." Rodney Gilbert

+ Weekly Book Review p1 Mr 7 '43 2800w

Reviewed by J. D. Adams

Yale R n s 32:790 summer '43 60w

BELL, BERNARD IDDINGS. Church in disrepute. 152p $1.50 Harper

261 Christianity. Sociology, Christian

43-2588

An attempt to explain why the Christian Church is almost without influence in the world of today and to show why its influence is needed and how it can be extended. Contents: Disrepute; Who cares?; Let the axe fall! What of the children?; Leadership; The wind begins again to blow; Those who come back; The redemptive copartnership.

Booklist 39:311 Ap 1 '43

"In any such slashing tract there are bound to be certain sweeping statements of fact which are open to challenge. . . Some of Dr. Bell's conclusions will be rejected by Christians who are fully as concerned for the future influence of the church as is Dr. Bell. . . But the real purpose of the book seems to be to drive the church to despair. . . If it is true that despair is the first necessary step on the road to the recovery of the church's spiritual power, then Dr. Bell's tract has a mighty service to perform."

Christian Century 60:267 Mr 3 '43 360w

"Stirring and well-written book. . . Canon Bell's book is full of shrewd aphorisms and striking observations, especially those on the shallow faith in progress, the rôle of ecclesiastical authority in great spiritual movements, the dangers of a clerical mind and the current misconception of the laity, of what makes a good clergyman. His chapter, 'What of Children,' is a gem. Always keeping in mind that the author is not a Catholic, priests and educators may draw profit from this great little book." H. A. Reinhold

+ Commonweal 38:79 My 7 '43 420w

"A dynamic deliverance which should be widely read and pondered." J. H. Franklin

+ Crozer Q 20:259 Jl '43 500w

Reviewed by H. L. Bowman
J Religion 23:225 Jl '43 330w

"Dr. Bell's book is like the sound of thunder. Its reverberations should carry far, for it is an utterance as drastic as it is carefully weighed and pondered and as brave as it is noble." J. H. Holmes
+ Weekly Book Review p15 Jl 25 '43 600w

BELL, FREDERICK JACKSON. Condition red; destroyer action in the south Pacific. 274p il maps $3 Longmans

940.545 World war, 1939—Naval operations. U.S.—Navy 43-16996

The skipper of a United States destroyer, called "G" in the book, describes the experiences of his ship in the Java Sea, the Coral Sea, Guadalcanal and other parts of the South Seas. "G" made the longest combat cruise in the records of the modern United States navy, but since it is still afloat, the ship cannot be designed by other than a pseudonym. Index.

"Just saying 'OK' is, of course, stating my reactions to 'Condition Red' in just about the mildest manner possible. And I don't feel mild about it at all. It's a rollicking good book, drenched with salt water, sprinkled with gunpowder and filled with the lusty humor you can expect from a destroyer man." W. H. Fetridge
+ Book Week p4 D 19 '43 700w
Booklist 40:180 Ja 15 '44

Reviewed by Austin Stevens
N Y Times p7 Ja 2 '44 600w

"Captain Bell is a neat writer as well as a professional Navy man, and he makes both points count. In short, well done."
+ New Yorker 19:97 D 18 '43 50w

"The accuracy of all the memoirs cannot be guaranteed (the book was evidently written aboard in the intervals between calls to General Quarters), but who cares? The accuracy of the psychological pattern, of what men think about and do in the least-known service of the war is beyond question." Fletcher Pratt
+ Sat R of Lit 26:22 D 25 '43 400w

" 'Condition Red' ought to be read by everyone here at home. It is an epic of brave men doing their job in our toughest war." G. K. Moriarty
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 26 '43 400w

"In giving an account of one destroyer's adventures in the South Pacific, Commander Bell also draws the pattern of the entire war at sea. His book merits the same commendation his ship so often received: 'Well done.' " Herbert Kupferberg
+ Weekly Book Review p5 D 19 '43 850w

BELL, KENSIL. Always ready! the story of the United States Coast guard; il. with official U.S. Coast guard photographs, except where noted. 324p $3 Dodd

351.792 U.S. Coast guard 43-12044

History of the United States Coast guard from its founding by Alexander Hamilton in 1790, to April, 1943. Partial contents: Free trade and sailors' rights; 1832-1837; Iron and steam; The Mexican war; The Civil war; The Bering Sea patrol; "Remember the Maine!" The international ice patrol; The United States lifesaving service; Congress authorizes the Coast guard; World war I; The rummies; The United States Coast guard academy; The United States lighthouse service; Alexander Hamilton's boats after 150 years. No index.

Booklist 40:39 O 1 '43

"Recommended for substance and the wide interest in subject." H. A. Wooster
+ Library J 68:621 Ag '43 80w

"A good, solid story, well told, of a service that deserves the gratitude of the nation." A. B. Tourtellot
+ N Y Times p32 S 19 '43 340w

"From original sources Kensil Bell has written the first full-length history of the Coast Guard. It is an inspiring story of deeds which should be long remembered and of men who contributed greatly to their country's needs. . . The story of the Coast Guard is one which every American should know and it can be read in the pages of this skillfully contrived and absorbing book."
+ Weekly Book Review p18 Ag 29 '43 400w

BELL, MRS LOUISE PRICE. Parties in wartime. 160p $1.50 Revell

793 Entertaining. Amusements 43-5288

Ideas for parties, with special reference to wartime economy as to food and other commodities, and paying special attention to timely war games.

"Some of the ideas are good, but others might be a trifle difficult to carry out. A few seem rather tiresome. Clever persons will be able to adapt Mrs. Bell's ideas to their own needs." M. N.
+ — Book Week p6 Ap 25 '43 70w
Christian Century 60:459 Ap 14 '43 60w

"Some of the parties described in this book sound like fun—and if some of them don't appeal, you're free to take your choice!" Helen Hendry
Christian Science Monitor p10 My 11 '43 90w
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Jl '43

BELL, MARGARET E. Pirates of Icy strait; il. by Harvey Kidder. 224p $2 Morrow

43-9395

Story of a fourteen-year-old boy, who is allowed to be engineer on an Alaskan trap tender. The boy's experiences with fish pirates, who are robbing the salmon traps, include a shipwreck, fog, and icebergs, but the pirates are captured.

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p6 O 14 '43 110w

"The bleak Alaskan coast is well described and the hazards of the canning industry made real in this absorbing story." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:319 S '43 80w

"Not a 'must' title but good for boys and girls of twelve to fourteen who like adventure with a little mystery. Recommended." J. E. Stromdahl
+ Library J 68:672 S 1 '43 60w

"The tale, though packed with adventure, is never overdrawn. . . The author has a gift for characterization. She allows her characters to speak for themselves and the reader closes the book with a strong feeling that he has made the acquaintance of some very real individuals and has felt the thrill that comes when fearless, loyal and resourceful men match their strength against the elements and against knavery and cruelty." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p18 S 12 '43 300w
Wis Lib Bul 39:147 N '43

BELL, MRS MARION R., and GEYER, MRS DONNA M. Young cowboys at the Broken Arrow; il. by Harve Stein. 256p $1.75 Whitman, A.

43-9685

Story of six New York boys and their summer on a Wyoming ranch. For junior high school readers.

"There are some interesting chapters, but they are mixed with such chapters as those which tell how to ride a horse and put on a saddle. These are not very interesting and are hard to understand. The characters in the book are good. I think all it needs is a different plot." Sam Halperin
— + Book Week p11 Ag 22 '43 140w

"The youngsters are lively, mischievous boys, and the adventures, even the capture of the cattle rustlers, are made to appear by the authors well within the realm of the possible."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 25 '43 80w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p7 Je 27 '43 250w
Wis Lib Bul 39:124 O '43

BELL, THOMAS. Till I come back to you. 219p $2 Little 43-8538

Realistic novel of present-day Brooklyn, with the members of a lower middleclass family and some of their friends as protagonists. The war brought together again two of the Bridges' friends, at a family Sunday dinner, and while the family quarreled all day long, Miley and Sally decided to make the most of the hours until Miley could come back.

Atlantic 172:131 S '43 100w

"This isn't far short of excellent. It's as charged and intense as an electrical storm and, at the same time, it has an undercurrent of shirt-sleeve humor that's as expected as the next day—and often just as surprising. . . He's sharp, is Thomas Bell. So sharp I hope he never spends a Sunday afternoon 'on our street.'" E. J. Cronin

+ Book Week p5 Jl 25 '43 290w

"Thomas Bell's new book is a disappointment to at least one admirer of his earlier 'All Brides Are Beautiful.'. . With Mr. Bell's people I, for one, was conscious mostly of embarrassment, as if an emancipated young man had taken me to visit his parents. He is continually in the way, nudging, interpreting, pointing up their vulgarity. In spite of his awareness of social cause and psychological effect, and his shrewd observations of people, Mr. Bell is too impatient. He does not give his family enough time to talk and act for themselves, which they do very vigorously, but is constantly interrupting with hasty unimaginative summaries." Marjorie Farber

— New Repub 109:116 Jl 26 '43 180w

"Readers who remember Striker Godown and 'All Brides Are Beautiful' will need no introduction to Thomas Bell. His new novel is another milestone in his steadily maturing talent. Perhaps, because of its surface drabness, it will miss its audience in this climatic year of war. The fact remains that the germs of the next modern war are flourishing now, behind the tottering facade of the Bridges' home in Brooklyn. Mr. Bell's microscope exposes them for any reader who is not too squeamish to look." William Du Bois

+ N Y Times p5 Je 20 '43 950w

New Yorker 19:78 Je 12 '43 30w

"Thomas Bell here neatly wraps a social sermon in an absorbing little story. Whether he has always been as skilful (in the much-praised 'All Brides Are Beautiful,' for example), I do not know, for this is the first book of his that I have read; but in this one it is a pleasure to watch him work. His fluency betrays no hint of a cheap facility; he practises extreme economy without the use of elipsis; his character criticism is unsparing, but never sadistic or selfrighteous; he plays on our romantic sentiments while avoiding sentimentality, either of an out-dated kind or the fashionable sort that passes as hard-boiled; and, best of all, he writes with a simplicity that is strikingly uncommon in an age when troubled styles are so often the instruments of troubled minds. Yet, despite all his neatness and all his skills, he has not succeeded in perfectly integrating sermon and story." B. R. Redman

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:7 Je 26 '43 750w

"Till I Come Back to You starts out to retell the best story of our time—the richness of the experience of a young couple planning marriage before he goes to war—remains warm and moving when it stays on that simple subject and turns into something diffuse, incoherent, sometimes ugly, whenever it strays away."

+ — Time 41:104 Je 14 '43 80w

"The love story, unfolding with gay and tender serenity amid the voices lifted in anger, is a thing of touching beauty. Mr. Bell writes of it with a frankness which somehow conveys reticence. The explanation, obviously, is that this is the writing of an artist." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Je 13 '43 700w

BELL, VEREEN. Two of a kind. 292p $2.50 Little 43-161

Story of an outlaw dog, of fine breeding, and the human outlaw who trained the dog to be a champion. All thru the book, the training of the dog, Judas, runs parallel with the rise to prominence of the man, Duff Webster, once a tramp and fugitive. The scene is Alabama, and the Saskatchewan.

Booklist 39:252 F 15 '43

Reviewed by R. Y. Williams

Books p4 Ja 17 '43 1100w

"Probably it misses classic stature. One does not suppose that Mr. Bell himself would be anxious to hear anything of the sort claimed for it. But until he writes a sports classic, as he very well may, 'Two of a Kind' will continue to seem a very fresh and vigorous and enjoyable story. It will seem so even to the reader who cares nothing in particular about bird dogs and field trials." Margaret Wallace

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 17 '43 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p437 S 11 '43 300w

Wis Lib Bul 39:41 Mr '43

BELLAIRS, GEORGE. Death of a busybody. 214p $2 Macmillan [2s 6d Gifford] 43-6818

Detective story.

"Much of this book is replete with bucolic atmosphere and quaint, rural details. . . It's pretty much on the mild side, though, and the author has made all the participants 'characters' with the result that you feel you've been taken through an unreal world, part comic strip and part wax works." Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p9 My 16 '43 200w

Booklist 39:465 Jl 15 '43

"Characters skillfully drawn; action leisurely, as befits the setting; solution unexpected but perfectly logical." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p10 My 23 '43 100w

"Crisply written and soundly constructed English countryside affair. Good detecting is brightened up by yokel humor and pungent village gossip. Entertaining."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:44 My 22 '43 40w

"A rather disappointing whodunit, because it doesn't live up to its potentialities. The plot is nice and mysterious and there are any number of good characters but the author doesn't do right by them."

Springf'd Republican p7e My 30 '43 110w

Times [London] Lit Sup p441 S 5 '42 130w

"The story bulges with problems for those who want to guess. For the rest, it's an all-around mystery delight." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p21 Je 6 '43 360w

BELLAIRS, GEORGE. Murder will speak [Eng title: Dead shall be raised]. 193p $2 Macmillan [2s 6d Gifford] 43-13046

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p9 O 10 '43 50w

"Good detective work, but not particularly thrilling." Isaac Anderson

+ — N Y Times p8 S 19 '43 80w

New Yorker 19:96 S 18 '43 50w

"The stage is so set that only a rather mechanical trick solution is possible. Incidentally, an irritating habit that Mr Bellairs should rid himself of is the too frequent use of compound words in such expressions as 'hurry-up,' 'carried-off,' 'warned-off' and even 'walked-in.'"

Springf'd Republican p7e S 12 '43 110w

"Littlejohn plods steadily through the usual routine by persistently questioning anybody and everybody who had anything whatever to do with the crimes. This is the new kind of detective story which has steadily grown in favour. Instead of an artificially created maze for the reader to lose his wits in, the business is presented as the blank which is what the policeman at the outset sees."
Times [London] Lit Sup p617 D 19 '42 150w

"There is not a phony among a dozen central characters drawn by this truly comforting author. . . Readers who guess the fiend in mid-course, or think they do so, will still be in the dark about ways and means of catching him. Mr. Bellairs turned to detection after a sober career as lecturer on economics and modern European history at Manchester University. He is a B. S. of London University and generally a credit to his new trade." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p22 S 19 '43 380w

BEMELMANS, LUDWIG. Now I lay me down to sleep. 299p $2.50 Viking
43-15465

A somewhat unconventional first novel, by the author of I Love You, I Love You, I Love You; Hotel Splendide, etc. The hero is an elderly, very wealthy Ecuadorian general who leaves his villa in Biarritz to travel via Casablanca and New York to his home in South America. The story of the adventures of the general and his oddly assorted retinue en route is marked with much detail of luxurious living in the hotels and on board the yachts of an age now passing.

Booklist 40:165 Ja 1 '44

Reviewed by F. A. Boyle
Library J 68:845 O 15 '43 90w

BEMIS, SAMUEL FLAGG. Diplomatic history of the United States. rev ed 934p maps $5.35 Holt
973 U.S.—Foreign relations 42-22438

Revised edition of a book first entered in the Book Review Digest in 1936. "Without altering its content or its character, I have revised and corrected the body of the work and added chapters to bring it up to January 1, 1942, that is, to Pearl Harbor and the United Nations, leaving the conclusion to Time, the Great Expositor." (Pref to 2d ed) Index.

Am Hist R 48:412 Ja '43 50w
Booklist 39:254 F 15 '43

BEMIS, SAMUEL FLAGG. Latin American policy of the United States; an historical interpretation. 470p maps $4.50 Harcourt 327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations—Latin America. Latin America—Foreign relations—U.S.
43-51167

Study of the development of Latin American relations with the United States from 1776 to the present day. The influence of the various European countries upon our policies, especially during wartime, is discussed, as well as the Monroe doctrine, dollar diplomacy, etc. Index.

Reviewed by G. H. Stuart
Am Pol Sci R 37:941 O '43 800w

"Professor Bemis has made, in general, an important contribution. All except one or two chapters seem entirely sound to this reviewer. These should be read in connection with other books dealing with inter-American relations, and with the understanding that they should be tested by further research into the economic and technological relations of the United States and its neighbors." J. F. Rippy
+ Ann Am Acad 228:134 Jl '43 800w
Booklist 39:381 Je 1 '43

"Dr. Bemis packs his book with revealing material on factors of geography and climate. His notes are copious, assembled at the end to leave his pages uncluttered. All in all, a fine, careful, stimulating work." R. H. S.
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 22 '43 500w
Commonweal 38:100 My 14 '43 750w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:160 O '43 20w

"Voluminous notes for each chapter; charts and tables. For college and large public libraries. Excellent reference material." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 68:286 Ap 1 '43 80w

"Never for a page does Professor Bemis show that he is conscious of the dynamic forces, racial, economic, cultural, behind the political negotiations which he so sedulously details." Waldo Frank
— New Repub 108:704 My 24 '43 1450w

"Mr. Bemis's book is altogether a fine job, but many Latin-Americans will find it vaguely disquieting. They will be uneasy over Mr. Bemis's repeated emphasis upon our 'forbearance.'" Hubert Herring
+ — N Y Times p4 My 16 '43 1350w

Reviewed by D. G. Munro
Pol Sci Q 58:619 D '43 750w

Reviewed by C. A. Hutchinson
Sat R of Lit 26:6 Je 12 '43 700w

"Only in one sphere does the work seem to be below the high level of its general excellence: Professor Bemis suffers from a blind spot at times when it comes to appreciating the Latin American viewpoint on the very facts he is citing. . . But the oft-told story of our Latin American policy has never been told with greater clarity, honesty, completeness and balance. The liveliness of style and signal lucidity of exposition make it a pleasure to read in a field too often characterized by official dullness or one-sided polemical criticism." B. D. Wolfe
+ — Weekly Book Review p28 My 23 '43 1500w

"Professor Bemis, with a long record of scholarly writing to his credit, has an adequate background of knowledge of both United States diplomatic developments in general and the Latin American area in particular. The present 'Latin American Policy' is a valuable supplement to his well-known diplomatic history, now in its second edition. . . On the debit side should be mentioned the author's occasional tendency, as in the case of Henry Lane Wilson, towards extreme and intolerant interpretations. . . The volume has also a few—but very few—factual errors. These faults are minor ones, however. This book must, when a balance is struck, be generally considered as a notable contribution to the literature on the subject." R. H. Fitzgibbon
+ — Yale R n s 33:170 autumn '43 500w

BEN-HORIN, ELIAHU. Middle East; crossroads of history. 248p map $3 Norton
956 East (Near East) 43-13878

Survey of political and social problems of the Middle East in the immediate past and the present, with some suggestions for their solution in the near future. Index.

Reviewed by W. W. White
Am Pol Sci R 37:1123 D '43 500w

"Mr. Ben-Horin's book is not sound history. It is not objective analysis. It is well-written propaganda. The author himself confesses as much when he tells the reader (p. 237), in answer to his own question as to why the book was written, that the volume 'is a message from the Middle East to the greatest democracy on earth.' Readers will do well to consult other 'messages from the Middle East' after having read that of Mr. Ben-Horin. I should suggest, for instance, the works of Mr. George Antonius and Professor Hans Kohn." H. N. Howard
Ann Am Acad 231:177 Ja '44 360w

Reviewed by J. I. Greene
Book Week p8 S 26 '43 140w
Booklist 40:56 O 15 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '43

BEN-HORIN, E.—Continued

"Ben-Horin's book is written with the skill of a sophisticated journalist, but is 'journalistic' in the worst sense of the word: with inaccurate historical background, manifold errors, and clumsy bias, in spite of its remarkable formal brilliance." Max Fischer

— + Commonweal 38:638 O 15 '43 700w

"Convincing and extremely timely. Highly recommended." L. R. Etzkorn

+ Library J 68:621 Ag '43 80w

"Liberals who are sympathetic to Zionism but naturally suspicious of enforced migration—such as the author proposes for the Arabs of Palestine and Transjordania—might have liked a more inclusive survey of Zionist views concerning the problems of settlement. With this and the added reservation that greater attention might have been paid to economic matters Mr. Ben-Horin's lively book deserves recommendation as a primer of Near Eastern problems."

+ — Nation 157:332 S 18 '43 180w

"In the judgment of the reviewer 'The Middle East: Crossroads of History' renders a disservice to the cause which it is intended to promote. The Arab-Zionist question is fraught with dynamite and any approach that is not based on a sympathetic understanding of the rights and claims and aspirations of both parties is calculated to do more harm than good. If the Arabs and Jews are going to be able to work out a modus vivendi—as all well-wishers of both peoples would like to see them do—it would be despite rather than through such contributions as Ben-Horin's." P. K. Hitti

— N Y Times p15 S 12 '43 1300w

"Mr. Ben-Horin's book is timely, his writing vigorous, his point of view firmly argued. His 'condominium' suggestion makes sense. But he leaves questions as well as enlightenment. His sympathies are so strong that one wonders if he does less than justice to Arab aspirations. One would like to see him indulge his zest for speculation in a little essay on the possible repercussions of a powerful, superior Zionist state among the backward, jealous Arab communities." Frederick Gruin

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:8 S 25 '43 750w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 5 '43 550w

"Mr. Ben-Horin knows his Middle East well. He describes it clearly and intelligently, and seems to be free from prejudices. But the hope expressed at the end of his book—that America will do something about it—seems founded more in faith than in fact." Nicholas Roosevelt

+ Weekly Book Review p26 O 24 '43 950w

BENCHLEY, ROBERT CHARLES. Benchley beside himself; with drawings by Gluyas Williams. 304p $2.50 Harper

817 43-8712

Collection of essays on a variety of bewilderments by the American humorist and actor, who seemed for a time to have deserted humor for Hollywood. The essays are reprinted from earlier works.

"If some of our pre-Axis day-by-day concerns, as aired by Benchley, now appear somewhat remote, they are pleasantly so and remind us all of days we'd like to see back again. As an affable social satirist probing into the impulses and behavior of our medium-grade citizens, Benchley is hard to tie and almost impossible to beat." Jack Conroy

+ Book Week p4 Je 27 '43 200w

Booklist 39:442 Jl 1 '43

Bookmark 4:10 My '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Jl '43

"It is apparent to any one with half an eye, like myself, that this book will be standard equipment on every night table in the land by midsummer. If its sales are only overwhelming enough, God grant its author may be seized with sufficient remorse to desert the spurious trade he is playing on the Pacific Slope and return to the vineyard. Come back, Bob, all is forgiven." S. J. Perelman

+ N Y Times p2 Je 13 '43 800w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue

Sat R of Lit 26:20 Jl 10 '43 340w

"Each reader will have his own favorite among these random thoughts of one of our most random thinkers, and no doubt this fat little book will do much to revive the almost forgotten (and a good thing, too) custom of reading aloud. . . Mr Benchley, we thank you. Your bewilderment is ours, only you are more vocal about it. May you and Gluyas Williams continue as partners, casting a charming, if slightly wavering, shadow across the breadth and length of these United States." E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 6 '43 280w

Theatre Arts 27:566 S '43 380w

Wis Lib Bul 39:106 Jl '43

BENDER, JAMES FREDERICK, comp. NBC handbook of pronunciation. See National broadcasting company

BENEFIELD, BARRY. Eddie and the archangel Mike. 310p $2.50 Reynal

43-166

When Edward Yancey Tayloe, copy reader on a Texas newspaper, inherited a small fortune from his grandfather, he gave up his job and headed for New York and a career as a playwright. Enroute he picked up Perry (short for Peruna) Dunklin, running away from an intolerable sister-in-law, and the subsequent adventures of the two in New York and Brooklyn, and particularly the part played therein by "Mike," make up the events of this half-humorous, whimsical story.

Booklist 39:224 F 1 '43

"Sentimental? Of course, and unabashedly so. Are the characters unbelievable? The point can be argued, but in the telling they become real enough. It is probable that the brains of Hollywood have already decided to make a motion picture of the doings of Eddie, the Archangel Mike and their friends. If they haven't, then, as Miss Peruna Dunklin herself might put it, they should be bored for the hollow-horn. It is a natural. But this is a side issue. The book is something to bring pleasure to all who have not been made insensate by the manifold brutalities which surround us." Stanley Walker

+ Books p4 Ja 10 '43 1300w

"Whimsy can be delightful or dreadful, depending on the dose, and it is to Mr. Benefield's everlasting credit that he has managed a whimsical situation in a thoroughly masculine and entertaining manner. . . Those who liked 'Valiant Is the Word for Carrie' and 'The Chicken Wagon Family,' Mr. Benefield's previous novels, will like this one even better, we believe." Elizabeth Watts

+ Boston Globe p19 Ja 20 '43 250w

"The author tells us that he wrote this story to get away from the war, and he follows this up with a fervent plea that we buy war bonds and stamps unless we want to bow down to Hitler and the Japanese. If the book helps Mr. Benefield to discharge his patriotic duty, it ought to be encouraged, but, considered as art, it merits little attention. It is a kind of whimsey on the tough life, and though the narrative is lively, the humor is hard going."

Cath World 156:763 Mr '43 160w

Reviewed by Margaret Wallace

N Y Times p18 Ja 10 '43 800w

New Yorker 18:59 Ja 23 '43 90w

"The mood in which Mr Benefield's book is conceived is difficult to sustain and few authors are successful in this field. Comparison with Robert Nathan and the early Kit Morley are inevitable and Mr Benefield stands up pretty well under close survey, though occasionally he is a bit heavy-footed."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 10 '43 330w

Wis Lib Bul 39:28 F '43

BENET, STEPHEN VINCENT. Twenty-five short stories. 274p $1.49 Sun Dial

"This collection brings into one volume the two collections originally called 'Thirteen o'Clock' and 'Tales Before Midnight.' All together they appear with the fine tribute To My Brother Steve by William Rose Benét, as a foreword. This was written while the younger Benét was still living." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p6 N 28 '43 1000w

"Some of these stories are not so different from good magazine stories by numerous writers, but some of them are such as only Stephen Vincent Benét could have written. His gift, I think, lay in the direction of his shorter pieces."
+ Weekly Book Review p34 N 7 '43 380w

BENET, STEPHEN VINCENT. Western star. 181p $2 Farrar

811 U.S.—History—Poetry 43-9580

Before his death in March, 1943, the author had planned an epic poem based on the westward migration of the peoples who founded this country. Only one section was completed. In narrative form it shows the beginnings in England of the colonies at Jamestown and Plymouth; then the scene changes to America. It ends with the settling in this country of the heroes and heroines whose stories were begun in England.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 172:125 Jl '43 600w

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p3 Jl 11 '43 700w

Booklist 39:460 Jl 15 '43

Bookmark 4:10 My '43

"It is a moving and dramatic story, well told, and peopled with interesting, believable characters, some historic and some mostly fictional. Personally, however, we felt that if Benét had concentrated on either Jamestown or Plymouth, he might have wrung more emotional power from his epic. As is, it strikes us that the material is spread a little too thin to be completely effective."
+ — Commonweal 38:324 Jl 16 '43 600w

"No matter how impressed we may be with the poet's intentions, or what we consider them to be, 'Western Star' is in toto not a great work. It will in all likelihood be a popular one, and this is a good thing. Poetry has tended to move too far away from the stream of life in appeal if not in subject, and I for one am glad that Mr. Benét has increased its area of communication." Charles Alldredge
Nation 157:132 Jl 31 '43 480w

Reviewed by V. C. Koch
New Repub 109:228 Ag 16 '43 650w

"Steve Benét's last service to his craft as well as his country was a unique one freely relinquished to him by his peers, to 'scatter the cornmeal for the great dead.' For those who labored and died in the making of America. Their labor and their deaths shaped this poem—and also have added it permanently to our inheritance." Bernard De Voto
+ N Y Times p1 Je 27 '43 1750w

"It is probable that, had its author lived, 'Western Star' would have been subjected to certain condensations and a final polishing. As it stands, it is an interesting, often beautiful narrative that does not quite pack a final punch." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:61 Jl 3 '43 950w

"Children are in this book with an exceptionally natural ease, and women bearing children with the natural pain. The flaws are of the word and not the poet, if such a distinction is possible in an art where the poet can be known only through the word. There was too ready an acceptance of the vocabulary that came too readily to the tongue. But always, beyond the verbal fault, is the small, living, warm texture of the years of men, and over all the vast conception of the westward motive. The result is a book which expands the types of our poetry. This is no small virtue. The book continues and prolongs the American search for a home and an emblem. There are many who share that need for integration and who live out that impulse toward fixity: This is their book." Paul Engle
Poetry 63:159 D '43 900w

"Everything that those who knew him loved and admired in Stephen Benét is in this book. No genius is required to see the notable development and enhancement of his great powers that grew even-paced with his huge and beautiful subject. For the hand of the shaper became more deft as it accustomed itself to the strange marble of the epic. The verse is at once statelier and easier. And one feels that 'John Brown's Body' was itself a mere prologue to what the great story, a noble fragment of which is before us, was to have been. But whatever pleased and touched in the earlier book is in 'Western Star,' the same power of observation, the same understanding of the like meaning of things that seem opposed." Leonard Bacon
+ Sat R of Lit 26:6 Jl 10 '43 650w

"'Western Star' tells the familiar story of the coming of the Pilgrims as if it had never been told before. It is fresh and high-hearted and, at times, gay. The verse forms march on, with variations in pace, with increasing eagerness. The 'Invocation' is full of foreshadowings of all the spirited richness which was to follow in later volumes. In it the poet invokes both the past and the future, asking that they stand at his either hand to help men face today. There are as real people, as vivid incidents and as magnificent scenery in 'Western Star' as one would find in a superbly written novel. The poet is never smothered by the love of words which is his instinct. Through time and space, the words flow eloquently, summoning up once more the first of our great national heritages." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 4 '43 700w

"Benét did not live to finish this poem, but it is a noble fragment that he has given us. He put this book aside for more pressing duties: time enough to recall us to our past when he had pointed out our present duty. His spirit was a flame, and burned brightly to the end. He loved his country passionately, gave his life to singing her beauty and her glory." H. S. Commager
+ Weekly Book Review p1 Je 27 '43 1600w

Reviewed by Louis Untermeyer
Yale R n s 33:349 winter '44 240w

BENGTSSON, FRANS GUNNAR. Red Orm; tr. [from the Swedish] by Barrows Mussey. 333p $2.50 Scribner

43-7231

The hero of this story of Denmark and England in the days of the Vikings, is Orm the Red, once a galley slave in Spain, then a favorite of the Danish king, later one of the hordes to invade England, there to find a new faith, a new home, and a bride.

Booklist 39:388 Je 1 '43

"An excellent tale which comes as near the spirit of the old sagas and eddas as you will find in recent print. Bengtsson is peculiarly able in carrying his reader into the midst of the ancient days. His story has the drive, the action, the violence, at times the severely simple poetry of the old tales." Hal Borland
+ N Y Times p6 Ap 25 '43 600w

"Mr. Bengtsson tells his adventurous story in a lean, lively prose very different from the fancy pseudo-medieval style which William Morris led us to believe was the language of the sagas."
+ New Yorker 19:82 Ap 17 '43 130w

"Frans Bengtsson is known not only as an outstanding Swedish novelist, but also as a specialist in early Swedish history. It is said that 'Red Orm' reveals his wide knowledge in the historical field in its presentation of life centuries ago in England and the North. What makes this book so readable is not alone its historical accuracy, but the vigorous yet simple style of writing which Mr Mussey has so well rendered into English." J. C. L.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 2 '43 330w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock
Weekly Book Review p10 Ap 18 '43 1000w

Wis Lib Bul 39:85 Je '43

Reviewed by Orville Prescott
Yale R n s 33:xii autumn '43 20w

BENIANS, ERNEST ALFRED. The United States; an historical sketch. 110p $1.25 Macmillan [3s 6d Cambridge]

973 U.S.—History A43-1587

"Mr. Benians divides his material into five separate essays. One deals with the new nation; another with western settlement; the third with the Civil War; the fourth with the subsequent economic expansion and the fifth with the developments of the twenties. . . The result is a sophisticated and civilized summary of our past and our achievements." Commonweal

Booklist 40:42 O 1 '43

Reviewed by Francis Downing
Commonweal 38:517 S 10 '43 700w

"The ripe judgement and admirable perspective shown in this little book make it a most admirable introduction to American history. The difficulties and achievements of the American people are made plain; the limitations of American practice are candidly set forth. The greatness of the American success is made manifest without either boosting or patronage." D. W. Brogan
+ Spec 170:458 My 14 '43 430w
Times [London] Lit Sup p263 My 29 '43 240w

BENJAMIN, THEODORE D. Fundamentals of electricity. 256p il $1.20 Scribner

537 Electricity. Electric engineering 43-3743

This book "has been prepared at the request of the war department and the United States office of education in conformance with official preinduction training courses. It is designed to cover basic scientific principles in a simple and thorough manner and to lead logically to the military application of principles of science. Problems and questions are provided to aid the student in checking his progress." Springf'd Republican

Booklist 39:429 Je 15 '43
Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 22 '43 70w

BENNETT, HARRY. Practical emulsions. 462p il $5 Chemical pub. co.

541.3452 Emulsions 43-9602

"Emulsions from a practical angle, with little attention given to the theory of the subject. Part one describes the types of emulsions, methods of preparation, and equipment needed. It also lists emulsifying agents, emulsions, demulsifying agents and defoaming agents. Part two, which occupies more than half the book, contains formulas for making emulsions to serve various purposes. While the author makes no claim to compiling a complete record of published works on emulsions, nevertheless the material is well documented." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by Jerome Alexander
Chem & Eng N 21:1466 S 10 '43 320w
Library J 68:626 Ag '43 10w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:26 Ap '43

BENNETT, HARRY. Substitutes; a handbook of substitutes and alternatives for chemicals, metals, fibers and other commercial products, including a plan for making a proper choice. 225p $4 Chemical pub. co.

660 Commercial products—Substitutes 43-1960

"Timely book on new products, processes, and materials which can be used as substitutes or alternatives in diverse industrial fields; by author of 'Chemical Formulary' series." Library J

"A certain lack of focus is evident because the author strives for too great breadth."
Chem & Eng N 21:258 F 25 '43 290w

"This reviewer had the reaction that the volume was too elementary to be of use to the practical chemist, the works manager, or the competent technician in a manufacturing industry. In that 'a little knowledge is a dangerous thing,' the volume would be decidedly misleading and confusing to a purchasing agent or those not technically or scientifically trained who were searching for information. The aim of the volume is definitely commendable and would satisfy a current need, but in this writer's opinion it has 'missed the bus.'" C. L. Mantell
— Chem & Met Eng 50:193 O '43 200w
Library J 68:211 Mr 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:18 Ja '43

"Mr. Bennett's book on the subject should be of considerable use, particularly to the smaller operators. . . Larger organizations, however, have specialists for each phase of their activity, and they will probably find little in the book not already easily available to them. If the author had included at least general data as to the sources of supply and the general characteristics of the materials it would have been more useful." James Stokley
+ — Weekly Book Review p17 F 14 '43 150w

BENNETT, JOAN. How to be attractive; with a foreword by Harlan Logan; phot. by Earl Theisen. 132p $2 Knopf

646.7 Beauty, Personal 43-12103

Beauty hints by a Hollywood star, illustrated with photographs of the author and other movie actresses. Partial contents: Attractive women are happier women; "As old as she looks"; Up-to-date cleanliness; The clothes you wear; How to attract men.

Booklist 40:73 N 1 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

BENNETT, MRS JOSEPHINE WATERS. Evolution of The Faerie queene. 299p $3 Univ. of Chicago press [18s Cambridge]

821 Spenser, Edmund—Faerie queene 42-18827

A scholarly study in which the author has attempted to solve the problems of the structure of the Faerie Queene by setting forth a theory concerning the probable method and progress of its composition. Index.

"Classroom discussion of the Faerie queene may well be modified and vivified through the findings of the book. And the poet will, I believe, be read with increased enjoyment." H. E. Sandison
+ Mod Philol 40:358 My '43 1100w
Times [London] Lit Sup p270 Je 5 '43 2300w

BENNETT, LOWELL. Assignment to nowhere; the battle for Tunisia. 316p maps $2.75 Vanguard

940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—Campaigns and battles—Tunisia 43-9664

Personal narrative of a young American war correspondent's trip to North Africa with the Allied invasion forces. Material includes not only the author's adventures with the fighting forces but also some comment on the diplomatic aspects and description of civilian life in Algiers and elsewhere.

"'Assignment to Nowhere' is breezy and pleasant, packed with adventure and still with enough restraint to make it genuine." Ernest von Hartz
+ Book Week p4 Jl 18 '43 110w
Booklist 40:8 S '43

"Throughout, Bennett's style is frothily amusing, with a highly developed sense of the ludicrous. . . Neither profound nor serious, the book is a straight-forward piece of color reporting, with few dull moments." E. S.
+ Christian Science Montior p11 S 18 '43 360w

"This is by no means a perfect book. Bennett suffers from not having kept a diary and sometimes he jumbles what happened one day with what actually happened another. . . But, in synthesis, this is a grand book which gives an accurate over-all picture of those pioneer days of battle; it is not only worth while but, I think, enjoyable reading for any one. And it has historical value." F. L. Kluckhohn

+ — N Y Times p3 Je 20 '43 950w

"Fluent impressionism and honestly critical on occasion, but the tone seems rather boyish."
+ — New Yorker 19:64 Jl 10 '43 70w

"'Assignment to Nowhere' is an honest and exciting war book of historical value. It is swift moving, thoughtful and often dramatic. This reviewer enjoyed it immensely." H. B. Kranz
+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 Jl 31 '43 380w

"This book is not only an excellent report of the situation in Algiers but also contains much interesting casual material." Raoul Aglion
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 11 '43 1500w

BENNETT, WILLIAM BATCHELDER. American patent system; an economic interpretation. 259p $3 La. state univ. press
608 Patents. Patent laws and legislation
43-11316

"An examination and re-appraisal of the economics of the American patent system." The author, now a major on the General Staff of the United States Army, has had civilian experience ranging from claim investigation and adjustment in a casualty company through teaching economics at the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas and at Louisiana State University to his work on the fuel unit of the OPA. Bibliography. Index.

"The book is readable and the subject is timely. It is regrettable, however, that the manuscript itself is already somewhat out of date. . . But it is doubly unfortunate in that the manuscript is some three years behind times in its review of legal developments in the field, and lacks the benefit of a veritable flood of pertinent literature which has appeared since 1940. However, the economic analysis of the diverse phases of the patent system is excellent, and is as timeless as is our entire body of economic thought. The book is unique in its approach, and presents a definite contribution to the literature in the field." L. I. Wood
+ — Am Econ R 33:929 D '43 750w

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter
Book Week p10 O 3 '43 70w
Booklist 40:159 Ja 1 '44

"The author has rendered a service in describing the recent changes in our patent system and in interpreting their possible effects, however much one may disagree with his conclusions." F. L. Vaughan
+ — Pol Sci Q 58:638 D '43 500w

BENSON, MRS SALLY. Women and children first. 279p $2 Random house

Collection of short stories first published in The New Yorker between the years 1938 and 1943, by the author of Junior Miss. Contents: The raffle; Goodbye, Summer; Birds in their nest agree; Guest of honor; Retreat; Spirit of Christmas; Between Madison and Park; Act I, Scene 2; But seriously; Going home; He'll outgrow it; Hostess gift; People from out of town; The lilac bush; V is for a lot of things; Ash blonde; Broken heart; Sometimes it relaxes you; Haunted house; Autograph; No news is good; Lucky girl; Never to return; Men really rule the world; Counter-irritant; A million things to do; Tuberoses are lilies; A little poison never hurt anybody; Something for a man in his forties; Table for one; Holy Night; Young man; They've got to be funny; Patron of letters; Men are all alike; International plot; Quite a boy; Seaman first class.

"The author of 'Junior Miss' is one of those rare authors who understands adolescence—even the protracted adolescence of most so-called adults. This volume is a veritable dramatist's notebook of short stories, character sketches and vignettes which, like the pencil sketches in an artist's notebook, often surpass more finished creations." Sterling North
+ Book Week p2 N 28 '43 220w

"One does not find in 'Women and Children First' the nostalgia of Miss Benson's St. Louis recollections, or her humorous compassion for the Junior Miss. Her talent, I suspect, has been molded by editorial policy. The New Yorker is my favorite picture magazine. Its reporting is unexcelled, whether it concerns the latest Broadway quip or the horrendous gesta Thurberi. But, in the category of fiction it has run a Marathon with itself to determine how close slightness may approach zero and yet exist. Some of Miss Benson's themes look like winners." Philip Wylie
— + N Y Times p3 N 21 '43 650w

"Perhaps the greatest living expert on how ladies' little minds work provides some funny, touching, and often terrifying examples of it in these thirty-eight stories."
+ New Yorker 19:108 N 27 '43 50w

"Probably the neatest and most heart-warming tale is the final one, about a Connecticut couple who open their hospitable doors to a convalescent seaman; it is a gem of understatement and compassion. But the whole volume is a sharpener of wits and of feelings." Iris Barry
+ Weekly Book Review p2 N 28 '43 550w

BENTLEY, BARBARA. Hedge against the sun. 233p $2.50 Dodd
43-15368

Character study of a determined mother and her no less determined daughter. When Emily was ten her father moved his family west again, and that move coming on top of many other moves crystallized an instinct in her: she determined never to love a man who could not give her security and that in one place. Strangely enough the man she loved and married proved to be another of the roving type, and altho Emily loved him, she stuck to her self-promise made as a child and left him.

Reviewed by M. R. McDowell
Book Week p9 O 3 '43 310w
Booklist 40:94 N 15 '43

"Good characterization, well written, and thesis is well sustained. Recommended for adults." Katharine Shorey
+ Library J 68:724 S 15 '43 90w

"Miss Bentley has managed to retain throughout this book one's sympathy for Emily, who is so pitiable a victim of her temperament and background. . . There are times when one is aware of the author's lack of maturity. . . Yet 'Hedge Against the Sun' is on the whole a good novel, sensitive, shrewd, well written and provocative." E. H. Walton
+ — N Y Times p4 O 10 '43 550w

"A novel of merit and maturity. The theme is clearly grasped and clearly stated, and the temptation to stray off into bypaths—a tendency which has tripped many a first novel—is one which Miss Bentley either did not encounter or was resolute enough to ignore. Thus there is an admirable sense of economy in the writing as well as the structure of the book." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p10 S 26 '43 500w

BENTON, JESSE JAMES. Cow by the tail; with an introd. by Richard Summers. 225p $2.50 Houghton 917.8 Frontier and pioneer life—West. Cowboys
43-16568

Autobiography of a man of eighty, who went to Texas with his family in the '70's, roughed it on the plains, knew most of the outlaws of that day, rode the trail to Dodge City, and travelled over most of the Southwest.

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p4 N 28 '43 170w
Booklist 40:163 Ja 1 '44

BENTON, J. J.—Continued

"Jesse's book is grand reading for anyone. It is nostalgia in print for those who have smelled wet sagebrush, listened to the blatting of the calves in a branding corral, or seen the sunset light on the Santa Catalinas." Hoffman Birney
+ N Y Times p4 D 12 '43 480w

"A package of prime Americana, as likable as anything of the kind we've had in several seasons. It may, however, have been slightly doctored here and there."
+ New Yorker 19:112 N 13 '43 90w

"The book is written simply and swiftly—in the exciting spots almost as one would imagine a prizefight announcer giving a blow by blow account of a stampede, or a horse race. The publishers have not sissified J. J.'s syntax or language. The author has no particular use for the verb 'was'—'were' serves him for both singular and plural. This, of course, eliminates problems of the subjunctive in a simple, practical manner. Altogether, a full, stirring picture of the early days of the cattlemen." Phil Stong
+ Sat R of Lit 26:31 D 11 '43 650w

"A book that will, as a guess, take its place beside Andy Adams' pioneer work. In addition, it has a raciness all its own. Nothing quite so artless, so full of sly humor, and so replete with masterpieces of understatement has come from any Southwestern oldtimer." Stanley Walker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 N 21 '43 1800w
Wis Lib Bul 40:8 Ja '44

BENTON, WALTER. This is my beloved [verse]. 43p $2 Knopf 811 43-941

"An unexpected reappearance of the sort of sensuous love poetry, in free verse, once practiced by D. H. Lawrence and his imitators." New Yorker

"Rather freshly done."
New Yorker 19:71 Mr 20 '43 20w

"While I am inclined to think that Benton's poetic gifts are considerable, the work with which he is here represented is too effusive. There is too much agitation, and not enough control and objectivity. Every once in a while there is a genuine wave of emotion that has both strength and depth. But too often, what seems to be a wave turns out to be a gush." Leo Shapiro
— + Poetry 63:103 N '43 270w

"When Benton is not priapically preoccupied, he is merely a passion-rousing drum-beater with little worth making a noise about. Sex—stark, staring, and salivous—is what sustains him throughout his labors. The urgencies of the flesh give him an occasional bright and flashing phrase, a bold, original, and incandescent image, but he is more often gross than glorious. Of animal heat there is always a plentiful flow; of emotional warmth or spiritual ardor there is little or none." Gustav Davidson
— Sat R of Lit 26:48 Ap 17 '43 230w

"Once in a very great while an author writes in a vein so permeated and imbued with youth that his written word is almost frightening. It was this deathless youth that spoke in Juliet's words, a lover's voice that echoed down the years. Perhaps it is that in youth love is more swiftly and easily expressed. Walter Benton in his beautifully printed 'This Is My Beloved' writes of love thus, and the words are very moving." E. M. B.
Springf'd Republican p7e F 21 '43 140w

"Mr. Benton's images are rich, lush, bold and intense in their sensory context. They have a graphic eroticism as needful to be recorded and remembered as quiet and tenderness and deep sleep. The effect of physical reality is heightened not by recollection in tranquillity but in a loneliness made bearable only through the creation of associations negating the 'need to forget.'" Ruth Lechlitner
+ Weekly Book Review p22 Je 20 '43 250w

"Walter Benton's 'This Is My Beloved' has made a stir, chiefly because of the vivid language used to express the delights of the body. The poet's sensual pleasure is obvious and explicit, but beneath the carnal images there is the ever-present sense of wonder. Freshness radiates its own sincerity, and the originality rises above the eroticism. The poems are sometimes too special, too spasmodic, but they are quick with pathos and remembered passion that is so close to pain." Louis Untermeyer
+ — Yale R n s 33:350 winter '44 90w

BEREZOWSKY, ALICE LOUISE (NEWMAN) (MRS NICOLAI BEREZOWSKY). Duet with Nicky. 239p $2.75 Lippincott
B or 92 Berezowsky, Nicolai 43-15249

The life story to date of the forty-three-year-old Russian-American composer, Nicolai Berezowsky. His wife, member of an old New Orleans family, is the author. She begins with her husband's difficulties in escaping from Russia; describes their courtship and marriage; their visits to Brittany, Paris, and Berlin, before the war; and ends with the birth of her second child, a son.

Reviewed by Felix Borowski
Book Week p11 O 3 '43 340w
Booklist 40:92 N 15 '43

"Difficulties of a young composer striving to have his music played, published, and played again are well told. . . Heartily recommended for purchase." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 68:621 Ag '43 80w

Reviewed by Mary Poore
N Y Times p9 S 26 '43 500w

"If Alice composed, her music would probably sound like Debussy. Her prose sounds like Debussy, anyway. There are lights and shadows, caves and colors, tones and timbres in her 'duet.' Alice is attentive but not tense, sensitive but only faintly temperamental, sentimental and quite charmingly prejudiced. 'Duet With Nicky' is a gay, witty, engrossing story. I hope Nicky's music is as good." R. B. Cochrane
+ Weekly Book Review p2 O 10 '43 1200w

BERG, EDWARD. Mechanical drawing. 2bks 112;86p pa bk 1 85c; bk2 75c; also in 1 v $2 Bruce pub.
744 Mechanical drawing

"Intended as textbook for use in secondary schools with 'example method' of teaching. Based on recommendation of experienced teachers." Library J

Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 30w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 22 '43 50w

BERGEN, CATHARINE MARY. Some sources of children's science information; an investigation of sources of information and attitudes toward such sources, as used or expressed by children. 72p $1.75 Teachers college
372.35 Science—Study and teaching. Learning, Psychology of 43-13056

"Modern teachers of science in the elementary school, who are emphasizing problem-solving situations, realize that a pupil, in order to solve a problem, must have at least one source of information. A new contribution regarding the sources of information used by children in attacking and solving problems has been made by Bergen. The study is unique in attempting to show under what conditions children in lower-grade science classes use empirical or authoritarian sources when faced with a problem." (El School J) Bibliography.

"The author has made a definite contribution to a vast and unexplored field of knowledge. She fully realizes the limitations of the techniques used and the inconclusiveness of certain of her findings. Her study shows the necessity for more study in this particular field and has opened the way to it. In the reviewer's opinion, anyone wishing to pursue the subject further will greatly profit by the experiences and recommendations of this study." A. D. Grandchamp
+ El School J 44:119 O '43 700w
School & Society 58:48 Jl 17 '43 20w

BERGER, JOSEF (JEREMIAH DIGGES, pseud). Subchaser Jim; with il. by Jack Coggins. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 302p $2 Little

43-12359

Jim Ellis, captain of a Gloucester fishing schooner at eighteen, is the hero. At the beginning of the present war Jim is told to keep a sharp watch for submarines while on his fishing trips. His observations result in his schooner being taken over by the Navy, and while Jim continues to fish for swordfish, ostensibly, his ultimate catch is submarines. For older boys.

"Well printed, written in lively style, and speeding hastily from one exciting incident to another, it will hold the attention of older boys."

+ Cath World 157:668 S '43 60w

"Jim's experiences are such as have taken place along the New England coast in the last two years. They will be followed by sea-loving boys and excitement seekers alike, with complete satisfaction." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:319 S '43 80w

"Told in the manner of adult fiction, with a special gift for characterization. We have had good Gloucester stories, and this is in their true tradition. It is also in the fine tradition of adventure tales, which are at their best an incentive to heroism, not a substitute for it." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p7 S 19 '43 400w

BERGER, MAX. British traveller in America, 1836-1860. 239p $3 Columbia univ. press

917.3 Travelers, English. U.S.—Description and travel 43-16988

"This work is intended to reveal what the British traveller saw in America during the period 1836-1860 and to analyze his viewpoint so far as is possible. . . The British travellers and former emigrants who published travel books on America during this period discussed a multitude of topics. . . It has been necessary, therefore, to limit ourselves to a treatment of such subjects as were of paramount importance to the British visitor. . . To the British traveller of 1836-1860, such matters as democratic government, slavery, manners and customs, national character, the voluntary support of religion, popular education, and emigration prospects were the topics of outstanding importance." (Introd) Bibliography. Index.

Christian Century 61:19 Ja 5 '44 200w

"Not the least valuable part of the book is the excellent critical bibliography, the most complete bibliography of British travel accounts for this period which has yet appeared." W. H. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p6 N 22 '43 900w

"This is an instructive and often amusing book, done with directness and economy of words."

+ Weekly Book Review p20 N 28 '43 250w

BERGGRAV, EIVIND JOSEF, bp. Land of suspense; visitation-glimpses of north-Norway; tr. from the Norwegian by O. Herbert Aanestad; il. by John L. Ellingboe. 144p map $1.50 Augsburg

914.81 Norway—Description and travel 43-10660

The author of this book is the Primate of the Church of Norway who since the Nazi invasion has been a leader in the fight against them and has in consequence been put into confinement. This book is an account of life in northern Norway as observed during various trips made there and during the ten years he was bishop of Haalogaland.

"Apparently the bishop wrote this book at Tromsö in 1937, and one may guess that it was published in Norwegian at about that time. In that year he was 'translated' to Oslo, and more recently the book was translated into English and given a title that is more appropriate now than it would have been then. It has contemporary interest, first, because it pictures the solid structure of character and faith that underlies the resistance which Norway is now offering and, second, because it is the kind of strong, simple and sincere book that has the quality of indestructible permanence." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 60:967 Ag 25 '43 1450w

Reviewed by Sigrid Undset

Weekly Book Review p26 O 17 '43 900w

BERKSON, ISAAC BAER. Education faces the future; an appraisal of contemporary movements in education. 345p $3.50 Harper

370.1 Education—Philosophy. Education—Experimental methods 43-6112

"A comprehensive and considered statement of representative educational philosophies in the recent past. The story of the development of educational movements and trends is presented against the setting of a picture of economic and social changes." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"Allowing for bias (a prevailing human trait), the critical reader will recognize in this volume an honest effort to analyze and appraise the conflicting theories of education in America; he will recognize, also, the merits of the author's synthesis of the best in current educational philosophies: 'a belief in the potentiality of the child, in the possibility of a better society, and in man's power to direct his own future.' " E. D. Grizzell

+ — Ann Am Acad 231:163 Ja '44 550w

Booklist 39:439 Jl 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

School & Society 57:484 Ap 24 '43 40w

Reviewed by Paul Klapper

School & Society 58:214 S 18 '43 1100w

BERMAN, LOUIS. Behind the universe; a doctor's religion. 303p $2.75 Harper

128 Life. Man. Evolution. Cosmogony 43-16327

"Without benefit of quotations, footnotes, or appendices, Dr. Berman (M.D., specialist in endocrinology) presents an answer to age-old question. With intimate knowledge of man and his world, Dr. Berman takes the quest for God out of realm of dogma, where the individual has so often been hopelessly lost. On the road along which he guides our thinking, the individual is never isolated, is always intimately bound to his kind as well as to the cosmos. It is the road of individual fulfilment, leading to recognition of reality of the God of evolution as 'ultimate fact of facts.' " Library J

Booklist 40:189 F 1 '44

"In these days of 'Digests' literary, et al, those predigested, capsulated pellets, those tempters to mental indolence in which we all more or less indulge, it is corrective and invigorating to fall upon a real book—one that challenges attention and demands serious, close reading. It is like a juicy beefsteak with a baked potato after a prolonged diet of dessicated fare. Such a book is this, Dr Berman's sixth of worth." Clifton Macon

+ Churchman 157:18 D 15 '43 240w

"Recommended for mature student in any library." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 68:621 Ag '43 90w

Reviewed by B. D. Lewin, M.D.

Sat R of Lit 27:16 Ja 8 '44 470w

BERNARD, LUTHER LEE, and BERNARD, MRS JESSIE SHIRLEY. Origins of American sociology; the social science movement in the United States. 866p $6.50 Crowell

301 Sociology. Social sciences 43-10237

"The present volume is a contribution to the history of the origins of sociology in the United States. It does not cover all the antecedents of sociology in this country, but it does give an account of that movement—which is designated as the Social Science Movement—as the most direct and immediate predecessor of the academic discipline sociology." (Pref) Subject and name indexes.

BERNARD, L. L.—Continued

"Obviously, the authors have contributed much time and effort to this volume. They hope that it may be useful as a reference work in all the social sciences, and as a text in sociology courses. The first should materialize readily, but the reviewer considers the study too long and involved to be feasible as a text. Inclusion of a name index as well as a subject index adds to its value." C. L. Larsen
+ — Am Pol Sci R 37:760 Ag '43 400w

"It would be difficult to overpraise this book, for it represents not alone tireless researches in this neglected field, but intelligent, objective, and careful reporting on a movement to create a special and unified science of human society and social welfare in the United States in the nineteenth century to be known as Social Science. . . The sheer documentation of this work must have been a considerable labor. The result is a handbook of historical information on the roots of social science that is little short of a revelation." J. S. Roucek
+ Social Educ 7:336 N '43 480w

"It is a most valuable and revealing study in the history of thought. . . However, some just criticisms must be made for the proper understanding of the work. Indirectly the book is a polemic for natural-science methods in sociology. Again and again, we are told that Comte was the founder of the proper scientific method in the social sciences, and that that method limits science to the correlation and generalization of observed phenomena. . . The book's interpretation of Comte is wholly at variance with Comte's general sociological theory. . . A striking omission of the book in its discussion of the origins of American sociology is its failure to pay any attention to the development of American psychology." C. A. Ellwood
+ — Social Forces 22:107 O '43 800w

BERNHARD, RUDOLF KARL. Mechanical vibrations; theory and applications; an introd. to practical dynamic engineering problems in the structural field. 139p il $3 Pitman
620.1123 Vibration. Mechanics, Applied 43-4710

"The former head of the Department of Engineering Mechanics at Pennsylvania State College presents a text for undergraduates and practicing engineers. Part I considers physical phenomena, Part II the methods for measuring vibrations." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Index.

Library J 68:575 Jl '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:18 Ja '43
Reviewed by L. S. Marks
N Y Times p21 Je 27 '43 120w

BERNHEIM, BERTRAM MOSES. Adventure in blood transfusion. 182p il $2.50 Smith & Durrell 615.65 Blood—Transfusion 42-36404

"The lay public, more aware of the importance of blood transfusion through Red Cross calls for blood donations, is here given a history of medical experience with it. The author, a surgeon at Johns Hopkins, was a pioneer in blood transfusion; he relates the early trials of instruments and technique, and such progressive steps as the matching of bloods, clotting prevention, and the use of plasma." Booklist

Booklist 39:132 D 15 '42
Bookmark 4:6 Mr '43
Weekly Book Review p17 F 14 '43 200w

BERRY, ERICK, pseud. See Best, A. C.

BERRY, MILDRED FREBURG, and EISENSON, JON. Defective in speech. 426p il $3 Crofts
616.2 Speech. Children, Abnormal and backward 42-24172

This book has been written "in answer to frequent requests from teachers, social workers, physicians and others who deal in one way or another with the defective in speech. What they have asked for is a clear clinical picture of the speech-defective as a whole rather than a study limited to his specific speech disorder." (Prefatory note) Indexes.

Booklist 39:270 Mr 1 '43
School & Society 56:420 O 31 '42 30w

"The teacher will be pleased with the generally excellent selection of tests, although the matter of laterality tests is a notable exception. Even more useful are the varied and suggestive exercises, a splendid feature of which is the arrangement in order of articulatory proficiency. This book should, and probably will, find a place on many desks and be frequently consulted." C. C. Pardee
+ Survey 79:191 Je '43 300w

BERRY, ROBERT B. Gunners get glory; story of the navy's Armed guard, as told to Lloyd Wendt. 293p $2.75 Bobbs
359.981 Merchant marine—U.S. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. U.S. Navy. Armed guard 43-16829

The story of the navy men who ship on merchant ships to man the anti-sub and anti-aircraft guns. They also act as unofficial ambassadors of good will between the navy and the men of the merchant marine.

Book Week p33 D 5 '43 140w
Reviewed by Herman Kogan
Book Week p3 Ja 2 '44 550w
Booklist 40:190 F 1 '44

"Berry is in a little-known and little-glorified branch of the service, and he wants the story of its sacrifices and its achievements told. But his tone is factual, direct and simple. . . There is nothing negative about Berry's book. He faced a new job—in many ways a humble job—with courage, and he returns from it without either heroics or bitterness. His record of that job is the testimony of an exceptionally healthy mind." A. B. Tourtellot
+ N Y Times p9 D 26 '43 440w

BERRY, ROBERT ELTON. Sextant and sails. 231p il $2.50 Dodd
B or 92 Bowditch, Nathaniel 43-6204

Life of Nathaniel Bowditch, told in fiction form for older boys and girls.

Booklist 39:432 Je 15 '43
Reviewed by M. K. McElderry
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 70w

"This offers an excellent opportunity to learn about the man who revolutionized the science of navigation and wrote The Practical Navigator, on which all mariners rely." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:243 Jl '43 70w

"One feels that biographer was hampered by having to compress his material into one book; perhaps he will have been successful in stimulating interest in the man and his sciences. While style may seem wooden, the glamor of chief character so takes hold of reader that he readily understands why Bowditch became a legend long before his death." E. A. Groves
+ — Library J 68:479 Je 1 '43 70w

"Mr. Berry, who is the author of 'Yankee Stargazer,' a life of Bowditch for adults, has written in this book a biography for older boys. It will probably not be of great interest to landlubbers, and indeed the unmathematically minded may shudder away from his extraordinary feats as a boy in teaching himself calculus and geometry; but those who hanker for the sea and ships will find it a readable introduction to his remarkable achievements." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p9 S 5 '43 200w

"Spirited. Authentic."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:30 My 15 '43 20w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 11 '43 190w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p8 Je 13 '43 450w

BEST, MRS ALLENA (CHAMPLIN) (ERICK BERRY, ANNE MAXON, pseuds). There is the land. 240p il $2 Oxford

43-13159

A realistic story of an American family, used to city ways, but out of luck "for the duration." They settle on a summer farm belonging to friends, while the father of the family is recuperating, and all go to work at subsistence farming. For older girls.

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p6 O 14 '43 50w

"Mystery involving saboteurs is included rather unnecessarily. The telling is crisped with humor and current slang. Rendition of colloquial Adirondack speech is too quaint at times but author understands these people." Eleanor Kidder

+ — Library J 68:1051 D 15 '43 100w

"Erick Berry knows that when amateurs become working farmers imagination isn't all you use; the story has hard work along its course. But these young folks have the motive force of enjoying the work. They like to study out tree crops and take real interest in bees. Adventure enters, but the story centers in The Picket, with fields and forest brought back by city folks no longer summer soldiers." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p18 N 14 '43 500w

BETTERSWORTH, JOHN KNOX. Confederate Mississippi; the people and policies of a cotton state in wartime. 386p il $3 La. state univ. press

976.2 Mississippi—History 43-5265

History of the state of Mississippi during the years 1861 thru 1865, stressing "the people and policies of a cotton state in wartime." (Subtitle) Bibliography. Index.

"A well-written volume which will be invaluable to students of Southern history and the Civil War." R. H. Moore

+ Am Hist R 49:124 O '43 700w

"This pedestrian account, lacking in vivid personalities and local incidents, is result of stupendous reading, as indicated by excellent bibliography. . . Recommended for factual reference in libraries emphasizing history of 1861-65 period." D. F. Lucas

Library J 67:679 Ag '42 110w

BEURLING, GEORGE F., and ROBERTS, LESLIE. Malta Spitfire; with a foreword by W. A. Bishop; il. by Clayton Knight. 235p $2.50 Farrar

940.544 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, Canadian. World war, 1939—Aerial operations. World war, 1939—Malta

43-10512

The detailed story of the experiences of a twenty-one-year-old Canadian fighter pilot, from the time he was an air-minded lad of ten, thru his struggles to get into the R.A.F., and his training in England and Scotland, until he was shot down over Malta.

Reviewed by Jack Conroy

Book Week p1 Ag 1 '43 350w

Booklist 40:8 S '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '43

"It is a corking good story of a pilot's slow development from a highly individualistic, rambunctious boy to a skilled and nerveless machine, aware of his role in relation to others in his squadron." Philip Hamburger

+ N Y Times p4 Ag 1 '43 480w

New Yorker 19:134 D 4 '43 50w

"An absorbing story. It has a touch of Erich Maria Remarque's 'All Quiet on the Western Front'; it breathes the atmosphere of the frontline fight of people trying desperately to retain a bit of human happiness in a world of death and tragedy. It is a great book and a great story, a fitting monument to the heroes, military and civilian, who held Malta in a battle as grim as that of Sevastopol and Stalingrad." P. R. Knauth

+ Sat R of Lit 26:7 Ag 14 '43 500w

"When it leaves the training school and begins to talk about action, the story loses its self-conscious air. It is a cool and businesslike picture of swift action and sudden death, all the more effective for its matter-of-factness. Once the preliminaries are over—there are few individualistic experiences in any training school—'Malta Spitfire' becomes one of the fine stories of this war." R. B. Cochrane

+ — Weekly Book Review p8 Ag 15 '43 800w

BEVERIDGE, SIR WILLIAM HENRY. Pillars of security, and other war-time essays and addresses. 248p $2.50 Macmillan [6s Allen, G]

331.2544 Great Britain—Social conditions. Insurance, State and compulsory. World war, 1939—Great Britain 43-12849

"In the twenty-two papers which comprise this slim volume Sir William Beveridge identifies his celebrated social security plan as intended to be only one part of a comprehensive British program of social reform directed against, besides Want, the 'four other giant evils of Disease, Ignorance, Squalor and Idleness.' " N Y Times

Reviewed by J. A. Fairlie

Am Pol Sci R 37:1112 D '43 260w

Reviewed by Alfred Manes

Ann Am Acad 230:222 N '43 400w

"While reading this book, I wished fervently it had been written in more popular style. Perhaps a journalist, working with Beveridge, might have made the book more generally readable. . . 'The Pillars of Security' is a democratic document. It is solid, profound and important. If 'The Beveridge Plan' has been just a phrase to you, this is your book for learning what it is, how it works, what it means to the average Englishman." Ernest von Hartz

+ — Book Week p1 Ag 29 '43 280w

Booklist 40:71 N 1 '43

"Readers who are looking for a blueprint for a post-war Utopia will not find it in this book. No drastic reorganization of our political, social, or economic structure is proposed. The virtues as well as the limitations of private enterprise are recognized. Sir William's program, if we must label it, is a reformist program. But its sanity and sound humanitarianism should commend it to forward-looking people of all political persuasions." M. S. Stewart

+ Nation 157:619 N 27 '43 600w

"The volume, which is simply written and with no technical details, provides an excellent background and summary of Sir William's larger report on social insurance."

+ New Repub 109:630 N 1 '43 120w

Reviewed by Barbara Wootton

New Statesman & Nation 26:76 Jl 31 '43 350w

Reviewed by John MacCormac

N Y Times p1 S 5 '43 1200w

"Sir William has a dual role. His is the authority of the disinterested scientific inquirer, who presents the facts. But he is also the advocate, ardently espousing a cause and bent on persuasion. In this book we see him mainly as the advocate, cogently, plausibly, repetitively pointing the way to reform, but resting on the objective findings of his other self, the scientific inquirer." R. A. Scott-James

+ Spec 170:574 Je 18 '43 500w

Reviewed by E. M. Burns

Survey 80:29 Ja '44 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p294 Je 19 '43 2600w

BEVERIDGE, SIR WILLIAM HENRY. Social insurance and allied services; report; Am. ed; reproduced photographically from the English edition. 299p pa $1 Macmillan

331.2544 Insurance, State and compulsory 42-36424

"The publication in America of the complete Beveridge report, about which news dispatches from London gave us a general idea, shows the painstaking research and attention to detail that the author has put into it. The aim of the plan is 'to abolish want by ensuring that every citizen willing to serve according to his powers has at all times an income sufficient to meet his responsibilities.'" Current Hist

Reviewed by J. A. Fairlie
Am Pol Sci R 37:1112 D '43 260w

Reviewed by R. C. White
Am Soc R 8:610 O '43 230w

Reviewed by Alfred Manes
Ann Am Acad 226:186 Mr '43 550w

Booklist 39:193 Ja 15 '43

"The now famous Beveridge Report, laying down its 'revolutionary' proposals for post-war social security in Great Britain, is in appearance a somewhat formidable document. But the bones of it—what it sets out to do and why, and what that implies for the future of British society—are well presented in two clear, readable and stimulating sections." Walter Millis
+ Books p3 Ja 24 '43 1050w

Commonweal 37:620 Ap 9 '43 10w

Reviewed by Carol Thompson
Current Hist 3:544 F '43 450w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:586 Ap '43 80w

Reviewed by M. B. Folsom
Management R 32:116 Mr '43 800w

"Taken as a whole, the program is so complete and so carefully planned that it is scarcely open to criticism. . . Politically, too, the recommendations are extraordinarily astute. Full consideration is given to all legitimate questions and doubts, and the whole program is so neatly integrated that it can hardly be subject to piecemeal attack. Although the organization and vocabulary of the report are highly technical, it is so permeated with a spirit of practical idealism that no one can read it without an enhanced respect for the value and dignity of the common man." M. S. Stewart
+ Nation 156:172 Ja 30 '43 650w

Reviewed by Beatrice Gomberg
New Repub 108:387 Mr 22 '43 2000w

"Even if the Beveridge report is not accepted in its entirety, or accepted only with greater safeguards than the report itself suggests, it contains so many merits, and so many advances in thinking on social-security problems, that it is certain to have a profound influence on the future of social security theory and practice, not only in England, but throughout the post-war democratic world." Henry Hazlitt
+ — N Y Times p1 Ja 3 '43 1450w

"The report merits American study." M. J. Boyer + Social Educ 7:190 Ap '43 300w

Reviewed by Eric Fischer
Social Forces 21:469 My '43 1750w

Reviewed by E. W. Bakke
Yale R n s 32:585 spring '43 2000w

BIBER, BARBARA, and others. Child life in school; a study of a seven-year-old group; with a chapter on the Rorschach test by Anna Hartoch and Ernst Schachtel. 658p il $3.75 Dutton

136.7 Child study. Educational psychology 42-18332

Study of a group of seven-year-old boys and girls, chosen as representative of that age in the Little Red School House. "To define a stage in children's growth, careful records of behavior were kept, based on principles of progressive education. Relational patterns of behavior among children under conditions where free expression was possible (rather than analyses of individual acts) were studied for what they revealed of maturity levels and for clues to deeper meanings of childhood experience." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"The 'projective play situations' and the Rorschach test were introduced to determine their usefulness in the study of those basic trends of personality which are not easily accessible for observation. From the standpoint of method, the results of the use of these instruments are most interesting and stimulating, but many more studies of other groups must be made before the findings here reported can be accepted as characteristic of a normal phase in human development. . . Chapter xiii, 'Conclusions, and Implications for Education,' should become a part of the working equipment of teachers and administrators alike. These recommendations have vital significance, for they challenge educational practice and outmoded thinking in this field. This book will be very useful in teacher-training classes and in study groups for teachers in service." L. W. Putzke
El School J 43:310 Ja '43 850w

"For teachers, parents, and social workers who believe that adults need to be listeners and learners themselves where children are concerned, this is an interesting and important text, well worth owning." Anne Kuhn
+ J Home Econ 35:654 D '43 250w

"Of interest to teachers and to parents familiar with educational terminology." G. O. Kelley
Library J 67:531 Je 1 '42 110w

BIBLE. WHOLE. SELECTIONS. Small rain; verses from the Bible; chosen by Jessie Orton Jones; il. by Elizabeth Orton Jones. [40p] $2 Viking

220 Bible. Whole—Selections—Juvenile literature 43-17188

Verses from the Bible, chosen for their particular references to childhood, and delicately illustrated with drawings of children, animals, and flowers.

"The beauty and tenderness of this book is something you must feel for yourself. Once felt, you will want to take it home to your own children. . . Chicagoland has been proud of Elizabeth Orton Jones before, but this is surely the loveliest book she has illustrated." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p44 D 5 '43 200w

Booklist 40:151 D 15 '43

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 31 '44 200w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:43 Ja '44 100w

"This is a MUST book for children." Margaret Abildgaard
+ Library J 68:1050 D 15 '43 70w

"Here's a book for very young children which seems to us just about perfect in its small way. There is not a single flaw of taste in the sweet, gay drawings which translate, in terms which will appeal to a small child, the magnificent words of the Bible verses."
+ New Yorker 19:132 D 4 '43 70w

"The compiler could hardly have found a more effective way of introducing children to their cultural heritage; the great poetry of the Bible. . . In her drawings of children of today in ginghams and overalls, Elizabeth Jones has brought some of the most beautiful passages of the King James Version into the child's own experience." Muriel Gilbert
+ Sat R of Lit 26:35 D 11 '43 290w

"Years from now some men and women will be the better because they had this picture-book when they were very young. For it translates into the terms of a young child's experience some of the sentences, phrases, passages that, once had by heart in early life, recur to strengthen, comfort and assure as long as life lasts. Here are children such as you see in any primary schoolyard at recess, making 'a joyful noise unto the Lord,' and here they laugh together, race and nationality unnoticed, as 'All of you are children of the most High.' " M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p6 N 28 '43 230w

Wis Lib Bul 40:11 Ja '44

BIBLE. NEW TESTAMENT. Goodspeed parallel New Testament; the American translation and the King James version in parallel columns; with introds. and explanatory notes, by Edgar J. Goodspeed. 600p $2 Univ. of Chicago press

225.52 A43-2501

"In the twenty years since the first publication of Dr. Goodspeed's 'American translation,' more than half a million copies have been sold. . . Readers are constantly wishing to compare the new version with the old at specific points. This parallel column edition makes such comparison convenient. The introductions and notes are brief but full of meat. With many readers and most preachers this volume will immediately take its place as the favorite edition of the New Testament for everyday use." Christian Century

Book Week p5 Ag 22 '43 60w

"The Bible is a 'best seller,' which doesn't mean it is the 'most read' book. 'The Goodspeed Parallel New Testament' will help to make it so." Preston Bradley

+ Book Week p11 S 19 '43 500w

Booklist 40:39 O 1 '43

+ Christian Century 60:991 S 1 '43 80w

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 18 '43 550w

"Any reader will find the volume illuminating, and it will be invaluable to all teachers and clergymen." J. V. Z.

+ Churchman 157:17 S 15 '43 120w

BIBLE. NEW TESTAMENT. Jesus' own words; with complete concordance. (Halcyon house bk) 456p $1.50 Blue ribbon bks.

225 Bible. New Testament—Selections. Bible. New Testament—Concordances 43-846

"This compact little volume contains the complete text of the Four Gospels and portions of the chapters of Acts in which appear words of the Master. Throughout the volume these are set in bold type to distinguish them from the narrative. The concordance at the back of the book aids in quickly finding Jesus' words regarding any specific subject." Christian Science Monitor

Christian Science Monitor p13 F 13 '43 90w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 16 '43 30w

BIBLE. NEW TESTAMENT. GOSPELS. One story; the life of Christ; arranged . . . by Manuel Komroff. 223p $2.50 Dutton

232.9 Jesus Christ—Biography 43-16042

Using the King James version of the Bible, the compiler has selected portions from the four Gospels and arranged them so as to present a continuous narrative, without interruptions or repetitions, of the life of Christ. Index of events.

"Selected passages from Matthew, Mark, Luke and John have been so skillfully interwoven as to condense the four gospels literally into one. The plan is a good one if the reader does not expect too much of it. Komroff is certainly out of step with the best New Testament authorities when he says that 'the one and only source of this "One Story" is found in the Four Gospels.' Again, Komroff does not take into account the assumption among Biblical scholars that the precise order of events in Jesus' life is forever lost. Even so, the book has value. If one keeps its limitations in mind, and reads it simply to get a swift and composite impression of the kind of life which the four great gospel writers presented to the ancient world, it is exciting reading." E. T. Buehrer

+ — Book Week p10 N 21 '43 230w

"The publishers have given the book a beautiful format, inviting to the eye and hand. Of course no such mosaic is a 'biography of Jesus of Nazareth' or 'a simple and continuous whole.' The Gospel materials themselves, however arranged, are not continuous, and the critical problems they raise cannot be short-circuited by the printing of the ipsissima verba in whatever arrangement. But the book will admirably serve the very useful purpose for which it was designed—to encourage a continuous reading of an orderly arrangement of the discontinuous data concerning the life and teachings of Jesus."

+ — Christian Century 60:1338 N 17 '43 130w

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '43

"Recommended for all libraries." Isabel Douglas

+ Library J 68:890 N 1 '43 70w

"The dovetailing is remarkably well done, so that the entire account does read like a single integrated narrative, as if it were thus intended in the first place. To at least one reader the result seems a wholly satisfactory performance, to be commended without reserve." John Cournos

+ N Y Times p46 N 14 '43 450w

"One may find Mr. Komroff's verdict a little too harsh. One may likewise note that attempts similar to his have not infrequently been made before. The fact still remains that Mr. Komroff does achieve a surprising measure of unity. Thus in a single chapter, he quotes Matthew and Mark, and it will be a very well-informed reader who can tell where one author ends and the other begins. The smooth excellence of the King James Version is, of course, a great advantage. Mr. Komroff's arrangement of the material is also remarkably good, and the reader will be grateful in particular for the sequence in which the Parables are related." G. N. Shuster

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:8 D 25 '43 400w

"Mr. Komroff has achieved a highly interesting if not altogether original feat. . . He has taken the strands, so various in character and color, and woven them artfully into a single pattern. . . The general impression is that of the editor's scrupulous integrity in the use of his material. One other impression, however, is stronger yet, and that is the utter impossibility of reconciling John's Gospel with the three Synoptics. Mr. Komroff uses the four books as of equal value but John simply refuses to fit in." J. H. Holmes

Weekly Book Review p34 N 21 '43 400w

BICHOWSKY, FRANCIS RUSSELL. Industrial research. 126p $2.50 Chemical pub. co.

607 Industrial research. Inventions 42-22640

"The author starts with a chronicle of early inventions in transportation and illumination. . . After a chapter defining the field of research, the author swings into a discussion of the processes of invention and how inventions evolve in the research organization. Next subject is research for the small company and how such companies can be aided by the outside consultant. Final chapters deal with research organization and administration." Chem & Met Eng

"With few exceptions the book is convincing and sound. . . Altogether, the book is well worth reading." Chaplin Tyler

+ — Chem & Met Eng 50:203 F '43 250w

Reviewed by Gerald Wendt

Management R 32:158 Ap '43 650w

N Y New Tech Bks 27:60 O '42

BIDDLE, FRANCIS BEVERLEY. Mr Justice Holmes. 214p il $2.50 Scribner

B or 92 Holmes, Oliver Wendell, 1841-1935 42-25665

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"This sketch of one of the most individual characters in all legal history does not assume to be a definitive biography. But, because of the close relations of its author, the present United States Attorney General, to his subject, as one of the long procession of secretaries whom Justice Holmes selected annually from the graduating class of the Harvard Law School, the book possibly presents a more accurate picture than more formal works are likely to do. The Justice gave out more of himself to his 'young men' than he did to many others, and they saw intimately every side of him. Mr. Biddle has an ingratiating style, and he has been exceedingly felicitous, graphic, and discriminating in his report of conversations and contacts. . . It is only when he attempts to describe Holmes's philosophy that Mr. Biddle flounders." Charles Warren

+ — Am Hist R 49:71 O '43 900w

"While a comprehensive biography of Justice Holmes has not yet been written, the materials for a full-length study are rapidly becoming available. Mr. Biddle has made an invaluable contribution to our store of knowledge of Holmes, the man as well as the jurist. As a former secretary and old friend, Mr. Biddle writes with great affection and insight of his former chief, in an effort to get at the central core of his nature, his love of life, his philosophic skepticism, his broad scholarship, his approach to the law, 'historic, eclectic, experimental,' his essential loneliness as a man given to thought." David Fellman

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:361 Ap '43 450w

"It would be hard to overpraise the deft and spare art with which the Attorney General of the United States has here sketched Holmes the man, Holmes the thinker, and Holmes the judge. For doing this, Mr. Biddle had in addition to his own skill a rare advantage in having been an early secretary or law clerk of the Supreme Court Justice and a frequent sharer with many of his successors in the recollections inevitably pooled when men who have served or talked with Holmes get together." T. R. Powell

+ Books p5 F 7 '43 850w

"I tried this book on a lad fresh out of Columbia Law School. It fired him as I knew it would—and as only Holmes can. The author is the faithful vehicle of his subject, moving gracefully in the same tradition. He has given us a cameo of Holmes authentic; and some fresh glimpses." B. H. Levy

+ Columbia Law R 43:262 Mr '43 650w

"The Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts and the Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, though a lawyer, and the Attorney General of the United States, though a lawyer, both write about law and life so that it is a delight for laymen to read. In this happy instance, the biographer is worthy of his subject, both in thought and in style. Holmes did not write long opinions, and Biddle has not written a long book." T. R. Powell

+ New Eng Q 16:500 S '43 1050w

Pratt p5 F '43

"Mr. Biddle has been so close to Holmes that the measure of the justice's words often sounds in the pages of this volume—words used equally without quotation marks and without plagiarism, for the form of the thought, the beauty of expression, has become Mr. Biddle's as well. In Mr. Justice Holmes' hands, law and philosophy became one, and became literature as well. We are fortunate to have an Attorney General who has succeeded to the heritage, and given it such rich expression." J. P. C. Carey

+ Survey G 32:266 Je '43 320w

Wis Lib Bul 39:13 Ja '43

"This is a charming book. The time had come for someone to rescue Holmes from the adulation which threatened to engulf him. . . In this new book, the Attorney General of the United States has planned not an authentic biography, but only a briefer work to 'discover something of the essence of the man.' And he has succeeded, in an unusual degree, in this series of vignettes cast loosely as a biographical sketch. One can read it in less than an hour, and it can be recommended for its interest of subject matter and grace of style to an audience far beyond mere legal scholars or jurisprudents." C. E. Clark

+ Yale R n s 32:618 spring '43 1000w

BIEHLER, RAYMOND M. Applied mechanics. (Rochester tech. ser) 291p $3.25 Harper

531 Mechanics, Applied 43-5182

"An elementary college text which requires no mathematics beyond trigonometry yet aims at completeness of basic principles." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Book Week p10 My 9 '43 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:13 Ja '43

"The topics covered are those usually discussed in college courses and include both statics and dynamics. The subject-matter is clearly presented and is illustrated by a considerable number of example problems. An unusually large number of problems is presented. The book is well printed and should serve its stated purpose well." L. S. Marks

+ N Y Times p21 Je 27 '43 200w

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p22 Je 6 '43 70w

BIESTERFELD, CHESTER H. Patent law for chemists, engineers and students. 225p $2.75 Wiley

608 Patent laws and legislation 43-51288

"Basic principles and interpretation of various subjects of U.S. patent law illustrated by the citation of leading cases and quotations from court decisions." (Booklist) Table of cases. Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter

Book Week p6 D 26 '43 50w

Booklist 40:71 N 1 '43

"It is believed that some improvement would follow had the chapters been arranged in a different sequence to group those subjects relating to the patent application and those relating to issued patents and incidents of ownership. . . On the whole, however, the author has provided a very readable and informative text, simple and direct in language, and free from legalistic terminology and fine-spun legal theories. For those who desire insight into the subject of patents, without the dangers either of acquiring too little knowledge or of being confused by a discussion of complicated points, Mr. Biersterfeld's book is highly recommended." A. W. Deller

+ — Chem & Met Eng 51:191 Ja '44 500w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 30w

BILLINGS, MARLAND PRATT Structural geology. 473p il $4.50 Prentice-Hall

551.8 Geology 42-23095

"A well-illustrated text on the principles, methods and technique involved in the study of earth structures. The author is Associate Professor of Geology at Harvard University." N Y New Tech Bks

"Within the scope of the treatment the student will find that a great deal of the material is so well presented that he can grasp it quite satisfactorily from a careful study of the text alone. On the other hand, the instructor of advanced classes, besides hammering on principles and reinforcing with supplementary examples, will wish further to justify his part by bringing in plenty of new points and ideas that the student does not find in his textbook. So, with this new structural geology, the student obtains much of his instruction from his own study, while enough is left to the teacher to enable him to add strongly to the class discussions."

+ J Geol 51:500 O '43 1000w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:27 Ap '43

"An excellent text for the student who has passed the elementary stages of training in structural geology and is just entering the professional field. The book covers the fundamentals and summarizes important progress of the last few years. It is refreshingly up to date. Effective methods for studying the principles applicable to determining the earth's structures are nicely presented." P. E. Kerr

+ N Y Times p28 Je 6 '43 300w

BILLS, ARTHUR GILBERT. Psychology of efficiency; a discussion of the hygiene of mental work [under the editorship of Gardner Murphy]. 361p il $2.75 Harper

131 Mental hygiene 43-13893

"The author, who is professor of psychology at the University of Cincinnati, offers here a text on the hygiene of mental work, the care and maintenance of the thinking machine, and the conditions necessary for its efficient operation. The author's objectives, selection of topics, treatment of subject matter, and choice of illustrative material are based on the needs of students rather than business executives." (Management R) Indexes.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 40w

"Despite the book's limitations from the industrial standpoint, the text does summarize many of the important studies in the field of mental efficiency; and it should thus be in the reference library of the academically-inclined administrator." H. W. Hepner

Management R 32:469 D '43 440w

BINDER, RAYMOND CHARLES. Fluid mechanics. 307p $5; to schools $3.75 Prentice-Hall

532.5 Hydraulics 43-13780

"The aim of this book is to present an introduction to the fundamentals of fluid mechanics. . . A serious attempt has been made to provide a balanced, practical treatment in a logical fashion, and to keep physical concepts and basic established quantitative relations in the foreground. Physical concepts are stressed with the hope that once the student has a good physical picture he can proceed on his own accord, with interest, in understanding and analyzing flow phenomena." (Pref) The author is associate professor of mechanical engineering, Purdue university. Includes answers to problems, bibliographical references, and index.

Booklist 40:191 F 1 '44

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 10w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:45 Jl '43

BING, EDWARD J. Five-year peace plan; a schedule for peace building. 184p $2 Coward-McCann

940.531 World war, 1939—Peace. Reconstruction (1939-) 43-11285

Both specific and general suggestions on the structure of post-war peace. The author advocates an interval of five years between the "Cease Firing" order and the formal peace treaties in which all the countries in the world will be prepared for the establishment of universal peace conditions under a Union of Nations.

Reviewed by Quincy Wright
Am Soc R 8:728 D '43 430w

Booklist 40:180 Ja 15 '44

"Any library will find it an interesting and useful addition to growing collection of books about postwar planning." D. R. Starie

+ Library J 68:473 Je 1 '43 70w

"This is a book important far beyond either its length or its specific contents, although it is distinguished both for its brevity and for its unrelenting specificity. Its greatest merit is its temper or tone—a tone clear, intelligent, imaginative and powerful." John Storck

+ N Y Times p7 Je 27 '43 500w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 30 '44 60w

Reviewed by Alfred Werner
Weekly Book Review p16 Ag 15 '43 650w

BINGHAM, ALFRED MITCHELL. Techniques of democracy. 314p $3 Duell

321.8 Democracy. Political science 42-36353

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"Special praise is due to the common sense and the soberness of the author, who rightly warns us against any panaceas. The more fruitful on this account may the present volume be for the discussion of the technical problems of democratic government." Eric Hula

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:332 Ap '43 600w

"On the whole, Mr. Bingham in this stimulating volume makes a good case for scientific management. Alert political scientists will watch the developments in this field sympathetically and objectively. However, one must be on guard not to claim too much for management. It is well to watch for the pitfalls that may be encountered in an over-simplified analysis, which cannot sufficiently explore all possibilities of adjusting and correcting the weaknesses of the 'traditional' techniques of democracy." Belle Zeller

+ Ann Am Acad 227:176 My '43 700w

Bookmark 5:4 Ja '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:583 Ap '43 30w

Reviewed by A. M. Farquhar
Library Q 13:357 O '43 370w

BINING, ARTHUR CECIL. The rise of American economic life. 732p il maps $4 Scribner

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions 43-12229

"An introduction to American economic history, presenting the story of the origin, growth and expansion of American economic life from its lowly beginnings to the highly complex economic organization of the present. Well illustrated. Excellent bibliographies and index." Social Studies

"The sections dealing with business cycles are disappointing. Considerable space is given to the panic phase of the cycle, but the depression and prosperity phases are dismissed rather briefly. The effect of the cycle upon industrial growth, agricultural discontent, volume of trade, and labor problems is scarcely noted. No attempt is made to organize the facts in such a way that the student with some knowledge of business cycle theory might check his theories against these facts. Despite these regrettable weaknesses Professor Bining has produced an undergraduate text that is well adapted for the course which has as its purpose the giving of a background in economic changes and the development of economic institutions either for the students of history or of economics." R. M. Havens

+ — Am Econ R 33:913 D '43 950w

Booklist 40:139 D 15 '43

Social Studies 34:285 O '43 40w

"The professor, perennially in search of better textual material for his classes, would do well to give serious consideration to this book; so would the student, in class or out, who desires a synthesis of the events and trends in the elaborating and expanding development of American economic life." S. P. McCutchen

+ Social Studies 34:373 D '43 280w

Wis Lib Bul 39:141 N '43

BINKLEY, WILFRED ELLSWORTH. American political parties: their natural history. 407p $3.75 Knopf

329 Political parties—U.S. U.S.—Politics and government 43-14508

"Essays: first, to account for the social and group composition of each major political party; second, to discover the part national political leaders played in building these group combinations, and how they handled art of 'group diplomacy.' Entire United States history is covered, through last Congressional election." Library J

"The rare combination of scholarship, practical insight and good writing makes this study of American politics by a professor of political science at Ohio State University an outstanding book." Robert Lasch
+ Book Week p5 O 3 '43 380w

Booklist 40:53 O 15 '43

Reviewed by R. J. Purcell
Commonweal 39:284 D 31 '43 1450w

"Professor Binkley's illuminating and careful account of the rise, combination, recombination, and assimilation of political factions, mostly within the framework of a few national or almost national party organizations, comes appropriately at a time when the country appears on the eve of a rearrangement of factions into some new alignment. With this history telescoped into the confines of a single book, the reader is impressed with the constantly shifting composition of major political combinations, in contrast to the fixed appearance which Republican rule in the twenties and Democratic domination in the thirties contrived to present." W. R. Woodward
+ Harvard Law R 57:262 D '43 1450w

"Here is a fascinating approach to American history, with sources meticulously given, and colored only by the events themselves. Author is to be congratulated on his impersonal, unbiased treatment. Highly recommended." Thelma Brackett
+ Library J 68:723 S 15 '43 80w

"In contrast to the conversational tone of 'American Hreoes and Hero-Worship, the voice that speaks in 'American Political Parties' is that of the platform-lecturer. But the man behind the voice is as at home at the political hustings as he is among the archives, and the flavor of each—the sweat of the politicos and the dust of the stacks—is in his book. The chief merit, however, is as a readable synthesis of recent scholarship." George Mayberry
+ New Repub 109:432 S 27 '43 550w

" 'American Political Parties' should be read with profit and enjoyment by all Americans who desire to know 'who gets what, when, how' after the votes are counted. . . This is no dry-as-dust treatise on political science. The author has a nice sense of humor and always writes in a sprightly manner. His book is a fine example of the new tendency to present the results of sound scholarship in a style which appeals to the general reading public." Carl Bridenbaugh
+ N Y Times p5 O 10 '43 800w

"The author has produced a sound and satisfactory American political history. He has drawn on the latest scholarship to make it, perhaps, the most up-to-date single volume treatment of the subject. It will, therefore, appeal to the scholar and student. For the general reader it suffers from the overcomprehensiveness that makes it an excellent text and book of reference." W. S. Lynch
+ Sat R of Lit 26:14 O 2 '43 750w

" 'American Political Parties' is a fairly conventional political history which synthesizes a great number of special studies and summarizes the current findings of our historians. It is the most comprehensive, useful and sagacious outline of American politics so far written. It is illuminating and wise. It will probably not command the admiration of the most caste-conscious professional historians . . . but for the general reader it is a very valuable book indeed." Bernard De Voto
+ Weekly Book Review p4 O 17 '43 1500w

BIRINGUCCI, VANNUCCIO. Pirotechnia; tr from the Italian and put into scientific English with an introd. and notes by Cyril Stanley Smith and Martha Teach Gnudi; publication sponsored and financed by the Seeley W. Mudd memorial fund. ltd ed 476p il $5; to members $3 Am. inst. of mining & metallurgical engineers

669 Metallurgy 43-1117

"Pirotechnia is the earliest printed work in the field of metallurgy. . . Pirotechnia covers a surprisingly wide field, since it describes not only the smelting and casting of metals and alloys but mining as well. In addition, the manufacture and use of explosives in the arts of peace and war are described in detail." Chem & Eng N

Reviewed by James Stokley
Books p20 Ja 24 '43 150w

"The translation is exceptionally well done, the English version being smooth and fluid." Marx Hirsch + Chem & Eng N 20:1600 D 10 '42 290w
Library J 68:290 Ap 1 '43 70w

BISCHOFF, ILSE. Painter's coach; il. by Berkeley Williams, jr. 186p $2.25 Longmans

Stuart, Gilbert—Juvenile literature

Timothy, thirteen-year-old son of an itinerant portrait painter, wanted more than anything else to become a painter himself. On one of their trips he and his father and sister met Gilbert Stuart, America's most famous painter of that day. This story for grades five to seven describes how the great artist, egged on by Timothy's younger sister, became Timothy's teacher.

Booklist 40:167 Ja 1 '44

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:42 Ja '44 140w

"Unpretentious, slight as to incident, the story is memorable for its sense of life and of truth, for with Timothy we begin to see things, both common and beautiful, as an artist sees them. That is because Miss Bischoff is herself an artist of distinction, and probably because of that the story is unmarred by the sentimentality and sententiousness which so often weaken fictional representations of the artist's world." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p8 Ja 9 '44 280w

"Ilse Bischoff has drawn her characters with such charming realism that one likes the easy-going Nathaniel even when he embarrasses his son by offering to show his own portrait of Washington to Gilbert Stuart! It is to be regretted that Miss Bischoff, who is an outstanding illustrator of children's books, has allowed anyone else, however capable, to illustrate her story." P. H. S.
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 16 '44 140w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 23 '44 310w

BISCHOFF, RALPH FREDERIC. Nazi conquest through German culture. 198p $2 Harvard univ. press

943.086 National characteristics, German. Germans in the U.S. Propaganda, German. Germany—Nazi movement A43-267

"Professor Bischoff is assistant professor of government at Wesleyan University. He has searched the history of German nationalism and is familiar with the views of its many proponents. . . Professor Bischoff makes clear his thesis at the outset. It is simply that the acceptance of National Socialism is a logical outgrowth of the 'inborn cultural and blood nationalism of the German people, and the ability of their leaders to re-awaken, re-emphasize and reform certain characteristics, traditions and faiths already existent in Germany and in other German communities.' " Weekly Book Review

---

Reviewed by H. L. Childs
Am Pol Sci R 37:537 Je '43 650w

Reviewed by Howard Becker
Ann Am Acad 229:191 S '43 300w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:12 Jl '43 30w

"This excellent study, which is on the less bulky side, and, although authenticated by exhaustive research, remains easily assimilable, is one of the few books which will contribute more to the ultimate solution of 'the German problem' than war itself, for the greatest challenge of Germany in its deepest reaches is more than military. . . As a contribution toward an understanding of the state-inspired political organization of German-born or second and third generation Germans outside the mother-country, this book is a good job." B. E. Nelson
+ N Y Times p31 Je 6 '43 600w
Reviewed by G. D. Crothers
Pol Sci Q 58:634 D '43 230w

"Professor Bischoff, of German ancestry himself, spent the disastrous year 1933-34 as an exchange student in Berlin and in an Arbeitslager near the Polish border. With insight and much scholarship he has added an interesting piece of research to the many attempts at isolating some of the elements that gave rise to the monster." Robert Pick
+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 My 8 '43 400w

"The book is written on the basis of solid, reliable information, without passion and bias and it imparts factual knowledge of importance for a proper evaluation of German cultural aspirations abroad." Karl Loewenstein
+ Springf'd Republican p10 My 27 '43 800w

"This book is a valuable addition to the literature on the subject of German nationalism. Yet Professor Bischoff through its selection of material seems to raise more questions than he has answered. . . German culture produced a Beethoven, a Carl Schurz and a Thomas Mann. Professor Bischoff does not account for them and many like them. The omission is dangerous." R. G. Spivack
+ — Weekly Book Review p24 My 23 '43 1300w

BISHOP, CALVIN COLLIER. Alternating currents for technical students. 2d ed 424p il $2.50 Van Nostrand

621.3133 Electric currents, Alternating 43-8486

"Some of the material has been rearranged and expanded to cover the advances since the first edition [Book Review Digest, 1931]. A chapter on Complex quantities has been added; also one on Electron tubes and their circuits." (N Y New Tech Bks) Problems and answers. Index.

"Written clearly, with simple mathematics."
Library J 68:575 Jl '43 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:25 Ap '43

BLACK, ARCHIBALD, 1888- Story of flying. (Whittlesey house publication) rev ed 272p il $2.50 McGraw

629.13 Aeronautics—History 43-6075

Revised edition of a history of aviation, which first appeared in 1940 (Book Review Digest, 1940). The second edition has added material on the development of aviation during the second World war. Index.

"Perhaps the best popular survey of man in flight. . . I can't think of a better gift for an air-minded youth, or for yourself if you really want a perspective on the art of flight." A. C. Spectorsky
+ Book Week p5 Jl 4 '43 70w
Library J 68:476 Je 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:22 Ap '43
Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p20 My 16 '43 120w

BLACK, DOROTHY. Sun is near [Eng title: Burmese picnic]. 272p $2 Macrae Smith co. [8s 6d Joseph, M.] 43-7758

Romantic story of a group of English and Americans, living in Burma on the eve of the war, almost totally unsuspecting the danger ahead.

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p16 Jl 18 '43 240w

"The tense and troubled atmosphere is cleverly created, its sultry uneasiness always there but never overdone. . . The qualities of thriller and love story are here most successfully combined."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p153 Mr 27 '43 120w

"The intrigue is tense and tropical, and the same may be said of the romantic embellishments. The novel appeared in England as 'Burmese Picnic,' which gives you the general idea." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p20 Je 6 '43 180w
Wis Lib Bul 39:109 Jl '43

BLACK, JOHN DONALD. Food enough. 269p $2.50 Cattell

338.1 Food supply. World war, 1939—Food supply 43-15880

In this book for the layman, the author, a Harvard professor of economics, presents an analysis of the food situation as it has developed under war conditions, both at home and abroad. A final chapter is given to the subject of food in the post-war world. Index.

Booklist 40:190 F 1 '44
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:1006 D 1 '43 50w
Scientific Bk Club R 15:3 Ja '44 130w

BLACKWOOD, FRANCES. Mrs England goes on living. 321p $2 Creative age

940.5342 World war, 1939—Great Britain. Women in Great Britain 43-2447

Account of a six-weeks-trip to England which was planned by a feature writer for the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, to discover how the women of England were reacting to the changes made in their lives by the necessities of war. She pays special attention to work being done by women, their attitude to responsibility, and their cheerful acceptance of the job of keeping the home going, in spite of difficulties.

Booklist 39:316 Ap 1 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '43
Reviewed by J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p35 Ap 4 '43 900w

"This is a clear and well-intentioned book which is better than its word. . . Even when the information is familiar, each story is freshly told. It is a book that should be very good for American women who are troubled, who are trying to do their best in wartime, who want to waste neither time nor materials. It should do its part, too, in increasing friendliness between Great Britain and the United States, not by heavy arguments but by proof and example. It is not a brass hat of a book but a book which knows its job and does it well." M. C. Banning
+ Sat R of Lit 26:22 My 1 '43 340w
Reviewed by Diana Forbes-Robertson
Weekly Book Review p6 Mr 14 '43 450w

BLACKWOOD, OSWALD HANCE. General physics; a textbook for colleges. 622p il $3.75 Wiley

530 Physics 43-12965

"This book is an outgrowth of experience in the use of the Introductory College Physics and reproduces many of its features. For example, the interest of the student is stimulated by the use of vital illustrative material. The automobile is drawn upon in every branch of physics but especially in mechanics. The skidding of its tires on the roadway and the streamlining of its body to diminish air friction are pointed out. Attention is drawn to the forces that are experienced by the driver when his car goes around a curve or runs into a telephone pole. These forces are correlated by appropriate equations; typical problems are solved, and then the equations are derived. . . In comparison with the earlier book, the present volume has additional illustrations, a greater number of problems arranged in the order of difficulty, and supplementary problems in the Appendix." (Pref) Index.

BLACKWOOD, O. H.—Continued

Reviewed by J. M. Juran
N Y Times p49 N 21 '43 60w
Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p32 O 3 '43 80w

BLAIR, THOMAS ARTHUR. Climatology, general and regional. 484p maps $5 Prentice-Hall
551.5 Climatology 42-24369

"Intended as an introduction to the study of climate, dealing (1) with the general principles, and (2) the main features of the major climatic regions of the world." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 28:6 Ja '43

"A thoroughly sound introductory text. . . Although primarily a textbook for students of geography, it contains much material of interest to every one following military operations. . . Unfortunately, many weather observation points are not as well known as those mentioned and frequently are chosen without any regard to their economic importance. Consequently, it would be a great aid to the reader to have included a map showing the location of the places mentioned in the text and tables." C. E. Buell
+ — N Y Times p18 Ja 17 '43 480w

BLAIR, THOMAS ARTHUR. Weather elements; a text in elementary meteorology. rev ed 401p il maps $5; to schools $4 Prentice-Hall
551.5 Meteorology 42-16702

"New edition with numerous revisions bringing the book up to date, together with additional subjects, as latent instability, isentropic analysis, conditions necessary for copious rainfall, snow crystals in connection with the electrical charge in cumulonimbus clouds, and frontal activity in tropical cyclones." (N Y New Tech Bks) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1937. Index.

Library J 67:1063 D 1 '42 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 27:58 O '42

"Though this book is not 'popularly' written, it does not require considerable technical knowledge as a prerequisite to its understanding. A college or high-school physics course, if thoroughly remembered, should provide ample background." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p22 F 28 '43 180w

BLAKE, DOROTHY, pseud. (MRS DOROTHY [ATKINSON] ROBINSON). It's all in the family. 279p $2.50 Morrow 43-1831

Day by day record of the doings of an American housewife from December 7th, 1941 to November 30th, 1942. By the author of The Diary of a Suburban Housewife (Book Review Digest, 1936).

Booklist 39:272 Mr 1 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '43

" 'It's All in the Family' is not for one moment to be set beside any real record of households that have actually suffered in this war, such as the books that have come to us from England. But with its lively range of personality and incident, its unforced tie-up with world events in its month-by-month course, it offers a well-constructed bit of commentary and suggestion, as well as a readable story." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p16 Mr 7 '43 800w

"This book in the form of a war-time diary written by an American housewife is just what the Office of War Information might have ordered. The characters of the book, which is obviously patterned on 'Mrs. Miniver,' are those you might find in any suburban town but for the fact that they are modeled too closely to type." D. D. Bromley
Weekly Book Review p8 F 28 '43 800w
Wis Lib Bul 39:41 Mr '43

BLAKE, ROLAND P., ed. Industrial safety, by T. O. Armstrong [and others] foreword by Henry T. Heald. 435p il $5 Prentice-Hall
331.823 Accidents, Industrial. Accidents—Prevention 43-13848

"Several men of active experience analyze the principles of safety to be practiced by every industrial organization. Practical information on specific phases of accident prevention and control are also discussed. The last chapter is on industrial health hazards. Textbook style with summary and questions at end of each chapter. Bibliography." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 40:40 O 1 '43
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:38 Jl '43

"Emphasis on the hazards of wartime manufacture makes this book particularly timely and valuable. In addition, the organization is so good that it should greatly simplify the task of the instructor who uses the material for textbook purposes." J. M. Juran
+ N Y Times p37 O 3 '43 240w

BLAKEY, ROY GILLISPIE, and JOHNSON, VIOLET. State income taxes. 152p $3 Commerce clearing house
336.24 Income tax—U.S. Taxation, State 42-22076

"The authors center their attention on a careful description of the salient features of the varied state income tax systems now in operation. They present an acute and compact analysis of the diverse state legislative and judicial definitions of taxable income; of the different state rates and exemptions for individual and corporate incomes; of such special problems as the allocation of taxable income among the states; of state administrative machinery and techniques." (Am Econ R) Bibliography. Index.

"The volume is a scholarly contribution to a complex field and will be found exceedingly useful by all those interested in the subject of state taxation." Sidney Ratner
+ Am Econ R 33:412 Je '43 850w

"The book will prove valuable, especially as a source-book." H. M. Groves
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:533 Je '43 300w
Reviewed by W. W. Heller
J Pol Econ 51:560 D '43 750w

BLALOCK, GROVER CLEVELAND. Elements of electrical circuits and machinery; with industrial applications. 347p il $3 McGraw 621.3 Electric engineering 43-10775

"Largely an abridgement of the author's Principles of Electrical Engineering the book is intended for briefer courses in technical high schools. Mathematical treatments have been curtailed, and references to calculus and differential equations have been omitted. Problems have been provided in certain chapters, and a list of laboratory experiments is included." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Library J 68:626 Ag '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:43 Jl '43

BLANKENSHIP, ALBERT BRENEMAN. Consumer and opinion research; the questionnaire technique. 238p $3 Harper

301.154 Public opinion. Market surveys
43-10058

A study of the techniques and accomplishments of the questionnaire survey as developed in recent years, both those used to ascertain public opinion on controversial questions and those employed by commercial enterprises. Index.

"The beginner who seeks an introduction to the mechanics of consumer surveys will find the book very useful. As he progresses, however, he will soon need to supplement his reading by direct consultation of the many references given. In fact, he will sometimes need to go back to the originals before he can thoroughly understand the points made. Dr. Blankenship has at times condensed so severely as to reduce the usefulness to his reader of what he says." Reavis Cox

+ — Ann Am Acad 230:229 N '43 450w

Booklist 40:53 O 15 '43

Reviewed by Walter Hausdorfer

Library J 68:473 Je 1 '43 80w

Management R 32:439 N '43 50w

BLANKFORT, MICHAEL. A time to live. 343p $2.50 Harcourt

43-5524

The novel opens with a picture of Ernie Cripton as he is on December 7, 1941— a lonely man grieving still for his lost wife, blindly refusing the overtures of his former friends. The story closes the next day when Ernie's road has taken a new turn. Between these two pictures the story is told of Ernie's life up to Pearl Harbor—his childhood, education during the '20s, his teaching years when he was a "fellow traveler" with the Communists, the death of his wife, and the German-Soviet pact of 1939.

"Mr. Blankfort is intelligent and sensitive and talented, like many of his kind. He has a strong sympathy for the underdog. He is capable of highminded eloquence and outspoken vulgarity. He knows his own kind and he writes well, so that his book, though neither great nor profoundly moving, should have a pretty good sale among his fellow liberals. But what worries us more than the book is Mr. Blankfort himself and those others for whom he speaks. . . It disturbs us a great deal to think that a bright, civilized, highminded American such as Michael Blankfort appears to be does not even consider the ideas of God and Christianity and the Catholic Church as ideas that would occur seriously to such an American."

+ — Commonweal 37:648 Ap 16 '43 750w

"Excellent novel. . . Some unnecessarily frank and objectionable phrases prevent wholehearted recommendation." H. G. Kelley

+ — Library J 68:288 Ap 1 '43 80w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling

Nation 156:533 Ap 10 '43 400w

Reviewed by Granville Hicks

New Repub 108:614 My 3 '43 650w

"There is much of every tortured liberal in Ernie Cripton. In anatomizing him Mr. Blankfort has produced a brilliant and engrossing novel that highlights the universal soul-searching of the last bitter decade. His characters, for the most part, are eclectic as his political thesis, yet they never fail to stir your interest. Though he has constructed them for a purpose, he has given them honest dimensions. Though their dialectic is better than their dialogue, they speak fairly on both sides of America's dilemma." William Du Bois

+ N Y Times p7 Ap 4 '43 900w

"The book is honest to the core; without that honesty the novel would be irritating, but with it the book has a life and depth that are exciting. And with the excitement of intelligent, antiseptic analysis comes the vividness that keeps the reader's attention on the crises of political ideology that affect Cripton." Lee Varley

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 4 '43 600w

"Michael Blankfort's 'A Time to Live' I took in one concentrated gulp—from 11 to 3 in the early morning hours—and came out at the far end with the conviction that I knew this man Ernie Cripton—and I found that knowledge good. For with scarcely a digression for upward of three hundred engrossing pages, 'A Time to Live' engages itself vividly in a close-knit, first-person singular novel, with the makings of a man in our times." F. H. Bullock

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ap 11 '43 1100w

BLASER, ARTHUR FREDERICK. Federal reserve bank of Cleveland. 306p maps $3.50 Columbia univ. press [17s 6d Oxford]

332.11 Federal reserve bank of Cleveland
42-11807

In this study "the author proposes to describe fully what the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland is and what it does. Emphasis is placed upon two important problems: (1) What part does the Bank play in the economic life of the Fourth Federal Reserve District? How far, if at all, can it influence the trend of business events in the district? Does it assume the position of a leader or of a follower? (2) To what extent is the administrative unit of the Reserve district, as now set up, significant in the problem of centralized versus decentralized central banking in the United States? The relation of the Fourth District to the business life of the remainder of the country is brought in as a part of this analysis." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"Although this is a full-size book and is clearly written, I cannot say that the reader learns very much about the Cleveland Federal Reserve district or the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank that cannot be found in Census and other government publications. Nor can I say that the reader learns much about the Federal Reserve System as a whole by looking at it through Mr. Blaser's Cleveland window. The reason appears to be that the treatment is largely confined to describing the formal structure of banking and other credit institutions in the Cleveland district and rarely gets behind the organizational façade." L. H. Seltzer

Am Econ R 33:415 Je '43 600w

"Except for the local descriptive material, the reviewer finds nothing in the volume not available elsewhere. As a contribution to banking, it serves to prove the futility of attempting to find solutions to general credit problems through the study of the district bank whose credit operations cannot be isolated for separate treatment." J. W. Bell

J Pol Econ 51:184 Ap '43 650w

BLIXEN, KAREN (DINESEN) baroness (ISAK DINESEN, pseud). Winter's tales. 313p $2.50 Random house

43-350

Eleven unique, highly original short stories, by the author of Seven Gothic Tales (Book Review Digest, 1934).

"They are champagne literature—dry, deliciously chilled, fanciful, and faintly amorous." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 171:127 Je '43 270w

Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky

Book Week p5 My 9 '43 140w

Booklist 39:388 Je 1 '43

Bookmark 4:17 Mr '43

Reviewed by Dorothy Hillyer

Boston Globe p17 My 12 '43 300w

"The eleven stories in this volume are distinguished fiction by any standard."

+ Christian Century 60:611 My 19 '43 70w

"The appeal of these new stories lies chiefly in their style, which is distinguished by simplicity and clarity. Their content unfortunately is not so simple nor so clear. The stories are evidently symbolic or fantastic, but their meaning is obscure to the reader who has not the key to the author's thought."

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 5 '43 310w

BLIXEN, K. D.—Continued

"The eleven tales in this new collection have nothing of magic and little of color. The thin plots slither off a table top like spilled water; the characters lack even the vague shape of ghosts; the atmosphere is that of stale perfume; the writing, called quaint by some, is downright awkward. Some good escape fiction would be a pleasant antidote to the momentary flood of war journalism: but an ectoplasm on paper is silly stuff. One is reminded of DeQuincey's 'Levana,' which at least had the dubious distinction of saying nothing gracefully." J. E. Tobin

— Commonweal 38:232 Je 18 '43 240w

"Sometimes elusive, often fragile, but, in a quiet way, vigorous and intense, each story gives reader sheer pleasure." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 68:172 F 15 '43 80w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott

Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 2 '43 70w

"These are by no means special or bizarre stories. They belong to an old and great tradition and are worthy of it. That they have been written in English is our good luck, the chance of contact with European tradition at present being what it is. It is good to be able to read them early, even though they are certain to be around for a long time." Louise Bogan

+ Nation 156:894 Je 26 '43 950w

"There is no story in 'Winter's Tales' of quite the same freakish brilliance as the best of the 'Seven Gothic Tales.' Perhaps this slight sense of disappointment is due to the fact that, having already once entered the imagination of Isak Dinesen, as a traveler enters a foreign land, the delight of surprise on a return visit is not so keen. But by any standards, except the precedent that Isak Dinesen has set for herself, these are tales of the highest excellence." Carson McCullers

+ New Repub 108:768 Je 7 '43 800w

"Baroness Blixen is as cool and delicious as a sea breeze in the desert. These stories are entirely individual, with only a far-off exquisite flavour of Hans Andersen and Conrad." Philip Toynbee

+ New Statesman & Nation 25:260 Ap 17 '43 220w

"Many people, I feel sure, will read all eleven Winter's tales as I did—as fast as possible in order to have as soon as possible the pleasure of reading them for the second, the third, and, inevitably, the fourth time. For Isak Dinesen has an enormous and devoted following, many of whom are convinced that she is the most original, the most perceptive, and perhaps the best living prose writer." William Maxwell

+ N Y Times p2 My 9 '43 1200w

"These nebulous legends, tied down to no particular place or time (though a few have as their locale Denmark of a hundred years ago) recall the early nineteenth-century period of German romanticism. They have affinities with the unreadable novels and tales of Richter and Tieck. Suffused with vague aspirations toward some cloudy ideal, with a longing for the impossible, with a brooding delight in magnificent and absurd gestures, with a quality of sleepwalking, they are as far removed from 1943 as anything can well be." Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 19:78 My 15 '43 230w

"Often as you read the tales you wonder why you are so interested, so constantly excited, for the tales themselves, all of them symbolic, are not especially exciting in their plots, and the characters are frequently as remote as those in fairy-tales, and a great deal of the time you are wandering in a fourth dimension where nothing is especially clear. But the final effect is unforgettable, just as the moments of reading are unforgettable." Struthers Burt

+ Sat R of Lit 26:5 My 15 '43 1400w

Reviewed by John Hampson

Spec 170:532 Je 4 '43 400w

Time 41:104 My 24 '43 50w

"Baroness Blixen appears to be in direct descent from the Heidelberg Gothic, so that in cast of romantic imagination her family tree spreads far and wide. Hers is a distinctive and charming cultivation of mind, her fancy is delightfully overlaid by Scandinavian legend and landscape, but the temper of her entire play with subjective realities goes back to Arnim and Brentano, to Tieck and Chamisso, to Hoffmann and Grimm. The originality of her stories in this volume proceeds from an astonishing and wholly unexpected sympathy with their powers of romantic phantasmagoria."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p125 Mr 13 '43 1100w

"It is the restrained warmth of the North, so much more stubborn than the sun-baked Mediterranean temperament, which gives the book its intensity. Each story, while sensuous, is also extremely reticent, radiating life from the banked fires beneath it. In this new book, as in her other two, the voice of old Europe speaks through the author. . . Isak Dinesen's work springs from a hidden source, and flows icily translucent, swift in current, like a mountain stream. Whether you want the beauty of sea and hill and forest, or the distilled wisdom of man, you will find what you seek among the stories in this book." Virgilia Sapieha

+ Weekly Book Review p3 My 9 '43 950w

Wis Lib Bul 39:85 Je '43

"Her tales are constructed with apparent looseness, and, while expertly written, are anything but 'neat'. In some of them the manner is a little out of joint with the content, as the first, 'The Sailor-Boy's Tale,' which, for all its portentousness of tone, has very little to offer a reader in search of meanings; but in most, as, for example, in 'Sorrow-Acre,' the manner is in perfect accord with the subject, and meaning is profoundly there." Mark Schorer

+ — Yale R n s 32:iv summer '43 230w

BLOOR, WALTER RAY. Biochemistry of the fatty acids and their compounds, the lipids. 387p $6 Reinhold

612.01514 Lipoids 43-15003

"An evaluation and gathering together of reported material to serve as a background for future effort for biochemists in their work on fatty acids and their compounds. Contains an extensive bibliography." Chem & Eng N

Chem & Eng N 21:1648 O 10 '43 30w

"This book could well be included in the personal libraries of scientists interested in the biological aspects of chemistry. Chemists and biologists working in the field of lipids or of nutrition will find within its pages material of appreciable value." A. W. Ralston

+ Chem & Met Eng 50:191 D '43 250w

Library J 68:669 S 1 '43 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:41 Jl '43

BLUNDEN, EDMUND CHARLES. Thomas Hardy. (English men of letters; new ser) 286p $2 (7s 6d) Macmillan

B or 92 Hardy, Thomas [A42-2439]

"Mr. Blunden's work is mainly a literary study, and as such it is concerned chiefly with an examination, both through the eyes of contemporaries and in the light of Mr. Blunden's own judgment, of Hardy's published writing; but it also illuminates in passing many aspects of Hardy's character that the general public is likely to ignore." Christian Science Monitor

"There has been an obvious gap in the long row of little volumes in the famous 'English Men of Letters' series, and that gap needed to be filled. Sir John Squire, the editor of the series, chose wisely when he invited Mr. Edmund Blunden to write the volume on Hardy, for Blunden has particular qualifications for the task. Himself a poet, he is a poet of rural England with a sensitivity, like Hardy's, to the sights and sounds and smells of the countryside." S. C. Chew

+ — Books p21 Ja 24 '43 1050w

Reviewed by Harold Hobson

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 4 '42 1000w

"There are already accessible a good many books on Hardy and his work, ranging in size and treatment from large monographs to brief, popular summaries and guides. As a biography the present little book does not supersede Professor Weber's, not to mention the two-volume 'official' life which the second Mrs. Hardy published. As criticism it is sound and sensitive rather than brilliant or profound. But it is a good general introduction to the subject, and because of its presence in a long and favorably known series it will attract the attention of lovers of Hardy, and may attract new readers to him."

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Mr 20 '43 700w

"Mr. Blunden's critical appreciation of the writer is the more valuable because it is always related to the character of the man who combined so attractively a meditative aloofness with a deep sense of the elemental in nature and an observance of men and things as bright-eyed as it was compassionate. Mr. Blunden's own love of detail and the research he has done in old memoirs, topographies, and newspapers and magazines continually enrich his narrative with contemporary references which link Hardy to his time and place." H. I'A. F.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 24 '42 330w

Reviewed by Stephen Spender

New Statesman & Nation 23:325 My 16 '42 950w

"A significant and distinguished addition to the English Men of Letters series. . . Mr. Blunden is both an excellent poet and prose writer, a man of keen perception, peculiarly attuned to the native qualities of Hardy's mind and heart." John Cournos

+ N Y Times p9 Ja 24 '43 1000w

"This is an excellent book, and if it has one special fault it is that Mr. Blunden has not obtruded himself sufficiently into it." James Stephens

+ Spec 168:260 Mr 13 '42 850w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens

Springf'd Republican p8 Ap 28 '43 440w

Times [London] Lit Sup p90 F 21 '42 2200w

BLUNT, VERNON EGERTON ROWLAND. Use of air power. 162p $1 Military service [8s 6d Thorsons]

358.4 Aeronautics, Military. Strategy 43-12006

"An American edition of an English book which in different form got the author eased out of the R.A.F., although its thesis is now the accepted function of the Royal Air Force. It explains, with examples, the use of aircraft as a military arm." Sat R of Lit

"The book caused some stir in Parliament, and many of the Blunt criticisms and proposals made two years ago have either been corrected or are in operation now. As a result the book is now considerably dated. The arguments the author carries on with his reader do not seem so keen today as when they were uttered in heat of controversy." S. T. Williamson

N Y Times p4 S 19 '43 260w

"Concise, readable and sure-footed. The author admits the limitations of air power but in doing so convinces the reader of its strength." Raymond Holden

+ Sat R of Lit 26:36 Ag 21 '43 70w

"It is unfortunate that in his desire to state his case fully the author has allowed himself to go into a great deal of detail, much of which seems irrelevant, and to indulge in many complicated arguments. His purpose would have been better served had he confined the book to a straightforward exposition, for then many other interesting conclusions would have emerged clearly, instead of being concealed in many pages of detail."

Times [London] Lit Sup p16 Ja 9 '43 480w

BLY, MERWYN CLUXTON. Guide to cathode ray patterns. 39p spir pa $1.50 Wiley

537 Cathode rays 43-3029

"This book attempts to present under one cover a sketch-and-caption summary of cathode ray pattern types encountered in the usual course of laboratory and test bench work. Its format has been kept as nearly like a pictorial reference chart as practicable." Foreword

Library J 68:431 My 15 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:8 Ja '43

BOAK, ARTHUR EDWARD ROMILLY; SLOSSON, PRESTON WILLIAM, and ANDERSON, HOWARD RICHMOND. World history; ed, William L. Langer. 570p $2.48 Houghton

909 History, Universal 42-13992

Textbook explaining the origins and development of the institutions which make up present-day life. "The discussions of recent periods of world history give emphasis to art, science, and literature. This emphasis is comparable to the stress laid on the cultural achievements of earlier periods. The narrative of the past hundred years is considerably more detailed than is the account of earlier periods. This emphasis on recent history is considered by the reviewer to be sound educationally." (School R) Copiously illustrated. Index.

"The organization of this textbook is somewhat traditional, but the treatment of the subject content is definitely modern and is in harmony with the recommendations of progressive leaders in the field of social-studies methods. . . The volume should prove extremely useful. Its scholarship cannot be questioned, and its organization and presentation show the contributions of educational leaders." R. B. Weaver

+ School R 51:122 F '43 400w

Reviewed by R. V. Sires

Social Educ 7:279 O '43 330w

Social Studies 33:288 O '42 10w

BOGART, ERNEST LUDLOW. Economic history of the American people [rev] by [the author] and Donald L. Kemmerer. new rev ed 909p maps $3.75 Longmans

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions. U.S.—Industries and resources 42-23358

"A comprehensive history is now brought up to date. The second half of the book has been extensively revised by the second author. Annotated chapter bibliographies." (Booklist) For earlier edition see Book Review Digest, 1931. Index.

"As with former volumes the text is abundantly supplied with factual material presented in an interesting and instructive manner. In this edition the authors have maintained the high standard of scholarship, and the skill in presentation, which Professor Bogart bestowed upon his earlier volumes. . . What one misses in this book is an appreciation of the real spirit, or if you like, the essence, or distillate, of our economic evolution. We know it in its manifestations. But what is the life behind the outward and visible signs? Is it a vision, super-penetration, technique, or something else that gives character to the movement?" Isaac Lippincott

+ — Am Econ R 33:142 Mr '43 550w

Booklist 39:371 My 15 '43

BOGERT, LOTTA JEAN. Good nutrition for everybody. 165p $1.50 Univ. of Chicago press

612.39 Nutrition. Diet. Cookery 42-24764

The first part of this small book is devoted to simply worded explanations of the fundamentals of nutrition and diet. In it also are many tables showing food values and sample menus. The last part of the book contains recipes for many of the dishes included in the menus. Index.

"The material Dr. Bogert presents in this book is concise, fairly readable, and very usable." Eloise Davison

+ Am J Pub Health 33:610 My '43 400w

Bookmark 5:7 Ja '43

BOGERT, L. J.—Continued
Reviewed by Grace Steininger
J Home Econ 35:175 Mr '43 50w

"Excellent guide. . . Simply written and well indexed. Valuable in any library and may be recommended for purchase to individual looking for compact yet comprehensive book at low price." G. E. Brown
+ Library J 67:1011 N 15 '42 70w

BOGGS, TOM, ed. American decade. ltd ed 93p $3.50; hand bound $7.50 Cummington press, Cummington, Mass.

811.08 American poetry—Collections 43-12376

"68 poems for the first time in an anthology, by Elizabeth Bishop, R. P. Blackmur, Tom Boggs [and others]." (Subtitle) "The decade of the thirties is supposed to be the limit of this anthology edited by Tom Boggs but, as a matter of fact, it spills over at both ends." (Nation)

"There is no particular reason for this anthology, at least none is evident. . . Just the same, it is an interesting collection that Mr. Boggs has put together, edited with considerable discretion and taste. He has brushed aside the sterile and obscure and fashionable verse and put his finger on poems which are generally good and sometimes excellent."
+ Nation 157:248 Ag 28 '43 280w

"Tom Boggs has 'read some 500,000 [sic] poems to select the 68 . . .' for 'American Decade.' For so much labor sown, it is a skimpy, disappointing harvest. This, I believe, is the fault of Mr. Boggs's approach." Milton Klonsky
— New Repub 109:399 S 20 '43 300w

"Boggs is much better than Moult, but he too often chooses the weak poems of his good poets. The jacket of this beautifully printed book declares that Boggs has read 500,000 poems in order to choose the sixty-eight poems in this volume, a bizarre computation which suggests two depressing possibilities: either Boggs has read too many poems, or, worse yet, he has read too few." Delmore Schwartz
N Y Times p29 O 17 '43 400w

"Where the anthologist is cowed by public opinion or where his taste is defective the end product is almost inevitably bad. The mean that must be hit lies somewhere between complete acceptance of general opinion and an arbitrary and independent, perhaps even erratic, individual opinion. To achieve it seems to require talent rather than rules. Taken in such a light, the Boggs anthology is a good collection. It has, however, an additional value. For the first time the poetry of the past ten years has been whittled down to a size appropriate for some sort of critical judgment." Marian Castleman
+ Poetry 63:223 Ja '44 650w

"The claim that the verse represented in this volume, all of which has been composed in the last decade, represents a renaissance from the 'subjectivity, prettiness and posing' that dominated the late twenties may have some truth in it. But, however objective and realistic, much of it is rather commonplace. However, it contains the work of some good poets and is an interesting cross-section of recent American poetry."
Times [London] Lit Sup p468 S 25 '43 60w

BOGGS, TOM. Arenas [poems]. 56p $1.50 Coward-McCann

811 43-10106

Volume of lyrics by an American poet. "Tom Boggs was born in Pittsburgh in 1905. . . He has worked, successively, as a reporter, pianist, semi-pro basketball player, oil field roustabout, Broadway columnist, magazine editor and radio commentator, and is now engaged in defense work in New York. The author's published works include a novel, anthologies, and nearly 200 poems in various magazines." (Publisher's note)

Reviewed by Pearl Strachan
Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 17 '43 140w

Reviewed by Milton Klonsky
New Repub 109:399 S 20 '43 180w

"Most of his poems are lyrics and most of his lyrics fulfill his own demand that a good lyric should be a 'legitimate shock.' I should like to quote enough of them to make sure that the reader will go to the bookstore and buy." H. C. Webster
+ Poetry 63:99 N '43 500w

"These poems are a strange mixture of sensitivity and crassness, of natural poetic ability and self-confident carelessness, of real emotion and cheap flippancy. Mr. Boggs is an editor and critic of ability; I wonder why he does not turn his scrutiny upon himself." S. H. Hay
— + Sat R of Lit 26:13 Jl 24 '43 230w

"The shock the reader receives from the lyrics in 'Arenas' is one of so low a voltage that he is unaware of any impact at all. The author seems to be aiming at a disarming simplicity, something between Herrick's country airiness and Blake's trembling innocence but all he achieves is a false naïveté. The tunes are light, the words are nimble, and some of the lines prod the mind. . . But the poems rarely live up to their lines. Most of them are spoiled by the author's too obvious pleasure in turning a pretty phrase, and by a 'cuteness' which begins by being arch and ends by irritating." Louis Untermeyer
— + Yale R n s 33:350 winter '44 140w

BOHANON, PAUL. Golden Kate; il. by Gertrude Howe. 63p $1.50 Oxford

43-13336

Story of two children and their most cherished possession, a brass horse which had once graced the cupola of the barn. But a hurricane had blown off the roof and Golden Kate with it, and when found Kate could no longer turn in the wind, so she was given to Peter and Nancy. The need for brass for the war makes the two children terribly unhappy, but in the end Golden Kate had the place of honor—on top of all the scrap collected in the village.

"Slow moving and somewhat stilted in style. Attractive make-up." D. M. MacDonald
Library J 68:1008 D 1 '43 40w

"An unethical and untrue-to-life story. Not to be recommended." M. K. Reely
— Library J 69:74 Ja 15 '44 90w
N Y Times p24 N 14 '43 160w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p30 N 14 '43 250w

BOHMAN, ESTHER L., and DILLON, JOSEPHINE K. The librarian and the teacher of music. (Experimenting together) 55p pa 75c A.L.A.

027.82 School libraries. Music—Instruction and study 43-51016

"Report of an experiment at Mount Auburn Elementary School in Cleveland, including 'Fundamentals of a Co-operative Program,' 'The Library and the Music Curriculum,' 'Music in Experience,' 'The Voluntary Aspect,' 'What Library Skills and Why,' 'Development of Attitudes.' " School & Society

Booklist 39:245 F 15 '43

"The book will be rewarding reading for all school librarians and library workers with children." R. E. Hammond
+ Library J 68:202 Mr 1 '43 600w

"The difficult task of presenting a considerable amount of detailed information both completely and succinctly has been accomplished with skill. A nice balance is kept between factual reporting and interpretive 'human interest' appraisals, without sentimentality, and the whole is presented in a style which is clear and fluid." Grace Winton
+ Library Q 13:356 O '43 700w
School & Society 57:83 Ja 16 '43 40w

BOLANDER, LOUIS H., and others. School of the citizen sailor. 615p maps $3; civilian defense ed $2.40 Appleton-Century

973 U.S.—History. U.S.—Armed services 43-12175

"This volume is one of the books issued as part of the Second Army's educational program. Herein one finds an account of the vast organization of the United States Fleet, the Navy, the Marine Corps, and the Coast Guard." (Social Studies) The book stems from a similar volume entitled School of the Citizen Soldier (Griffin, R. A., ed. Book Review Digest, 1942). "All of the chapters of the original publication except those in part IV . . . have been reprinted." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"A useful and stimulating source of background materials on the war for the individual lay citizen and discussion groups." L. H. Adolfson

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:956 O '43 150w

Booklist 40:57 O 15 '43

"Interesting, authoritative."

+ Social Studies 34:287 O '43 40w

BONGER, WILLEM ADRIAAN. Race and crime; tr. from the Dutch by Margaret Mathews Hordyk. 130p $1.50 Columbia univ. press

364 Crime and criminals. Race 43-12159

"In a prefatory biographical sketch, Dean Wigmore describes the author as 'the leading exponent of the philosophy of crime as a social and not a biological phenomenon.' The results of the present discussion of the relation between race and crime, however, are not wholly negative. Though the doctrine of race has fallen into disrepute because 'pettiness and lunacy dominate' most discussions of it, the author is not willing to accept the dogma that race is unrelated to crime. There are psychical as well as physical racial differences, and some of these may produce a predisposition to types of action which may, under certain conditions, become criminal. Much more research is needed before any formula can be based upon this vague generalization, says the author. But meanwhile, it can be stated positively that the theory of racial predisposition to crime has no scientific basis." (Christian Century) Bibliography. Index.

Am J Soc 49:196 S '43 50w

Christian Century 60:1042 S 15 '43 150w

School & Society 58:112 Ag 14 '43 20w

BONNAMY, FRANCIS, pseud. See Walz, A.

BONNER, MARY GRAHAM. Made in Canada. 115p il map $2 Knopf

745 Art—Canada. Arts and crafts 43-10149

"A spirited survey of Canada's arts and crafts and the cultural development they express. Meant for readers young as twelve, it only introduces the subject, but arouses in so doing a definite desire to go further. Many photographs accompany the story." (Weekly Book Review) Index.

Booklist 40:63 O 15 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:413 N '43 100w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart

Library J 68:826 O 15 '43 50w

"Perhaps it is because of lack of material, but the book is not so well organized and usable as the earlier ones by the same publisher—Made in Sweden, Made in Mexico, Made in Russia, etc. Nevertheless it is good to have in book form such authentic information about our near neighbor." M. B. Snow

+ — Library J 68:894 N 1 '43 60w

"Although it is loosely organized the book is full of interesting facts and it will serve as a stimulating introduction to the subject for readers from 10 to 15." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p18 O 3 '43 250w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p7 O 10 '43 240w

BONNET, HENRI. Outlines of the future; world organization emerging from the war. 128p pa 25c World citizens assn, 84 E. Randolph st, Chicago

940.53144 Reconstruction (1939-). International cooperation 43-10981

"A compact but comprehensive survey of a plan of international organization sponsored by an association which is promoting the development of an effective internationalism and a public sentiment which will make it possible. The booklet derives prestige not only from its author, who had long experience at Geneva, but also from the sponsorship of an editorial committee consisting of Mrs. Anita Blaine, Edgar Ansel Mowrer and Professor Quincy Wright." Christian Century

Am J Soc 49:196 S '43 10w

Christian Century 60:991 S 1 '43 70w

"This study . . . merits the serious perusal of all social studies teachers."

+ Social Studies 34:335 N '43 40w

BONNET, HENRI. United nations on the way; principles and policies. 170p pa 50c World citizens assn, 84 E. Randolph st, Chicago

940.531 United nations, 1942- 42-25171

"The author analyzes the recent treaties and agreements between the United Nations and the utterances of responsible leaders, indicating in some detail the social, economic and political adjustments in a peaceful postwar world toward which they point." (Christian Century) Index.

Am Soc R 8:371 Je '43 40w

"The problem of the elimination of sovereignties has not yet been solved by anyone, and perhaps it is not even feasible at the present stage of our civilization. It is better, however, to recognize the tremendous difficulties than to shun the fundamental issues. Mr. Bonnet has surely the great merit that in a little book, attractively and clearly written, he has shown to a broad public the enormity of the task which we face." Oscar Jászi

+ Ann Am Acad 227:161 My '43 600w

Reviewed by J. F. Thorning

Cath World 156:760 Mr '43 220w

Christian Century 59:1395 N 11 '42 60w

"A lucid, compact analysis."

+ Social Studies 34:48 Ja '43 40w

BONNET, HENRI. United nations; what they are, what they may become. 100p pa 25c World citizens assn, 84 E. Randolph st, Chicago

940.5332 United nations, 1942-. World war, 1939- 42-17779

"Reviews the existing means of collaboration and indicates how an organization might be created in the future which would translate into reality the concept of the United Nations and make them a dynamic power for war and peace." Social Studies

Am Soc R 8:371 Je '43 40w

Social Studies 33:335 N '42 40w

BONNEY, THERESE. Europe's children, 1939 to 1943. ltd autog ed 62pl pa $3 The author, 117 E. 30th st, N.Y. 16

940.53161 World war, 1939—Children. World war, 1939—Pictorial works 43-13308

"Sixty-two photographs [with very brief captions] of Fascism's most pitiful victims,

BONNEY, THERESE—Continued
by an artist who has both an eye and a heart. Some are unavoidably gruesome." New Yorker

Commonweal 39:147 N 26 '43 310w
New Yorker 19:86 S 25 '43 20w

"Miss Bonney's photographs of 'the little people' of the war have an almost unbearable poignancy, but none are so tragically sad as these now presented in book form of the child victims of the wars in Finland, Spain, and France. No plea for help could be more eloquent, no argument more convincing than if this horror is permitted to happen again the world will have proved itself not worth the saving." M. S. Ulrich
+ Sat R of Lit 26:14 N 13 '43 320w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 3 '43 110w

Reviewed by F. L. Kellogg
Survey G 32:457 N '43 100w

"What makes Europe's Children a moving study is that its unposed photographs of children among the ruins are not primarily atrocity pictures, although there are a few ghastly studies of starvation."
+ Time 42:97 D 6 '43 230w

"There are things that most of us try not to think about, and one of the most hauntingly persistent of these is the plight of conquered and starving humanity in Europe today. . . Miss Therese Bonney comes courageously forward to force us to face the subject. This truly shocking book of hers sets forth in simple and magnificent pictures the frightful reality of that slow, wholesale and deliberate murder of uncounted civilians." Iris Barry
Weekly Book Review p6 O 10 '43 450w

BOODIN, JOHN ELOF. Religion of tomorrow. 189p $2.50 Philosophical lib.
201 Christianity—Philosophy 43-13860

"This book has been written to help thoughtful souls in a time of crisis to understand more clearly and thereby enter more truly into the religious life. It is not addressed to professional philosophers. . . But while the book is not a philosophy of religion in the old speculative sense, it does aim to furnish a religious philosophy of life. The hope of the author is above all to awaken a new consciousness of the reality of religion and thus to call men to the creative life." Pref.

"This book, beautifully written and breathing a noble spirit, is the religious confession of a distinguished philosopher. In previous works, notably in Cosmic Evolution, Three Interpretations of the Universe, and God, Dr. Boodin has laid firmly and thoroughly the foundations on which the present religious confession is superposed. Therefore, while the author, in the present work, says that religion is more akin to poetry than to technical philosophy and makes effective use of the great poets, it would be a great error for a reader unacquainted with his other works, to suppose that the present work is an imaginative flight of aspiration that does not take off from a field constructed carefully of scientific and logical materials." J. A. Leighton
+ Churchman 157:8 O 1 '43 850w

Reviewed by D. E. Roberts
Crozer Q 21:78 Ja '44 700w
J Philos 40:557 S 30 '43 210w

BOOKMEN'S holiday; notes and studies written and gathered in tribute to Harry Miller Lydenberg [general ed. Deoch Fulton]. 573p il $5 N.Y. public lib.
814 Lydenberg, Harry Miller. Books. Bibliography A43-3031

"In this book of bibliographical and other studies for Harry Miller Lydenberg some of his friends have written of things they know. Their papers speak as representatives of the scholarly world which here partially acknowledges its debt." (Pref) Partial contents: Who was the printer of Jefferson's Notes? by Alice H. Lerch; The people and the book, by Joshua Bloch; Influences and trends in nineteenth-century illustration, by Frank Weitenkampf; Variants in English incunabula, by C. F. Buhler; The Cambridge press, by L. C. Wroth.

Booklist 40:90 N 15 '43

"Although The New York Public Library has long had an enviable renown for its own printed books, the present volume challenges prompt and hearty praise as a worthy example of the printing art. Fine paper, a type face new to the Library and first used for this book, a liberally balanced type-page, combine for pleasing effect. The exhaustive index by Karl Brown will add greatly to the book's reference value and ready use. An editorial board of distinguished personnel is acknowledged by general editor, Deoch Fulton, to have been most helpful throughout." J. I. Wyer
+ Library J 68:1011 D 1 '43 1200w

"The title of the volume has a double significance. Bookmen made it, happy in their work; and all true bookmen will read it with pleasure." W. G. Rice
+ Library Q 14:62 Ja '44 800w

Reviewed by Hellmut Lehmann-Haupt
+ Publishers' Weekly 144:1944 N 20 '43 1450w

"The study of bibliography in this country has been enriched in the past twenty years by the contents of symposiums in honor of Wilberforce Eames, Herbert Putnam, William Warner Bishop and Andrew Keogh. The Lydenberg volume takes rank with these among the exceptionally interesting bibliographical productions of our time and place. 'Bookmen's Holiday' is a well organized work." L. C. Wroth
+ Weekly Book Review p33 O 17 '43 1200w

BOOTH, JOHN NICHOLLS. Quest for preaching power. 240p $2 Macmillan
251 Preaching 43-3137

"This young Unitarian minister endeavors in this book to set forth the specific preaching techniques of several great preachers, Buttrick, Fosdick, Holmes, Lupton, Sockman, and Tittle." Churchman

"Young preachers will find useful suggestions in the methods of sermon building, hints about the use of illustrations and other homiletical instructions presented by the author, himself a fairly young preacher."
+ Christian Century 60:330 Mr 17 '43 70w
Churchman 157:31 My 1 '43 120w

"Good craftsmanship alone will not make a great sermon but it is an essential element in great preaching. And the best way to achieve good craftsmanship is by studying the methods of acknowledged masters of the craft. This is just what the author has done in this unique and valuable book." C. T. Holman
+ J Religion 23:226 Jl '43 140w

BORCHARDT, HERMANN. Conspiracy of the carpenters; historical accounting of a ruling class; tr. by Barrows Mussey; foreword by Franz Werfel. 634p $2.75 Simon & Schuster
43-9678

A long, realistically told novel which is an allegorical tale of happenings in a fictitious country (which might have been Germany but isn't) in the early years of the twentieth century. The story concerns chiefly the political conflict between the League of Carpenters and a dangerous movement headed by a Dr Urban (who isn't Hitler but might have been). The author is a German, now living in exile in the United States.

Atlantic 172:129 O '43 100w

" 'The forcibly defended past—the strongest force in creation, something almost unshakable—' that is what Borchardt admires and recommends. He does so with impressive wit and power, boldness and imagination. But, alas, his political message is as stale and muddled as his artistic vision is lively and colorful." Klaus Mann
+ — Book Week p4 Ag 1 '43 1150w

Reviewed by F. E. Hirsch
Library J 68:572 Jl '43 140w

"In its transvaluation of values Borchardt's novel is profoundly reactionary. But you are not obliged to accept the idealization of the Middle Ages or the myth that since the Reformation the world has been going progressively to the dogs. . . When you have recognized and rejected the reactionary conclusions of this novel, you can still admire the dramatic saga of our age and the subtle insight into its moral sickness." Joseph Freeman

+ — New Repub 109:25 Ag 9 '43 800w

"The 'Conspiracy of the Carpenters' is a novel of ideas—of provocative, elaborate and startling ideas. While we may disagree with its conclusions, we may still value—we must indeed cherish—the illumination, at once comic, macabre and prophetic, that it throws on the more obvious blunders of modern progress." Maxwell Geismar

+ — N Y Times p1 Jl 25 '43 1300w

"I can imagine what Mr. Jefferson would have thought of the book, but you'd better read it and decide for yourself. In any case, I think you'll find it a more lifelike piece of fiction than Briffault's 'Europa' or Ferrero's 'Seven Vices' or the other 'philosopher's novels' on the old-fashioned grand scale." Vincent McHugh

New Yorker 19:61 Jl 31 '43 850w

Reviewed by Struthers Burt

Sat R of Lit 26:7 Ag 21 '43 1900w

Reviewed by Sarah Schiff

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 8 '43 1050w

Reviewed by Alfred Werner

Weekly Book Review p4 Ag 8 '43 1250w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott

Yale R n s 33:x autumn '43 250w

BORGENICHT, LOUIS. The happiest man; the life of [the author] as told to Harold Friedman. 414p il $3 Putnam

B or 92 43-152

"Stories of immigrants who have come to America and made a success are not rare. The events related in this one follow a rather usual pattern; where it is outstanding is in the personality of the author. His experiences after he landed in New York with his young wife in the year 1889 were anything but happy. Another type of person would have made out of then only a story of disillusionment. This Galician Jew, who had left Europe because he saw no place for himself in its stratified society, never lost confidence in himself or in the Promised Land to which he had come. The chapter where he finally sees his way and takes his first step up is exciting reading. The story has been written down as told to Harold Friedman." Wis Lib Bul

---

Booklist 39:353 My 1 '43

"Mr. Borgenicht's story is eminently worth the telling. It carries a definite inspirational value. . . It is a romance of a kind that is possible only in the United States. At four-score Louis Borgenicht, in looking back, has made a considerable contribution to socio-biography." E. F. Allen

+ N Y Times p23 F 7 '43 700w

Reviewed by H. L. Mitchell

+ Springf'd Republican p8 Ja 22 '43 330w

Wis Lib Bul 39:13 Ja '43

BORGESE, GIUSEPPE ANTONIO. Common cause. 448p $3.50 Duell

940.53 World war, 1939-. World politics. Reconstruction (1939-) 43-17705

"A distinguished Italian-American scholar scrutinizes the issues and conduct of the war and the peace to follow. Worldly humanism in the classic tradition, and an often wise and sometimes profound exposition." (New Yorker) Index.

"It is almost impossible to pigeonhole Prof. Borgese's new book. In part it is a political and military history of the war, in part an indictment of reaction and shortsightedness in the leadership of the United Nations, in part a sharp attack on the secular policies of the Catholic Church, in part an impassioned plea for a united and democratic war and a united and democratic peace, and in part a moral and philosophic treatise of great learning and earnestness. . . The book has obvious faults, and even more obvious eccentricities. . . There is also, and it is unfortunately typical of even the best of liberal writing, a tendency to go off the deep end occasionally, to get just a little bit out of the world. . . He has written a wise and powerful, witty and urbane guide to fighting a people's war and winning a people's peace." S. E. Hyman

+ — Book Week p32 D 5 '43 900w

Booklist 40:142 D 15 '43

"Due to intricacies of style, not a popular book, but probably an important one." J. C. Shipman

Library J 68:843 O 15 '43 160w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard

+ Nation 158:75 Ja 15 '44 1100w

"Passing through what he found to be the 'treacherous reaches' of an English language less simple than it looks to be, Professor Borgese plays with it now as if it were fencing sword and quarterstaff. The reader sometimes forgets the target in following the turning of the foil. Since a style rich in figure and allusion is bound to be leisurely, while the matter dealt with moves apace, the effect is of a historian pressed upon by history. That is the effect, at least, until the subject matter takes possession of the book, at which point Professor Borgese forgets his mastery of English and thereby completes it." Irving Brant

New Repub 109:826 D 6 '43 900w

Reviewed by Eleanor Kittredge

+ N Y Times p3 D 12 '43 1100w

"The author's oddly flavored English may bother you a trifle at first."

New Yorker 19:108 N 27 '43 50w

"This is a book of spiritual evocation. The elevation of mood and of sentiment is in the tradition of Mazzini, of Edward Carpenter, of Walt Whitman. The sense of history is strong —almost overpowering. The knowledge of Europe is encyclopedic—almost to the point of becoming depressing. The faith in America—with the vividness and ardor of the adopted son—is challenging, heartening, humbling." Ordway Tead

+ Sat R of Lit 26:6 N 20 '43 900w

" 'Common Cause' is a challenging book on the side of form. Transferred into our language the rich, clean, forceful, ever witty period that won Borgese such a wide audience in Europe is a definite acquisition for American letters. . . To be sure he has not completely mastered English. His adverbs are regularly out of proper location in the sentence. He abuses inversion in subordinate clauses. He rarely hits on the idiomatic English substitutes for the frequent Italian 'he who' constructions. Such defects could easily be eliminated for him by a native-born proof reader. It is to be hoped that the absence of such revision in 'Common Cause,' coupled with the American's vivid awe for the printed page, will not keep too many readers from enjoying the spirited eloquence of this exquisitely literary volume." Arthur Livingston

+ — Weekly Book Review p3 D 26 '43 1400w

BORKIN, JOSEPH, and WELSH, CHARLES A. Germany's master plan; the story of industrial offensive; with an introd. by Thurman Arnold. 339p $2.75 Duell

338.83 Trusts, Industrial. Germany—Economic policy. Germany—Industries and resources 43-2012

"Tells how the Germans, working through complicated cartels, outsmarted us; how they secured a monopoly or partial monopoly on the essential tools of war—dyestuffs, explosives, plastics, drugs, aluminum, magnesium, beryllium, tungsten carbide, optical goods; how this hold on industrial essentials has been so successful that the old weapon of blockade is impotent against it; and how, 'win, lose, or draw, the Junker-cartels are prepared' to throw out Hitler after the war, take over, and start preparing for the third World War, which will be fought with almost unimaginable weapons. To quote the book, 'I. G. hopes to win its own war even though Hitler loses.'" (New Yorker) Index.

BORKIN, J., and WELSH, C. A.—Continued

"A writing event of uncommon importance has taken place. A work dealing with a problem of economic policy has become a best seller and the rights for its movie production have been sold. This is the doubly rare distinction which has come to Germany's Master Plan, the work of Joseph Borkin and Charles A. Welsh. These results have not been accomplished, however, without the generous exercise of dramatic license." Victor Abramson
Am Econ R 33:437 Je '43 3300w

Booklist 39:269 Mr 1 '43

Bookmark 4:4 Mr '43

"This is a terrifying book; terrifying not because of its stridencies but for precisely the opposite reason—its periods are so muted. One is almost tempted to say that the authors have used Alfred Hitchcock's movie technique at its best. Employing a simple, almost pedestrian, language, their characters and situations as familiar (by this time) as old shoes, they nevertheless succeed in piling effect upon effect until the result is one of sheer horror. If the story they tell will not shake intelligent Americans out of a lethargy into which they seem to be sinking once more . . . then World War II, like World War I, will have been fought in vain. . . It is devoutly to be hoped that Messrs. Borkin and Welsh will help awaken the American people." L. M. Hacker
+ Books p3 F 7 '43 2700w

"In fairness to the authors, this reviewer must admit that this book is better than its introduction. It is fairer, more objective, and with fewer recriminations. It is written in dispassionate style, with an evident desire to document its statements with several hundred references to court findings, public hearings and the reports of the famous Nye Munitions, the Bone Patents, and other investigating committees. Yet its very subtle implications are perhaps more dangerous than the direct accusations which came from Mr. Arnold." S. D. Kirkpatrick
Chem & Met Eng 50:203 Ap '43 900w

Christian Science Monitor p14 F 9 '43 550w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:12 Jl '43 30w

"Those who look for original source material will be well advised to consult German publications on the subject. The present book is based mainly on material published in this country, not necessarily documentary in every detail. The general public, however, will find the book a stimulating and revealing account of the realities of international and national trade in the past decades." Frank Munk
+ — J Pol Econ 51:465 O '43 800w

Library J 68:211 Mr 1 '43 70w

"For the specialist and economist the book contains little that cannot be found in such standard works as the reports prepared for the League of Nations in 1930 and 1931, the report and proceedings of the Temporary National Economic Committee, and Dr. Liefman's book. The reader of an outstanding daily and of the liberal weeklies will also find little that is new in the book. In fact, articles such as those which appeared in the New York Herald Tribune in the autumn of 1941 as part of that paper's campaign to release the war economy from the restraints of foreign cartels or those written by Guenther Reimann for the New Republic have covered the ground at least as effectively. In their effort to write a popular book the authors have adopted a peculiar style and a very strange approach to their subject. The style is flamboyant and fatuous, presumably in emulation of the style of the big-circulation daily and the popular radio program." Rifat Tirana
— Nation 156:895 Je 26 '43 700w

"'Germany's Master Plan' is . . . a vivid and grimly passionate account, despite the financial, legal and technological details with which it is necessarily packed. . . The book has the defects of its virtues. Among other things, the sanguine spirit in which the authors attack evils that are undoubtedly real sometimes manifests itself in sweeping statements whose validity is less obvious." W. R. Deuel
+ — N Y Times p5 F 7 '43 1050w

Reviewed by Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 18:60 Ja 30 '43 550w

"It is only natural that a book that deals with the most controversial and complicated phases of economic warfare and geopolitical strategy asks for criticism and objection. The main thing, however, is that the authors have daringly attacked the cartel problem as one of the most crucial problems which must be solved if we hope to win a listing peace. It is for this reason that I hope that many will read this book and take its lessons to heart." H. W. Weigert
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:9 F 13 '43 1150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p518 O 30 '43 850w

BOSSARD, JAMES HERBERT SIWARD, and BOLL, MRS ELEANOR S. Family situations; an introd. to the study of child behavior. 265p $3 Univ. of Pa. press [18s 6d Oxford]
136.7 Child study. Family 43-11360

"This book is the result of an unorganized co-operative venture. The two authors set themselves to two different but related tasks, and their conclusions are brought together here for their possible bearing upon each other. Dr. Bossard began with definite convictions concerning the situational approach to the study of behavior, the meaning of such an approach, what it should include, and its general importance. These convictions are presented in the form of theses, and are embodied in Chapters I, II, III, and IX. Mrs. Boll, beginning with the idea of classification in science, gathered the 'specimens' of family situations in the existing literature and attempted to formulate them into a summary picture. The results of her work are found in Chapters IV to VIII, inclusive." (Pref) Contains many case histories. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by R. E. Baber
Ann Am Acad 230:235 N '43 450w

School & Society 58:15 Jl 3 '43 70w

Reviewed by J. K. Folsom
Survey 78:351 D '43 450w

BOSWELL, PEYTON. George Bellows; photo research and bibl. by Aimee Crane [pub. under the supervision of André Gloeckner in collaboration with Addison gallery of Am. art, Andover, and many other collections] (Am. artists ser) 112p pl $1.95 Crown
759.1 Bellows, George Wesley
42-51549

A biographical and critical sketch of this American artist precedes reproductions of his paintings, some in color, some in black and white.

Booklist 39:203 Ja 15 '43

"The Boswell volume is full of absurdities." Jerome Mellquist
— Commonweal 38:13 Ap 23 '43 70w

BOSWELL, ROLFE. Leathernecks; our marines in fact and picture. 205p $2.50 Crowell
359.96 U.S. Marine corps 43-15698

History of the United States Marine corps from the time of the Revolution to Guadalcanal. Contains also a discussion of modern training methods, including the Women's reserve corps. Bibliography. Index.

"Although Rolfe Boswell has given a straightforward account of the history of the Marine Corps, his book has a dramatic quality that will hold the interest of anyone who loves action. 'Leathernecks' tells a story as only an experienced writer with a competent research staff can tell it. This book should be an inspiration to every loyal American who wants to share in the eventual victory which will be ours." Paul Roach
+ Book Week p6 O 17 '43 110w

"Rather dull chronological account of growth, changes, duties, and periods of combat service until hero tales are reached. These will thrill any reader. . . Recommended for boys twelve to sixteen." Emily Hutson
+ Library J 68:531 Je 15 '43 80w

BOTTOME, PHYLLIS (MRS ERNAN FORBES-DENNIS). Survival [Eng title: Within the cup]. 339p $2.50 Little [8s 6d Faber]
43-51227

Character study of a Viennese psychoanalyst, with a partly Jewish heritage, who escapes to England during the present war, and thru work and love is able to rehabilitate himself.

"Phyllis Bottome has the major virtue of really understanding what makes human beings tick. She is verbose and at times prosaic. Her principal character, Rudi, is too obviously the author to be masculine. But 'Survival' has substance and leaves the reader with food for thought. It is her best novel since 'Private Worlds.'" Sterling North
+ Book Week p3 S 12 '43 350w
Booklist 40:13 S '43

"Curiously authentic picture of an Austrian refugee psychiatrist who finds acceptance and work and love in wartorn England. Otherwise, seems to me just another war story. As given to psychological discussions as Private Worlds, I doubt that this will ever reach equal heights of popularity." E. P. Potter
Library J 68:668 S 1 '43 40w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p3 S 3 '43 200w

Reviewed by Weldon Kees
New Repub 109:496 O 11 '43 120w

Reviewed by Philip Toynbee
New Statesman & Nation 26:204 S 25 '43 230w

"This is a very clever book, of a cleverness that is as much an asset as it is a handicap. Not only is the author extremely conscious of the many things she knows; she even worries over the things the reader might not know. . . Though there are powerful descriptions of the raids on Plymouth, Miss Bottome is at her best when analyzing intellectually the causes that led to the war and the character of the British." Marianne Hauser
+ — N Y Times p4 S 12 '43 550w
New Yorker 19:85 S 11 '43 80w

"It is unlikely that 'Survival' will add to Mrs. Bottome's stature as a novelist. That it is not a better novel is, I think, because in her desire to expound the teachings of the Adler psychology, to show their bearing on the mental disruptions of war, she tends to subordinate her characters to her 'message.' . . This is not to say that 'Survival' is a dull book. It is unlikely that this author could write a really dull story. And after all in these jittery days when so little fiction can hope to have the significance we used to give it, who can blame an author if the message of her novel is more important to her than its artistry?" M. S. Ulrich
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:18 S 18 '43 600w

"The quotations from Adler arrest attention, and the philosophy of the book, though it cannot breathe life into stock figures, is in itself dignified and true. And there are descriptive passages—as for instance of dressing-station work during the air-raids on Plymouth—which are very vivid and impressive." Kate O'Brien
+ — Spec 171:224 S 3 '43 300w

Reviewed by E. H. Carlson
Springf'd Republican p7e S 12 '43 650w

"Miss Bottome's story-telling, as always, has warmth and generosity of feeling, and her delineation of character and motive often lays bare the roots of the normal components of human behaviour. . . But she is both more sentimental and more didactic than she evidently meant to be. The first-person narrative makes it hard for her to avoid a touch of complacent heroics in commenting on the war, while Rudi's ceaseless psychologizing, undertaken for the good of everybody in the tale, grows very tiresome."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p413 Ag 28 '43 450w

"If the purpose of a novel is both to reflect life and lay bare its mainspring to create a world which you recognize yet seem to behold for the first time, and if the novel is designed to heighten your perception of the truth—then this new book by Phyllis Bottome, 'Survival,' achieves its purpose fully." Virgilia Sapieha
Weekly Book Review p4 S 12 '43 650w

BOURGEOIS, FLORENCE. Nathan's dark house; il. by Ninon MacKnight. 60p $1.50 Doubleday 43-159

Story of a young Quaker boy, living near Salem, New Jersey, in the eighteenth century. Nathan's most persistent dream was that he could earn money enough from his various selling ventures to supply his parents' dark house with glass windows. Contains some material on glass blowing. Grades four to six.

Booklist 39:297 Mr 15 '43

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 67:886 O 15 '42 30w

"Interesting period detail, especially of early glass-making, and many attractive pictures in color and black-and-white."
+ New Yorker 19:68 My 29 '43 50w
Wis Lib Bul 39:55 Ap '43

BOWEN, EDMUND JOHN. Chemical aspects of light. 191p $4 (12s 6d) Oxford 535 Light. Spectrum analysis. Radiation
42-50511

"Theories of light and all phenomena connected with light, such as fluorescence, luminescence, photochemistry, chemiluminescence, photosynthesis, and so forth are explained and discussed in this book in non-mathematical language. Many diagrams are used to educate the reader." Chem & Met Eng

"This book should be helpful to students, teachers and research workers interested in the subject. It touches many of the physical as well as the chemical aspects of light. The selection of subject matter is excellent for a book of its size. . . The book is an excellent refresher for those who have become absorbed in one branch of photochemistry and a guide to those not very familiar with the field. It brings together in a concise way a number of closely related phenomena and should be a worth-while addition to the library of a physical chemist." L. J. Heidt
+ Am Chem Soc J 65:998 My '43 200w

"The book is suitable for first and second year university students. The author has succeeded in presenting an interesting and coherent account of optical phenomena and their chemical significance. . . The subject index is adequate, but no name index has been provided because the author has limited the literature references to some seventy papers and monographs, many of which include summaries of earlier work. It is unfortunate that these references do not include some of the standard works on the techniques and methods of optics. One gains the impression that the beginner or inexperienced student will be led by the author's clear and lucid explanations to assume that the subject is very simple and that results are forthcoming with the most elementary equipment." R. H. Müller
+ — Chem & Eng N 21:824 My 25 '43 420w

"While many will find this book very interesting to read, others will question the method of presentation. Phenomena connected with radiation can only be adequately explained through the use of quantum mechanics and thus the absence of all mathematics is a decided disadvantage. However a reader who does not want to go deeply into this subject and only wishes to obtain a superficial qualitative knowledge of the subject will find this book a pleasant guide."
Chem & Met Eng 50:195 Mr '43 150w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:15 Ja '43

BOWER, WILLIAM CLAYTON. Christ and Christian education. 128p $1 Abingdon-Cokesbury

268 Religious education 43-8662

"In four lectures, which have been tested by delivery before ministers' institutes, Professor Bower discusses basic questions pertaining not only to 'religious education' as a specialized professional activity but to the scope and function of the Christian religion itself and the principles underlying its promulgation. He makes it clear that, while Christianity involves something to be transmitted, it also involves something to be evoked. After an opening chapter in which the history of changing concepts and methods of Christian education is traced in broad outline, the author devotes a chapter to an exposition of that 'functional concept' of religion and religious education which is central in all his teaching. This finds application in the following chapters on 'The Bible in Christian Education' and on the vexed question of a program by which religious education and public education are to be brought into relation with each other in a society where church and state are separated." (Christian Century) Author is professor of religious education in the Divinity school of the University of Chicago.

Christian Century 60:519 Ap 28 '43 130w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 5 '43 310w

Reviewed by H. L. Newman

Crozer Q 21:87 Ja '44 300w

"This book contains a summary of points of emphasis in regard to religious education by a distinguished leader in the field. Professor Bower has published extended discussions of several of the topics considered in the book, as the footnote references indicate. But he has rendered a real service to religious education by bringing his thought together in this brief but clear and illuminating form. The book is, however, more than a summary of Professor Bower's earlier thinking and writing. The book contains its own distinctive contributions to an understanding of the meaning and significance of religious education. . . Professor Bower has packed into the 128 pages of this brief book both specific insights and a total view in regard to religious education which will prove of great help alike to the lay and to the professional Christian leader." Harrison Elliott

+ J Religion 23:219 Jl '43 600w

BOWIE, WALTER RUSSELL. Which way ahead? the presiding bishop's book for 1943. 145p $1.50 Harper

261 Church 43-3560

Contending that "the church is an anvil which has outworn many hammers" Dr Bowie attempts to prove that we must depend upon the church's help in forging new weapons for future peace and reconstruction.

Booklist 39:347 My 1 '43

"This book has other merits than its many sensible and specific proposals for practical action. It is written in a dynamic style, under a sense of urgency. It is an earnest call for clear thinking on the basis of today's actualities." J. D. Martin

+ Christian Century 60:988 S 1 '43 600w

"There are few more serious perils to the effectiveness of a prophetic message than a lofty idealism webbed to a brilliant literary style. The author of this book . . . is generously provided with both gifts, but there is no danger that this book will suffer the fate of the sermons of Ezekiel, who complained that they were received 'as a very lovely song of one that hath a pleasant voice, and can play well on an instrument.' "

+ Churchman 157:6 Mr 15 '43 850w

Reviewed by J. H. Franklin

Crozer Q 20:264 Jl '43 350w

"Dr Bowie has fresh and stimulating words about Christian discipline, missions, and church unity. The book breathes the excitement and adventure of the Christian task." H. L. Bowman

+ J Religion 23:225 Jl '43 150w

"For the plain layman seeking truth 'Which Way Ahead?' will, at many points, be magnificent. The man or woman who picks up a thoughtful book only in Lent will be illuminated and stimulated, encouraged or discouraged, according as he is willing or afraid to act on Dr. Bowie's suggestions." Sewell Emerson

Weekly Book Review p18 Mr 28 '43 550w

BOWLES, MRS JANE AUER. Two serious ladies. 271p $2.50 Knopf

43-5575

Psychological novel, in which are developed the characters of two extremely strange women: Miss Goering, and her friend Mrs Copperfield. Mrs Copperfield travels to Panama to find her adventures, but Miss Goering does not wander so far afield. They have few inhibitions to begin with; they lose their remaining ones, mainly in bars and questionable hotels and apartments, during the course of the book. The story has practically no plot, and is related in a poker-faced manner.

"This is truly a psychological novel. It seems a continuation of where 'The Well of Loneliness' left off. It is one of the finest first novels of its kind I have ever read, and comes close to being a little masterpiece in character analysis. It is told with sincerity. It becomes illuminating and pointed." G. H. Freitag

+ Book Week p3 My 16 '43 450w

" 'Two Serious Ladies' is intermittently funny and certainly original, but I also felt that it strains too hard to startle and to shock and that it all too often is just merely silly. Jane Bowles undoubtedly is a clever young writer with a good deal of talent, but I feel that she has written this book with her tongue in her cheek and that it is not as irresistible as she intended it to be." E. H. Walton

— + N Y Times p14 My 9 '43 480w

"Diverting, mock-naive style, but the story doesn't get anywhere much."

New Yorker 19:79 Ap 24 '43 60w

"There is dream quality everywhere in this unusual little tale, and also a kind of psychotherapy acted out in fable. When these ladies talk they do not speak the formal, reserved thoughts which they might recognize as their own, but utter instead long and curiously involved ideas that can come only from the subconscious. . . Miss Bowles has worked very subtly with an idea that keeps throwing off all sorts of ominous tangents but keeping it always light, if a little feverish, always this side of hilarity. She is a writer undoubtedly clever, and perhaps brilliant." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 My 1 '43 340w

"Jane Bowles is twenty-six years old. At an age when many other American girls are busily and painfully engaged in making a protracted transition from the collegiate to the everyday world, Mrs. Bowles has written and had published a first novel whose uninhibited wit, all-inclusive psychological perception and corrosive realism will most certainly both delight and horrify many of its readers. This is definitely not a novel for cover-uppers, for those who refuse to look under the surface, of for those who prefer to take gestures at their face value. Mrs. Bowles records what she sees. And she sees clearly and in several dimensions." Leo Lerman

Weekly Book Review p10 Ap 25 '43 1000w

BOWLEY, ARTHUR LYON, ed. Studies in the national income, 1924-1938. (Nat. inst. of economics and social research. Economic and social studies) 255p $3.50 Macmillan [15s Cambridge]

339.3 Income. Great Britain—Economic conditions. Wages—Great Britain [A43-555]

"Report on the British national income for the period 1924-1938. The volume, edited and largely written by Professor Bowley, presents an interim report on a large investigation conducted under his direction at the Institute. It is the result of the labors not only of Bowley but also of Messrs. Booker, Campion, Devons, Elsas and Neuman and of Misses Dessauer and Marley, at the Institute; and draws upon the published work of other British statisticians, notably Flux, Feavearyear, Rhodes, Stamp and Stone. Like many other scientific investigations, the study was interrupted by the war. The present report is therefore unfinished and consists essentially of a series of more or less rough notes (some previously published), put together by Bowley in amazingly little space, on some of the main aspects of the study." Am Econ R

"Only the close reader will be able to detect the outlines of the structure the National Institute was in the process of building; but all will appreciate Professor Bowley's courage in publishing the report at the present time, uneven and incomplete as it is. Anyone interested in economic trends in Britain during 1924-1938 will find this report useful. And the student will find something to learn—and something to quarrel with—in the elaboration of methods, the dexterous statistical manipulations, and the frank discussion of discrepancies and probable errors." Solomon Fabricant

+ — Am Econ R 33:636 S '43 2050w

"Like all of Bowley's books, this study has all the earmarks of a very scholarly piece of work." W. I. King

+ Am Soc R 8:612 O '43 500w

Reviewed by D. B. Yntema

J Pol Econ 51:558 D '43 950w

"Much of the information contained in this book has not been available hitherto in a convenient form, and Professor Bowley and his co-workers have performed a valuable service in making it thus generally accessible. In so doing they have supplied answers to a number of important economic questions which were dependent upon statistical data, and it is a great advantage to have these data provided in the precise and authoritative manner which characterises all Professor Bowley's writings. He has a wholesome mistrust of brilliant guesswork in statistics, and the results of his calculations are set out with their appropriate margins of error, so that the reader has only himself to blame if he is misled. This is a severely technical work on a difficult subject. While many of the results will be of great interest to those who are seeking information as to the composition of the national income, only the expert statistician is likely to find himself able to cope adequately with the methods of analysis which are employed here." C. W. Guillebaud

+ Spec 170:180 F 19 '43 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p22 Ja 9 '43 750w

BOWMAN, ALLEN. Morale of the American revolutionary army; introd. by Arthur Pope. 160p $2.50; pa $2 Am. council on public affairs

973.344 U.S.—Army—History. Morale 43-10468

"A case study of the experiences in maintaining allegiance and discipline in the Revolutionary army. There is discussion of the physical and psychological factors affecting the morale of the troops. The nature of absenteeism and desertion among the soldiers is considered. The author discusses the various devices employed to maintain the morale of the soldiers." Am J Soc

Am J Soc 49:196 S '43 60w

"Thoroughly and carefully documented. . . Valuable for teachers of American history."

+ Social Studies 34:335 N '43 30w

BOWMAN, MARY JEAN, and BACH, GEORGE LELAND. Economic analysis and public policy; an introduction. 935p $4.50 Prentice-Hall

330.1 Economics. Economic policy 43-2296

"The book is divided into twelve parts. The first is an institutional description of the modern business economy. The next four treat of price and exchange policies. In this section the latest theoretical analysis and the best analytical tools are applied both to the decisions of the individual firm and to public policy. Two parts each are devoted to labor problems and those connected with money and the business cycle. The remainder of the book treats of public fiscal policies, international problems, and those of agriculture. Interspersed with these treatments are studies of individualism, socialism, and similar political philosophies." (Ann Am Acad) Index.

Reviewed by R. W. Harbeson

+ Am Econ R 33:642 S '43 750w

"The writers of this volume indicate an awareness of current economic realities and trends not usually found in an introductory textbook in economics." N. L. Silverstein

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:762 Ag '43 230w

"The authors succeed in their attempt to take a stand on controversial issues without degenerating into dogmatism or partisan pleading. They are to be commended for the freshness and realism of the examples used to illustrate theory. In general the choice of material to be included or excluded is good. In view of their emphasis upon social and public policy, however, a more extensive treatment of the problems of technological unemployment, economic maturity, investment and capital formation, and the business cycle would have been desirable." J. F. Cronin

+ — Ann Am Acad 228:129 Jl '43 320w

"In general, the volume is competently done. The informed teacher who can make use of the vast amount of available data about our changing economy in order to tie theory to fact can use this book to advantage, since it will help establish those theoretical concepts of which he must show the limitations. In this reviewer's opinion, this was one of the 'teaching' weaknesses of the very excellent text on Institutional Economics put out by Willard Atkins and others at New York University. A minimum theoretical base and a minimum development of abstract analytical tools aid substantially in developing in the student a critical appraisal of the complexities of institutions and their interrelations." Harvey Pinney

+ Social Forces 22:232 D '43 700w

BOWRA, CECIL MAURICE. Heritage of symbolism. 340p $3.75 (15s) Macmillan

809.1 Poetry. Symbolism in literature [A43-2200]

"Mr. Bowra treats of [five] poets who owed much to the Symbolist movement in France of the nineteenth century and particularly to Mallarmé. They are Valéry, Rilke, Stefan George, Alexander Blok, and Yeats. To each of these Mr. Bowra devotes a chapter, revealing the outworkings of Symbolism, not primarily as a movement but as the expression of five unique poets." Manchester Guardian

"Mr. Bowra writes with poetic as well as critical insight of each of them, and quotes revealingly in both the original and translations. He has crystallised their significance and interpreted their mystery." H. I'A. F.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 5 '43 250w

"Maurice Bowra, having edited the Oxford text of Pindar, is a highly qualified interpreter of difficult poetry. His study of the 'Iliad' marked an important step toward the solution of the Homeric problem by showing how a poet could impose his own design upon the most conventional body of technique and material. In turning from the classics to the moderns, Mr. Bowra's problem is to show how the most unconventional poets have managed to accumulate a tradition of their own. . . A good introduction to their work, his book has the virtues of a running commentary. Never obtrusive, often helpful, sometimes pedestrian, he keeps his feet on the ground in a rarefied atmosphere. If he is less explicit about backgrounds and directions, if he reveals an Oxonian disregard for the scholarship in his field, still something of a pattern is suggested, if not formulated, by some of his critical cross-references." Harry Levin

+ New Repub 109:260 Ag 23 '43 1100w

BOWRA, C. M.—Continued

Reviewed by Edward Sackville-West

New Statesman & Nation 25:176 Mr 13 '43 1300w

"One would have thought that his subject had been exhausted long ago, but he has revived it with admirable tact and ease; his book is informative and stimulating, and in reading it one has the impression that an interesting and pertinent discussion had just begun." Horace Gregory

+ N Y Times p32 S 26 '43 1300w

"Learned, sensitive essays. . . Detailed analysis, many quotations, and conclusions both perceptive and sound."

+ New Yorker 19:68 Ag 21 '43 50w

Reviewed by Michael Roberts

Spec 170:247 Mr 12 '43 850w

"The book is to be considered as a whole, for its flavour, the direction of its thought, above all for its special relevance to the study of contemporary values. Its peculiar merit invites so broad a treatment, for though it is detailed and highly specialized where detail is illuminating, the post-symbolists are not seen in isolation but in a long perspective."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p123 Mr 13 '43 2750w

BOYD, MRS EUNICE (MAYS). Murder breaks trail. 279p $2 Farrar

43-10066

Mystery story.

"As pretty, suspenseful and smoothly written a mystery as I've read in a long time. Nazi and Jap activity is involved skillfully, but in a minor part, though it figures in the plot's conclusion." Elizabeth Bullock

+ Book Week p7 Jl 25 '43 340w

Booklist 40:48 O 1 '43

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p8 Jl 18 '43 80w

"Average"

Sat R of Lit 26:24 Jl 24 '43 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 1 '43 130w

BOYD, WILLIAM CLOUSER. Fundamentals of immunology. 446p 45il $5.50 Interscience

615.37 Immunity 43-859

"The author approaches the subject in large measure from the point of view of the chemist. In consequence, only those students of medical schools that offer high-class training in organic and biological chemistry will profit to the fullest extent from this scholarly and scientific presentation. . . In addition to giving modern knowledge on the nature and reactions of antigens and antibodies generally, there are excellent chapters on blood groups and on anaphylaxis and allergy. There is also an up-to-date chapter on allergy and immunity, in which information on diseases such as tuberculosis, syphilis, and smallpox is set forth in clear, adequate statements. The author has kept the study of methods and their applications to a minimum while presenting the meaty fundamentals in a masterful manner." Chem & Eng N

"There has been need for a book attempting, in a descriptive manner, to make the basic reactions of immunology clear in terms of modern concepts without losing the student in a mass of symbols. This effect has been gained." Thomas Francis, Jr.

+ Am J Pub Health 33:748 Je '43 250w

Reviewed by J. J. Enright

+ Chem & Eng N 21:576 Ap 25 '43 330w

BOYER, GLENN CLINTON. Diesel and gas engine power plants. 447p $4 McGraw

621.312133 Electric plants. Diesel engines. Gas and oil engines 43-5767

"This book is written primarily for the designer and operator of Diesel- and gas-engine power plants, although some of the material has been used in lectures before engineering students. . . The text embraces far more than a description of engines and is in reality a working manual for the plant designer. . . Much of the material presented is taken from the author's personal notes made over the past 12 years. . . Many nomographic charts and short-cut procedures have been incorporated into the text. . . Equations are presented, and derivations of equations are used where they can serve to clarify the material being presented. Involved mathematical treatment has purposely been eliminated." (Pref) Index.

Book Week p8 My 16 '43 90w

Library J 68:129 F 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:26 Ap '43

Reviewed by L. S. Marks

N Y Times p16 Jl 25 '43 150w

BRADBURY, DOROTHY EDITH, and AMIDON, EDNA PHYLLIS. Learning to care for children. 149p il $1.25; students' ed 96c Appleton-Century

649.1 Children—Management 43-9812

"The authors of this book offer as a solution of the problems touching young children often left without proper care and guidance because of war conditions, the teaching of child care to high-school boys and girls, most of whom have younger brothers and sisters. Learning how to supervise children and meet their difficulties wisely and good naturedly should make of the youth of today the competent parents of tomorrow." (School & Society) Index.

Booklist 40:5 S '43

School & Society 57:692 Je 19 '43 70w

Wis Lib Bul 39:118 O '43

BRADFORD, SAXTONE E. Battle for Buenos Aires. 307p $2.50 Harcourt

982 Argentina—Foreign relations. Germans in Argentina. Fascism—Argentina

43-51162

A book on Argentina's present position in world affairs written by an American newspaper man who spent some months in Buenos Aires during his world-wide travels in 1939-1942. The greater part of his book deals with the operations of Nazi propaganda agents.

"Aside from stating the factors which make the city a battle ground, the author has hardly achieved the objective of offering answers to the questions which he has raised. In this respect the reader will certainly feel disappointed, and will be forced to the conclusion that the book as literature is excellent, but that as history it leaves much to be desired, as an indictment of the Axis it is unconvincing, and as a solution to a problem it is negligible." A. C. Wilgus

+ — Ann Am Acad 228:133 Jl '43 290w

Reviewed by G. E. Garrison

Christian Century 60:693 Je 9 '43 900w

Christian Science Monitor p16 My 7 '43 450w

Reviewed by S. G. Inman

Churchman 157:17 Jl 1 '43 240w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:168 O '43 20w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Wilder

Nation 157:132 Jl 31 '43 850w

New Repub 108:870 Je 28 '43 120w

"The general picture is given somewhat in jigsaw; the reader has to work to put its scattered pieces together. There isn't enough factual information, either, on the country: how its wealth is produced and distributed, what is the relation of the provinces to Buenos Aires in the way the government is set up, who runs what and how. There are a good many impressionistic panoramas of Argentine life and history, lyrical in style, which need prosaic underpinning." Anita Brenner

N Y Times p3 My 9 '43 950w

"The book is racily written, interesting, and very timely." Stephen Naft

+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 My 8 '43 700w

"Occasionally the reviewer has to deal with a book which irritates him constantly while he reads it, and yet he feels that it deserves a wide and attentive public. Sax Bradford's 'The Battle for Buenos Aires' is a case in point." Karl Loewenstein

Springf'd Republican p7e My 9 '43 900w

"Mr. Bradford has done an exceptional job of introducing his reader to Argentina and the Argentines. . . Bradford knew enough to dig around into odd corners, to get acquainted with a lot of unimportant people—the only kind who are really important in anybody's land. He liked them—therefore his interest in seeing their struggle for democracy successful." Hubert Herring

+ Weekly Book Review p5 My 16 '43 1900w

Reviewed by Hubert Herring

Yale R ns 33:149 autumn '43 700w

BRADLEY, AMOS DAY. Mathematics of air and marine navigation [with tables]. 103p maps $1 Am. bk.

629.1325 Navigation. Mathematics 42-22709

"The purpose of this text is twofold—to provide the future navigator with a substantial foundation of mathematical theory, and to acquaint the interested layman with some of the problems encountered in navigating aircraft and surface vessels. It may be successfully studied by anyone who has completed the usual high school course in plane trigonometry." Pref.

Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 10w

"The volume will be welcomed by prospective navigators and will be found particularly instructive if the student takes the trouble to solve all the practical problems the book contains." M. A. Rosanoff

+ N Y Times p31 Ap 18 '43 130w

BRADLEY, DWIGHT JAQUES. Freedom of the soul. 124p $1.50 Assn. press; Revell

261 Civilization, Christian. Christianity and politics. Democracy 43-8188

"The director of the Council for Social Action of the Congregational Christian Church has written . . . on the most important question before America today—freedom. The author finds our country on the verge of a great national awakening and he is concerned that, if and when it comes, it shall avoid the pitfalls of yesterday and fulfill the potential purpose of democracy at home and abroad tomorrow." Churchman

"Stimulating and suggestive." C. L. Willard, Jr.

+ Churchman 157:16 S 1 '43 250w

"Valuable for clergymen, teachers, and legislators but too abstract to hold attention of any but seriously thinking readers." J. S. Cleavinger

Library J 68:570 Jl '43 70w

BRADLEY, HAROLD WHITMAN. American frontier in Hawaii, the pioneers, 1789-1843. 488p $4.50 Stanford univ. press

996.9 Hawaiian Islands—History 42-24431

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"Bradley's book is timely as well as durable. Looking at the map inside his covers, we can say that Hawaii is more than ever 'the Crossroads of the Pacific.' Hawaii has been rediscovered; the islands are a new frontier. For occasions of recollection and of prospect the many who use this volume profitably will owe much to Professor Bradley and Stanford University." J. C. Archer

+ Am Hist R 48:579 Ap '43 650w

"It is a painstaking and convincing piece of research, clearly arranged and engagingly presented." J. B. Condliffe

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:158 F '43 600w

"Since December 7, 1941, the Islands have taken on new meaning because of their strategic importance in the present world drama, and we are interested in reliable information about our territorial outpost. In partially satisfying that need, the author has rendered a valuable service, as he has evaluated a mass of documents, many of them skewed by partisanship, and reconstructed the situation as it was from 1789 to 1843. This volume, however, is only an introduction, and we trust that the author or some other competent scholar will carry on so that the 1843-1943 period will not be overlooked. . . The book is readable and it is timely. It is not, however, of the 'spot news' variety, for it had been in process of preparation for several years. For anyone interested in delving deeper into any particular situation, the full documentation is invaluable." W. C. Smith

+ Ann Am Acad 226:181 Mr '43 360w

Christian Science Monitor p12 F 13 '43 500w

"The book is the result of long, continued research into abundant source material; it is excellently documented and is very readable." A. M. Tozzer

+ New Eng Q 16:132 Mr '43 1000w

BRADY, ROBERT ALEXANDER. Business as a system of power. 340p $3 Columbia univ. press

338.91 Industry—Organization, control, etc. Trade and professional associations 43-268

"A hard-hitting, fact-laden treatise on the economic and political power exercised by manufacturing associations in Germany, Italy, Japan, France, Britain and the United States. The author is associate professor of economics at the University of California." Foreign Affairs

Reviewed by D. M. Keezer

Am Econ R 33:432 Je '43 1450w

"On what appears to me to be the crux of the whole business, Mr. Brady is silent. That is, of course, his right; but since business is here treated, not as power in a vacuum, but as power in or on politics, as power in or on which politics may also operate, Mr. Brady's frame of reference would seem to prescribe a fuller treatment of politics, its nature and institutional forms. Even so, for what we have received at his hands in the way of facts and opinions we should be duly grateful." C. A. Beard

Am Pol Sci R 37:329 Ap '43 750w

Reviewed by D. S. Kimball

Ann Am Acad 228:127 Jl '43 400w

Booklist 39:269 Mr 1 '43

"Dr. Brady's present work is a sensational one—so much so, in fact, that it is presented by the publishers, rather hesitantly, as a 'controversial book.' Such it undoubtedly is, but at the same time it is fully documented and fortified by significant quotations." E. McN. Burns

Christian Century 60:262 Mr 3 '43 750w

"Because it cuts through to the realities that mean most to the wealth and fate of nations, Professor Brady's book is of the greatest importance at the present time. Though it is not as simple to read as a best seller, it should be pondered over long and carefully by all who are concerned with the question whether the peoples of the world are to be dominated by privileged minorities or are to have a chance to work for and enjoy the fullest freedom and happiness possible within the limitations of human existence." Alvin Adey

+ Current Hist 4:215 My '43 1800w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:577 Ap '43 40w

"This book is well worth reading, even though its conclusions may be questioned. The publishers are truthful when they tell us on the jacket that it is controversial. . . This book was worth reading. I think Dr. Brady is unduly alarmed, but he may be the prophet and I may be asleep. If what he prophesies really comes to pass, and we are both alive, I shall write to him and apologize." C. S. Tippetts

J Pol Econ 51:555 D '43 1400w

BRADY, R. A.—Continued

"Important for implications in present conflict and for post-war period. Recommended to libraries with demands for more thoughtful approach to problems of business and public interest." Walter Hausdorfer

+ Library J 67:1011 N 15 '42 110w

"This is a highly significant book. It defines a basic and central problem of management today in its relation to the total economy, and supplies a setting for it which can be found nowhere else. . . It is to be regretted that this book is not easier reading. The matters with which it is concerned are of life-and-death interest to a democratic people. They are of equal concern to managers who would take their task professionally." Ordway Tead

+ Management R 32:317 Ag '43 700w

Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 14 '43 150w

Reviewed by A. W. Jones

Nation 156:870 Je 19 '43 900w

"Robert Brady has not here been concerned with the form and lines the opposition must take. Placing more weight upon description of the impersonal mechanics of society than upon the schemes of villains or the plans of heroes, he has raised the critical problems. His book will not be a popular one: it is too full of polysyllabic prose. But the facts he has so skillfully gathered necessitate a careful and radical rethinking of what is happening in the capitalist world." C. W. Mills

New Repub 108:482 Ap 12 '43 1750w

"Professor Brady's book may well come to be regarded as pioneering work of equal importance in its field to that of Berle and Means in the related area of corporate ownership. With painstaking thoroughness he has described the business associations, of which, with ourselves, the F.B.I. is the outstanding example, in Germany, Italy, Japan, France. Britain and the United States. . . It is difficult to overestimate the importance of the evidence that is here collected." H. J. Laski

+ New Statesman & Nation 25:212 Mr 27 '43 1050w

Reviewed by J. W. Scoville

Pol Sci Q 58:285 Je '43 1250w

"For the complacent liberal and the well-meaning conservative, as well as much solid meat for the scholar."

+ School & Society 57:83 Ja 16 '43 30w

Reviewed by Alfred Bornemann

Social Forces 22:115 O '43 550w

"Dr Brady may have begun his study with preconceptions that influenced his interpretation and selection of material, or he may have been as objective as any man can be. At any rate, he has written an arresting book and brought to the fore issues and tendencies which must soon be faced with clarity and courage. Unfortunately, 'Business as a System of Power' is written in a polysyllabic and turgid style which will repel many laymen. But perhaps it will beget, among his colleagues, more readable discussions of the same all-important problem." Marshall Bragdon

+ — Springf'd Republican p6 My 15 '43 750w

BRAGG, JEFFERSON DAVIS. Louisiana in the confederacy. 341p $3 La. state univ. press

976.3 Louisiana—History 42-5023

"A study of the politics, economics, and military history of the state of Louisiana from 1860 until the resignation of Governor Allen in 1865. . . The author is associate professor of history at Baylor University." Library J

"The author has used a great deal of manuscript material not available earlier, part now preserved at Louisiana State University in the department of archives, part still in private possession, which has definitely added to the treatment of this subject. On the whole, the book is well organized and written in a readable style. In the judgment of the reviewer the book would have gained by putting certain points in the author's own words rather than in dull direct quotation." Ella Lonn

+ — Am Hist R 48:368 Ja '43 350w

"This is a well-documented account of a trying time in the state's history, valuable to any student of the Civil War. It is doubtful, however, if it will appeal to many general readers." R. D. Minnich

+ Library J 66:1046 D 1 '41 70w

BRAILSFORD, HENRY NOEL. Subject India. 274p $2.50 Day [6s Gollancz]

954 India—Politics and government 43-15332

The author, an Englishman, presents the case for India's freedom from Great Britain. Though addressed in the first instance to English readers, the author calls upon American readers to consider what part they should play in the solution of the problem. Index.

Booklist 40:111 D 1 '43

"His book is well informed, serious, impressive; and his arguments in favor of the complete freedom of India will not easily be answered."

+ Cath World 158:413 Ja '44 160w

"The best book on the subject which has yet appeared." H. E. Fey

+ Christian Century 60:1405 D 1 '43 1350w

Reviewed by W. F. Sands

Commonweal 39:234 D 17 '43 280w

"Warmly recommended as readable, clear-thinking discussion of problem of importance to whole world today. All libraries may buy without hesitation." Thelma Brackett

+ Library J 68:843 O 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by George Orwell

Nation 157:588 N 20 '43 1200w

Reviewed by Frances Gunther

New Repub 110:60 Ja 10 '44 550w

"This is a sincere and an admirable book; but it suffers from certain defects. There is, for one, an incomplete understanding of the Muslim position and the Muslim case." John Maynard

+ — New Statesman & Nation 25:308 My 8 '43 1450w

Reviewed by Harvey Breit

N Y Times p6 N 21 '43 280w

"Mr Brailsford's writing is smooth, his brand by all who are anxious to appreciate the Socialist case for India. The author knows the country and the people, and his criticisms, though often severe, are never unfair." H. G. Rawlinson

+ Spec 170:410 Ap 30 '43 260w

"Mr Brailsford's writing is smooth, his brand of internationalism is well and favorably known to many Americans and he is, in short, worth listening to. . . For Mr Brailsford's motives one can have only respect. As to his scheme there must be reservations, for it is not clear that familiar pitfalls have been avoided. The human touch is missing." Alzada Comstock

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e D 19 '43 390w

Times [London] Lit Sup p218 My 8 '43 700w

Reviewed by K. L. Mitchell

Weekly Book Review p7 N 7 '43 1600w

BRAINERD, JOHN GRIST, and others, eds. Ultra-high-frequency techniques. 534p $4.50 Van Nostrand

621.38415 Radio. Oscillators. Electric waves 42-19327

"A course outlined for engineers and physicists, presenting material required as the minimum basis for technical work in the ultra-high-frequency field." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 28:16 Ja '43

N Y New Tech Bks 28:53 Jl '43

"As a textbook, this book suffers from a lack of problems or exercises for the student. The division of the subject matter and preponderance of low frequency phenomena discussed is not so much to be criticized as the point of view from which many of the chapters were written. Considering the haste with which the book was written and published, this is understandable and on the whole the required information is included and well presented. In order to speed publication, the volume was printed in offset, which does not contribute to ease of reading, particularly in the mathematical sections. The circuit diagrams and figures are, however, very clear. An excellent index is included." W. B. Fretter

R of Scientific Instruments 14:99 Ap '43 950w

BRAND, MAX, pseud. See Faust, F.

BRANDON, WILLIAM. Dangerous dead. 234p $2 Dodd 43-2711

Detective story.

Booklist 39:334 Ap 15 '43

"Good."
+ Boston Globe p15 F 17 '43 40w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 Je 6 '43 120w

"Fine, straightforward story, with good local dialogue and plenty of action, which takes place under a deep blanket of snow."
+ New Yorker 19:60 F 20 '43 80w

"Effective."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 F 20 '43 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 F 21 '43 150w

BRANT, IRVING. Road to peace and freedom. 278p $2 Bobbs

940.53144 Reconstruction (1939-). U.S.—Foreign relations 43-16825

A review of the political history of World War II and the foreign policy of the United States, leading up to the author's suggestions of what should be done, in Europe and America, when the war is over, to ensure a lasting peace.

"Since 'Road to Peace and Freedom' is neither blueprint nor doctrinaire theory, the reader can accept its general direction without necessarily endorsing all its arguments or agreeing with its every interpretation of fact. I, for one, accept its direction with enthusiasm and take issue with only a few of its contentions." Robert Bendiner
+ — Book Week p32 D 5 '43 80w

Reviewed by Leigh White
Nation 158:102 Ja 22 '44 500w

Reviewed by Albert Guérard
New Repub 109:922 D 27 '43 210w

"Mr. Brant has given us an excellent book. Generally sound and clear, though all too brief . . . it shows an unerring sense of the important and unflinching willingness to deal with difficult questions and reach definite conclusions, though always without dogmatism." John Storck
+ N Y Times p2 D 26 '43 1000w

"While Mr. Brant at times accepts too readily current generalizations about the nature of economic man, his approach is, on the whole, fresh and objective, and many a myth and incantation goes down in his interesting pages. Particularly is this so where he deals with Soviet Russia and with India." Norman Angell
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:6 D 11 '43 1050w

"'Road to Peace and Freedom' is controversial, but healthily so, for Mr Brant prefers the linked argument to emotional rhetoric in urging Americans on the way he thinks they should go. He has done a good job, by and large." Marshall Bragdon
+ Springf'd Republican p6 N 27 '43 1000w

Reviewed by H. B. Parkes
Weekly Book Review p14 Ja 23 '44 380w

BRATTON, FRED GLADSTONE. Legacy of the liberal spirit; men and movements in the making of modern thought. 319p $2.75 Scribner

323.44 Liberalism 43-17784

"This book is a discussion of the spirit and meaning of liberalism—religious, economic, political—as exemplified in the character and the thinking of some of the great liberals of history. . . Many of them are well known, for such names as Voltaire, Tom Paine, Thomas Jefferson and Charles Darwin are in the select circle. Others, such as Clement and Origen and Arius and Pelagius, have long since been relegated to obscurity." Book Week

Reviewed by E. T. Buehrer
Book Week p2 Ja 2 '44 550w

"The book is intelligent, scholarly, enlightening, provocative of occasional dissent, full of solid historical substance, and bubbling with ideas." W. E. Garrison
+ — Christian Century 61:48 Ja 12 '44 900w

"As a survey and appraisal of liberal thought and aspiration, Dr. Bratton's study is admirably compact, thoroughly readable, and, within the limits imposed by three hundred pages, complete. Those who have arrived at liberalism through their emotions will find in it a better understanding of themselves. . . When he comes to the immediate present he is less clear-cut in his judgments. This undoubtedly is a result of short perspective; but one wishes for more than a restatement of the rather obvious liberal goals." Hal Borland
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:17 Ja 29 '44 700w

"The book is an excellent introduction to the subject, well written, interesting and full of good things." J. S. Schapiro
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 26 '43 600w

BRAY, JOHN LEIGHTON. Ferrous production metallurgy. 457p il maps $4 Wiley

669.1 Iron—Metallurgy. Steel—Metallurgy
42-25958

A companion volume to the author's Nonferrous Production Metallurgy (Book Review Digest, 1941). "[This work] deals with a great part of that large and important branch of industrial chemistry which has to do with metals. With the aid of numerous clear sketches, Professor Bray describes the origin and types of raw materials and the furnaces and auxiliary equipment used to convert these materials into steel. . . The historical background is woven through the text to give a broad picture of the origin and development of these metallurgical practices." (Books) Index.

Book Week p10 My 2 '43 20w

Booklist 39:270 Mr 1 '43

"The information is well organized and clearly presented." James Stokley
+ Books p20 Ja 24 '43 130w

"Nothing is included concerning the shaping of steel or the production of ferrous castings. This limitation is not evident in the title and would probably confine its use as a text to institutions whose curricula include other courses covering the shaping of metals and the theory and equipment involved in the production of castings. This is no criticism of the scope of the book; it merely points out that it was not designed as a general text covering the metallurgy of ferrous products." W. P. Wood
Chem & Eng N 21:256 F 25 '43 350w

Library J 67:1066 D 1 '42 10w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:13 Ja '43

BREASTED, CHARLES. Pioneer to the past; the story of James Henry Breasted. 436p $3.50 Scribner

B or 92 Breasted, James Henry
43-51089

"The son of the famous archeologist has written a full, detailed story of his father's life—his foreign study, his years at the University of Chicago, where he held the first chair of Egyptology in America, and established the Oriental institute, and his archeological explorations in the Near East. Much of it is quoted from journals and letters." (Booklist) Index.

Am Hist R 49:137 O '43 400w

BREASTED, CHARLES—Continued

" 'Pioneer to the Past' is the fascinating story of a great man. It should be required reading for would-be archaeologists and for all interested in the study of the past." J. T. Frederick

+ Book Week p2 My 16 '43 500w

Booklist 39:331 Ap 15 '43

Bookmark 4:16 My '43

"This candid and engaging story, written by a loyal and dutiful son, will restrain all cavilers and win generous praise and admiration both for the hero of the book and for its author." T. C. Petersen

+ Cath World 157:546 Ag '43 950w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 60:576 My 12 '43 950w

"A skillful blending of biography and autobiography. . . A book like this helps one to see events such as the present world struggle in their broader perspective." A. V. D.

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 Ap 22 '43 650w

"This is the story of one of those remarkable and unpredictable breaks in the history of a family—similar to those sudden breaks which have so perplexed the students of evolution. Of course the story is of great interest for very other and different reasons. Breasted's travels, excavations . . . make fascinating reading. His reflections on the broader aspects of the life of ancient man are in the grand manner. . . And the book is readable and interesting in its leisurely way. But the early chapters describing Breasted's amazing break with the entire manner of life which might have been expected of him will long remain in our minds. They furnish a memorable and most curious illustration of man's freedom."

+ Commonweal 38:14 Ap 23 '43 650w

"Charles Breasted has made scrupulous use of original biographical material. The fact that he shared so many of his father's experiences has enabled him to be beautifully, not stodgily, objective. He has also been wise enough not to exclude himself as the small boy puzzled at the peace and calm of other homes, who was never able to conquer, as his father was not able to understand, 'the overwhelmingly depressing effect upon me of the dead world which was his supreme inspiration.' But the most important are the depth and constraint of his understanding, which bring to life so unobtrusively his father's great kindliness." H. P. Lazarus

+ Nation 157:50 Jl 10 '43 1100w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley

New Repub 109:81 Jl 19 '43 1400w

"Charles Breasted has written a close-packed book about this important figure and important period of American scholarship. It suffers on occasion from brief lapses into fancy writing, and its estimate of Robert Francis Harper, brother of William, doesn't seem to check with at least one other contemporary view. But in all important respects it is a fascinating and craftsmanlike report on an exceptional man living to the full an exceptional career." C. B. Palmer

+ — N Y Times p10 Ap 18 '43 950w

"A touching and beautifully written, though quite objective, biography." P. J. Searles

+ Weekly Book Review p1 My 2 '43 1650w

Wis Lib Bul 39:83 Je '43

BREBNER, JOHN BARTLET, and NEVINS, ALLAN. Making of modern Britain; a short history. 243p $2.50 Norton

942 Great Britain—History 43-8979

Concise history of the progress of Great Britain from earliest times to 1939. The authors are on the staff at Columbia University. The book was written for Americans and is intended to give a better insight into British character and customs. Index.

Reviewed by Sterling North

Book Week p3 Jl 4 '43 450w

Booklist 39:443 Jl 1 '43

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 60:769 Je 30 '43 100w

Current Hist 5:75 S '43 60w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:164 O '43 20w

"Authoritative, concrete, and readable, though possibly too heavily packed with facts for such small space. Recommended for public libraries as best introduction to subject for general reader." G. W. Wakefield

+ Library J 68:528 Je 15 '43 130w

Reviewed by John Cournos

N Y Times p14 Jl 25 '43 500w

"A concise, intelligent history for the general reader, suitable for reading in the course of a single evening."

+ New Yorker 19:71 Je 26 '43 20w

"Here is a book without the well-known characteristics of fact-crammed textbooks which the plain reader refuses to stomach, unless he has to. This study, written in a brilliant and vivid style, is for the average American. And it is this kind of book that will have an immense effect in the educational battle to win a lasting peace. . . I hope this small volume will set a shining example for those who will be called upon to write similar texts which, after the war, will help to reeducate the peoples by making them understand the other members of the family of nations." H. W. Weigert

+ Sat R of Lit 26:18 Jl 3 '43 500w

"There is not a dull page in this volume where the insight of these two Americans appears on every page." T. W. Lamont

+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 D 11 '43 750w

"There are many shrewd hits in this book, judgements and points of view which strike an English reader as unhackneyed, and when the authors disapprove of British action they do not disguise their opinions. That is all to the good, and we may heartily wish their history success and many readers." J. A. Williamson

+ Spec 171:484 N 19 '43 700w

"Here and there one might carp at Mr. Brebner's interpretations of literary figures or intellectual doctrines. Milton and Rousseau, for example, are hustled into their conventional places rather than freshly interpreted. But these forgivable short cuts only heighten one's admiration for the way in which the writer deals with great movements and complex events without distorting the total effect either of British history or of history itself. For in Mr. Brebner's pages the making of Britain is not a gorgeous pageant ruled by unfailing courtesy and good sense. It is history, that is to say, a chaotic mess, full of error and injustice, folly and false starts, but at the same time it is human history; that is, a tale in which can be discerned intelligible purpose, reason, inspiration and successes worthy of praise." Jacques Barzun

+ Weekly Book Review p14 Jl 25 '43 650w

BRECHT, BERTOLT. Trial of Lucullus; a play for the radio; tr. by H. R. Hays. [31p] $1; pa 50c New directions

792 Radio plays. Lucullus, Lucius Licinius—Drama 43-11637

A play in verse, written for the radio, by a German poet now living in California. The play was heard on a Swiss radio broadcast during the time of Hitler's march into Poland, and caused much comment, because of the similarity about the methods of Lucullus and Hitler.

"That the translator has done an excellent job is evident by the way in which the play grips the imagination and stimulates thought. . . The piece is good drama and excellent poetry. We are definitely encouraged in our efforts to prove that the poets have now within their reach, in radio, something peculiarly adapted to their art, and the sharing of it." Pearl Strachan

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 31 '43 700w

Library J 68:727 S 15 '43 20w

Reviewed by E. R. Bentley
Nation 157:130 Jl 31 '43 1500w

"I do not doubt that Mr. Brecht has a case against Lucullus, but I regret to say that his expression of it seems sentimental and ineffectual. Read in cold print (and without the excitement of its first production) the play lacks dramatic tension. . . Shakespeare recognized the need of endowing his wrongdoers with wit, with shrewdness, and in some instances with a sense of guilt; Mr. Brecht's Lucullus is a stupid fellow who is scolded all too easily and is then condemned by the shrill dead who welcome him to trial." Horace Gregory
N Y Times p19 Jl 25 '43 400w

BRENAN, GERALD. Spanish labyrinth. 384p maps $3.50 Macmillan [21s Cambridge]

946.08 Spain—History. Spain—Politics and government 43-11694

"Subtitle: 'An account of the social and political background of the Civil War.' Covers period from restoration of monarchy in 1874 to outbreak of Civil War in 1936, with epilogue dealing with that war. . . Author threads his way carefully through what is truly a labyrinth of political, social, religious, and economic factors and factions. British officer in first World War, Mr. Brenan settled as a farmer in Spain and, during Civil War, was correspondent for a time for Manchester Guardian. Extensive bibliography and many sources given in footnotes." Library J

Reviewed by Vlastimil Kybal
Ann Am Acad 231:174 Ja '44 1050w
Atlantic 172:131 O '43 100w

"This book, ostensibly 'an account of the social and political background of the Spanish Civil War,' as described in its subtitle, is actually a far more profound undertaking than that. The roots of Spain, the mystery of the Spanish character and Spain's uniqueness on the European scene are admirably delineated and analyzed in a penetrating study which should take its place beside the recognized classics dealing with the people who inhabit the Iberian peninsula." John Cournos
+ Book Week p4 Ag 15 '43 650w
Booklist 40:42 O 1 '43

"Not limiting himself to the presentation of discreditable facts, the author draws unjustifiable deductions. He gathers together much scandalous, unverifiable gossip; he reveals himself as prone to intemperate and extreme statements." Joseph McSorley
— Cath World 158:103 O '43 600w

"The book is an important contribution to the history of European socialism and gives an especially valuable study of syndicalism. The strength of the radical collectivist movements is not minimized, and the conditions which provoked them are shown, with proof. Those who insist on considering the republic as a vicious anti-Christian enterprise, and Franco as an avenging angel, had better not read this book."
+ Christian Century 60:1270 N 3 '43 330w
Commonweal 39:40 O 29 '43 70w

"The author has documented himself amply and has skilfully woven together both first-hand information and secondary material. The reference books which he cites are without doubt the most meaningful and useful for a thorough knowledge of each subject he studies; and the attitude which he adopts is generally impartial, or at least aspires toward impartiality, although it often appears influenced by double bias: pro-socialist and anti-clerical. As a whole, Mr. Brenan's book is one of the deepest and most important contributions yet made toward an understanding of Spain's problems, and should be read and thought over by Spaniards as well as by those who, in other countries, are trying to ponder the how and wherefore of events in Spain." Alfredo Mendizabal
+ Commonweal 39:157 D 3 '43 6050w
Current Hist 5:75 S '43 110w

"Historian's book, rather too solid reading to be popular. For college and large public libraries." G. W. Hill
Library J 68:528 Je 15 '43 70w

"The book for which students of Spanish affairs have been waiting. . . Careful documentation, maps, and a well-found bibliography bear witness that this is the stuff of scholarship." W. H. Carter
+ Manchester Guardian p3 My 5 '43 380w

Reviewed by Ralph Bates
Nation 157:270 S 4 '43 1200w

"The fall of Mussolini has sounded the doom of fascist dictators throughout Europe, and it is now clear beyond dispute that Spain sooner or later will regain democratic government. 'The Spanish Labyrinth' therefore is more than a good history—it is an indispensable handbook on the errors that the Third Spanish Republic must not repeat if it is to avoid the fate of its predecessor. . . I think, however, that Mr. Brenan's book should be read with caution." T. J. Hamilton
+ — New Repub 109:398 S 20 '43 1300w

"A book of unusual insight. . . Its admirable style [is] always lucid, vivid and concrete." H. N. Brailsford
+ New Statesman & Nation 25:370 Je 5 '43 1350w

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p1 Ag 15 '43 900w
New Yorker 19:96 O 23 '43 50w

"Though Mr. Brenan has read widely, the tone of his last chapters is often that of the propaganda-sheet. . . He sees Spanish politics through his own prejudices. He appears to have no understanding of, and therefore no sympathy with, the attitude of the Spanish traditionalist. . . It is needless to spend more space upon this part of the book, beyond remarking that the very substantial bibliography is vitiated by the same bias. The valuable chapters are those of the second section, which is nearly as long as the other two combined, and deal in turn with the agrarian question, the Anarchists, the Anarcho-Syndicalists, the Carlists and the Socialists. To this section might well be given the sub-title of the whole book: 'an account of the social and political background of the Civil War.'" E. A. Peers
+ — Spec 170:341 Ap 9 '43 750w
Times [London] Lit Sup p230 My 15 '43 600w

"It is an honest book, rigorously objective despite the frank expression of the author's own views, a wise and penetrating book by one who loves Spain and has steeped himself in its culture, a thoughtful book which would give even Spanish intellectuals, whose whole work is one long dialogue between themselves and Spain, a fresh insight into their beloved land." B. D. Wolfe
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ag 15 '43 1050w

BRENNAN, FREDERICK HAZLITT. Memo to a firing squad. 275p $2.50 Knopf 43-349

An American newspaperman, out of a job in warring Europe, drifts into Lisbon and joins an underground anti-Nazi organization, called the Movement. A red-haired Polish girl comes into the picture, and all together they manage to spoil a conspiracy for a phony peace.

Booklist 39:321 Ap 1 '43

"If you are in the mood for a novel honeycombed with violence, here is a honey." Lisle Bell
+ Books p10 Ja 31 '43 450w

"A thriller with a message, it revolves around a sell-out peace conference held in Lisbon, and its action is an account of how the machinations of the appeasers are circumvented by the local underground. It is a muddled, pretentious, and vulgar book, to be noticed in fact, only for its indecency." Diana Trilling
— Nation 156:245 F 13 '43 900w

"As a study of Europe in chaos this novel may leave something to be desired. As a nine-finger scherzo on the typewriter it is completely engrossing. . . Mr. Brennan's cynicism is always stimulating, though it may be specious; for that reason alone, his book deserves all the success it can win. This reader stayed with Steve McGibbs to the bitter end, and stood breathless at his elbow while he gave the story of the wicked peace offensive to the world. 'Memo to a Firing Squad' is well worth your attention. But you had better avoid Mr Brennan's first narrative book if you have a pressing engagement that evening." William Du Bois

BRENNAN, F. H.—Continued

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 31 '43 850w

New Yorker 18:63 F 6 '43 90w

"This story is very thin, but it is very swift and skillful and it is filled with major questions succinctly phrased." Phil Stong

+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 F 20 '43 270w

"The story has its share of improbable situations but, drawn smoothly, they do not tax the reader's imagination. The author lends realism to the story with the use of names of actual places, persons and organizations, but it is by refusing to pull punches that the story lives." M. L.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 7 '43 500w

BRENNAN, ROBERT EDWARD, ed. Essays in Thomism, by Jacques Maritain [and others]. 427p $5 Sheed

189.4 Thomas Aquinas, Saint. Scholasticism 43-4934

"This book is a book of essays or 'samplings' in the Thomistic synthesis. There are sixteen of them. The initial essay is a life of St. Thomas, the last an epilogue in verse. Of the other fourteen, six deal with problems of human action—in ethics, law, economics, social action, politics and education. Five of the remainder would form large chapters in Thomistic psychology, epistemology, ontology and aesthetics. There are two historical studies. The collection is rounded out by a short but significant essay by Jacques Maritain which is concerned with a fundamental problem in the philosophy of sciences." (Cath World) Bibliography. Index.

"There is a uniformity of excellence which is a rarity in a book of this kind. Father Brennan and his collaborators are to be congratulated. The appearance of this book marks a new high in the achievements of Thomism in this country." J. F. Coffey

+ Cath World 157:98 Ap '43 1050w

Reviewed by William O'Meara
Commonweal 38:53 Ap 30 '43 1000w

BRENNER, ANITA (MRS DAVID GLUSKER). The wind that swept Mexico. 302p il $3.75 Harper

972.08 Mexico—History—Revolution, 1910- 43-8022

Brief history of the Mexican revolution from the overthrow of Diaz to the present. Part two contains 184 photographs collected by George R. Leighton. These are arranged in chronological order, with descriptive text, following the course of the same events chronicled in the first part. Index.

Atlantic 172:121 Ag '43 80w

"Only 100 pages of text and 184 historical news photographs, yet this is the Mexican Revolution in its drama, its complexity, its incompleteness! One could not have seen it more closely and fully had one taken part in it, nor could one have understood as much of its essence as Anita Brenner has managed to distill out of a lifetime of living in Mexico, reading about it, interpreting it." B. D. Wolfe

+ Book Week p7 Je 13 '43 700w

Booklist 39:443 Jl 1 '43

Reviewed by Harry Sylvester
Commonweal 38:345 Jl 23 '43 1750w

"In brief space, without imbalance and without loss of concrete aliveness, Miss Brenner has managed to answer an enormous number of questions to which there are no simple yes-or-no-answers. George R. Leighton has shown no less expertness in his selection of the news photographs to complement—or be complemented by—Miss Brenner's text. In the new art of photo-illustration, as in any art, selection is a crucial matter. Leighton's job was not merely to track down and sift the mountain of amateur and professional news photographs, but to steep himself in the story he was illustrating until he could judge them for relevance, representative character, expressive quality. This telling of a continuous story from photographs is analogous to the cutting and montage in the editing of a film. It is so well done here that it is no longer possible to tell whether Miss Brenner wrote the text around the pictures or Mr. Leighton chose the pictures to suit the text." B. D. Wolfe

+ Nation 156:811 Je 5 '43 1100w

"Miss Brenner's text reveals a close knowledge and a sharp understanding of the personalities, events and issues of Mexican history. The bias, when apparent, is leftist but strongly anti-Communist. The photographs chosen by Mr. Leighton brilliantly illuminate the text, and he has added an excellent note on the men who made them."

+ New Repub 108:742 My 31 '43 70w

Reviewed by Mildred Adams
N Y Times p3 My 30 '43 1050w

"Excellent photographic history of the Mexican Revolution. . . Miss Brenner's full-length introduction and running text, which lean toward an exclusively economic interpretation, are knowledgeable and well written."

+ New Yorker 19:86 Je 5 '43 70w

"Mr. Leighton's illustrations make luminous the story that Miss Brenner tells and have the added value of giving dramatic movement to her studied and often static prose. The book is a must item for all concerned with the problems and possible solutions of a world in revolution." Betty Kirk

+ Sat R of Lit 26:15 My 29 '43 950w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 6 '43 700w

"Miss Brenner has written a rather light sketch of the whole period, hitting the high spots only but choosing the spots so tactfully that the plot is never lost; and though I have known the story, and for many years, so well it is possible I fill in the gaps as I go, yet I like to feel that the reader who knows little can find here a clear statement, a logical exposition, that will serve safely as a starting point if he wishes to pursue this history further. The facts are straight so far as they go, the deep, underlying motives of the whole restless and aspiring period are understood and explained, but I think Miss Brenner yields again to her old temptation to give too pretty and simple a picture—for, mind you, this terrible little story she tells is a mere bedtime lullaby beside the reality—and in general, to treat individual villains, whom she really knows to be such, too gently." K. A. Porter

+ — Weekly Book Review p1 My 30 '43 1200w

Wis Lib Bul 39:107 Jl '43

BRETT, HOMER. Blueprint for victory. 215p maps $1.75 Appleton-Century

940.5373 World war, 1939—U.S. World war, 1939—Japan 42-23303

"An American with long experience in the consular service proposes that we put Japan out of commission, before she has time to organize and exploit her newly-won and nearly self-sufficient empire. He suggests that this be accomplished by large-scale aerial attacks on her communications and her great industrial cities, to be delivered by way of Alaska and the Aleutians." (Foreign Affairs) Index.

"Here is a book for laymen by a layman which seems—at least to this particular layman—to make much more sense than do most of the books written by so-called military experts. . . Even if there is a prospect of defeating Hitler in 1943, his argument that Japan will be stronger with the passage of time cannot be brushed aside. Neither, for that matter, can Mr. Brett—for he has written a valuable book which may help to stimulate the thinking of brass hats, military experts, commentators and politicians. His volume is short and easy to read. It is packed with hard sense." Nicholas Roosevelt

+ Books p24 O 25 '42 950w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:580 Ap '43 60w

BRICK, ROBERT MAYNARD, and PHILLIPS, ARTHUR. Structure and properties of alloys; the application of phase diagrams to the interpretation and control of industrial alloy structures. 227p il $2.50 McGraw

620.18 Alloys 42-24244

"This text seeks to establish the correlation among alloy phase diagrams, micro-structures, and properties. Especial attention has been directed to the effect of industrial practices in casting, working, and heat treating alloys on the application of, or departure from, theoretical principles. One hundred thirty-six photomicrographs, with full descriptions of their origins, illustrate normal and abnormal structures of most standard alloys." (Publisher's note) Index.

"The title suggests a broader field than is actually covered and the general reader may be disappointed on first examination. . . Despite this criticism, however, the reviewer considers that the authors have done an excellent job in this student manual and that, through its use, the student should attain real familiarity with phase diagrams of alloy systems and especially their practical applicability—a goal which is not often attained by the conventional method of presentation." H. S. Rawdon

+ — Chem & Eng N 21:53 Ja 10 '43 550w
Chem & Met Eng 50:191 D '43 130w
Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:13 Ja '43

BRICKELL, HERSCHEL, and FULLER, MURIEL, eds. O. Henry memorial award prize stories. See O. Henry memorial award

BRICKNER, RICHARD MAX. Is Germany incurable? with introds. by Margaret Mead and Edward A. Strecker. 318p $3 Lippincott

914.3 National characteristics, German. Germany—Civilization. Social psychology. Psychology, Pathological 43-6272

"The author believes that the German problem, while complicated by economic and historical factors, is basically mental. His central contention is that, during the last two hundred years, the paranoid elements in the German population have increasingly dominated the non-paranoid elements until a condition (Nazism) has been reached in which the great majority of Germans are, from the point of view of the psychiatrist, homicidally insane. Dr. Brickner has no hatred for the Germans; he writes about them quite passionlessly, as if they were potential candidates for his consulting room." (New Yorker) The author is a practicing neuropsychiatrist and assistant professor of clinical neurology at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University. Bibliography.

Reviewed by Joseph Hanč
Ann Am Acad 229:190 S '43 750w

Reviewed by F. K. Richter
Book Week p3 My 23 '43 600w

"This is an interesting and plausible diagnosis of what's wrong with Germany by a well-known neuropsychiatrist." S. L. Riddle
+ Churchman 157:15 My 15 '43 240w

Reviewed by A. C. Washburne
Commonweal 38:254 Je 25 '43 550w

Current Hist 5:76 S '43 160w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:11 Jl '43 30w

Reviewed by Joseph Jastrow
Nation 156:812 Je 5 '43 800w

Reviewed by George Soule
New Repub 108:644 My 10 '43 600w

"One of the principal merits of Dr. Brickner's treatise is that even a reader who finds it more subjective than scientific will be moved to sense the extraordinary difficulties which must be surmounted by those who undertake to rebuild Europe. How can even the best economic and juridical plans be made to work unless men are willing to cooperate in the spirit of a commitment to decency?" G. N. Shuster
+ N Y Times p9 Ap 4 '43 1200w

Reviewed by Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 19:70 My 1 '43 900w

Reviewed by H. M. Kallen
Sat R of Lit 26:4 My 29 '43 2100w

Discussions by Sigrid Undset, Gregory Zilboorg, Bertrand Russell, Frank Kingdon, and Erich Fromm
Sat R of Lit 24:6 My 29 '43 4850w

Reviewed by Margaret Nordfeldt
Survey G 32:300 Jl '43 380w

"Although the author necessarily uses a good deal of professional language Dr. Brickner writes remarkably clearly and simply and has a gift for vivid figures of speech and turns of phrase that make the most technical points easy for the layman to understand. He also cites many case histories and other illustrative material which make fascinating reading." W. R. Deuel
+ Weekly Book Review p6 My 2 '43 1250w

BRIER, HOWARD M. Swing shift; il. by S. Levenson. 265p $2 Random house

43-51163

Vocational story about a young Dakota farm boy who goes to Seattle to look for work after Pearl Harbor. The reader will learn about ship building—welding, boilermaking, shipfitting, and other activities of a war plant. For older boys.

Reviewed by Tom Abbott
Book Week p10 Je 27 '43 140w
Booklist 39:390 Je 1 '43

"A well-written and thrilling story for older boys." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:238 Jl '43 70w

"Mystery and sabotage are plausibly handled, with author stressing loyalty, initiative, and patriotism and writing vividly of hugh shipyard during wartime." E. A. Groves
+ Library J 68:480 Je 1 '43 90w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:823 O 15 '43 40w

"There is a fast-moving plot involving sabotage, the Coast Guard patrol and the F. B. I. that will keep any boy sitting on the edge of his chair. Skillful structure and vigorous contemporary material combine to give 'Swing Shift' the full stature of a junior novel." E. M. Morrow
+ N Y Times p10 My 9 '43 180w

"Authentic, forceful career book."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:29 My 15 '43 20w

"Mr. Brier's knack of making a he-man's job exciting to boys, permits no let-down while work at the shipyard holds the stage. Dave's connection with the F. B. I. is slight and comes late in the story, and as the saboteurs are scattered and their identities come gradually to light, the book will not be read solely for the thrill of crime catching." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p18 My 23 '43 400w
Wis Lib Bul 39:111 Jl '43

BRIER, ROYCE. Last boat from Beyrouth. 258p $2.50 Appleton-Century

43-5578

When the Patrie sailed June 9, 1940, from Beyrouth bound for Marseilles, two Americans on board, a man and a woman who had hitherto avoided each other, were irrevocably brought together. Thru their eyes and thoughts and feelings comes the story of the last days of the Patrie, while warplanes and submarines attacked and the radio brought the news of the fall of France. At the end Peter manages to get Mary into a lifeboat but he goes down with the ship.

"'Last Boat From Beyrouth' is a beautiful book. It is one of those rare books that addresses itself to the adult mind and heart." Konrad Bercovici
+ Book Week p7 My 2 '43 600w
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Jl '43

BRIER, ROYCE—Continued

"The ship itself is the only real character in this book. A comparison with Conrad's 'Youth' lies so ready to hand that one hesitates to make it. Let us simply say that Royce Brier knows how to show us the soul of a ship." Marianne Hauser

N Y Times p12 My 9 '43 600w

"Parts of Mr Brier's novel are beautifully written. The effects of the author's undeniable psychological insight are sometimes impaired by a certain lengthiness, and an unfortunate shift in methods. As frequently is the case in movies, the episodes are more clearly presented than much of what the protagonists do and feel." Robert Pick

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:16 My 8 '43 550w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 2 '43 300w

"Mr. Brier really knows how to tell a story. He knows about ships of state and ships at sea, and how they founder. . . He knows how men die. But, especially, he knows how a woman can be possessed of love. . . With all this understanding, and with an obvious talent and swing to his writing, it is a pity that the author turns his back to the lonely path of restrained craftsmanship and chooses the crowded highway of ballyhoo." Virgilia Sapieha

— + Weekly Book Review p10 Ap 25 '43 800w

BRIGHT, ROBERT. Travels of Ching [il. by the author]. [65p] il $1.25 Scott, W.R.

43-51304

Picture-story book about a fine Chinese doll, coveted by a poor little girl who could not buy him. Ching traveled to America as a present to a rich little girl, who did not want him. Finally, via a junkyard and many conveyances, Ching returned to China to the little girl who wanted him so much.

"Robert Bright's pictures are fun and his story decidedly satisfying." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p16 N 21 '43 160w

Booklist 40:81 N 1 '43

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 29 '43 70w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:401 N '43 70w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield

Library J 68:818 O 15 '43 50w

"By time children are five they have enough knowledge of life to appreciate the material and pictures which so cleverly blend the familiar with the unfamiliar. Can be used in a parent's collection and duplicated for child's own reading." B. W. Bell

+ Library J 68:892 N 1 '43 110w

"This is a story, set down in economical sentences, to which young children will turn again and again, for its just-right twist at the end, for its repetition of phrase and movement which point up the variety of Ching's adventures, while it widens their imaginations with its sense of distance." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p8 O 17 '43 180w

"The text is simple and direct, the story easy to follow. And the illustrations have great charm and humor. Ching has personality. He will be loved as a favorite doll is loved by many children." J. V.

+ Sat R of Lit 26:25 N 13 '43 160w

Wis Lib Bul 40:10 Ja '44

BRINDZE, RUTH (MRS ALBERT W. FRIBOURG). You can help your country win; il. by Emery I. Gondor. 227p $2.50 Vanguard

330.973 World war, 1939—Economic aspects—U.S. World war, 1939—Children

43-10378

Explanations of shortages and their whys and wherefors in wartime America, written for children of ten to fourteen, with advice on stretching present commodities in order to help in the war effort. Partial contents: Food facts; Clothes that can "take it;" Care and repair of sporting goods; Victory gardens; Facts about figures.

"Altogether, there are plenty of suggestions for boys and girls who want to do their share on the home front. Certainly this is one of the most sensible and readable books on the behind-the-lines problems of the war I have seen." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p10 Je 27 '43 360w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p14 Jl 11 '43 320w

"Approaching this book with some misgiving . . . I was correspondingly happy to find that its brief, lucid suggestions, made directly to children of ten to fourteen, are of an importance not only immediate but lasting." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 11 '43 400w

BRINIG, MYRON. The gambler takes a wife. 309p $2.50 Farrar

43-7891

A tale of a Montana frontier town in the 1880's.

"It is interesting if gratuitous to speculate on what Mr. Brinig might have done had he really put his mind and heart to work on such a setting; if, with his talent and his knowledge of the West, he had thought seriously about one of those settlements that were half way on the road to civilization, all present and future and no past, compounded of hope and opportunism, by turns magnificent and sordid, a new world in the making. He is still the man for that kind of book, though he chose to do a flimsy melodrama instead." J. K. Hutchens

— + N Y Times p12 Je 13 '43 450w

"Eminently lively and readable. . . Mr. Brinig has had a good time for himself, which readers will share." George Conrad

+ Weekly Book Review p12 Je 13 '43 500w

BRINNIN, JOHN MALCOLM. Lincoln lyrics. (Poet of the month) [31p] $1; pa 50c New directions

811 Lincoln, Abraham—Poetry 42-25255

Thirty-six lyrics on the life and times of Lincoln. The author describes the book as "an attempt to restate the democratic ideal in terms of American mythology."

Nation 156:248 F 13 '43 180w

"The poet has not quite achieved his ambitious task. For one thing, he is betrayed by the very richness of his metaphors and allusions. For another, thirty-six poems, all made up of four-line stanzas in unrhymed iambic pentameter, however careful the manipulation of the meter, produce an effect of monotony. It is in a few individual lyrics rather than in the group as a whole that Mr. Brinnin shows himself to be the gifted young poet we know." Babette Deutsch

+ — New Repub 108:421 Mr 29 '43 120w

"Though young, Mr. Brinnin has by now served a substantial apprenticeship in his craft. He knows how to use the tools of poetry well—perhaps too well. Unless he is willing to perform some pretty sharp surgery on himself, it seems quite possible that he will never go much beyond his present excellence—an excellence in which there is much smouldering but little fire, little of the sudden lightning we come to expect in accomplished poets. Brinnin's favorite part of speech is the adjective, which is the frock coat, not the muscle, of poetry. He is the master of the apt but unexciting adjective. He rarely uses the one hard word when four or five soft ones will do almost as well." J. F. Nims

+ — Poetry 61:622 F '43 750w

BRISTER, HOPE (MRS EDMUND WATKINS). Cunning fox, and other tales; il. by Henry C. Pitz. 118p $2 Knopf

43-10324

Eleven animal folk tales from a wide range of sources, which tell how the stork lost his tail, how the wren got the best of his fellows, etc. For grades three to five.

Booklist 40:100 N 15 '43

"The stories are humorous and, unlike Æsop, completely unmoral." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:405 N '43 60w

"Because of their unusualness, they should be of help to the story teller." V. W. Schott
+ Library J 68:894 N 1 '43 90w

"These tales are rich in homely wisdom and have a lively dialogue and an unexpectedness which make them excellent for reading aloud and for story-telling." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p6 D 19 '43 220w
Wis Lib Bul 40:12 Ja '44

BRISTOL, GEORGE TRENT. Salute me! the dilemmas of a second lieutenant. 172p $1.75 Dial press

355.12 U.S.—Army—Military life
43-11667

A second lieutenant gives his commentary on his own training for his present status, and some insight into the life, morals, and customs of the American army at present.

Reviewed by C. G. Chan
Book Week p6 Ag 15 '43 230w
Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '43

Reviewed by Benson Inge
+ N Y Times p10 Ag 8 '43 280w

"It is a book to place beside the recollections of Private Hargrove, with whom the author was associated in newspaper work before both became army men. Perhaps it is wishful thinking, but there is a zest in the current light literature of the war which is reassuring. Our writers seem to [be] making the most of it because of a conviction that this is the last war they are going to encounter." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p22 Jl 25 '43 450w

BRISTOW, GWEN (MRS BRUCE MANNING). Tomorrow is forever. 259p $2.50 Crowell 43-17449

Character study of an American woman whose first husband was reported killed in the first World war. On the eve of the second war Elizabeth Herlong sees the possibility of having her oldest son drafted into service in another war. At this juncture a terribly crippled German refugee, who works for Elizabeth's second husband, takes a hand in her affairs and thru his courage and adult understanding Elizabeth is able to face the future.

"It may all seem too unreal, too contrived, but it is a book filled with wisdom and understanding of human problems." Edward Weeks
+ — Atlantic 173:124 Ja '44 120w

"This book sometimes sounds a bit too pat in the unraveling of the plot. It will appeal to a universal audience of women who are seeing their own sons going off to 'another war,' but strangely enough it will add to their fund of inner strength in the acceptance of these things. It is written with warm sympathy, with restraint and a deftness of touch we have come to expect from Miss Bristow's novels." G. H. Freitag
+ Book Week p4 N 21 '43 400w
Booklist 40:165 Ja 1 '44

"'Tomorrow Is Forever' is a superior kind of tale, which falls short of being an out-and-out-thriller, and which is quite unexpectedly plausible. . . True, there are times, I think, when it turns sentimental, and I could have spared some of the high-minded talk about our aims in the war, but this is a book on the whole which appeals to the intelligence and which handles a dangerous theme deftly and well." E. H. Walton
+ — N Y Times p8 D 26 '43 500w

"Miss Bristow's distinguishing quality is a pleasant-tempered common sense, and the sensible perceptiveness of her hero's counsels, gained through suffering, will sound like wisdom to readers who don't look too close."
New Yorker 19:108 N 20 '43 130w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 5 '43 350w

"'Tomorrow Is Forever' is a dramatic and swiftly moving story. Miss Bristow does not shrink from using the convenient coincidences which are sometimes held to be reserved for actuality, rather than fiction. She is concerned here, however, with the drama of emotions as well as the well managed suspense that goes into the rounding out of her plot. Many readers will find this a hard novel to lay down." David Tilden
+ Weekly Book Review p22 N 21 '43 600w

BRITAIN in pictures. 10v il maps 4s 6d; 3s 6d Collins (Toronto) ea $1.25; distributed in the United States by Chanticleer press, 347 Madison av, N.Y. at $1.85 per volume or $18.50 per set

914.2 Great Britain. Great Britain—Colonies

"The editorial committee of this series consists of W. J. Turner assisted by Dorothy Wellesley, Lord David Cecil, and Hilda Matheson. There is no preface to the set as a whole, explaining its general purpose, nor is there a general index. Each of the ten slight volumes —of 48 pages each—is an independent monograph prepared by a different individual. The writers and the subjects of their essays are as follows: W. J. Turner, English music; Lord David Cecil, The English poets; V. Sackville-West, English country houses; Eric Parker, British sport; G. M. Young, The government of Britain; Ernest Barker, British statesmen; Arnold Haskell, Australia; Sir Firozkhan Noon, India; Elspeth Huxley, East Africa; and Lady Tweedsmuir, Canada. The six volumes on England are the work of writers especially interested in the topics assigned them, though in no way authorities; those on India and East Africa of individuals bred in those areas, while Australia and Canada are handled by visitors. The omission of the Union of South Africa and New Zealand makes one wonder whether more volumes are to be added to the set." Subscription Bks Bul

"Each volume is generously illustrated with twelve full-page color plates as well as many black-and-white reproductions of paintings from the great English galleries. Occasional recent photographs are also included. A list of illustrations precedes each monograph. The assembling and placing of the illustrations has not always been done carefully. . . The format of the set while attractive is not durable enough for general library use. Each volume has a different colored cloth binding with an appropriate insignia in gold stamped on its face. Paper and print are only fair. The set as a whole has little reference value because of the lack of indexes and the fact that the monographs are predominantly literary rather than factual. Individual volumes for the circulating shelves might have some use in larger libraries. Britain in Pictures is not recommended for general purchase."
— + Subscription Bks Bul 14:5 Ja '43 440w

BRITANNICA junior; an encyclopaedia for boys and girls; prepared under the supervision of the editors of the Encyclopaedia britannica. 12v il maps $79.90, to schools and libraries, $63.90; blue Craftex $64.90; 6 per cent discount on accounts paid within 30 days after delivery, f.o.b. destination; additional discount for multiple sales c1934-1943 Encyclopaedia britannica

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries 43-5148

"The original edition of Britannica Junior, published in 1934, has undergone reprintings and revisions annually from 1937 through 1943, except in 1939. It was first reviewed in the Subscription Books Bulletin for January 1935, and again in July 1939 [Book Review Digest, 1935, 1939]. . . Articles are not signed but a list of 173 contributors is given in volume one. H. R. Lissack is listed as educational editor of the juvenile set. The original plan of the encyclopedia is continued, with volume one a ready reference index and volume 12 a study guide and atlas. The arrangement of the text proper is alphabetical with occasional see references, since the ready reference index aims to give complete coverage of any subject. Britannica Junior is intended as a reference work to serve the needs of boys and girls of

BRITANNICA junior—Continued
the elementary and junior high schools, according to the foreword. Material is presented at about the sixth grade level of reading ability." Subscription Bks Bul

"The combined revision of all editions still does not constitute a complete revision. The most extensive changes were made in the 1941 edition. . . Material on Airplanes and Aviation has been modernized and simplified, as has that on Household Management and on Motion Pictures. On the other hand, the Radio article has been changed but slightly since 1938. . . Britannica Junior is recommended for elementary and junior high schools needing an additional moderately priced encyclopedia. Since the set has been definitely improved over the 1938 edition, it is recommended to large libraries as a supplementary encyclopedia in the children's room for the use of younger boys and girls. The small library able to afford only a single juvenile set will wish to consider a more comprehensive encyclopedia even though more expensive. Britannica Junior is recommended also for the home with young children wishing a moderately priced encyclopedia."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:37 O '43 900w

BRITCHER, PHYLLIS (ROMNEY GAY, pseud). Cinder's secret. [34p] il 50c Grosset 43-11294

"Cinder is a little gray cat belonging to Toby and Sue. Every morning Cinder goes away . . . nobody knows where. One day Toby and Sue decide to follow Cinder and find her secret." Springf'd Republican

"This is an especially good book for children about five or six years old." Maureen Elder
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 14 '43 60w
Wis Lib Bul 39:147 N '43

BRITTAIN, VERA MARY (MRS GEORGE EDWARD GORDON CATLIN). Humiliation with honor. 108p $1 Fellowship publications [3s 6d Dakers]
940.531 World war, 1939—Peace. Peace
43-5954

"In the form of letters to a fifteen-year-old son, the author gives her view of the causes of the present world situation and the way out. Victory in the war has no place in the remedy. . . The stress of the author's argument is for pacifism, barring the belligerent and the self-righteous sorts which 'do the cause of pacifism harm rather than good.'" Christian Century

"The affirmative presentation of the necessity of spiritual reconstruction and the danger inherent in victory without it give the book value in spite of its weaknesses."
Christian Century 60:578 My 12 '43 190w

Reviewed by C. L. Willard, Jr.
Churchman 157:17 Jl 1 '43 360w

"In more senses than one these letters are 'disarming.' Fairness, sweetness, honesty are writ large on every page; and there is that haunting suspicion that in much that she says she is dreadfully right. I am far from sharing all her views; yet if she is in life—and I see no reason to question it—what she is in the printed page, I should like to know her personally. Perhaps this will be regarded as a 'dangerous' book. Of course it is: it makes one think. Probably some will style it subtle propaganda: Satan masquerading as a gentle, gracious, and understanding mother, scrupulously avoiding what makes most pacifist tracts so obnoxious. I for one, do not feel inclined to try to classify it: I have read it, and it has moved me strangely." M. S. Enslin
+ Crozer Q 20:264 Jl '43 300w

"It may be that Miss Brittain's voice is the voice of the future crying for international brotherhood, for the good understanding between all peoples and an end of the nationalistic attitudes. . . But Miss Brittain's approach is the pacifistic one, and there is no sign that any mass of people anywhere has come near the lofty perch from which she delivers her embracing homily." Craig Thompson
N Y Times p22 My 23 '43 240w

BRITTON, KATHARINE. What makes it tick? il. by Jeanne Bendick. 233p $2.50 Houghton 600 Technology—Juvenile literature
43-11708

Accurate but simply worded text, with easily understood illustrations show the mechanics and natural laws of everyday living; for example electricity, air conditioning, radios, storms, automobiles, trick photography, and submarines. Grades five to eight. Index.

"This is a book which should be welcomed heartily by both parents and teachers. Junior stumps us every day with questions such as 'How does the telephone work? How does electricity heat? Why does it rain?' and so on—practically forever. This book has all the answers presented in a clear and interesting manner, with accompanying illustrations and diagrams." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 O 3 '43 80w
Booklist 40:18 S '43

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 31 '44 140w

"Recommended." V. W. Schott
+ Library J 68:729 S 15 '43 110w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:822 O 15 '43 30w

"The many drawings have a touch of humor as well as a fine clarity and there is an excellent index. A book which will appeal to children from 7 to 12 and one that parents and teachers will find extremely useful." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p25 N 7 '43 260w

"The amount of material covered necessitates explanations which, although always simple, are sometimes too brief to convey an understanding of the basic principles necessary for absolute clarity."
New Yorker 19:133 D 4 '43 70w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 21 '43 100w

"Every parent must at some time have wished that he had some sort of compendium—preferably in one volume—to which he could refer members of the household under twelve when they said 'But Daddy, what makes it' do thus or so. . . These matters of moment are summarily but satisfactorily explained for ten-year-olds (especially boys) in these pages with their drawings and diagrams." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p7 S 19 '43 400w
Wis Lib Bul 39:147 N '43

BROADLEY, MARGARET E. Square pegs in square holes. 211p $2.50 Doubleday 151.223 Ability—Testing. Profession, Choice of 43-16043

Account of the Human engineering laboratory, which was established originally to test industrial plant workers for their aptitudes and thus improve efficiency. The original laboratory branched out into six, but one of those has been taken over by the navy. In these laboratories any person over nine can be tested for aptitudes, providing an aid for vocational and personal guidance. The book contains many case histories.

"If you are sensitive to shades of gray, you may feel that this new science, if it is such, is not as purely scientific as one might suppose; at least, not if its method, measurements and aims are frozen into the forms described in this book. . . As an alumnus of the sixth grade who rated a disqualifying 30 or so per cent in the only intelligence test I ever took (it was for the job of tallyman in a meat packer's brine cellar), I cannot but entertain a careful skepticism toward tests designed to reveal one's this or that by answering whimsical questions or twiddling with bits of string and tweezers." Edgar Main
Book Week p19 N 21 '43 430w
Booklist 40:107 D 1 '43

"This volume, a readable description and interpretation of the various tests, is fascinating to anyone interested in people. Through its pages walk the many persons who, it is claimed, have been put on the right track vocationally through taking these tests and following the laboratory's advice which was based on them."
+ Christian Science Monitor p5 F 5 '44 230w

"Unfortunately, O'Connor's aptitude tests have repeatedly been found by competent psychologists to lack scientific reliability and validity. Scientific measurement of personality is still one of the central unsolved problems in field of human engineering." A. I. Bryan
Library J 68:843 O 15 '43 110w

Weekly Book Review p12 N 21 '43 130w

BROBECK, FLORENCE RICHARDS. Cook it in a casserole; with chafing dish recipes and menus; introd. by Hendrik Willem Van Loon. 183p $2 Barrows

641.5 Cookery 43-14066

Menus and recipes for meals planned around one main dish cooked in casserole or chafing dish. Index.

Booklist 40:54 O 15 '43

"The author has performed a timely good deed in stressing the versatility of the casserole. By what other cooking method can you so delightfully transform leftovers into something especially tasty—or extend a little meat to satisfy a whole family? Rationing will hold few crises for the hostess who has this book to tide her over." Helen Henley
+ Christian Science Monitor p8 S 14 '43 110w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

Wis Lib Bul 39:142 N '43

BROCH, THEODOR. The mountains wait; il by Rockwell Kent. 325p $3 Webb [10s 6d Joseph, M]

940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, Norwegian 42-36408

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"One of the best introductions to an understanding of Norway as it was and will be again."
+ Am Hist R 48:648 Ap '43 70w

Bookmark 4:11 Mr '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Jl '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:8 Jl '43 40w

"It is a picture of a way of life, simple, dignified, forward-looking, painted with love and humour." C. R.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 My 26 '43 250w

"One of the finest literary monuments to the spirit of the Norwegians." Bjarne Braatog
+ Nation 156:350 Mr 6 '43 750w

Reviewed by G. W. Stonier
New Statesman & Nation 25:355 My 29 '43 460w

Reviewed by T. K. Derry
Spec 170:506 My 28 '43 500w

"The book is written very simply, with extreme candour and a dry, astringent humour. It does not attempt to order the incidents and phases of the two months' fighting for Narvik into a coherent narrative, for the author is concerned to describe only what he personally experienced or observed. But the book never fails to indicate the peculiar tension of the Narvik campaign and particularly the Norwegian sense of the presence, in the fjord or out at sea, of the Royal Navy."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p218 My 8 '43 850w

Wis Lib Bul 39:53 Ap '43

BROCK, EMMA LILLIAN. Topsy-turvy family; il. by [the author]. 88p $2 Knopf 43-9802

The topsy-turvy family is a pioneer family living on the Minnesota prairies. The coming of a new teacher from Maine affords them many excuses for exercising their ability to collect catastrophes, but they greet every accident with perfect calm, and when the teacher arrives she proves to be exactly like the family. For girls and boys from seven to ten.

Booklist 40:98 N 15 '43

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 20w

Reviewed by S. J. Johnson
Library J 68:893 N 1 '43 70w

"Children, who always enjoy reading of catastrophes, will be entertained by the description of how the goose feathers blew away like snow when Tim left the feather-house door open (and the new pillows for the teacher's bed could not be made), and even more amused by the tale of Debby trying to catch, in the woodshed, a black and white kitten, which proved to be a quite different animal. Some of the happenings in the book were suggested, the author tells us, by journals and memoirs of Minnesota pioneers." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p25 N 7 '43 260w

BRODRICK, ALAN HOUGHTON. Little China; the Annamese lands. 332p il $5.50 (18s) Oxford

915.98 Annam 43-998

Contains an informal mixture of history, tradition, native life and customs, and comment on contemporary problems of the northern and eastern sections of French Indo-China—the lands of predominantly Annamese speech. Short bibliography. Index.

"The volume is only slightly and spasmodically historical. In whatever it touches, and it touches all phases of Annamese life and civilization, it is decidedly spasmodic. There is no logic or traceable organization in a mass of observations that are a mine of information where the reader works without much aid from the author. It is valuable because it is almost the only book in English on the area and people."
Am Hist R 48:864 Jl '43 70w

Booklist 39:290 Mr 15 '43

"Mr. Brodrick's general tone is that of a generation which almost made a religion out of the sort of anthropology attractively dished up by Frazer, which led you to have a certain charming scorn for all systematic religious belief and led you to an acceptance of anything you found in the world, however cruel or immoral by Christian standards, if only because, following the Westermarckian thesis, custom is the great ethical determinant. From this the reader may gather what sort of book 'Little China' is. If you do not read it in the frame of reference of the intellectual background I have sketched out above, you will have every reason to be shocked and disgusted with its point of view and many of its asides. But if you bear in mind the peculiar mentality which seems to have shaped its author, and if you are interested in Oriental culture generally, you will find much in the volume to instruct you and even to please you. For its descriptions are sensitive and its illustrations superlative." H. L. Binsse
+ — Commonweal 37:452 F 19 '43 280w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:167 O '43 10w

"The 'Travel book' form is handled by Mr. Brodrick with extraordinary deftness. Descriptions are terse but sufficient to present to an imaginative reader the environment in which the Annamese, the Chinese, and French 'colonials' live. . . Sometimes sardonic, never unsympathetic, always suggestive, Mr. Brodrick carries the reader along and leaves him astounded at the amount of information he has acquired so easily." J. A. Stewart
+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 27 '42 280w

BRODRICK, A. H.—Continued

"Chronological and other tables, an appendix and an excellent index provide guidance to the valuable data contained in the first comprehensive work on this area predicated on ethnologic rather than political boundaries."

+ New Repub 108:294 Mr 1 '43 120w

"The author is a pelmaniser; if he writes a word which recalls some totally irrelevant fact to his mind he pulls it in so that his book gets more and more like a mouse's nest as it goes on. It is a pity, for a good English work on Indochina is badly needed." Freda White

— New Statesman & Nation 24:393 D 12 '42 220w

"There are some dull pages of names and dates, descriptions of landscape or culture traits too discrete to convey much meaning. Sometimes keen observations or suggestive reflections are followed by prejudices that gain nothing from frequent repetition. . . But the good outweighs the poor, and the meaningful exceeds the trivial. The photographs are beautiful, the bibliography is adequate, and the index is exceptionally full." Bruno Lasker

+ — Pacific Affairs 16:379 S '43 320w

"This is a very unusual and superior travel book. . . Mr. Brodrick has an incisive style, and is free from the prejudices of most Europeans, consequently he has a lot to say that is fresh, and sometimes disconcerting. . . With him the reader may travel through this almost unknown country accompanied by a witty, agreeable and well-informed companion. The book is enriched by a number of photographs of unusual excellence, taken by the author."

+ Spec 170:108 Ja 29 '43 210w

"Although the book includes some learned appendices, Mr. Brodrick is not simply an anthropologist. Indeed, his discursiveness may annoy the scholar, though it will charm the general reader. He has travelled widely; he can compare Indo-Chinese scenery with Mediterranean, a Tongkingese pilgrim shrine with a Spanish. He gives us local legends, he has an eye for beauty, but he also has a taste for food and an interest in everything that makes for comfort. His facts are often rabelaisian, but in these countries life itself is often rabelaisian. Some of the illustrations are unusually fine."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p25 Ja 16 '43 1100w

"This is at once a scholarly and a popular book, heavily ballasted with information about East Asia's history, pre-history and ethnology but interlarded with much gay and even mischievous travel gossip and light comment upon the ways of the colonial French and the great variety of racial fragments and ~~racial blends~~ whom they 'sloppily' ruled in Indo-China until the Japanese took them all over." Rodney Gilbert

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 25 '43 1100w

BRODRICK, ALAN HOUGHTON. North Africa. (World to-day ser) 98p il maps $1.25 (3s 6d) Oxford

916.1 Africa, North 43-995

Succinct account of the geography, history, administration, and peoples of North Africa, written by an Englishman who has traveled in Libya, Tunisia, Algeria, and Morocco. Index.

Booklist 39:274 Mr 1 '43

Bookmark 4:14 Mr '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Jl '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:166 O '43 20w

Reviewed by Jean Gottmann

Geog R 33:336 Ap '43 290w

Reviewed by M. M. Knight

J Pol Econ 51:283 Je '43 500w

"The book is excellent as a sketch of topography, communications, and current political events." Wilfrid Gibson

+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 6 '42 70w

"Succinct without being dry, this small book provides the general reader with just the information he now requires about . . . North Africa. Mr. Brodrick evidently knows the countries well; he likes the natives and does justice to the French."

+ New Statesman & Nation 24:345 N 21 '42 500w

"This unpretentious little volume . . . comes opportunely from the press. It is out of date only in that the author could not foresee the landing of the American forces and the arrival of Rommel and his British pursuers. Some allusions are illuminating." R. L. D.

+ N Y Times p9 F 14 '43 700w

"Whatever this little book lacks, it is not topicality; nothing could more aptly synchronise with the demand. Unfortunately, there are other things it does lack. Perhaps Mr. Brodrick, supercharged with knowledge, has found the task of compression too much for him. Most of his volume is a tangled mass of history, geography and ethnology, in which it is almost impossible to see the fact—North Africa—for the facts. The last quarter of the book is on different and much more attractive lines."

+ — Spec 169:514 N 27 '42 180w

Springf'd Republican p8 Je 16 '43 200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p110 Mr 6 '43 490w

Weekly Book Review p24 Ap 11 '43 120w

BROGAN, DENIS WILLIAM (MAURICE BARRINGTON, pseud). English people; impressions and observations. 308p $3 Knopf [10s 6d Hamilton, H]

914.2 Great Britain—Civilization. National characteristics, English 43-3672

Chapters on the features of English life and institutions which differ widely from the American way. The author is a Scot who is an authority on American and English history, and is at present head of the American section of intelligence. Contents: The English and themselves; English education: the rift in the lute; English religion; England as a democracy; The Empire; India; The English at war; The English and the outside world. Index.

Booklist 39:352 My 1 '43

Bookmark 4:15 My '43

"An honest, balanced, and enlightening book, with limitations to be sure, yet commending itself by its uniform tone of moderation and good humor; and these chapters, which the author modestly ~~describes as~~ 'shallow, disconnected, but not quite random,' will help to make at least some of the problems of Anglo-American co-operation easier to solve." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 157:213 My '43 750w

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 6 '43 700w

Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt

Commonweal 38:205 Je 11 '43 1100w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:164 O '43 30w

"Friendly but penetrating, the author's knowledge of the United States enables him to do an excellent job of interpretation for an American audience, while providing a view through American eyes that should be valuable to his English readers. Especially illuminating on the evolving system of secondary and higher education and the attitude toward the Established Church, he throws a clear light on the government and relations with the Empire, India, and the outside world. Extensive explanatory footnotes. Recommended." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 68:208 Mr 1 '43 140w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun

Nation 157:188 Ag 14 '43 600w

"This may be the book we have been waiting for. That there is in this war more loose talk about the iniquities of the English than there was in the last, no one who keeps his ears open will deny. . . Some obstacles may stand in the way of the book's success. That it is blunt is all to the good. Professor Brogan rightly believes that the two countries should not pussy-foot in speaking of each other. Yet it is conceivable that some readers will see in this book another example of axiomatic British arrogance. His constant use of parallel instances in our history to explain the failure of the English to solve certain of their problems is astute, but the device would be more effective if these parallels (which are usually exact) had occasionally been employed to underline commendable solutions in the two countries. . . I mention these blemishes—if they are that—because the book seems to me capable of doing great good. Its large view and the lightness of its learning should ingratiate it with anyone ripe for persuasion. It is, in effect, a much-needed summary of the transformations taking place in contemporary England." Willard Thorp

+ — New Repub 108:769 Je 7 '43 1150w

"Very able and readable book. . . Occasionally there are sentences which show that he could draw a conclusion or think philosophically if he wished. But Mr. Brogan is both practical and prudent. He writes primarily for an American audience which asks to understand England and for an English audience whose curiosity about its own country is stimulated by the discovery that Americans and other foreign people are not quite sure that England is to-day what they assumed her to be five years ago. Those who can stand learning a lot at a time will find endless riches in this book." Kingsley Martin

+ — New Statesman & Nation 25:307 My 8 '43 1750w

"Mr. Brogan's is the kind of book, intelligent, learned, mildly conservative, that Englishmen would themselves recommend to us. . . An attentive reading of his book cannot fail to convince any unprejudiced mind that the defects of the English character do not in any way decisively hinder our cooperation with the English in war and in peace. The English may seem odd, but they have one splendid and basic thing in common with us: they are human. This, unfortunately, can scarcely be said of all races." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 19:84 Ap 10 '43 650w

"This is an interesting and entertaining book the present value of which in encouraging reasonableness is unquestionable." J. B. Brebner

+ — Pol Sci Q 58:439 S '43 600w

Reviewed by T. W. Lamont

Sat R of Lit 26:9 D 11 '43 750w

"I cannot say what American readers (for whom this book is primarily intended) will make of Mr. Brogan's account of me and my fellow-countrymen, but for my part, I find the picture extremely entertaining, and, on the whole, just. . . I admire Mr. Brogan's charity even more than his justice. I think I could have written a much nastier book about the English. What I could not do would be to get into 252 pages such an immense amount of detailed, accurate, and relevant information without boring the reader for a moment." E. L. Woodward

+ Spec 170:364 Ap 16 '43 750w

"The book is genuinely and unobtrusively informative and it is also fun to read, since the author is perfectly aware of the humorous aspects of certain English attitudes (the first page of 'The English at War' is worth the price of the book). The reader may still dislike the English when he lays the volume down, but he should certainly understand them better. After all, there are a good many odd features of American life too." W. H. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 25 '43 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p201 Ap 24 '43 1450w

"Mr. Brogan has with rare understanding and good humor delineated the Englishman of caricature and of reality. And he has delineated him for the edification of Americans, and in an idiom that Americans will understand and welcome." H. S. Commager

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ap 18 '43 1850w

"Quite at home in this country, and, one may add, in the American idiom, Professor Brogan knows what things in contemporary England need most explaining to Americans, and because of his Scottish background, he can take a detached, or at least a semi-detached, view of the English. His capacity for sharp observation and ready analogy, his wit and common sense, make his book a delight to read." Alexander Thomson

+ Yale R n s 33:145 autumn '43 1200w

BROMFIELD, LOUIS. Mrs Parkington. 330p $2.75 Harper

42-36416

Portrait study of a New York grand dame, aged eighty-four in 1942, who came out of Leaping Rock, Nevada, at the age of seventeen, married to Major Parkington, one of New York's early "robber barons." After his death Mrs Parkington lived on, head of her family, a keen manager of her immense fortune, an intimate of kings and queens, and a woman of charm to the end of her life. Her descendants did not do her and the major credit, except for Janie, her great-granddaughter, and for her Mrs Parkington made great plans. Glimpses of Mrs Parkington's past are brought into the story, so that a rounded picture of her life is formed.

Atlantic 171:145 Ap '43 500w

Booklist 39:184 Ja 1 '43

"Mr. Bromfield ranges wide and free. His characterizations are good, but without the inevitability which comes from mixing a streak of lean with a streak of fat. Susie Parkington from Leaping Rock, Nev., for instance, had 'liked people and there was no spitefulness in her nature'; she was patient and wise and strong; she was, in fact an angel—a little less or a little more than human. 'Mrs. Parkington' is a streamlined novel. How streamlined and smooth and modern you can best realize by comparing it with another novel about an old lady in her eighties who, too, had had a rich life—in V. Sackville West's memorable 'All Passion Spent.' Both are excellent jobs—but 'All Passion Spent' is a dynamo and 'Mrs. Parkington' a means for rapid surface traveling." F. H. Bullock

+ — Books p4 Ja 10 '43 1000w

"This is the best of the recent Bromfields. It's so good that I wish his vitality had been more patient, that he had chiseled his material into something more than the successful popular novel class. The book lacks the extra patience and restraint which could make one say more than the 'I had a wonderful time reading it,' inevitable with any Bromfield. Also an error in proof reading has allowed the spelling 'Dutchess' to appear in print. Small, yes, but too flagrant to give the reader that pleasure in perfection which is the overtone of a work of art. So, here's another Bromfield, and an exceptionally good one." Dorothy Hillyer

+ — Boston Globe p15 Ja 6 '43 700w

"Mrs. Parkington is a competent though not a very good, novel. It shows no advance over Mr. Bromfield's early work, and does not bear comparison with the best of it."

Cath World 56:762 Mr '43 290w

"Interesting and thought-provoking. For sophisticated adult reader." Emily Garnett

+ Library J 68:35 Ja 1 '43 70w

"Mrs. Parkington is a fascinating and courageous old lady, whom it is a delight to meet as presented by Louis Bromfield. And her colorful and almost fabulous life story is an individual shred of American history, vitally woven into the pattern of world affairs—or world chaos—today." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p4 Ja 10 '43 1000w

New Yorker 18:51 Ja 9 '43 120w

"The theme of 'Mrs Parkington' is nothing novel, nothing strange. But there are in it a sense of vitality, a wealth of detail, a feeling for the warmth of life which lift it comfortably above the obvious. That Mr. Bromfield does well the lonely female who in old age lives a kind of heroic life his readers already know; and 'Mrs. Parkington' is therefore good reading. If it is not a great novel, it is certainly an agreeable one, and it ought to offer that kind of imaginative solace to its readers which the Victorian novelists gave to their clientele and which the smart moderns have all too often neglected to provide." H. M. Jones

BROMFIELD, LOUIS—Continued

+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 Ja 9 '43 500w

"Mrs Parkington is a portrait piece of distinction, and Mr Bromfield has drawn her with all the satin glamor of a Sargeant painting. His elaborately complicated account of Susie's life is sheer entertainment of an appreciative, peculiarly American quality, spiced with pungent philosophies and commentaries on life, for his Susie's advanced years gave her a sagacious perspective that in her youth had been but native charm and intuitive understanding of her fellow men." L. S. Munn

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 10 '43 750w

Wis Lib Bul 39:29 F '43

"It is a pity that the colors on Mr. Bromfield's palette are not up to his theme. In fact they are gaudy, false, unbelievable, and the further one gets into the book the less does one believe any of it." Robert Littell

— Yale R n s 32:x spring '43 200w

BROMLEY, JOSEPH. Clear the tracks! the story of an old-time locomotive engineer, as told to Page Cooper; il. by Stephen J. Voorhies. (Whittlesey house publication) 288p $2.75 McGraw

B or 92 Railroads 43-12991

More than sixty years ago the author began his career on the railroad, in the days when engines were wood-burners, and when engineers were seldom hampered by schedules. The story of his various jobs, from call-boy to inspector, is in fiction form, but gives a clear picture of railroad life from the 1880's to the present.

"Our old-timer, now retired, is too genial to dwell on unpleasant details. He sees the past through rose-colored glasses, and the tragic episodes he describes have been softened by retrospection. But there's nothing namby-pamby here, and 'Clear the Tracks!' shapes into a fine piece of industrial folk lore with the ring of authenticity. Its jovial narrator is a born storyteller; there isn't a dull page or even a dull sentence in the entire book." Jack Conroy

+ Book Week p3 S 19 '43 430w

Booklist 40:58 O 15 '43

"Few libraries will need to add this, but it is entertaining, and the many illustrations by Stephen J. Voorhies are robustly evocative of that earlier day in America." L. I. Poste

Library J 68:723 S 15 '43 70w

"Mr. Bromley has told the story of the railroads . . . with so nice a sense of nostalgia, with such a recollective eye for detail, that it warms and thrills and brings back a happiness that has not stirred since the home-town library announced the acquisition of 'Ralph in the Roundhouse' and everybody rushed to be first on the list." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Times p10 S 12 '43 1050w

"Mr. Bromley has made a distinct contribution to the steadily growing railroad literature of America. The spirit of his book, as well as its human understanding, will appeal to every railroad fan—of which there are hundreds of thousands. It is a human document, in the fullest sense of the word." Edward Hungerford

+ Sat R of Lit 26:27 N 6 '43 950w

"A good story. It contains no heroics, but a lot of grand railroad stuff that is told simply and with the best of humor. I don't think call boys carried flashlights in 1880; and the medicine show Mr. Bromley remembers, I feel sure, was selling a marvelous elixir called Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. These and a few other understandable slips in no way mar what is obviously an honest and well told story of a hogger who was the real McCoy. Excellent pen and ink pictures by Stephen J. Voorhies have the right period flavor." Stewart Holbrook

+ — Weekly Book Review p2 S 19 '43 1100w

Wis Lib Bul 39:143 N '43

BRONSON, WILFRID SWANCOURT. Grasshopper book; il. by the author. 128p $1.75 Harcourt

595.72 Grasshoppers—Juvenile literature 43-51236

Study of the grasshoppers and their relatives, the katydids, crickets, roaches, walking-sticks, and the praying mantises. Written for boys and girls from nine to twelve. Illustrated.

Booklist 40:18 S '43

Reviewed by Marian Herr
Library J 68:727 S 15 '43 40w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:820 O 15 '43 30w

"Wilfrid Bronson's books for boys and girls on insect, animal and ocean life are written with a fine accuracy and an understanding for children's interests. . . 'The Grasshopper Book' is both informing and entertaining." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p7 Ag 29 '43 220w

"Mr. Bronson sticks to the accurate observations of a naturalist and there is no nonsense about Father and Mother Grasshopper, but any child with the slightest interest in insects will be entranced by the text. The excellent line drawings show how members of the grasshopper family are equipped for work and play."

+ New Yorker 19:130 D 4 '43 70w

"Young scientists and Nature lovers will enjoy this sound little volume with its skillful and accurate drawings by the author."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 5 '43 100w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p8 N 7 '43 250w

Wis Lib Bul 39:125 O '43

BROOKE, MRS ESTHER EBERSTADT, and ROOS, MRS MARY MAE (BARKULOO). Career guide for young people and all who counsel them. 274p $3 Harper

371.425 Vocational guidance 43-10060

"Addressed directly to boys and girls of junior high and high school age, tuned to the times but not devoted to emergency jobs, this book is full of lively self-measurement tests to help a young person see where he stands, what are his chief assets and what his major weaknesses." Weekly Book Review

---

"Difficult as the task is, authors have avoided smugness and offer continuously stimulating discussion of problems vital to junior and senior high school students." M. E. Monroe

+ Library J 68:330 Ap 15 '43 110w

Reviewed by H. H. Helble
School R 51:437 S '43 650w

"Readers of Mrs. Brooke's 'Career Clinic' are likely to remember that work for adults with a sharper sense of personal gratitude than vocational guidance manuals sometimes arouse. Led by such experience to expect in this book 'for young people and all who counsel them' something out of the ordinary, they will not be disappointed."

+ Weekly Book Review p12 Je 20 '43 300w

Wis Lib Bul 39:105 Jl '43

BROOKS, ALDEN. Will Shakspere and the Dyer's hand. 704p $5 Scribner

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Authorship. Dyer, Sir Edward 43-3420

Basing his work on many years' research the author attempts to prove, first, that the real Will Shakespeare was a very different sort of man from the great poet of innumerable biographies; and secondly, that the author of the so-called Shakespearean plays was Sir Edward Dyer. Index.

Reviewed by Theodore Spencer
Nation 156:315 F 27 '43 650w

"Perhaps it should be enough to point out that no substantial scholar has questioned Shakespeare's authorship. If the layman wishes to judge for himself, a single one among a thousand bits of evidence should suffice. . . To brush aside this and other evidence equally strong, Baconians and Oxfordians, and now Mr. Brooks, have been obliged to traduce not only Shakespeare but Honest Ben. Incidentally, of course, they have been obliged to brush aside one another. So why worry? Far better to trust that Mr. Brooks likewise will be brushed aside by subsequent hunters of mares' nests." John Corbin

N Y Times p18 F 7 '43 1000w

"Though it is entirely undocumented, the book shows a wider acquaintance with Elizabethan literature and scholarship than do most books of its kind. But it is like all the rest in two important respects. First, it reveals an almost complete insensitiveness to style and literary values; thus Mr Brooks actually believes that Nashe was the creator of Falstaff and that Johnson was the creator of Autolycus—and, incidentally, that both these comic characters are designed as caricatures of 'Will Shakespere'! Second, the book ignores or slurs over all the facts which do not fit into the writer's theory; for example, the fact that the author of the plays must have had an intimate knowledge of acting and the theater. This trifling requirement is not listed among the 54, because it is obviously a test that Dyer cannot meet. The book is a monument of misdirected industry and ingenuity." H. E. Woodbridge

— + Springf'd Republican p6 F 23 '43 950w

"Author Brooks's evidence for his case is far from conclusive. Readers will be grateful to Author Brooks for his delving into the vast mass of Elizabethan research, but they will not agree that his muckraking has uncovered a skeleton."

Time 41:92 F 15 '43 550w

BROPHY, JOHN. Spearhead. 277p $2.50 Harper [8s 6d Collins]

43-8696

Novel based on two English commando raids, one on Norway, the other on France. A nineteen-year-old Irish lad, Emmet O'Donovan, is the hero; Carol Blanchard, sister of O'Donovan's captain, the heroine.

"The story moves fast; the writing is tense and clean."

+ Atlantic 172:121 Ag '43 80w

"The first half of the book is not to be compared with the latter half when the actual raids begin. Brophy's style lightens when the men get into action and for those people who like a little romance with their war information, 'Spearhead' is to be recommended as an exciting picture of what the Commandos are up against and how they perform." Josephine Herbst

+ — Book Week p3 Je 13 '43 450w

Booklist 39:463 Jl 15 '43

"Love interest sketched seems unwelcome intrusion and weakens story. Recommended." L. I. Poste

+ — Library J 68:363 My 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse

Manchester Guardian p3 My 14 '43 200w

"For all its excitement, 'Spearhead,' as a war book, has a happily restful quality. It is devoid of high-class thinking, of brain-trusting, of destiny-divining. It will never be a propaganda 'must'. Its characters are the little people of all classes, the men and women who, whatever their station in civil life, have nothing to do with running the war except to fight when they are given orders to fight." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Times p7 Je 6 '43 850w

"A straightforward, well-written account of the work of a subsection of a Commando unit. . . Recommended to those who are curious about how the Commandos function."

+ New Yorker 19:35 Je 5 '43 100w

Reviewed by R. J. Conklin

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 20 '43 700w

"The details of the operations, or most of the details, give a fair idea of all that is involved in a Commando enterprise, and O'Donovan, if not a wholly persuasive character, is interestingly conceived. But Mr. Brophy has not been content with this alone. He has added a generous flavour—an almost drowning Hollywood flavour—of novelettish romance, with the patrician loveliness of the tiresome Carol, Captain Blanchard's sister, to cast a breathtaking glamour over the rewards of heroism."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p221 My 8 '43 300w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock

Weekly Book Review p10 Je 13 '43 600w

Wis Lib Bul 39:122 O '43

BROUGHTON, AVERELL. Careers in public relations; the new profession. 255p $2 Dutton

301.154 Publicity 43-5846

"Averell Broughton, a Public Relations and advertising executive, head of his own business, explains the field, its two-fold job and its open secrets. . . He includes important interviews with other leading public relations executives in business and in industry." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 39:363 My 15 '43

Bookmark 4:4 My '43

"Mr. Broughton's book will give prospective followers of the profession a good deal to think about and some admirable advice as to the preparation and qualities they will require. The last hundred pages comprise an inspiring group of interviews with public relations counsels." E. F. A.

+ N Y Times p24 My 16 '43 360w

"Anyone who will read this useful study of public relations can see that private corporations have traveled a long way from the attitude of 'the public be damned.' . . Public relations counsels and corporation executives who feel that the time has come to humanize, democratize, and socialize big business should begin by reading this book." R. H. Ewing

+ Social Forces 22:229 D '43 500w

Wis Lib Bul 39:104 Jl '43

BROWDER, EARL RUSSELL. Victory—and after. 256p $2 Int. pubs.

940.53 World war, 1939-. United nations, 1942-. Communism—U.S. 42-24795

"The spokesman of the U. S. Communists, recently released from Atlanta Prison by President Roosevelt as a measure of 'national unity,' writes about the nature of the war; the problems arising from the war; the relations of the various political parties to national unity, the conditions required for victory and what to do with victory when we have won it." Publisher's note

Reviewed by Carl Landauer

Am Econ R 33:675 S '43 1050w

"Mr. Browder's recent experiences have mellowed him somewhat, for he consciously strives for tolerance; but frequent use of 'idiocy' and 'stupidity' as epithets, especially for his left-wing enemies, indicates a lingering bitterness." J. B. Shannon

Am Pol Sci R 37:141 F '43 340w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:575 Ap '43 20w

"Any reader who buys Earl Browder's 'Victory and After' with the righteous purpose of preparing himself in advance against a tiptoe invasion by communism under cover of the war is in for either a pleasant surprise or a rude awakening, depending on his adaptability. Here is a cards-on-the-table piece of realism which, in this reviewer's opinion, puts the winning of the war ahead of politics in a way we should have been demanding long since, and in a way the two socially acceptable parties should have honored with something more than a poll-tax game of musical chairs or attempted sabotage of anti-inflation measures." J. P.

BROWDER, E. R.—Continued
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 31 '43 600w

BROWN, ARTHUR CHARLES LEWIS. Origin of the Grail legend. 476p $5 Harvard univ. press [28s Oxford]

398.22 Grail. Folklore. Literature, Comparative A43-1228

"The legendary history of the Grail is intricate almost beyond belief, and each account contradicts each of the others in important features. Who was the hero of the 'quest'? And what was the Grail? . . Professor Brown's main thesis is that the whole story is a christianized version of a complex of ancient pagan Irish legends of heroes who made journeys to fairyland . . . where in the course of varied adventures they frequently found a talisman or vessel (Irish criol) containing magical objects which played an important part in the situation." Christian Century

"Professor Brown's work is a magnificent piece of research of the most microscopic kind. Its merits will be fully appreciated only by specialists, and it is not to be supposed that all of them will agree with every conjecture and hypothesis. . . The non-specialist may occasionally get lost in the details, but the inherent interest of the material will lure him on, and he cannot fail to grasp the larger implication—that the Celtic influence on French literature, and through that upon the literature of the world, was far greater than has ever been understood. This phase of cultural interpenetration awaits fuller exposition, but one of the most fascinating sections of it has here been written fully." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 60:918 Ag 11 '43 800w

"To support his thesis Professor Brown discusses with great learning and ingenuity a wide range of Irish and Welsh texts capable of mythological interpretation. The method used depends upon parallels of incidents, persons and names in Irish, Welsh and Arthurian texts which, though frequently suggestive of Celtic influences, hardly avail to build up so many hypotheses into a tenable structure of proof."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p512 O 23 '43 800w

BROWN, BEATRICE CURTIS, and ARBUTHNOT, HELEN. Story of England; il. by Gustaf Tenggren. 51p $1 Random house

942 Great Britain—History—Juvenile literature 43-17288

Brief outline of English history from the invasion of the Romans to the blitz of 1940. The illustrator has selected a few historic events and people and has pictured them in full color, accompanying the text. For ten-year-olds.

"The authors have avoided the usual cluttering confusion and have presented their story with simple directness. Important figures in English history emerge as believable people. . . Tenggren's effective and colorful illustrations give an exciting picture of the pomp and pageantry of old England." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p3 N 14 '43 90w
Booklist 40:150 D 15 '43

"In this direct, simple telling of the story of England the authors have made a wise choice of material. The narrative flows smoothly, the sequence of events is clear and in both text and pictures the emphasis is laid on the dramatic events and picturesque characters which make English history stirring and romantic to boys and girls from 8 to 10." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p18 F 6 '44 260w

"Literate and restrained text accompanies the distinguished illustrations, combining to make a history which will delight as well as instruct children from seven to nine."
+ New Yorker 19:134 D 4 '43 50w

"Told as to a child who has heard little and wants to hear more about English history, its way with controversial points is to tell what took place without improving the occasion either way. It would be a good thing if there should be among American children as eager a demand for this book as there was from British children for its predecessor." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 N 28 '43 450w

BROWN, CARLETON FAIRCHILD, and ROBBINS, ROSSELL HOPE. Index of Middle English verse. 785p $15; to members $10 1943 Index soc, H. C. Bentley, sec-treas, 2960 Broadway, N.Y.

016.821 English poetry—Bibliography. Religious poetry—Bibliography 43-16653

"This listing of 4365 poems written in English before the year 1500 supersedes the late Dr. Brown's Register of Middle English Religious and Didactic Verse, published by the Bibliographical Society in 1916 and 1920. Compared with the earlier work, the Index represents an increase of 2092 entries, many of which are secular, comprising 'romances, chronicles, love poems, popular fragments, charms, political pieces, pageants, plays, alchemical poems, prognostics, and what not,' while some are additions to the religious and didactic poems listed in the Register. In the course of the compilation, 900 additional manuscripts were recorded and texts, previously unavailable, became open to scholars for consultation. The arrangement is alphabetical by first lines." Subscription Bks Bul

"The Index is an authoritative and scholarly contribution to the field of Middle English. It would appear to be definitive in the sense that the work may be supplemented, but need not be done over at a later date. It will take its place with Wells' Manual of the Writings of Middle English and its supplements as an essential reference work in a library serving the student of Middle English. It is distinguished in format and makeup. It is recommended."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:43 O '43 440w

"English work from 1939 onwards does not all appear to have been available; thus 353, 670, 753, 925, 2381, 3259 and 3806 have been edited with the musical settings by J. Copley, 'Seven English Songs and Carols of the Fifteenth Century' (1940). There are a number of irritating minor misprints in names. . . These defects are superficial and it must be stressed that the 'Index' is a valuable work of reference which should be added to all libraries of standing."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p408 Ag 21 '43 550w

BROWN, DEMETRA (VAKA) (MRS KENNETH BROWN). Delarah. (Alliance bk) 250p $2.50 Ziff-Davis

43-7752

"The story, which in the framework of fiction presents a profile of oriental customs, takes place at the beginning of the twentieth century, when Turkey was starting to absorb Western ideologies. . . Ali Pasha is liberal-minded, but does not dare openly profess his leanings. When he wishes to give his young daughter, Delarah, a modern education . . . he sends her to the Greek banker, Kimon Floras, where she is to receive lessons with the banker's child Alcmene. The plot is centered around the friendship between the two children." N Y Times

"Underneath the pleasing fantasy of the novel is a vein of seriousness. To some readers, the book may seem out of this world, dealing as it does with the lives of two little girls on a tiny island off Greece in a vanished day. Those who are aware of the significance of the rise of the Young Turks in modern European history, however, will sense the underlying import of this charming piece of fiction." Martha Harding
+ Book Week p3 My 30 '43 450w
Booklist 39:446 Jl 1 '43

"Valuable addition to international theme, written out of personal experience. Will interest little girls of ten to twelve. Not adult fiction, as format might suggest." Maude Adams

+ Library J 68:577 Jl '43 60w

"Definitely too young for young people's collection. Children's librarian should review." M. C. Scoggin

Library J 68:577 Jl '43 80w

"The narration is thin and rather monotonous. However, the various descriptions of oriental habits and Moslem customs are informative, and the children are pictured with warmth and simple sincerity." Marianne Hauser

+ — N Y Times p18 My 16 '43 500w

"The author is herself of Greek blood, and born in Istanbul (Constantinople), so that she knows well the background for her delicate and charming story." Betty Wason

+ Sat R of Lit 26:30 My 29 '43 380w

BROWN, HARRY. It's a cinch, Private Finch; il. by Ralph Stein. (Whittlesey house publication) [95p] $1.50 McGraw

355.12 U.S.—Army—Military life. Caricatures and cartoons 43-4090

Describes in prose and cartoon the evolution of a mild little timid soul named George Finch into a tough soldier, Private Finch.

Booklist 39:328 Ap 15 '43

"For gags, 'It's a Cinch, Private Finch' is the funniest book that has yet come out of the Army, as well as the one that gives the Army the roughest going over it has had to date." S. E. Hyman

+ Book Week p4 Ap 4 '43 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Jl '43

Eng N 130:112 Ap 8 '43 70w

Reviewed by S. E. Hyman

New Repub 108:354 Mr 15 '43 120w

"Here is heavy-handed soldier humor, written down to the level of men who flunk Selective Service intelligence tests. The cartoons are excellent and there is a full-page cartoon for every full page of primer text, so that all in all you get some light with the shadow. Actually the cartoons might far better have told the story without text. This would have made a better book or just enough kite without too much tail, so to speak." Meyer Berger

+ — N Y Times p5 Mr 28 '43 280w

"Horatio Alger would recognize the plot and the sentiment has a touch of corn here and there, but the whole affair is vigorous and cheerful. Full-page cartoons by Sergeant Stein and a lively text by Sergeant Brown, whose name is familiar to readers of this journal."

+ — New Yorker 19:71 Mr 20 '43 90w

"This is one of the best of the flood of funny books about the armed services."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 7 '43 250w

"Although it is inevitably concerned with an assortment of topics now familiar as targets of mirth, 'It's a Cinch, Private Finch!' ticks off the pet aversions of the fledgling soldier at a fast pace, with cartoons and text in hilarious harmony. As a primer for the trainee or a refresher course for those who have been through the mill, it should meet with chuckling approval." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Mr 21 '43 450w

BROWN, HARRY PETER M'NAB. The violent; new poems. (Poets of the year) 47p $1 New directions

811

Volume of short poems by the author of the long narrative poem Bunker Hill (Book Review Digest, 1941). Some of the poems were first published in the New Yorker, New Republic, Poetry, and other magazines.

"[Mr Brown's] new book is his best, and that means very good, but the various influences are still a little too manifest and unabsorbed, for all the technical virtuosity. The anapests and dactyls are a little too easy and hurried. It is all slightly glib, with its alternations of the valedictory and the clever smirk—if only he would stop, and really feel something!" Conrad Aiken

— + New Repub 110:27 Ja 3 '44 90w

"Well made verse, though sometimes strongly reminiscent of Auden's earlier manner."

New Yorker 19:112 N 20 '43 30w

"If W. H. Auden has shown Brown the way toward a sophisticated blend of poetry and light verse, Brown has his own way of using the method. It is interesting to see the moderns returning to fixed forms after their own fashion!" W. R. Benét

Sat R of Lit 26:23 D 4 '43 160w

BROWN, JAMES EDWARD. Russia fights; with a foreword by Joseph E. Davies. 276p $2.50 Scribner

940.5347 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—Russia 43-11154

Report on conditions in Moscow and Russia in 1942, by an American reporter who had visited the country before the war.

"Most readable of the current books by American newspapermen in Russia about American newspapermen in Russia." E. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 8 '43 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

"Good as a lively study of an American's personal reactions to everything from a convoy battle in the North Atlantic to life in modern Persia. Otherwise rather uninformative."

+ — Commonweal 38:497 S 3 '43 40w

"'Russia Fights' is a good correspondent's book—one of the best. It is sincere, informative, readable and gives a good factual picture of Russia at war. But as has been the case with so many books written about that country, it leaves the Russian a homo incognitus." John Scott

+ N Y Times p10 Ag 1 '43 700w

"A good and readable though by no means startlingly new picture of how the Russians are taking the war."

New Yorker 19:63 Jl 31 '43 90w

"The single chapters of the volume are loosely connected, the tone is conversational, and no attempt is made to systematize the findings. But this very unpretentiousness makes Mr. Brown's report the more interesting. There are many little things not known to the general public which he describes with clarity and understanding. He has a profound and well-founded respect for the sacrifices the Russian people are making in order to stem the Nazi onslaught." R. R. Plant

+ Sat R of Lit 26:7 Jl 17 '43 800w

"'Russia Fights' is a readable book and all the more impressive because it is unpretentious." Maurice Hindus

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Jl 4 '43 850w

Reviewed by Michael Karpovich

Yale R ns 33:355 winter '44 90w

BROWN, JOHN MASON. To all hands. (Whittlesey house publication) 236p $2.75 McGraw

940.545 World war, 1939—Sicily. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—Naval operations 43-16691

"The pieces that comprise the book were written to be spoken as daily broadcasts to the fifteen hundred soldiers and sailors aboard the flagship of the amphibious force that formed part of the Sicilian invasion. Lieutenant Brown was bridge announcer and his job was to use the ship's public-address system to talk to the men every day about what was going on aboard ship and, as much as could be told, what was going on throughout the convoy and on all the fighting fronts to boot." New Yorker

---

"As is true of every broadcast, this chronicle, To All Hands, loses some of its timeliness and spontaneity in being rewritten. But if a tonic of this kind is a morale builder on a battleship—and Admiral Kirk's introduction

BROWN, JOHN MASON—Continued
suggests that it is—then I guess Father John's little bottle is as happy a solution as you could find. The photographs are superb." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 172:133 D '43 240w

"More important than the eye-witness aspect of this book is the tremendous significance of Chapter 26 in which Brown has the courage to tell the men what they are fighting for. He starts by suggesting that while sympathy for German prisoners may be a normal, good-natured reaction, these Germans are man-sized problem children, the same men who have made Europe uninhabitable, have tortured priests, Jews and liberals; have overrun and mutilated peaceful neighboring countries and have proved by their inhuman conduct to be little worthy of sympathy. He does not suggest brutality but he does suggest that to fraternize with these bronzed bullies of little brain is to admit an ignorance of German motives." Sterling North
+ Book Week p14 N 14 '43 290w
Booklist 40:142 D 15 '43
Cath World 158:412 Ja '44 200w
Christian Science Monitor p14 N 29 '43 480w

"'To All Hands' is generously illustrated with some spectacular official Navy photographs and water-colors sketched during action. The book is a tribute to American fighting men and to our Allies. It's a triumph of the democratic faith, an open-hearted, two-fisted answer to the defeatists and the divisionists who often seem to forget that America is still young and healthy and filled with fight. It will confirm your faith and quicken your pulse and take you on what may well be the most exciting invasion you'll ever attend." Philip Hamburger
+ N Y Times p3 N 7 '43 1850w

"These broadcasts, Lieutenant Brown being the kind of man he is, turn out to be extraordinary jobs in print, as well written as they must have been well spoken, a kind of emotional reporting, completely unstereotyped, full of jokes, gags, topical references, and quotations (why not?) from Shakespeare and Matthew Arnold. They are also moving, for Lieutenant Brown, though he has a light pen, has also a serious mind. Finally, they are sincere and effective propaganda." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:105 N 13 '43 450w

"John Mason Brown is the modern scribe who, through a ship's loudspeakers, told the men who fought the battle what was going on. His record will live in the hearts of those who read it as surely as it is remembered by all those who heard him speak, day after day, in the succession of broadcasts which were climaxed by D day, H hour. . . John Mason Brown is one of war's best interpreters to the men who fight it. He does not lose himself in it; he does not dwell on blood and death, though he can look them in the eye and tell men what they are. He has above all, an awareness of war's imperative to men once they are in it." P. R. Knauth
+ Sat R of Lit 26:7 N 20 '43 1100w

"Of all narrators of sea operations, from Hakluyt to Conrad and beyond, not one, except John Mason Brown in this war, has said what he had to say from the bridge of a ship while that ship was going through the action recorded. This fact gives Brown a 'first' in maritime literature. But more important it results in a collection between book covers of what he said from the bridge to the men listening to amplifiers below decks, during a crucial operation of the war, a message which in the reading becomes one of the emotional experiences of the time." G. W. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 600w
Theatre Arts 28:61 Ja '44 800w

"'To All Hands' decidedly is a new kind of war book; it needs to be read on all accounts, for it is vivid and thoughtful, and reveals yet another side of the tremendous enterprise in which we are engaged. Above all, it strikes the note of democratic independence—a recognition of men as free individuals giving their best to a common co-operative cause." Lincoln Colcord
+ Weekly Book Review p1 N 7 '43 2000w

BROWN, LOUISE FARGO. Apostle of democracy; the life of Lucy Maynard Salmon. 316p $3.50 Harper

B or 92 Salmon, Lucy Maynard 43-8378

"An early graduate of the University of Michigan, Dr. Salmon was a professor of history at Vassar College for forty years. Her influence led to greater use of original documents for research in college study of history. Also, she had a keen interest in problems of domestic workers. The Library at Vassar became a center of study and grew in wealth of research material, as a result of Dr. Salmon's work and in co-operation with her close friend, Miss Adelaide Underhill." Library J

Booklist 39:445 Jl 1 '43

"This book is good reading, with a double reward for the home economist: First, it gives an intimate picture of a family that nurtured seeds of democracy—the respect and love of man, of knowledge, and of work. Second, if the reader is in one way or another a teacher, she will find inspiration in the book's evidence of teaching well done." Edna Van Horn
+ J Home Econ 36:106 F '44 350w

"This biography will be of special interest to Vassar graduates who were Dr. Salmon's students. Recommended for large libraries and libraries of women's colleges." A. R. Eaton
+ Library J 68:528 Je 15 '43 100w
New Eng Q 16:688 D '43 140w

Reviewed by E. F. Barnard
N Y Times p5 Je 27 '43 550w

"This biography will interest not only Miss Salmon's pupils of the last generation, but all those readers who want to follow the evolution of higher education in America from the period of its painful adolescence to the free maturity of today." H. N. MacCracken
+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 Je 12 '43 900w
Wis Lib Bul 39:122 O '43

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. Child's good night book; with color lithographs by Jean Charlot. [24p] $1 Scott, W.R.
43-15137

Bedtime book to be read to children from two to five, describing how all the animals and birds go to sleep, and finally how little children go to sleep.

"The lithographs with their soft, twilight, dreamy colors are sleepy, too, and by the time the children in the book go to bed, everybody is in a properly yawny state." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p3 N 14 '43 50w
Booklist 40:81 N 1 '43

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 29 '43 70w

"A quiet, tender, bedtime book, with a text that makes for drowsiness, gently, but not prosaically, illustrated." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:402 N '43 40w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:819 O 15 '43 50w

"Illustrations in this book have a decided tendency toward the grotesque or the weird. Librarians cannot recommend this book with confidence to parents because it is not psychologically sound." B. W. Bell
— Library J 68:962 N 15 '43 110w

Reviewed by Lois Palmer
N Y Times p20 N 28 '43 100w

"The fine pictures of drowsy, wild things are done in tones that are muted but not wishy-washy, and the text has just the right, slow rhythm."
+ New Yorker 19:119 D 4 '43 40w

"A little book that succeeds in its aim—to be a kind of lullaby in prose. . . Jean Charlot's illustrations are admirable. His softly rounded lines, his massive child figures that somehow succeed in expressing tenderness, his boldly stylized animals that suggest all the softness of fur and feather and wool—all express the mood of living creatures settling to rest." J. V.
+ Sat R of Lit 26:25 N 13 '43 140w

Reviewed by M L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p12 N 14 '43 330w
Wis Lib Bul 40:11 Ja '44

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. Noisy bird book [il. by Leonard Weisgard, incl. a few reproduced from Audubon]. [41p] $1.25 Scott, W.R.

Birds—Juvenile literature 43-3614

Story of a little dog and his human family, who went to the woods and discovered a series of birds. The song of each bird and colored pictures are included.

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 1 '43 50w

"The great American eagle . . . strikes a slightly false note in otherwise good book, distinguished by careful writing and good pictures, though not wholly accurate in information." Elizabeth Schmidt
+ — Library J 68:249 Mr 15 '43 70w

"The drawings are delightful and the thread of story which represents little dog Muffin coming upon one bird after another as he chases a rabbit, has the merit of action and surprise. . . It is unfortunate, however, that in order to bring this book in line with its predecessors . . . the author should have chosen such a misleading title, for though each has its characteristic call and song, surely no one can think of the humming bird, cardinal, goldfinch and chickadee as noisy birds." A. T. Eaton
+ — N Y Times p10 F 28 '43 200w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 25 '43 160w

BROWN, MARGARET WISE. Shhhhhh. . . . . bang; a whispering book; with pictures by Robert De Veyrac. [32p] $1.50 Harper

43-5352

Picture story book about a town where all sounds were muted from engine bells and whistles to human voices. One day a very human little boy came to the town, made quite a commotion because he was hungry, and because whispering was so silly. And the whole town woke up.

"Very little children will enjoy the experiences of a little boy who came to a town where everyone talked in whispers." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:167 My '43 50w

"Teachers, parents, librarians, and others who read aloud will love scope of the thing—from whisper to shout! And children will thoroughly sympathize with the hero, who brought delightful noise into a silent town." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 68:364 My 1 '43 60w

"A perfect reading-aloud book." E. S. Littlefield
+ Library J 68:818 O 15 '43 40w
New Yorker 19:65 My 29 '43 30w
Sat R of Lit 26:29 My 15 '43 40w

"Though the pictures are amusing, the reason for the story, slight as it is, is its sound-effects. Read it aloud: typography tells you how: whispers are in the tiniest type, bangs in the largest." M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p8 My 2 '43 180w

BROWN, PAMELA BEATRICE. The swish of the curtain; il. by Ottilie Foy. 397p $2 Winston [7s 6d Nelson]

43-10915

Sets forth the lively experiences of a group of English children who organize an amateur theatrical company in pre-war England. The author was fifteen when she wrote the story.

Reviewed by Joyce Belluomini
Book Week p9 N 7 '43 90w

"The author pictures her home and school life, relates the story with lively and humorous touches and succeeds in making her characters come alive." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 S 23 '43 70w

"Book is too long, and rather slow moving as production of each performance is gone into with great detail; also, everything happens too easily to make for very exciting reading. Written by fifteen-year-old-girl who experienced many of the incidents she describes." Claire Nolte
Library J 68:848 O 15 '43 80w

"Since author was just fifteen when she wrote this, comparison with the Hull-Whitlock books suggests itself. Book falls far short in both style and plot. Good illustrations by Ottilie Foy. Fair story." M. N. Miller
Library J 68:849 O 15 '43 50w

"For an author only fifteen years old Pamela Brown has extraordinary smoothness and vigour—in fact a reader of 'The Swish of the Curtain' would never guess her to be other than a practised grown-up writer."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p658 D 27 '41 70w

"The story bubbles out of hearty experience. Many a professional would be glad to be able to write as much like a fifteen-year-old as she does. For she lets one into the inner circle of the early teens as well as behind the scenes of actual play production." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 1 '43 500w

BROWN, PAUL. The horse; his gaits, points, and conformation [il. by the author]. [64p] $1.75 Scribner

798.2 Horses. Horses—Pictures, illustrations, etc. 43-17439

"Although not an equestrian handbook, this is strictly for young people, from thirteen up, who are serious about horses or about drawing them. Most of the information on the matters outlined in the title is conveyed by means of a series of fine pencil action sketches." New Yorker

Booklist 40:141 D 15 '43

Reviewed by H. I. Brock
N Y Times p21 Ja 16 '44 260w

"Ideal for a horse-lover and rather recondite to anyone else."
+ New Yorker 19:132 D 4 '43 50w
Wis Lib Bul 40:6 Ja '44

BROWN, PAUL. Insignia of the services [pictures by the author]. rev ed [62p] $1.50 Scribner

355.81 U.S.—Army—Insignia. U.S.—Navy—Insignia 43-9563

Revised edition of a book which first appeared in 1941 (Book Review Digest, 1941). To the first edition, containing colored pictures showing officers and men in uniform, with special attention to their insignia, have been added the women's services—the WAACS, WAVES, SPARS, United States army and navy nurses, and women in the marines.

Springf'd Republican p8 S 15 '43 80w
Weekly Book Review p10 Jl 18 '43 130w
Wis Lib Bul 39:119 O '43

BROWN, PHILIP MARSHALL. Science of peace. 63p 75c Revell

172.4 Peace 42-20178

"Mr. Philip Marshall Brown, president of the American Peace Society, believes that definite plans for international organization are at the present time futile. He holds that we must first discern the principles which control 'the science of peace.' . . The author believes that peace begins at home. Tranquillity of order is first to be obtained in the very soul of man. The degree of success is determined in the main by the ac-

BROWN, PHILIP M.—Continued
ceptance of the universal authority which we call God. . . Brown's emphasis is upon creating sound moral and spiritual bases for international understanding." Ann Am Acad

"Brown's little work is of value not only in calling attention to the need of spiritual values underlying true peace, but also in demonstrating the need of planning for peace no less than military strategy." S. J. Hemleben
Ann Am Acad 229:178 S '43 180w

"His general principles are sound, but he contributes little to the solution of specific problems."
Christian Century 59:886 Jl 15 '42 50w

BROWN, RALPH HALL. Mirror for Americans; likeness of the eastern seaboard, 1810. 312p il maps $4 Am. geographical soc.
917.4 Atlantic states 43-9759

"In the years around 1800 the phenomena of our young republic were being described by dozens of foreign visitors and observant Americans. . . No one on this side of the Atlantic in that day attempted a synthesis of all the diverse accounts into a single, critical geographical study, which is what Mr. Brown has accomplished in this book. Its unique artistry lies in the way he has subordinated his own present-day labors to present the study as though it were written by an imaginary Philadelphian of 1810. . . The chapters fall into two parts. The first deals with general subjects: Natural traits, population, travel and communications, etc. . . The remainder of the book takes up particular regions, all the way from Canada to Florida." Weekly Book Review

"Professor Brown has demonstrated in fascinating manner how much the foreign traveler in America has contributed to our knowledge of historical geography and how widely our first popular geographer, Jedidiah Morse, missed his opportunity even in his own New England." J. A. Krout
+ New Eng Q 16:665 D '43 850w

"Students of the American past will find a great deal that is fascinating and absorbing in 'Mirror for Americans'."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by R. G. Albion
+ Weekly Book Review p24 O 10 '43 600w

BROWN, WENZELL. Hong Kong aftermath. 283p $2.75 Smith & Durrell
940.547252 Hong Kong—Siege, 1941. World war, 1939—Prisoners and prisons, Japanese 43-11067

"This book tells the story of the Britishers, Russians, and Americans who were captured when Hong Kong fell and who later endured—some of them are still enduring—the utmost privation under the Japanese in the Stanley prison camp." New Yorker

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p6 Ag 15 '43 50w
Booklist 40:42 O 1 '43

"Wenzell Brown is so concerned over small and sometimes sordid things in 'Hong Kong Aftermath' that in the beginning the reader is perplexed. Yet it is a good book; in fact, an excellent book, because it can serve as a guide for those among us who still consider the Japanese a kindly, civilized people." Max Hill
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 8 '43 1100w

"One of the most moving and unsparingly truthful of the personal-experience books, written with skill and power."
+ New Yorker 19:72 Ag 14 '43 70w

" 'Hong Kong Aftermath' is not pleasant reading, but it is a story that must be told and read so that those who are left behind will be delivered from the hands of the Japs before it is too late." Gwen Dew
+ Sat R of Lit 26:17 Ag 14 '43 400w

"There have been a number of books on the fall of Hong-kong and the indescribable treatment of foreign nationals seized there by the Japanese, but Wenzell Brown's account is perhaps the most informative and best written report yet to appear." Joseph Newman
+ Weekly Book Review p14 Ag 15 '43 850w

BROWN, WILLIAM ADAMS. New order in the church. 189p $1.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury
261 Christianity. Sociology, Christian 43-8564

"This book examines the present scene and frankly discusses the deficiences of the existing order in both political and religious institutions. Recognizing the need of far-reaching changes in national and international relations, in social and in economic planning, Dr. Brown frankly states that conduct of church affairs is open to criticism at exactly those points. Admitting the fact that self-reformation is the most difficult of all forms of reformation, he nevertheless courageously attacks the problem of necessary changes in the Church itself." (Publisher's note) Index.

"While readers are waiting for the more elaborate and detailed study of the whole ecumenical movement, which Dr. Brown promises, they are strongly advised to study this volume with care."
+ Christian Century 60:769 Je 30 '43 260w

Reviewed by J. H. Titus
Churchman 157:15 S 1 '43 150w

Reviewed by G. W. Davis
Crozer Q 20:338 O '43 800w

BROWN, WILLIAM FRANCIS. How to train hunting dogs; a successful system of training pointing dogs, sporting spaniels, and non-slip retrievers. 223p il $2.50 Barnes, A.S.
636.75 Dogs—Training 42-50035

"William F. Brown, an authority on pointers and setters, presents the fundamentals of the art. Each recognized breed is considered individually, but general discussion is given the training of any dog. Mr Brown includes a history of each breed, a description of the standards of the hunting breeds, information as to the particular uses of each, and a proved system of educating hunting dogs as useful companions in the shooting field." Springf'd Republican

Booklist 39:194 Ja 15 '43

"This book is well organized and should help owners of pointers, setters, spaniels and other retrievers. It is well illustrated."
+ Springf'd Republican p8 N 10 '42 650w

Reviewed by C. L. Kites
Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 3 '43 280w

"The author is an able writer and among his previous works is the section on dogs for the Encyclopedia Americana 1941 edition, but I do wish he had plugged his magazine less in his book. However, this is a book that every man who likes to shoot grouse, quail, woodcock, or pheasant should own. If he buys his dogs ready-made, he will still find much to learn from it." F. M. Stifler
+ — Weekly Book Review p29 Ap 11 '43 160w
Wis Lib Bul 39:38 Mr '43

BROWN, MRS ZENITH (JONES) (LESLIE FORD, DAVID FROME, pseuds). Siren in the night. 241p $2 Scribner 43-2939

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p8 Je 27 '43 10w
Booklist 39:294 Mr 15 '43
Bookmark 4:20 Mr '43

"This is a typical Leslie Ford story, and that is all that her thousands of admirers need to know." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p14 F 14 '43 200w

"Mrs Ford's latest crime novel is better than the last couple, but the dreadful doubt enters the reader's mind that perhaps the author is turning out her mysteries too rapidly and flavor is giving place to machine-like routine. However, the Primrose tales continue near the top of the list of sane well-mannered whodunits, and 'Siren in the Night' has an entertaining aggregation of suspects who compensate for the several obvious flimsies of the mystery itself." L. S. M.

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e F 21 '43 330w

Time 41:84 Mr 1 '43 30w

"Is Colonel John Primrose slipping? Is Serg. Phineas T. Buck less comic than of yore? Has Mrs. Grace Latham, lady narrator, lost one jot of charm or skill as a detective's helper? Answer: No. . . Grade A release." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p18 F 14 '43 350w

Wis Lib Bul 39:41 Mr '43

BROWNE, LEWIS. See what I mean? 245p $2.50 Random house

43-15350

Novel based on a pre-Pearl Harbor American fascist organization, showing the inner workings of a fanatical, subversive group. The narrator is supposedly the publicity man for the group, who took on the job because he needed money, and cracked under the strain of legal pressure when the leader of the movement was sentenced to jail.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

Atlantic 172:139 D '43 120w

Reviewed by Peter De Vries

Book Week p6 O 17 '43 700w

Booklist 40:114 D 1 '43

"A long sustained personal confession by a typical crook who is said to be a composite of four real persons, it is a swift-moving, vulgar tale, not more fantastic than certain incredible events which have actually occurred within recent years; and it fulfills fairly well the author's professed purpose to show that so-called American Fascism is 'a low racket masquerading as a noble Cause.' "

Cath World 158:219 N '43 140w

"A fictionized Under Cover, the book is the exciting, humorous and unfortunate true-to-life account of the crackpots, professional humanity-haters and generally low-down lot all too many such groups get to sign on the dotted line. It should be read by everyone, not only for the lesson it holds but because its top-notch writing puts it among the year's best novels." G. E. Shipler, Jr.

+ Churchman 158:16 Ja 1 '44 330w

"Recommended for adults." H. G. Kelley

Library J 68:768 O 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by Harvey Breit

New Repub 109:724 N 22 '43 300w

"The potency of the job Mr. Browne has done lies in the potency of craftsmanship. His portraits are disarmingly simple. They seem effortless, where in fact they are meticulous. His people are more than believable, they are recognizable on every hand—from the chuckle-headed to the vicious. . . In these compounded virtues there is almost the quality of a fault. One might read the book as an expert and objective report on the intellectual paupers and scoundrels of America, an account illumined with humor and wisdom, and let it go at that." C. B. Palmer

N Y Times p1 O 10 '43 1650w

"Mr. Browne knows all about the technique of organized Jew-baiting and his material sounds factual enough. For that matter, he lets his documentation clutter up the narrative, with the result that the story often creaks."

New Yorker 19:94 O 23 '43 110w

Reviewed by N. L. Rothman

Sat R of Lit 26:6 O 23 '43 750w

"That 'See What I Mean?' is a long way from being a great novel is beside the point. It is a readable, shrewdly put together pamphlet with plenty of story to carry the message the author wishes to deliver." J. H. Jackson

+ Weekly Book Review p4 N 28 '43 750w

"Mr. Browne tells his unsavory story at a galloping clip, keeps it both engrossing and frighteningly true to the facts as reported in John Carlson's Under Cover. See What I Mean is a desperately serious book written in a light and exceedingly entertaining fashion." Orville Prescott

+ Yale R n s 33:xvi winter '44 230w

BROWNELL, LEVERETT WHITE. Natural history with a camera. 292p il $3.75 Am. photographic pub.

574 Nature photography 42-23055

"A month-by-month description of the subjects that are available in woods and fields throughout the year to camera workers, together with a wealth of information about the photographic approach to such material." (Christian Science Monitor) Index.

Christian Science Monitor p8 F 6 '43 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 27:59 O '42

BRUCE, MRS MARY OWEN CAMPBELL (KELLEY) (MARY OWEN, pseud). Sad farm bell; pictures by Marjorie Grace. [31p] $1.50 Oxford

43-11964

Picture-story book about a downcast farm bell. All the other bells on the farm seemed to have such important work; the farm bell only called people to meals. Then the farmhouse caught fire and the sad farm bell saved the day. For five-year-olds.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney

Book Week p16 N 21 '43 90w

"In format, this is a picture book for five-year-olds; but, since farm bells are outside the experience of most children of that age, the point will likely be lost to them. The young child, however, will enjoy the farm animals and the action and humor in Marjorie Grace's pictures." V. W. Schott

Library J 68:773 O 1 '43 70w

"Children will find delight in the various bell pictures." E. S. Littlefield

+ Library J 68:818 O 15 '43 60w

BRUNAUER, STEPHEN. Adsorption of gases and vapors; 2v; v 1, Physical adsorption. 520p il $7.50 Princeton univ. press

533.1 Gases—Absorption and adsorption (A43-2171)

"In this extensive theoretical discussion of static adsorption the author attempts to treat the subject as a science with a view to the training of scientists and technicians in colleges. Other workers have previously endeavored to provide a scientific explanation of the phenomenon, notably Langmuir, Williams-Henry, Magnus, Polanyi and Patrick-Zsigmondy, and the author discusses in detail the mathematics and mechanics of their theories comparing the resulting isotherm equations with experimental data." Chem & Met Eng

"This excellent book will be of most use to chemists and chemical engineers."

+ Book Week p11 S 12 '43 100w

"The work will be found of considerable scientific interest by those well versed in mathematics and physical-chemistry and of great help to laboratory workers investigating the field of static adsorption although it does not deal with dynamic adsorption which is the basis for practical industrial applications of the phenomenon." Edward Ledoux

+ Chem & Met Eng 50:199 Jl '43 500w

Library J 68:626 Ag '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:38 Jl '43

BRUNO, HENRY ARTHUR. Wings over America; the inside story of American aviation; introd. by Alexander P. de Seversky. 333p il $3 McBride

629.13 Aeronautics—History 42-50124

A rather personalized account of aviation in America from the time of the author's own boyhood attempts to build a flying machine—about 1910—to the present. Many pages of the book are devoted to sketches and anecdotes of men and women who made flying important to Americans during the last twenty years.

Booklist 39:246 F 15 '43

BRUNO, H. A.—Continued
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:10 Jl '43 20w

"Decided opinions sometimes get in way of his role as historian, but this very enthusiasm makes vivid book. Recommended for boys of fourteen and over." Alice Vielehr
+ Library J 68:39 Ja 1 '43 110w

"Perhaps unfortunately, but maybe not, this book is largely an account of the part Bruno's publicity played in the golden age of flying . . . All this account of the 'early days' of spectacular flying—they were only fifteen years ago—is dotted with the names of men then and since famous in flying and designing, and Bruno came in contact with most of them, and is not hesitant in saying so. As he writes largely of what he knows at first hand, he has retained much of the flavor of those days that seemed romantic at the time and are now so hopelessly remote." Russell Owen
N Y Times p6 D 13 '42 1150w

Reviewed by R. B. Cochrane
Weekly Book Review p27 Mr 7 '43 1000w

BRUNT, DAVID. Weather study. 215p il $2.25 Ronald [5s Nelson]

551.5 Meteorology. Weather 42-21813

"Professor of meteorology at the Imperial College in London, the author is outstanding in his field but, as compared to Mr. Kraght's volume, his book betrays the pedagogue rather than the working meteorologist. It contains more theory." Books

Reviewed by James Stokley
Books p22 D 13 '42 150w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:13 Ja '43
Reviewed by Waldemar Kaempffert
N Y Times p24 F 28 '43 120w

BRUSH, MRS KATHARINE (INGHAM). Out of my mind; introd. by Westbrook Pegler. 146p il $1.50 Doubleday

818 43-14868

"[This] is a collection of the brightest bits and pieces by Katharine Brush that have appeared since 1939 in Good Housekeeping Magazine, Cosmopolitan, the New Yorker and other publications. . . There are thirty-five pieces in the book, all very short. . . The subject-matter consists of a great deal about Katharine Brush, her likes and dislikes, and about her very contemporary viewpoint on people, places, apartments, foods and drinks. Between sketches are short paragraphs of random comment on practically everything but cabbages and kings." N Y Times

"If you have liked Miss Brush's novels you will no doubt enjoy 'Out of My Mind.' " Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p12 O 10 '43 500w

"Much of the collection, which bears such delightfully revealing titles as 'So You Can't Sleep,' 'The Trouble With Men Is,' 'Just Muttering to Myself,' and the like, have appeared as column items or in magazines. They were better singly than in the collection, but because Miss Brush has a flair for phrasing, and an adept appreciation of the generation and era in which she lives, the sketches appear more original and amusing than they actually are." L. S. Munn
+ — Springf'd Republican p10 O 1 '43 300w

BRUUN, GEOFFREY. Clemenceau. (Makers of modern Europe) 225p il $3 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Clemenceau, Georges Eugène Benjamin A43-3445

"[This] is not intended to be a definitive biography. . . [It is] a portrait of Clemenceau less harsh than some previous ones, for it is taken from an angle made different by the exigencies of recent history. It is a convincing study that agrees with that of another historian, Winston Churchill, who wrote in 1937 '. . . it is already certain that Clemenceau was one of the world's great men.' " (Sat R of Lit) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:144 D 15 '43
Christian Century 60:1537 D 29 '43 220w

"For anyone who reads about the war in the papers, who reads volume after volume about the causes of the war, book after book about war aims, plan after plan for the peace, that is to say for anyone who is committed avowedly to a desire to know what it is all about, there is no avoiding the fact that it is absolutely necessary to read this biography of Clemenceau. From the moment that this book exists on the market it has become an unavoidable necessity for anyone concerned with the war, and with the end of the war and the transition to peace, to put aside every book about the war and the peace and not make any more plans, nor entertain any more dreams of vengeance or of the freedoms, of federations or of alliances until he has read and meditated upon this life of Clemenceau."
+ Commonweal 39:209 D 10 '43 1050w

"Previous books on the subject have been gushing or vindictive, perfunctory or specialized. Mr. Brunn has done an immense amount of research; he has bound together background and foreground with the skill of an old master; he has written in swift yet unhurried prose a book of which every page contains a fact, a maxim, a connection worth noting. If the work is something less than perfect, it is in details only." Jacques Barzun
+ New Repub 109:824 D 6 '43 1250w

"With all the advantage of our improved perspective on the events with which it deals, Mr. Bruun's book reviews the long life and the record of the many adventures and achievements of the tough little man from the Vendée who was so abysmally French and such an explosive mixture of French faults and virtues. . . Clemenceau is at no stage of his career a hero to this biographer. But he is a very lonely and active human being, in whom ruthless realism is combined with a 'crusty, harsh and practical idealism which accepted man as he is, and treated him as a creature who could not be helped if he would not help himself.' " H. I. Brock
+ N Y Times p4 D 5 '43 1050w

"Any biography of Clemenceau should find a receptive reading public purely on the basis of its subject matter. But one written by Professor Geoffrey Bruun, the author of several first-rate and important historical studies can be expected to be scholarly and brilliant. And this volume definitely deserves those adjectives. Mr. Bruun is not only one of the most competent American historians in his field of study, but also he is one of that very small and select company of scholars who can be said to have style, who appreciate the literary tradition of their craft as well as its method and discipline." W. S. Lynch
+ Sat R of Lit 26:10 N 20 '43 1000w

Reviewed by Jacques Ducharme
Springf'd Republican p7e D 12 '43 850w

BRYAN, CATHERINE, and MADDEN, MABRA BENJAMIN. Cactus fence. 80p il $1.50 Macmillan

Tales, Mexican 43-17353

Collection of Mexican folk tales in which the chief character and villain is Don Coyote, sly, smart, and unscrupulous, the enemy of both man and beast. Retold for children of eight to twelve.

"The tales are told in a lively manner that catches the idiom and philosophy of Mexico and both tales and illustrations possess considerable humor." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p45 D 5 '43 200w

"Good for storytelling, thoroughly Mexican flavor in the telling and in most of the pictures of which the best are the end sheets." F. W. Butler
+ Library J 69:33 Ja 1 '44 70w

"These tales haven't the rich overtones of beauty and tribal lore which distinguished Leigh Peck's collection of stories 'Don Coyote,' but children of 7 to 10 will enjoy their directness and their native humor." E. L. Buell

+ — N Y Times p6 Ja 30 '44 170w

BRYAN, CATHERINE, and MADDEN, MABRA BENJAMIN. Pito's house; a Mexican folk tale. [40p] il $1.50 Macmillan

43-3201

"Pito, hero of this picture-book for four-year-olds, was a Mexican whose house was too small. . . Pito went to the Padre, who told him to take the burro into the house. Then the goats. Then the pigs. Then the chickens and rabbits. Then the Padre told them to put all the animals outside. 'How large the house seems now!' sighed Pito's wife contentedly." Books

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney

Book Week p10 Ag 1 '43 220w

Booklist 39:322 Ap 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Jl '43

"The humor and spice of a Mexican folk tale give liveliness to this bright picture book, written and illustrated by two Americans who teach and understand Mexican children." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:99 Mr '43 60w

"Based on old Mexican folk tale, this little story is filled with bald humor. Numerous very funny, colored illustrations are decided caricatures. Might examine before purchasing; somewhat controversial. Good for story-telling. For children eight to ten." Claire Nolte

+ — Library J 68:329 Ap 15 '43 90w

New Yorker 19:66 My 29 '43 60w

Sat R of Lit 26:29 My 15 '43 10w

"I don't doubt this is a Mexican folk tale. It has their shrewd sense and practical conviction that things might be worse, even when they are. The pictures are so lively they practically jump. Some in bright Mexican colors, some in pen and ink, they are robust as Pito's wife, and their crowds and bustle will make a little child laugh out loud. And the basic idea, grasped by spring cleaners of riper age, may make them think as well as laugh." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 Mr 14 '43 250w

Wis Lib Bul 39:75 My '43

BRYAN, GEORGE SANDS. The spy in America. 256p il $3 Lippincott

351.74 Spies. Secret service—U.S. 43-10285

"This book includes a review of espionage and counter-espionage in America from colonial days to the first World War. . . It deals with espionage in a broad sense—with military spies, but also with civilian intelligence agents and secret emissaries of varied kinds. Chiefly it is narrative and personal, but for the aid of the general reader it sketches in enough of the background of a period to keep the thread of history." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:2 S '43

Current Hist 5:76 S '43 110w

"Well written. Good bibliography. Worth purchasing." Thelma Brackett

+ Library J 68:428 My 15 '43 60w

New Repub 109:661 N 8 '43 90w

"It is a most readable book—one filled from cover to cover with vignettes of scoundrels and heroes, turncoats and patriots." Allan Taylor

+ N Y Times p6 Ag 1 '43 600w

Reviewed by Struthers Burt

Sat R of Lit 26:9 Ag 7 '43 1500w

"The general history of spies and spying in America has had to wait a long time for its first historian, but at last it has been presented as it should be, and as it never could have been till now. George S. Bryan has drawn the outlines of that important and exciting story with firm hands, basing his narrative on original sources, and writing with good sense, lucidity, irony and grace." Carl Van Doren

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Jl 25 '43 1500w

Wis Lib Bul 39:119 O '43

BRYANT, BERNICE MORGAN. Pedie and the twins; a read-it-yourself story; pictured by Christine Chisholm. 32p $1 Whitman, A.

42-24038

Picture-story book which is made sufficiently simple for six and seven year olds to read for themselves. It is about a small boy who did not care much for his baby twin sisters until their father brought him a puppy. After that Pedie just took things in his stride.

"In 'Pedie and the Twins' Bernice Bryant has made an excellent contribution to the field of read-it-yourself books for younger children." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p7 Mr 14 '43 140w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 15 '43 60w

BUCHAN, ALEXANDER FAIRLEY, and BORTHWICK, RICHARD. Aviation mathematics. 136p 88c Houghton

510 Mathematics 42-21536

"New and enlarged edition, adapted for American use [by W. R. Wadden], of text by two British squadron leaders, A. F. Buchan and R. Borthwick; used for training R. A. F. pilots. One year of algebra assumed. Practice and terminology checked by Lieutenant Commander James G. Willett, United States Naval Reserves." Library J

Booklist 39:220 F 1 '43

Library J 68:37 Ja 1 '43 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:30 Ap '43

"The beginner who has had no previous acquaintance with the tools needed to solve the problems would find the book of little use, since it is definitely of the 'refresher' variety and hence makes little attempt to develop fundamental ideas in a logical and orderly way. The problems and exercises are the useful feature of the book. These have been chosen uniformly from aeronautics." Charlotte Dean

N Y Times p22 F 14 '43 240w

BUCHANAN, MRS AIMEE. Lady means business; how to reach the top in the business world—the career woman's own Machiavelli. 318p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

396.5 Women in business. Success 42-50806

Common sense advice for women beginners in the business world. Partial contents: How to get started; Business fields offering best opportunities for women; Practical rules for the young office worker; What's wrong with women in business?; Personality and business; Do's and don't's for businesswomen. Includes informal tests. Bibliography. No index.

Booklist 39:217 F 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '43

"Excellent career book, full of common-sense guidance for the beginner. . . Highly recommended to beginners and to be used as refresher by business woman who has arrived or by one who has not yet arrived at the place in her career where she thinks she should be." J. M. Flexner

+ Library J 67:907 O 15 '42 120w

"At last the business woman has a handbook that is straight shooting, nonsaccharine, and realistic about the problems of the business world. Theory and wishful thinking have been tossed overboard and facts and statistics remain. Too many publications have flossed over the practically congenital faults of both sexes in business, but [Mrs Buchanan] in 'The Lady Means Business' goes to town on what's wrong with the working girl, and the inequalities of sex in the business world." L. S. Munn

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 24 '43 700w

BUCHANAN, AIMEE—Continued
"Her book wastes less time than any other career woman's vade mecum, going straight to the point through whatever misconceptions may be in the way."
+ Weekly Book Review p22 F 14 '43 160w

BUCK, JOHN LOSSING. Agricultural survey of Szechwan province, China. [mim] 63p maps pa 75c Inst. of Pacific relations

630.951 Agriculture—China

"This publication is described as 'A Summary and Interpretation of a Full Report in Chinese by the Szechwan Rural Economics Survey Committee of the Farmers' Bank of China in cooperation with the Department of Agricultural Economics, University of Nanking, directed by Dr. Chi-ming Chiao.' Ten localities, which were considered representative of the main farming areas of Szechwan, were chosen for study. While farm data is given for the year May 1, 1940 to April 30, 1941, covering the summer crops of 1940 and the spring crops of 1941, the report contains as well marketing and price data for the years 1937 to July 1941." Pacific Affairs

Reviewed by G. B. Cressey
Geog R 33:692 O '43 290w

"Students of agriculture and economics interested in obtaining detailed figures covering receipts and expenditures on average-sized farms, both tenant and owner managed, in a representative area in the Yangtze Valley have in this survey a most useful reference guide." Carl Neprud
+ Pacific Affairs 16:255 Je '43 350w

BUCK, PEARL (SYDENSTRICKER) (MRS RICHARD JOHN WALSH). The promise. 248p $2.50 Day

43-15073

Sequel to Dragon Seed (Book Review Digest, 1942). With the romance of Ling Tan's third son, called Sheng, and Mayli, daughter of a Chinese diplomat, as background, Mrs Buck tells the story of the disastrous Burma campaign. She pictures the trusting Chinese, betrayed by their white allies, and the resulting bewilderment and bitterness.

"Sometimes the plot is sacrificed to the theme of racial equality and justice which has been the burden of perhaps most of the author's latest work. But obtrusive as this may seem to some, this novel is a gripping and thrilling tale of daring adventure, heroic sacrifice and reckless devotion to a great cause, and of elemental romance. Most important of all, one cannot help attesting the truth of the author's position of the primacy of man as man and accepting the universality of all human emotions of love and fear, of loyalty and hate, in all men regardless of race." Walter Hendricks
+ Book Week p1 O 31 '43 550w
Booklist 40:94 N 15 '43

"To be quite truthful, her book is extremely painful to read. Mrs. Buck's expert touch in limning character and in painting in backgrounds brings this recital almost too throbbingly alive. She has chosen to write of the expedition into Burma, made by the Chinese with intent to rescue English and Americans caught in a Japanese trap. The heat, the green impenetrable gloom of the jungle, the reptiles, insects and all the other threats; the futility, the fumbling, ignorant and mistaken action of the Western commanders—all this becomes well nigh unbearable to readers of 'The Promise.'" M. W.
Christian Science Monitor p14 N 12 '43 800w
Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '43

"Recommended, not as novel, but as another expression of vitally important truths." Margaret Owen
+ Library J 68:845 O 15 '43 70w

"If Mrs. Buck's forte ever was narrative, it is not so in this work. Possibly this is because the history which is her base is so familiar. In any case the repeated near-meetings of the two lovers seem an unnecessary device to create suspense, if that was the purpose. Instead it is in Mrs. Buck's creation of mood and in her handling of the color of people and country that she is most effective. In these, and in her portraits, there is great conviction. How far that conviction carries over into Mrs. Buck's argument, her philosophy of the manifold problems of the Asiatic question remains with her readers." C. B. Palmer
N Y Times p6 O 31 '43 700w

"Mrs. Buck's toiling, sacrificing Chinese—the simple people who built and keep on repairing the Burma Road—are the best things in the book. There are also sharp portraits of Chiang Kai-shek and his wife, admiring but by no means sentimental. Mrs. Buck is not given to sentimentality." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:89 O 30 '43 250w

"Once more, Mrs. Buck is magnificent with her background and her handling of incident and the main story. Nowhere have I come across a more vivid description of Burma, and the Burmese fighting, and especially the Burmese jungle. What a war correspondent Mrs. Buck would be. . . It is only in her role as conscious propagandist that I have reservations about Mrs. Buck. She is too acrid, too quick tempered, too absolute, too fierce. Her blacks are too black, her whites too white. She raises her spiritual voice." Struthers Burt
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:6 D 18 '43 1500w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 14 '43 600w

"Pearl Buck needs no introduction as the voice that speaks for China. . . In her new novel she once again calls to a sleeping world to awake and take thought and action for an ally that holds the fate of the Eastern Hemisphere in its hands. There is indignation and bitterness in her call; there is accusation and challenge. In fact, so deep is her feeling of condemnation for English and American sins of commission and omission, that the novel she is writing, becomes a treatise. There is small doubt that she has ample grounds for her point of view but the art that would make her book stand up as a work of fiction is dissipated by her emotions." Rose Feld
Weekly Book Review p5 O 31 '43 700w

BUCK, PEARL (SYDENSTRICKER) (MRS RICHARD JOHN WALSH). Water-buffalo children; with drawings by William Arthur Smith. 62p $1.50 Day

Children in China 43-13047

Story of the author's childhood in China. It all began with a small white stone which she found and thought was a magic stone, for it brought her the adventure of the water buffalo, and the Chinese brother and sister who rode on it.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p4 N 14 '43 230w
Booklist 40:63 O 15 '43
Cath World 158:315 D '43 20w

"Striking pictures of the great animal strengthen the Oriental setting of the slight, but pleasant, story." A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:406 N '43 70w

Reviewed by Fritz Eichenberg
Horn Bk 20:23 Ja '44 70w

"Slight, rather charming incident in life of a little white girl living in China. . . Would make good reading aloud material for fairy-tale age." M. B. Snow
+ Library J 68:772 O 1 '43 70w

"A humorous and appealing little story." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p16 N 14 '43 220w

"The story is not without charm with its humor supplied by the buffalo and its suspense supplied by the question of whether the stone is really a magic one. However, the story itself adds little information about the children of China. The black and white drawings by William A. Smith are well suited to the story." E. S. P.
Springf'd Republican p7e S 26 '43 130w

"The charm of the story, which has many droll pictures, is in the constant reversal of the word 'foreigner' and all that it implies. To the water-buffalo children, little Pearl was the foreigner: the slight shock it gives her to be so called is a good thing for children. We can never be on close terms with another country till we make some attempt to see ourselves as it sees us, and the happiest time to make the attempt is in early youth." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p10 N 14 '43 350w

Wis Lib Bul 40:11 Ja '44

BUCK, PEARL (SYDENSTRICKER) (MRS RICHARD JOHN WALSH). What America means to me. 212p $2 Day

940.531 World war, 1939-. Race problems. Reconstruction (1939-). Eastern question (Far East) 43-9335

"Sixteen recent speeches and essays, many of them delivered or published during the last year, with an introduction by the author. Mrs. Buck holds out the hope of a new renaissance after the war if, she says, we can accustom ourselves to the idea that freedom and equality are the inherent rights of all peoples, including our own minorities." New Yorker

"Here is a book that puts sense into this war, the only sense that war can possibly have, for without it, it is but ruthless butchery. America is promises, but may one never be able to say that ironically!" Walter Hendricks

+ Book Week p1 Jl 4 '43 1150w

Booklist 39:460 Jl 15 '43

"Sadly, sternly she addresses all patriotic Americans. They may not agree with her, but if they read this book carefully they will be forced into some self-searching. They will be prodded to a hunt for information, and possibly find themselves really facing the question, whether prejudices, party politics, or class distinctions are dearer to them than freedom and equality of opportunity for all, everywhere." W. K. R.

Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 10 '43 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '43

"Short, eloquent simplification of the 'one world' idea that should prove popular and effective. Highly recommended for all public libraries." G. W. Wakefield

+ Library J 68:473 Je 1 '43 80w

New Repub 109:206 Ag 9 '43 90w

"Mrs. Buck's novels have won her literary fame. This book shows she is a great and fearless writer who will always be remembered for her efforts to make true democracy blossom in the hearts of men. . . Throughout the fascinating little book Mrs. Buck makes impassioned but logical appeals to the reason of the peoples of the world, particularly to those of the white race." Helena Kuo

+ N Y Times p5 Je 27 '43 480w

"The book is generous and wise in its assertion of principles, and eloquent too, but regrettably scanty as to means and methods."

+ — New Yorker 19:63 Jl 3 '43 90w

Reviewed by Alvin Johnson

Sat R of Lit 26:6 Jl 3 '43 600w

"[The author] knows and loves the Chinese, therefore she can plead well for them, but her plea is frequently accented by the heart rather than the head. It represents delightful accuracy when [Mrs] Buck asserts that Americans can be 'fond' of people without thinking of them as equals, but her indignation is off balance when she objects to American children saving pennies for the 'poor' Chinese. She has a wrong connotation for the word; material poverty is not the issue, it is human misfortune that makes them 'poor.'" L. S. Munn

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 25 '43 600w

Time 42:98 Jl 5 '43 430w

"This collection of essays and addresses by Pearl Buck is a most informative and stimulating book. . . Some of the material and some of the ideas are already familiar, but all of it is of great value in a country like ours, where we have much to learn about such nations as India, China and Russia. One might almost call the book an American Primer of International Understanding. As such it deserves wide reading." Louis Bromfield

+ Weekly Book Review p1 Jl 4 '43 2400w

BUELL, CLAYTON E. Mathematics for the sheet metal worker in general and aircraft shops. 199p $2 Pitman

621.792 Sheet metal work. Mathematics 43-8630

"For practical shop man in general and aircraft shops. Text for classes in vocational, apprentice, and evening schools, also as means of home study. Problems directly related to sheet metal and allied trades." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 40:5 S '43

Library J 68:575 Jl '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:46 Jl '43

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p16 Ag 8 '43 100w

BULLETT, GERALD WILLIAM. Winter solstice. 13p 35c Macmillan [1s Cambridge]

821 A43-3008

"Mr. Bullett's poem is a sensitive piece of reflection upon the heart of the mystical experience, that passing into the still centre through the dark nights of soul and spirit, to which all the mystics have testified as the joy of being that crowns the woe and the cross of existence." Times [London] Lit Sup

"His poem is lyrically sensitive but undynamic." H. I'A. Fausset

Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 11 '43 30w

"An accomplished performance, but no more." W. R. Benét

Sat R of Lit 26:24 D 4 '43 10w

Times [London] Lit Sup p346 Jl 17 '43 300w

BUNCE, WILLIAM HARVEY. War belts of Pontiac; il. by Isaac Brewster Hazelton. 214p $2 Dutton

42-51965

Story based upon the Indian uprisings in the Great Lakes region in 1763 and thereafter. The hero is Lew Hardin, who is sent on a diplomatic mission to the Ohio Indians, is captured, and escapes in time to share in the defense of Detroit. Grades five to seven.

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p6 S 9 '43 150w

"Well told and offers excellent background and high adventure. Lacks vividness of Allen's Green Cockade but is recommended where needed for its Great Lakes background and stories of Rogers' Rangers, seldom mentioned in children's books." M. M. Clark

+ Library J 68:251 Mr 15 '43 70w

"Not important. Writing lacks distinction, story interest is uneven and drags in spots, and characterization is poor. Not recommended." J. E. Stromdahl

— Library J 68:251 Mr 15 '43 60w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 7 '43 160w

BUNKLEY, JOEL WILLIAM. Military and naval recognition book. 4th ed 444p $2.50 Van Nostrand

355.14 Insignia. U.S.—Armed services—Insignia 43-17334

"A handbook on the organization, uniforms and insignia of rank of the world's armed forces; etiquette and customs of the American services; complete description and colored plates of U.S. decorations, medals and ribbons." (Subtitle) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1918.

Booklist 40:149 D 15 '43

Library J 69:31 Ja 1 '44 50w

BURACK, ABRAHAM SOLOMON, ed. Craft of novel writing. 225p $2.50 Writer

808.3 Fiction—Technique 42-50238

"The praiseworthy ambition of almost everyone with a spark of writing interest to write the Great American Novel is legendary. It accounts for making the novel as a writing form

BURACK, A. S., ed.—Continued
one of the most popular with both professional and amateur writers. But despite this interest, there has been a dearth of material on the technical aspects of novel writing. The present volume was undertaken to make available in permanent form instructive material to meet this need." (Foreword) Partial contents: You can write that novel, by Arnold Gingrich; A novelist begins, by Julian Green; A working plan for writing a novel, by Anne Hamilton; Character delineation, by O. H. Prouty; Writing the historical novel, by Van Wyck Mason; Crime fiction, by Valentine Williams; Better westerns, by Eugene Cunningham; The novelist's use of dialect, by Thames Williamson; Easy reading, by Mary O'Hara.

Booklist 39:422 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by Phil Stong
Sat R of Lit 26:8 F 6 '43 600w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 21 '43 80w

"As in any symposium, the quality of these chapters is uneven; in some respects this is an advantage to the reader, diversifying the general result."
+ — Weekly Book Review p14 Ap 18 '43 230w

BURBANK, NELSON L. Carpentry and joinery work. 4th ed 248p il $4 Simmons-Boardman 690 Carpentry. Building 43-2500

"A course of instruction in typical trade operations in house construction. The words, 'joinery work' do not refer to processes in the cabinet maker's trade but to the joining of metal or wooden prefabricated materials for dwellings." (N Y New Tech Bks) "Complete rearrangement simplifies the use of this fourth edition and a study outline and new illustrations are added. There are new chapters on Garage door installation and Installation of insulation." (Booklist) Glossary. Index.

Booklist 39:371 My 15 '43

N Y New Tech Bks 28:5 Ja '43

"Since it is written for the beginning student, the man or woman in some non-mechanical profession will be able to learn from its pages exactly how buildings should be constructed according to the best practices. For the benefit of the actual student, to give him the background needed to use to best advantage his knowledge of carpentry, each chapter has a section 'Related Studies.' " James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p25 Ap 11 '43 400w

BURCKHARDT, JAKOB CHRISTOPH. Force and freedom; reflections on history; ed. by James Hastings Nichols [Eng title: Reflections on history]. 382p $3.50 Pantheon bks, inc, 41 Washington sq, N.Y. [12s 6d Allen, G.]
904 History. Political science 43-6882

Collection of essays and reflections on history, and the interpretation of culture, religion, and the state, by a nineteenth century Swiss historian and scholar. Index.

Reviewed by Ferdinand Schevill
Am Hist R 49:79 O '43 400w

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p3 Jl 4 '43 600w

" 'Force and Freedom,' is a thought-provoking work. Apart from its startling prophecies, many of the author's remarks about the state, religion, and culture and the interactions of these three forces have a message for us. Particularly the chapter on The Great Men of History is apt to delight today's readers as it delighted those students who flocked to Basel from all over Europe in order to listen to Burckhardt. Other parts of the book will arouse contradiction; for instance, the statements that war is a necessary factor of higher development and that lasting peace leads to enervation and favors the rise of physically and spiritually unfit types. . . But in spite of flaws, it is unlikely that anyone who reads 'Force and Freedom' will fail to be impressed by Burckhardt's stupendous knowledge, his sure sense of spiritual values, and his never-tiring search for truth. His was a noble if not a great soul." E. S. P.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 My 8 '43 650w

"Mr. Nichols deserves our gratitude for his introduction of Jacob Burckhardt into the current debates and our introduction to the man and his work. His knowledge of Burckhardt's background and Continental scholarship before and after appears to be unlimited. The surprising prognoses of the great Swiss historian of the nineteenth century which have merited him the title of prophet have been recognized by such eminent scholars as Waldemar Gurian and, if I am not mistaken, Christopher Dawson. However, as a whole I fear this book still shows that Burckhardt is definitely 'dated' and not as timeless as assumed, and belongs to the generation in which he lived. . . The net result of this publication, apart from its sheer merit of filling a gap in our information, will be a new light on time-worn assumptions and a rethinking and close examination of what is so often accepted as obvious. I think the book is a challenge that needs answering." H. A. Reinhold
Commonweal 38:149 My 28 '43 500w

Reviewed by F. H. Knight
Ethics 54:149 Ja '44 1400w

Reviewed by Karl Löwith
J Philos 40:441 Ag 5 '43 1050w

Reviewed by Pierce Butler
Library Q 14:68 Ja '44 550w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr
Nation 156:530 Ap 10 '43 800w

"Mr. M. D. Hottinger's translation is solid though it does not always convey Burckhardt's dynamic and powerful style. The translator's introductory note is somewhat sketchy and it is also to be regretted that he chose not to include some of the important fragments to the Reflections as embodied in Vol. VII of the Gesamtausgabe. Moreover, an index and some annotations would seem to be indispensable for the ordinary reader. But these reservations should not detract us from being deeply grateful to publishers and translator alike." J. P. Mayer
+ New Statesman & Nation 25:229 Ap 3 '43 850w

"Perhaps neither Burckhardt's book nor his opinions are decisive in any discussion, but it is pleasant to record that he was often on the side of the angels." E. C. Richards
N Y Times p7 Je 27 '43 800w

New Yorker 19:72 Mr 27 '43 70w

"Burckhardt had a great admiration for Tacitus, and he possessed something of Tacitus' gift for epigram. His pithy and sententious sayings often express historical wisdom and prophetic insight, though it is doubtful whether the very high claims made for this book by the editor and the publisher will be generally accepted." R. L. Schuyler
Pol Sci Q 58:464 S '43 400w

"The reader may take this volume for what it really is; lecture notes, not meant for publication, set down in rather cryptic outlines and heavy academic German, which shows even through the careful translation; written from a point of view that is rather alien to the contemporary American. But his reward will be a guided tour through the history of civilization, and scores of provocative epigrams." Rudolf Flesch
+ Sat R of Lit 26:10 Ag 21 '43 500w

"Jacob Burckhardt's fame as a historian is secure, and there will be great interest on that account in this English translation of his notes on history. The introdution by James Hastings Nichols is illuminating and in some ways the most valuable part of the book since the material is a compilation of notes and short pieces, which need the guiding comment of the editor." Lyman Bryson
School & Society 57:542 My 8 '43 390w

Reviewed by John Stapleton
Spec 170:320 Ap 2 '43 850w

Springf'd Republican p8 Ap 7 '43 850w

Reviewed by E. C. Lindeman
Survey G 32:263 Je '43 1300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p222 My 8 '43 2200w

"This book is not a short cut to the millennium. In some ways . . . it is a bit dated, as is an illustration by Hogarth or Cruikshank. But like those marvelous comments upon contemporary civilization, it also retains a kernel of that truth which is perennial and, therefore, indestructible." H. W. Van Loon

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 4 '43 1750w

"This work is so important that its translation into English at the present time is highly welcome. Special value is added to this edition by the Introduction written by James Hastings Nichols. This succinct appreciation of Burckhardt's personality and ideas with the discussion of Burckhardt's place in the intellectual history of Europe is a valuable American addition to the numerous studies by European scholars of the great Swiss historian." T. E. Mommsen

+ Yale R n s 33:177 autumn '43 1100w

BURDEN, WILLIAM ARMISTEAD MOALE. Struggle for airways in Latin America. 245p il $5 Council on foreign relations

387.7 Airways. Aeronautics, Commercial

43-8990

"Latin-American air transportation, especially on the long international routes, is largely the story of the Pan American system. Mr. Burden traces it from its beginnings with the inauguration of a service between Key West and Havana in October, 1927, and through the evolution which had already extended Pan American to 18,000 route-miles in Latin America by the end of 1930 and brought it to more than 15,000,000 miles of operation (including the services of national companies owned by Pan American) in 1941. Boldness and imagination and great technical capacity in its operating personnel, with generous financial support by the Government of the United States, built the system. On this and other matters Mr. Burden has assembled an amazing amount of statistical information." (N Y Times). Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by F. R. Fussell

Am Pol Sci R 37:961 O '43 550w

Booklist 39:456 Jl 15 '43

"Charts and tabulations play their part in adding to the interest and value of this work. There are not alone maps to illustrate the progress of airways in Latin America since the early pioneering days but also maps of individual Latin-American countries, showing the frequency of service on each line, as of December, 1942. The text is also well illustrated by striking photogravures. Anyone interested in Latin America or in air transportation should have this book." W. E. Rudolph

+ Geog R 33:680 O '43 1350w

Library J 68:626 Ag '43 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:39 Jl '43

"Interest in the volume will not be limited to those who have a special concern with air transportation and its future development. The movement of goods and persons by air has played and is destined to play so large a part in Latin-American affairs that some knowledge of its status and its potentialities is an indispensable part of any general understanding of the Latin-American economy, of our relations with the countries to the south of us, and of their social problems." Edward Warner

+ N Y Times p3 Je 6 '43 1350w

Time 41:98 Je 21 '43 500w

"The author has furnished in this detailed and discriminating study a document of first importance for those who chart the future of American airpower." Hubert Herring

+ Weekly Book Review p12 Jl 11 '43 1450w

BURDETT, JAMES H. Victory garden manual. 128p il $1.75 Ziff-Davis

635 Vegetable gardening 43-51112

Practical manual for the small home vegetable gardener covering the ground from preparation of soil and planting the seed flats to harvesting and storage. Fifty common vegetables and herbs are each given a paragraph or page of specific cultural directions.

Bookmark 4:7 Mr '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '43

"The lively illustrations, a number of them in natural color, and the many pen-and-ink sketches do much to give the book a fine appearance and to catch the interest of the casual reader." F. F. Rockwell

+ N Y Times p24 Ap 25 '43 80w

"A really concise and unusually well illustrated vegetable-gardening handbook by a man whose name has long been a byword in the field of planning, planting, and growing." R. S. Lemmon

+ Weekly Book Review p19 Je 6 '43 130w

BURGLON, NORA. Shark hole; il. by Cyrus Leroy Baldridge. 245p $2.25 Holiday

43-7711

A story of school children in Hawaii, children descended from various races but all working to become good American citizens. Two of the high points of the story are the coming of the strange baby into the school life, and the solution of the mystery of the Black Shark.

"I wish that the mystery of the Black Shark had been treated in as realistic a manner as the rest of the book. This mystery will certainly not hurt the story in the eyes of young readers, and there is so much here which is exceptionally fine that I feel this element may well be forgiven by more critical adults. Cyrus LeRoy Baldridge has given the excellent illustrations his usual authentic touch." P. A. Whitney

+ — Book Week p7 Jl 11 '43 380w

Booklist 39:468 Jl 15 '43

"Nani and Gary, Yoshio and Lin are real children. Their school life with its practical and realistic training is the center of their days, and the description of it sheds an informative light on the life of the mixed-blood people who form the majority of Hawaii's population. There is one baffling mystery, well sustained through the book, and a number of minor ones, but the picture of modern Hawaiian life, outside the white population, holds special interest." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:173 My '43 90w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore

Horn Bk 19:235 Jl '43 50w

"On two counts, this book should prove popular: It is a good mystery story, and it is a story of Hawaii." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 68:578 Jl '43 50w

"The mystery of the stolen cattle, the race prejudices to be overcome, and the legends of Hawaii make a story that children will find difficult to understand. Not recommended." J. E. Wooster

— Library J 68:578 Jl '43 40w

"The author pays a gracious compliment to the devoted, intelligent and imaginative native teachers whom she has seen in the classrooms of the public schools. She tells many interesting things about the country and life in the islands; in her child characters there is the beginning of some excellent characterization, but on the whole the book seems thin and superficial and as though it were written to order instead of growing out of the author's conviction that she had a story to tell." A. T. Eaton

+ — N Y Times p9 My 23 '43 320w

"Though this is not a war story Miss Burglon was living in Hawaii in December, 1941. She writes with sympathy about a group of strongly individual children, influenced by diverse backgrounds and environments, but with childlike qualities, common to all. Hawaiian customs and tropical island scenery combine to give an exotic flavor to the spirited narrative." A. M. Jordan

+ Sat R of Lit 26:27 My 15 '43 130w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 22 '43 350w

BURK, CASSIE; MEIERHOFFER, VIRGINIA, and PHILLIPS, CLAUDE ANDERSON. America's musical heritage; il. by Milo Winter. 368p $1.52 Laidlaw

780.973 Music—U.S. Music—Analysis, interpretation, appreciation 43-4460

"The book is divided into four parts. The first part, 'Music in the Colonial Period,' graphically describes the kinds of music performed and sung by our colonial ancestors, as well as the instruments on which they played. Part II, 'Music in the Struggle To Become a Nation,' deals with the development of national and patriotic songs, the rise of folk and religious music, and the formation of organizations for the presentation of operatic and orchestral music in the large cities. A chapter on music education gives interesting details about the early singing schools of our forefathers. 'Music in the Period of Expansion,' Part III, traces, among other features, the beginnings of popular music of all types. The fourth part, 'Music in a Full-grown Nation,' surveys the spread of music to all walks of life." El School J

"The book is admirably adapted to its purpose of instilling in our youth a knowledge of, and love for, the roots of American musical culture. Its authors have avoided technical description of musical details and have formed a well woven and a readable narrative style." V. H. Talley

+ El School J 43:436 Mr '43 500w

Wis Lib Bul 39:26 F '43

BURK, JOHN NAGLEE. Life and works of Beethoven. 483p $2.75 Random house

B or 92 Beethoven, Ludwig van 43-10265

Short life of Beethoven, which includes a detailed, critical estimate of his music. Classified list of his works, and indexes.

"The greatest virtue of the book—one which will appeal particularly to all who must rely on radio and recordings for good music—is the splendid section devoted to a discussion of Beethoven's works. Here Mr. Burk's experience as program annotator of the Boston Symphony Orchestra serves him well. The analyses are both informative and interesting." Elford Caughey

+ Atlantic 172:128 S '43 350w

"To the half of the book concerned with Beethoven's work, Burk brings his very solid musical criticism. He considers each work separately, and wholely as music. Here again he withstands the temptation to treat the compositions romantically in relationship to Beethoven's daily life. He is a superb listener, and what he hears is the making of music—the thematic composition, the harmonies, chromatics or counterpoint of the works. By simply pointing to the workmanship, he makes one extremely interested in the work as a whole and fully appreciative of the stature of the composer." Hugh Wilde

+ Book Week p7 Jl 4 '43 600w

Booklist 40:11 S '43

Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 3 '43 230w

Reviewed by Margaret Byard

Commonweal 38:518 S 10 '43 550w

"Competent presentation, lacking popular appeal because of pedestrian style. Recommended for libraries needing another biography of Beethoven." H. A. Carpenter

+ — Library J 68:246 Mr 15 '43 100w

Nation 157:191 Ag 14 '43 120w

Reviewed by Arthur Berger

New Repub 109:148 Ag 2 '43 180w

"In the first half of the study we are given Beethoven's life story. This lucid account is richly documented with written records of the time including many letters of the composer himself. In addition to this primary source material there is a careful evaluation and selection of the research of others. But it would be understating Mr. Burk's achievement to think of the narrative as a cut and dried piece of academic research. The story, always an integrated one, never loses sight of the relationships; there is always present the genuine interpretive talent of the humanist." William Schuman

+ N Y Times p4 Je 27 '43 700w

"The best feature of the book, apart from its convenient size arrangement, is the understanding which the author brings to Beethoven both as a man and as a composer. He does not gloss over the failings and faults of character, neither does he relish them. He manages to give a truthful account without impairing the sense of essential greatness. Both the clinical and the adulatory points of view are happily absent. As an introduction to the study of the man and his music, Mr. Burk's biography is highly to be recommended." Douglas Moore

+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 Jl 17 '43 650w

"It will come as a blessing to those persons who would like to know something about the composer, but whose minds are too pedestrian, or prosaic, to cope with the allusions and symbolism of Rolland and Ludwig, and whose time is too limited to permit exploration of the continental expanse of Thayer. . . But because Mr. Burke is a highly competent biographer his narrative is smooth, clear and eminently readable. At times it is eloquent and at times sparkling. It is perhaps the best short life of Beethoven now available." G. W. Johnson

+ — Weekly Book Review p4 Je 20 '43 750w

BURK, ROBERT EMMETT, and GRUMMITT, OLIVER JOSEPH, eds. The chemical background for engine research. (Frontiers in chemistry) 297p il $3.50 Interscience

541.36 Thermochemistry. Combustion. Hydrocarbons. Lubrication and lubricants 43-13954

"The contributions of this volume are: A Survey of Combustion Research (Fiock), Chemical Thermodynamics of Hydrocarbons (Rossini), Synthetic Methods for Hydrocarbons (Whitmore), Kinetics of Flame and Combustion (von Elbe), The Experimental Side of Combustion Research in Engine (Lewis), and Physico-Chemical Aspects of Lubrication (Beeck). The titles of these papers which form the content of the book make it clear that the text really describes the 'Thermodynamics and Kinetics of Fuels.'" Chem & Met Eng

Chem & Eng N 21:1655 O 10 '43 10w

Chem & Met Eng 50:204 S '43 230w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 20w

Reviewd by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p6 D 26 '43 60w

BURK, ROBERT EMMETT, and GRUMMITT, OLIVER JOSEPH, eds. Chemistry of large molecules. (Frontiers in chemistry) 313p il $3.50 Interscience

547 Chemistry, Organic. Chemistry, Physical and theoretical. Polymers and polymerization 43-12095

"Under the auspices of Western Reserve University, Interscience Publishers has undertaken the highly commendable task of publishing a new series of textbooks entitled 'Frontiers in Chemistry.' The first volume of their series, 'The Chemistry of Large Molecules,' contains the following contributions: The mechanism of Polyreactions (Mark), The Investigation of High Polymers with X-Rays (Mark), The Colloidal Behavior of Organic Macromolecular Materials (Kraemer), The Ultracentrifuge and its Application to the Study of Organic Macromolecules (Kraemer), Elastic-Viscous Properties of Matter (Eyring et al.), The Electrical Properties of High Polymers (Fuoss), Organic Chemistry of Vinyl Polymers (Marvel), and Chemistry of Cellulose and Cellulose Derivatives (Ott)." Chem & Met Eng

Reviewed by F. C. Nachod

Chem & Met Eng 50:204 S '43 180w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 30w

"The book is of interest to physicists and physical chemists alike who, while not necessarily actively engaged in the field, may wish to keep in touch with its recent more general aspects. . . [It] can serve as a valuable source book for investigators in the field of high polymers." C. W. Montgomery

+ R of Scientific Instruments 14:307 O '43 650w

BURKE, RICHARD. Barbary freight. 281p $2.50 Putnam

43-6644

Story of a young American seaman's adventures in his hunt for Nazi agents who, he suspects, are concocting a plot to take over his ship as soon as it clears New York harbor.

Reviewed by John Norcross

Book Week p4 Je 20 '43 340w

"Thrills and suspense make this one of the better novels of adventure and espionage." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p10 Je 20 '43 300w

"Good thriller."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:40 Je 5 '43 30w

"Mr. Burke applies the mystery yarn technique to a Nazi set-up with tingling results." Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p20 Je 6 '43 300w

BURKE, WILLIAM JEREMIAH, and HOWE, WILL DAVID, eds. American authors and books, 1640-1940. (Gramercy publication) 858p $5 Phoenix

810.3 American literature—Dictionaries, indexes, etc. 43-1255

"A quick reference tool somewhat similar to the Oxford Companion to American Literature. Authors, titles, fictional characters, magazines, newspapers, place names, and other subject entries are in dictionary arrangement, with cross references. Information is brief, and in the majority of entries 1940 is the latest date." Booklist

"[Contains] much useful material not heretofore readily available. This fat volume is a veritable storehouse of information for journalists, writers, teachers and others actively interested in American literature. Comprehensive and accurate, it is arranged in dictionary form and includes many hundreds of items which the title does not suggest." D. McC.

+ Book Week p10 Mr 14 '43 180w

Booklist 39:439 Jl 1 '43

BURNETT, VERNE EDWIN. You and your public; a guide book to the new career—public relations. 194p $2.50 Harper

301.154 Publicity. Psychology, Applied 43-13316

Practical suggestions for beginners or anyone interested in public relations. Includes specific programs. The author is vice president in charge of public relations for general foods corporation. Index.

"'As long as there are people, there will be public relations,' and libraries will do the public a service in making this book generally available. . . Recommended for all types of library." H. S. Taylor

+ Library J 68:665 S 1 '43 80w

"The presentation is simple and varied. A conversational style creates an atmosphere of direct contact between writer, reader and problem. This technique is usually diffuse, but Burnett has succeeded in packing the text with a respectable load of detail." H. D. Lasswell

+ Management R 32:468 D '43 380w

Wis Lib Bul 40:6 Ja '44

BURNETT, WHIT, ed. Two bottles of relish; a book of strange and unusual stories; il. by Carlotta Petrina. 395p $3 Dial press

Short stories—Collections 43-51165

Collection of fantasies in short story form, all of which have appeared in the Story Magazine.

"The collection is one which every lover of fantasy will want to own, for the particular brand of the incredible and the fantastic which runs its rampant average in these 17 stories is all too seldom found in book form. . . Burnett's [collection] has the surprise and delight of something new and memorably different." August Derleth

+ Book Week p3 Je 6 '43 120w

Reviewed by Dorsey McCarthy

Book Week p7 Je 27 '43 60w

Booklist 39:388 Je 1 '43

"No one will either like or dislike all of these stories, but it's a safe bet that all of them will be read through, all of them will provoke thought and that each reader will have his favorites. A good time is guaranteed, even if you end up sleeping with the lights on and a pistol under your pillow. For they are, these stories, wondrous and fearful devisings, calculated to upset your faith in natural laws, glands, the animal kingdom and, most of all, your own sanity." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Times p16 My 9 '43 950w

"People who like tall tales or a touch of grimness or an out-of-this-world mood will be pleased by this book of strange stories." Rosemary Benet

+ Weekly Book Review p2 My 16 '43 700w

BURNHAM, JAMES. Machiavellians, defenders of freedom. 270p $2.50 Day

320.9 Political science. Statesmen 43-51168

An attempt to study "the laws of politics" by means of an exposition of the Machiavellian theory, as expressed by Machiavelli himself and his modern disciples: Mosca, Sorel, Michels, and Pareto. The opening section is entitled, Dante: politics as wish. A final section is devoted to a consideration of the meaning of democracy, and to the question Can politics be scientific?

Reviewed by F. G. Wilson

Am Pol Sci R 37:725 Ag '43 500w

Reviewed by Gwynne Nettler

Am Soc R 8:606 O '43 1350w

Reviewed by J. S. Roucek

Ann Am Acad 228:123 Jl '43 650w

"This is a work of high quality in its political and philosophical analysis. The author brings to the consideration of the eternal problem of power in society a mind like a surgeon's scalpel, keen and cutting. Timid readers may be shocked at the blunt, uncompromising formulation of certain aspects of this problem. But Mr. Burnham, one of the very few contemporary thinkers who possess an awareness of the basic trends of the present historical era, is a better friend of liberty than many who praise the word without the faintest idea of the conditions for its maintenance."

+ Atlantic 171:129 Je '43 120w

Christian Science Monitor p14 My 10 '43 700w

Reviewed by J. N. Vaughan

Commonweal 38:278 Jl 2 '43 700w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:154 O '43 40w

"I have read several reviews of this book recently in newspapers and political journals, all of them more or less reflecting the disagreement and irritation of scandalized reviewers. They must have afforded the author great pleasure, for they showed that he had realized his aim. What other aim could he have had than to irritate? What he says is not new even for American readers." Giuseppe Prezzolini

J Philos 40:356 Je 24 '43 2350w

Management R 32:276 Jl '43 70w

"Mr. Burnham is a very able man, and he explores the abyss into which he has fallen with great skill; but he cannot finally hide the fact that it is an abyss. The sentimentality against which Mr. Burnham protests is the uncritical acceptance of the professed goals of politics and aims of politicians as the real ones. A proper realism would know how to discount the element of pretension in man's

BURNHAM, JAMES—Continued
political life, as indeed in his whole life, and how to discriminate between truth and pretense. . . Even Mr. Burnham's cynicism in regard to the ignorance of the masses is too extravagant. It is quite true that the masses lack the knowledge to survey all the intricacies of government. But the wearer of a shoe always knows better than the most expert cobbler whether or not the shoe pinches. That is a form of wisdom which Mr. Burnham has left out of account in his reckoning." Reinhold Niebuhr
+ — Nation 156:636 My 1 '43 1700w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 108:673 My 17 '43 1700w

"Machiavellianism, as interpreted by Mr. Burnham speaks in no clear, unwavering voice. Nor, it must be said, is the language which its exponent employs that usually to be found in scientific treatises. He speaks of a 'bulldozing rhetorician like Churchill,' of 'frustrated poets like Archibald MacLeish,' 'choleric bureaucrats like Harold Ickes,' 'gutter-columnists like Walter Winchell,' 'guilt-ridden bankers' sons like Corliss Lamont.' He predicts, without qualification, a 'terrific' economic post-war crisis and the repudiation of the public debt, whether outright or indirect. This style may have charm, but it is more apocalyptic than scientific." John MacCormac
N Y Times p4 My 2 '43 1100w

"Worth reading, if only for the occasional pleasure of disagreement."
+ New Yorker 19:75 My 1 '43 50w

"Mr. Burnham seems to be conscious that there is little exciting in his excavations from Dante and the Machiavellians, and that his book is likely to be much less provocative than 'The Managerial Revolution.' Hence he bursts out every now and then against a strange collection of bêtes-noires: 'a journalist like Pierre van Paassen, a demagogue like Hitler, a professor like Max Lerner, a chairman of a sociology department like Pitirim Sorokin, a revolutionist like Lenin, a trapped idealist like Henry Wallace, a bulldozing rhetorician like Churchill, a preacher out of a church like Norman Thomas or one in like Bishop Manning, the Pope or the ministers of the Mikado —for all the integrating method and the whole conception of politics is precisely that of Dante.' These widely different personages will be astonished to learn that they have so much (or so little) in common." Lindsay Rogers
Sat R of Lit 26:6 My 1 '43 1600w

— Spec 171:604 D 24 '43 300w

Reviewed by Ordway Tead
Survey G 32:264 Je '43 800w

Time 41:90 My 17 '43 700w

"It should be said that one tenuous thread connects 'The Managerial Revolution' [Book Review Digest, 1941] and 'The Machiavellians.' In the former, Mr. Burnham had shocked the serious-minded by his contempt for those who believed that ideas and ideals played any constructive or initiating role in history. In the present work, he rings again and again the changes upon the same sentiment with a kind of callousness that is interesting and yet bewildering." L. M. Hacker
Weekly Book Review p14 My 16 '43 1350w

BURNHAM, REUBEN WESLEY. Mathematics for machinists. 2d ed 253p il $2 Wiley
621.75 Mathematics. Machine shop practice 43-7577

"The aim of this book is to present machine shop calculations in a simple way and to have them given with enough explanation of the working of the machine concerned to enable the machinist to understand them, even with a limited knowledge of mathematics. The new edition has been thoroughly revised, old matter has been eliminated, and a considerable amount of new material has been added. Although the fundamentals of mathematics and machine shop practice do not change, new ways of applying principles are constantly being developed. This fact has been kept in mind in the revision of the text." (Pref) First edition was published in 1915. Index.

Book Week p11 Je 13 '43 50w
Library J 68:575 Jl '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:29 Ap '43

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p17 Je 20 '43 60w

BURR, GEORGE LINCOLN. George Lincoln Burr: his life, by Roland H. Bainton; selections from his writings, ed. by Lois Oliphant Gibbons. 505p il map $3.75 Cornell univ. press
B or 92 43-8822

"Admittedly the ranking medievalist of his generation, [Professor Burr] left little tangible evidence to prove the immensity of his learning. The best of what he published is collected here, and it barely reaches four hundred pages. It includes book reviews, studies in witchcraft and persecution, his presidential address to the American Historical Association on 'The Freedom of History,' the report of his findings as historical expert to the commission appointed to investigate the Venezuela-Guiana boundary dispute, and a few miscellaneous contributions to scholarly reviews. . . Professor Bainton's charming biographical sketch will appeal particularly to Cornellians to whom Mr. Burr was for sixty years a tradition as well as a distinguished scholar and a great teacher." Am Hist R

"The excellence of this tribute to Professor Burr is measured by the difficulty of the task." G. R. B. Richards
+ Am Hist R 49:75 O '43 750w

"Professor Bainton's biography will be welcomed by all those who knew Burr for its graphic portrayal of a great teacher and a warm-hearted and generous friend. It is happiest in its analysis of Burr's thought, his methods of work, and his functions as a historian. . . The work suffers from having been written with a too great but perfectly understandable devotion: the verse written by Burr does him no credit and the intimate probing of his happy marriage which ended so soon in tragedy involves questionable taste." J. P. Boyd
+ — N Y Times p19 Ag 1 '43 1100w

BURR, JOHN GREEN. Framework of battle. 254p il maps $3 Lippincott
355.43 Strategy 43-14430

An attempt to explain to laymen the nine basic principles of strategy. The author uses as illustrative material the battles and campaigns of Napoleon, the American Civil War, and World Wars I and II.

Booklist 40:87 N 15 '43

"Important book for all who follow war on maps; makes one understand why pauses between battles may be even more important than the battles themselves. Recommended. Unusual military maps by Marianne Halstead, wife of author." J. A. Sohon
+ Library J 68:621 Ag '43 120w

" 'The Framework of Battle' presents a clear and well-written account of the science of military strategy. Written for the layman, it is unique in its field." F. E. Irwin
+ N Y Times p28 O 31 '43 500w

"Colonel Burr does keep his writing simple, and I think no non-military reader will have trouble following the illustrative campaigns and battles which make up three-quarters of the book. . . But I'm afraid it won't give him a full explanation of war, because the author goes too far in his simplification." J. I. Greene
+ — Weekly Book Review p24 O 31 '43 400w

Wis Lib Bul 40:5 Ja '44

BURRIS-MEYER, ELIZABETH. This is fashion; il. by Eleanor Beckham. 409p $6 Harper
391 Costume. Fashion 43-10005

"This book is really eight condensed books. It may be used in two ways at least, depending on what kind of information you want. Each book contains information on the same periods but from a different angle." (p iv) Contents: Pictures; Fashion's hall of fame;

Characteristic silhouette; Color; Accessories; Fabrics; Cosmetics and coiffures; Home furnishings. Bibliography. Index.

"Conscientious research and long study have certainly gone into the making of this book. An excellent bibliography is ample testimony of the author's serious study, and her position as dean of the Tobe-Coburn Fashion School gives her the right to speak with authority. Yet, taken as a whole, the book is a distinct disappointment. Poorly written, it bears all the marks of slapdash notes jotted down in the classroom by an intelligent but bewildered student. The author clearly knows her modern ground: her observations on French and American fashions of the Twenties and Thirties are sharply put and have a ring of authenticity. Less sure are her historical summaries." C. M.

N Y Times p16 Jl 11 '43 480w

Time 42:102 Jl 12 '43 600w

Weekly Book Review p12 Ag 15 '43 180w

Wis Lib Bul 39:119 O '43

BURTON, MRS KATHERINE (KURZ). Celestial homespun; the life of Isaac Thomas Hecker. 393p $3 Longmans

B or 92 Hecker, Isaac Thomas 43-5967

Slightly fictionized biography of a Roman Catholic priest, missionary, and author, who founded the Paulist fathers. Altho anecdotal in style, the book also contains many quotations from Father Hecker's journals and writings. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick

Book Week p6 My 2 '43 250w

Booklist 39:386 Je 1 '43

"Celestial Homespun is a thoroughly sympathetic and readable story of a truly great American priest. Of course this interesting biography is not the final word on Father Hecker. We hope that some day a scientific, fully documented, authoritative history of him and his times will be written." J. I. Malloy

+ Cath World 157:211 My '43 700w

"Once again Mrs Burton has followed her fictional method of writing biography. Though this may be rather distressing, or even offensive, to some people, there can be no doubt that it appeals to many readers who have no great liking for formal biography. . . Any piece of writing must be judged by the author's intention and the purpose it serves. That Mrs. Burton may be able to write in no other way does not in the least lessen the value of her work. The so-called scholar—the kind of man who knows just enough to be able to pick out small mistakes—can be counted upon to list a large number of them here. . . Such slips do not seem to me of great importance, and in a book of this kind, one should be reasonably indulgent towards a certain amount of transference of conversation and letters from the people to whom they belong to somebody else or to another chronological order. Being a novelist, Mrs. Burton has the right to take such liberties with her material, and there is ample evidence that she has this at her finger-tips in a way that the most precise scholar might envy. I know, as I have had occasion to follow closely in her tracks." Theodore Maynard

+ — Commonweal 38:20 Ap 23 '43 650w

"Of particular interest to Catholics, but general libraries can use because of Father Hecker's influence on spread of Catholicism during nineteenth century in America." M. J. Messler

+ Library J 68:246 Mr 15 '43 110w

"In Celestial Homespun, Katherine Burton has added Isaac Hecker to her gallery of American converts to Catholicism. Her medium is the fictionized biography; and though the result has neither the solidity of biography nor the freedom of fiction, it becomes in Mrs. Burton's now fairly expert hands less of an anomaly than one might expect. The picture of the founder of the Paulists is drawn pleasantly and honestly, without sensationalism or striving for effect; the historical background is modest; and the occasional errors of detail detract little from a book which does not profess to be history." A. M. Schlesinger, Jr.

+ New Eng Q 16:534 S '43 250w

"No man ever loved America more or hungered with greater intensity after its soul. Miss Burton conveys that fact, even if her biography is more than slightly romanticized. It reads well and sketches in the background discreetly. There is still need for a documented life of this fascinating American. His days were lived on wings though the strength to soar was not always given." G. N. Shuster

+ — N Y Times p23 My 9 '43 550w

"An excellent textbook for students (and a refresher for graduates)." C. M. Cosman

+ N Y Times p37 O 3 '43 60w

" 'Celestial Homespun' follows a biographical pattern that is always a little baffling to the critical. It is a book cast in the form of fiction, giving both thoughts attributed to the subject, and conversations that he held, or should have held, with important persons around him. . . The difficulty seems to me this: if one is going to so much trouble, why not go one step farther and write a biography of real use to the student? As it is, we have to take Mrs. Burton's entire book on faith. A second difficulty arises. The biographer is not necessarily expert as a novelist; yet the conversations, the situations, and the thoughts have to be managed with fictional adroitness and dramatic point. I cannot say that Mrs. Burton has quite mastered the trick. . . On the other hand, the book is pleasant reading; and in the struggle for Father Hecker at Rome against the authorities of the Redemptorist order, a struggle in depicting which Mrs. Burton tends to drop her conversational method for straight narrative, we have real conflict and a sense of important drama. Otherwise, the book seldom rises to real insight, either into crucial historical event or into personality and character." H. M. Jones

— + Sat R of Lit 26:26 My 29 '43 550w

"Katherine Burton has a gift for swift and vivid characterization. She makes a limited use of dialogue with good effect in telling the story. But she has had some difficulty in the organization of her material, so that the book fails of being the popular biography it was intended to be." Clare Godfrey

+ — Weekly Book Review p17 My 16 '43 1050w

Wis Lib Bul 39:72 My '43

BURTON, MILES. Who killed the doctor? [Eng title: Murder, M.D.] 214p $2 Doubleday [8s 6d Collins]

43-16889

Detective story.

"The story gets off to a slow start because of what seems to be a too-close attention to details, but these details turn out to have a distinct bearing on the case. The solution lies in the motive, which is skillfully concealed." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p44 N 21 '43 160w

"Good background and some amusing characters. Sleuthing good enough—but the gambit is an old one. Average."

Sat R of Lit 26:20 N 20 '43 30w

Times [London] Lit Sup p443 S 11 '43 60w

"Scotland Yard fans should derive better than middling entertainment from this one." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p30 N 7 '43 250w

BURTON, VIRGINIA LEE (MRS GEORGE DEMETRIOS). Katy and the big snow; story and pictures. [36p] $2 Houghton

43-18856

Picture story book about the adventures of Katy, a beautiful red crawler tractor, when the big snow came to the city of Geoppolis. For children six to nine.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney

Book Week p7 Ja 9 '44 170w

Booklist 40:184 Ja 15 '44

BURTON, V. L.—Continued
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:32 Ja '44 70w

"Recommended." H. M. Perkinson
+ Library J 69:72 Ja 15 '44 110w

"Anyone who has ever watched a small boy's intense interest in one of these monsters of iron and steel that roll the roads or plow the fields will rejoice that this artist and author has made it possible for children to follow the fortunes of Katy. . . The pictures for this stirring saga have a fine quality of motion and Katy is presented with complete accuracy and an endearing humor. As always, Miss Burton's drawings have beauty and distinction, and the full and interesting detail furnishes lasting entertainment." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p6 D 19 '43 280w

"Because of the delightful details that fill the pages, children will want to own this book. It will take a long, long time to follow Katy. And it will be lots and lots of fun." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:30 Ja 29 '44 320w

"Small boys still wearing shorts will be ecstatic this year if Santa Claus sends them a wonderful book called 'Katy and the Big Snow.' . . The author's illustrations are exciting and the story will bear endless rereadings, so the book is a real investment in happiness." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 12 '43 110w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ja 2 '44 180w

BUSONI, RAFAELLO, il. Pegs of history. See Fish, H. D.

BUSONI, RAFAELLO. Somi builds a church; a story from Lapland; il. by [the author]. 109p $2 Viking 43-51261

True story of the building of a church in northernmost Norway, by a community of Lapps. The timber for the building had to be carried a hundred and fifty miles, over trackless plains and mountains, but the task was done, and Somi had a church. For grades six to eight.

Booklist 40:49 O 1 '43

Reviewed by H. A. Masten
Christian Science Monitor p8 D 9 '43 180w

Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 20w

"This true and inspiring story is told with sympathy, tinctured with humor." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:322 S '43 100w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:824 O 15 '43 30w

"It is a true story of faith that surmounted almost unconquerable odds and gives a word picture of the Lapps, silent and tenacious as they are. The illustrations, done by the author, complete the story." Elizabeth Burr
+ Library J 68:893 N 1 '43 70w

"There is an almost epic quality in this story. It tells of man's fight to win from Nature the wood and stone with which to shelter the things of the spirit. Through it all run the vigor and humor and generosity of the Northern people." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 26:34 N 13 '43 230w

"The more I read about Lapps, the more I like them; this story makes any one do so." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p7 O 10 '43 350w

BUTLER, PIERCE, ed. See Chicago. University. Graduate library school. Library institute. Reference function of the library

BUTTS, ALLISON. Metallurgical problems. 2d ed 446p $4 McGraw
669 Metallurgy 43-6073

New edition of a text first published in 1932. "In keeping with the spirit of J. W. Richards' classic 'Metallurgical Calculations,' the second edition of Professor Butts' work on 'Metallurgical Problems' has been thoroughly revised and enlarged. The revision has been aimed at clarifying and modernizing both the text and problem material and bringing them into conformity with new fundamental concepts and data. The principal addition has been in the field of thermodynamics of chemical reactions." (Chem & Eng N) Index.

Reviewed by C. E. Sims
Chem & Eng N 21:1216 Jl 25 '43 320w

Chem & Met Eng 50:192 D '43 80w

Library J 68:476 Je 1 '43 20w

BYAS, HUGH. Government by assassination. 377p $3 Knopf
952 Japan. World war, 1939—Japan
42-25289

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"Hugh Byas, a Scotchman who served for many years in Tokyo as correspondent for the New York Times and the Times of London, is as far removed as any human being could be from the sensational journalist of Hollywood and fiction. But the authentic stories in this book of actual and planned murder, carried out from alleged patriotic motives, would whet the imagination of the most hardened writer of detective stories." W. H. Chamberlin
+ Atlantic 171:152 Mr '43 210w

Bookmark 5:12 Ja '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:588 Ap '43 60w

"It is a particular pleasure to welcome a work like that of Mr. Byas, which is scholarly and thoughtful, amply supported by careful inquiry, and yet so well-written that it carries the reader along with all the excitement which a thriller should, but so often does not, provide. It is so absorbing that its first few chapters could be recommended solely for the pleasure of the narrative to addicts of the sensational without any interest in the problem of Japan." G. B. Sansom
+ Pacific Affairs 16:104 Mr '43 550w

Pratt p12 F '43

Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 17 '43 550w

"The author knows Japan, writes in a lively style and makes many pertinent observations. The reader will be impressed by the similarities of Japanese and German mentality and the deep metaphysical roots which distinguish Japanese as well as German Weltanschauung from the more rational, 'superficial' civilization of the West." Hans Kohn
+ Survey G 32:138 Ap '43 400w

BYNG, EDWARD J. See Bing, E. J.

BYRD, WILLIAM. Secret diary of William Byrd of Westover, 1739-1741; ed. by Maude H. Woodfin and Marion Tinling. [2v v 2] 490p $5 Dietz
B or 92 Virginia—Social life and customs—Colonial period. Plantation life 43-1881

"Last in chronological order of three secret diaries, and second to be published, the present volume continues in Byrd's later years the revelations of domestic life on a Virginia plantation offered in 'The Secret Diary of William Byrd of Westover, 1709-1712' [Book Review Digest, 1941]. . . In addition to Byrd's diary from 1739-1741, this book contains a curious set of more than fifty letters to various English worthies in high life, a dozen 'characters' . . . several 'poems,' 'A Discourse Concerning the Plague,' first printed in London in 1721, a humorous essay, 'The Female Creed,' and various other oddments." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by T. J. Wertenbaker
Am Hist R 49:108 O '43 550w

Reviewed by J. H. Powers
Boston Globe p19 Ja 13 '43 400w

Reviewed by Grace Adams
Nation 156:390 Mr 13 '43 390w

Reviewed by H. I. Brock
N Y Times p12 Ja 24 '43 1150w

"If you have a taste for minor eighteenth-century satire, you may enjoy some of this."
New Yorker 18:52 Ja 2 '43 90w

"The material is humanly interesting (that is, if taken in small doses) and is valuable to the historian of Virginia life, but as entertainment it is monotonous." H. M. Jones
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:20 Ja 23 '43 700w

Reviewed by Richardson Wright
Weekly Book Review p18 Ap 25 '43 1250w

C

C., S. M. Children under fire; notes of a teacher in a war-time school. 65p $1.50 Longmans

940.53161 World war, 1939—Children 43-14679

A Catholic nun, a teacher in an English country school, describes her activities during the months when children were being evacuated from heavily bombed areas. Altho no very heavy raids came their way, a direct hit was sustained on the school but no lives were lost.

Christian Century 60:1042 S 15 '43 30w

Reviewed by Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p19 S 12 '43 380w

"The book is a calm, steady, not unhumorous report of the steadying effect on children, under such testing conditions, of religious belief and the practice of religion."
+ Weekly Book Review p20 S 19 '43 220w

CABELL, JAMES BRANCH, and HANNA, ALFRED JACKSON. The St Johns; a parade of diversities; il. by Doris Lee. (Rivers of America) 324p map $2.50 Farrar

917.59 St Johns river. Florida—History 43-11511

The subject of this book in a notable series is the St Johns river of Florida and the lives of men and women who have lived on its banks. The authors are a well-known America novelist and a professor of history at Rollins College. Bibliography. Index.

"Unlike most other books in the series, 'The St. Johns' was designed to emphasize the 'gaudy and well-nigh incredible past' of the river over its present. . . The experiment is felicitous, its product fresh and different enough to warrant further experiments in the Rivers of America books forthcoming." August Derleth
+ Book Week p4 S 5 '43 500w

Booklist 40:8 S '43

"Recommended for general purchase." J. M. Brittan
+ Library J 68:665 S 1 '43 110w

"'The St. Johns' begins with a dedication to the memory of Stephen Vincent Benét, 'who invented the collaboration from which this book springs,' and ends with an epilogue of altercation between the collaborators. Yet out of their divergent opinions has come a far better book than either could have written alone." Stetson Kennedy
+ N Y Times p7 S 5 '43 700w

"Rich material, but Mr. Cabell's elegant archaisms sometimes slow it up. Effective sketches by Doris Lee."
+ — New Yorker 19:78 S 4 '43 80w

Reviewed by C. B. Firestone
Sat R of Lit 26:7 S 11 '43 850w

Reviewed by L. B. Hill
Springf'd Republican p7e O 10 '43 700w

"The epilogue brings the history of the river up to date. If the modern characters are dull, that is not the fault of Cabell or of Hanna. The narrative of the St. Johns transcends any immediate mediocrity. Delightful illustrations by Doris Lee carry out the scholarship of Hanna and the wicked insight of Cabell." M. K. Rawlings
+ Weekly Book Review p3 S 5 '43 950w
Wis Lib Bul 39:157 D '43

CADOUX, CECIL JOHN. Historic mission of Jesus; a constructive reexamination of the eschatological teaching in the synoptic Gospels. 376p $3 Harper [21s Lutterworth press]

232.9 Jesus Christ—Person and offices. Kingdom of God 43-51249

A new interpretation of the history and authority of Jesus, based on the synoptic Gospels. The author is an English scholar. Index of scriptural passages, and a subject-index.

Booklist 40:1 S '43

Reviewed by C. T. Craig
Christian Century 60:1265 N 3 '43 600w

"As was to be expected, this is a scholarly and painstaking piece of work, and is likely to take its place with other notable attempts to settle the problem of the person of Jesus, of his relation to the Kingdom of God, and of when he expected it to come." F. J. Moore
+ Churchman 157:18 N 1 '43 260w

"To name the author is to assure the reader that the evidence will be clearly, honestly and exhaustively surveyed. Every serious student will welcome a contribution to our understanding of the gospels, in which the results of a comprehensive enquiry are presented with an engaging candour and a marked independence of judgement." H. G. Wood
+ Hibbert J 40:393 Jl '42 1650w

"If this book is a partly veiled plea for pacifism, it surely fails to establish that voluntary submission to the evil oppressor will achieve the social ends which we all presumably want. Paul and the orthodox generally have been far more just to Jesus on that score. In spite of [some] objections to the author's position, it must be urged that the volume is a real contribution to New Testament scholarship, meriting patient consideration by all persons interested in the historical and religious validity of the Gospels. Basic problems are clearly defined, and the answers proposed are reasonable, if not always satisfying. Copious quotation from the New Testament and secondary sources bewilders the reader at first glance, but the materials are conveniently organized and frequently summarized." A. L. Jamison
+ — J Religion 22:324 Jl '42 1150w

"Dr. Cadoux is always scholarly and objective, and one senses also underlying sympathy in his use of literary sources. Research takes him back to first century, but from it emerges a figure with central and fundamental significance for grave international situation and the wider question of social redemption. Heartily recommended for all types of library." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 68:570 Jl '43 110w

"So far as the structure of the Synoptic Gospels and the dates of their component parts are concerned, Dr. Cadoux is a grateful and whole-hearted disciple of the Four-Document Hypothesis propounded by the late Canon Streeter. In the exposition of his own particular theme he has made great use of the contributions of Dr. Albert Schweitzer and Dr. C. H. Dodd, though at certain points he dissents very sharply from them. The whole book, however, has been based upon exceptionally wide reading and is in every way an extremely fresh and illuminating piece of work. This must be said despite a strong pacifist tendency in the interpretation, which may not at all times commend itself to the reader."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p52 Ja 31 '42 1750w

CAHALANE, VICTOR HARRISON. Meeting the mammals; with drawings by Walter A. Weber [prepared under the auspices of the Nat. park service and the Fish and wildlife service, U.S. dept. of the interior]. 133p il $1.75 Macmillan

599 Mammals 43-8053

A guidebook to the animals of our national parks. For each of more than sixty mammals the author gives a black and white sketch, an informal account of life and habits, a more technical paragraph of "distinguishing characteristics," and a list of parks and monuments where found. Map on end papers shows areas of the National park system west of the Mississippi.

CAHALANE, V. H.—Continued

Bookmark 4:7 My '43

"Authoritative and entertainingly written, and enhanced by Walter A. Weber's brilliant drawings, 'Meet the Mammals' is an attractive and valuable guide." Anita Moffett
+ N Y Times p20 Je 27 '43 500w

CAIN, JAMES MALLAHAN. Three of a kind. 327p $2.75 Knopf
43-4312

Three short novels: Career in C Major presents the story of a woman who thought she should have a musical career, but whose husband surprised her by being a better singer; Double Indemnity is about a "perfect" insurance murder; and The Embezzler concerns a young bank official and the wife of a dishonest teller.

"Cain's style—grit, gore and gusty lustiness —is as timely as war news, his plots are almost as exciting, and the nearest architectural analogy that comes to mind is a mile-high, outdoor juke box." A. C. Spectorsky
Book Week p5 My 9 '43 120w

"Intense, tightly woven, interest-keeping stories, even though strangely similar characters promiscuously perform in each. Originally published a few years ago in Liberty and American Magazine, they are modified Cain but still hard-boiled." H. G. Kelley
Library J 68:327 Ap 15 '43 90w

"Validity in art is recognized by the after-effect, and the after-effect of a Cain book is a half-angry feeling of having been gypped, of having picked up the April Fool pocketbook or having cried over 'Mother Machree.' This is not to say that Mr. Cain's art is not important in its own peculiar way, or that it is mere hammock reading. Rather it is something to read in the Iron Virgin, for at its best the intensity of suspense successfully anaesthetizes all other senses and might even induce a trance. This special trick entitles the practitioner to a turban rather than laurels, but very likely Mr. Cain can get along well enough without his greens." Dawn Powell
— + Nation 156:744 My 22 '43 900w

"When Mr. Cain's faults have all been pointed out—and the principal one is that character doesn't matter much in his writing —the pertinent fact remains: when he is at the top of his form it is all but impossible to put down the story he is telling." J. K. Hutchens
N Y Times p7 Ap 18 '43 700w
New Yorker 19:79 Ap 24 '43 80w

"No other author can equal the terrifically fast pace of these stories. Few others have the same command of dialog and vernacular. His great skill and flexibility in the first person form is astonishing. The only thing that saves these stories, however, from the pulp magazine or 'Grand Guignol' level is this technical virtuosity." Lee Varley
— + Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 18 '43 600w
Time 41:100 My 24 '43 450w

Reviewed by Milton Hindus
Weekly Book Review p10 Ap 18 '43 700w

CALAMANDREI, PIERO. Eulogy of judges; tr. by John Clarke Adams and C. Abbott Phillips, jr. 121p $2 Princeton univ. press
340.9 Judges. Lawyers 43-2191

A volume of maxims, anecdotes, brief comments on law and justice, by a professor of legal procedure at the University of Florence.

"A wise and beautiful piece of literature. The author is a professor of law in the University of Florence. His temper is that of the Italy we used to know and love."
+ Christian Century 60:52 Ja 13 '43 70w

Reviewed by Paolo Milano
Nation 156:280 F 20 '43 500w

CALDWELL, CYRIL CASSIDY. Air power and total war. 244p $2.50 Coward-McCann
623.74 Aeronautics, Military. World war, 1939—Aerial operations 43-11671

A survey of the part aviation has played in World war II, summarizing arguments pro and con in such controversies as have arisen over questions of all-out air attack, independence of air force, etc. Bibliography.

" 'Air Power and Total War' is the best air warfare book written by an American. It not only covers all sides of its topic without bias; it is better written than the previous books." J. I. Greene
+ Book Week p9 Ag 8 '43 500w
Booklist 40:5 S '43

"Mr. Caldwell's study of the airplane and total war is a refreshingly honest and temperate investigation of the record of the plane from the attack on Poland to the present bombing of Germany. All the major campaigns are discussed in concise, readable, informative fashion. Of special interest, perhaps, are the chapters on the Battle of Britain, the war in the Far East, from Pearl Harbor to Singapore, and the bombing of Germany. But the reader who expects to find startling revelations here will be disappointed." Elting Morison
+ N Y Times p4 Ag 1 '43 500w
New Yorker 19:63 Jl 31 '43 70w

"For more than a generation Cy Caldwell has been part of the tradition of American aviation. To the aviation fraternity he is a familiar figure who has spoken both loudly and boldly more than once in favor of the military radicals who saw the destiny of future warfare written in the skies. His present volume as he is at pains to inform the reader, was written 'after the fine fury of youth had evaporated' and Mr. Caldwell 'had cooled off.' This, I think, is the great weakness which mars an otherwise fine book." W. B. Ziff
+ — Weekly Book Review p10 Ag 15 '43 1150w

CALDWELL, ERSKINE. Georgia boy. 239p $2 Duell
43-51137

Fourteen short stories about a Georgia white boy, William, his hard-working mother, and his shiftless but shrewd father, and Handsome Brown, the colored house-boy. Most of the stories describe Pa's machinations in pursuit of ready money, and as often as possible he blames his shortcomings on poor Handsome.

"Erskine Caldwell gives us here a pleasant, episodic account of the family of Stroup in the village of Sycamore. In 'Georgia Boy' the sociological overtones of 'Tobacco Road' and 'God's Little Acre' are considerably modified. Uncomfortable laughers at the comedy, not really comedy at all, of 'Tobacco Road' will find this present book less confusing. Its design is to entertain more than to instruct; whereas in Caldwell's other books on Georgia it has been a toss-up, and often the two possibilities have got in each other's way." Maurice Baudin, Jr.
+ Book Week p4 My 23 '43 500w
Booklist 39:368 My 15 '43

"Recommended." H. G. Kelley
+ Library J 68:327 Ap 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 156:713 My 15 '43 60w

"Other Southern writers, such as William Faulkner, have refracted their social satire through a child's mind with greater brilliance and depth; Mr. Caldwell himself has used children before as pure biblical symbols of fate in the making. 'Georgia Boy' can stand on its own special merits, for all that. This reviewer would have to go back to Huck Finn to find a more companionable story-teller than Pa Stroup's William." William Du Bois
+ N Y Times p6 Ap 25 '43 1000w

"Mr. Caldwell has a way of kicking a comic situation around until it turns into wild burlesque. With cruel or pathetic variations, he pulls it off a half-dozen times here, but it does get automatic in the end."
+ — New Yorker 19:74 My 1 '43 70w

"The stories are amusing, featherweight."
Time 41:104 My 3 '43 50w

"In this slight but neatly turned volume Mr. Caldwell goes back to the vein of his familiar 'Tobacco Road.' Compared to that famous study of repulsive white trash, the present effort seems a trifle pale, but nevertheless it is the real thing." Stanley Walker
+ — Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 25 '43 800w

Reviewed by Mark Schorer
Yale R n s 32:xii summer '43 110w

CALDWELL, JANET TAYLOR (MRS MARCUS REBACK) (MAX REINER, pseud). The arm and the darkness. 604p $3 Scribner

Richelieu, Armand Jean du Plessis, cardinal, duc de—Fiction 43-3709

Historical novel depicting French life, politics and religion in the time of Richelieu.

Booklist 39:333 Ap 15 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Ap '43

"Author likes the grand theme, historical pageantry, and is overfond of painting word pictures. For adult, discriminating reader." H. A. Wooster
+ — Library J 68:172 F 15 '43 70w

"Miss Caldwell was writing fiction and not history and her sense and presentation of the complex period with all its color and violence are admirable and convincing. Her concern with the deeper spiritual and philosophical implications of the period, too, raises the novel from a mere cloak-and-sword romance to the plane of the novel of ideas. One may read for pleasure (for a world of action is here) and one may read to think as well. 'The Arm and the Darkness' is in the best tradition and somewhat more than that." Herbert Gorman
+ N Y Times p6 Mr 14 '43 900w

"Because the novelist brings us to view with serenity and detachment a defunct quarrel, he also makes us realize the vanity of other quarrels, that are still alive. Such is, for instance, the effect on the reader of Tolstoy's 'War and Peace.' Yet, in order to achieve that result and to produce that impression of serenity, two conditions must be fulfilled. The book must be convincing and give us, rightly or wrongly, the illusion of historical truth, and the author must make us conscious of his own impartiality. I cannot say that 'The Arm and the Darkness' made me quite happy on either of these counts." André Maurois
Sat R of Lit 26:15 Ap 3 '43 650w

Reviewed by Lee Varley
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 14 '43 550w

"The tale, and with it the personality of Richelieu, is much over-written. Miss Caldwell presents a line of seventeenth century Protestant criticism that in point of fact is very much out of its time, and she does not hesitate to round off a generally improbable fiction with a similarly post-dated greeting to the American future."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p533 N 6 '43 360w

"Miss Caldwell gives us no stereotyped characters, though she does take sides. Her portrait of Richelieu is fairly and lucidly done. It would have been easy to draw the sinister figure of a power-greedy courtier and high cleric. She chose to make him human and doubtful of himself. . . The tension is well sustained, and many of the pages leave the reader with that particular gentle elation which is a sure sign that mind and soul have been fed." Felizia Seyd
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Mr 14 '43 750w

Wis Lib Bul 39:55 Ap '43

CALDWELL, JANET TAYLOR (MRS MARCUS REBACK) (MAX REINER, pseud). Turnbulls. 517p $3 Scribner 43-51262

"Another chronicle of the rise and fall of private dynasties. . . The story opens in London in 1850. Nineteen-year-old John Turnbull, turbulent, undisciplined, essentially generous, is tricked by a supposed friend, Andrew Bollister, into marriage with a barmaid and is sent by his father, a wealthy merchant, to America to redeem himself. . . John develops into a monomaniac, motivated solely by a devastating hate which drives him on to financial success even while it is destroying his soul. The latter part of the book deals largely with John's family and the schemes of his two sons-in-law, aided by their wives and abetted by the ubiquitous Mr. Wilkins, to bring about John's own financial ruin. It is his third daughter, Adelaide, whom he detests, who finally brings him salvation." Weekly Book Review

Booklist 40:47 O 1 '43

"Recommended." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 68:724 S 15 '43 50w

"Taylor Caldwell reflects life in a mirror of her own choosing. The reflection is at once strange and magnificently consistent, and must be accepted on its own terms or not at all." Margaret Wallace
N Y Times p5 S 19 '43 650w

"Miss Caldwell's characters would be remarkably unpleasant people if they were people at all, but in spite of the violence of their portrayal they never really seem credible. A novel innocent of any feeling for style, at its best recalling the more lush passages of Disraeli's works."
— New Yorker 19:82 S 25 '43 90w

"Since I was a boy and revelled in the highly-colored romances of Charles Reade and Wilkie Collins and Miss Braddon, in the more violently extravagant passages of their master, Charles Dickens, there have been few stories I have so enjoyed as this full-blooded tale of Miss Caldwell's. . . In the London section Miss Caldwell has been unpardonably careless: and I cannot understand why the publishers did not help her out. The first rule of good melodrama is that mere facts should be accurate: otherwise the reader's 'will to believe' is outraged." R. E. Roberts
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:19 O 9 '43 600w

"The author is not only a competent and artful builder of characters and events, but may always be counted upon to create a carefully authentic background. . . 'The Turnbulls' is a good story—not great or profound—but worth reading and thoroughly enjoyable from beginning to end."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 26 '43 400w

"It is not on subtle shadings of character that the book's interest depends. It is on the surge of events, the tumultuous series of dramatic encounters, the clash of wills. Taylor Caldwell makes things happen. Moreover, she is quite at home not only among the mazes of nineteenth-century finance, of which she writes with feeling and often with bitter irony, but also in the realm of manners and customs of the era. She uses her knowledge to weave as a background for the action a picture of life in New York in the 1860's. The result is a long, exciting, frequently moving tale that sustains its tension throughout." Jennings Rice
+ — Weekly Book Review p8 S 19 '43 950w

CALDWELL, WILLIAM THOMAS. Organic chemistry [under the editorship of Herman T. Briscoe]. 763p $4.25 Houghton

547 Chemistry, Organic 43-2248

"[This textbook has] been written with the purpose of setting forth the principles and methods of organic chemistry as clearly as possible and with such simplicity as is compatible with adequacy. Treatment of subject matter is designed to carry one who has a knowledge of general inorganic chemistry to a point where he can profitably use advanced texts dealing with specialized topics and the original literature of organic chemistry." Pref.

Reviewed by F. C. Nachod
Chem & Met Eng 50:218 N '43 90w

Library J 68:575 Jl '43 20w

CALLCOTT, WILFRID HARDY. Caribbean policy of the United States, 1890-1920. 524p $3.50 Johns Hopkins press

327.73 Caribbean sea. U.S.—Foreign relations—Latin America. Latin America—Foreign relations—U.S. 42-23787

"Professor Callcott's purpose is 'to focus attention on what the author feels to be the central theme of the foreign policy of the United States for the years indicated in the title.' By presenting a detailed account of our relations with the Caribbean states and also with Mexico, he seeks to show that the steps taken by successive administrations, despite variations in aims and methods, 'fell into a pattern and somewhat unconsciously formed a policy for the nation.' He traces this policy through several phases." Am Pol Sci R

"Professor Callcott sometimes seems more concerned with the purposes of those who directed American policy than with the story of what actually occurred. . . In dealing with such a complicated story and so vast an amount of material, the selection and presentation of the essential facts is, of course, a difficult matter. This is especially true because the author makes extensive use of manuscript material which has not hitherto been exploited in connection with the development of our Caribbean policy. His study of the papers of House, Knox, Lansing, Root, and Wilson—to mention only the more important collections of source material—have enabled him to throw new light on many incidents and to bring out more clearly the ideas and motives of those responsible for major decisions. It is this that gives the book its special interest." D. G. Munro

+ — Am Pol Sci R 37:148 F '43 650w

"Other scholars have already covered the ground, and Professor Callcott puts no new interpretation or imagination into his work which improves upon their labors. The sentence structure is often confusing. The punctuation is irregular and inconsistent, now stiff and calcified, now loose and inarticulate. The English is not of the best. The thumbnail critical comments on bibliography are too often hit-or-miss, or pure guesswork." S. F. Bemis

— Ann Am Acad 225:224 Ja '43 400w

CAMMAERTS, EMILE. Upon this rock. 118p $1 Harper [6s Cresset]

234.2 Faith 43-2589

Short and poignant record of a father's grief over the death of a son who had been a fighter pilot with the RAF. His conclusion is that the only way to counteract such sorrow is to meet it with undeviating Christian fortitude. The author is a Belgian poet, now teaching in the University of London.

"Many have had the experience of losing a son in the war . . . but few can be at once so sane and so articulate about that experience and can translate it into terms effective for the comforting of others who have had a similar grief."

+ Christian Century 60:298 Mr 10 '43 70w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Jl '43

"A charming character sketch of an unusually lovable and purposeful boy." B. S.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 1 '42 220w

"Of the relative worth of joy and sorrow there are two opinions in the world, and in different lives their proportion is different; some readers may value the human experience above the philosophic thought, while others find the thought absorbing. But every one should be impressed by the honesty of M. Cammaerts as he discarded the unworthy comforts which try to turn irrevocable loss into gain, either for the dead one or the bereaved. He seeks, religiously, a way out of an alternative passivity and despair which separates from the spirit."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p328 Jl 4 '42 400w

CAMP, WILLIAM MARTIN. Retreat, hell! 530p $3 Appleton-Century

43-15845

"Detailed account of war with the Japanese from Pearl Harbor through fall of Cavite, Bataan, and Corregidor. Characters are fictional, but action follows closely and accurately the development of the Philippine war." Library J

"Here is a challenge to all to read pages which spare the reader none of the agony of a major action. William Camp writes with the fury and passion and determination of a Marine facing hand-to-hand combat. He carves his sentences with the point of a bayonet, and he never uses euphemisms when four-letter Anglo-Saxon words will serve him better." Sterling North

Book Week p14 N 14 '43 250w

"Fine tribute to Marines and Philippine Scouts, but help of Army and Navy is also stressed. Vigorous, rapidly moving novel; rough language and rough living but expressing supreme determination of our fighting men to keep the enemy at bay until reenforcements should arrive—which, unhappily, never did. Not for the squeamish but recommended as antidote for complacency and fretting over ration points and gasoline shortage." L. R. Etzkorn

Library J 68:723 S 15 '43 100w

" 'Retreat, Hell!' is no book for the squeamish, nor for the isolationist. Its soldiers talk like soldiers, and its Filipinos die beside them for the same ideals. It is shocking, vivid and timely. One could wish, nevertheless, that the author, or his publishers, had not caused the words 'A Novel' to be printed on the title-page." Robert Wetzel

+ N Y Times p30 N 21 '43 550w

"The trouble with Mr Camp's book is that it lacks significance. It deals wholly with the surface of what happened to three individuals, and instead of purging the reader's emotions by pity and terror it actually demeans the great struggle which it tries to depict. Something more than familiarity with the physical scene and the ways of fighting men is necessary to produce a worthwhile war book. That extra something Mr Camp does not have in this his first novel." R. J. Conklin

— Springf'd Republican p7e D 5 '43 320w

"There is nothing nice about William Martin Camp's book. It is no tale for a squeamish reader. It has power, the fine strength of real indignation, and a background too graphic, in view of other reports from the men of Bataan, not to be largely true. . . This book is as readable as today's newspaper but it should last as part of the record of those men who have died in their country's defense." R. B. Cochrane

+ Weekly Book Review p3 N 14 '43 700w

CAMPBELL, FRANCIS STUART. Menace of the herd; or, Procrustes at large. (Science and culture ser) 398p maps $4 Bruce pub.

321.8 Democracy. Social psychology. Social conditions 43-5028

"This is a criticism of democracy by a Roman Catholic writer, and at the same time while it should not imply hierarchical authorization, it seems to be a Catholic program for America. It follows, on the whole, the well-known lines extending from herdism to volonté générale, and from inefficiency of democratic administration to the Montesquieu scheme of awards in a monarchy, an aristocracy, and a democracy. . . Interwoven with this criticism of democracy is a valuable report on National Socialism." Ann Am Acad

---

"These three-hundred-odd pages of intellectual muddle, logical contradiction, historical distortion, and sheer misrepresentation of contemporary fact defy summarization and detailed criticism." H. E. Jensen

— Am Soc R 8:482 Ag '43 1200w

"On the whole, this is a highly readable book, that should be read precisely because of the sting and spur it puts into the flank of democracy. Democracy, to use the Socratic simile, is a very big and very strong horse which, just because of its strength and bigness, tends to become lazy." Wladimir Eliasberg

+ — Ann Am Acad 230:239 N '43 650w

"In these times, of all times, and in this country, of all countries, it is revolting to find one so contemptuous of the common man as is Campbell." Leo Kennedy
— Book Week p2 My 23 '43 450w

"The book has many faults. This does not stand in the way of the assertion that it is well worth the reading for anyone who has sufficient philosophy to recognize thoughts without their labels and to weigh substantives without their customary adjectives. Mr. Campbell approaches his theme with abundant and considered learning and with a critical power of diagnosis that is by no means ordinary. His style and language sometimes suggest Spengler. His theme and opinion recall Ortega y Gasset. But he is not a Spenglerian, because not a determinist, and his considerations on the masses are not borrowed from Ortega but have their own independence of approach and of illustration." J. K. Cartwright
+ — Cath World 157:441 Jl '43 1050w

"The author is a man of many opinions—all of them avowedly conservative, monarchist, Catholic and anti-democratic. He does not like democracy and, with a great show of learning, he is anxious to explain the grounds for his distemper. He displays a grotesque ability to bend facts to his will." R. K. Merton
Pol Sci Q 58:637 D '43 550w

"In all sober truth, one has difficulty in discerning what Mr. Campbell's views are. He has a wholly disconcerting habit of devoting most of his time to skipping about in religion, history, politics and a dozen more realms, so that the reader who attempts to follow him is left breathless with the exercise." G. N. Shuster
— + Weekly Book Review p16 My 9 '43 800w

CAMPBELL, FREDERICK HARPER, comp. Chemical dictionary. 85p $2.50 Chemical pub. co. [5s 6d Tait]

540.3 Chemistry—Dictionaries 42-11749

"Compact dictionary containing chemical terms commonly used." N Y New Tech Bks

"The definitions are often explanatory and informative. A student of chemistry in high school or college would be able to add considerably to his store of special knowledge by a careful study of this book page by page." W. A. Boughton
+ Am Chem Soc J 64:2519 O '42 180w
N Y New Tech Bks 27:23 Ap '42

CAMPBELL, MRS GRACE MACLENNAN (GRANT). Thorn-apple tree [wood engr. by Franklin Carmichael]. 230p $2.50 Duell
43-51037

A tale of frontier and pioneer life in Canada one hundred years ago. It is the story of two people, the woman with a love for home and a settled life; the man with a constant urging ever to be moving out into the wilderness in search of adventure and wealth.

Booklist 39:275 Mr 1 '43
Bookmark 4:18 Mr '43

"Out of memories nurtured by memories, Grace Campbell, Canadian writer, has fashioned a simple, heart-warming tale about her forebears. . . With an austerity of expression which holds the clear rhythms of poetry, she brings to life the color and drama of pioneer existence in the early nineteenth century. Her narrative flows smoothly, the incidents free of embellishment of sentimentality or artificial conflict or climax; her characters become people of flesh and blood through virtue of their integrity." Rose Feld
+ Books p4 F 7 '43 650w

"I cannot agree with those who say that this will be a Canadian classic in the sense that it will be read and enjoyed a hundred years from now. Nevertheless, it is a quiet book to pick up and read to pass the evening." M. I. T.
+ — Canadian Forum 22:286 D '42 550w

"For far away and long ago Grace Campbell does a competent job in her current Canadian best-seller. Her pioneers are Scotch, brave, resourceful and their land has its own wild beauty and appeal. Her Scotch-Canadian community becomes very real in its own simple way. And what holds it all together is a fictional recipe that never fails if at all competent—the trials and victory of true love. 'The Thorn-Apple Tree' has little specific connection with the present day, but it is none the less absorbing. In format it is charming." + Commonweal 37:474 F 26 '43 200w

Reviewed by Eileen Riols
Library J 68:213 Mr 1 '43 50w

"A small but very gracious restoration of Scottish-Canadian life a century ago." Diana Trilling
+ Nation 156:320 F 27 '43 10w

"The great distinction of 'Thorn-Apple Tree', like its charming and restrained style, in the faint flavor of Scottish idiom running through it, is its grave simplicity and truth. It is not a book which clamors loudly for attention; it may not, indeed, seem in these times like a very important book. But it is a book in which both feeling and accent are superbly right." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p7 Ja 31 '43 800w
Wis Lib Bul 39:73 My '43

CAMPBELL, HARRIETTE (RUSSELL) lady. Magic makes murder. 258p $2 Harper 43-5113

Detective story.

"The magic is fine and so are characterizations and general atmosphere, but the middle stretch bogs down a bit with talk about alibis." Elizabeth Bullock
+ — Book Week p11 My 2 '43 180w
Bookmark 4:20 My '43

"An absorbing story of a household dominated by a man of one idea." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p12 Ap 25 '43 120w

"Brade's original method of detecting plus background full of black magic, etc., and interesting group of characters make good reading. Unusual."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:54 Ap 17 '43 40w

Reviewed by Baron Ireland
— Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 18 '43 210w

"This one has oodles of picturesque, scary and generally readable material, whatever you may think of the tall solution." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p24 Ap 11 '43 270w

CAMPBELL, MRS HELEN JONES. Case for Mrs Surratt. 272p $3 Putnam

B or 92 Surratt, Mrs Mary Eugenia (Jenkins) 43-12884

A restatement of the case against Mary Surratt, who was one of the four people hung for complicity in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln. The author believes that Mrs Surratt was innocent. Her statement of the case is in the guise of fiction, no footnotes, bibliography or index being included.

Booklist 40:77 N 1 '43

Reviewed by Paul Kiniery
Commonweal 39:51 O 29 '43 170w

"There are so many angles to the case, beyond those which directly touched the narrow and sheltered life of Mary Surratt, that it would have been easy to blur the picture. It would have been equally easy to overdraw it. . . Mrs. Campbell has done neither of these things. She writes clearly and sympathetically, but always temperately—much the best course when the facts speak so eloquently for them-

CAMPBELL, HELEN JONES—Continued
selves. The result is the fullest and most warmly personal story of Mary Surratt anyone has given us . . . but unfortunately 'The Case for Mrs. Surratt' is told as if it were a novel, with hardly a footnote in its whole length, and without index or bibliography. Perhaps this omission of excess academic baggage has made the book more readable—a quality in which undeniably it scores high. But it is hard to see how an appendix could have hurt it much, and it would have been more substantial for the addition." Margaret Wallace

+ — N Y Times p10 S 5 '43 650w

"The difficulty with all these efforts to clear the woman and reverse the military commission which judged her guilty is that they have been emotional rather than historical or legalistic. Helen Jones Campbell, for instance, thinks she has new light to shed upon the case, and she lists in a foreword a dozen or so current individuals, soldiers, clergymen, professors and relatives of the dead woman, as persons who have given her information. But who gave her what or under what circumstances she does not say, ignoring entirely either the idea of footnotes or textual discussion of the new testimony. She follows the fictional method in arguing her case, injecting a great deal of dialogue and conversation without revealing her sources, and thereby falls into the error which she insists is the main weakness of the military commission—the improper examination of witnesses. Perhaps Mrs. Surratt was illegally sent to her doom but she cannot be cleared by the same method." Lloyd Lewis

Weekly Book Review p18 O 3 '43 1200w

CAMPBELL, MARY ELIZABETH. Scandal has two faces. 284p $2 Doubleday
43-15843

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p14 O 17 '43 140w
New Yorker 19:88 O 2 '43 70w

"Here's aid and comfort for mystery readers who feel they can't stand any more tripe. Miss Campbell, a new writer and a decided find, offers a university murder tale compounded of lifelike professors, ditto students, smooth detection, Grade A wordage and whatever else you need for a blissful and literate session of shudders." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p30 O 3 '43 370w

CAMPBELL, MILDRED LUCILE. The English yeoman under Elizabeth and the early Stuarts. 453p $3.75 Yale univ. press

914.2 Great Britain—Social life and customs. Country life—England. Agriculture—England A43-652

A scholarly study of that class of Englishmen known as yeomen, in which the author attempts some answers to the questions: "Who the yeomen really were, how they helped to shape or were in turn affected by contemporary developments, and what actually was the pattern of their lives at the time when they were a significant factor in English society." (Introd) Bibliographical note. Index.

"Certainly the germs of decay were actively at work in the period of which Miss Campbell writes. But she does not appear to be aware of it. From all that she has to say, we might well conclude that the yeomen in 1650 were just as numerous, just as prosperous, and just as independent as ever they had been. She has her eye too entirely upon the few who were steadily mounting into the ranks of the gentry, not enough upon the many who were steadily descending through the ranks of the husbandmen into the ranks of the landless agricultural laborers. But it will never do to end upon a note of censure. This is a book of first-rate importance to every student of English society. It is almost the first of its kind for the period under consideration. For that reason it will serve as an admirable pattern for research in analogous fields. No student of English social history hereafter will dare ignore the riches concealed in local archives, in star chamber records, and in exchequer and chancery depositions. And no one will dare aver that the study of a social class in seventeenth century England, difficult though it may be, is an impossible task." Conyers Read

+ — Am Hist R 48:777 Jl '43 800w
Am Soc R 8:247 Ap '43 80w
Christian Century 60:297 Mr 10 '43 230w

"Miss Campbell's masterly study of the yeoman in the Elizabethan and Stuart periods should remove some common errors about English social life. . . Professor Campbell's book is very fully documented, and is the fruit of profound research and a thorough grasp of her period—rarely does one meet a book of such scholarship which also shows so instinctive an understanding of the lives and manners of our ancestors." R. E. Roberts

+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 F 20 '43 550w

CAMPBELL, OSCAR JAMES. Shakespeare's satire. 227p $3.75 Oxford

822.33 Shakespeare, William. Satire
[43-7645]

"In the many-faceted career of William Shakespeare, the phase last to be acknowledged by scholars is that Shakespeare was a satirical writer. Oscar James Campbell, in this study establishes him, for the first time, as such and places him in relationship with other satiric writers of his day. In doing so, Prof Campbell has removed some of the confusion that has surrounded the most puzzling of Shakespeare's plays. He has classified 'Troilus and Cressida,' 'Timon of Athens' and 'Coriolanus' as tragical satire and as the 'culmination of the poet's earlier satiric impulses.' " Springf'd Republican

Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt
Commonweal 38:351 Jl 23 '43 900w

" 'Shakespeare's Satire' contains material of genuine interest to all serious students, in fact to all intelligent readers of Shakespeare. . . Valuable and stimulating as his study of Shakespeare is, one could wish that Professor Campbell had explained more clearly why he chose certain passages as being definitely related to the spirit of Renaissance satire, and omitted other passages which may seem to readers of Shakespeare to be equally and sometimes more satiric in tone than those singled out for comment." Paul Mueschke

+ — N Y Times p22 Ag 1 '43 550w

"Few will read this little book without turning once again to the plays of Shakespeare's 'dark period,' which are dark in so many ways. And many will find in them a new and significant truth." John Corbin

+ Sat R of Lit 26:34 Je 19 '43 1050w
Springf'd Republican p8 Je 3 '43 550w
Theatre Arts 27:629 O '43 350w

"Interesting and stimulating study." S. C. Chew

+ Weekly Book Review p18 Je 6 '43 1000w

CAMPBELL, SAMUEL ARTHUR. How's Inky? a porcupine and his pals offer some highlights on happiness; il. by Bob Kuhn. 135p $1.50 Bobbs

591.5 Animals, Legends and stories of 43-15000

"Inky is a porcupine, who along with Bobette, a fawn, Rack and Ruin, twin raccoons, and Sausage, a ground hog, have been adopted by the author and his friends. They all live in the Sanctuary, a game refuge in the North woods. Mr. Campbell, in relating incidents and animal behavior in the Sanctuary, draws lessons for his readers in character building and happiness." Library J

"An animal story that is packed with humor, philosophy, sympathy and kindliness. It is not a story for children alone, any more than it is for grandfathers alone. It is for anyone who likes animals, and I'm willing to wager that once you've started reading the amusing story of Inky, you won't lay it down till you're through." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p6 N 14 '43 180w

"The descriptions of the woods and animals are well done, but it is doubtful whether young readers like this very obvious way of teaching. However, parents and teachers may find the book useful. Recommend only for limited purchase." Dorothy Lawson

+ — Library J 68:893 N 1 '43 110w

CAMPBELL, WILLIAM EDWARD MARCH (WILLIAM MARCH, pseud). Looking-glass. 346p $2.50 Little

43-158

Psychoanalytic methods applied to the inhabitants of a cross section of Reedyville, Alabama, the time being mostly prior to 1917. Among the leading characters in the novel are Wesley Boutwell, lovable but a ne'er-do-well; Manny Nelloha, the junkman's son, obsessed with the idea that he had colored blood; Clarry Palmiller, a lovely blond, with whom Manny was secretly in love; Minnie McInnis McMinn, society editor of the Reedyville Courier; Professor St Joseph, principal of the high school; and Mattress May, proprietor of the town's leading brothel.

"As lively and humorous an American novel as any I know of its order—which might be called the Spoon River genre. Here is a fresh galaxy of Reedyville folks threading their several ways through a pattern which makes uncommon good sense as a piece of artistry. Along with many others, I have always been greatly interested in Mr. March's Reedyville, which reminds me occasionally of Sherwood Anderson's immemorial Winesburg, Ohio." F. T. Marsh

+ Books p6 Ja 17 '43 800w

"Life in a small town can be many things, sometimes commonplace and sometimes abnormal, and it is with the abnormalities of an Alabama town called Reedyville that William March is concerned in his new novel. A short-story writer of considerable note, Mr. March has carried his concise and imagistic writing over into the novel field with little difficulty."

Boston Globe p15 F 17 '43 200w

"Life histories of group of unbalanced citizens are covered, mostly during years prior to 1917, though story weakly concludes in the present. Air of unreality, heightened by intrusion of author on scenes, pervades book. Nevertheless, those who enjoyed Bellaman's King's Row will like this." H. G. Kelley

— + Library J 68:35 Ja 1 '43 70w

"Mr. March is rather too coy with his psychopathology to hold even our morbid interest. One's chief response to 'The Looking Glass' is irritation with its author; Mr. March's novel fails to support the consideration his short stories seem to have earned for him." Diana Trilling

— Nation 156:172 Ja 30 '43 180w

"'The Looking Glass,' although probably not so remarkable a novel as 'Come in at the Door,' is remarkable enough, and contains spots that are better than anything March has done before. It is a pleasure to read a writer with a knowledge of his craft and so full an awareness of the material he is manipulating. William Faulkner had better look to his laurels." S. E. Hyman

+ New Repub 108:187 F 8 '43 1000w

"Mr. March has devoted some of his best writing to this long and devious study. As always, he can give vibrant color to the simple things of life. . . Nor has he lost any of his knack for exuberant simile. . . 'The Looking Glass' is excellent in parts; it is hard to report that its total effect is unrewarding. But these people seldom react upon each other; for the most part they move down lonely grooves of their own, with no sustained emotional conflict to lift them out of their preoccupation with the abnormal." William du Bois

— + N Y Times p4 Ja 10 '43 1200w

"Once you have fought your way through Mr. March's time sequences, or non-sequences, and decided to ignore his occasional entanglements in a flossy prose that is not really characteristic of him, you'll become acquainted with a remarkable portrait gallery. Odd fish—slightly decayed, generally—are Mr. March's specialty. He brings to them exceptional psychological acumen, being particularly good when dealing with people who are frustrated or tottering on the verge of lunacy." Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 18:48 Ja 9 '43 310w

CANBY, HENRY SEIDEL. Walt Whitman, an American; a study in biography. 381p $3.75 Houghton

B or 92 Whitman, Walt 43-16297

"Mr. Canby focuses attention primarily on Whitman's mind, not on the external events of his career, and he identifies Whitman's mentality with that negative capability of the born artist which Keats described in a famous letter. The slow-moving poet, in other words, was a mental sponge, 'absorbing a million people, for fifteen years,' as he said of his life as a journalist in Brooklyn and Manhattan. Consequently, Mr. Canby looks for the clews to Whitman's development in the America where he matured." (Weekly Book Review) Selective bibliography. Index.

"Anyone interested in this great poet and his work, or concerned with the cause of freedom and democracy, or with the problem of the rights of the individual will enjoy this fascinating biography." Walter Hendricks

+ Book Week p1 N 21 '43 1100w

Booklist 40:144 D 15 '43

Reviewed by Pearl Strachan

Christian Science Monitor p9 D 31 '43 1000w

"This book is written not in a mood of hero-worship but with that warmth of affection which Whitman somehow awakens in all who come close to him, even by means of the printed page. . . Mr. Canby's book is least satisfactory in what it says, and does not say, about Whitman's style. . . Whitman's style, both in prose and verse, is often magnificent, but one can guess why Mr. Canby has here paid it comparatively little attention. The important things about Whitman, at any rate to us at the present time, are of another sort." Odell Shepard

+ — Nation 157:700 D 11 '43 1450w

"Few books about Whitman are dull, and this one is to a high degree interesting and challenging. I find it also irritating." John Erskine

+ — N Y Times p5 N 7 '43 1450w

"A sensitive, highly useful, and of course thoroughly scholarly biographical study of Whitman as artist and personality, and particularly of his grandeur and limitations as a pioneer spokesman of the central theme of American democracy."

+ New Yorker 19:108 N 6 '43 50w

"When in 1905 Whitman's English biographer, Henry Bryan Binns, published the first comprehensive study of the poet, he remarked in his Preface: 'Though Whitman died thirteen years ago, the time has not yet come for a final and complete life to be written; and when the hour shall arrive we must, I think, look to some American interpreter for the volume.' It is now forty-one years since Whitman died, and the biography Binns hoped would some day be written has arrived." Willard Thorp

+ Sat R of Lit 26:3 N 13 '43 1150w

"Henry Seidel Canby writes with force and perspicacity and, as is perhaps fitting for his subject, a large degree of colloquial looseness. He believes in his subject, he believes in democracy and in Whitman's interpretation of it, and he is a trained scholar and skillful and experienced author. The result is an extraordinarily fine biographical study of one of our genuinely great American citizens, aimed not at an academic audience but at the great American public, which can ill afford to miss such a significant and provocative work." R. J. Conklin

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 14 '43 1150w

Time 42:98 D 6 '43 1400w

CANBY, HENRY SEIDEL—Continued
"Mr. Canby has written worthily of a great and demanding subject. 'When you read Whitman,' he says, 'think of the Bible first and of Longfellow not at all.' It is sage advice." G. F. Whicher
+ Weekly Book Review p5 N 7 '43 2000w
Wis Lib Bul 40:8 Ja '44

CANNON, JAMES J. Sergeant says; ed. by Frank Sullivan; with a foreword by Paul Gallico. 254p $2.50 Knopf
355.12 U.S.—Army—Military life 43-667

Selections from the author's column in PM picturing the life of the American soldier in camp. The author, before he entered the army, had a varied journalistic career which included crime reporting and sports.

Booklist 39:285 Mr 15 '43

"The sergeant's book contains a lot of sound advice to young soldiers and to civilians as well. There are bits of acute observation. Some soothsayers are already predicting that his little volume will outsell all the other war books. They could be right." Stanley Walker
+ Books p10 F 7 '43 650w

"While not so funny as Hargrove's nor so factual as Kahn's, this combination of hints to civilians and to draftees, reminiscences of World War I, and philosophical discussions is extremely interesting." E. P. Potter
+ Library J 68:33 Ja 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by S. E. Hyman
New Repub 108:254 Mr 15 '43 120w

"Sergeant Cannon is at his best when he presents people in a phrase or a line. . . If the book has a fault it lies in the fact that every one in it—camp librarian, prizefighter, hoofer, old soldier or tired jade—talks as Sergeant Cannon talks. Every interview has Cannon flavor, a sharp seasoning of Broadway slang." Meyer Berger
+ — N Y Times p5 Ja 31 '43 1200w

"These vignettes of life at Fort Dix are a nice blend of character, humor, poetic sentiment, and exhortation."
+ New Yorker 18:62 Ja 30 '43 50w

CANT, GILBERT. America's navy in World war II; with photographs and battle diagrams by the author. 432p $3.75 Day
940.545973 World war, 1939—Naval operations 43-9941

Continuation of the author's The War at Sea (Book Review Digest, 1942). It is an account of the service of the United States navy beginning with Pearl Harbor, covering American naval actions in the Atlantic, Pacific, and Mediterranean, up to the sinking of the Chicago, off Guadalcanal, in January, 1943. An appendix gives a list of decorations of World war II up to December 31, 1942. Bibliography. Index.

"Occasionally one struggles through heavy passages which better editing might have eliminated; but these are blessedly few, and my complaint is therefore small stuff. Actually, this book will serve us very well until time provides the necessary perspective for the real, honest-to-goodness history of our Navy in the present conflict." Christopher Hall
+ — Book Week p7 Ag 15 '43 230w
Booklist 40:8 S '43
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 14 '43 750w

"Thoroughly competent military critics are rare. When, in addition, these men have a knack of writing interestingly, their material is worthy not only of being read but of being studied closely. As one of the handful of men in the United States with these attainments, Mr. Cant has the further advantage of having been in an especially good position, as war editor of the New York Post, to know details of naval war which, though not secret, have been omitted from the brief and unimaginative communiqués of our 'silent service.' . . The scope of Mr. Cant's latest book alone sets it apart from the great majority of war books." D. W. Mitchell
+ Nation 157:356 S 25 '43 1000w

"As fine a piece of current war history as this reviewer has read. . . The author brings to his task a high standard of scholarship and criticism. He has sifted communiqués, eyewitness stories and all other available evidence. He has consulted with the officers of several navies. From all this he has put together a brilliant narrative which makes absorbing reading. His style is dignified and unemotional. And so skillful is his literary technique that the story seems to tell itself." Harold Sprout
+ New Repub 109:204 Ag 9 '43 650w

"Sensibly critical, well written, and scrupulously detailed, this is a valuable job."
+ New Yorker 19:63 Jl 24 '43 100w

Reviewed by R. G. Albion
Sat R of Lit 26:14 N 13 '43 380w

"An excellent narrative, prefaced with some well-digested criticism." R. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 8 '43 1050w

"This new book has the qualities of excellence which distinguished Gilbert Cant's earlier 'The War at Sea' from run-of-the-mill accounts of the present conflict. . . In spite of the handicaps imposed by naval censorship . . . and, in a few instances, by inaccurate informants, the bulk of his book will doubtless provide for future historians a valuable point of departure. Even in proof, corrections were made by the author to include information permitted by recent Navy news releases; but there remain inevitable gaps in the story." R. F. Armknecht
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 1 '43 1350w

"This book is useful as a trail-breaking job, and moving in its many quotations of official citations for gallantry. The naval war in the Pacific is an epic chapter in the record of naval warfare. Mr. Cant does us a service in tackling, unafraid, the monumental task of reducing it to words." Paul Schubert
+ — Yale R n s 33:356 winter '44 1300w

CARFRAE, ELIZABETH. We who wait; they also serve who only stand and wait. 282p $2 Putnam 43-8186

Life in a small English village during the early stages of the present war is described in this quiet story of ordinary people, going about their duties during bombings, and accepting their fate with courage.

"The story is told in a chatty, almost gossipy way that makes it read like a true account of real people." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p14 Je 27 '43 260w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p17 Jl 11 '43 230w

CARLISLE, NORMAN V., ed. How planes fly; prepared by Aviation research associates; il. by Thomas F. Lubé. (Young America's aviation lib) 64p $1 Harper
629.13 Aeronautics—Juvenile literature
43-16845

"One of several titles in Young America's aviation library, a group of books designed to provide basic information on technical aeronautical subjects. This book explains, very simply, with the aid of experiments and drawings, exactly how an airplane flies. Includes a glossary. Grades 4-7." Booklist

Booklist 40:150 D 15 '43

"A simple and yet scientific approach for beginners in aviation." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 20:46 Ja '44 60w

"Simply written and illustrated with diagrams. The most clearcut introduction to the fundamentals of aviation for readers ten and over which has yet been published." Dorotha Dawson
+ Library J 68:1050 D 15 '43 40w

"Basic, non-technical explanations, with diagrams and drawings as understandable as the text."
+ New Yorker 19:134 D 4 '43 20w

CARLISLE, NORMAN V. Wartime opportunities for men. 205p il $2.50 Dutton
355 U.S.—Army. U.S.—Navy. Occupations 43-13774

Vocational opportunities open to boys and young men in the army, the navy, the air forces, the merchant marine, war factories, and professional services. Index.

Booklist 40:71 N 1 '43

"Should be very useful book for any boy about to be inducted. . . In most cases, preparation for the man's postwar future is stressed. Younger boys will enjoy this book as they are very much interested in details about the services. Every young people's collection ought to have a copy." Alice Vielehr
+ Library J 68:848 O 15 '43 70w
Springf'd Republican p6 N 26 '43 80w
Weekly Book Review p12 O 10 '43 200w
Wis Lib Bul 39:141 N '43

CARLISLE, NORMAN V. Your career in chemistry; with a pref. by C. M. A. Stine. 251p il $2.50 Dutton
660 Chemistry, Technical 43-5174

Study of opportunities in the field of chemistry, written for high school and college students. Covers agricultural chemistry, forest products, food industries, synthetics, metallurgy, chemical warfare, etc. There are two chapters on Women in Chemistry. Index.

Reviewed by Van Dyke Tiers
Book Week p10 My 16 '43 270w
Booklist 39:448 Jl 1 '43

"The style is somewhat flamboyant in spots while elsewhere it is very reminiscent of the late Edgar Slosson at his best. At times one feels that he must 'hang on to his hat' because of the breezy writing. . . High school boys and girls will find the book both informative and stimulating. The chapters on Plastics, Glass, and Synthetic Rubber are especially well done." R. E. Kirk
Chem & Met Eng 50:212 N '43 450w

"Entirely factual, but readable style." E. A. Erickson
+ Library J 68:577 Jl '43 110w

Reviewed by E. M. Morrow
N Y Times p10 My 9 '43 60w

"Of especial interest to girls are two chapters which point to the opportunities that exist for women in chemistry. The book is well illustrated. Achievements of chemistry have been particularly stressed making the book valuable not only in the vocational fields, but to those interested in chemistry." M. J. J.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 16 '43 190w

CARLISLE, NORMAN V. Your career in transportation; employment opportunities in rail, highway, water and air transport; with special introductory chapters by B. E. Young, Ted V. Rodgers [and] E. S. Gorrell. 188p il $2 Dutton
385 Transportation 42-23022

"The author presents a detailed picture of vocational opportunities in transport by air, rail, highway and water. [The book] is intended primarily to offer sound occupational guidance to the young person seeking a satisfying career." (Publisher's note) Bibliography Index.

Reviewed by Emily Hutson
Library J 67:957 N 1 '42 100w

Reviewed by E. M. Morrow
N Y Times p10 My 9 '43 120w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p14 My 30 '43 60w
Wis Lib Bul 39:70 My '43

CARLSON, FRED ALBERT. Geography of Latin America. rev ed 566p il maps $6; to schools $4.50 Prentice-Hall
918 Latin America 43-11924

Revised edition of a textbook first published in 1936. The author is professor of geography at the Ohio State university. "The core of the revision, as in the first edition, is the political unit. Each country is discussed in its entirety, with regard to its national character as well as to its world relations. Two chapters of continental scope have been added at the suggestion of teachers and former students—one on the cultural heritage of Latin America and the other on changes in the political pattern of Latin America. The final three chapters are inter-continental: Inter-American Transportation, Commercial Relations, and Summary.'" (Pref to the revised ed) Index.

"In the revised edition, new geographical information made available by recent studies has been incorporated, and in addition chapters have been written giving data on political and social background. The specialist in the field will have some criticism of these latter chapters as to some conclusions and inferences reached. . . These points do not, however, counterbalance the excellent survey in the geographic field, which, after all, is the real purpose of the work." Donald Rowland
+ — Am Pol Sci R 37:1135 D '43 300w
Booklist 40:17 S '43

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker
N Y Times p22 N 7 '43 120w

CARLSON, JOHN ROY, pseud. See Derounian, A.

CARLSON, PEARL GERTRUDE. Choice of editions. 69p pa 75c A.L.A.
025.2 Book selection (library science) 42-36214

"The application of the principles of book selection to the choice of a particular edition of a title. Appendix gives an outline for the evaluation of editions." Booklist

Booklist 38:341 My 15 '42

"The book will be of interest to all librarians concerned with the selection of editions, but its special contribution is in the field of scholarship. The characteristics of a well-edited text are clearly set forth; the comparative values of different types of scholarly editions are well stated." M. K. Reely
+ Library Q 13:79 Ja '43 360w

CARMAN, HARRY JAMES, and LUTHIN, REINHARD H. Lincoln and the patronage. 375p il $4.50 Columbia univ. press
973.71 Lincoln, Abraham. Corruption (in politics) 43-7111

Study of Lincoln's struggles with the patronage system, which stresses his great abilities as a practical politician. Illustrated with contemporary cartoons. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by W. B. Hesseltine
Am Pol Sci R 37:931 O '43 650w

"I cannot praise too highly the masterly fashion in which these collaborators have threaded their way through this tangled covert. It is amazing how, through a combination of know-how and plain perseverance, they have managed to tie up so many men, whether important or obscure, first with their particular services to the Lincoln cause, second with

CARMAN, H. J., and LUTHIN, R. H.—Cont. their precise ambitions, and finally with the rewards or disappointments meted out to them. To the extent that history is reconstruction by mosaic detail, the authors have written almost perfect history." A. B. Miller

+ Ann Am Acad 229:212 S '43 400w

Christian Century 60:1369 N 24 '43 230w

"Many Lincoln admirers may find it distasteful to see him making appointments for purely political reasons, with little heed to personal fitness; but his wise and skilful use of the patronage enabled him to hold diverse, conflicting factions together and thus made possible the success of his administration. Interesting reading for the most part but not for the smaller libraries, unless they have many Lincoln students in community." R. S. Alvarez

+ Library J 68:286 Ap 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by Harold Davis

New Eng Q 16:660 D '43 1200w

"Enlightening and scholarly work." Theodore Mack

+ N Y Times p20 Je 6 '43 420w

Reviewed by C. B. Moore

Springf'd Republican p10 Jl 16 '43 850w

CARMER, CARL LAMSON, ed. War against God. 261p $2.75 Holt

274.3 Germany—Religion. World war, 1939—Religious aspects 43-14533

The Germans and the Japanese both by acts and by words have declared that they are at war with Christianity. In this volume the editor has collected some of the statements from both anti-Christians and Christians in this war.

Reviewed by J. M. Yard

Book Week p7 O 3 '43 340w

Booklist 40:53 O 15 '43

Cath World 158:220 N '43 110w

Christian Century 60:1473 D 15 '43 260w

Christian Science Monitor p12 N 13 '43 750w

"That the nazis and Japanese have been of late exalting the State above Christ's religion and morals is a truism which needs no reiteration. There is not one word in the book about that attitude being even more vocal in Russian statements, even more plain in Russian acts. Happily one may contrast this somewhat ridiculous volume with the official utterances of Christian bodies in the Allied countries. . . One need not bother buying this book." B. I. Bell

— Commonweal 39:18 O 22 '43 420w

"The total anthology is useful for those who are looking for 'devotional' reading on the issues of this war. . . There can, of course, be no doubt of the anti-Christian ambitions of the Axis powers. On the other hand, it may be questioned whether it is ever wise to identify any cause, no matter how just, with God or Christ." Reinhold Niebuhr

N Y Times p4 O 3 '43 1100w

Reviewed by Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 19:82 O 2 '43 500w

Reviewed by George Frederick

Sat R of Lit 27:11 Ja 8 '44 500w

"This anthology is important, stimulating reading. Its analysis of recent church history and trends is especially valuable as a source of information and discussion. The place of the church in the vast struggle of which this nation is a part is wisely seen as being a problem for consideration by each of us. The influence of the church in leading the world to a more Christian manner of living will be furthered by this anthology." Harry Stuckenbruck

+ Springf'd Republican p10 S 29 '43 600w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple

Survey G 32:452 N '43 260w

Reviewed by J. H. Holmes

Weekly Book Review p20 O 17 '43 700w

CARPENTER, HELEN MCCRACKEN. Gateways to American history; an annotated graded list of books for slow learners in junior high school. 255p $2.25 Wilson, H.W.

016.973 U.S.—History—Bibliography. Fiction—Bibliography. Children's literature—Bibliography 43-780

"Attacking the pressing problem of reading materials for retarded readers, this volume (1) provides criteria to guide the teacher and the librarian in judging the suitability of books for slow learners; (2) recommends and analyzes more than 200 books of historical fiction and biography used successfully with slow learners; (3) indicates for writers and publishers points at which the need for materials is the greatest." (School & Society) Bibliography. Indexes.

Booklist 39:269 Mr 1 '43

School & Society 56:588 D 12 '42 60w

"A careful consideration of the volume—its motive, method, and content—suggests that it will serve most adequately the ends intended for it by its author." Esther Holcomb

+ School R 51:378 Je '43 700w

"Provides an excellent annotated graded list of books of all kinds, dealing with the various periods of American history. . . Very helpful."

+ Social Studies 34:96 F '43 40w

Wis Lib Bul 39:103 Jl '43

CARPENTER, LUCILE RUSSELL. Rudyard Kipling, a friendly profile. 72p il $2 Argus

B or 92 Kipling, Rudyard 42-51942

"For several years William M. Carpenter devoted himself to collecting Kipling manuscripts, first editions, letters and photographs. The result was a remarkable treasure store of Kiplingiana, which has been presented to the Library of Congress as a memorial to the collector. The draft of a book about Kipling left by Mr. Carpenter has now been developed by his wife. . . The slender volume outlines the chief events of Kipling's life, but its major topic is his personality." Christian Science Monitor

Booklist 39:462 Jl 15 '43

Christian Science Monitor p11 F 27 '43 270w

CARPENTER, MARGARET. Experiment perilous. 307p $2.50 Little

43-4264

Psychological mystery and horror story.

Atlantic 171:131 Je '43 90w

"This is a book to read through at a sitting, because you can't possibly put it down. And Margaret Carpenter, whose first novel it is, won't be able to put down her writing; her public won't let her, for 'Experiment Perilous' is the antidote to ration point headaches, and all the ills of boredom." D. H.

+ Boston Globe p15 Mr 31 '43 180w

Reviewed by J. D. Beresford

Manchester Guardian p3 O 23 '43 100w

"Though several reviewers have compared 'Experiment Perilous' to 'Before the Fact,' actually the only resemblance is form—they are both psychological thrillers. Francis Iles's characters were so convincing and their actions so inevitable that the reader was drawn into complete participation with the actors. Miss Carpenter's villain and victim, unfortunately, are bores, and though all hell breaks loose, it doesn't seem to matter."

— New Repub 108:646 My 10 '43 70w

"The book is a first novel written with the suavity and authority of an old hand. It offers the happy fillip of frightening the reader out of his wits—well, perhaps only pleasantly terrorizing him—in surroundings of wealth, culture, and exotic charm." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p14 Ap 25 '43 300w

"The end of this fine, absorbing story is slightly disappointing, but only perfectionists will complain about it. The rest of the tale is shot with chills and a ghastly premonition of disaster. 'Experiment Perilous' is the finest story of its kind since Francis Iles' 'Before the Fact.' It is written with great vitality and sureness and, most important of all, it has delicacy and humor." Sally Benson
+ New Yorker 19:77 Ap 3 '43 360w

"A story so competently written and constructed that it is surprising to read the words 'first novel' on the wrapper."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p497 O 16 '43 180w

"'Experiment Perilous' undoubtedly sets a precedent. It is a first novel written by a grandmother. It is, moreover, not only an expertly written first novel but one of intricately contrived suspense and latent horror." Leo Lerman
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Mr 28 '43 600w

CARR, JOHN DICKSON (CARTER DICKSON, pseud). She died a lady. 266p $2 Morrow 43-348

Detective story.

Booklist 39:294 Mr 15 '43
Bookmark 4:20 Mr '43

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p18 Ja 31 '43 200w

"Fresh and invigorating."
+ New Yorker 18:63 Ja 30 '43 70w

"Grade A."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 F 20 '43 40w

Time 41:88 F 1 '43 30w

Times [London] Lit Sup p443 S 11 '43 210w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p15 Ja 31 '43 230w

CARR-SAUNDERS, ALEXANDER MORRIS; MANNHEIM, HERMANN, and RHODES, EDMUND CECIL. Young offenders; an enquiry into juvenile delinquency. 168p $1.75 Macmillan [7s 6d Cambridge]
364.363 Juvenile delinquency A43-556

"At the invitation of the British Home Office, two eminent statisticians and an expert in juvenile delinquency undertook the examination of 2,000 juvenile delinquents whose cases were selected from London and provincial court records. These 2,000 cases were matched with an equal number of 'controls'—non-delinquent children coming from similar homes, attending the same schools, and of the same ages." Christian Science Monitor

Reviewed by H. A. Weeks
Am Soc R 8:494 Ag '43 350w

Christian Science Monitor p12 F 20 '43 310w

Spec 171:250 S 10 '43 130w

Reviewed by G. E. Gardner
Survey 79:157 My '43 80w

"'Young Offenders' is a valuable record made by unprejudiced scientists; a book for the student rather than for the general reader."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p80 F 13 '43 240w

CARRICK, GERTRUDE. Susan to you. 250p $2.50 Lippincott
43-10681

When Susan left college in 1937 she was determined to make herself a career, without "prostituting her talents" in the commercial art field. This is the story of Susan's six years' struggle to reach her goal, punctuated by a variety of love affairs.

Reviewed by Caroline Butts
Boston Globe p17 Ag 11 '43 240w

Reviewed by E. F. Kelly
Library J 68:573 Jl '43 50w

"'Susan to You,' straining at the leash of the light-novel formula, openly aspires to be more than escapist fiction. It is liberally sprinkled with youthful discussions of almost everything under the sun. Its dialogues are written to demonstrate the irrepressible buoyancy, courage and cocksureness of youth. The book makes its point, certainly, and most of it rings very true. But youth's perpetual bright challenge is a little wearying. This would be maddening reading for the middle-aged—and the heroine's own generation will wince at some of the pages." Catherine Maher
+ — N Y Times p16 Jl 18 '43 400w

"Miss Carrick's emphasis on the 'Will I Get Married' theme song of girls out of college seems well placed. The career barriers she puts in their way seem true enough to life. But if this book lacks a third dimension it may be because the novelist has chosen as a heroine a nice normal girl, but one who doesn't grow up until the last page." Rachel Meisenhelder
Weekly Book Review p8 Ag 1 '43 650w

CARROLL, MRS GLADYS (HASTY). Dunnybrook. 389p $2.75 Macmillan
43-16037

Chronicle of a Maine village, founded before the days of the Revolution, and of several generations of Warrens, Hastys, Marrs, and others who lived there, among them some of the author's ancestors.

Booklist 40:146 D 15 '43
Cath World 158:509 F '44 140w
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 8 '44 750w

"A little sentimental and nostalgic but wholesome and thoughtful. Will be enjoyed especially by many readers who do not want problem novels or war books. Recommended for all libraries." Emily Garnett
+ Library J 68:725 S 15 '43 60w

"A warm and wholesome, if sometimes sentimental, tribute to ten generations of the author's Maine family and neighbors." Ruth Boorstin
+ N Y Times p6 N 7 '43 550w

"Mrs. Carroll apparently has a New Englander's relish for genealogy and begats, but by the time the reader hits page 200 he may get weary of the fine, upstanding Hastys and Warrens. However, for those who take a gentle pleasure in reading about times which present so peaceful a contrast to our own, 'Dunnybrook' offers comforting entertainment."
+ — New Yorker 19:106 N 6 '43 90w

Reviewed by M. S. Ulrich
Sat R of Lit 26:24 D 11 '43 400w

"It is the most readable and entertaining kind of genealogy, and if you aren't looking for a novel you're going to be pleased. It lacks only the plot structure of a novel. It has characterization, the action of several wars, the Down East atmosphere of Maine. It's strongest in its family scenes, and in one, early in the book, with a soldier coming home from war, the prose approaches a poetic touch." Edrie Van Dore
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 14 '43 440w

"'Dunnybrook' is a beautiful book. It fulfills the author's hope that the life of this place will become 'clear and true and tangible.' Mrs. Carroll also hopes that homeless people of other lands will find here 'a comforting picture of what free men can build in a free world, though freedom be their only wealth, and their own minds and hands their only tools or weapons.' To that I would add the further hope that all Americans also—in cities, in drab industrial towns, the dust bowl, the cotton lands and elsewhere—will have a chance to create the equivalent of a Dunnybrook, a place where they can strike roots and find themselves at home." Mary Ross
+ Weekly Book Review p4 N 7 '43 750w

Wis Lib Bul 40:9 Ja '44

CARROLL, MRS RUTH (ROBINSON), and CARROLL, LATROBE. Scuffles. 48p il $1 Oxford

43-11947

Picture-story book for five-year-olds about a restless puppy. His mother sent him to Dr Noseworthy's Business School, Run by Dogs for Dogs, to learn to be useful, but Scuffles could not seem to learn, and so he ended up as a successful pet.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p7 Ja 2 '44 140w

"The pictures are engaging and the text is lightly entertaining for nursery age." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:317 S '43 70w

"Recommended for large libraries. Can be read by children in grades three and four." B. W. Bell
+ Library J 68:728 S 15 '43 110w

"A light-hearted, original story to amuse 5 to 8-year-olds, with a multitude of delightfully pictured dogs of all shapes, sizes and characters." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p9 S 5 '43 180w
New Yorker 19:119 D 4 '43 70w

"Ruth Carroll is best known for her sleeping kitten advertising a railroad. These puppies have the same soft appeal, chiefly to quite small children." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p7 S 19 '43 280w

CARSON, ALBERT BERTIE. Plane trigonometry made plain; with logarithmic and trigonometric tables. 389p $2.75 Am. tech. soc.

514 Trigonometry, Plane 42-15969

"A detailed discussion, with numerous figures and illustrative examples. Much attention is devoted to numerical work, and emphasis is placed on the application of trigonometrical principles in surveying, physics, and the machine shop." N Y New Tech Bks

N Y New Tech Bks 28:12 Ja '43

Reviewed by J. J. Stoker
N Y Times p26 Mr 28 '43 80w
Pratt p16 D '42

CARSON, MRS JULIA MARGARET (HICKS). Challenge to Marion. 184p il $2 Longmans

43-14465

Story of a young woman's efforts to follow in the footsteps of her honest and upright Quaker father. Marion's attempts to clean up the politics in her own small town were met with unexpected success.

Cath World 158:318 D '43 50w
Christian Century 60:1075 S 22 '43 20w
Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 20w

"Some weakness in characters. Absorbing, thought-provoking. Useful for social studies. Recommended for girls." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 68:847 O 15 '43 110w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 3 '43 110w

CARSON, ROBERT. Bride saw red. 246p $2 Putnam

42-51120

A modern romance in which a clever young American girl is instrumental in breaking a possessive mother's hold upon a personable son. When George proved refractory, Marthe ran away to Las Vegas, intending to get a divorce, but by that time George's taste of freedom from his mother had turned into a positive passion for his Marthe and the divorce proceedings were dropped.

"'The Bride Saw Red' is lively and diverting." Lisle Bell
+ Books p11 F 7 '43 350w

"As the title would indicate, 'The Bride Saw Red' is light fiction, romantic variety. But the book is better than the title. As entertainment it is fast, gay, varied and highly amusing. And it is a great deal better written than many a book intended to uplift and improve the mind. Its dialogue is crisp and natural, and nicely assorted to suit the occasion and the speakers. The author has a happy gift for keeping his story in a light and irresponsible mood, yet, under a madcap manner, dealing very sanely with serious problems." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p20 Ja 17 '43 600w

CARTER, ISAAC NEWTON, and THOMPSON, HENRY LOREN. Engineering drawing, practice and theory. 2d ed 462p il $3 Int. textbook

744.43 Mechanical drawing 43-9376

"A book first published in 1939 is expanded by several chapters and many new illustrations." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 39:466 Jl 15 '43
Eng N 131:112 S 9 '43 80w
Library J 68:575 Jl '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:25 Ap '43

"This would be a fine book for a thorough college course, and also it should prove a valuable work of reference." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 22 '43 130w

CARTER, MARGERY (ALLINGHAM). See Allingham, M.

CASE, ROBERT ORMOND. White victory. 210p $2 Doubleday

43-13160

"Bill Kennedy is suspected of murdering Red Schafer, the lowdown responsible for his father's death. Bill flies up to Luna Lake with Rocky Flynn, a crooked prospector, and Ruth MacRae, an incautious investor, to examine a phony mine. Bad Whitey Bodine is along, and customers may expect all the gambits that go with such a plot, also quick work by the Seattle cops and the Provincial Police." Weekly Book Review

Booklist 40:95 N 15 '43

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p10 S 5 '43 130w

CASE, SHIRLEY JACKSON. Christian philosophy of history. 222p $2 Univ. of Chicago press

901 History—Philosophy. Christianity—Philosophy A43-1846

"This book is concerned with the significance of history for the making of religion today. Against all prophets of pessimism and despair, Dr. Case has an ardent faith in the vitality of history and processes of recovery. The ultimate meaning of history, indeed, is seen in this mysterious fact of the vitality of the good." (Churchman) Index.

"The book raises in acute form the questions of the meaning of revelation and the divine origin of the church. On these, Dr. Case is hardly satisfying. But his reading of history is worthy of attention nevertheless." F. J. Moore
Churchman 157:14 Ag 1 '43 260w

"Here is a vigorous and a stirring reaffirmation of the fact of progress, a clear-cut expression of a robust faith and confidence in the ways of God, and a challenging call for more strenuous and devoted endeavor on the part of mankind. Obsessed as we are with contemporary evil, the long view herein presented comes to us as the sound of drums and bugles to our drooping spirits. In a pessimistic age it gives us solid ground upon which to base an optimistic faith. This is the book that all former students of Dean Case have long hoped that he would write, and it is a book that has been sorely needed to fill a glaring gap in theological literature." W. S. Hudson
+ Crozer Q 20:349 O '43 450w

"Modern philosophies of history which purport to see in Christianity a key to the present intellectual crisis face nearly insuperable difficulties. To say that Case has not solved all the issues, however, is very far from saying that he has not contributed to an understanding of present problems. This volume deals directly with the historical resources for moral inspiration, and it can not fail to awaken its reader to the necessity of drawing upon these resources for moral action." F. deW. Bolman, jr.

+ — J Philos 41:78 F 3 '44 1950w

"Mr. Case's book is a model of candid, sober and scholarly writing. Among the author's many books, it is one of the best." J. H. Holmes

+ Weekly Book Review p38 D 5 '43 700w

CASEY, ROBERT JOSEPH. Such interesting people. 347p $3 Bobbs

B or 92 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 43-16758

Recollections of an American journalist, traveler, and raconteur, covering a good bit of the earth, its people, and its history over the last twenty-five years or more.

"Casey is more interesting than any of his books. But this one proves the justice of the allegation that most of the fascinating people are in the newspaper business." Sterling North

+ Book Week p3 N 21 '43 700w

Booklist 40:164 Ja 1 '44

"If you need a book to while away a few hours pleasantly and harmlessly, get this. No page of it lacks interest."

+ Cath World 158:412 Ja '44 160w

Reviewed by E. D. Canham

Christian Science Monitor p14 D 3 '43 650w

"A warmly human and jovial recounting of the successful avoidance of monotony on the part of men who have filled the daily columns of many newspapers." M. C. Manley

+ Library J 68:957 N 15 '43 80w

"Out of the long and zany saga of the ways of newspaper men Robert J. Casey, one of the best of them, has fashioned a noble parade of people and events that have passed before his tolerant, discerning gaze in one city room or another; has put them into a hilarious book that will delight his fellows in the craft even while it astonishes benighted folk who live quietly and respectably." J. K. Hutchens

+ N Y Times p5 N 28 '43 700w

Reviewed by H. P. Stokes

Sat R of Lit 26:9 D 18 '43 500w

"A vastly entertaining book about the newspaper business and the frequently berserk people who inhabit or run it." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 12 '43 550w

"No richer lot of irreverent folklore concerning journalism has ever been collected. Many of these incidents, one might suppose, would lose much of their flavor when set down on paper. But not so. Not when Casey tells them. It is probable that even persons who have never seen the inside of a newspaper office will not only understand these stories but will roar over them. And as for schools of journalism, this book should be required reading, if it is not too interesting." Stanley Walker

+ Weekly Book Review p14 N 21 '43 1350w

CASPARY, VERA. Laura. 237p $2.50 Houghton 43-1294

Detective story.

Booklist 39:321 Ap 1 '43

"Billed as a 'psychothriller,' this tale of murder and love is recommended to those in search of surprise, excitement and difference in the telling. . . If you have no room for 'psychothriller' in your vocabulary, just think of it as a superior mystery, done with a novel twist and much skill." Will Cuppy

+ Books p15 Ja 31 '43 230w

"The publishers call this story a 'psychothriller' and perhaps that is as good a name as any. At any rate, it is something quite different from the run-of-the-mill detective story, and Vera Caspary deserves thanks for providing it." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p18 Ja 31 '43 220w

" 'Laura' is a difficult book to classify; it carries a triple threat as a mystery, a love story, and a character study."

Springf'd Republican p7e F 7 '43 270w

CASSIDY, HARRY MORRIS. Social security and reconstruction in Canada. 197p $3; pa $2.50 Humphries

331.2544 Insurance, Social A43-1885

"In the compass of [this] volume, Professor Cassidy has sketched in broad outline the character of social welfare problems in Canada, the limitations of present-day social services, the nature of proposals made by such investigating bodies as royal commissions, the nature of systems of social security in Britain, the United States, and New Zealand, the character of a national program of social security in Canada, and, finally, some of the problems of organization and administration in the establishment of a system of social services." Ann Am Acad

"The author, outstanding student of Canadian social services, modestly describes the book as 'a tract for the times' rather than 'a careful research study,' with 'very little that is original or new.' None the less the book is a masterpiece of digestive and comparative analysis of the social security problems, achievements, and prospects in four countries—Canada, the United States, New Zealand, and Great Britain." H. G. Skilling

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:750 Ag '43 500w

"This study is not likely to become a best seller or a bible of social reconstruction in Canada. On the whole, it makes dull reading, containing little that would stir the imagination of the reader as to the possibilities of social welfare programs, or that would arouse even a strong conviction that something must be done." S. D. Clark

Ann Am Acad 228:144 Jl '43 550w

"Social Security and Reconstruction should be read and studied by all students of these problems—and by all politicians who claim to be laying the basis for a new and better Canada. For this book gives, in simple language, real meaning to the term 'freedom from want.' " F. R. Scott

+ Canadian Forum 23:166 O '43 850w

Reviewed by J. A. Corry

Canadian Hist R 24:410 D '43 550w

"Canada has little literature on the subject and the book is a welcome contribution, valuable on both sides of the border."

+ New Repub 108:646 My 10 '43 60w

CASSIDY, HENRY CLARENCE. Moscow dateline, 1941-1943. 375p $3 Houghton

940.5347 World war, 1939—Russia. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-8244

Account of two years—1941-1943—in Moscow, with side trips to Kuibyshev and Iran, by an ace reporter. The high spot of the book is the correspondence with Stalin, in which the Russian leader gave his views on the second front. The author also gives his own views on Russia's government, the people, and the war. Map on end papers. Index.

"Mr. Cassidy was too young and inquiring to be didactic. Nor had he been embittered, as had so many veteran observers in Moscow, by a losing struggle against unbending Slav bureaucracy. He explored with an open mind, and this is why his chronicle is so alive, his pen portraits of Stalin and the other Russian leaders so telling, his judgment so clear." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 171:123 Je '43 1250w

"This carefully-written volume is full of meaty facts collected by the man to whom Stalin stated his views on the second front

CASSIDY, H. C.—Continued
on a plain piece of white paper 'with no water mark, no heading, nothing to indicate its origin except the signature.' " Justin McCarthy
+ Book Week p2 Je 6 '43 650w
Booklist 39:422 Je 15 '43
Bookmark 4:12 My '43
Christian Science Monitor p18 Je 2 '43 650w
Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Jl '43

"Mr. Cassidy's great merit in 'Moscow Dateline' is his humility, which leads to a genuine humanity and a keen sense of humor. He does not make any startling revelations as to the deep inner workings of the historical process. His book, after the first chapter or two, is delightful reading, and 'delightful' is precisely the right adjective."
+ Commonweal 38:253 Je 25 '43 420w

Reviewed by J. R. Lewis
Current Hist 4:272 Je '43 900w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:158 O '43 40w

Reviewed by John Scott
Nation 156:840 Je 12 '43 850w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 108:800 Je 14 '43 550w

"Henry Cassidy has not given us a subjective account of himself and his emotions. This is a reporter's book, written by a reporter, the correspondent of The Associated Press, who tells his story simply, in clear objective terms. A thrilling story it is, and the unromantic style adds to rather than detracts from its drama." Walter Duranty
+ N Y Times p1 My 30 '43 1150w

"A good, levelheaded job of reporting the principal events in Russia between the spring of 1941 and February of this year. Carefully detailed material on the battles for Moscow, Sebastopol, Stalingrad, and other cities. Mr. Cassidy seems to be able to write freshly and objectively even about himself and his colleagues, which is unheard of in a correspondent's memoirs."
+ New Yorker 19:86 Je 5 '43 90w

Reviewed by Louis Fischer
Sat R of Lit 26:4 Je 5 '43 1100w

"A thoughtful, leisurely and highly informative account."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 30 '43 1100w

"It is a candid and illuminating book, realistic in temper without being demonstratively hard-boiled."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p530 N 6 '43 650w

"Mr. Cassidy has written an honest, refreshing, illuminating book on a subject of which there is endless discussion but a pathetic dearth of first-hand information. If he almost ignores Russia's social revolution it is because he takes it for granted as a fait accompli and as the basis of everything in Russian life and in the Russian war. The book deserves a wide reading." Maurice Hindus
+ Weekly Book Review p3 My 30 '43 1300w
Wis Lib Bul 39:108 Jl '43

Reviewed by Michael Karpovich
Yale R n s 33:354 winter '44 340w

CASSON, STANLEY. Greece against the Axis. 150p $2.50; pa $2 Am. council on public affairs [8s 6d Hamilton, H]
940.542 World war, 1939—Greece 43-51278

"Lieutenant Colonel Casson, author of several books on Greece, gives us a general outline of the campaign in which he participated as a member of a British military mission. From his story, interwoven with personal impressions and pen sketches of picturesque scenes and places, we chiefly learn about the operations in which the British force (two-infantry divisions and an armored brigade) took part." N Y Times

---

Booklist 40:56 O 15 '43
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 7 '42 450w

"The middle of a war is no time to be writing precise military histories of that war, and Colonel Casson does not claim to do more than give a general account. It is for its feeling more than its details that his book is valuable. Often, indeed, he manages to trip over a fact." Dilys Powell
+ — New Statesman & Nation 23:165 Mr 7 '42 600w

Reviewed by A. M. Nikolaieff
N Y Times p12 Ag 29 '43 240w
Social Studies 34:335 N '43 40w

"This is a good book—limpid in style, swift in narration, rich in all the qualities of an educated mind, including humour, moderation and poetry—a fitting memorial of that six months' war in which Greece, a nation of seven millions, stood up and beat down an aggressor six times her size, and then defied the accumulated might of Hitler's European Empire." Kenneth Matthews
+ Spec 168:112 Ja 30 '42 340w

CASTELL, ALBUREY. An introduction to modern philosophy in six philosophical problems. 562p $3.50 Macmillan
190 Philosophy, Modern 42-1849

"The book consists of six topics or problems—respectively, a theological problem, a metaphysical problem, an epistemological problem, an ethical problem, a political problem, and a historical problem, presented in the order named. There is history here. On each of the problems five philosophers speak." Ethics

---

Reviewed by A. W. Levi
Ethics 54:68 O '43 700w

"The care and experience apparent in this book, as well as its author's ability to present with little pain and much charm the perennial issues which every man must face, commend it for widespread individual and class-room use." F. deW. B., Jr.
+ J Philos 40:444 Ag 5 '43 1050w

CASTLES, WILLIAM THOMAS, and KIMBALL, VERA FAITH. Firearms and their use. 231p il $1.98 Chemical pub. co.
623.44 Firearms 42-25287

"The Messrs. Castles and Kimball are convinced that firearms can be used safely and efficiently by any one who is willing to learn their characteristics. All types of firearms are discussed—shotguns, rifles, pistols. Since this book is written for the man in the street it takes nothing for granted in the way of technical knowledge. Any one who can read Popular Mechanics can get something solid out of Castles and Kimball." (N Y Times) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 27:56 O '42

Reviewed by Waldemar Kaempffert
N Y Times p35 N 22 '42 200w

CATTELL, JAQUES, ed. Directory of American scholars; a biographical directory. 928p $10 1942 Science press
923.773 Scholars—Directories. Educators—Directories. U.S.—Biography 42-18822

"This is the first edition of a biographical directory of American scholars in the humanities and social sciences, designed as a companion volume to American Men of Science and Leaders in Education which it resembles in format and treatment. According to the introduction, by Waldo G. Leland, Director of the American council of learned societies, 'the principles which have guided the selection of names for inclusion in the directory have been largely practical rather than honorific; the term "scholar" was broadly interpreted, with the intention of giving mention to younger men and women who have given promise of future achievements, as well as to those whose attainments are already well demonstrated and widely known. As a result, a considerable percentage of the biographies will not be found in other directories.' " Subscription Bks Bul

---

"Revisions of the Directory of American Scholars are planned at five year intervals. The volume lives up to the high standards set by its predecessors. The binding may prove too light for continuous library use. The book is recommended."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:6 Ja '43 600w

CAUDILL, REBECCA (MRS JAMES STERLING AYARS). Barrie and daughter; il. by Berkeley Williams, jr. 314p $2 Viking 43-13075

Fern Barrie disagreed with her mother when she said that a girl's only career was to get married and keep house. When her father opened a country store, sixteen-year-old Fern was put behind the counter. The place is the Kentucky mountain country of a half century ago. For older girls.

"Here is a wonderful picture of the Kentucky mountain people and an inspiring and beautifully written story." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p4 N 14 '43 250w
Booklist 40:63 O 15 '43

"A book of very real values, written with sensitive understanding of people, young and old, and with a sense of the mountain country and ways of life there at the turn of the century." M. K. McElderry
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 90w

"The story has to do with real people and with keenly invigorating situations. It has lasting value, especially for older girls and also for adult readers who will be interested in the social life of the region." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:406 N '43 100w

"Well written, partly autobiographical. Highly recommended for girls twelve to sixteen years." G. E. Cartmell
+ Library J 68:773 O 1 '43 80w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:827 O 15 '43 40w

"A story of deep human interest—politics, mountain feuds, and romance—is written with sympathy and distinction and with great appeal to the older girls." Muriel Gilbert
+ Sat R of Lit 26:32 N 13 '43 250w

"Southern mountaineer stories for girls tend to become stereotyped, but this one takes shape around its new idea." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p36 N 14 '43 380w
Wis Lib Bul 39:161 D '43

CAVAN, MRS RUTH (SHONLE). The family. 593p $3.50 Crowell
392 Family 42-50187

"This book was planned primarily as a text for undergraduate students. The viewpoint is sociological, with emphasis both upon social control and regulation of the family and upon the molding of personality within the family. Although present problems of family life are central in the discussion, enough historical and statistical material is included to give perspective to current problems. The author has attempted to make the book timely by including discussions on the relation of the war and of depression to family life." (Pref) Index.

"In classifying the book as representing an objective sociological and factual approach, there is no implication that the book lacks practical value to the college student. There is an enormous amount of pertinent information. There are illuminating case studies, provocative topics for discussion and useful bibliographic suggestions. The book is simply and clearly written. A student aware of the fact that, in the last analysis, he must make his own decisions cannot fail to profit from a study of this excellent text." Clifford Kirkpatrick
+ Am Soc R 8:488 Ag '43 370w

"Mrs. Cavan's book is one of the most worthy and useful of the recent textbooks on the family. This volume is marked by an emphasis upon the scientific study of the family, and is obviously the result of years of reflection and research. Mrs. Cavan presents the best verified and most pertinent evidence concerning each topic discussed, but does not point morals or give advice except as these are implicit in the facts." Willard Waller
+ Ann Am Acad 230:235 N '43 400w

Reviewed by Esther McGinnis
J Home Econ 35:655 D '43 200w

"In this analysis the author makes excellent use of available objective investigations. She also unearths many shining nuggets from the White House Conference Studies, some heretofore unpublished. Since there are various experts who investigate different areas in family relations, it becomes an important task to synthesize and to integrate the recent findings of these independent studies. This the author accomplishes admirably, in a style that will appeal to undergraduates for whom this book is primarily written." J. C. Baumgartner
+ Social Educ 7:92 F '43 400w

"In addition to students, social workers and others objectively concerned with family life should find this book to be a valuable resource." D. S. Klaiss
+ Survey 79:61 F '43 430w

CAVE, HUGH BARNETT, and others. Long were the nights. 220p map $3 Dodd 940.545 World war, 1939—Solomon islands. World war, 1939—Naval operations 43-15528

An account of the fighting and patrol duty done by a squadron of PT boats at Guadalcanal. Much of the narrative is given in the men's own words.

"The book is really an excellent job. Just one criticism apart from the choice of a title: Cave gave every man of whom he spoke something of a Horatio Alger glow. Granted that it was hardly his place to enumerate faults and describe mistakes, it would still have sounded a little more convincing if every single man were not so downright heroic." Harold Ettlinger
+ — Book Week p10 N 21 '43 410w
Booklist 40:142 D 15 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

Reviewed by Austin Stevens
N Y Times p23 Ja 16 '43 700w

"Mr. Cave's book is just straight, rapid-fire journalism, full of the expected clichés but somehow a better-than-average one of its kind. His account of how three PT boats set out to engage most of the Japanese South Pacific fleet will curl your hair with that old American vainglory. The map is rather amateurish."
+ — New Yorker 19:95 O 30 '43 130w

"A book on motor torpedo boat warfare which merits a place alongside White's earlier tale of the 'expendables,' and fills in gaps not supplied before on the life of crews and the peculiar problems of this deadly type of hit-and-run fighting." G. W. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 24 '43 440w

"At last we have a comprehensive account of the operations of PT boats in the South Pacific, and it makes a dramatic and intensely interesting story. . . The story of all this, as told in 'Long Were the Nights,' is one of the most thrilling episodes of the war. It needs to be read by every one who is following the details of naval action, for it covers a remarkable experiment, and one that is not likely to be repeated. The narrative is vigorous and straightforward, and the picture comes out with startling clearness." Lincoln Colcord
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Ja 2 '44 1150w

CAWLEY, JAMES S., and CAWLEY, MARGARET. Exploring the little rivers of New Jersey. 146p il maps $2 Princeton univ. press
917.49 New Jersey—Description and travel. Rivers—New Jersey 42-23239

"A guide for the canoeing fraternity. . . The book combines beauty and practicality. The beauty is provided by seventy-seven good pictures taken along the little rivers; the practicality by fifteen excellent maps which locate dams, camp sites, drinking water, historic homes and mills, starting points and cruise endings. . . The peculiar charm of each of the little rivers is elaborated upon in the text." Books

CAWLEY, J. S. and M.—Continued
Reviewed by William Van Til
Books p24 N 1 '42 550w

"The Cawleys have paddled their own canoe with the independence the phrase implies over New Jersey's large and small waterways. . . Their pleasant researches among the friendly possibilities of New Jersey rivers have included all regions of the State and their account of what they found and enjoyed is persuasive." Winifred Halsted
+ N Y Times p14 Mr 7 '43 180w
Pratt p22 F '43

CELL, JOHN WESLEY. Engineering problems illustrating mathematics. 172p $1.75 McGraw

510 Mathematics. Engineering

"This collection of problems was compiled by a committee appointed by the Mathematics Division of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education under the chairmanship of J. W. Cell. The more than 500 problems, which are classified under the headings of trigonometry, analytic geometry, differential and integral calculus, provide varied illustrations of the practical usefulness of the mathematics offered in the college freshman and sophomore level. Answers are included." Chem & Met Eng

Reviewed by F. B. Hildebrand
Chem & Met Eng 50:217 N '43 200w
Library J 68:669 S 1 '43 40w

CERF, BENNETT ALFRED, and CARTMELL, VAN H., comps. Sixteen famous European plays; with an introd. by John Anderson. 1052p $1.98 Garden City pub. co.

808.82 Dramas—Collections 43-51094

Contents: The wild duck, by Henrik Ibsen; The weavers, by Gerhart Hauptman; The sea gull, by Anton Tchekov; The lower depths, by Maxim Gorky; The dybbuk, by S. Ansky; Cyrano de Bergerac, by Edmond Rostand; Tovarich, by Jacques Deval; Amphitryon 38, by Jean Giradoux; The cradle song, by G. Martinez Sierra; Six characters in search of an author, by Luigi Pirandello; Anatol, by Arthur Schnitzler; R. U. R., by Karel Capek; Liliom, by Ferenc Molnar; Grand hotel, by Vicki Baum; The playboy of the Western world, by J. M. Synge; Shadow and substance, by Paul Vincent Carroll.

"This collection of plays would be cheap at twice the price since it contains at least a dozen plays which should be found in the most modest theatrical library. . . It is hardly the business of a casual review to estimate the trends of European drama and the achievements of the European dramatists over a period of 60 years. But this is the very point at which this collection fails miserably. It does not provide anything like an adequate sampling of European drama for the period beginning in the '80s of the last century." Maurice Gnesin
+ — Book Week p5 Ap 4 '43 500w
Library J 68:328 Ap 15 '43 60w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 14 '43 550w

CHALFANT, WILLIE ARTHUR. Tales of the pioneers. 129p il $3 Stanford univ. press

979.4 Frontier and pioneer life—California 43-1305

"As editor of an eastern California country paper for something over half a century, W. A. Chalfant has both known old-timers and listened to them. One of the pleasant results of his habit of keeping his ears open has been Mr. Chalfant's column, 'Tales of the Pioneers' in the 'Inyo Register' of Bishop, Calif., where he still serves as editor. A great deal of grist has passed through this chatty, personal mill. . . This volume is a collection of material from that column, together with some further anecdotes, bits of history, odds and ends of fact and legend that the author has picked up in his time. Most of it concerns the '60's and '70's, though there is a trifle of overlap in both directions. Hardly any of it is straight history." Books

"The student of early mining days in California and Nevada will sometimes wonder about Mr. Chalfant's sources. . . But, after all, this is yarning rather than history, and Mr. Chalfant's book has one outstanding quality. It should start many a writer off on a still hunt of his own with the purpose of rounding out and developing the solid historical forms for which Mr. Chalfant supplies the skeleton stories." J. H. Jackson
+ Books p15 F 7 '43 550w

"In his career as editor, Bill Chalfant has known many of the men who now become characters in his book. He himself took part in the epic of Inyo County and its contest with the city of Los Angeles for the precious waters that come down from the high Sierra. But that is another story. In this book a pioneer tells about pioneers, in the crisp, robust terms of trail and camp."
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Mr 20 '43 450w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 31 '43 360w

CHAMBERLAIN, GEORGE AGNEW. Knoll island. 299p $2.50 Bobbs

43-16436

When the last of the three sons of Enos Walker and Mom, joined the Merchant Marine, Mom demanded that Enos go out and find her another boy to break the silence in the old house on the Jersey shore. Enos brought home, not a boy, but Karry, orphan daughter of a ship's captain, and in time the girl won her way to Mom's heart.

Reviewed by H. L. Reich
Book Week p6 N 28 '43 360w

"As lively a narrative as Mr. Chamberlain has turned out for some time. . . 'Knoll Island' is written with zest and guarantees plenty of action." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p30 N 21 '43 200w

CHAMBERLAIN, SAMUEL (PHINEAS BECK, pseud). Clémentine in the kitchen; vignettes by Henry Stahlhut. 228p $3 Hastings house

641.5 Cookery 43-17625

The heroine of this unusual cook book is a pink-cheeked French cook, Clémentine, who made marvellous French dishes for the Beck family in France for several years. When the family came home to a New England hill town they brought Clémentine with them, and she had her own troubles trying to cook French dishes with American ingredients. The recipes and sample menus are scattered thruout the book, and the illustrations are drawings or reproductions of etchings.

Booklist 40:159 Ja 1 '44

"Mr. Chamberlain has not belabored his point. Ostensibly this is leisurely, amusing reminiscence. Since his moral is the superb consequences of maintaining a stern French respect for sound ingredients and devout preparation in all matters pertaining to food, he shows equal reverence for all that is sound and devout in New England's culinary tradition. His scorn is reserved for the spurious, the characterless, the merely time-saving and expedient which take up so large a share of our food merchants' shelves—here, he and Clementine are merciless. For the rest, he describes, in practically heartbreaking detail, the delights of Clementine's food." M. G. Ellsworth
+ N Y Times p8 N 21 '43 480w

"There is even more. There are more than 60 pages of 'Extracts from Clementine's cookbook' that make one hungry in these days of rationing. There are line drawings by Henry Stahlhut. And last but not least, there are drypoints and drawings by the author himself which are more than worth the price of the book. Whoever takes the pains to buy 'Clementine in the Kitchen' will find himself possessed of a vari-colored treasure." Jacques Ducharme
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 31 '43 390w

"You may loan this book, but you'll never get it back. It should be fastened to the kitchen shelf by a chain. For it is one of those utterly delightful cooking narratives that drive men into justifiable gormandizing and Clementine is a culinary vision calculated to haunt the sleep of many a housewife." Richardson Wright

+ Weekly Book Review p2 D 12 '43 1000w

Wis Lib Bul 40:6 Ja '44

CHAMBERLAIN, SAMUEL (PHINEAS BECK, pseud). Historic Cambridge in four seasons, a camera impression. (Am. landmarks ser) 73p il $1.25 Hastings house

917.444 Cambridge, Massachusetts. Harvard university 42-50704

One hundred and ten reproductions of photographs with explanatory text, showing the academic buildings, historic houses, and other buildings in the city of Cambridge, Massachusetts.

"The American Landmarks photograph books either get better all the time or the cumulative effect of the series makes it seem so. Certainly no more beautiful and truthful pictorial souvenir of an American university town has been published than this little volume."

+ Books p18 Ja 17 '43 130w

Christian Science Monitor p10 F 27 '43 30w

CHAMBERLIN, WILLIAM HENRY. Russian enigma; an interpretation. 321p $2.75 Scribner

947.084 Russia—Politics and government. World war, 1939—Russia 43-14977

In this "interpretation" of Russia's place in international affairs the author reviews her ancient history and the history of the Revolution, discusses Soviet economy and foreign policy in recent years, summarizes the progress of the war against Hitler, and concludes with an attempt to point out something of what will be Russia's course in the post-war world. Index.

Reviewed by Daniel Bell

Atlantic 173:125 F '44 80w

Reviewed by Jean Douglass

— Book Week p10 N 7 '43 290w

Booklist 40:91 N 15 '43

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley

Cath World 158:406 Ja '44 270w

"Every writer—even a writer of encyclopedia articles—has a bias. Chamberlin's bias is of a sort that should be of great interest to churchmen. For if I read Chamberlin correctly, his bias is this: he believes in the reality of the moral law. . . However, taking this bias into account, this is a remarkably objective book. It is the book of a man who has been disgusted by the books, the magazine articles, the lectures and the movies of those who insist on painting Stalin and the Soviet Union either all white or all black, and has set out to prove that a judicial balance can be attained when writing on that highly controversial land. And he has succeeded. This is neither myth nor propaganda; this is an interpretation of contemporary Russia as near to the realities as one has any right to expect from a journalist who writes without the advantage of a longtime perspective." Paul Hutchinson

+ Christian Century 61:15 Ja 5 '44 700w

Reviewed by Helen Iswolsky

Commonweal 39:258 D 24 '43 600w

"As far as information is concerned, Mr. Chamberlin's book offers little that is new. . . The only particularly interesting part of the book are the chapters on the Moscow trials and the Red Army. The value of the book depends essentially on the political sophistication of the reader." H. H. F. Eulau

New Repub 109:658 N 8 '43 390w

"Those who wish Russia and humanity well can only hope that Mr. Chamberlin's final aspirations will prove more justified than his own book seems to warrant. Be that as it may, 'The Russian Enigma' is an honest and thoughtful book and one of the best interpretations of Russian events that has appeared in a number of years. It makes all the spate of current reportage, guesswork, special pleading and round-trip expertness seem superficial while even the sounder monographs are in part superseded by the use Chamberlin has made of them in documenting his own studies." B. D. Wolfe

+ N Y Times p3 O 31 '43 2000w

"Well written, informed, and temperate."

+ New Yorker 19:95 O 30 '43 70w

"Here is a book that, if widely read, should go far toward removing the prejudice (negative and positive) of the American people toward Russia. The book is not sensational in the least. On the contrary, it is solid and scholarly." G. S. Counts

+ Sat R of Lit 26:27 D 4 '43 850w

"This book can be called balanced common sense about Russia at a time when balanced common sense will be called for." Nathaniel Peffer

+ Weekly Book Review p6 N 21 '43 900w

Wis Lib Bul 39:157 D '43

"I think that for some time to come Mr. Chamberlin's book will remain the best general and comprehensive account of recent developments in Russia." Michael Karpovich

+ Yale R n s 33:355 winter '44 280w

CHAMBERS, SIR EDMUND KERCHEVER. Sheaf of studies. 157p $2.75 (10s) Oxford

821.04 English poetry—History and criticism A42-4826

Collection of essays, mainly concerned with the subject of English poetry. Contents: Matthew Arnold's tree; The poetry of Matthew Arnold; Some dates in Coleridge's annus mirabilis; Meredith's Modern love; Meredith's nature poetry; Alice Meynell's Rhythm of life; The study of English literature; The timelessness of poetry; The dedicated life; Ghosts in the Bodleian; Oxford revisited.

"Some of these papers, such as that on the 'Tree' in Matthew Arnold's 'Thyrsis,' are of local academic interest. But the best of them, whether they deal with Arnold's or Meredith's poetry or with such general themes as 'The Study of English Literature' or 'The Dedicated Life,' combine attractively the precision of the scholar with the breadth of sensitiveness of the humanist." H. I'A. F.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 14 '42 200w

"In these hundred and fifty pages there is much that the reader will not willingly let die." E. E. Kellett

+ New Statesman & Nation 24:146 Ag 29 '42 550w

Reviewed by Phoebe Pool

Spec 169:42 Jl 10 '42 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p351 Jl 18 '42 800w

CHAMBERS, FRANK PENTLAND; GRANT, MRS CHRISTINA (PHELPS), and BAYLEY, CHARLES CALVERT. This age of conflict; a contemporary world history 1914-1943. 856p maps $5.50; text ed $4 Harcourt

909.82 Europe—History. History, Modern 43-8718

"Conventional, straightforward survey of international relations. Purely domestic affairs of any country are treated only when they help build the picture of its international position and policy. The authors have tried to write more fully of countries that are little known, or known chiefly from propaganda. Reasonably objective. End-paper maps." Booklist

"The authors have obviously tried hard to achieve synthesis and integration—a difficult task in an undertaking of world scope. To this reviewer, it appeared that the thread of correlation became thinner as the chronology progressed into the last decade, due perhaps to the narrowing historical perspective. . . By and large, however, the work is well done and will be of particular interest to students of contemporary history, international relations, and, to a lesser degree, comparative government." I. M. Stone

CHAMBERS, F. P., and others—Continued
+ — Am Pol Sci R 37:1139 D '43 450w

Reviewed by D. E. Lee
Ann Am Acad 229:193 S '43 400w

Booklist 39:460 Jl 15 '43

"The Russian Revolution, certainly, warrants a more thoughtful evaluation than they have accorded it. 'Public' reactions to governmental policies are insufficiently qualified. Mr. Chambers's skilled pen raises the volume considerably above the level of a textbook, however, and his collaborators have helped make it one of the most comprehensive reviews of the past quarter-century at present available."
+ — Nation 157:135 Jl 31 '43 200w

"Carefully checked historical objectivity, and an utter disregard of national susceptibilities in presenting the truth, are [this book's] most salient features. The only fault I have to find is a tendency to jump from one subject to another; but this is perhaps inescapable in a book composed from the writings of three authors. An excellent index enables one to refer to all phases of political and international evolution with little trouble. I sincerely hope Congressmen will take advantage of their recess to study this book carefully and to weigh every word of it." Murray Harris
+ N Y Times p21 Jl 25 '43 600w

"Well balanced in general and written with a careful and readable objectivity, but it doesn't go very deep and there are, perhaps unavoidably, some distortions of emphasis and fact. Spotty proofreading, but good format and maps."
+ — New Yorker 19:71 Je 26 '43 70w

"The minor historical misstatements are very few in this volume which has great and substantial merits. Moreover, on the whole, it is remarkably well written—most of it reads with great interest." J. S. Roucek
+ — Social Studies 34:328 N '43 500w

CHAMBERS, SHERMAN DANIEL, and FAIRES, VIRGIL MORING. Analytic mechanics; a revision of Mechanics of engineering. 375p il $3.75 Macmillan

620.1 Mechanics, Analytic 43-10184

"This book follows in a general way the basic plan of organization of Chambers' Mechanics of Engineering, [1934], but it is a completely rewritten edition. . . An earnest attempt has been made to lead the student gradually from the elementary conceptions to the more difficult ones, to avoid the discussion of too many topics in one chapter, to minimize the backtracking that occurs when a topic mentioned briefly in a previous chapter is to be elaborated, and to make the explanations complete enough and sufficiently specific, yet not too rigorous, that the student will have little difficulty in learning by reading. While no effort has been made to avoid the use of the calculus, the mathematics encountered is usually simple." (Pref) Index.

"This is a fine book covering all the principles in detail. There are over 1,300 problems, many with answers. If you work them all, you will be better grounded in mechanics than any college graduate."
+ Book Week p9 Ag 22 '43 120w

Library J 68:626 Ag '43 30w

CHAMBERS, WHITMAN. Invasion! 320p $2.50 Dutton

43-5357

Novel of the present war which pictures what might happen if the Japanese invaded southern California. The chief characters are a group of people who succeed in escaping from the Japs and hide out in a storm drain. A few them survive until the avenging United States flying fortresses arrive.

"This is one of the most annoyingly unsatisfactory books in a long time, because it starts out so well, and promises so much in its first chapters, that it makes you feel more and more gypped as it goes on." Arnold Gingrich
— + Book Week p8 My 9 '43 470w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Ap '43

"Continuous conversation among main characters about politics, moral obligations, etc. (though artificially dragged in), raise story above pulp level. Frank language plus innuendoes." H. G. Kelley
Library J 68:363 My 1 '43 80w

"This is a novel by an angry man. Mr. Chambers, who was an officer in the U.S. Navy, is angry at Republicans in general, but mostly at Hamilton Fish, Thomas Dewey and Joe Martin; at Father Coughlin, Senator Wheeler, at Colonels Lindbergh and McCormick, at striking war plant workers, at President-haters and President-hissers, at business-as-usual advocates, hoarders, chiselers and at it-can't-happen-here dreamers. A handful of characters in the book orally flay these and other objects of the author's magnificent wrath, page after page, chapter after chapter. This is a pity. A certain amount of it might have gone a long way." Meyer Berger
— N Y Times p24 My 2 '43 550w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p12 My 2 '43 250w

CHAN, CHIH-YI. The good-luck horse; adapted from an old Chinese legend by Chih-yi and Plato Chan. (Whittlesey house publication) [47p] il $1.50 McGraw

43-15772

An old Chinese folk tale, retold and adapted for young listeners, and illustrated by a twelve-year-old Chinese boy. It is the story of a little boy's paper horse which blew over the wall into a magician's garden and was turned into a real horse. From then on the good-luck horse was in and out of difficulties, so after that people were often in doubt whether he was a Good-luck or a Bad-luck horse.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p16 N 21 '43 110w

Booklist 40:98 N 15 '43

Reviewed by H. A. Masten
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 D 13 '43 230w

"This seems to me the 'find' of the year. The text is a translation from an old Chinese legend and has the charm you would expect, but the illustrations are beyond compare excellent. They are the work of a young Chinese artist still in his early teens who is supposed to have been painting since the age of two (page Ripley)."
+ Commonweal 39:119 N 19 '43 60w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:402 N '43 70w

Reviewed by M. L. Goodwin
Library J 68:962 N 15 '43 40w

"A Chinese legend adapted by a Chinese mother and illustrated with humor and distinction by her twelve-year-old-son." Lena Barksdale
+ Nation 157:591 N 20 '43 20w

"The illustrations, the work of Mme. Chan's 12-year-old-son, fill in the background of the tale with grace and humor in a modernized Chinese style." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p14 N 14 '43 240w

"It is easy to understand why this story of a runaway paper horse has been a favorite with Chinese children for generations. The translation will appeal to very young Americans. . . The pictures, by a twelve-year-old boy, are remarkable."
+ New Yorker 19:119 D 4 '43 50w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 31 '43 80w

"The original audience, crowding in a circle, must have hung on the words of the tale-teller. Young children will listen now—and the funny drawings tell the story again in their own way. This artist is already in the true tradition." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p10 N 14 '43 250w

CHANDLER, CAROLINE AUGUSTA. Susie Stuart, home front doctor. 187p $2 Dodd 43-16941

A career book for older girls. It is the graphic story of young Dr Susie Stuart's experiments with the sulfa-drugs in a present-day clinic. Dr Susie's war wedding ends the book.

"Written out of the author's own experiences, it is brisk and lively and up to the minute."
+ Cath World 158:318 D '43 40w
Commonweal 39:122 N 19 '43 20w

"Perhaps the general interest now taken in sulfa-drugs gives 'Susie Stuart' its advantage over career-books in general; it strikes me as likely to be generally read, as well as by those who mean to take up this career. Liveliness helps, too." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 N 21 '43 250w

CHANDLER, CHARLES DE FOREST, and LAHM, FRANK PURDY. How our army grew wings; airmen and aircraft before 1914. 333,36p il $3.75 Ronald
358.4 Aeronautics, Military 43-7390

"Beginning with Civil War operation of captive balloons, this history traces the progress of U. S. Army aeronautics down to 1914 when a separate Aviation Section was created in the Signal Corps. The book recounts the adventures, tragedies and achievements of the Army's pioneering airmen. It is an authentic record of 'firsts'—first airplane, air school, flight surgeon, machine gun, bombsight, etc.—and gives facts and dates as to fliers, machines, and performance records." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky
Book Week p5 Jl 4 '43 70w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:161 O '43 30w
Library J 68:669 S 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:22 Ap '43

"Thoroughly documented, soundly written, important work. There is no comparable volume. The story of the successes and failures of early days is both heartbreaking and inspiring." Raymond Holden
+ Sat R of Lit 26:35 Ag 21 '43 60w

"This narrative of the early flyers and early aircraft is a careful work of military scholarship with a most minute attention to detail. It frequently reads like an Army dispatch, but its authors were there and can describe the trials and troubles of the early birdmen with a personal fervor. The book began as a short history envisioned by Colonel Chandler in 1936, but it grew under his hand as he labored on it, and when he died, in 1939, his notes and correspondence were turned over to General Lahm to complete. There is plenty of internal evidence that it was a labor of love for both, and it bears the stamp of exhaustive research." R. B. Cochrane
+ Weekly Book Review p44 D 5 '43 1100w

CHANDLER, RAYMOND. Lady in the lake. 216p $2 Knopf 43-15785

Detective story.

"Raymond Chandler, who many think is getting better with each novel, has in this one achieved spectacular results, with a story as finely balanced as a precision instrument and as exciting to watch at work." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p11 N 7 '43 140w

"This one is easier to guess than any of the author's previous books, but it's an A-1 job."
+ New Repub 109:758 N 29 '43 50w

"This is a fine example of the type of fiction of which Raymond Chandler is a master." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p10 O 31 '43 140w

"Tough, beautifully organized, and with a great deal more meat on its bones than the usual story of this type."
+ New Yorker 19:108 N 6 '43 70w

"Extra good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:29 N 6 '43 40w
Time 42:104 D 6 '43 60w

"Passions run riot in this saga of sinful California. Swift, with satisfactory clew chasing." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p30 N 7 '43 200w

CHAPEL, CHARLES EDWARD. Gun care and repair; a manual of gunsmithing. 454p $3.75 Coward-McCann
683 Gunsmithing. Firearms 43-5258

Specific directions for equipping gun shops, including material on the making of rifles, pistols, revolvers, and shotguns, and the care of some guns made in the United States. For the use of the amateur or professional gunsmith. Index.

Booklist 39:349 My 1 '43
N Y New Tech Bks 28:10 Ja '43

CHAPIN, MARY KATHERINE. Why men can fly; il. by Alice M. Heun. 338p maps $2.50 Reynal
629.13 Aeronautics. Aeronautics—History. Meteorology in aeronautics 43-2652

History of aviation from Greek mythology to the present time, combined with an explanation of the principles of flight and their application. It describes the steps by which airplane design, engines, instruments, and weather prediction were combined to produce modern flying. For high school age. Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter
Book Week p11 My 30 '43 700w
Booklist 39:313 Ap 1 '43
Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p4 Ag 26 '43 70w

"Unusually lucid and interesting. . . Excellent for basic understanding of aviation by average interested, but not technically trained, reader. Suitable for high school age and adult. Sketches and diagrams. Index. Purchase will depend on number of similar volumes already in collection." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 68:213 Mr 1 '43 80w

"This book is not supposed to be exhaustive or definitive; rather it is an effort to provide a sound foundation for more advanced study of aviation. As such it is an excellent job. . . Incidentally, the adult who has always wanted to know more about the history and principles of flight but has been repelled by heavy-handed books by engineers, might find this an ideal volume for catching up with his son or daughter." F. P. Graham
+ N Y Times p12 F 21 '43 280w

"If I can understand an explanation of how something works, anybody can: this book's lucidity is guaranteed by the fact that I not only enjoyed it, but knew what I was enjoying. So, I think, will quite young people, who begin, at what would have been for their fathers an early age, to look at the skies with personal interest." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p7 F 21 '43 550w
Wis Lib Bul 39:50 Ap '43

CHAPLIN, WILLIAM WATTS. Seventy thousand miles of war; being one man's Odyssey on many fronts. 287p $3 Appleton-Century
940.548173 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-16947

Records the experiences of a seventy thousand mile trip taken by an International news service man in pursuit of the present war. "Throughout the 'phoney war' he was with the British Army in France; in April, 1940, he contracted flu, went home for a short rest, and sat out Dunkirk and the fall of France in New York. In 1942 he was assigned to India; the Cripps negotiations collapsed before he got there. . . Shortly thereafter, I. N. S. ordered him to Egypt, but 8th Army headquarters could accommodate no more correspondents, and he missed Alamein. Chaplin was in Moscow during the mighty struggle at Stalingrad. . . In other words, although Chaplin tried diligently to catch up with a live battle front, the closest he came was a perfunctory bombardment of the Maginot line and Bombay's anti-British riots." (Weekly Book Review)

CHAPLIN, W. W.—Continued

"His whole book makes interesting reading. It is like a travelogue of an honest, hard-working American who saw his job defined by old and well-tried rules of journalism which he observed meticulously and well. It is hard to believe that Mr. Chaplin really tried to go beyond these limits and write a book about causes. If you can forget his preface you will not be cheated by this record of war." P. R. Knauth
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:20 D 11 '43 1100w

"The one criticism that might be leveled at Mr Chaplin is that he has made some of his accounts too anecdotal. These are almost irrelevant, and surely they do not add to a more complete understanding of the situation. But that is probably the only criticism. His descriptions of prewar conditions in some of the conquered countries reveal disgraceful weaknesses, and perhaps give the real reason why many of these places fell so quickly. . . Perhaps the most valuable part of the book is his story of his experiences in Russia." M. J. J.
Springf'd Republican p6 D 28 '43 380w

"Making a virtue of necessity, Chaplin constituted himself a sort of homefront reporter to the United Nations on his route. The result is a crisply written, informative book, flavored with his tart personality and re-creating much of the texture of war-time life in far lands. Although the earlier pages occasionally border on mere travelogue, and the Indian section includes little new material and some firmly stated opinions, the last half of the book records powerfully the frightening, single-minded intensity of Russia's war effort." Richard Match
+ Weekly Book Review p10 D 19 '43 600w

CHAPMAN, MARISTAN, pseud. of MARY and STANTON CHAPMAN. Trail beyond the Rockies; il. by Constance Moran. 282p $2 Appleton-Century
43-2467

Mystery story for boys and girls. The scene is Arizona, but the girls themselves are from Glen Hazard.

"The book has a good deal of humor and excitement. The style is pleasant and most enjoyable." R. L. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 11 '43 220w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p18 My 23 '43 350w

CHAPMAN, PAUL WILBER. Victory barnyard; how to produce your own meat, eggs, milk, and poultry. (Whittlesey house publication) 221p $2 McGraw 636 Live stock. Poultry

Advice and suggestions for the suburban and small town dweller, on how to raise much of the family food supply in the backyard and how to preserve the summer surplus for winter use. Includes raising chickens, squabs, and pigs, keeping a cow or a goat, making a vegetable garden, canning hints, and the use of freezer lockers.

Booklist 40:40 O 1 '43

"What Mr. Chapman says in general about food-raising is clear and practical (his diagrams for poultry and animal housing are fine) and should be of great help to the amateur producer. He doesn't get lyrical, but he does need to fence in his optimism a bit." Rutn Lechlitner
+ — Weekly Book Review p15 Ag 22 '43 1000w

CHARTERIS, LESLIE. The Saint steps in. 217p $2 Doubleday
43-15362

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p7 O 24 '43 90w

Booklist 40:95 N 15 '43

"All the Saint's admirers will want to read this book." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 O 3 '43 100w

"Although Templar, commonly known as the Saint, is now cooperating with the F.B.I., his methods are still unregimented, and one can foresee that this arrangement is apt to be temporary. The best Saint book in some time."
+ New Yorker 19:88 O 2 '43 70w

"Typical 'Saint' yarn."
Sat R of Lit 26:27 O 2 '43 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 7 '43 130w

"This is slick and exciting throughout." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p30 O 3 '43 280w

CHASE, ALLAN. Falange; the Axis secret army in the Americas. 278p il $3 Putnam
351.74 Spies. Fascism—Latin America. Secret service—Germany 43-10337

An account, giving names and dates, of the origin, development and achievements of a Hitlerian army of spies operating in the Americas and the Philippines, led by a German general but recruited largely from the ranks of Franco's followers in Spain. Index.

" 'Falange' suffers from the inevitable defects of its 'expose' form. The material is so constantly sensational that the book functions on an unvarying level of shock and indignation, which has the unfortunate result of producing a sort of resistance or tolerance (in the medical sense) before the end is reached, a saturation point in emotion. The source of much of Chase's inside information, by its very nature, must remain anonymous, and that gives a curious and mildly irritating effect of omnipresence in the author, as though he were under every Nazi agent's bed and had access to every sealed diplomatic pouch and secret file in Von Faupel's organization." S. E. Hyman
Book Week p1 Jl 18 '43 550w

Booklist 40:2 S '43

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley
Cath World 158:104 O '43 140w

Christian Science Monitor p12 S 4 '43 700w

Reviewed by Alexander Uhl
Nation 157:215 Ag 21 '43 950w

"If anything short of dynamite, fuse caps and a match can jar the complacency of the State Department, it should be this book." Carey McWilliams
New Repub 109:203 Ag 9 '43 1000w

"Some, no doubt, will accuse Allan Chase of being an alarmist. True, the book does read, as its publisher claims, like a suspense-filled Hitchcock film. But what it says and the dangers it warns against can hardly be exaggerated." Lloyd Mallan
+ N Y Times p5 Jl 11 '43 1600w

"Sounds fairly plausible."
New Yorker 19:68 Jl 17 '43 50w

Reviewed by Stephen Naft
Sat R of Lit 26:11 Ag 28 '43 1000w

Reviewed by Karl Lowenstein
Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 15 '43 700w

"Many will find this book a rather confusing contribution to these battling days. However, it should prove useful if it turns the attention of more men toward the fateful role of Spain in America." Hubert Herring
Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 8 '43 1450w

CHASE, ARTHUR MINTURN. Peril at the spy nest. 222p $2 Dodd 43-984

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p12 F 7 '43 150w

"The author has pictured his spies as arrogant, ruthless and a little too obvious. Nevertheless, there are several surprises in store for the reader, and the concluding episode is as satisfactory as it is thrilling." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 31 '43 230w

CHASE, ILKA. In bed we cry. 308p $2.50 Doubleday
43-16719

The story of a shrewd and clever woman, owner of a famous and fashionable New York beauty parlor, which had branch salons all across the United States. Devon Elliott's business adventures were more successful than her love affairs and her marriage, for her attempt to establish the double standard of living for women, brought her bitterness and tragedy.

"Ilka Chase is a smooth and readable writer, and knows generally what she is about. What the book suffers from most is a niftiness, evident first in the writing, which is often conspicuously clever, and on which at times is superimposed something of the gay ripple of the lady monologist. . . And it appears secondly in the often contrivedly sophisticated dialogue. . . Nevertheless the versatile actress, radio comedienne and biographer has turned her talents to still another field with pleasant results. And I for one am willing to forgive this charming and chipper creature even the one awful false note of the end." Peter De Vries
+ — Book Week p16 N 14 '43 450w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 157:590 N 20 '43 600w

"Miss Chase has nice feelings which show through, and I hope, sometime, she will tell us how to be rich but not wretched—a possibility not here implied. On the contrary, 'In Bed We Cry' emanates a costly parfum which, at the risk of seeming serious, I shall name Tocsin—or maybe Toxin." Philip Wylie
N Y Times p6 N 7 '43 750w

"A story written with that mildly acid talent for depicting the surfaces of smart New Yorkers that Miss Chase used to such good advantage in her successful 'Past Imperfect.' The book blurb comments on Miss Chase's ability to give her characters 'the tangible quality of a mink coat.' This seems accurate enough and supplies a clue to the kind of diversion the author furnishes, and furnishes, I may add, with indubitable competence. She has the ability to raise Madison Avenue gossip to the level of entertainment." Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 19:105 N 6 '43 200w

"Miss Ilka Chase's first novel is written about a small segment of society, presented as if it were the whole of society and as if its problems were normal and important. It is strong poison, presented in a bright package without a skull and crossbones on the label." Katharine Simonds
Sat R of Lit 26:18 N 27 '43 700w

"The book is not without humor and a touch of the genuine Chase malice, but much of it is vulgar, little of it is warm with life and the sum total is just this side of being a bore. This, Miss Chase, hurts us more than it does you." E. M. B.
— + Springf'd Republican p7e N 7 '43 220w

"Ilka Chase's first novel is the liveliest agitation of stamens and pistil since the last flowering of the night-blooming cereus. Like the heady perfumes of its heroine (a chrome-plated Manhattan cosmetician), In Bed We Cry derives its strength from a dash of civet. The plot is a triangle whose base is always broad, whose chief points are streamlined by agelessness."
Time 42:99 N 22 '43 500w

"This novel may not be an authentic replica of New York life, but it's good make-up. 'In Bed We Cry' is not exactly uplift, but it is adroitly woven and has a three-way stretch—cynical, cosmetic, concupiscent." Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p4 N 7 '43 800w

"In Bed We Cry may sell like cold beer in the Sahara and become the Flaming Youth or Bad Girl of the 1940's, but it is nevertheless amateurish and inept as fiction and deplorable in its confusion of values." Orville Prescott
— Yale R n s 33:xiv winter '44 180w

CHASE, MRS ISABEL WAKELIN URBAN. Horace Walpole: gardenist; an edition of Walpole's The history of the modern taste in gardening, with an estimate of Walpole's contribution to landscape architecture [pub] for Univ. of Cincinnati. 285p pl $3.50 Princeton univ. press [23s 6d Oxford]

712 Walpole, Horace, 4th earl of Orford. Landscape gardening 43-15943

"This monograph, which in its original form was a dissertation prepared in the graduate school of the University of Cincinnati, is an edition of Walpole's 'History of the Modern Taste in Gardening' with an estimate of Walpole's contribution to landscape architecture. The text of Walpole's brief sketch has been edited with care. . . It has been set against the background of other eighteenth-century (and earlier) treatises on gardening. . . The ideas which Walpole sets forth in his 'History' are related to those suggested more informally in his letters and journals." Weekly Book Review

---

"The specialist on landscape gardening may very likely find this an illuminating book. The student of literary history will certainly discover some curious aspects of the eighteenth century that are up his alley. And it is pleasant to the uninstructed reviewer to speak of Mrs. Chase as a lady who joins modesty to competence and is happily familiar with what must be the delightful business of landscape gardening." Leonard Bacon
+ Sat R of Lit 27:6 Ja 1 '44 900w

"Mrs. Chase, who is a professional landscape designer, is well equipped in sympathy, knowledge and experience to perform the scholarly task which she has set herself. Her book is enriched with a number of appropriate and pleasing illustrations."
+ Weekly Book Review p16 O 17 '43 380w

CHASE, RICHARD, ed. Jack tales. 201p il $2.50 Houghton

398.2 Folklore—North Carolina
43-12028

"[These tales] come to us from the mountain country of North Carolina, handed down from one storyteller to another for generations. They are the tales of simple Jack, who always comes out on top." Sat R of Lit

---

"While there has been much interest in this country in the collecting of folk ballads, little effort has been made to set down in written form the folk tales of America. This collection by Richard Chase is not only grand entertainment for young and old but it is of decided worth to the student of folklore as well." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p4 N 14 '43 230w
Booklist 40:18 S '43
Cath World 158:317 D '43 60w

"The tales are variants of European folklore, but have been handed down orally through generations of mountain people until they are as American as pumpkin pie or corn bread. A scholarly preface and appendix make this a book of value to students, but the stories themselves and the interpretive illustrations by Berkeley Williams, Jr., have an immediate appeal for boys and girls." M. K. McElderry
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 29 '43 110w

"A collection of folk tales, calling to mind the books of Joseph Jacobs. Like his stories, these versions have meat for the student of folklore as well as for the lover of tall tales." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:172 My '43 100w

CHASE, RICHARD—Continued

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 19:423 N '43 30w

"Extremely interesting addition to American folklore. . . Foreword, appendix, list of parallel stories, and glossary add to value as source book." Gertrude Andrus
+ Library J 68:671 S 1 '43 90w

"Jack Tales is . . . not only a volume of lively, entertaining stories which please boys and girls by their content and vivid, picturesque language; it is also a valuable contribution to American folklore." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p20 O 24 '43 360w

Reviewed by Maria Cimino
Sat R of Lit 26:50 Ap 17 '43 70w

"There should be a special celebration to welcome this book. In a time when laughter is greatly needed, it will bring laughter wherever it goes. Little children will chuckle when it is read aloud to them. Soldiers in a training camp would love the tales if they could be told by someone who knew how. It is an important book. First, because it is filled from cover to cover with good, rousing, exciting stories. Second, because it is an authentic record of our own American folklore." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 26:59 O 16 '43 500w
Sat R of Lit 26:27 N 13 '43 30w

"Genuine folklore serves three purposes when given in this form to children. Story tellers seize the versions and send them spinning down the road of time for another generation. Folklorists, concentrating on the notes at the back of the book, get eighteen tales all together instead of scattered through scholarly journals. And children, unless their love of the marvelous has been stunted by Superman, fall on them with the passion of the fairy-tale age." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 S 5 '43 400w
Wis Lib Bul 39:147 N '43

CHASE, STUART. Goals for America; a budget of our needs and resources; guide lines to America's future as reported to the Twentieth century fund. (When the war ends) 134p $1 Twentieth century fund

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions. Reconstruction (1939-). U.S.—Economic policy 42-36383

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"Mr. Chase's contagious optimism and good will disarm his critics. However, scholars may remember that in many civilizations, a spiritual élite has conceived a good life, lived by intelligent men, just before those civilizations collapsed." J. B. Shannon
Am Pol Sci R 37:142 F '43 450w

"Mr. Chase's analysis of the wants of mankind is splendid. His solution to the problem of the inequitable distribution of goods seems inadequate. He admits that our present economic institutions have failed, and yet he urges that they can with some adjustment prevent the recurrence of the miseries of the last depression. I fear that he had better reconsider his solution and suggest a planned democracy with much more government control and intervention than he is now willing to allow." J. H. Landman
+ — Ann Am Acad 227:167 My '43 500w
Bookmark 5:4 Ja '43

Reviewed by Alvin Adey
Current Hist 3:543 F '43 500w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:582 Ap '43 70w

"If Mr. Chase's book circulates as widely as it deserves, it will have a great educational effect in promoting realistic and progressive economic thinking. For Mr. Chase remains the most persuasive of writers on the subject and the easiest to read." Keith Hutchison
+ Nation 156:319 F 27 '43 800w

Reviewed by K. M. Gould
Pol Sci Q 58:122 Mr '43 450w

"Mr. Chase's book is a very readable, concise summary of the pre-war results of an economy of scarcity contrasted with an appraisal of what our physical plant can do for us in a material way if we choose to use it for the benefit of all. . . Mr. Chase has taken the essential points from a large amount of material and put them into usable form. It is ground that needs to be covered and recovered until its meaning is widely understood, until the case for intelligent planning begins to take root. For this reason Goals for America should be widely read and discussed by high school students. Experience has shown the book to be readable and interesting, but above all it has made many of them feel that there is some hope for better things to come in this world which to them is discouraging and confusing. This is, perhaps, its greatest contribution." H. L. Parrish
+ Social Studies 34:234 My '43 550w

Reviewed by C. R. Walker
Yale R n s 32:598 spring '43 420w

CHASE, STUART. Where's the money coming from. (When the war ends) 179p $1 Twentieth century fund

336.73 Finance—U.S. World war, 1939— Finance. U.S.—Economic policy 43-17861

"The author gives us a good deal of rare common sense about such matters as savings, taxes, and the national debt and explains how we will manage to have a national income of something like a hundred and twenty-five billion dollars in 1943. He says flat-out that we have the men, the techniques, and the money to keep a high-level economy going after the war, and shows us the variety of means by which this can be accomplished." New Yorker

Reviewed by Joel Seidman
Book Week p3 D 26 '43 360w
Booklist 40:139 D 15 '43

"Is inflation inevitable? Can our public debt ever be paid? Will it be possible to prevent another depression worse than the last? When Stuart Chase sets out to answer these tough questions, as he does in this book, one thing is certain: that his answer can be understood by any person with average intelligence and a good high school education. His solutions may not strike everybody's fancy, but at least there will be no windy disputes as to what he is trying to say."
Christian Century 60:1441 D 8 '43 200w

Reviewed by Mordecai Ezekiel
Nation 158:162 F 5 '44 1350w

"Important reading for congressmen, businessmen, and responsible citizens in general. Clearly and simply written."
+ New Yorker 19:98 D 18 '43 140w

"Mr. Chase has great gifts as an expositor, as we all know. Too great, however, for in his enthusiasm to explain and convince, Mr. Chase of necessity oversimplifies. No serious student of business cycles is prepared to admit with Mr. Chase that the only significant cause of depression is the oversaving—underinvesting calculus. No serious student of finance is willing to regard so lightheartedly along with Mr. Chase the increase in debt through bank borrowings. . . Without an awareness of the great force of tradition and without a calculation of future costs, such writing is frequently lacking in public responsibility." L. M. Hacker
— Weekly Book Review p2 D 26 '43 900w

CHEEVER, JOHN. Way some people live. 256p $2 Random house
43-5522

Thirty short stories, most of them reprinted from the New Yorker. Some were written before December 1941, a half dozen later.

Booklist 39:368 My 15 '43

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 156:533 Ap 10 '43 210w

"As examples of fiction from The New Yorker, these stories of Mr. Cheever's are among the best that have appeared there recently, and this is particularly true of those which exploit a cool and narrow-eyed treatment of tensions arising from the war." Weldon Kees
+ New Repub 108:516 Ap 19 '43 700w

"There are thirty sketches in this volume; all of them are worth at least five minutes of your time, even though the majority are exercises in marital frustration, hag-ridden dipsomania, poverty, or plain and fancy jitters. Most of them appeared between the covers of The New Yorker. Perhaps this accounts for their peculiar epicene detachment, and facile despair." William Du Bois

N Y Times p10 Mr 28 '43 550w

"Most of them [are] effective and certain of them distinguished."

+ New Yorker 19:70 Mr 20 '43 50w

"Unless I am very much mistaken, when this war is over, John Cheever—he is now in the army—will become one of the most distinguished writers; not only as a short story writer but as a novelist. Indeed, if he wishes to perform that ancient triple-feat, not as popular now as it was twenty years ago in the time of Galsworthy and Bennett and their fellows, he can be a playwright too, for he has all the necessary signs and characteristics." Struthers Burt

+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 Ap 24 '43 850w

"To the extent that in the writing world any material—sketch, article, newspaper report, fiction—is called a story, John Cheever's book, 'The Way Some People Live,' may be called a collection of stories. But in the conventional sense, only a few of the thirty pieces that make up the volume fulfill the ordinary requirements of the short-fiction form. The rest are moments or moods caught in the lives of his characters, pointed in quality but inconclusive in effect." Rose Feld

Weekly Book Review p12 Mr 14 '43 700w

Reviewed by Mark Schorer

Yale R n s 32:xii summer '43 230w

CHERONIS, NICHOLAS DIMITRIUS; PARSONS, JAMES BAYARD, and RONNEBERG, CONRAD ERWIN. Study of the physical world. 898p il $3.85 Houghton

500 Science. Physics 42-24371

"This text is the product of eight years of experience and constant experimentation in the presentation of a survey course in physical science as a part of a general education program. The authors and those who participated in this development have felt the need for a text which would be compatible with the aims of such a course and at the same time be within the intellectual grasp of the average college or university student." (Pref) Partial contents: The tools of inquiry; The relation of mathematics to science; The concept of time; Motion and force; Universal force; The astronomical yardstick; The sun: the cause of change; The electrical nature of matter; Fuels: the sources of energy; Foods and nutrition; Electricity at work; The nature of sound; What is light? The world we see; The five volumes of geological history; Index.

"Teachers will be pleased with the teaching aid of excellent illustrations. They will appreciate the summary and study exercises at the close of each chapter and the thoughtful evaluation of each reference for further reading. But teachers trained in highly specialized fields and working in departments which have little connection, either in physical plant or equipment, would have difficulty in teaching this unified course; but this organization difficulty should not blind them to the excellent unification of the physical sciences worked out in The Study of the Physical World." C. F. Eyring

+ — R of Scientific Instruments 14:300 O '43 1200w

"The book is one of the best of its type that the reviewer has seen in the past few years. The subject matter covering the major fields is exceptionally well integrated. The amount of space given to these fields is fairly well apportioned on the basis of their relative importance. In a book of this type it is difficult to achieve proper integration of the various subject areas, but the difficulty has been well handled here." A. D. Pickett

+ School R 51:377 Je '43 600w

CHESNEY, CLEMENT HOPE RAWDON. Art of camouflage; with four chapters written by J. Huddlestone. 252p il maps $2.75 Studio; Transatlantic

355.43 Camouflage (military science) 43-51237

"The term camouflage is here interpreted not only as the disguise of objects by altering their appearance but also as the military strategy of misleading the enemy in operations. The first section of the book, written by J. Huddlestone, is a discussion of camouflage in nature, and of civil camouflage. This is followed by the use of camouflage in the first World war, and future possibilities. The final portion analyzes strategic camouflage by Napoleon and Stonewall Jackson, and its use during the Boer war and the first World war. An English work [first published in England in 1941]." (Booklist) Brief index.

Booklist 40:2 S '43

"Much sound common sense is packed into the sections on camouflage for civil works in this book. Being a British publication, part of the text is devoted to discussion of the official British A.R.P. Handbook No. 11. This does not, however, detract from the value of the general observations."

+ Eng N 131:112 Ag 12 '43 140w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 22 '41 200w

"The really valuable kernel of the book is to be found in the latter part of Chapter v, with its most interesting account of the use of net camouflage; in Chapter vi on civil camouflage; and in Chapter vii on military camouflage in the future. These are well worth perusal: they put clearly and effectively many considerations of importance which, embodied in an attractive popular work, may perhaps gain more attention from the powers-that-be than when urged privately by the scientific specialist. . . When a new edition is called for, no doubt the author will correct obvious slips and misspellings such as Kallina, Portorus and Sir A. J. Thompson; and he should really look up the history of the word 'camouflage'." J. G. Kerr

+ — Nature 147:758 Je 21 '41 1650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p186 Ap 19 '41 450w

CHEVALIER, STUART. War's end and after; an informal discussion of the problems of a postwar world. 337p $2.75 Macmillan

940.53144 Reconstruction (1939-) 43-13618

Purports to be the conversations of three Americans—a young liberal, a conservative Southern democrat, and an old line republican —on the subject of the problems of the postwar world. The author is a lawyer who has practiced in the South, in Washington, New York, and Los Angeles. Index.

Reviewed by Willard Shelton

Book Week p3 Ja 2 '44 360w

Christian Century 60:1270 N 3 '43 360w

"Setting conversations some months after war is won lends air of unreality. Fictional form, moreover, makes book unnecessarily wordy and unconvincing. Should prefer the 'tract' author has tried to avoid. Makes some good points but probably will appeal to few readers." Thelma Brackett

— + Library J 68:665 S 1 '43 80w

Reviewed by John Storck

N Y Times p26 O 3 '43 500w

"The book is valuable because it seems to reflect with a good deal of accuracy what the average practical and intelligent American has gathered from official and amateur comment on the peace. . . Mr. Chevalier lays much stress on spiritual values, and his book may perhaps be termed a liberal Protestant attempt to see things through. It is unpretentious but for that reason conceivably more valuable to the average citizen than are some of the ultra-dogmatic treatises now being produced in abundance." G. N. Shuster

+ Sat R of Lit 26:14 O 2 '43 450w

CHEVALIER, STUART—Continued

"Mr. Chevalier's characters, we are told, have no access to their books. As a result, their historical information is apt to be faulty. . . The other weakness is that, in the discussion of foreign affairs, we do not feel in Mr. Chevalier's characters the tang of personal experience. They are not misinformed: they are hazily informed. But these very limitations make the book more definitely what it purports to be—a cross-section of the American mind." Albert Guerard

+ — Weekly Book Review p22 O 17 '43 1000w

CHEYNEY, PETER. Dark duet. 240p $2 Dodd [8s 6d Collins]

Detective story.

"Old fashioned secret service stuff, with tough trimmings." Will Cuppy

Books p12 F 7 '43 120w

"Good."

+ Boston Globe p19 Ja 13 '43 50w

"The job of the 'Dark Duet,' Michael Kane and Ernest Guelvada, is the elimination of Nazi agents who cannot be reached by due process of law. . . Guelvada is a Belgian who has ample reason for hating the Germans. . . Kane, apparently, is of Irish extraction and is the cooler head and the better organizer of the two. Despite the sinister nature of their work, Mr. Cheyney has succeeded in making these men attractive and has thrown a halo of romance over their exciting adventures." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p20 Ja 24 '43 180w

"Really a series of four short stories with the same central characters. Pretty exciting."

+ New Yorker 18:64 Ja 30 '43 50w

"A-1 Thriller."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 Ja 30 '43 30w

"There are quips in 'Dark Duet' for a sophisticated humour and there are paragraphs that might have been written by a dear old lady with ideas about life derived from the pictures. . . The atmosphere is full of quivering menace."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p273 My 30 '42 150w

CHEYNEY, PETER. Farewell to the admiral. 297p $2 Dodd

43-5114

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p10 My 2 '43 120w

"On the cheap side."

— Sat R of Lit 26:25 Ap 24 '43 40w

CHEYNEY, PETER. The stars are dark. 269p $2 Dodd

43-15060

Tale of mysterious Nazi undercover workers in England, and the group of English counter-espionage agents, led by one Quayle, who prove too clever for the Nazis.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p10 O 31 '43 160w

"A well-plotted story, told without any frills at all, which makes it unusually convincing."

+ New Yorker 19:100 O 9 '43 40w

"Tops in spy-stuff."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:21 O 23 '43 40w

"More ordinary, though neat and tidy within its own romantic characterisation and conception, is the latest Cheyney." John Hampson

+ — Spec 171:346 O 8 '43 170w

Time 42:104 N 1 '43 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p533 N 6 '43 50w

"An intricate plot is developed in a highly skillful manner, but the real voltage of the novel lies in the matching of wits in the deadly game of espionage. 'The Stars Are Dark' is at its best as a psychological study—the trigger mind versus the trigger finger." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p28 O 17 '43 270w

CHIANG, KAI-SHEK. All we are and all we have; speeches and messages since Pearl harbor. 61p il $1.25 Day

940.5351 World war, 1939—China. China—History 43-14878

"The Chinese leader's speeches and messages since Pearl Harbor, including those to the Indian people, the Flying Tigers, and the American people, plus replies by Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Willkie, and others." New Yorker

Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky

Book Week p5 My 9 '43 90w

Booklist 39:351 My 1 '43

"Collection of stirring and enlightened utterances."

+ Christian Century 60:547 My 5 '43 200w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:16 Jl '43 20w

"Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is a plain-spoken man, a soldier with a scholar's mind and a philosopher's heart. The Generalissimo is articulate, blunt and realistic. . . As you read these speeches—and every American, every English person should read them—you cannot fail to glimpse the emotions of the people of China, because General Chiang has his capable fingers on the pulse of his people. His speeches are a commentary on history." Helena Kuo

+ N Y Times p9 Ap 18 '43 950w

New Yorker 19:83 Ap 17 '43 40w

Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 4 '43 650w

"Chiang Kai-shek's war-time oratory is far less dramatic than that of other national leaders, but it is no less vibrant with feeling. Quiet in manner, he achieves his effects by simple, straightforward statement of fact, of confidence, of resentment, of the will to see it through, and of what must be done. . . There is great dignity in such simplicity and restraint, carrying far more weight than adjectival eloquence." Rodney Gilbert

+ Weekly Book Review p4 My 16 '43 600w

Reviewed by M. S. Bates

Yale R n s 33:167 autumn '43 300w

CHIANG, KAI-SHEK. Resistance and reconstruction; messages during China's six years of war, 1937-1943. 322p $3.50 Harper

951 China—History 43-10514

Collection of sixty speeches, messages to the Chinese people, addresses to students and soldiers, and radio broadcasts, all delivered by China's leader during the period from the Japanese attack at the Marco Polo bridge in 1937 to the signing of the January, 1943, treaties.

Reviewed by Sterling North

Book Week p3 Jl 11 '43 250w

Booklist 40:8 S '43

Christian Century 60:897 Ag 4 '43 60w

Commonweal 38:520 S 10 '43 60w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:167 O '43 10w

"Because of its form—repetitious and somewhat disjointed—book will appeal only to limited audience." J. C. Shipman

Library J 68:570 Jl '43 80w

Reviewed by K. L. Mitchell

New Repub 109:463 O 4 '43 390w

"Naturally some of these addresses are of more permanent value and interest than others. But out of the collection emerges a picture of Chiang's own personality, and of some of the problems, internal and external, which he has had to solve as the leader of China's resistance. . . The full difficulties of China's position are scarcely brought out in these addresses, which naturally stress the notes of steadfastness and determination to fight on, regardless of what may happen. But the Generalissimo is an eloquent spokesman for the spirit of Free China. . . This collection of his speeches should be an effective plea for increased aid to China at the earliest possible moment." W. H. Chamberlin

+ N Y Times p3 Jl 11 '43 900w

"Practical, sometimes philosophic, and plainly written. New and excellent translations by Dr. Albert French Lutley, Dr. Frank Wilson Price, and Ma Pin-ho."
+ New Yorker 19:66 Jl 17 '43 90w

"If the reader can remember that after the first few months during which the doubters and falterers faded out of the picture, the Chinese people have faithfully echoed the generalissimo's every thought, he puts across to us a clearer understanding of China's transcendant spirit than is to be found in any collection of contemporary writings." Rodney Gilbert
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Jl 18 '43 1500w
Wis Lib Bul 39:144 N '43

" 'Resistance and Reconstruction,' is for the serious student of contemporary China. . . Few public men who have spoken often and concretely through six years of kaleidoscopic war have now so little to take back. If Chiang occasionally overstated the strain which Chinese resistance was inflicting upon Japan, there was repeated warning of the length and grimness of the test. . . If Chiang is relatively weak in economics, if he is overdidactic in good Confucian style, he deserves none the less credit for maintaining morale through six years of defeat, occupation, and impoverishment." M. S. Bates
+ Yale R n s 33:167 autumn '43 300w

CHIANG, MEI-LING (SUNG) (MME CHIANG KAI-SHEK). We Chinese women. 55p $1.25 Day

940.5351 World war, 1939—China 43-14877

Collection of speeches and writings of China's First Lady, covering a time range from February 12th, 1942, to November 16th, of the same year.

Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky
Book Week p5 My 9 '43 90w
Booklist 39:351 My 1 '43

"Though she is superb as an ambassador of good will and shines on any occasion for which a gracious spirit and verbal felicity are the chief requisites, Madame Chiang can also handle the graver issues of international politics with a touch no less firm than deft. . . Read in connection with the speeches of her husband, one realizes the remarkable nature of Chinese leadership."
+ Christian Century 60:548 My 5 '43 200w

"In her speeches, you can detect some of the ingredients that make Madame Chiang one of the world's most outstanding women. She cherishes her ideals and her principles and her love of mankind. She represents the liberal-thinking people of all countries. She and the Generalissimo combine to make the perfect couple who seem almost a legend." Helena Kuo
+ N Y Times p9 Ap 18 '43 700w
New Yorker 19:83 Ap 17 '43 110w

Reviewed by Rodney Gilbert
Weekly Book Review p4 My 16 '43 300w

Reviewed by M. S. Bates
Yale R n s 33:167 autumn '43 300w

CHIANG, YEE. Men of the Burma road; il. by [the author]. 88p $2.25 Transatlantic [7s 6d Methuen]

43-1019

"The building of the 700-mile road in southern China is described with simplicity and economy of detail. The story follows the families of two cousins, farmers, showing first the influence of innovations such as education and cooperatives on the agricultural communities, the reaction of these families to news of Japanese invasion, and their response to the government's request for road builders." Booklist

Booklist 39:319 Ap 1 '43

"Recommended." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 68:1005 D 1 '43 70w

"Quietly, unemphatically, with a simplicity of sentiment and language that seems to belong to almost everything a Chinese writer produces in English, Mr. Chiang Yee tells the story of the construction of the Burma Road."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p393 Ag 8 '42 550w

CHICAGO. UNIVERSITY. Graduate library school. Library institute. Reference function of the library; ed. by Pierce Butler; with a foreword by Louis R. Wilson. (Studies in lib. science) 366p $3 Univ. of Chicago press

025.5 Libraries—Reference department

43-5807

"Papers, by 17 authorities in the field, presented before the Library Institute at the University of Chicago, June 29 to July 10, 1942, which analyze the character of reference work; consider the organization and administration of reference departments; illustrate reference procedures in different types of libraries; examine the reference problems peculiar to specialized collections; and offer a critical examination of present methods of training reference personnel." School & Society

"It is an excellent compendium of reference work not only for librarians but also for scholars and teachers concerned with the reference functions and equipment of libraries of all kinds."
+ Am Soc R 8:498 Ag '43 60w
Booklist 39:419 Je 15 '43

"Obviously prepared and admirably suited to meet the needs of persons professionally engaged in library work, these papers . . . make contact at many points with the interests of book-using people who are the patrons rather than the administrators of libraries."
+ Christian Century 60:458 Ap 14 '43 120w

Reviewed by M. L. Conat
Library Q 13:349 O '43 2050w

Reviewed by E. N. Jenks
N Y Times p23 My 9 '43 440w

"The seventeen papers included cover familiar aspects of reference work as it is carried on in libraries of different kinds, and present many emerging developments in specialization and expansion. All but two represent professional library authority and experience. They are practical and thought-provoking; in range and variety they show the always closer interweaving of books into life-activities, and the part played by the library as a 'community intelligence center.' " H. E. Haines
+ Sat R of Lit 26:38 Je 5 '43 500w
School & Society 57:420 Ap 10 '43 70w
Special Libraries 34:173 My '43

CHIDESTER, ANN. No longer fugitive. 403p $2.75 Scribner

43-13078

Portrait of a young Irish-American, grandson of a lusty Minnesota pioneer. Liam is no conscientious objector, but he refuses to be pushed into a war in which he does not believe. Confused by his emotions, his devotion to his grandfather, and his growing concern over his brother Simon's beautiful wife, Liam takes his clarinet and goes forth to study his country and his fellow men. When he returns, after a protracted journey, he finds his grandfather dead, his loved home in ruins, but his own determination to go to war, is assured.

"It is an exciting novel beautifully written and filled with compassion for humanity in its quest for truth."
+ Atlantic 172:129 O '43 130w

"Seriously, this book is recommended as a must-read for that person who is forever saying he expects to write a book some day. Here is writing craftsmanship of the most painstaking kind . . . a perfect example for the would-be author. Detail is piled on detail until you see, hear and, in many instances, smell the character. Miss Chidester has a gift for description to which I give three deep bows. Even the Minnesota cyclone that puts

CHIDESTER, ANN—Continued
a whirlwind (no pun intended) finish to the tale is stitched into the pattern with the same meticulous care with which Miss Chidester describes her characters' clothes. A well-told tale, indeed." Marguerite Lyon
+ Book Week p9 S 12 '43 300w

Booklist 40:79 N 1 '43

Reviewed by N. E. Monroe
Cath World 158:314 D '43 90w

"Quiet and persuasive solution will appeal to many, though style seems uncertain and amateurish, and characterization is often forced and unconvincing. Larger public libraries will find useful this second novel by author of Young Pandora." Rice Estes
+ — Library J 68:668 S 1 '43 60w

Reviewed by Weldon Kees
New Repub 109:495 O 11 '43 270w

"Ann Chidester has remarkable energy and inventiveness, qualities which augur well for her future as a writer. 'No Longer Fugitive,' in spite of its youthful derivative quality—hardly to be wondered at since Miss Chidester is still not 25—is by no means lacking in distinction.' Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p20 O 10 '43 550w

"Miss Chidester's plot sometimes creaks and her style could stand much pruning, but she writes with considerable power and she knows people, especially the young."
+ — New Yorker 19:93 S 18 '43 160w

"Miss Chidester is a romantic at heart and no realistic attitude toward sex or scorn of inhibitions can conceal her romantic leanings. But there is no denying the fact that Miss Chidester's is a genuine literary talent. She writes always with zest and often with unusual sensitiveness and beauty, she has a sincere feeling for her characters even if she fails at times to realize them, and she has the born story-teller's sense of drama. In short, give her time and a little more discipline and she is bound to develop into a fine creative artist." M. S. Ulrich
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:19 O 23 '43 550w

"Ann Chidester has a real gift; she has something to say, and an enthusiasm about this land of ours and its people, out of which her creativeness springs full-armed. In adding to her former achievement, she gives still further promise of greater things yet to come. I believe that here can be noted the second step in the development of a true American novelist of genuine worth." Sarah Schiff
+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 19 '43 700w

"When Ann Chidester's first novel 'Young Pandora,' appeared last year, it was like a drink of fresh, clear water out of a torrential waterfall, more exciting to a reviewer than a drink out of a bottle. Great things were expected from this young talent born in 1919 and in part she has fulfilled them in her new book, 'No Longer Fugitive.' Her writing is more controlled, her thoughts more maturely assembled, and the vigor and the vitality of her youth and her imagination are still there. While there are some thin places in the texture and the pattern of her story, it succeeds, nevertheless, in leaving a powerful impression of the tumult and the confusion of youth, her main theme." Rose Feld
+ — Weekly Book Review p5 S 12 '43 700w

CHILD, IRVIN LONG. Italian or American? the second generation in conflict. 208p $2.75 Yale univ. press

325.245 Italians in the U.S. Acculturation
A43-2535

Report of a study of the psychological reactions to acculturation of a minority group in an American city—in this case male second-generation Italians in New Haven, Connecticut. Index.

"The reader will find in Child's book an interesting and useful social-psychological analysis of the effects of culture conflict on personality development." E. D. Monachesi
+ Am Soc R 8:738 D '43 400w

Reviewed by D. K. Newman
Ann Am Acad 231:194 Ja '44 600w

"The timeliness of such a study makes it particularly acceptable."
+ Christian Century 60:1042 S 15 '43 130w

"This book is a good contribution to the social psychology of the American scene. . . The material presented is quite concrete, takes up such matters as range and communication, modes of eating and drinking, recreation, family structure, the handling of sex, the handling of aggression, economic life, religion and superstition, and so forth." Abraham Myerson, M.D.
+ Survey 79:317 N '43 380w

CHILD, MRS NELLISE. If I come home. 311p $2.50 Doubleday
43-15967

Story of two young people of today who fall in love, marry against the wishes of the girl's family, and are forced to live in a poverty that finally destroys happiness and future hopes.

"There are flaws in this book. Some readers may regard parts of it as sentimental, others as unreal. But that is unimportant because it is a beautifully written story, told with honesty and real feeling. In writing it Nellise Child has performed a real service by reminding us of times and of people we must not forget in planning the days after the war." Ann Breland
+ — Book Week p17 N 21 '43 380w

"All the situations are overdrawn, but novel is artistic as well as successful presentation of universal social problem. Recommended." Katharine Shorey
+ — Library J 68:845 O 15 '43 70w

"Nellise Child has tried to tackle a serious problem within a light frame. Her descriptions of the poor Italians on Angel Hill have a true ring. Tony's broken spirit, his peculiar appeal to the rich girl are well drawn. . . No doubt the book keeps you entertained. But its main problem seems too serious to be tucked away under a counter of costume jewelry." Marianne Hauser
+ — N Y Times p24 Ja 9 '44 400w

"Although the machine-gun style of narrative and the lack of all subtlety and indirection would seem to indicate that 'If I Come Home' is a crowded chronicle of event and nothing more, this sometimes tender, sometimes hard-boiled story is full of social implications, and the impeachment of modern society would halfway satisfy a Marxist." R. A. Cordell
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:40 D 11 '43 400w

"Miss Child describes her two extremes of economic circumstance—the Casinos and the Whittakers—with a wealth of detail. But Brooke and Tony too often smack of slick-magazine serial juveniles with a sociological twist substituted for the usual happy ending. Brooke's love affair with Tony is so sudden and so profoundly irrational that it's hard for the sensible reader to believe that they could have been happily married under any circumstances. However, Miss Child's work has a fierce sincerity and a somber brooding mood in welcome contrast to our present bland, easy optimism about post-war America." T. L. Collins
+ — Weekly Book Review p16 N 7 '43 500w

CHILDCRAFT [juvenile literature and child guidance; ed. by S. Edgar Farquhar]. 8th ed 14v il $49.50 c1942 Quarrie corp, 35 E. Wacker drive, Chicago

808.8

"Childcraft was reviewed in Subscription Books Bulletin, July 1940 and October 1935 [Book Review Digest, 1935, 1940]. In those reviews a detailed description of the set and its history are to be found. The Subscription Books Committee has examined the Parent series, c1942, including the following volumes: 1, Poems of early childhood; 2, Narrative poems and creative verse; 3, Experience stories and animal friends; 4, Tales and legends; 5, Our own country and foreign lands; 6, Holidays and famous people; 7, The growing child; 8, Guidance and development; 9, Ways to learning; 10, Nature excursions; 11, Play activities; 12, Parent guide—index; 13, Art and music; 14, Science and industry. As explained in earlier reviews, certain volumes in the set are common to both the Parent series and the Teacher series, while other volumes are included only in the respective series. A new general index to the whole set has been added in the latest printing. This is placed in volume 12. As the index is analytical, the content of the set by specific subject, author, and title, is more easily accessible than heretofore. Some exceptions to complete analysis are the absence of form entries, such as Songs, Poetry, Biography, the omission of author and title entries for books included in the several lists recommended for children's reading and ownership; the omission of appropriate stories and poems under the holiday entry, e.g., Moore's Visit from St. Nicholas under Christmas." Subscription Bks Bul

"The books are so well written and illustrated and deal with such varied subject matter that they hold much of interest for persons of all ages." B. K. Finn
+ J Home Econ 36:39 Ja '44 400w

"The revised Parent edition of Childcraft is recommended for home use and for those public libraries and schools where more adequate sources are not readily available."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:6 Ja '43 360w

CHILDERNESS, GEORGE. Murder in false face. 256p $2 Phoenix
43-6905

Detective story.

"Unconvincing." Isaac Anderson
— N Y Times p8 My 16 '43 70w

"High-stepping, bullet-punctuated opus with much more action than reality, gaudy characters, and generally lurid atmosphere."
Sat R of Lit 26:35 My 15 '43 40w

"Casualties mount dangerously, you might even say incredibly. This pipe dream contains strong language, characters in the lower brackets and a touch of amorous passion, not too smooth." Will Cuppy
— Weekly Book Review p19 Je 13 '43 110w

CHILDERS, JAMES SAXON. War Eagles; the story of the Eagle squadron. 350p il $3.75 Appleton-Century

940.544942 Great Britain. Royal air force. 71 (Eagle) squadron. World war, 1939— Aerial operations 43-6372

An informal account of the Eagle Squadron, which was the senior American Eagle fighter squadron with the R.A.F. The squadron operated for eighteen months, and then was absorbed into the United States army air forces in September, 1942. Out of a total of one hundred and twelve pilots, twenty-five have died, most of them in action, three are missing, and six are prisoners of war. Glossary of R.A.F.-W.A.A.F. slang.

"A warmly human story. . . Such books usually confine themselves to narratives of air war. Col. Childers has put that all in, too, as well as some priceless—and ribald—adventures of the men off duty. . . I was delighted—and not surprised." W. F. M.
+ Book Week p7 My 30 '43 130w
Booklist 39:366 My 15 '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:158 O '43 20w

"While many books have been published, and many are constantly coming out, regarding the war in the air, nevertheless Colonel Childers' book has a place in contemporary war literature." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 68:286 Ap 1 '43 60w
Manchester Guardian p3 D 22 '43 150w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield
Nation 156:746 My 22 '43 600w

Reviewed by Muriel Rukeyser
New Repub 108:867 Je 28 '43 120w

"Colonel Childers tells the story with enthusiasm, humor and sympathetic warmth that makes it a superb story, superbly done. . . For once I'm going flat out. I say this is an absolutely swell book and I say it without any qualifications or reservations whatever." Craig Thompson
+ N Y Times p4 My 9 '43 850w

"Any earthbound reader of this book will find himself putting it down to pick up his newspaper with new understanding. Numerous and fascinating illustrations add to the value of a volume that should not be neglected by anyone who wishes to know what really goes on in the fields where the Spits and the Messerschmitts roam." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 26:21 Jl 31 '43 180w
Times [London] Lit Sup p539 N 6 '43 180w

Reviewed by Frank Kelley
Weekly Book Review p16 Je 6 '43 800w
Wis Lib Bul 39:84 Je '43

CHILDS, JOHN LAWRENCE and COUNTS, GEORGE SYLVESTER. America, Russia, and the Communist party in the postwar world. 92p $1.25; school ed $1 Day

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations—Russia. Russia—Foreign relations—U.S. Reconstruction (1939-). Communism—U.S. 43-4304

"Brings out into the open a fundamental issue that is being discussed privately in all circles. The issue is the relation between the United States and Soviet Russia during and after the war." School & Society

"When the authors function as devil's advocate and suggest concessions on the part of the United States, their views are not strikingly dissimilar to those of conservative Republicans who excoriate Wendell Willkie as a rabid red. The feats of the Red Army are commanding prudence in language and moderations of viewpoints in practically all quarters. . . Evidently, the good doctors have a honing to achieve a similar victory in the international arena. As a contribution to an era of Ill Feeling which may be developing, their present broadside deserves a place beside Mark Aldanov's 'The Fifth Seal.'" Jack Conroy
Book Week p2 My 9 '43 600w
Booklist 39:327 Ap 15 '43

"This book is a marvel of condensation. Its authors say more about one of the major issues of the postwar world in their 92 pages than most of the pundits of the aftermath manage to say in three or four times that many. . . At only one point does the book arouse serious question. Dr. Childs and Dr. Counts write out of long and intimate acquaintance with the methods pursued by the American Communist party in attempting to gain control of liberal organizations in the United States. . . They write now with the scars of that battle still on them. As a result, they place a disproportionate emphasis on the necessity for a liquidation of the American Communist party by Moscow as a condition of understanding between the United States and Russia." Paul Hutchinson
+ — Christian Century 60:489 Ap 21 '43 700w

"Messrs. Counts and Childs have some constructive ideas, and we sincerely hope and pray that something comes of them. Meanwhile, we agree with them that if Americans really want to remove the subversive threat of American Stalinists, they must remove the even more subversive elements of social, economic and racial injustice that still lie like a blight on our fair land, supplying those same Stalinists with much more aid and comfort than ever found its way from Uncle Joe in the Kremlin."
+ Commonweal 37:569 Mr 26 '43 490w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:154 O '43 50w

"'America, Russia, and the Communist Party' is a book that every Nation reader should read at least twice. It is brutally frank and thoroughly sophisticated. It is not confused, for it is written from one standpoint only, that of the reforming democrat.

CHILDS, J. L.—Continued
There is nothing revolutionary or pseudo-revolutionary about it, and there is very little admixture of modes of thought alien to the main body of its thinking. It has two defects: it is occasionally repetitious; and its conclusion concerning the Communist Party is false." Ralph Bates
+ — Nation 156:492 Ap 3 '43 1200w

"A masterly job, despite a small amount of wishful hoping."
+ New Yorker 19:80 Mr 13 '43 100w
Sat R of Lit 26:18 Mr 20 '43 750w
School & Society 57:336 Mr 20 '43 30w

"The authors have managed to handle an exceedingly controversial conflict with sympathy and balance." Roger Baldwin
+ Survey G 32:139 Ap '43 390w

CHLEPNER, BEN SERGE. Belgian banking and banking theory. 224p $2.50 Brookings 332.1 Banks and banking—Belgium 43-8726

"On the basis of extensive practical experience and as a long-time professor of banking in Belgium, the author reviews the history of banking in that country from 1830, compares it with the American record, and draws conclusions regarding both banking theory and bank policy." Ann Am Acad

"An informative as well as thought-provoking contribution to the literature of both banking in particular and economics in general." John Donaldson
+ Ann Am Acad 229:228 S '43 600w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:162 O '43 20w
Special Libraries 34:173 My '43

CHRISTENSEN, CLYDE MARTIN. Common edible mushrooms. 124p il pl $2.50 Univ. of Minn.
589.2 Mushrooms 43-52551

Description of fifty species of edible mushrooms for the inexperienced person. Four species are described as "foolproof." Some very poisonous species are also described. Suggestion for use; some illustrations in color. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 39:246 F 15 '43
Reviewed by E. C. Grayson
Sat R of Lit 26:24 F 27 '43 30w
Weekly Book Review p16 Mr 28 '43 150w
Wis Lib Bul 39:38 Mr '43

CHRISTIAN, KIT, pseud. of DELOS RUSSELL THORSON and SARAH WINFREE THORSON. Death and bitters. 240p $2 Dutton 43-13713

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p10 S 26 '43 110w
Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 S 5 '43 100w

"A lot of people fall all over the plot's feet and what with a good deal of indiscriminate drinking the combination probably accounts for the not too sparkling cerebrations involved in the doings." Baron Ireland
Springf'd Republican p7e S 5 '43 170w

"Here we have a good-natured, amusing tale containing a group of radio persons, three murders (counting that old one) and a case of young love." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p10 S 5 '43 300w

CHRISTIE, AGATHA (MILLER) (MRS M. E. L. MALLOWAN). Triple threat. 3v in 1 282; 290:277p $2.50 Dodd

Omnibus volume composed of three previously published books of short detective stories: Poirot Investigates; The Mysterious Mr Quin; and Partners in Crime.

"Here's a perfect vacation volume, composed of 49 short stories by Agatha Christie, concerning the behavior, cerebral and corporeal, in the detection of crime on the part of Hercule Poirot. . . Poirot and Quin are up to their usual form, which is quite a form, indeed." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p10 Ag 8 '43 180w

"Because Agatha Christie is so well known for her full-length detective stories, one is likely to forget that she is equally expert in the short-story form. This volume serves as a reminder and as a treasure chest of her work in that category." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p8 Jl 18 '43 100w

"Excellent omnibus, recommended to those who like their detective fiction short and eventful. The Quin stories are especially worth re-reading."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 Jl 17 '43 30w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p16 Jl 25 '43 150w

CHUBB, THOMAS CALDECOT. Time to speak. 75p $2 Fine editions
811 43-12372

"A volume of poems. . . At Yale Mr Chubb won the John Masefield prize in poetry. He is the author of biographical books, including 'The Life of Giovanni Boccaccio' and 'Aretino, Scourge of Princes.' When the war broke out he was at work on a life of Achille Murat." Christian Science Monitor

Christian Century 60:847 Jl 21 '43 60w

"Thomas Caldecot Chubb's latest volume has the genuine touch. It is not exciting and the material varies throughout the book. The lines, however, possess quality, and the detail shows the thorough workman." Pearl Strachan
+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 14 '43 250w

"Certain of Mr. Chubb's fine images show a serious love of America as a place; but these images occur chiefly in poems where the tone of Isaiah is not used. Between his love of things and places, and his prophetic concern about the present, there is a profound underground connection. But the poet does not bring this connection to the surface where it belongs and where it would give his poems what they lack—the reinforcement of emotion and statement by clear-cut perceptions." Delmore Schwartz
+ — N Y Times p34 N 7 '43 240w
Reviewed by Milton Hindus
Poetry 63:227 Ja '44 90w
Weekly Book Review p29 Ja 23 '44 180w

CHURCH, RALPH WITHINGTON. Bradley's dialectic. 188p $2.50 Cornell univ. press [10s 6d Allen, G]
192.9 Bradley, Francis Herbert [43-136]

"The purpose of this book is threefold: to give an exposition of Bradley's dialectic, to answer certain cavalier criticisms of it, and to point out the respect in which Bradley really was mistaken." J Philos

"While Professor Church's chief purpose is to elucidate the dialectical method, the book is not entirely expository in character. It contains in addition some critical comments on the dialectic, as well as on related questions. This critical, evaluative phase strikes the writer as mature, balanced, and to the point. To the reader who wishes to attain a critical introduction to Bradley and to the general point of view in philosophy which he represents, Professor Church's book can be highly recommended."
+ Ethics 54:64 O '43 250w

"The value of the book is that it assists the reader to some teasing disagreements both with Bradley and with his proponent-critic, Professor Church." V. C. Aldrich
+ — J Philos 40:132 Mr 4 '43 1150w

"Those who speak the language of Bradley will enjoy this book; those who speak the language of Hume may learn from it not to criticise a man for saying something he did not say. They would do better to listen to someone else." L. S. Stebbing

+ New Statesman & Nation 24:277 O 24 '42 600w

"Professor Church's admirable study of Hume's Theory of the Understanding is well known. Now the undenominational patience, accuracy and fairness which were there devoted to the greatest of British empiricists have been applied, with equal success to the greatest of British idealists."

+ Spec 169:464 N 13 '42 260w

Times [London] Lit Sup p460 S 19 '42 800w

CHURCHILL, WINSTON LEONARD SPENCER. The end of the beginning; war speeches; comp. by Charles Eade. 322p $3.50 Little [11s 6d Cassell]

940.5342 World war, 1939—Great Britain
43-12180

"Third collection of Mr. Churchill's war messages and speeches. Like the two previous volumes, this compilation, which covers 1942, includes a running chronology of events in the war." New Yorker

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p3 Ag 29 '43 500w

Booklist 40:9 S '43

Reviewed by L. M. Lyons
Boston Globe p17 S 1 '43 500w

Commonweal 38:568 S 24 '43 20w

Manchester Guardian p3 O 8 '43 50w

New Repub 109:434 S 27 '43 90w

"It contains a good many trivia: although the book is 'produced in complete conformity with the authorised economy standards,' a whole page is devoted, for instance, to a two-line message of 'heartfelt good wishes' to Mr. Curtin. But the major speeches are well worth re-reading, especially for those who were present when they were delivered and can recall their varying circumstances and moods, the careful poising of the rare words, the pattings of the despatch-box, the benignity or roughness of tone."

+ — New Statesman & Nation 26:255 O 16 '43 280w

"It will be a pity if the subtitle of this book, or its archival nature, or its chronological arrangement deters anyone from reading it, for it contains some of the most colorful and authoritative reporting of the war that has yet appeared. But more than that—it contains much wisdom for American political and military vocalists. Further, it is about as good a style book for the English language as exists." D. P. Geddes

+ N Y Times p3 Ag 22 '43 1050w

New Yorker 19:67 Ag 21 '43 60w

"The great speeches in this book are familiar. To reread them is to be struck again by the exactness of Mr. Churchill's thought, his weighed use of words, the fine eloquence of his more vivid passages, and his uncanny skill in a certain half-savage, half-playful bantering." R. E. Roberts

+ Sat R of Lit 26:5 Ag 28 '43 950w

"There are other things which crowd on the mind as one reads his speeches. They attain the heights of oratory but they are, in the main, matters of business statement, which appeal to the reason, and not of emotional eloquence. That is why they endure, and will continue to endure. . . A tribute should be paid to the editor of the volume for his quiet and unostentatious editing and for the austerely brief matter which he adds to the speeches he has edited. His short chronological notes are of particular value." Ernest Barker

+ Spec 171:131 Ag 6 '43 750w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon
Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 28 '43 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p362 Jl 31 '43 900w

Reviewed by G. W. Johnson
Weekly Book Review p3 Ag 22 '43 1600w

CHUTE, B. J. Camp hero. 250p $2 Macmillan
42-21964

"A good story of camp life, with special emphasis upon sports, and the importance of co-operation. The two leading characters, because of a keen rivalry, do not get on well, but by the end of the summer Red and Duke have settled their differences." Christian Science Monitor

"No sissy stuff in this book—it's a real story." A. S. Johnson

+ Book Week p9 Ap 18 '43 50w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 22 '43 80w

"Lifelike and boyish. Will be liked by boys eleven to fourteen." Sonja Wennerblad

+ Library J 67:913 O 15 '42 50w

"This author knows how to write for and about real boys." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 Ap 18 '43 350w

Wis Lib Bul 39:111 Jl '43

CHUTE, GEORGE M. Electronic control of resistance welding. 389p il $4 McGraw 671 Electric welding. Vacuum tubes

43-9949

"Spot welders are now being used for joining together an increasing variety of metals, and they have a vital part in the production of war materials. To control such resistance welders, electron tubes are often used. . . The subject of tube-operated welder controls has been taught by the author and his coworkers in evening classes attended by hundreds of men who work in vital war industries in the Detroit area. From these men the author has learned the information they need. The same instruction is presented here, in simple style, for those who have little knowledge of electricity." (Pref) Index.

Book Week p11 S 12 '43 90w

Library J 68:211 Mr 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:52 Jl '43

"The exposition is practical, well written throughout—and should serve as a model for treatments of this sort, which are so seriously needed to get the present work out of our available industrial manpower." H. M. Davis

+ N Y Times p51 N 14 '43 320w

"Although the author has been careful to supply the reader with valuable cross references, he has neglected to call the reader's attention to other references such as textbooks and original papers which have direct bearing on the subject matter discussed. This lack of reference material may not serve as a serious handicap to the readers for whom this book was no doubt originally intended, but it does limit the scope of usefulness for the student interested in having a guide to pertinent information of a fundamental nature underlying the theory and operation of electronic control." W. B. Nottingham

+ R of Scientific Instruments 14:312 O '43 420w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p30 O 17 '43 150w

CHUTE, MARCHETTE GAYLORD. Innocent wayfaring; with decorations by the author. 199p il $2 Scribner 43-12116

Tale of young love in Chaucer's England. Anne, daughter of Sir Hugh Richmond, runs away from the convent, presided over by an aunt, and joins a young poet, also in revolt over parental wishes. In three days wayfaring along the roads of southern England, the young couple fall in love, and decide to go home and be married and live happily ever after. For teen age girls.

Reviewed by Joanne Foster
Book Week p9 N 7 '43 110w

Cath World 158:318 D '43 20w

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 60w

CHUTE, M. G.—Continued

"Any child over twelve who has an appreciation for romantic history will like it."
+ Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 30w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:321 S '43 80w

"Delightfully lighthearted, gay story about Chaucerian England. . . Slightly sophisticated angle makes it advisable to examine before purchase. Vivid picture of medieval life, plus charming, funny love story, makes it wonderful reading for girls from eleven up. Decorations by author echo perfectly the droll humor of text." G. M. Williams
+ Library J 68:672 S 1 '43 70w

"The whole is as light and enchanting as a midsummer song yet somehow the aspects of fourteenth-century life stay vividly in the mind. Since human behaviour is in its fundamentals a continuous line, deviating only slightly through the centuries, the people seem as quick and living as if they were of today. Older girls who appreciate the compliment of good writing and mature humor will thoroughly enjoy Anne's attempt to live dangerously." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 15 '43 390w

" 'The Innocent Wayfaring' is a merry tale, designed 'for older girls.' Their sisters, cousins and their aunts, and their mothers and grandmothers will enjoy it too, not only for the pleasingly nostalgic recollections of a certain pilgrimage to Canterbury, but because of Anne. There is the evidence of documents for everything from 'the name of the mayor of Guildford to the recipe for face cream,' but Anne is the result of appreciative observation, perhaps of the author's sisters to whom the book is dedicated." E. H. Carlson
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 22 '43 440w

"Looking for something to give a girl just taking an interest in romance? Try this tale of first love in Chaucer's England and see if you don't enjoy it yourself. You don't have to believe it. I didn't believe 'The Forest Lovers' when I loved that. Miss Chute directs her story straight to the teens, which requires it to be more amusing and less lush. You chuckle from first to last, but never at the expense of love at first sight, for whose sake the tale is told." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 22 '43 360w

CIVIL SERVICE ASSEMBLY OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA. Committee on employee relations in the public service. Employee relations in the public service; a report submitted to the Assembly by the Committee, Gordon R. Clapp, chairman. 246p $3 The assembly

351.1 Civil service—U.S. U.S.—Officials and employees 42-14746

"This report is the first of a series to be published by various committees of the Civil Service Assembly to discuss the various phases of personnel administration. The committee studying employe relations in the public service assembled and studied the points of view of leading students and practitioners. An attempt was made to identify the major questions in the area of employe relations and to present the pros and cons available in the body of literature on these questions." Survey

---

"A certain inconclusivenes is the inescapable result, not only of the controversial subject-matter of the report, but of the method of presentation. Pros and cons are so carefully balanced that the reader occasionally feels like a tight-rope walker. But only occasionally. On most major points, clear-cut conclusions are reached which provide a firm foundation for progressive policy. . . The report is an important contribution to the literature of administration in a democracy." J. D. Kingsley
+ Am Pol Sci R 36:1163 D '42 650w

Reviewed by W. B. Graves
Ann Am Acad 227:183 My '43 650w

"At a time when so much is said and written about the 'democratic way' and about 'morale,' the report is especially significant since it focuses attention on the importance of internal democracy within the public administrative unit and on the importance of employe morale as it results from policies of constructive dealing with organized employes. Included is an excellent bibliography for students of employe relations." E. W. Reed
+ Survey 79:90 Mr '43 500w

CLARK, ALFRED ALEXANDER GORDON (CYRIL HARE, pseud). Tragedy at law. 301p $2.50 Harcourt [7s 6d Faber] 43-51300

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p8 S 19 '43 230w

Booklist 40:80 N 1 '43

"Even if it were not a very ingenious murder story (which it is), with a culprit whose identification will defeat most readers until the last pages, Tragedy at Law would still be a memorable piece of writing and a novel to be saluted with respect. For characters, action, and background all build up a shrewd and witty picture of legal life on circuit." G. P.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 18 '42 150w

"Mr. Hare's command of his subject makes this an extremely interesting book."
+ New Repub 109:466 O 4 '43 60w

"Most detection is written to a formula, because human powers of invention are limited. It is easier to write variations on an old theme than to think of a new one. But on some rare occasion an author rises from the ruck with an original idea and towers above his fellows. Mr. Cyril Hare now finds himself in this glorious situation." Ralph Partridge
+ New Statesman & Nation 23:392 Je 13 '42 330w

"An extremely urbane and well-written detective story, absorbing but not at all in the class of popular thrillers and who-done-its." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p7 S 5 '43 480w

"The author is overoptimistically compared by the publishers with Dorothy Sayers."
New Yorker 19:80 S 4 '43 70w

"Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:16 S 4 '43 30w

"Tragedy at Law is the best detective story that has appeared for some time, and at the end of the year will undoubtedly stand as one of the class leaders in the English school. Devotees of the American school will find the pace a little slow, and readers of novels will perhaps find the young people in the story a little too like the young folk of the later Galsworthy, but these are the only points on which Mr. Hare can be challenged." John Fairfield
+ — Spec 168:404 Ap 24 '42 130w

" 'Tragedy at Law' is a literate, amusing book; informative too, if you're interested in learning the complicated facts of English court procedure. Decidedly superior to its fellow bafflers in this novel Cyril Hare has written an intricate pattern of character, enlivened by humor, both subtle and gusty, and even found time for a suitable romantic interlude to complicate the mystery. Recommended to all those who enjoy mystery novels in which the technic is as important as the plot, and where believable characters act their parts on a very entertaining and wittily prepared stage." L. S. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 5 '43 440w

Times [London] Lit Sup p185 Ap 11 '42 120w

"We read this offering cheerfully enough for the most part and finished it as a satisfied customer, although the first few pages promised something of a chore." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p22 S 19 '43 300w

CLARK, MRS ANN (NOLAN). Little Navajo bluebird; il. by Paul Lantz. 143p $2 Viking 43-3618

Story of Doli, a charming little Navajo songstress, in whose heart lives the burden of her people, and who does her best to further the old customs and ways.

"The book not only has the ring of authenticity, it has a distinctive literary quality which sets it far above average. . . This book is a fine addition to the library of any 7-to-10-year-old and should be of particular value to teachers in the lower grades during work on Indian studies. Paul Lantz' splendid drawings add much to the picture of Navajo life." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p8 Ap 25 '43 320w

Booklist 39:356 My 1 '43

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 19:166 My '43 30w

"While this is a happy personal story for little girls, it presents truly one of the problems an Indian child faces today. The understanding illustrations by Paul Lantz add warmth and color." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:169 My '43 100w

"A short review cannot do justice to this charming little book, which will appeal especially to readers in fourth and fifth grades. Soft pencil drawings by Paul Lantz are perfect complement to beauty of this worthwhile addition to literature about Indian children and their homes." A. M. Wetherell

+ Library J 68:364 My 1 '43 90w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 40w

"There is a quiet rhythm in the writing which suits the author's sensitive feeling for places and seasons and growing things, and we find in this book the calm that comes from living in stillness and in close association with the forces of nature, a calm good for the modern child whose life is often over-full and over-stimulated. The drawings deepen the book's peaceful quality." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p16 My 16 '43 650w

New Yorker 19:67 My 29 '43 90w

"This is a deeply sympathetic book, entirely harmonious in its text, illustration, and design." Maria Cimino

+ Sat R of Lit 26:50 Ap 17 '43 150w

Sat R of Lit 26:28 My 15 '43 30w

"One of the distinguished children's books of 1941 in both text and pictures was Ann Nolan Clark's 'In My Mother's House.' 'Little Navajo Bluebird' has the same integrity, the same depth and feeling." M. G. D.

+ Sat R of Lit 26:29 N 13 '43 230w

"The charm of the book is in its evocation of Doli's love of life and in her definition—which is that of her people—of what life means to man. Paul Lantz's pictures have the authentic note of Indian character." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 Ap 4 '43 450w

Wis Lib Bul 39:75 My '43

CLARK, BARRETT HARPER, ed. Favorite American plays of the nineteenth century; with an introduction. (America's lost plays) 553p $3.75 Princeton univ. press

812.08 American drama—Collections A43-2497

"Nine important selections from famous 'America's Lost Plays' series plus The Mighty Dollar, by Benjamin E. Woolf, which is published for the first time." (Library J) Contents: Metamora, or, The last of the Wampanoags, by J. A. Stone; Davy Crockett, or, Be sure you're right, then go ahead, by Frank Murdoch; Monte Cristo (James O'Neill's version), by Charles Fechter; Flying scud, by Dion Boucicault; The banker's daughter, by Bronson Howard; My partner, by Bartley Campbell; A trip to Chinatown, by C. H. Hoyt; The great diamond robbery, by E. M. Alfriend and A. C. Wheeler; The heart of Maryland, by David Belasco; The mighty dollar, by Benjamin E. Woolf. Checklist of America's lost plays.

Christian Science Monitor p12 S 25 '43 700w

"The cream of the crop. Highly recommended."

+ Library J 68:727 S 15 '43 30w

"This volume marks the successful completion of a project of first-rate importance in the historical record of the American theater, the publication of 'America's Lost Plays.' . . Republication of selected plays in a single volume for wider circulation adds greatly to the usefulness of the whole project and furnishes a valuable supplement to anthologies published before these plays were available." H. C. K. Naeseth

+ Library Q 14:65 Ja '44 700w

"These plays are all period pieces. But those who heard many of them broadcast over WEAF in 1939 will remember that, despite our vastly changed tastes, there is still a good deal of entertainment value in most of them." Helen Lowe

Springf'd Republican p8 O 28 '43 390w

CLARK, COLIN. Economics of 1960. 118p $2.25 (8s 6d) Macmillan

330.9 Economic conditions A43-1116

"A well-known Australian economist predicts that migration will be resumed after the war; that Britain will again become the greatest exporter of capital; and that the position of countries producing primary goods will improve as much as 90 percent from the level of 1925-34." Foreign Affairs

---

"These predictions will be challenged by cautious critics, who will question the validity of the author's assumptions as well as the boldness of his deductions." R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:5 Jl '43 70w

Reviewed by G. L. Schwartz
Spec 171:268 S 17 '43 850w

"The arguments of this important and well-documented book are well presented. While it is mainly intended, and provides admirably, for economists, administrators and other experts, having many excellent tables and charts, yet its concise and readable form is well suited to the ordinary man."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p339 Jl 11 '42 750w

"Colin Clark is a young Australian economist possessing great boldness and imagination and his work is becoming increasingly well known and respected in this country. The present volume constitutes something of a sequel to his previous 'Conditions of Economic Progress' in the sense that the author utilizes the same statistical methods and employs the same data." L. M. Hacker

+ Weekly Book Review p26 Je 6 '43 500w

CLARK, DALE. Focus on murder. 317p $2 Lippincott

43-2940

Detective story.

"An ingenious plot, red herring by the score, clever sleuthing and plenty of action."

+ N Y Times p8 Mr 14 '43 60w

"Readable."

Sat R of Lit 26:16 F 27 '43 40w

CLARK, ELMER TALMAGE. Chiangs of China. 123p il $1 Abingdon-Cokesbury

920 Soong family. Chiang, Kai-shek. Chiang, Mei-ling (Sung) (Mme Chiang Kai-shek). China—Biography 43-51279

A simply written account of Charlie Soong, his children, and the husbands of his three daughters. Beginning with the story of Soong's early days in America, the story ends with Madam Chiang Kai-shek's visit to the United States in 1942. Bibliography.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p3 Ag 15 '43 400w

Booklist 40:58 O 15 '43

Christian Century 60:1105 S 29 '43 40w

Reviewed by O. G. Lawson
Library J 68:570 Jl '43 110w

CLARK, E. T.—Continued

"This little volume were perhaps better entitled 'The Soongs of China,' for the author's interest is primarily in the Christianity of the Soong family; and his major interest in Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's career, and in his influence upon China's destiny, is in the part played by the Christianity of the Soongs in shaping his character. . . I hope I have not given the impression that this is an unctuously pious work. It is not. It is as I have said, a good story unusually well told." Rodney Gilbert

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Ag 29 '43 650w

CLARK, JOHN ANSON; GORTON, FREDERICK RUSSELL, and SEARS, FRANCIS WESTON. Fundamentals of machines. 300p il $1.75; school ed $1.24 Houghton

621.8 Machinery, Kinematics of 43-4844

"This text follows topic by topic the outline of the official pre-induction training course in machines jointly prepared by the War Department and the U.S. Office of Education. . . Because official stress is upon fundamentals, and because a knowledge of mechanics leads to the safe and effective use of the instruments of peacetime as well as of wartime, this book deals chiefly with the basic principles of machines, the principles that 'make things go.' Knowing how things work is, of course, essential, but it is knowing the why that makes master mechanics and specialists in any field." (Foreword) Index.

Library J 68:431 My 15 '43 10w

Reviewed by L. S. Marks
N Y Times p21 Je 27 '43 80w

CLARK, THOMAS DIONYSIUS. Simon Kenton, Kentucky scout; il. by Edward Shenton. 275p $2 Farrar

B or 92 Kenton, Simon—Juvenile literature 43-4854

The life story of the famous frontiersman and scout, who from 1775 to 1798 was a scout and guard on the Kentucky borderland. Told for high school boys. Bibliography.

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p10 My 27 '43 100w

"A biography that older boys will enjoy because of adventure involved and teachers and librarians will welcome for its sturdy, dependable prose. Edward Shenton's illustrations add to value." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 68:365 My 1 '43 60w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p16 Je 27 '43 280w

Sat R of Lit 26:30 My 15 '43 20w

"Thomas D. Clark's 'The Kentucky' guarantees this book's authenticity in characters and background, and his special familiarity with the latter—both of time and place—puts the figure of Simon Kenton against his own scene and judges his character by the standards of his time." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 My 2 '43 550w

Wis Lib Bul 39:111 Jl '43

CLARK, WILL MILTON, ed. Manual of mechanical movements. de luxe ed 254p il $1.98 Garden City pub. co.

621.02 Mechanical movements 43-12365

"Part one originally appeared in a publication, The American Artisan, about the middle of the last century and contains diagrams and descriptions of fundamental mechanical movements. Part two is a series of photographs of working models made by the author to demonstrate the principles of mechanical movements." Booklist

"Here is a book that is very simple but very useful."

+ Book Week p10 N 28 '43 70w

Booklist 40:61 O 15 '43

Library J 68:626 Ag '43 10w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p12 S 5 '43 150w

CLARKE, EDITH. Circuit analysis of A-C power systems; v. 1, Symmetrical and related components. (General electric ser) 540p $6 Wiley

621.3133 Electric currents, Alternating. Electric circuits (43-12957)

"This book is a compilation of notes and lectures given over a period of years to members of the Central Station Engineering Department of the General Electric Company in Schenectady, New York. Beginning in 1928, the notes were revised and extended for new groups of men entering the department, practical problems in power system performance with numerical solutions being added from time to time as they were presented by operating engineers. . . The book has been divided into two volumes. Volume I deals largely with the determination of currents and voltages of fundamental frequency in power systems during unbalanced conditions by means of symmetrical and related components. . . Volume II will give additional characteristics of synchronous machines, equivalent circuits for types of transformers not included in Volume I, characteristics of insulated cables, induction machines, and other electrical equipment encountered in a-c power systems." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter
Book Week p10 O 10 '43 70w

Library J 68:669 S 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:43 Jl '43

CLARKE, FRANCIS PALMER, and NAHM, MILTON CHARLES, eds. Philosophical essays in honor of Edgar Arthur Singer, jr. 377p $3.50 Univ. of Pa. press

104 Philosophy. Singer, Edgar Arthur 42-23825

"The function of this volume is to celebrate the influence of Professor Edgar Arthur Singer, Jr., for many years associated with the University of Pennsylvania. The essayists represented in the book in their own papers reflect 'two integrated aspects of a life devoted to science: Professor Singer's long continuing contribution to technical philosophy in this country and his presentation of the historical "dialectic of the schools" and of systematic thought to generations of students.' " Ethics

Reviewed by A. W. Levi
Ethics 54:72 O '43 350w

Reviewed by W. H. Sheldon
J Philos 40:78 F 4 '43 550w

CLARKE, GEORGE HERBERT, ed. The new Treasury of war poetry; poems of the second World war; with introd. and notes. 285p $3 Houghton

821.08 World war, 1939—Poetry 43-16307

"More than a hundred and fifty poems from recent books and periodicals, by British, American, and Canadian writers, dealing with many aspects of the war." New Yorker

Booklist 40:141 D 15 '43

Commonweal 39:184 D 3 '43 210w

"Mr. Clarke's collection is entirely the sort of thing made familiar by the last war. . . Lulled by the steady beat of rhymed rhetoric, one looks in vain for a fresh image and seldom discovers a note of real passion. There is also a remarkable absence of feeling for profound issues. Exceptions are a few pieces by Clark Mills which have considerable energy, a sharply etched poem on the London fire by Mervyn

Peake, a selection from Wallace Stevens' recent volume, 'Parts of a World,' worth reading because Stevens is always an artist, and 'The Drill,' by Harry Brown, which has a certain meditative dignity. Other well-known names are represented by uninspired work and the collection as a whole is monotonous." H. R. Hays

N Y Times p48 N 28 '43 220w

"Interesting to compare with poetry of the 1914 war in both quality and tone. Whether because of the editor's taste, or because the returns are not all in, this poetry seems more sentimental and conservative."

New Yorker 19:112 N 20 '43 90w

Reviewed by Louis Untermeyer

Sat R of Lit 26:26 D 11 '43 270w

"It is evident from his table of acknowledgments that Mr. Clarke has drawn mostly from the well established, well known British and American publications. But it is puzzling, indeed, that he has discovered nothing, during the last five years, in such an important periodical as 'Poetry,' which has certainly published much of the finest work of our contemporary American and British poets." Ruth Lechlitner

Weekly Book Review p8 Ja 2 '44 310w

CLARKE, ISABEL CONSTANCE. Welcome; a romance of Jamaica. 224p $2.50 Longmans [9s Hutchinson]

43-14563

A story of two brothers, devout Catholics, and how their strong love for each other is almost destroyed by their love for the girl Karen, a non-Catholic. The scene of the story is Jamaica where the older brother is master of a large sugar plantation.

"While the theme is not very original, the treatment is fresh and authentic."

+ — Cath World 158:218 N '43 200w

"There is an odd, rather frail love story in this novel, but it is primarily a story of conflict, mostly psychological. . . The argument over religion is handled with perfect taste and sharp insight. One sees the inevitable pull of youth between Nicky and Karen and the bitter tragedy for Paul long before the climax arrives." Charlotte Dean

+ N Y Times p26 O 10 '43 320w

Times [London] Lit Sup p237 My 15 '43 120w

"In this unpremeditated triangle Isabel Clarke is understanding and impartial, solving the problem in an adult fashion." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p20 O 10 '43 120w

CLARKE, WILLIAM KEMP LOWTHER. Teaching sermons. 170p $1.25 Macmillan [4s S.P.C.K.]

252 Sermons 43-9843

"About sixty sermons in brief, covering the Christian year, designed especially for the edification of ministers who too seldom hear any other preaching than their own, for use in the church by lay readers, and for invalids. Though substantial and educational, as the title suggests, they are neither odiously dogmatic nor objectionably didactic." Christian Century

Christian Century 60:110 Ja 27 '43 50w

Reviewed by John Knox

J Religion 23:150 Ap '43 10w

Times [London] Lit Sup p95 F 20 '43 60w

CLARKSON, PAUL STEPHEN, and WARREN, CLYDE THOMAS. Law of property in Shakespeare and the Elizabethan drama. 346p $3.50 Johns Hopkins press [16s Oxford]

822.09 English drama—History and criticism. Shakespeare, William—Knowledge—Law. Property 42-23875

"Two American lawyers here publish the results of 'a sort of legal busmen's holiday' which has been their recreation during eleven years. Casual discussion of a single passage in Shakespeare set them off on a systematic study of all the plays of the Elizabethan drama (c. 1585-1635) in search of references therein to the law of property. They have arranged the results not, in the obvious and usual way, by authors but by legal subjects. They state the law, as it then was, and how it had grown to be so—under the headings of the law of real property, of personal property, and of descent; and then under the passages rightly or wrongly supposed to contain references to the particular part of the law they have just set forth." Times [London] Lit Sup

"The conclusion to which these 346 pages lead is negative. In view of this one may, perhaps, query the utility of the publication of the other books dealing similarly with other branches of the law, promised us by the authors. . . This book should be prescribed reading for any student of Elizabethan drama, but its as yet unborn brothers may profitably die aborning." R. R. Powell

+ — Columbia Law R 43:271 Mr '43 500w

"The value of a book of this sort is not that it refutes a preposterous thesis. The authors, as a matter of fact, specifically disclaim any effort to disprove anything. What they do furnish is the presentation of important and valuable data for the history of law. . . I am inclined to think that the authors do not quite realize that a full appreciation of the material they have collected would need a more thorough absorption in English legal history than they have been able to give themselves. They have diligently used Holdsworth and Coke on Littleton to verify individual points. I fancy they have approached the legal background from the texts rather than examined the texts from the legal background. It will not be quite safe for those who are not independently acquainted with law to rely on their statement of it." Max Radin

+ — Harvard Law R 56:1027 My '43 1650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p238 My 15 '43 270w

CLAUDEL, PAUL. Coronal; [hymns] rendered into English by Sister Mary David. 257p $2.75 Pantheon bks.

841 44-296

A cycle of religious poetry for the Christian year, written by a French Catholic author. The book is divided into four sections: The first part of the year; The group of the Apostles; The second part of the year; The way of the Cross.

"It is not too much to say that no student or lover of the French Catholic Renaissance will want to be without these beautiful and inspiring and—since they are M. Claudel's!—highly original poems. And their reading will be tremendously facilitated by the translations of Sister Mary David, who, while doubtless realizing the impossibility of reproducing the Wagnerian sweep of the Claudel music, has not quailed before the double task of an almost literal translation nearly always following the original rhyme scheme. She is to be congratulated upon her success." Katherine Brégy

+ Cath World 158:409 Ja '44 230w

"The style is original, almost harsh, and attempts to catch the ardor and directness of peasant speech. Yet there is forthright modernity too. . . It is more than difficult to translate such poetry into English. It is impossible. Sister Mary David has, however, produced a helpful, sometimes even beautiful, version, which should earn for the book a wider audience in this country." G. N. Shuster

+ N Y Times p10 Ja 9 '44 460w

"A serious, not always successful attempt to translate one of the most distinguished poets of modern France. Claudel's oratory is here more noticeable than his real gift for infusing Catholic liturgy with a certain modern vividness."

New Yorker 19:80 Ja 15 '44 50w

"The book is an interesting, satisfactory one, for several reasons. One of these is the charm of its simultaneously medieval and original means. . . Another cause of the book's interest is the mass of religious experience expressed here with these means. . . Sister Mary David's version often is delightfully simple. Throughout, it reveals a strenuous effort to

CLAUDEL, PAUL—Continued
transpose the robust, round tone of the original into English. Again and again it proves that she has felt the poet's fire and been thrilled and kindled by it." Paul Rosenfeld
+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 N 27 '43 1250w

CLAUSEN, WALTER B. Blood for the emperor; a narrative history of the human side of the war in the Pacific. 341p il $3 Appleton-Century

940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—Pacific ocean 43-12978

Accounts of the war in the Pacific from December 1941 to 1943 as gathered by Mr Clausen from participants in all branches of the services. He also includes an analysis of the nature of the Japanese and of their plans for world conquest. Index.

"A fast-paced history of our war in the Pacific." F. S. Marquardt
+ Book Week p1 S 5 '43 750w

"Walter B. Clausen is a man with a long and varied military background, and so it is quite natural that his story of our war with the Japanese, 'Blood for the Emperor,' would be a penetrating study of the enemy as a soldier." Max Hill
+ N Y Times p6 S 12 '43 800w

"As a veteran San Francisco and Los Angeles newspaper man, as a reporter who covered the Pacific Fleet since 1925, as Associated Press bureau chief at Honolulu since December 1941, Walter B. Clausen brings impressive professional background to this study of 'the human side' of World War II's Pacific conflict. But he has turned out a book that is unimpressive and curiously amateurish. . . Most of the stories quoted by Mr. Clausen are as good reading now as when they appeared in the daily press." Frederick Gruin
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:20 S 11 '43 600w

Reviewed by Joseph Newman
Weekly Book Review p2 S 12 '43 650w

CLAUSEWITZ, KARL VON. Living thoughts of Clausewitz; presented by Joseph I. Greene. 185p $1.50; text ed $1.25 Longmans

355 War. Military art and science 43-5394

"Clausevitz lived in the Napoleonic era. As aide to Prince August of Prussia, whose military tutor he was, he was captured at Jena, and later participated in the reorganization of Prussia's army which played a key part in Bonaparte's defeat. Incidentally, he served as chief of staff to both Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, two commanders who have given their names to modern battleships. Col. Greene has wisely assembled the material Clausevitz wrote on the general principles of war, including strategy, which do not change, and has left out tactical material which, he adds, can be read with profit by battlefield officers today." (Boston Globe) No index.

"Col. Joseph I. Greene, editor of The Infantry Journal, has written a superb introduction to the book in which he traces the career of the brilliant military scholar. . . It is fortunate that this volume has been published in a day when Americans are reading military critics and historians as never before. There is a tremendous amount of glib writing about military campaigns, tactics and strategy. It's good to get down to the roots." Karl Van Horn
+ Book Week p2 My 9 '43 320w

"No combat officer can fail to profit from reading the book and Col Greene's introduction." H. W. Harris
+ Boston Globe p17 My 12 '43 150w

"Recommended." H. A. von Urff
+ Library J 68:246 Mr 15 '43 40w

Reviewed by D. W. Mitchell
Nation 157:51 Jl 10 '43 300w

Reviewed by S. T. Williamson
N Y Times p18 Je 6 '43 900w

" 'On War' will not teach a soldier how to fight, its value lies in teaching the commander how to think, plan and comprehend. Colonel Greene's skilled condensation is an invaluable introduction to the complete work." P. J. Searles
+ Weekly Book Review p26 S 19 '43 700w

CLAUSEWITZ, KARL VON. On war; tr. from the German by O. J. Matthijs Jolles; with a foreword by Joseph I. Greene; and a pref. by Richard McKeon. 641p $1.45 Modern lib.

355 War. Military art and science 43-14478

"Fundamental concepts of art of waging war —foundations of modern strategic science in warfare—presented in famous military classic, Prussian officer's masterpiece, Vom Kriege, newly translated by O. J. Matthijs, Institute of Military Studies, University of Chicago. On nature, theory, and practice of war; basic reading for all officers and others concerned with or interested in conduct of war." Library J

Booklist 40:61 O 15 '43

"Strongly recommended for all university and most public libraries." L. I. Poste
+ Library J 68:665 S 1 '43 80w
Weekly Book Review p25 S 26 '43 130w

CLAYTON, WILLIAM. Theory of emulsions and their technical treatment. 4th ed 492p il $10 Blakiston [42s Churchill]

541.3452 Emulsions 44-1523

"The well-known treaties on emulsions appears in the fourth edition. The frame is much the same as the third edition of the year 1935 [Book Review Digest, 1936], but the introduction into surface phenomena in the first chapter is by far more logical as compared with the preceding edition where this subject was found in chapter two. Much new material has been introduced and a summary of important patents since 1934 in appendix II adds great value to the book. The enormous field which is steadily expanding necessarily calls for some limitations and thus not all emulsions occurring in industry are discussed, but critical selection has been made." Chem & Met Eng

"This volume will be read with pleasure and benefit by all whose interests lie in the fields of colloid or surface chemistry, and will serve as an up-to-date emulsion 'Bible' for those working with practical problems involving emulsions." G. H. A. Clowes
+ Chem & Eng N 21:821 My 25 '43 450w

Reviewed by F. C. Nachod
Chem & Met Eng 50:195 Mr '43 180w

Reviewed by J. H. Schulman
J Phys Chem 47:294 Mr '43 550w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:26 Ap '43

CLEMENS, CYRIL. Young Sam Clemens; foreword by Hendrik Willem Van Loon and introd. by Grant Wood. (Leon Tebbetts editions) 282p pl $3 Falmouth

B or 92 Clemens, Samuel Langhorne (Mark Twain, pseud) 43-1666

Anecdotal, legendary, and factual material concerning the life of Mark Twain as a boy and young man. His life in Hannibal, as a Mississippi river pilot, as a reporter at Virginia City and San Francisco, as a young lecturer and author, are all described. The book ends with his return from the west in 1866, aged thirty-one. Index.

Booklist 39:424 Je 15 '43
Christian Century 60:82 Ja 20 '43 90w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
Christian Science Monitor p12 F 20 '43 360w

"The narrative is smooth and companionable; it makes enjoyable reading." Edward Wagenknecht
+ N Y Times p8 Je 13 '43 50w

"It is not a formal biography, rather a footnote on biography, and while it is written with considerable evidence of hero worship it makes interesting and frequently amusing reading."
Springf'd Republican p6 F 8 '43 600w
Times [London] Lit Sup p202 Ap 24 '43 600w

CLEMENS, CYRIL, and SIBLEY, EDWARD CARROLL. Uncle Dan; the life story of Dan Beard; with introd. by Hamlin Garland and foreword by Theodore Roosevelt [with 15 of Dan Beard's pictures]. rev ed 270p $2 Crowell

B or 92 Beard, Daniel Carter. Boy scouts
42-36429

"Since the previous editions of Uncle Dan appeared during the life-time of this great American, his passing has occasioned a number of minor changes in the text, as well as several substantial additions. A chapter taking cognizance of his death, and containing a number of tributes to Uncle Dan's memory, has likewise been added." (Foreword to the 3d ed) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1938.

Booklist 39:206 Ja 15 '43

"Recommended for all replacements but not necessary in libraries having second edition." Maude Adams
+ Library J 68:83 Ja 15 '43 60w

CLEMENS, SAMUEL LANGHORNE (MARK TWAIN, pseud). Washington in 1868; ed. by Cyril Clemens. 54p $2 Int. Mark Twain soc.
817 U.S.—Politics and government—1865-
43-8397

"A reprint of articles written by Mark Twain for the Chicago Republican and published Feb. 8 to March 1, 1868. Besides being correspondent for that paper he was secretary for Senator W. M. Stewart of Nevada." Christian Century

Christian Century 60:330 Mr 17 '43 30w

"Here is an echo of the plush, flush, corrupt period which followed the Civil War, to which Mark and Charles Dudley Warner gave extended description in 'The Gilded Age.' Here is a footnote to the Washington chapters of that novel." Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 22 '43 550w
Springf'd Republican p8 Je 17 '43 500w

CLEMENTS, BERNARD. Speaking in parables; last broadcasts. 127p $1.50 Morehouse [3s 6d Student]
252 Radio sermons 43-5973

Radio sermons by the late vicar of All Saints' Church, London.

"This last series of broadcasts contains many brief messages which, together with their solidity of religious substance, have such charm of style that one must believe that few who caught even a fragment over the air ever tuned him out."
+ Christian Century 60:610 My 19 '43 70w
Churchman 157:18 D 15 '43 20w
Times [London] Lit Sup p311 Je 26 '43 20w

CLEVELAND, REGINALD MCINTOSH. America fledges wings. 224p il $2.50; de luxe ed $4.50 Pitman
629.13 Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics, inc. Aeronautics, Commercial 42-22639

"The history of the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics." (Subtitle) Discusses the achievements of aeronautics since 1926, due to the research and experiments fostered by the Fund. Index.

Booklist 39:313 Ap 1 '43
N Y New Tech Bks 28:3 Ja '43

CLIFFORD, ALEXANDER. Conquest of North Africa, 1940-1943 [Eng. title: Three against Rommel]. 450p maps $3 Little [12s 6d Harrap]
940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, English. World war, 1939—Africa, North 43-14390

"Topical history of the chief North African campaigns of this war, from Graziani's move into Egypt in August, 1940, to the finish in Tunisia, plus an account of actions in Greece, Syria, Ethiopia, and so on. Mr. Clifford, a London Daily Mail correspondent was on hand for most of the battles he describes. He has also done the accompanying maps." New Yorker

"As far as I am concerned, this is the definitive book on the battle for North Africa. Clifford has succeeded in writing the history as a coherent, integrated whole. He drew maps 'on the spot' that add greatly to the text. If the book has one drawback it is that it lacks an index." Ernest von Hartz
+ Book Week p2 O 3 '43 650w
Booklist 40:56 O 15 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '43

"'The Conquest of North Africa' is interesting mainly because of [the author's] feeling that General Montgomery has been given too much credit for the final victory of the Eighth Army. . . It is perhaps not unfair to note that Mr. Clifford, after spending years in the desert and witnessing scores of battles, unfortunately missed the Battle of El Alamein, having unwittingly coordinated a much-needed vacation with the consummation of Montgomery's plans. This may have colored his judgment just a trifle, as well it might. For the rest, 'The Conquest of North Africa' is solid reporting of the vicissitudes of desert warfare, right up to the triumph in Tunisia." Philip Hamburger
+ — N Y Times p34 S 26 '43 280w

"A crisp, orderly job."
+ New Yorker 19:85 S 25 '43 70w

"His book is a very thorough, careful job. It is not as inspired a job as some which have been written on these campaigns, but it has the advantage of being complete—probably the first complete story of the North African war we have yet had." P. R. Knauth
+ Sat R of Lit 26:39 O 30 '43 270w

"The book is exceedingly well written, the comments on equipment, tactics, and leadership are forthright and convincing, and there are many humorous and stirring incidents narrated, not only of combat but of daily life in the desert. It is a most instructive and timely story of one of the pivotal campaigns of this year." L. B. Kromer
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 3 '43 950w

"While there is no doubt but that Mr. Clifford has gone astray in his account of what must be regarded, in the light of history, as operational details, he succeeds in painting a broad picture which is thoroughly convincing, of the attitude of the men to their leaders, of the eternal problem of supply, of the shortage of equipment and particularly of suitable equipment. . . Of personalities he writes always with wisdom, insight and restraint, and while he does not hesitate to express his own views on questions of controversy . . . he yet writes about them fairly and undogmatically. Within its limitations this is an admirable and most readable book."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p589 D 11 '43 600w

"Mr. Clifford's aim, he says, was to write his book 'as a coherent, integrated whole' and he has succeeded well. He shifts smoothly from personal episode to descriptions of press conferences at high headquarters and thence to the tactics and strategy of the different campaigns." J. I. Greene
+ Weekly Book Review p6 O 10 '43 900w

CLOETE, STUART. Congo song. 399p $2.50 Houghton
43-3611

"The scene is equatorial Africa not long before the war. The plot involves an elaborate

CLOETE, STUART—Continued
system of espionage and sabotage. The characters are half a dozen men of assorted nationalities and professions, each top-flight in his own line, plus a beautiful nymphomaniac with a half-human pet gorilla." New Yorker

"This is for 'Adults Only.' " M. E.
Boston Globe p15 F 17 '43 250w

"Numerous lengthy philosophical musings on woman, art, and other themes slow action tremendously, while secondary plot of foreign agents at work, not only is unconvincing, but often takes on comic proportions. Disappointing." H. G. Kelley
— Library J 68:82 Ja 15 '43 80w

"Make no mistake about it: Mr. Cloete may be cheap, but he has his values. The only trouble is that, even eroticism being capable of becoming too much of a good thing, in the long run 'Congo Song' is duller than it is titillating." Diana Trilling
— + Nation 156:425 Mr 20 '43 230w

"It is all a pretty kettle of fish cooked up into a very piquant bouillebaisse. Any brief synopsis of the book is bound to make it seem outlandish and super-exotic. And so it is. But the atmosphere of the brooding forest round the white man's small domain, the superstitions and witch-doctoring of the blacks, and the evil machinations of the far-flung Nazi system, is very well sustained. In a rather scholarly and high-flown way, the novel is a double-barreled thriller." Beatrice Sherman
+ — N Y Times p18 F 28 '43 850w

"This artificial setup provides the author with an excuse for some very brilliant writing. When Mr. Cloete is concerned with the woman, the ape, and the spy business of his melodrama, he is no better than any competent writer of thrillers. When he brings his mercurial mind to his characters' interminable discussions of love, philosophy, painting, anthropology, and love again, he is very fine indeed. He is also hilariously funny."
+ — New Yorker 19:65 F 27 '43 140w

"As fantastic a story as any adventure reader could desire." N. B.
Springf'd Republican p7e F 28 '43 300w

"Mr. Cloete gives up about a quarter of his pages to Channel's discourse on sex. This has facility and something of cleverness, but is also consistently and sadly cheap. The author has in the past written vigorous and colorful novels with an African setting, and there is no means of accounting for this adolescent mixture."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p485 O 9 '43 240w

Reviewed by William Soskin
Weekly Book Review p10 F 28 '43 550w

CLYMER, ELEANOR. Yard for John; with pictures by Mildred Boyle. 95p $2 McBride 43-6176

Recounts the experiences of a little city boy, who was suddenly transferred to the country, where he was happy all day long.

Booklist 39:390 Je 1 '43

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 30w

"Miss Clymer writes with charm and sincerity, her tale rings true and is a welcome addition to the stories of everyday life for the 6 to 8 year olds." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p8 Ag 1 '43 240w

"Many a middle-aged American means some day to revisit the back yard of his early childhood. Some do, unhappily, for the world they remember has shrunken out of all recognition. But here, in a story whose colored pictures are of today's children and whose little adventures can be repeatedly read to little folks in city or suburb, that lost world returns to the grown-up reading." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 My 30 '43 350w

Wis Lib Bul 39:124 O '43

COATES, ROBERT MYRON. All the year round; a book of stories. 271p $2.50 Harcourt 43-15760

Short stories reprinted from The New Yorker, Harper's Bazaar, and other American magazines. Contents: A winter in the country; The fury; Listen, Paul; The damned hotel; Let's not talk about it now; Spring's a nice time; Gil, this is Lola; Freddie, go play; Wild bird; Boy friend; Summer night; The sound of death; The old lady; Snake in the pool; The course of true love; Beginning of a journey; The Burgess kids; Bodyguard; Meet God with pride; Some salt on a boulder; The cry; A walk on Sunday; An accident in the field; The darkness of the night; The first car through; The net; One night at Coney; Winter fishing.

Reviewed by S. E. Hyman
Book Week p2 N 7 '43 600w

Christian Century 60:1369 N 24 '43 40w

Reviewed by Francis Downing
Commonweal 39:188 D 3 '43 550w

"Although the stories in 'All the Year Round' are skillful and rather typical examples of The New Yorker's fiction, there is more variety to be found in it than in most of such one-man shows. Part of this can be accounted for by Coates' interest in a wider range of characters and by the inclusion of stories which build toward considerable intensity through their employment of violent patterns of action." Weldon Kees
+ — N Y Times p30 D 12 '43 600w

New Yorker 19:95 O 30 '43 50w

"These sketches from The New Yorker, Esquire, and other periodicals show off Mr. Coates's trenchant, economical style to good advantage; unfortunately, the author's economy extends to plot, so that for the most part the stories are merely episodes, or at most, anecdotes." Phil Stong
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:18 N 13 '43 270w

"What makes these stories so palatable to a sophisticated public that does not like its fiction to exhibit sores and bleeding? The chief reason lies in the vernacular of understatement and the careful restraint of the telling. The tragedies, whether they be simple and overt, or psychologically involved, are always reduced to a concrete incident or situation that contains rich implications. Few writers are able to sustain psychological atmosphere and at the same time achieve the strength, the tragic statement and the compassion Robert Coates has. He gives his readers confidence in him, and the opportunity to feel the warmth of his heart." William Soskin
+ Weekly Book Review p22 N 28 '43 700w

COATS, ROBERT HAMILTON, and MACLEAN, MURDOCH CAMPBELL. The American-born in Canada; a statistical interpretation. 176p maps $3.75 Yale univ. press

325.2730971 Americans in Canada. Canada—Foreign population A43-2668

"This book completes a series of three volumes devoted to population relationships in the . . . series entitled 'The Relations of Canada and the United States,' in process of publication under the editorship of Dr. James T. Shotwell, director of the Division of Economics and History of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. The first of these three volumes, entitled The Mingling of the Canadian and American Peoples, by Marcus Lee Hansen, was published in 1940, and the second, entitled The Canadian Born in the United States appeared in March 1943." (Ann Am Acad) "The present volume deals with the migrations of Americans to Canada and their settlement there. The authors are Dr. R. H. Coats of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa . . . and the late Mr. M. C. Maclean, his Chief of the Social Analysis Branch." (Introd) Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Truesdell
Ann Am Acad 230:241 N '43 270w

Reviewed by W. B. Hurd
Canadian Hist R 24:414 D '43 900w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:164 O '43 20w
Reviewed by V. C. Finch
Geog R 34:162 Ja '44 300w

COATSWORTH, ELIZABETH JANE (MRS HENRY BESTON). Thief island; il. by John Wonsetler. 118p $1.75 Macmillan 43-16555

A Maine family, consisting of Dave Little and his two children, went to live on a deserted island when their harbor home was lost. The island was reported to have a ghost, but the Littles would not be "beholden" and braved the ghost to live in their grandmother's old house. Twelve-year-old Susan made a home for her father and younger brother, and in time the Littles solved the island mystery and had a promise of neighbors.

"Strong sense of place and convincingly drawn characters give warmth and color to this well-told story of a stout-hearted family." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 20:38 Ja '44 70w

"Atmosphere is authentic and characterization is good. A slight mystery adds interest." E. D. Briggs
+ Library J 69:72 Ja 15 '44 50w

"This excellent family story has charm and atmosphere as well as mystery and adventure." Lena Barksdale
+ Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 10w

"Miss Coatsworth's stories always bear her skilled touch and fine sincerity. The Maine coast, neglected gardens and weather-beaten old houses command her special affection." I. S.
+ N Y Times p26 N 14 '43 160w

"The story manages to be thoroughly cheerful. It's well written, too."
+ New Yorker 19:122 D 4 '43 60w

"Seldom does one meet in the pages of a book a character any truer to his tradition and his background than in Dave Little, the father of Susan and John, in this story. . . The island, for all its dangers and hardships, holds the beauty, the spicy scents, the fascinating wild life that Maine has to give. It holds, also, a ghost who will delight boys and girls. It is not for nothing that Elizabeth Coatsworth is a poet, and that she lives in Maine." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 26:35 D 11 '43 380w

"A story for eight-year-olds with unusual entertainment value as well as the beauty of phrase to which Miss Coatsworth has accustomed us." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 D 26 '43 300w

COATSWORTH, ELIZABETH JANE (MRS HENRY BESTON). Twelve months make a year; pictures by Marguerite Davis. 200p $2 Macmillan 43-6820

A story for every month of the year, each about a seasonal activity. The scene is New England, and the children are the girls, Jean and Lydia, and their little brother Mark.

Booklist 39:468 Jl 15 '43
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:237 Jl '43 70w

"Book has same feeling of companionship as in Alice-all-by-herself. Its appeal is to thoughtful little girls of grades four to six. Will not be popular but has kind of experiences we could wish for every little girl. Recommended." J. E. Wooster
+ Library J 68:478 Je 1 '43 110w
Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 30w

"All three of the children are so real that one suspects Miss Coatsworth knows the originals well and at close range. A friendly, gracious relationship between children and grown-ups is one of the charms of the book. Jean and Lydia are not only entertaining, they have a sturdy honesty and high-mindedness which will encourage child readers to establish similar ideals of conduct. Throughout the story are bits of description that make the New England country very vivid, while the author's poems which are found between the chapters, deepen the peaceful beauty and outdoor freshness of the book. For children 8 to 12." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p9 My 23 '43 600w

"It may prove rather too sweet and mild for those with fiery tastes, but is good in its creation of a recognizably real family and its recounting of the simple happenings which make up a happy childhood in a New England town today. For gentle little girls of seven to ten."
+ New Yorker 19:68 My 29 '43 50w

"Pleasant reading."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:28 My 15 '43 20w

"Simple, inexpensive pleasures, beautifully described, their charm comes from being enjoyed together as a family—indeed, as a family that makes an art of enjoyment, and is not so inartistic as to overdo it. The pictures are in red outline, nice and cheerful, and if the pleasures they present do not go fast enough to suit you, I suggest you slow down until they do. For real children need not be stampeded into happiness." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p12 My 23 '43 320w
Wis Lib Bul 39:124 O '43

COBB, GERALD. Old churches of London; with an introd. by Geoffrey Webb. 116p 84pl $5 Scribner [15s Batsford]

726.5 Church architecture. Churches—London
43-15840

"Mr. Cobb's affectionate and learned record treats all churches of London alike, present or past. . . Churches are first presented in historical sequence, then in detail, the chief interest, naturally, being in the city's peculiar pride, the classical churches showing the efflorescence of the genius of Wren." Books

Booklist 39:328 Ap 15 '43

"A book containing such a vast amount of detail about each individual church could not possibly maintain continuous readability throughout. Much of it is intended for reference, and practically everything is there. There is a wealth of pictures, including eighty-four inserted plates. Architects will find an abundance of technical data presented with professional skill."
+ Christian Century 60:267 Mr 3 '43 230w

"Mr. Gerald Cobb knows his big subject well and treats it with a critical love. He is sound on Wren's spires and towers and their infinite variety and how the bell towers of St. Paul's are the finest steeples of all. Professor Geoffrey Webb writes a scholarly and helpful introduction." J. B.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 My 27 '42 400w
Reviewed by James Pope-Hennessy
New Statesman & Nation 23:373 Je 6 '42 750w
Times [London] Lit Sup p234 My 9 '42 2750w

"The best book yet available on the old churches of London."
+ Weekly Book Review p20 F 21 '43 350w
Wis Lib Bul 39:51 Ap '43

COBB, STANLEY. Borderlands of psychiatry. 166p $2.50 Harvard univ. press

616.8 Psychology, Pathological A43-2420

Collection of essays first presented in 1940 at the Lowell Institute. They deal with selected psychiatric problems of human behavior, and the effect of mind and emotions on the body. Contents: Body and mind; The parallel evolution of speech, vision and intellect; Speech and language defects; The function of the frontal areas of the human brain; The anatomical basis of the emotions; Consciousness; Concerning fits; Psychoneurosis; Psychosomatics. Chapter bibliographies. Index.

COBB, STANLEY—Continued

"This book is not easy reading. In fact, certain portions seem needlessly technical in regard to terms, especially in the chapter dealing with speech defects. The reader, however, will balance this difficulty against the dependability of its contents. The majority of the technical terms concern the brain itself, and one could hardly expect Dr. Cobb to write about the brain without using them." A. H. Compton & others
Scientific Bk Club R 14:1 Jl '43 1200w

Reviewed by E. R. Groves
Social Forces 22:227 D '43 130w

COBLENTZ, CATHERINE (CATE) (MRS W. W. COBLENTZ). Beggars' Penny; il. by Hilda van Stockum. 269p $2.50 Longmans
43-15181

Story of the Siege of Leyden by the Spaniards from 1573 to 1574, and the part played by the Sea Beggars in the lifting of the siege. For grades four to six.

Booklist 40:98 N 15 '43
Christian Century 60:1271 N 3 '43 50w
Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 30w

"This exciting and well-told tale of oppression and privation, lighted by dauntless courage and the will to be free, carries its inevitable parallel with Dutch resistance to Nazi domination. The illustrator is admirably chosen." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:324 S '43 140w

"A true picture of the terrific hardships within the gates of the besieged city." R. W. Stewart
+ Library J 68:826 O 15 '43 30w

Reviewed by Dorotha Dawson
Library J 68:1009 D 1 '43 70w

"A prominent book of last year took such shameless liberties with the story of Leyden that this conscientious achievement deserves special gratitude. Its power and significance will be appreciated by boys and girls 11 and up. It contains an authoritative bibliography." I. S.
+ N Y Times p20 N 14 '43 340w
Sat R of Lit 26:34 N 13 '43 30w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 12 '43 170w

COCHRAN, HAMILTON. Captain Ebony. 430p $2.75 Bobbs
43-16343

A Virginia gentleman, turned blackbirder, is the Captain Ebony of the title. The time is the 1840's. the scene is the Danish West Indies and the surrounding waters. After Captain Ebony reforms and becomes a planter, a Danish beauty, turned Voodoo leader, and a renegade British officer, leading a slave revolt, very nearly wreck the lives of Captain Ebony, and his New England fiancee, but are not successful.

Reviewed by Edith Roberts
Book Week p10 N 28 '43 360w

"Writing an easy pulp style, and cutting all the knots of his scenario with a ruthless hand, Mr. Cochran comes up with a vivid picture of an era. His local color is better than his characters and his historical research is infinitely better than the plot he has fashioned to bring that history alive." William DuBois
N Y Times p20 N 7 '43 600w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p30 N 21 '43 330w

COCHRAN, THOMAS CHILDS, and MILLER, WILLIAM. Age of enterprise; a social history of industrial America. 394p $3.50 Macmillan

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions. U.S.—Social conditions 42-22792

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"The Age of Enterprise is particularly useful as a preface to the understanding of present economic, political and social trends. It provides a mature and balanced account of the theory and practice of enterprise and of the relationship between government and business. A coherent description of the sequence of events requires coherent analysis of a sequence of ideas. It is in this respect that the work achieves novelty and stature. The informal, colorful style employed, the abundance of superior writing, and the variety and freshness of much of the source material all enhance the drama of the subject." C. A. Welsh
+ Am Econ R 33:648 S '43 1450w

"This is a work of outstanding merit. It is a stimulating and provocative book which arouses the enthusiasm and admiration of the reader because of its challenging ideas, thought-provoking interpretations, and wide range of topics which are discussed. The authors of The Age of Enterprise have made a penetrating analysis of the development of industry in the United States and of the social, economic, and political effects of the impact of industrialism upon the life and habits of thought of the American people. They have given us the best account we have of the important role which the American businessman has played in the history of this country." R. C. McGrane
+ Am Hist R 48:609 Ap '43 550w

"The authors have produced a thoughtful, well-written book. Certainly it will not appeal to the die-hard group in the National Association of Manufacturers, but general readers as well as students will find it refreshing, stimulating, and informing." Scott Nearing
+ Am Soc R 8:360 Je '43 950w

"Although the book is a brief summary of American development over a period of almost a century and a half, it contains a surprising amount of information. It is a provocative study and is a contribution to the social history of industrial America." A. C. Bining
+ Ann Am Acad 226:183 Mr '43 360w
Bookmark 5:5 Ja '43
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 10 '43 380w

"The book should be widely read and studied." F. A. Shannon
+ New Eng Q 16:134 Mr '43 1050w

"The Messrs. Cochran and Miller have told their complicated and partial story in a clear style that should offer no obstacles for the average reader. Perhaps if their book had appeared two years earlier than it has it would have made a bigger stir than it seems likely to do. For it is a decidedly able supplement to other histories of the past 150 years. It offers many new lines for future historians to follow. More important, since it is no carping book, it offers many lines for the average citizen to pursue with profit. It follows no party line, but is as fair an analysis of the 'social history of our industrial country' as it seems possible to find. Its bibliography alone is the source of a liberal education." Karl Schriftgiesser
+ N Y Times p8 F 7 '43 1500w

"Limited principally to secondary books, [the authors] have accomplished their purpose competently; and the result is a work of simplification, selection and synthesis, excellent for its very brevity and compactness, and for its skilful incorporation of diversified materials. There is a rich abundance of illustrative quotations, which frequently have a special aptness; and altogether this is a valuable and timely contribution to the genre of historical popularization in the best sense of the term." Samuel Rezneck
+ Pol Sci Q 58:123 Mr '43 650w
Pratt p12 F '43

"Stylistically, the whole narrative is vigorous, swift-paced, and enlivened with apt quotations. Only occasionally does its momentum lead to statements more neat from the literary point of view than sound in fact. For instance, the disgracefully high figures of industrial and railroad accidents cannot be explained merely by bankers' carelessness; indeed it was often the largest concerns, those under bankers' control, that had the means to finance the safety movements and did. It was the small concerns that took chances." E. C. Kirkland

+ — Social Educ 7:232 My '43 900w

"This book not only points to the need for sociological research in American history, but also presents a background for a reasonable judgment in the problem of the relations of the individual, business, and government. Such studies are of great aid in forming a view of the substantive achievements of our country and to see the balance of forces which exist in our free society." Francis Williamson

+ Survey G 32:99 Mr '43 340w

COCKRELL, MARIAN B. Lillian Harley. 261p $2.50 Harper

43-13573

Lillian Harley, born on the wrong side of the tracks had an urgent desire to be like the "best" people. Martin Payne belonged to the other side of the tracks and his family were not convinced that Lillian was the wife for him. In a fit of pique Lillian went to New York to prove that she could make a success of her life—and met another man.

"Easy to read, smooth as a Cole Porter tune, sophisticated as a Bes-Ben hat, and withal very human, Marian Cockrell's new novel offers an evening of superior entertainment." Edith Roberts

+ Book Week p4 S 12 '43 450w

Booklist 40:47 O 1 '43

"Not a profound hunk of reality, or a rival to 'The Magic Mountain' in its probing of the human spirit, but competently written and diverting enough in spite of its plot." Jane Cobb

N Y Times p22 O 10 '43 320w

"Not much of a plot, but the writing is fresh and humorous enough to make the book notable in the season's crop of popular fiction."

+ New Yorker 19:94 S 18 '43 90w

"As long as Lillian stays in Kirkland, Lillian's chronicle is fun to read. For here is the American small town, in all its prejudices, its narrowness, its pettiness, its warmth, its generosity, its comfortableness. . . But once separated from Kirkland, and accompanying Lillian through metropolitan triumphs, the reader is adrift in a colorless and artificial world." Katharine Simonds

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:23 N 6 '43 500w

"As in 'Yesterday's Madness,' Mrs. Cockrell's forte is the small town, its gossip and its pre-occupation with respectability. Lillian in the big city is not as real as Lillian in Kirkland. . . Some of the men characters in the book are better drawn. There is Uncle Bob, disabled by a train wreck; Jack the Rake, metropolitan newspaper reporter, and Giles, Lillian's brother, destined like herself to be a success story. Mrs. Cockrell is best at dialogue; she knows how young people talk." Rachel Meisenhelder

+ — Weekly Book Review p8 S 12 '43 500w

Wis Lib Bul 39:145 N '43

COCKRELL, MARIAN B. Yesterday's madness. 291p $2.50 Harper

43-4640

Story of two serious young people who married because they both had been deserted, practically at the altar. Ives and Phyllis had known each other from childhood, so the idea seemed a good one to each of them. At the end of their year of trial marriage, they found themselves unexpectedly in love with each other.

"The plot about the wife-in-name-only is a cherished standby in light romantic fiction. . . Rarely however, has it received such amusing and civilized treatment as Marian Cockrell gives it. Rarely has it formed the basis for such a believable light novel. . . Had her characters merely been stereotypes, had she succumbed to the torrid kind of bathos which one associates with her theme, this story of Mrs. Cockrell's might have been a pretty sad affair. As it is, it is a warm and diverting light comedy, full of homely common sense, and with just the right tincture of romantic feeling." E. H. Walton

+ N Y Times p42 Mr 21 '43 600w

"The novelty of 'Yesterday's Madness' lies in a situation which is, to say the least, unusual in young married life. Mrs. Cockrell makes her characters reasonably convincing, even to the point of having the serious-minded and conscientious Phyllis in love with three men in the course of a year—the dead husband, the philandering fiancé and the husband in-name-only; Ives's change of heart is not quite so extensive. The conventional small-town setting is pleasantly sketched, and the story is thoroughly readable." Mary Ross

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Mr 21 '43 650w

COE, DOUGLAS. Marconi, pioneer of radio; il. by Kreigh Collins. 272p $2.50 Messner

B or 92 Marconi, Guglielmo, marchese. Radio 43-10048

A somewhat fictionized biography stressing Marconi's work as a "pioneer in radio." Written in a style suitable for young readers. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:18 S '43

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p6 O 14 '43 50w

"Recommended." J. E. Stromdahl

+ Library J 68:672 S 1 '43 90w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens

Springf'd Republican p8 Ag 13 '43 800w

"This is the sort of history to which a boy takes kindly if he has the engineering turn possessed by so many boys." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 25 '43 450w

Wis Lib Bul 39:126 O '43

COE, DOUGLAS. Road to Alaska; the story of the Alaska highway; pictures by Winfield Scott Hoskins. 175p maps $2.50 Messner

625.7 Alaska highway—Juvenile literature 43-17175

The story of the building of Alcan, the Alaska military highway. It describes simply and graphically the tremendous odds against which the army engineers had to work in the building of this 1600 mile long highway thru the wilderness. For grades six to eight.

Booklist 40:150 D 15 '43

"Something of the drive and purpose of the men who put it through against terrific odds is felt in this book, which will hold the interest of boys and men alike." M. K. McElderry

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 20:44 Ja '44 60w

Sat R of Lit 27:29 Ja 29 '44 320w

"Sheer enthusiasm, focused upon an epic undertaking of today, has produced a book for boys that men, too, will read with mounting enthusiasm. . . The pictures in black and white have striking atmospheric quality." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ja 9 '44 330w

COE, GEORGE ALBERT. What is religion doing to our consciences? 120p $1.50 Scribner

261 Sociology, Christian. Christian ethics. Christianity 43-6711

"The ideas that religious people have held as to what is good and what is evil have changed from one period of history to another. In this essay the author points out what some of these changing conceptions have been and makes applications to present problems." (Wis Lib Bul) Index.

COE, G. A.—Continued

Booklist 39:439 Jl 1 '43

"This is a book of penetrating ethical insight and a challenge to the Christian conscience as regards its basis, its content and its method." W. C. Bower

+ Christian Century 60:797 Jl 7 '43 600w

Churchman 157:17 S 15 '43 60w

J Philos 40:697 D 9 '43 750w

"Professor Coe has made no new discovery. His book is at the best a timely and vigorous reminder that conscience dwells not aloof from men's concerns." J. H. Holmes

Weekly Book Review p14 Ag 1 '43 600w

Wis Lib Bul 39:81 Je '43

COEN, MARTIN J. Shipwelding handbook. 505p il $3.50 Cornell maritime

671 Electric welding 43-12020

"Ship welding is like any other welding and so this handbook covers the same field as a structural welding handbook, for example. Equipment, electrodes, techniques, contraction strains and sequence of placing welds come in for full attention. Written for the welder and his supervisor rather than for the designing engineer." Book Week

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter

Book Week p10 O 3 '43 50w

Booklist 40:41 O 1 '43

Eng N 131:116 N 4 '43 100w

Library J 68:669 S 1 '43 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:52 Jl '43

"Will be useful to any one working with welding, whether of ships or anything else." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p25 Ja 23 '44 100w

COFFIN, HOWARD MACY. Malta story; based on the diary and experiences of [the author] by W. L. River; with endpaper map and sample pages from the diary. 222p $2.50 Dutton

940.5442 World war, 1939—Malta. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-10654

Story of the experiences of an American pilot who with ten other Americans joined the RAF in January, 1941, and went to Malta in the summer of that year. Of the 200 fighter pilots who went at the same time, only six are now alive, after living thru 4000 enemy air raids over a period of 400 days.

"The writing is clean-cut and tough. But the engrossing story of how Malta held out against impossible odds dominates the slightly synthetic love story."

+ — Atlantic 172:131 S '43 120w

"'Malta Story' vivifies one of the epic struggles of World War II in a remarkable manner. Military casualty lists and newspaper accounts of battles and sieges have limited power to stir the imagination or to stimulate anger or pity. W. L. River's artistry has illuminated Flying Officer Coffin's diary so that the fore-doomed R.A.F. pilots and the friendly, courageous Maltese step forth from the flat page and the cold black of ink into dimensional being. You can feel with these people and get to know them. The death of each one (to borrow from Donne and Hemingway) diminishes you." Jack Conroy

+ Book Week p1 Ag 1 '43 900w

Booklist 40:43 O 1 '43

Reviewed by Lena Ruppert

Library J 68:571 Jl '43 110w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield

Nation 157:187 Ag 14 '43 240w

Reviewed by Philip Hamburger

N Y Times p4 Ag 1 '43 700w

"This is sombre melodrama and River tells it as melodrama. Sometimes it's a bit too melodramatic. At other times it becomes so romantic you aren't quite sure whether he is talking about this war or the last, or else the pattern of events is fitted together so tightly that they become hardly credible at all. In its total effect, however, this book has a raw force and emotional weight that very few other stories of the actual fighting in this war can match." Vincent McHugh

+ — New Yorker 19:62 Jl 24 '43 340w

Reviewed by P. R. Knauth

Sat R of Lit 26:7 Ag 14 '43 500w

"Although we are told that every bit of the story is true except for certain changes in names and details, the story is more like a novel than an eye-witness account of the struggle at Malta. This might be due to the fact that Coffin did not write the story himself. But also, the poignant love between Coffin and 'Jimmie' Towers and the love of 'Junior' Street for the Maltese girl, Lina, lend a fictional quality to the story, or suggest a lack of reticence unusual in nonfiction. . . River gives an accurate and graphic picture of the continuous siege of Malta, the shortage of pilots, planes and food, and the plight and courage of the civilians. The study of the pilots, Coffin's friends, and a small group of the Maltese people is very well done . . . it is these people and not the actual warfare that make the Malta story." E. S. P.

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 25 '43 380w

"If there is more fiction than fact in the story, and I have no means of knowing, it is simple and moving fiction. No doubt the plot is contrived. The author has, nevertheless, caught a picture of men and women in one of the great moments of the war which has a ring of veracity; perhaps one can convey more of the actualities of this conflict by a literary device such as this than by the more conventional manner of reporting. I found it a moving and suggestive story." Walter Millis

+ Weekly Book Review p1 Jl 25 '43 1700w

COFFIN, ROBERT PETER TRISTRAM. Primer for America; decorations by the author. 167p $2 Macmillan

811 43-51198

Collection of ballads on America, past and present—a primer of American culture, in verse.

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy

Book Week p10 Ag 1 '43 450w

Booklist 39:442 Jl 1 '43

Christian Century 60:799 Jl 7 '43 290w

"To write 'American' is no new fashion. It has become an established style and a proper literary habit. This discovery of the popular New England poet's has not resulted in anything worth underscoring. The most interesting piece we think, is entitled, 'Alexander Graham Bell Did Not Invent the Telephone,' the explanation being that lonely individuals with distance between them and their nearest neighbors, in the New World, all contributed to the idea which eventually controlled the inventor and produced the means of communication." Pearl Strachan

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 19 '43 300w

"Acceptable, if you like homely, simple verse."

Commonweal 38:592 O 1 '43 70w

"Within his field, Mr. Coffin sings with a lusty American voice and often with a tune as richly native as 'Yankee Doodle.' The American song is too big for one man to sing alone. We need a whole chorus of Robert Coffins to open their hearts and sing about this country of ours." Hal Borland

+ — N Y Times p5 Je 13 '43 1000w

"Like Browning's wise thrush, Coffin 'sings the same song twice over'—and three and four times over. However, that is usually to his credit. . . Robert P. Tristram Coffin is good for America, perhaps now more than ever. He typifies a nostalgic ruggedness that is needed,

He is proud—proud of his father, proud of saltwater farms, proud of everything substantial and down-to-earth." A. M. Jakeman
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 27 '43 390w

"There is subject matter enough here for four or five books, and some of the material is so good that Mr. Coffin's friends and admirers will wish that he had spent more time in revising and polishing his lines. . . In the first four lines of The Wright Boys Did It . . . the sensitive reader will, perhaps, object to the padded phrase, 'with the rest,' and he will certainly object to the two 'buts' that open the last two lines; as he reads on, however, he cannot fail to catch the author's enthusiasm for his tribe." Wilbert Snow
+ — Weekly Book Review p2 Je 20 '43 800w
Wis Lib Bul 39:121 O '43

COFFMAN, RAMON PEYTON, and GOODMAN, NATHAN GERSON. Famous authors for boys and girls. 167p il $2 Barnes, A.S.
928 Authors—Juvenile literature 43-7120

Short biographical sketches of nineteen authors. Contents: William Shakespeare; Robert Burns; Sir Walter Scott; Washington Irving; Thomas Carlyle; Nathaniel Hawthorne; Hans Christian Andersen; Henry Wadsworth Longfellow; Charles Dickens; Mary Mapes Dodge; Lewis Carroll (Charles L. Dodgson); Louisa May Alcott; Mark Twain (Samuel L. Clemens); Joel Chandler Harris; Robert Louis Stevenson; Kate Douglas Wiggin; James M. Barrie; Rudyard Kipling; Jack London. For grades five to eight. Index.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p11 Ag 15 '43 310w
Booklist 39:390 Je 1 '43

"The authors have emphasized what they call the 'human interest' element, choosing what they think will catch the attention of young readers, with the result that the accounts are rather jerky and superficial. . . The chief use of this book will be in schools and libraries when a pupil has been instructed by a teacher to look up some biographical information." A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p13 Ag 8 '43 200w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 4 '43 140w
Wis Lib Bul 39:111 Jl '43

COHEN, OCTAVUS ROY. Sound of revelry. 216p $2 Macmillan
Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 Ag 29 '43 100w

"Passable."
Sat R of Lit 26:16 S 4 '43 40w

"Yes, sir, Octavus Roy Cohen can turn out one of those slick little Manhattan mysteries as well as the next man. 'Sound of Revelry' should be good for what ails you, if you crave a flashy metropolitan setting, a puzzle with that timely angle and two young twerps in love and danger." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 Ag 29 '43 200w

COHEN, WILBUR J., ed. War and post-war social security [a symposium by] Arthur J. Altmeyer [and others]. (Outlines of an expanded program) 89p pa $1 Am. council on public affairs
331.2544 Insurance, State and compulsory 43-7128

"Various phases of the subject are discussed by eminent authorities, including high officials in the related government bureaus and representatives of labor organizations." Christian Century

---

Christian Century 59:1625 D 30 '42 20w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:10 Jl '43 10w

"A timely publication written by a group of men whose hearts and thoughts lie close to the meaning of evolutionary democracy." E. A. Lissfelt
+ Social Studies 34:329 N '43 420w

COHN, DAVID LEWIS. Love in America. 236p $2 Simon & Schuster
917.3 U.S.—Social life and customs. National characteristics, American. Love. Marriage 43-5986

"An informal study of manners and morals in American marriage." (Subtitle) Contents: The importance of love; Is America a paradise for women; 'Pa blacks out Toni's strip tease'; 'Never underestimate the power of a woman!'; Nobody knows the troubles I've seen; 'I'm sixteen and popular with the boys'; Rendezvous in Cytherea with Helena Rubinstein; What magazine d'ya read? The place of women in our society.

Booklist 39:444 Jl 1 '43
Reviewed by Dorothy Hillyer
Boston Globe p19 My 19 '43 350w
Reviewed by H. R. Burdett
Library J 68:361 My 1 '43 140w

"Mr. Cohn can be, and is, satirical and biting, but with a tolerance and hopefulness mellowing his judgments." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p8 My 23 '43 840w

"Gets about as far as you'd expect anybody to get with a subject like that in two hundred and thirty-four pages. Mr. Cohn, however, is by no means an American Stendhal, and doesn't pretend to be."
New Yorker 19:75 My 22 '43 70w

"Despite the wit and shrewd humor in his voice, David Cohn speaks to American women with great seriousness. It is to be hoped his book will be widely and thoughtfully read." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 23 '43 500w
Time 41:102 My 31 '43 600w

" 'Love in America' will shock a few and amuse more. A still larger group, however, will find in it food for thought dished up in an unusually intriguing manner." Margaret Evans
+ Weekly Book Review p12 Je 13 '43 450w

COHN, EDWIN JOSEPH, and EDSALL, JOHN TILESTON. Proteins, amino acids and peptides as ions and dipolar ions; including chapters by John G. Kirkwood [and others]. (Am. chemical soc. Monograph ser) 686p $13.50 Reinhold
547.8 Proteins. Amino acids. Peptides 43-4873

"Physical and chemical characteristics are discussed in a group of papers intended for specialists. Completely documented by footnote references, the work is further enhanced by a number of useful tables." N Y New Tech Bks

---

"While the worker in the field will welcome this work as a much needed survey, the chemist not familiar with the protein field will find it interesting reading." F. C. Nachod
+ Chem & Met Eng 50:198 O '43 250w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:6 Ja '43

COITH, HERBERT SPENCER. So you want to be a chemist? 128p $1.50 McGraw 540 Chemistry as a profession 43-11202

"Brief description of the responsibilities and types of work done by chemists and chemical engineers, for those who are deliberating about becoming professional chemists.

"The book 'So You Want to Be a Chemist,' is a most unusual one. It is written not to draw young men into the field of chemistry, willy nilly, but to give them a real insight into the problems of being a successful chemist.

COITH, H. S.—Continued
The writer is one who glories in being a chemist and this shows in his writing. I advise you to read this little book now, and, later, if you study chemistry or chemical engineering, read it again. You will learn much from reading it and you won't be bored." L. E. Grinter

+ Book Week p10 S 19 '43 290w

Booklist 40:54 O 15 '43

Reviewed by R. E. Kirk
Chem & Met Eng 50:211 N '43 400w

Library J 68:669 S 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:41 Jl '43

School & Society 59:64 Ja 22 '44 40w

"A good book for an embryo chemist who wants to get right into industry when he graduates, and who is not interested in an academic or a research career (which probably includes 90 per cent of the chemists). There is perhaps too much emphasis on getting on in the world, and too little on chemistry as a means of contributing to human knowledge. The author emphasizes ability to write well over knowledge of calculus. Of course, good writing is important, but knowing the calculus teaches a way of thinking, even if he never puts an integral sign on paper afterward." James Stokley

+ — Weekly Book Review p6 D 26 '43 100w

COLBY, ELBRIDGE. Masters of mobile warfare [Marlborough, Frederick, Napoleon]. 155p maps $2 Princeton univ. press

355.415 Strategy. Marlborough, John Churchill, 1st duke of. Frederick II, the Great, king of Prussia. Napoléon I, emperor of the French A43-1633

"Analysis of the genius of [three] great masters. The three brilliant military minds knew war. They established the patterns that have not changed with the times. Substitute the weapons of today for those of yesterday as much as you will, the fundamentals of speed and power developed in battle by Marlborough, Frederick, and Napoleon still stand. Their genius lay in their ability to get the most out of the various instruments that they found at their disposal and those that they developed by their own study and experiment." Ann Am Acad

---

"The military mind at its best, would be a fitting description of the book, the author, and the masters themselves." A. R. Ginsburgh

+ Ann Am Acad 229:209 S '43 650w

"This scholarly work is an able exposition of one of the main principles of war in all ages and deserves to be included in the curricula of our military schools. Colonel Colby's picture of Marlborough is so brilliant and so complete that we greatly regret he did not deal with Frederick of Prussia and Napoleon at equal length." Murray Harris

+ — N Y Times p32 My 23 '43 900w

COLEMAN, HARRY J. Give us a little smile, baby. 258p il $3 Dutton

B or 92 Photography, Commercial 43-9406

Reminiscences of a news photographer and cartoonist who has worked at his chosen profession for nearly half-a-century, chiefly in New York and San Francisco. Index.

"Coleman's style is quaintly ornate at times, but it harmonizes perfectly with his subject matter. The result is an authentic period piece, redolent with inky and beery odors, in places as raw as a shot of frontier forty-rod. The veteran photographer is more candid than his camera ever was. After he has passed the first decade of the present century Coleman's gusto perceptibly diminishes. The St. Valentine Day massacre in Chicago is the last big event he deals with, rather hurriedly and sketchily." John Norcross

+ — Book Week p6 Ag 1 '43 550w

Reviewed by A. R. Eaton
Library J 68:570 Jl '43 100w

"Mr. Coleman writes mostly for laughs and often works too hard for them. Some of the illustrations are more amusing than the text."

New Repub 109:402 S 20 '43 40w

"With a press card as his Annie Oakley for half a century, Harry Coleman has seen the nation as a turbulent and wonderful side-show to be recorded for newspaper readers by his camera. His almost infallible news sense, ingenuity, unflagging enthusiasm and insatiable appetite for excitement have compounded for him a dossier of memorable experiences that few living newspaper men can match." Murray Schumach

+ N Y Times p9 Jl 18 '43 300w

New Yorker 19:64 Jl 10 '43 70w

"It is a lusty, rowdy book, as trivial as it is amusing, but with two elements of value: one the detailed story of the San Francisco disaster by a man whose duties took him into the thick of it, and the other the presentation of the atmosphere of Hearst journalism in its palmiest and most deplorable years." Allan Nevins

Sat R of Lit 26:20 S 4 '43 400w

"A lively, well-written, humorous and thoroughly enjoyable book." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 18 '43 650w

"Advance notices of the Coleman opus say that it is written in 'ball park English,' which seems a curiously patronizing way to describe a style that has no nonsense about it. If this is really 'ball park English,' then we can stand more of the same." Stanley Walker

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Jl 11 '43 1250w

Wis Lib Bul 39:118 O '43

COLEMAN, LAURENCE VAIL. Company museums. 173p il $2.50 Am. assn. of museums

069 Museums 43-51215

"The director of the American association of museums, writing for businessmen, explains the purpose of museums maintained by business and industry, and tells how they are organized and maintained. Most of these museums are exhibits of the history and work of large corporations, such as the Aluminum company of America, the Metropolitan life insurance company, and the Bethlehem steel company. A directory of 80 company museums in the United States and Canada, with descriptive notes, is appended. Illustrated with photographs." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 39:455 Jl 15 '43

Chem & Eng N 21:1648 O 10 '43 80w

Library J 68:669 S 1 '43 20w

Special Libraries 34:386 S '43

COLEMAN, MCALISTER. Men and coal; foreword by John Chamberlain. 350p $3 Farrar

331.881 Coal miners. United mine workers of America 43-16019

"History of the American coal miners' unions and the men who made them, with detailed emphasis on the period between 1933 and August of this year. The author, a veteran labor reporter and liberal, does a good job of untangling the issues behind the current disputes in the coal industry." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:139 D 15 '43

"If this book had been issued last spring, it might have helped to avert a summer of strife in coal. While that would have been a mighty solace to the war jittery nerves of a distraught nation, it would have deprived the book of its most immediately interesting final third. . . It is required reading for every socially literate American. " H. E. Fey

+ Christian Century 60:1337 N 17 '43 600w

Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 15 '44 550w

"There are a lot of questions about Lewis's early and recent conduct of the U. M. W.—and of his own affairs—which Coleman touches sparingly or disregards. But this is a good book about miners; by writing intelligently and feelingly about them Coleman has explained a good part of Lewis's strength and the government's weakness in the recent crisis." J. A. Wechsler

+ — Nation 157:674 D 4 '43 800w

"When there is urgent need for a warm human book about the coal miners, their problems and their families, it is regrettable that 'Men and Coal' does not fill it. Instead Mac Coleman has written a history of the United Mine Workers of America—one fourth pre-Lewis, three-fourths Lewis—a disappointing book. . . Some useful history, however, is included in this bock, which is much better written than researched." H. J. Ruttenberg
— + New Repub 109:750 N 29 '43 850w

Reviewed by R. B. Porter
N Y Times p5 O 31 '43 1200w

"Well informed, readable, and on the whole fairly temperate. Excellent foreword by John Chamberlain."
+ New Yorker 19:114 N 13 '43 90w

Reviewed by M. D. Vincent
Survey G 33:25 Ja '44 650w

Reviewed by Spencer Klaw
Weekly Book Review p36 D 5 '43 650w

COLERON, HENRY C., and BURT, FRANK ALLEN. How to conduct army correspondence; a manual for all engaged in its preparation and use. 119p $1.50 Harper

355.61 U.S.—Army—Records and correspondence 43-11241

"This book has been prepared to provide training in Military Correspondence for both the officer who dictates and the enlisted man or civilian clerk who types the messages. . . From experience in teaching correspondence methods, both in the Army and in civilian schools, the authors have prepared a Manual that is easy to understand and to put into practice. The fundamental rules of setting up an Army letter can be readily learned both by the dictator and by the stenographer or typist. Hints for improving one's ability to make a message more meaningful and more understandable will be found helpful. Other material about the Army that is included has been selected as valuable information to anyone concerned with Military Correspondence. Much of this material is available through no other source outside of Army regulations." Preface

Booklist 40:40 O 1 '43

"Very useful, simple book."
+ Library J 68:626 Ag '43 20w

COLES, MANNING, pseud. of ADELAIDE FRANCES OKE MANNING and CYRIL HENRY COLES. Great Caesar's ghost. 225p $2 Doubleday

43-51305

Mystery-adventure story for readers of high school age. A group of modern explorers penetrate to a Roman community, lost in the heart of Africa for some nineteen hundred years, and there find the truth about a gold bracelet which had belonged to Julius Caesar.

"In his first book for boys Manning Coles, the well-known writer of detective stories, has done a job that is really tops. Seldom do you find humor in an adventure story, but this will have its readers chuckling heartily all the way through." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p4 N 14 '43 230w

Booklist 40:81 N 1 '43

Cath World 158:317 D '43 90w

"Author is tops in adult mysteries and has combined the same ingredients for young people plus a large dose of Roman life and customs. Interest in the book may be diluted by fantasy of plot but it is worth trying." Gertrude Andrus
+ — Library J 68:847 O 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:593 N 20 '43 20w

"This is a grand yarn by a well-known writer of adult mystery stories. Frankly fantastic, it tickles the imagination so that the reader wishes it were true. The contrast between classic Roman and modern thought and customs provides plenty of humor, and high school teachers certainly ought to keep this book on the collateral reading shelf, not only for its enlightening pictures of ancient Roman life but as an incentive to learn Latin. As the boys found out, you never can tell when a knowledge of it will come in handy." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p8 O 17 '43 360w

COLES, MANNING, pseud of ADELAIDE FRANCES OKE MANNING and CYRIL HENRY COLES. Without lawful authority. 245p $2 Doubleday

43-14089

An Englishman, unjustly discharged from the British Tank corps, before the war, meets a gentlemanly professional burglar, and together they discover a group of Nazi agents. Tommy Hambledon comes to the rescue and finds it a tough assignment.

"A superlative yarn." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p10 Ag 22 '43 270w

Booklist 40:60 O 15 '43

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 Ag 15 '43 120w

"In a literate manner, it's both humorous and exciting."
New Yorker 19:68 Ag 21 '43 90w

"Not up to 'Drink to Yesterday,' etc., but proper fare for those who like smoothly plotted and speedily moving spy stuff. Adequate."
Sat R of Lit 26:21 Ag 14 '43 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 22 '43 110w

Time 42:103 S 13 '43 50w

"This is a recommended item, even if the characters do stare and stare, as in the lowest limbo of shockerdom. Why do they do it?" Will Cuppy
+ — Weekly Book Review p20 Ag 15 '43 410w

COLLINGWOOD, ROBIN GEORGE. New Leviathan; or, Man, society, civilization and barbarism. 387p $6 (21s) Oxford

320.1 Political science. Civilization. State, The. Hobbes, Thomas—Leviathan A42-5477

"The Oxford philosopher and historian has sought in this book to 'bring the Leviathan up to date, in the light of the advances made since it was written, in history, psychology, and anthropology' (p.iv). Admitting an overwhelming admiration for Hobbes's famous treatise, which he calls the 'world's greatest store of political wisdom,' he yet attempts to be critical and to correct, with the new, the errors of the old Leviathan. The work is divided into four parts. In the first, on Man, the author is concerned with ever-recurring problems of human nature. . . Part II analyzes Society. . . The last two parts consider Civilization and Barbarism." Am Pol Sci R

"Space available does not suffice to detail the ramifications into which this study leads. But any adequate review must note its uneven quality, and particularly the superiority of the first two parts as compared with the remaining chapters." M. Q. Sibley
+ — Am Pol Sci R 37:724 Ag '43 550w

"This is a curious and provoking volume, in which a philosopher and historian of antiquity turns political scientist and sociologist. . . It is written in brief, numbered, aphoristic paragraphs. Amid the niceties of its logic it has some wise and some witty things to say, but the references to the political reality are few and far between. The social thinking of the author remains peculiarly private, remote from the tangled affairs of the political life." R. M. MacIver
+ — Ann Am Acad 229:181 S '43 550w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:155 O '43 20w

COLLINGWOOD, R. G.—Continued

"The New Leviathan is no such universal synthesis of human knowledge designed to explain man and society in strictly scientific terms as that bequeathed to the exemplar. To this reviewer, at least, Part I is more of a tour de force than a necessary preliminary to the understanding of the remainder of this stimulating if not epoch-making book. Nor, in his analysis of society, does Professor Collingwood appear to give sufficient heed to economic relations or make adequate use of the discoveries of psychoanalysis, the first scientific approach to the study of the mind." John Mac Cormac

+ — N Y Times p16 Ag 1 '43 800w

"The reviewer put this book down with a sense of deep disappointment over a great opportunity missed. It had the germs of a very important work, but it bears the marks of haste, whether due to the war or to Professor Collingwood's ill-health." George Catlin

Pol Sci Q 58:435 S '43 600w

COLLINS, ARCHIE FREDERICK. Greatest eye in the world; astronomical telescopes and their stories. 266p il pl $3 Appleton-Century

522 Telescope. Astronomical observatories 43-1097

This book attempts to deal fully "with the inception and development of great observatories, their equipment, past performances and present programs and personnel." Part one tells the story of the evolution of the telescope; part two contains descriptions of nine astronomical observatories in England and the United States.

Booklist 39:286 Mr 15 '43

Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 13 '43 400w

Wis Lib Bul 39:38 Mr '43

COLLINS, CLELLA REEVES (MRS CARTER COLLINS). Navy woman's handbook. (Whittlesey house publication) 219p $1.50 McGraw

359.1 U.S.—Navy 43-798

"The life of a Navy wife is so like that of her Army sister that much of this book is an exact counterpart of the 'Army Woman's Handbook,' published concurrently. The two books, written around the problems and the joys of the service wife, have been compiled to meet the ever-increasing demand for information on the part of women the country over as their husbands leave the familiar background of business and profession, home and family to take up arms for their country's protection." Pref.

Booklist 39:245 F 15 '43

"Everything is concentrated: not a word is wasted, and it gets in a great deal. Moreover, it is so arranged that whatever is in it can readily be reached to take out."

+ Books p12 Ja 17 '43 180w

Churchman 157:31 Mr 15 '43 90w

COLLINS, FREDERICK LEWIS. FBI in peace and war; with an introd. by J. Edgar Hoover. 297p $3 Putnam

351.74 U.S. Federal bureau of investigation. Crime and criminals—U.S. 43-14370

The story of the F.B.I., its methods and technique, told thru the medium of specific cases related in narrative form. Index.

"Everything is told rather breathlessly but it's all good reading and worth more than passing attention." Herman Hogan

+ Book Week p7 O 10 '43 450w

Booklist 40:88 N 15 '43

Reviewed by Fowler Hill

N Y Times p32 N 14 '43 500w

"'The F.B.I. in Peace and War' is a timely, human, important book, deserving of the widest possible reading audience. The author, Frederick L. Collins, has been a personal friend of J. Edgar Hoover for many years and has been permitted entree into the secrets of the F.B.I. But Mr. Hoover takes pains to point out in the Foreword that Mr. Collins's account is neither 'controlled or censored.'" J. R. Carlson

+ Sat R of Lit 26:12 O 2 '43 1100w

"The fear, held in some thoughtful quarters, that the F. B. I. may have the makings of a super-Gestapo, a potentially dangerous organization which may be used some time against our liberties, is virtually ignored here. By far the larger part of this book has no concern with such dismal speculations. It is good cops-and-robbers stuff, written in down-to-earth vernacular and, except for a few minor slips, appears to be accurate. It makes good reading for all who like good detective tales, and it gives a popular account of a group of men who, usually anonymously and under cover, are protecting this country on the home front." Cato Beamish

+ Weekly Book Review p34 N 21 '43 800w

COLLINS, MRS MARY (GARDEN). Sister of Cain. 256p $2 Scribner 43-15470

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p10 O 31 '43 110w

Booklist 40:115 D 1 '43

"Here is enough mystery, suspense and horror to satisfy the most exacting reader." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p14 O 17 '43 120w

"A good mystery which would be even better if some of the more incredible clues were eliminated."

+ — New Yorker 19:96 O 23 '43 50w

"Murder mixed with feminine conspiracies and backbiting. Excellent mystery marred by too many suspects and suspense too long drawn out."

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:20 N 20 '43 40w

"The plot gets so out-of-hand that the murderer reveals herself without the aid of a none-too-bright police officer or the self-appointed detective Hilda—or the logic of plot. Three murders and one suicide isn't bad for one week's action but it seems that the author absorbed a little too much of the San Francisco fog." F. R.

— Springf'd Republican p7e O 24 '43 120w

"The narrator's brisk hearty manner makes the horrid events easier to take. Exciting." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p24 O 17 '43 130w

COLLIS, MAURICE. Land of the great image; being experiences of Friar Manrique in Arakan. 271p il maps $3 Knopf [16s Faber]

915.92 Manrique, Sebastião. Burma. India 43-11284

An account of life in India and Burma under Portuguese domination in the early seventeenth century. The author takes as his main source book the "Travels" of an Augustinian friar, Sebastiao Manrique, who spent many years in Goa and in the kingdom of Arakan. Index.

Book Week p9 S 12 '43 150w

Commonweal 39:40 O 29 '43 30w

Reviewed by A. J. P. Taylor

Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 31 '43 120w

Reviewed by Marianne Moore

New Repub 109:431 S 27 '43 750w

"Mr. Collis conducts us through a curious corner of history, past strange symbols of man's mind and heart, but never in the spirit of those to whom human behaviour is merely an object of indifferent curiosity. His sense of moral conflict is indeed what makes him, in his cool way, an excellent storyteller." Freda White

+ New Statesman & Nation 25:404 Je 19 '43 1000w

"A vivid, illuminating study written with the care and penetration that an artist as well as a historian must exercise to make the exotic past live and breathe for us." Eudora Welty
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 29 '43 1200w

"Mr. Collis's mind is curious, his field of inquiry a fresh one, and his approach to it scholarly and humane. I opened his book with little expectation of getting past the first chapter and, to catch at a handy phrase not often used in these columns, found I could not put it down." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:73 S 4 '43 900w
Times [London] Lit Sup p102 F 27 '43 1450w

"The many surprises which the unimaginative Manrique and the romantic, scholarly and somewhat mystically inclined Irish Mr. Collis turn up for us make this one of the most fascinating true adventure stories which has gotten into print this long while." Rodney Gilbert
+ Weekly Book Review p5 S 5 '43 1100w

COLLISON, THOMAS. Flying fortress; the story of the Boeing bomber. 168p il $2.50 Scribner

623.746 Airplanes, Military 43-51210

History of the Boeing B-17 bomber, combined with a description of its design, production, testing, crew training, and record performances. Map on end papers.

Reviewed by P. M. Reich
Book Week p11 O 10 '43 160w
Booklist 39:468 Jl 15 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '43
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:245 Jl '43 60w
Library J 68:626 Ag '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:40 Jl '43
Reviewed by D. W. Dresden
N Y Times p10 Ag 29 '43 400w

"Readable and generally accurate, though some of it is a little on the puff-sheet order. Excellent photographs, which take up a good half of the book."
+ — New Yorker 19:63 Jl 3 '43 70w

"There is inevitably a good deal of engineering and other technical matter involved in any discussion of the Fortress. Fortunately, Mr. Collison does not underemphasize this and so play up to the more dramatic side of the bomber, but he presents his data in a direct and readable way following a check by Boeing engineers... While some of the detail of the photographs has been lost through the gravure process, there is nonetheless a large variety and excellent selection of illustrations. The captions are sufficiently detailed to make these illustrations more than just 'window dressing' for the book." C. B. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p8 Je 24 '43 390w
Times [London] Lit Sup p23 Ja 8 '44 150w
Weekly Book Review p12 Jl 18 '43 600w

COLLISON, THOMAS, ed. This winged world; an anthology of aviation fiction. 520p $3.50 Coward-McCann

Short stories—Collections 43-16090

Contents: Daedalus and Icarus, by Jean Lang; Pegasus and Bellerophon, by Nathaniel Hawthorne; A dissertation on the art of flying, by Samuel Johnson; The balloon-hoax, by E. A. Poe; The war in the air, by H. G. Wells; The trail of the hawk, by Sinclair Lewis; Skylark III, by Wallace Irwin; The last conflict, by Walt McDougall; The better sport, by Ernest Douglas; "Going up?" by Edwin Balmer and William MacHarg; The horror of the heights, by Sir A. C. Doyle; The great tradition, by J. W. Bellah; Up for glory, by R. H. Watkins; Down in flames, by B. R. Redman; At 2:42 A.M., by J. W. Bellah; Fear, by J. W. Bellah; Fed up, by E. W. Springs; John A., by A. A. Caffrey; Shy pilot, by P. B. Kyne; Zero-zero, by Harry Ashe; Clear and unlimited, by H. V. Dixon; High water, by Leland Jamieson; Co-pilots don't talk back, by Leland Jamieson; Traffic trick, by Leland Jamieson; Mr. Burroughs tells a lie, by Richard Thruelsen; Keep your nose down, by A. C. Bessie; The cities of the world, by J. W. Bellah; High compression, by Leland Jamieson; Ground mist, by B. R. Redman; That which hath wings, by Paul Gallico; The last flight, by Harry Ashe; East from Botwood, by Leland Jamieson; Return to life, by J. L. Rhys; Bombardier, by Paul Gallico; A bomber goes back home, by Guy Gilpatric; A place to roost, by Richard Sale.

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p12 N 21 '43 80w

"Mr. Collison has done a fine job, for this is an exceptionally satisfactory anthology. Every story in it is worth reading, and there need be no quibbling over what is included, and what left out." G. W. Harris
+ N Y Times p40 N 21 '43 400w

COLUM, PADRAIC. The frenzied prince, being heroic stories of ancient Ireland; il. by Willy Pogány. 196p il $3.50 McKay

398.2 Legends—Ireland 43-13077

"Ancient stories of Ireland, of Finn and Cuchullain, told in a fashion to delight all those who love such tales and wish their children to acquire a similar taste." Commonweal

"Padraic Colum, the great Irish poet and storyteller, had long wished to retell the more famous Irish sagas. . . And, good cess to him, he has done just that in a stinging, poetic, richly simple prose that admirably harmonizes with the fantastically heroic background. . . This review would be incomplete if I did not mention Willy Pogany's illustrations and the general format of the book. Suffice it to say that Pogany's work, especially his color work, well keeps pace with the wildness of the tales. . . In short, it's just the kind of book the young will marvel at and the old will reread." E. J. Cronin
+ Book Week p6 S 12 '43 290w
Commonweal 39:119 N 19 '43 30w
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:33 Ja '44 70w

"Mr. Colum's retellings and Mr. Pogany's illustrations are a welcome introduction. From his omissions I assume that Mr. Colum means this book for children as well as for adults. Certainly his notes at the end, infused with the fine instinct for folklore which characterizes all he writes on that subject, are addressed to the latter." Horace Reynolds
N Y Times p4 N 14 '43 600w
New Yorker 19:132 D 4 '43 110w

"We have waited for [this book] since early last spring; and it is well worth waiting for. It will rank with 'The King of Ireland's Son' and 'The Big Tree of Bunlahy.'" M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 26:27 N 13 '43 230w

"Nearly two hundred pages of pure enchantment—such is Padraic Colum's treasure mined from old time, laid up for present and future. From two medieval narratives he has spun a story on which, like jewels on a cord, older tales are strung. . . None of the tales were made for children: in Ireland even the fairies are grown-up. These translated treasures will be welcomed by students but shared by young people. . . For young folk are the fine full-color pictures embodying these gods and heroes." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p28 N 14 '43 400w

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY. Teachers college. Aviation education research group. Bibliography of aviation education materials; by Catherine Cartwright [and others] prepared with the coöperation of the Civil aeronautics administration; sponsored by the Inst. of the aeronautical sciences. (Air-age educ. ser) 139p 88c Macmillan

016.62913 Aeronautics—Bibliography 43-2132

"Part I is a classified list of books, magazines and films suitable for a course in preflight aeronautics in secondary schools. Part

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY—Continued
II is an annotated list of all materials, including maps, charts, and globes; radio scripts and transcriptions; films and film strips." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 39:335 Ap 15 '43
N Y New Tech Bks 28:3 Ja '43

COLVER, MRS ALICE MARY (ROSS). Merrivales. 288p $2 Macrae Smith co.
43-9417

Story of an American family in wartime. The children are just reaching maturity, their mother is still young enough to join the WAACS, and tho the family life is broken up by the war, fuller understanding heals the breaches that might have been permanent.

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p16 Jl 18 '43 200w

"Mrs. Colver's novel is designed to show that patriotism, in some instances, may be a gesture rather than an emotion. Edith Merrivale walks out on a family which still needs her, as subsequent events reveal. She comes to her senses before great damage is done. In fact, she comes to a clearer understanding of herself and her family than she has displayed for a long time. It is a novel that gives you something to think about." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p16 Je 20 '43 200w

Wis Lib Bul 39:123 O '43

COLVER, ANNE. Mr Lincoln's wife. 406p $2.50 Farrar

Lincoln, Mrs Mary (Todd)—Fiction
43-3200

A fictionized biography of Mary Todd Lincoln from courtship days in Springfield to the sad aftermath of the Civil war and Lincoln's death.

"Aside from a few sins of omission and commission, Miss Colver's historical background is impeccable, and her fairness is beyond reproach." Otto Eisenschiml
+ Book Week p7 Jl 4 '43 550w

Booklist 39:446 Jl 1 '43

"Miss Colver treats her subject sympathetically and shows the lengths to which her persecutors went while she lived in the White House. . . Her treatment of Mary Todd Lincoln is, on the whole, fair and the volume is written in entertaining fashion." M. W. B.
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 28 '43 550w

Commonweal 38:228 Je 18 '43 550w

Reviewed by Katharine Shorey
Library J 68:363 My 1 '43 70w

"A thoughtful character study and a thoroughly satisfying novel." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p6 My 23 '43 460w

"Miss Colver tells her anecdotes neatly, but her mild and indulgent picture of the woman John Hay called a hell-cat is not to be taken too seriously."
New Yorker 19:75 My 22 '43 60w

"It is with something of a shock that one encounters this fictionized biography of Mrs. Lincoln, for it is filled with factual errors and is superficial and deliberately evasive in its interpretation. . . Three generations of scholarship have built up a vast Lincoln literature. It is reasonable to suppose that an author approaching the subject would make good use of it. Miss Colver, wherever possible, avoids tying her narrative down to exact dates and facts, but when she does she is often wrong. . . Fictionized biographies are still looked down upon by many people. The prejudice against them will not be lessened by the publication of a book that is undistinguished as fiction and unacceptable as fact." P. V. Stern
— Sat R of Lit 26:26 My 29 '43 650w

"Competent, well integrated story." F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p10 My 30 '43 950w

Wis Lib Bul 39:109 Jl '43

COMBINED operations; the official story of the Commandos; with a foreword by Louis Mountbatten. 155p il $2 Macmillan

940.54 Great Britain. Commandos. World war, 1939-

Recounts as much of the official story of the commandos as can be told to date. Includes accounts of the raids on Rommel's headquarters, on Vaagso, St Nazaire, Diego Suarez, Dieppe, etc. Illustrated with photographs. The anonymous author is a well-known English writer, Hilary St George Saunders.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 172:123 Jl '43 270w

Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky
Book Week p1 My 30 '43 900w

Booklist 39:428 Je 15 '43
Bookmark 4:12 My '43

Reviewed by Ray McPartlin
Boston Globe p18 My 19 '43 400w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Jl '43

Reviewed by William Agar
Commonweal 38:304 Jl 9 '43 280w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:158 O '43 40w

"Dramatic story told with great accuracy in thoroughly interesting style. Many full-page pictures and maps. Any public library should get this book at once." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 68:428 My 15 '43 140w

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison
Nation 157:131 Jl 31 '43 850w

"The presentation is throughout unaffected, without heroics or overemphasis, and with a wealth of that anecdotal material which does so much to bring any military narrative to life." Fletcher Pratt
+ New Repub 108:838 Je 21 '43 600w

Reviewed by G. W. Stonier
New Statesman & Nation 25:355 My 29 '43 230w

"The Commandos are fortunate in their biographer, the astonishing Mr. Saunders, who wrote 'Battle of Britain,' 'Bomber Command,' 'Coastal Command'; who collaborated as 'Francis Beeding' and 'David Pilgrim' on some forty assorted mystery stories and novels. In 'Combined Operations' he tells as much as can be told at this time of Commando expeditions, which is considerable. He tells it quietly, often directly from the official records, which is wise. It is far more exciting in this straightforward style than it might have been if gilded. . . No reader will put this book down without knowing a kind of awed reverence for the Commandos." Meyer Berger
+ N Y Times p1 My 23 '43 1700w

"The whole story adds up to the best piece of purely military chronicling our side has produced since the beginning of the war. Nine maps and a group of British official photographs help Mr. Saunders do an efficient job." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:70 My 22 '43 450w

"The tale of the attack on St. Nazaire is certainly the highlight of this book, followed as a close second by the saga of Dieppe, but all other commando operations are depicted with equal skill. 'Combined Operations' is liberally provided with excellent photographs of scenes of action, but the publishers might have given us better sketch maps. Readers always appreciate a good map, as it helps them to follow the text, and those supplied are almost unreadable and quite unworthy of this book." Murray Harris
+ Sat R of Lit 26:14 Je 19 '43 550w

"To write contemporary history is never an easy task, but the author of this volume has had to triumph over two particular handicaps—the over-riding need for security, and the fact that so many of the people whose stories would have been valuable to him either have been killed or are prisoners of war. Nevertheless, a very readable and inspiring volume has been produced, equal to anything else of its kind, except perhaps Major Linklater's classic Defence of Calais, and likely to be as much of a best-seller as the Battle of Britain." S. H. F. Johnston
+ Spec 171:16 Jl 2 '43 500w

Reviewed by G. K. Moriarty
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 13 '43 1150w

"The story of the Commandos is rarely so spectacular. As told in simple, forceful language by Combined Operations Recorder Saunders, it is a story rich in dogged labor as well as sparkling achievement."
+ Time 41:98 My 31 '43 1350w
Times [London] Lit Sup p242 My 22 '43 480w

"Brief books seem to be the order of the day, and it is an excellent thing. This one has only 155 pages, but packed in it are more excitement and adventure than could be found in a Sabatini trilogy. And it is a living, actual tale, not a product of the imagination. It is a tale so living and actual that some of our best chances of victory in the present war are bound up in it." Lincoln Colcord
+ Weekly Book Review p3 My 23 '43 1700w

COMER, JOHN PRESTON. New York city building control, 1800-1941. 289p $3.25 Columbia univ. press [16s 6d Oxford]
692.9 Building laws 42-13830

Traces the evolution of the present building controls in New York city, and the development of the agencies to administer them. The period covered is from 1800 to 1941. Bibliography. Index.

"Here is a record of the influence of personalities on administrative practice and of the inevitable intertwining of politics and administration. Here is substantial evidence of Professor Freund's statement that administrative actions tend to develop into customary law. The study is well documented and has a useful index." W. J. Ronan
+ Am Pol Sci R 36:786 Ag '42 190w

"Although some might wish for a more pointed analysis of the role played by private interests, Mr. Comer's story of building control does give cognizance to the influence of state, local, and reform interests. It is a competent job and reflects the writer's twelve years of laborious research." J. E. McLean
+ Social Studies 34:93 F '43 500w

COMFORT, MILDRED HOUGHTON. Winter on the Johnny Smoker; il. by Henry C. Pitz. 218p $2 Morrow 43-13574

Story of a Middlewestern family who spent the winter of 1874 on board their father's newly purchased side-wheeler, the Johnny Smoker. Ice-bound during the cold winter months the whole family contributes to the success of a wood-cutting job that makes it possible for them to gain full possession of the boat.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p2 N 14 '43 180w
Booklist 40:81 N 1 '43

"The day-by-day life of the Dustin family on the boat is eventful and the plot is an unusual one, well developed." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:406 N '43 110w

"Tale is unusual and interesting, but it is often unconvincing, and style lacks smoothness." E. E. Frank
+ — Library J 68:772 O 1 '43 40w

"The story has a sturdy, homespun quality which is very appealing. Although at times the narrative does not flow freely, the material has the earmarks of authenticity, and the author succeeds in giving a picture of steamboat days in the late nineteenth century that has freshness and charm. For boys and girls from 10 to 13." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p21 O 24 '43 320w

"Small things lead up to the 'big scene' at the end when the Johnny Smoker races the 'stern-wheeler,' the Minnie D., for the right to carry the best cargoes from St. Louis to New Orleans. What a race it is! And how the Dustins, boy and man, 'stick to their guns.' This is a story that makes us proud of our American heritage." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 26:32 N 13 '43 250w

"The incidents are genuine family memories, spicy with personal experiences. Suspense keeps them moving. . . Dustin plans are for the Johnny Smoker's being the first boat in to St. Paul in the spring: the prize for this would ease their financial strain. With this race a story slides home that may safely be added to any collection of Americana for ten-year-olds to enjoy." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 N 14 '43 400w
Wis Lib Bul 39:160 D '43

COMMAGER, HENRY STEELE. Majority rule and minority rights. 92p $1.50 Oxford
321.8 Democracy. Courts—U.S. 43-15429

"Mr. Commager's book is an appeal for the unqualified acceptance of the majority principle as expressed through the democratic process. It is thoroughly Jeffersonian in spirit and meets squarely . . . all the arguments that may be raised against the position on the political and historical level. Both its dedication and its subject matter suggest that its subtitle might very well be 'The Vindication of Felix Frankfurter.' " Nation

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Book Week p6 N 28 '43 550w

"Mr. Commager's book is eloquent, forthright, and cogent." Sidney Hook
+ Nation 157:709 D 11 '43 1000w

"His fellow historians would probably endorse Professor Commager's reading of U.S. history. But Professor Commager does not excel as a logician."
Time 42:99 N 22 '43 1000w

"Mr. Commager's attitude deserves consideration and a goodly measure of acceptance though his arguments are far from compelling. The quotation of much Jeffersonian scripture may be commended for its geographic piety, but one may doubt its proportion of twentieth-century wisdom. Of course doubts by those who have vested intellectual interests in judicial government must be appropriately discounted, but there is the riposte that Mr. Commager would have found more acceptation had he been more moderate and less free from doubt. If it were fitting to assume the role of Sir Hubert, there would be temptation to say that the advocacy of the lectures seems more in the mood and mind of the lawyer than in those of the historian." T. R. Powell
+ — Weekly Book Review p4 Ja 2 '44 900w

COMMITTEE ON AFRICA, THE WAR, AND PEACE AIMS. Atlantic charter and Africa from an American standpoint. 164p pa 75c; with suppl $1 for sale by Africa bur, 156 5th av, N.Y.
940.536 Atlantic declaration, August 14, 1941. World war, 1939—Africa. Africa—Politics 42-18394

"This brief and timely study takes up the eight points of the Atlantic Charter and applies them to fundamental African problems, chiefly those which exist in the Africa below the Sahara. It will be found useful by colleges, schools and study groups and by writers and speakers. The authors look toward a gradual assumption of the power and responsibility of self-government by the people of Africa and find merit in the mandate system, devised after the last war, as a means for advancing toward that goal." New Repub

Reviewed by W. E. B. Du Bois
Books p10 Ja 10 '43 950w

"The book can be emphatically recommended for study groups as well as individual reading."
+ Christian Century 60:267 Mr 3 '43 330w

"The volume is full of information and is calculated to give an insight into this great country—her peoples, her history, her prospects, her place in world affairs and her economic importance such as cannot be found

COMMITTEE ON AFRICA—Continued
in any other book available at this time." T. F. Opie

+ Churchman 157:15 F 15 '43 120w

Commonweal 37:652 Ap 16 '43 70w

New Repub 107:690 N 23 '42 120w

Reviewed by M. M. Knight
Pol Sci Q 58:141 Mr '43 550w

COMMUNITY SERVICE SOCIETY OF NEW YORK. Family service. Relief practice in a family agency; Cora Kasius, editor. 121p $1.50 Family welfare

361.7 Social work 42-23247

"This book by staff members of the Community Service Society of New York was published as a result of interest aroused by that agency's studies of current relief practices. In the introduction it is pointed out that, although the giving of material assistance is one of the oldest functions of the private family agency, the decision whether and on what grounds to give relief is still one of the most difficult decisions facing case workers in this field. The authors' purpose is to describe and analyze methods used by private agencies at the present time in handling problems of economic need." Social Forces

"Whether the reader agrees with the viewpoints presented or not, he will find in this small volume thought-provoking discussions of questions that are still highly controversial among both private and public agency workers." C. G. Peele

+ Social Forces 22:118 O '43 350w

"The basic philosophy and the admirable case illustrations presented in the six articles should be interesting to board members and volunteers as well as to professional staff. And board members as well as staff should be concerned with promoting similar analyses of casework practice throughout the field, for, to quote Miss Kempshall again, 'Without the continuous study by its practitioners of findings and methods, casework cannot progress.'" M. E. Rich

+ Survey 79:90 Mr '43 480w

COMPTON'S pictured encyclopedia. 15v fabrikoid $84.50; dura-cloth $79.50; discount for cash and multiple purchases (more than 5 sets); trade-in allowances c1943 Compton

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries

"The aim and the scope of the set as stated in the preface are, 'to make . . . an encyclopedic, alphabetically arranged survey of the whole field of knowledge, presented with . . . freshness and vividness, and embellished with . . . a wealth of illustration. . .' The result of this policy is to produce a work adapted in text to the reading skills and interests of readers at junior high school level and upwards, while many of the illustrations offer satisfaction and information to somewhat younger readers also. The set contains long articles, with broad subject coverage, alphabetically arranged. Short article entries and information on minor subjects are contained in the fact-index section of each volume. . . Short bibliographies which accompany the longer articles are divided into 'books for younger readers' and 'books for advanced students and teachers.' They suggest possibilities for further reading but are not intended as an inclusive list in any field." Subscription Bks Bul

"The 1943 edition of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia shows steady, consistent improvement over that of 1939 [Book Review Digest, 1939] and is recommended for home, school or public library where a new encyclopedia is desired, or for replacement where the juvenile encyclopedias are 1940 or earlier."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:38 O '43 850w

COMSTOCK, MRS HARRIET THERESA (SMITH). Terry. 216p $2 Doubleday

43-12690

The Reverend Reginald Kirkland, rector of a fashionable church in a New England town near Boston, was a powerful preacher and much beloved by his parish. But an indiscretion in his past had brought him unrest, and when the girl Terry, whom he had thought of as his niece proved to be his own daughter, he had a breakdown. It was the girl's mother—common, but courageous, who cleared up the situation.

"The story is one for those who like a religious strain, with a touch of metaphysics, running through their romances." Charlotte Dean

N Y Times p14 Ag 15 '43 200w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p20 S 19 '43 180w

CONDLIFFE, JOHN BELL. Agenda for a postwar world. 232p maps $2.50 Norton [7s 6d Allen, G]

940.53144 Reconstruction (1939-). Economic policy. World war, 1939—Peace 42-19556

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"It is one of the most suggestive and constructive volumes in a crowded shelf of similar attempts. As a one-man job it ranks even higher because the coverage is limited to topics within the author's special competence."

+ Am Hist R 48:632 Ap '43 80w

"Though Professor Condliffe devotes most of his analysis to the immediate postwar period, he has several good chapters on longer-range questions." R. G. Woolbert

+ Foreign Affairs 21:369 Ja '43 40w

"[The book's] sound judgments, based on years of study and reflection on international economic relations, carry conviction without the formidable array of statistics which so often baffles the general reader." P. W. Bidwell

+ J Pol Econ 51:79 F '43 850w

Reviewed by M. T. Florinsky
Pol Sci Q 58:109 Mr '43 600w

"All in all, a remarkable amount of common sense and practical knowledge of international relations have been packed into the few (well-printed) pages of Agenda for a Post-war World, and it well repays the reading." C. W. Guillebaud

+ Spec 171:198 Ag 27 '43 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p194 Ap 24 '43 480w

CONFERENCE ON SCIENCE, PHILOSOPHY AND RELIGION in their relation to the democratic way of life. 3d, New York, 1943. Science, philosophy and religion; third symposium [ed. by Lyman Bryson and Louis Finkelstein]. 438p $3 The conference, 3080 Broadway, N.Y.

321.4 Democracy

"This volume presents in permanent form the papers read and discussed at the third annual conference on science, philosophy, and religion, held at Columbia University, New York, during August, 1942. . . The present symposium represents the opinions and findings of many different scholars, each oustanding in his own field, each prepared to contribute his experience to the outlining of factors viewed as necessary or advisable for the establishment of the democratic way of life upheld by the United Nations." Christian Science Monitor

Cath World 158:222 N '43 200w

"The book, like the full name of the conference, is long and disjointed. The faults of the book are not the faults of the individual papers. The scattering effect is due to the failure of those who set up the conference to find a question to which specialists in many fields could address themselves with some assurance of coming within hailing distance of one another. Considered one by one or in groups of two or three, the papers are the kind that would be called good, standard, sometimes brilliant, contributions to the proceedings of various learned societies." W. A. R. Leys

+ — Christian Century 60:718 Je 16 '43 1100w

"To give within the limits of a brief review any adequate representation of the wealth of important material presented by the numerous contributing authorities is all but impossible. Like its predecessors, the book should be widely read as presenting a significant cross section of enlightened contemporary thought." T. L. L.
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 12 '43 750w

Commonweal 38:401 Ag 6 '43 70w

Reviewed by I. G. Matthews
Crozer Q 20:340 O '43 1950w

Reviewed by A. W. Levi
Ethics 54:67 O '43 650w

"This is the third volume—and by all odds the most readable and pertinent—which the organization has produced. . . It is not always easy reading, yet it catches the spirit of today's great intellectual adventure: the quest of the Holy Grail of faith and high resolve which alone can heal the wounds of the world's mightiest battle and give us a true, a just and an enduring peace." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p8 Ap 25 '43 950w

"One can only suggest the flavor of this rich and meaty volume. Here and there obscurantism and academicism creep in, but, on the whole, it is good evidence of the scholar's faith in democracy and of his readiness to meet head-on current challenges to his intellectual and spiritual positions. This is an important book that directly and indirectly will have considerable influence in shaping American intellectual attitudes." W. S. Lynch
+ Sat R of Lit 26:23 Jl 31 '43 800w

Reviewed by L. O. Kattsoff
Social Forces 22:239 D '43 600w

Reviewed by G. N. Shuster
Weekly Book Review p12 S 5 '43 1150w

CONGER, ELIZABETH MALLETT. American warplanes. 161p il $2 Holt

623.746 Aeronautics—Juvenile literature. Airplanes, Military 43-14899

Description, for children under twelve, of the American army and navy planes, as well as the gliders, parachutes, and training planes now being used.

Booklist 40:150 D 15 '43

Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 20w

"The language is clear and direct and photographs of Flying Fortresses, Liberators, Avengers and the rest, offer valuable assistance in identification." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:419 N '43 60w

"Recommended for all libraries." B. W. Bell
+ Library J 68:962 N 15 '43 100w

New Yorker 19:134 D 4 '43 50w

CONKLIN, EDWIN GRANT. Man, real and ideal; observations and reflections on man's nature, development, and destiny. 247p $2.50 Scribner

573 Man 43-14951

"One of America's most capable biologists considers both the objective or realistic phenomena of human life and the subjective or idealistic aspects of human nature. Dr. Conklin deals first with man from the biological point of view, then from the psychological and social standpoints, showing how the scientific study of man reveals 'the steps by which there develop out of relatively simple biological beginnings the amazing complexities of body and mind, of social and spiritual qualities.' The last third of the book is his 'endeavor to correlate these findings of science with the philosophical problems involved in self-consciousness, a sense of material, moral and aesthetic values, and the attainment of freedom and responsibility.'" Scientific Bk Club R

Book Week p10 O 3 '43 230w

Booklist 40:108 D 1 '43

Reviewed by C. H. Patterson
Christian Century 60:1266 N 3 '43 750w

Reviewed by Clifton Macon
Churchman 157:18 N 1 '43 330w

"The reader will be grateful for the thoughtful comments concerning the principles upon which the New World Order must be based and the attitudes of mind that must be developed if there is to be any enduring peace for the world. He will also appreciate the sympathetic consideration for religious and spiritual values that leads to an optimistic view of man's future on the earth."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:2 O '43 300w

"Some readers will be disappointed that Dr Conklin finds no evidence for personal immortality, but he does find everywhere evidence of a planned universe, directed by some superior power toward definite goals. At the same time, he feels that, within certain limits, man is a free agent, whose reason, with the necessary aid of a religious faith, will in time produce a better world. This book is not one to excite with unproved guesses on the solution of our many unsolved problems, but it is full of interest and information." W. B. Kirkham
+ — Springf'd Republican p10 O 15 '43 500w

"Those readers who have been in the past nourished by Professor Conklin's straightforward and refreshing discussions of biology, and his occasional sallies into the sphere of social philosophy will find nothing surprisingly new in this volume. What they will find is an attempt at integration of thought. Those who are not familiar with his writings will discover in these essays a fine summary and synthesis of his outlook to life." E. C. Lindeman
+ Survey G 32:460 N '43 460w

CONNELLY, JOHN ROBERT. Technique of production processes. 430p il $4 McGraw

658.5 Factory management. Efficiency, Industrial 43-6300

"The purpose of this book is to give the student a background knowledge of the elementary principles of industrial operations—casting, forming, material removal, and joining—together with an understanding of industrial plants and their problems. Technique of Production Processes covers study in this field up to the level of advanced specialized work. Although it presupposes a knowledge of the underlying sciences, the book will be useful to the student without such knowledge in familiarizing him with basic processes and problems." Publisher's note

"This is one of the best illustrated of recent books on the subject."
+ Book Week p10 My 9 '43 90w

Booklist 39:458 Jl 15 '43

Library J 68:211 Mr 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:28 Ap '43

"While the style is brief and to the point, a monotone of presentation obscures the instances of incisive observation. The book is illustrated with unusual completeness, even to the point of profusion. The many photographs and sketches are well chosen and add materially to the clarity of the book." J. M. Juran
+ — N Y Times p35 S 19 '43 80w

CONNOLLY, JAMES BRENDAN. Master mariner; the life and voyages of Amasa Delano. 324p $3 Doubleday

B or 92 Delano, Amasa 43-4029

Biography of a New Englander sea captain who spent many years during the late 1700s and the early 1800s in voyages to China and the South Seas. Index.

Booklist 39:318 Ap 1 '43

Cath World 107:109 Ap '43 70w

"Thanks to Mr. Connolly, Captain Delano has risen from obscurity, his adventures made available once more. And since they are at once lively reading and important maritime history, the book has double value." H. C. Kittredge
+ New Eng Q 16:511 S '43 700w

CONNOLLY, J. B.—Continued

"Mr. Connolly in his life of Amasa Delano has produced significant material for a student of maritime life of early America. He has made a readable narrative out of a memoir, which, to judge by the quotations from it, is dull. On the other hand, he has given no sources and has neglected to specify whether vital material, when omitted, is unobtainable. For instance, Delano's death is not set down. Is the date unknown?" R. E. Berry

+ — N Y Times p5 Mr 14 '43 600w

"Mr. Connolly doesn't quite do him justice, though he does make a good, colorful biography of Delano's life."

+ — New Yorker 19:67 F 27 '43 50w

"This is a fast stepping book like all those by the same author. But its defects include hero worship to the point of redundancy, and the lack of a third dimension. At no time does Amasa come fully alive, which reminds one that about the hardest job in this trade is breathing new life into an old diary." G. W. B.

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 14 '43 460w

"All told, the book misses fire in ways that are hard to define. The one thing it makes clear is that we should have a modern reprint of the 'Voyages and Travels.' It needs no apologist and no interpreter, and if one wants to read the story of Captain Amasa Delano one should acquire his book and read it as he himself puts it down." Lincoln Colcord

— + Weekly Book Review p12 Ap 18 '43 800w

CONRAD, EARL. Harriet Tubman. 248p $3.25 Associated pubs.

B or 92 Tubman, Mrs Harriet (Ross) 43-13197

"One of the most remarkable—and least known—figures in American history is the little colored woman, Harriet Tubman, who was born a slave and who spent her life trying to free her people from bondage. She invaded the South more than a dozen times to bring groups of slaves to freedom; her adventures read like a dime novel; her acquaintanceship numbered some of the most distinguished men in New England; of her record in the Civil War, Wendell Phillips said that few captains and perhaps few colonels had done as much for the Northern cause; and John Brown called her 'General.'" Sat R of Lit

"Mr. Conrad had gathered all the data which time and earnest effort could uncover and has written a short and unpretentious book about her. Harriet would have liked that, for she herself was a person little given to speech and never to pretentiousness." P. V. Stern

+ Sat R of Lit 26:21 N 6 '43 360w

"Mr Conrad's writing is vigorous and poetic. Occasionally crude, it rises to admirable heights at times, particularly in the description of some of the more dramatic events in his heroine's career. If he starts off with a chip on his shoulder, one can hardly blame him. His book deserves a wide audience, first of all among those who take the four freedoms seriously." S. L. Jackson

+ Springf'd Republican p10 O 7 '43 850w

CONWAY, HELENE. Year to grow; decorations by Erick Berry. 224p $2 Longmans

43-6174

Boarding school story for girls of ten to fourteen. Anne Reagan goes to a convent school near Boston for one year, with the understanding that she is to make her own decision about a second year. In that one year she grew to be a stronger, more attractive girl, and able to make her own decisions, too.

"Modeled somewhat upon the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Elmhurst, the school life will appeal to many girls of an age to enjoy boarding school stories. Some of the incidents are not unhackneyed, the introduction of a lost jewel mystery in particular." A. M. Jordan

+ — Horn Bk 19:238 Jl '43 70w

"Satisfies boarding school requirements."

Sat R of Lit 26:29 My 15 '43 30w

"Young readers who look forward to growing up with a little timidity will find much to encourage them in this pleasant story, and others will enjoy the vivid and amusing account of boarding-school life spiced with unexpected happenings."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 22 '43 110w

"Boarding-school stories for girls have been many, but few have been about convent schools; Elizabeth Jordan's 'May Iverson: Her Book' set a standard for these in 1904, but not many others have since approached its degree of excellence. Miss Conway's story does not, but its faithful reproduction of life in a convent school makes any convent-school girl feel at home, while the steady, quiet self adjustment that takes place in the life of its leading character under the steady, quiet discipline of the school in the year it covers, is one that they will recognize." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p20 My 23 '43 480w

Wis Lib Bul 39:88 Je '43

COOK, ARTHUR NORTON. British enterprise in Nigeria. 330p $3.50 Univ. of Pa. press

966.9 Nigeria. Great Britain—Colonies—Nigeria 43-4620

"A case study in British imperialism. . . As the author points out, a great real has been written about imperialism in general, but there are few special studies of the subject. For his own area of investigation he has chosen the important but little-known colony of Nigeria. In this colony the British have had an unusual opportunity to develop and test the value of colonial administration by indirect rule, i.e., administration which utilizes as fully as possible native chiefs and native tribal organization." (Pol Sci Q) Bibliography. Index.

"If anything, it includes too many facts, too much that is interesting but often merely diverting or even confusing. Moreover, most of the factual material is drawn, of necessity, from official sources or from the memoirs of colonial administrators. The author is fully aware of this weakness; nevertheless, the final result is a seeming lack of balance between British and native points of view. . . An extended bibliography is included, but a good map, which would be most useful for easy reference, is strangely omitted." Frederic Heimberger

Am Pol Sci R 37:564 Je '43 260w

"This book is reliable; there is no similar book on Nigeria. It is indispensable for students of Nigerian history and institutions and of modern imperialism." Garland Downum

+ Ann Am Acad 228:115 Jl '43 500w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:16 Jl '43 30w

"Professor Cook has studied thoroughly the development and operation of indirect rule. His book is carefully documented and draws richly from official reports, but his sections on African exploration and his chapter on international rivalry in Nigeria would have been more convincing if he had made wider use of French and German sources. Professor Cook has spent some time in England and has had ample opportunity to talk with Lord Lugard and others who were leaders in the making of modern Nigeria. He has also had several interviews with Miss Margery Perham, an authority on indirect rule. These personal contacts have given him a sympathetic understanding of the problems of colonial administration. At the same time, he has kept the detached point of view of a foreigner. Indeed, his book is of special value because it is the only study of British activities in Nigeria written by a foreigner." L. A. C. Raphael

+ Pol Sci Q 58:315 Je '43 400w

COOK, HOWARD NORTON. Sammi's army [il. by the author]. [30p] $2 Doubleday

43-10173

Picture story book for the very young. Sammi lived near the sea coast in a country to the South of us. His army consisted of all the domestic animals on his father's ranch. Left in charge one day, Sammi finds some rough looking foreign sailors on the beach, and his valiant army puts the invaders to rout.

Reviewed by Phyllis Whitney
Book Week p6 Je 6 '43 180w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:236 Jl '43 70w

Reviewed by Fritz Eichenberg
Horn Bk 20:18 Ja '44 50w

"Howard Cook, distinguished for a soberer art, tells the story chiefly in large pictures of fluid exciting line which led up to a climax of glorious and hilarious confusion." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 22 '43 160w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Sat R of Lit 26:40 Je 19 '43 70w

"The pictures are large and noisy, the colors those we associate with the tropics, and as this is the sort of war little children of picture-book age love to play, they will find all that happens in it quite natural." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p12 My 23 '43 380w

COOKE, MURIEL; HARPER, HEADLEY, and HARPER, ANN (MRS HEADLEY HARPER). Mrs Caliper's house; pictures by Sherman Cooke. [63p] $1.50 Knopf 43-15174

Nonsense picture-story book about Mrs Caliper who was so very friendly that she invited everybody who came along to live in her house. Rooms were added for the farmer, the milkmaid, the small boy Peter, and at last for the old light-house keeper. Space was limited and finally rooms had to be built on top of the house, which made it possible to expand almost indefinitely.

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:819 O 15 '43 30w

"For sheer absurdity this story of a house like no other can scarcely be beat; on every page it shakes a chuckle out of an adult, and a six-year-old giggles continuously." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 N 7 '43 280w

COOKE, NELSON MAGOR, and ORLEANS, JOSEPH BARNET. Mathematics essential to electricity and radio; including principles of direct-current and alternating-current circuits. 418p $3; text ed $2.40 McGraw 511 Mathematics. Electric engineering. Radio 43-12782

"This book is intended to provide students with a sound mathematical background and to further their understanding of the basic principles of electricity. The student who has had some high-school mathematics will find that the earlier chapters form a comprehensive review and will aid him in applying mathematics to radio and electric-circuit theory. . . The authors have attempted to adapt Lieutenant Cooke's book on Mathematics for Electricians and Radiomen to the secondary-school level and to high-school teaching techniques." (Pref.) Answers to exercises and problems.

"It is well organized and as thorough as an introductory book can be." L. E. Grinter
+ Book Week p18 N 21 '43 50w
Booklist 40:73 N 1 '43
Library J 68:575 Jl '43 50w

"The authors take considerable care in defining terms and this, as well as the fact that answers are given to problems, should make the book useful for home study as well as for a classroom text." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p36 N 28 '43 100w

COOMARASWAMY, ANANDA KENTISH. Spiritual authority and temporal power in the Indian theory of government. 87p pa $1.75; to members $1.25 Am. oriental soc.
320.954 Political science—History 42-16491

"This analysis, drawing upon the mythologies and the sacred writings of India, will have more interest for the specialist than for any wide public. Highly documented, the text is studded with citations and with Indian terminology in parentheses. . . Underlying the mythologies there is represented, in a way that reminds of Plato, that the essence of all true government, whether of the individual or of the community as a whole, is self-government." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by Walter Sandelius
Am Pol Sci R 36:1195 D '42 340w
J Philos 40:110 F 18 '43 330w

COONAN, FREDERICK LEO. Principles of physical metallurgy. 238p il $3.25 Harper
669 Metallurgy 43-14963

"An elementary text on the properties of metals and alloys and their behavior in process of fabrication and use. Part 1 presents principles; part 2, commercially important nonferrous alloys; part 3, alloys of iron and carbon." (Booklist) Index. Author is associate professor of United States Naval Academy.

Booklist 40:108 D 1 '43
Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 20w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p14 F 6 '44 50w

COONEY, BARBARA. Captain Pottle's house; il. by the author. 173p $1.50 Farrar 43-13043

Cherry Dean spends a summer in Maine with her Great-Aunt Freddy, and is instrumental in solving the mystery surrounding cross old Mr Critchlow. For ages ten to twelve.

"A well-plotted story set against a colorful background, with illustrations by the author which add to the book's general attractiveness. Especially for girls from 8 to 12, but good reading-aloud for the whole family." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p6 O 24 '43 160w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p6 Ja 27 '44 70w

"There is just enough mystery in this new book by the author of 'The Kellyhorns' to snare the interest of 8 to 11 year old readers while they follow Cherry through a story which has the tang of a Maine breeze, the smell of good Maine cooking and other delightful experiences of a country summer." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p8 O 17 '43 240w

"Fun, welcome always in children's books, is in especial demand around nine or ten; the fun in Barbara Cooney's latest Maine story is as light and lively as in the others." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p10 N 14 '43 280w

COONEY, CARROLL TROWBRIDGE. David. 304p $2.50 Howell, Soskin
43-5035

Story of the break up of a family and a home, told almost entirely from the point of view of five-year old David.

"'David' is a thoughtfully, sensitively written book. I hope Carroll Cooney, who has heretofore written children's books, will soon write another 'adult' novel." D. McC.
+ Book Week p6 Ap 4 '43 360w

"Any one who has loved and respected a small boy must be enchanted and touched by this portrait. . . The story flounders a little in the end, in this business of keeping David safe. If we are to become acquainted with the grownups directly, to learn things David cannot know, then we should like to learn enough to believe that David's home will be rebuilt on a sounder structure. But outside of this weakened and not convincing ending, the story of David is strange and touching, an amazing rendering of the essence of a small boy." Lorine Pruette
+ — N Y Times p7 Ap 11 '43 700w

COONEY, C. T.—Continued
"Mr. Cooney wrote 'A Green Field For Courage' which delighted children. 'David' is a novel purely for adults, and a very pleasant one at that." Jessica Potter
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 16 '43 280w

"This is a story of David but also, with some division of interest, a story written of adults and for adults. In that respect it inevitably loses more than it gains by being restricted to a child's-eye view of grownup idiosyncrasies, even though the view is that of so intelligent and charming a person as David." Mary Ross
+ — Weekly Book Review p10 Ap 11 '43 420w

COONS, JOAN. Without passport; an everyday novel. 436p $2.75 Day
43-7751

Two young children, studying music together under the same professor in a midwestern American town, have seemingly equal chances to win fame and renown. The boy wins a scholarship and goes abroad to study, becomes famous as a violinist, but misses happiness in life; the girl marries a farmer, and puts aside her musical ambitions and is rewarded finally with the knowledge of her son's genius.

"Well-developed story and important thesis. Recommended." Katharine Shorey
+ Library J 68:476 Je 1 '43 90w

"The author has greater skill with women than with men. Her portraits of Jane and of Elaine, David's wife, are fresh and sympathetic, while Lena has a certain validity in her daily life, though little in her music. But the eccentric Fielding and the narrow David are arty and incredible. The same difference appears in Miss Coons's treatment of 'everyday life' and glamorous moments and foreign scenes, she is better at the indigenous small-scale event." Lorine Pruette
N Y Times p6 Jl 4 '43 420w

"Thoughtful and well wrought novel." George Conrad
+ Weekly Book Review p12 Je 20 '43 370w

Wis Lib Bul 39:123 O '43

COOPER, ALFRED DUFF. David. 292p $3 Harper; Cooperation pub. co, inc, 30 Rockefeller plaza, N.Y. [10s 6d Cape, J]
221.92 David, king of Israel 43-8096

Detailed biography of David, king of Israel, in which he is treated as the historical king, rather than as a religious figure. The author, an Englishman, is a former secretary of state for war, first lord of the admiralty, and minister of information.

"To read this biography is more than to meet an appealing hero again; it is to increase one's understanding of that hero's amazingly rich and vital life. I enjoyed Duff Cooper's 'David' immensely." Louis Zara
+ Book Week p9 Je 20 '43 800w

Booklist 39:439 Jl 1 '43

Reviewed by E. M. Poteat
Christian Century 60:798 Jl 7 '43 550w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 24 '43 600w

Churchman 157:14 O 1 '43 60w

"Language is modern—simple and colorful: dialogue and occasional passages from the Psalms are taken directly from Scripture. Author's keen psychological insight produces an effective characterization set against a lively picture of the period. Readers of adventurous biography will enjoy the book; to Bible students it will bring new actuality to a well-known story." J. S. Cleavinger
+ Library J 68:428 My 15 '43 100w

"Beyond question there is much research and real knowledge behind Mr. Duff Cooper's work. He may have written his manuscript quickly: it reads like that. But the research was thorough, and probably took some years. After all, Mr. Duff Cooper is a considerable historian in his spare time, and he cannot be easily challenged on his facts, nor yet on the interpretation he places on them. Those who best know the Bible will probably be the first to testify that they know David better than they did before." R. L.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 My 26 '43 270w

"It is disappointing that a biographer who does not regard all Old Testament history as 'gospel truth,' should have thought it necessary to gloss over the shadier side of David's character; to suggest, for instance, that David did not understand Samuel's act of treachery against Saul, in anointing him King behind Saul's back; for we have clear evidence in David's covenant with Jonathan that he did know quite well what Samuel had done it for. . . Later on, over David's affair with Bathsheba in order to condone his treachery toward Uriah, quite gratuitously Mr. Duff Cooper gives Uriah an unpleasant character. Surely none of this was in the least necessary in a book which in other respects is pleasantly free from the shackles of fundamentalism." Laurence Housman
— + New Statesman & Nation 25:325 My 15 '43 500w

"The book makes good reading. Indeed, it might have been longer. Many amusing details clarified by the archaeologist are sacrificed either to war brevity or to a desire only to give what the traffic—reader-interest—will bear. Nor can it be said that this volume, standing by itself, fully explains the amazing fame of David in a future civilization, of which he had no conception. If the story here told had been the whole story, David would have slumped long ago to the level of Achilles and the rest of them. For the meaning of David—whether confronted by Goliath or by Nathan the Prophet—is not to be measured alone by standards describable as secular or even human. This book is itself repeatedly transcending such standards and rising above its own level, to higher and inescapable altitudes. David is timeless because he dwelt consciously within the eternities." P. W. Wilson
+ N Y Times p6 My 30 '43 900w

"Mr. Duff Cooper, a remarkable politician himself, is perhaps too willing to see statecraft, where none was intended. Writing out of a rich experience of such matters, he displays not only the perspicacity but also the naivete of his profession. And though his philosophical asides on government and the states of mind of those who govern seem to the reviewer full of truth and wit, his synthesis of David's character, as revealed by the evidence so-called, seems pretty synthetic. This is not to say that he hasn't a real appreciation and understanding of many aspects of his hero. His comments on the psalms for instance are fresh, discriminating, and intelligently enthusiastic. But on the whole his endeavor to construct the personality of the King makes one think of the image which Michael put in David's bed so that the living man might have time to escape from the anger of Saul." Leonard Bacon
— + Sat R of Lit 26:10 Je 19 '43 650w

Reviewed by Ernest Barker
Spec 170:479 My 21 '43 700w

"The author who sets out to portray the life and manners of an age-long past is well aware, if he is a practised writer and anything of an historian, of the dangers that await him—from the strained precision, let us say, of 'Salammbo' to the studied sentimentalisms of 'The Brook Kerith.'. . Mr. Duff Cooper has surmounted these difficulties with a rare skill. No word of the narrative, either in his brilliant sketches of the Holy Land and the daily round of its people, or in his shrewd assessment of the principal characters that help to make or mar the life of David, is allowed to distract the reader's interest from the central figure; the true proportion is exactly kept between the 'statue' and the 'pedestal.' "
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p239 My 15 '43 600w

"Religiously-minded readers, Christians and Jews alike, will grant that the Right Honorable Alfred Duff Cooper, soldier, statesman and historian, has done an admirable piece of work in 'restoring and deepening the original impression of the Biblical story, the memory of which may have become dim even in the minds of the faithful.' And those to whom David is simply a very interesting personality, will praise the book as an effort to convey to the skeptical reader of our days one of the most interesting case histories of all times." Alfred Werner

+ Weekly Book Review p2 Je 20 '43 1000w

Wis Lib Bul 39:103 Jl '43

COOPER, ALICE CECILIA, and PALMER, CHARLES A. Twenty modern Americans; drawings by Cameron Wright. 381p $2; text ed $1.32 Harcourt

920 U.S.—Biography 42-12340

Biographical sketches with stress on the traits of character which made these twenty Americans famous. Contents: Walt Disney; The Martin Johnsons; Richard Evelyn Byrd; Amelia Earhart; William Beebe; J. Edgar Hoover; Henry Agard Wallace; George Washington Carver; Charles Proteus Steinmetz; Helen Wills; Yehudi Menuhin; Malvina Hoffman; The Mayos; William Bushnell Stout; Walter Percy Chrysler; Pearl S. Buck; William Allen White; Will Rogers; Jane Addams; Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Booklist 39:338 Ap 15 '43

Commonweal 39:121 N 19 '43 30w

"Each biography has catchy, fitting title and is written with imagination. Interesting, informative, inspiring, these much-needed modern-life sketches should be popular with readers twelve to eighteen." Laura Wang

+ Library J 68:330 Ap 15 '43 100w

"These crisply written sketches are more than good reading about famous people; they are a stimulating challenge to seek the kind of life which offers the most reward in the pleasure of a job well done." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p11 Ap 25 '43 340w

"It is the treatment that makes the book stand out among so many collections of brief biographies. Keeping clear of fine writing, it tells the facts in such a way that they tell the story. There is not a perfunctory line in the book." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 Ap 18 '43 410w

Wis Lib Bul 39:52 Ap '43

COOPER, DUFF. See Cooper, A. D.

COOPER, ISABELLA MITCHELL. Bibliography on educational broadcasting. 576p $5 Univ. of Chicago press [30s Cambridge]

016.371333 Radio in education—Bibliography 42-15628

"An annotated bibliography resulting from the mass of material—books, reports, pamphlets, articles from journals and magazines—collected by the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education which was organized in 1930 to promote 'the more effective utilization of the arts of broadcasting in the general field of American education.' The material recorded covers the widest possible range, from proceedings of great bulk reporting international conferences and governmental hearings to mere descriptive announcements in periodicals." School & Society

---

"Not only those of us working in the field of radio education, but all persons having anything to do in the industry as a whole, owe a debt of gratitude to Miss Isabella M. Cooper for the exhaustive research that has resulted in the compilation of the mass of material in this most comprehensive of bibliographies. There have been numerous bibliographies, privately compiled, with emphasis on one phase or another of radio, but nowhere has the material been so carefully checked and annotated as in the 481 pages, plus two exceptionally well-edited indexes, that comprise this latest volume." J. C. Waller

+ Library Q 13:77 Ja '43 440w

School & Society 55:596 My 23 '42 70w

COOPER, LANE, ed. Fifteen Greek plays; tr. into English by Gilbert Murray, Benjamin Bickley Rogers, and others; with an introd, and a suppl. from the Poetics of Aristotle. 794p $4; college ed $3 Oxford

882.08 Grek drama—Translations into English 43-9840

"Five plays, an adaptation of the Poetics of Aristotle, and a chapter on Aristotle's theories of comedy have been added to Ten Greek plays [published 1929]. The book now includes four plays each by Aeschylus, Sophocles, and Euripides, and three by Aristophanes. Eight of the translations are by Gilbert Murray." Booklist

---

Booklist 39:466 Jl 15 '43

Library J 68:727 S 15 '43 70w

N Y Times p8 Jl 25 '43 400w

Theatre Arts 27:629 O '43 380w

COOPER, MRS LOUISE (FIELD). The deer on the stairs. 215p $2.50 Duell

43-18113

The story of two days in the lives of a group of people living in comfortable homes on the outskirts of a quiet New England village. The slender plot deals with the affair of Iris, not too happily married, who thinks she wants to run away with a temporary lover but can't quite make up her mind. The chief interest lies, however, in the character sketches of the people who might influence Iris' decision.

Reviewed by Marion Strobel

Book Week p4 Ja 9 '44 360w

Booklist 40:198 F 1 '44

"One of the delights of the book is that the author has a keen, cool eye for the workings of many minds—practically all feminine, by the way—even down to the cat Winifred, who lapped with shut eyes 'as if she didn't want to know how little cream was left.' The reader will probably share something of Winifred's feeling as he approaches the end of Mrs. Cooper's saucer of the cream of light fiction." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p31 D 12 '43 500w

"Miss Cooper's attitude toward her characters is pleasantly detached, and just when the heroine precipitates a crisis which would get a novelist with deeper psychological interests off to an exciting start, the author washes her hands of the whole business and slyly brings her story to an end."

+ New Yorker 19:96 D 18 '43 120w

"Readers who care more for atmosphere, clever characterization and good dialogue than for plot will enjoy 'The Deer on the Stairs,' Louise Field Cooper's new novel. Her comedy of manners is a slight thing in terms of story, but it is interesting for its skillful telling." Rose Feld

+ Weekly Book Review p30 D 5 '43 600w

COOPER, NELLE GRANT (KAY GRANT, pseud). It's 'ard to go wrong in the cactus [verses] [Eng title: It's 'ard to go wrong in the suburbs] il. by Jean Cullen and Anne Drew. 64p $1 Morrow [2s Angus]

827 43-5534

Humorous verse and pictures about our Australian allies in love and war.

"While some of the allusions belong strictly 'down under,' the humor is lusty and universal. It should do a good deal to cement friendships with our allies half a world away and incidentally, would make a good gift for your own man in the armed forces wherever he may be."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 15 '43 80w

Weekly Book Review p19 My 16 '43 100w

COPE, HARLEY FRANCIS. Command at sea; a guide for the naval officer. 283p $2.75 Norton

359 U.S.—Navy—Officers. Leadership 43-15110

"Captain Cope has drawn upon his past in writing a professional treatise on the duties and responsibilities of a commanding officer. Every possible subject is adequately covered, from feeding the crew to drills in port, from what to do when one of your men is arrested ashore to the supreme moment of action against an enemy." Weekly Book Review

"Much of the material Capt. Cope has used in his book will be found in the old standby volumes known to all Navy men. But there has never been a book devoted entirely to the assumption of a command at sea, certainly none so clearly written or so enriched with practical advice as this." W. H. Fetridge

+ Book Week p4 N 21 '43 500w

Booklist 40:88 N 15 '43

Reviewed by R. E. Berry

N Y Times p18 N 28 '43 320w

Weekly Book Review p24 N 7 '43 160w

COPELAND, FAYETTE. Kendall of the Picayune; being his adventures in New Orleans, on the Texan Santa Fe expedition, in the Mexican war, and in the colonization of the Texas frontier. 351p il maps $3 Univ. of Okla. press

B or 92 Kendall, George Wilkins 43-6522

"A full-length biography. . . George Wilkins Kendall was one of the most adventurous and colorful figures of the great early days of American journalism. Born in New Hampshire in 1809, he educated himself by reading and by serving a varied apprenticeship on newspapers all over the young Republic. Having mastered his trade, he went to New Orleans, and in 1837 founded the Picayune in partnership with Francis Asbury Lumsden." Christian Science Monitor

"Professor Copeland is fortunately able to combine a flare for interesting writing with thorough and convincing scholarship. In his work, he utilized not only the files of the Picayune but also the very extensive manuscript materials in possession of the Kendall heirs. Through a thorough assimilation of these colorful items, he is able to write a life history that helps to bring thirty years and more of Deep South history into vivid perspective." A. M. Lee

+ Ann Am Acad 229:214 S '43 220w

"Copeland knows his background well indeed. This sometimes leads him to omit explanations or general statements that would be helpful to the less well-informed reader. He has, however, a virtue too rarely found as the complement of special knowledge: the power to discriminate between the significant details and those that are just details. The result is a sharply sketched, readable and substantial biography." J. T. Frederick

+ Book Week p4 My 30 '43 900w

Booklist 39:445 Jl 1 '43

"Kendall saw everything, knew everybody, and he had the gift of making things exciting to his readers. A portion of this spirit has descended upon his biographer, so that the book is a tense and exciting narrative, at once scholarly and stimulating." K. C. K.

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 My 21 '43 650w

"A thoroughly sympathetic biography, so sympathetic that it reads almost as if that war were still going on." Anita Brenner

+ N Y Times p38 Je 6 '43 340w

Reviewed by Herbert Brucker

Sat R of Lit 26:24 Jl 31 '43 600w

"Here is the competent, detailed and thoroughly documented biography of one of the most interesting of American journalists. George Wilkins Kendall has long deserved just such a book. He was one of the giants in an age of giants. Mr. Copeland's account of Kendall's career is written for the most part in a cool, matter of fact, sometimes pedestrian style, but it is the product of long research, the soundness of which can only arouse admiration." Stanley Walker

+ Weekly Book Review p27 My 23 '43 1050w

COPELAND, NORMAN. Psychology and the soldier. 136p $1 Military service

355.12 Morale. Leadership. Psychology, Applied 42-25498

"A short readable discussion of what constitutes army discipline, morale, and leadership, and how they are achieved. Written from an English point of view, with most of the illustrations and examples from English and American military experience. No index." Booklist

Booklist 39:311 Ap 1 '43

"This reviewer has found nothing new in Norman Copeland's book. More than that, it is a somewhat stuffy little volume better suited to a Sunday School than as a guide to a young leader of fighting men engaged in the serious business of killing other men before they themselves are killed. It is certainly not pointed to American soldiers." R. E. Dupuy

— Sat R of Lit 26:35 Ag 21 '43 320w

CORBETT, ELIZABETH FRANCES. Excuse me, Mrs Meigs. 289p $2 Appleton-Century

43-1683

Mrs Meigs, at eighty, thought it was foolish to get married again, but Mr Cunningham, at seventy-six, thought otherwise. There was a wedding, and the rest of the story is about the first year of the marriage, during which time a great deal happened.

Booklist 39:319 Ap 1 '43

"The creator of Mrs. Meigs would be the last person to ask that she be taken very seriously. With no taste or talent for half-measures, so sudden, energetic and young an old lady in real life would doubtless be a problem to children and grandchildren, however much they loved her, but in print she is entertaining, and one of the characters in current literature who has made a name for herself. To the public the name will always be Meigs, not Cunningham." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 20 '43 550w

"Light, entertaining, humorous Mrs. Meigs story. Will delight all her old friends." E. F. Kelly

+ Library J 68:172 F 15 '43 50w

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean

N Y Times p26 Mr 7 '43 460w

"This is a homely story, but one that has warmth and sparkle, and it is peopled with real, warm-blooded people. One will read it quickly and enjoy it all." M. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 7 '43 330w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p20 F 28 '43 250w

Wis Lib Bul 39:73 My '43

CORBETT, ELIZABETH FRANCES. Golden grain. 334p $2.50 Appleton-Century

43-12117

Continues the story begun in Faye's Folly (Book Review Digest, 1941). Sheba Faye Warner, after several years of widowhood, during which time she had brought up the five Warner children, is again the heroine. The Illinois town of West Syracuse in the 1880's is the scene.

Booklist 40:79 N 1 '43

"It is unfair to ask a writer who sometimes acceptably sports cap and bells to do that all the time, but 'Golden Grain,' intended by the author to be one of her serious novels, leaves a reader asking, not for more of the same kind, but for a return to the light-hearted mood of the impossible but the charming 'Young Mrs. Meigs' and its companion volumes."

Christian Science Monitor p13 O 2 '43 600w

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p29 O 3 '43 300w
Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p20 S 19 '43 400w
Wis Lib Bul 39:145 N '43

CORES, LUCY MICHAELLA. Painted for the kill. 278p $2 Duell 43-9388

Detective story.

"A whodunit, so pleasantly done and with such a trenchant job of taking the beauty business for a ride on Miss Cores' part that it's a pleasure to read. Add to this a superb job of maintained suspense, plus the chill that comes over you when you learn who did do it, and you have an elegant book. Even the menfolks should like this one—especially if their ladies are beauty-shop hounds." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p7 Je 13 '43 360w

"This first mystery has a well-thought-out plot and is written with malice and gaiety."
+ New Yorker 19:38 Je 5 '43 70w

"Well-informed background stuff on beauty-temples, glamorous characters, sprightly dialogue, and baffling plot. Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:44 My 22 '43 30w

"With each and every copy of this you get dozens of laughs laid on with a blunt instrument, mostly having to do with the background. Also a puzzle. Recommended as good, honest amusement-cum-gooseflesh, especially for the matinee trade." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p13 My 30 '43 350w

CORK, JAMES MURLE. Heat. 2d ed 294p il $3.50 Wiley
536 Heat 42-50056

"Prof. Cork deals specifically with the physical phenomena induced in matter through the application or withdrawal of heat. It appears to have been written especially for advanced students or instructors in the science of Physics." (Chem & Met Eng) The first edition was published in 1933.

"To the scientist and all others interested in the subject of heat, the book makes fascinating reading. The description of methods and apparatus designed to ferret out the different laws ascribed to various phases of heat phenomena is as entertaining as the best of modern detective fiction. The remarkable ingenuity and resourcefulness of the great workers in the field of physical research is at all times worthy of praise and unstinted admiration." W. J. Shore
+ Chem & Met Eng 50:203 Ap '43 350w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:10 Ja '43

"For the past decade the first edition of Cork's Heat has been a valuable aid in intermediate and advanced heat courses serving equally well as textbook and reference book. The appearance of the second edition of this book with much of the original material modified and augmented and with a considerable amount of new material added, brings the book up to date and insures its continued usefulness in classroom and laboratory." C. N. Wall
+ R of Scientific Instruments 14:304 O '43 700w

"Professor Cork's book covers a considerable range of subjects, at the same time going deeply enough into important phenomena to have value to students. It is also a useful reference book for the engineer concerned with the application of heat." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p22 Ap 18 '43 90w

CORLISS, MRS ALLENE (SOULE). Borrowed husband. 278p $2 Farrar
43-4311

A triangle story in which the main characters are Red Stevens, his wife Ginny, and Cecil, a beautiful younger woman, who usurps Ginny's place while the latter is nursing a sick mother. The two small sons of Red and Ginny are the stumbling blocks in Cecil's near-success at wrecking a once happy marriage.

"Mrs. Corliss does a neat job in light fiction, and her new novel is one of her best. . . The ending is not exactly a surprise, but it is managed with skillful appreciation of the probabilities and no far-fetched coincidence." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p24 My 9 '43 360w

"In spite of the human problems presented, the effect is superficial." Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p21 My 9 '43 90w

CORLISS, MRS ALLENE (SOULE). Say goodbye to Katharine. 280p $2 Farrar 43-983

Romantic tale set against a background of New York and London in war-time. The chief characters are four young people who pick the wrong partners and endure several heartbreaks before things can be straightened out.

" 'Say Good Bye to Katharine' is pitched in an emotional key which becomes a bit monotonous; the novelist seems to write with clenched teeth." Lisle Bell
Books p22 Ja 24 '43 330w
N Y Times p19 Ja 10 '43 260w

CORNELL, JULIEN D. The conscientious objector and the law; foreword by Henry Emerson Fosdick. 158p $1.75 Day
355.22 Conscientious objectors 43-51321

"Mr. Cornell presents in this book an authoritative statement on the legal treatment of conscientious objectors in the United States during the present war. As special counsel on behalf of conscientious objectors, representing the American Civil Liberties Union's Committee, he has had both the opportunity and the obligation to know the facts at first hand. . . Whatever the immediate influence of this book, it is bound to be an historical document of continuing value. The facts here presented are an important part of the story of this war era and of what war does to the mind of a nation, even when it is fighting for democracy." Harry Emerson Fosdick in Foreword

Booklist 40:111 D 1 '43

"Useful little book."
+ Christian Century 60:1506 D 22 '43 230w

"Julien Cornell, himself a Quaker and pacifist, has chosen an interesting and provocative subject for his book. He has presented the facts not only clearly and eloquently, but compactly." A. G. Hays
+ Weekly Book Review p20 D 12 '43 900w

CORNELL UNIVERSITY. Impact of the war on America; six lectures by members of the faculty. 159p $2 The university
940.5373 World war, 1939—U.S. 42-16038

Group of six lectures by members of the faculty of Cornell university, setting forth the impact of the war upon various aspects of American life. Contents: The impact of war on the Constitution, by R. E. Cushman; The impact of war on American labor, by R. E. Montgomery; The United States and the British empire: past and present, by C. W. de Kiewiet; A reappraisal of the Far Eastern policy of the United States, by Knight Biggerstaff; The United States and the balance of power, by P. E. Mosely; The United States and post-war international organization, by H. W. Briggs.

"There is nothing particularly challenging in any of them, for it is not their aim to be provocative. Their restrained and balanced point of view contrasts favorably with most of the current war analysis and propaganda." T. C. Smith
+ Am Hist R 48:661 Ap '43 210w

CORNELL UNIVERSITY—Continued

"The lectures are uniform in length, almost models of clarity, and maintain a high standard of objectivity. They are realistic and not without some sparks of life. Intended primarily for undergraduates, they may be read with ease and profit by the general public." C. O. Johnson

+ Am Pol Sci R 36:1164 D '42 500w
Cath World 158:222 N '43 250w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:370 Ja '43 10w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
New Statesman & Nation 26:92 Ag 7 '43 500w

CORNER, GEORGE WASHINGTON. Hormones in human reproduction. 265p il $2.75 Princeton univ. press

612.6 Reproduction. Hormones 42-51440

"This book is an elaboration on the Vanuxem lectures to laymen given by Dr. Corner at Princeton University in 1942. . . The profound biologic, social and medical significance of sex should be apparent to every normal adult. This book helps to answer the how and the why, thus providing understanding. In the Preface Dr. Corner says: 'We have a tradition that sex and reproduction must be attended by privacy, dignity and romance. It is a good tradition provided we add a fourth attribute, namely understanding.' " Christian Century

Reviewed by A. J. Carlson
+ Christian Century 60:1269 N 3 '43 230w

"Dr. Corner combines with his extraordinary capacity for research an equally exceptional mastery of the fine art of exposition. The lucid, fluent style of his writing will go far toward dispelling the fogs of ignorance and the clouds of misinformation that have thus far largely concealed the facts from the layman." A. H. Compton & others

+ Scientific Bk Club R 13:1 O '42 800w

CORNETET, WENDELL H., and FOX, DANIEL W. Principles of electricity. 255p il pa $1.60 McKnight

621.3 Electricity. Electric engineering 43-7178

"Electricity treated simply for high-school instruction. Covers about the amount of material that would be useful to the automobile mechanic." Book Week

"Not of any particular value for future engineers."

Book Week p8 Ap 11 '43 50w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:7 Ja '43

CORNFORD, FRANCIS MACDONALD, tr. See Plato. Republic

CORRINGTON, MURLAN S. Applied mathematics for technical students. (Rochester tech. ser) 226p $2.20; with table $2.80 Harper

510 Mathematics 43-6416

Mathematics essential in simpler engineering work. "This book is a combination of theory and application and was written for trade schools, factory training courses, or pre-engineering studies; any mechanic or engineer can use it for home study or reference. It begins with a review of arithmetic that does not assume much previous training. Much of the material was used for several years in classes for freshmen and was revised from time to time to make it more understandable. . . Arithmetic, algebra, logarithms, and trigonometry have been included in one volume, yet it is advanced enough for a thorough course. Either a long or a short course can be given by proper selection of the material. Emphasis has been placed on solving problems by clear thinking, not by blind substitution in formulas." (Pref) Index.

"Treating arithmetic, algebra and trigonometry in a very practical way has not kept the author from making an interesting presentation. In fact, interest is enhanced by the use of examples from technology." L. E. Grinter

+ Book Week p11 Jl 18 '43 50w
Library J 68:431 My 15 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:29 Ap '43

"The problems, often difficult, are designed to tax the student's knowledge rather than to make it too easy. Since such problems may arise in practice, their study and solution are a valuable part of the course. The book is well illustrated and there is a list of answers." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p16 Ag 8 '43 100w

CORSON, JOHN JAY. Manpower for victory; total mobilization for total war; with a foreword by Paul V. McNutt. 299p il $3 Farrar

331.112 Industrial mobilization. World war, 1939—Labor problems. World war, 1939—U.S. 43-5408

"The book is at once a record of past achievement, a study of immediate problems and a critical discussion of the steps which must now be taken. It answers the broad question: What does total mobilization for war really mean? It also suggests an answer to the personal question: How can I make my best contribution to the war effort? An important chapter looks forward to the critical problems of post-war demobilization." (Publisher's note) The author was director of the United States employment service during the early period of war-time industrialization mobilization, and is now director of old age and survivors insurance.

Reviewed by G. H. E. Smith
Am Pol Sci R 37:930 O '43 700w

Reviewed by F. H. Kirkpatrick
Ann Am Acad 230:220 N '43 950w

Reviewed by Howard Kaye
+ Book Week p1 My 9 '43 300w
Booklist 39:381 Je 1 '43

"John J. Corson is especially qualified to write the first definitive volume describing the manpower problem in the United States and evaluating the program which has been put into effect to meet this problem. After several years with the Social Security Board, he was Director of the United States Employment Service during the crucial months when its central function was changing from that of finding jobs for workers to that of finding workers for jobs. Since he is now Director of Old-Age and Survivors' Insurance in the Social Security Board, he is able to write frankly about manpower without being limited by official discretion." William Haber

+ Management R 32:465 D '43 1750w

"This book is valuable as the first really complete treatment of the man-power problem."

+ Nation 156:714 My 15 '43 130w

Reviewed by W. F. Ogburn
N Y Times p6 My 9 '43 950w

"Mr. Corson states his position straightforwardly and honestly. His book is a provocative one." Frank Kelley

+ Weekly Book Review p14 Ap 25 '43 800w

CORYN, MARJORIE. Good-bye, my son. 533p $2.75 Appleton-Century

Napoléon I, emperor of the French—Fiction. Bonaparte, Maria Letizia (Ramolina)—Fiction 43-2474

Biographical novel about the Bonaparte family, picturing Napoleon and his seven brothers and sisters as they appeared to that remarkable woman, Letizia Ramolina Bonaparte, who was their mother. The book begins with Napoleon's father and mother fleeing to the mountains of Corsica, from the oncoming French army, before Napoleon was born; it closes with the exile of an emperor.

Booklist 39:293 Mr 15 '43

"A remarkable first novel. . . A knowledge of the events of the Napoleonic era on the part of the reader is presupposed."

+ Christian Century 60:297 Mr 10 '43 140w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Ap '43

"A grand piece of work. . . Long, elliptical, compelling, timely, and authoritative. Highly recommended." L. M. Kinloch

+ Library J 68:128 F 1 '43 70w

" 'Goodbye, My Son,' in spite of some breathless writing, is an excellent addition to Napoleonic fiction." Herbert Gorman

+ — N Y Times p20 F 21 '43 900w

"Miss Coryn has succeeded admirably in her effort to make the entire Bonaparte family live again in the pages of her book. . . The novel has a sustained atmosphere of romantic tragedy about it which before the end may become a little cloying to the more down-to-earth readers but given the particular form which Miss Coryn has chosen this is inevitable. At any rate, there are few historical families whose corporate careers lend themselves more readily to romanticizing than do the Bonapartes." W. H.

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e F 14 '43 550w

"A novelist who had created the Bonapartes out of her imagination would have had hard going to make them credible. Having found them in history, Miss Coryn did not have to take that hurdle. She had, however, one little less steep—to extract from the mass of documents and controversy the stuff to show that they had been not merely names and dates but also very actual human beings. This she has done in a story which has no tinge of pedantry. To know that Letizia and her children once did live adds spice to what is and would have been, quite apart from history, an unusually engaging and vigorous novel." Mary Ross

+ Weekly Book Review p2 F 21 '43 750w

Wis Lib Bul 39:73 My '43

CORYN, MARJORIE. Incorruptible. 247p $2.50 Appleton-Century

Robespierre, Maximilien Marie Isidore de—Fiction 43-12147

Fictionized study of the last five months of the life of Robespierre, told largely thru his thoughts and those around him—Danton, Barras, Desmoulins, etc.

"Not a very inspiring subject, this, but Miss Coryn's talent gives it grandeur that lifts it far above the average level of biographical studies. Names dimly remembered from school days take on life in her realistic portrayals, and the reader gets to know their owners as well as he knows the people next door. . . Although the author has chosen an easy conversational style, she has taken no liberties with essential facts. On the whole, 'The Incorruptible' is flawless history. This is a fine book and should find great favor with discriminating readers." Oscar Ewald

+ Book Week p3 S 12 '43 200w

Booklist 40:79 N 1 '43

Reviewed by Lucy Greenbaum

N Y Times p4 S 12 '43 550w

"Miss Coryn writes, when she doesn't overwrite, with scrupulous regard for events, but more subtle students of history may quarrel with her interpretation of her hero's character. However, it all makes a gripping story; it makes a gripping story, for that matter, in the Encyclopaedia Britannica."

— + New Yorker 19:77 S 4 '43 90w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 12 '43 330w

"Last year Miss Coryn published her remarkable 'Good-bye My Son'. . . 'The Incorruptible' is an equally vivid and engaging novel. There is more going back and forth in the minds of many different people than in the earlier book. We are switched from Robespierre to Danton, from Eleonore, who was going to marry Robespierre, to Cecile Renault, who was going to murder him. From Tallien to Couthon. From Sanson the executioner, to Leonard the ex-court barber. Although by this means more conflicting points of view are shown, there is a danger of confusing the reader which the earlier book escaped. But this book is equally fine. It has the same excitement of immediacy." Esther Forbes

+ Weekly Book Review p3 S 5 '43 1000w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott

Yale R n s 33:xii autumn '43 80w

COSTER, CHARLES THEODORE HENRI DE. Glorious adventures of Tyl Ulenspiegl; tr. by Allan Ross Macdougall; introduced by Camille Huysmans; il. by Frans Masereel. 496p $3.50 Pantheon bks.

43-16193

"Out of the 'bloody legend' of the struggle of the Flemish people against Spanish tyranny de Coster wrought the 'golden legend' of 'Ulenspiegl,' to employ Malraux's classic formulation of the genesis of revolutionary literature. History, folklore and patriotism combine to produce one of the first, and still one of the few, epic novels of modern times. Although it is set in the sixteenth century, written in archaic Flemish, deeply indebted to the early picaresque novel, chiefly and not always too happily to Cervantes, it is a nineteenth-century book." (New Repub) Chronological table.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

Atlantic 172:137 D '43 180w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick

Book Week p9 D 12 '43 400w

Commonweal 39:40 O 29 '43 850w

"Splendid woodcuts by Frans Masereel, beautiful type, map endpaper, all contribute to make fine book; but the archaic language of the excellent translation by Allan Ross MacDougall and the very European background make it difficult as well as fascinating work for Americans. Recommended for readers with cultural interests." H. H. A. Bernt

+ Library J 68:767 O 1 '43 90w

"Van Wyck Brooks has been calling for the heroic in literature. Almost as though in answer to his summons, here comes the reasonably complete, juicy, profusely and poetically illustrated translation of a genuine and timely hero-legend in prose. It is the 'Ulenspiegl' of that nineteenth-century little Homer of Belgian literature, Charles de Coster. . . The play of erudition is plain throughout the vigorous, tasteful, often jocund work. One sees it in the pleasantly archaic diction, imitated from Rabelais and from sermons of his epoch. One sees it in the wonderfully clear genre pictures sapiently reconstructing the atmosphere and customs of the sinister sixteenth century. The knowledge of the Inquisition's horrible tortures here displayed almost is unique. 'Ulenspiegl' also offers a little synthesis of Flemish art. Like the paintings of scenes of revelry by Jordaens and Jan Steen, its lusty pictures of material and sensual life teem with references to fat roasts, tall flagons, milky breasts." Paul Rosenfeld

+ Nation 157:503 O 30 '43 1100w

"It is good to have de Coster's 'Ulenspiegl' in a readable translation at a price only slightly higher than that of a current popular novel. It is a minor annoyance, however, for the publishers to call it 'the first complete English translation' in view of the one by Atkinson, which was presented to an American public in 1922 and which for many readers will remain preferable to the present one. . . Frans Masereel's illustrations for this edition are very good, but only an artist who combined the earthiness of the elder Breughel, the monstrousness of Hieronymous Bosch and the passion of Käthe Kollwitz could render fully the spirit of this book." George Mayberry

New Repub 109:629 N 1 '43 420w

Reviewed by Saul Bellow

N Y Times p5 O 31 '43 900w

"A first-rate complete translation of the classic epic of Flemish freedom."

+ New Yorker 19:114 N 13 '43 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 7 '43 550w

COUDENHOVE-KALERGI, RICHARD NICOLAUS. Crusade for Pan-Europe; autobiography of a man and a movement. 318p $3.50 Putnam

940.5 Paneuropa-union. Europe—Politics. World politics 43-14747

"Autobiography of a Middle European nobleman who established the Pan-European Union just after the first World War and who fought a long, courageous rear-guard action for the peace of Europe. He proposes a European federation, which would be one regional bloc in a world commonwealth." New Yorker

"All things considered, this seems to me one of the really important books of the war. I say this despite the fact that I disagree basically, as will many Americans, with more than a few of the author's ideas, and feel that if they were put into practice in the form he advocates, they would create more problems than they would solve. . . I strongly recommend 'Crusade for Pan-Europe' without for a moment suggesting that either its author's general plan or his particular ideas will yield very much for the future." R. H. Rovere

+ — Book Week p3 O 24 '43 650w

Booklist 40:142 D 15 '43

Reviewed by Carlyle Morgan

Christian Science Monitor p16 D 15 '43 180w

"Here is an unusual book which this reviewer found highly interesting for several reasons. First, it is the story of a man whom a kindly fate provided with a 'front seat' at the spectacle of history in the making, and that at the time of a tremendous crisis. Second, it is the story of a man with a single idea who devoted his resources and his powers tenaciously and unswervingly to its realization—an idea, moreover, both logical and simple. Lastly it is full of sketches of the principal European actors in the great drama which opened thirty years ago, all of whom the author knew and most of whom he knew intimately." T. F. Woodlock

+ Commonweal 39:186 D 3 '43 650w

"Will probably be a most important document in planning of the Peace." Lena Ruppert

+ Library J 68:767 O 1 '43 110w

Reviewed by Albert Guérard

New Repub 109:660 N 8 '43 650w

"We have had many books purporting to tell us what goes on 'inside' Europe, but most of them have been written by the specialist or the irresponsible spectator. This book is written from the inside as a human document, from an intense awareness of the complexity and the peril of European culture." Eleanor Kittredge

+ N Y Times p12 N 7 '43 900w

"Idealistic in tone, and on occasion both naïve and Machiavellian, but the author's well-informed understanding and fervent humanism tend to redeem a good deal of inconsistency and loose thinking."

+ — New Yorker 19:87 O 16 '43 90w

"Count Coudenhove's book is never dull, often brilliant, always touched with keen thought and wide information. Sometimes it gives the impression that it flows from the patrician's point of view, which is understandable. One feels that the Pan-Europe crusade lacks the touch of the common man, does not tend to reach down to the people. But there is more than a little to the technique of working from the top. Only last March, Winston Churchill, an old friend of Count Coudenhove, foresaw a 'Council of Europe' that might help the quarrelsome continent and the world start a new page." Frederick Gruin

+ Sat R of Lit 26:7 O 23 '43 1250w

Time 42:97 N 29 '43 1350w

Reviewed by W. R. Deuel

Weekly Book Review p16 O 31 '43 1350w

COULTER, JOHN WESLEY. Fiji, little India of the Pacific. 156p maps $2 Univ. of Chicago press [12s Cambridge]

919.61 Fiji 42-50793

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"Coulter's study of Fiji is highly recommended, especially for administrators whether governmental or industrial." M. W. Smith

+ Am Anthropol 45:621 O '43 750w

Booklist 39:290 Mr 15 '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:588 Ap '43 10w

"This is a book of somewhat specialized interest; but almost any of us may need to take a specialized interest in almost any part of the world nowadays, and for a person who wants to know about Fiji this is a handy survey from first-hand acquaintance, of the people, geography, and political and economic conditions of a very centrally located spot on our route to the Southwest Pacific."

+ Nation 156:463 Mr 27 '43 80w

"'Fiji' makes no 'case.' It rakes no muck. Indeed, it gives exceptional credit to that ever-present but rarely mentioned factor in the affairs of many men and many colonies—good-will. 'Fiji,' therefore, is a valuable and thoughtful study." J. W. Vandercook

+ N Y Times p26 Ap 4 '43 550w

"Dr. Coulter, formerly the head of the Geography Department in the University of Hawaii, has written an admirable little book which should be of considerable interest to the students of the problems of Indians abroad and the problems of the Pacific. There are a few mistakes where the author generalizes about conditions in India but perhaps such generalizations, though misleading, are unavoidable. These, however, do not detract from the merit of this volume." S. Chandrasekhar

+ Pacific Affairs 16:124 Mr '43 420w

Reviewed by J. P. Searles

Weekly Book Review p14 Jl 25 '43 110w

COURNOS, JOHN, ed. Treasury of Russian life and humor; with an introduction. 676p $3.75 Coward-McCann

891.708 Russian literature—Collections 43-51338

A collection of prose and poetry gathered from Russian creative writing of the past one hundred years. Selections are grouped under the headings: Russia's mission; Confessional, biographical, epistolary; Poetry; Short fiction; High lights from novels; The Cossacks; Wit, humor, and satire. Authors represented include Tolstoy, Berdyaev, Dostoevsky, Gogol, Alexander Blok, Pushkin, and others.

"In a book market almost overcrowded with anthologies, this one is a find. . . Not only are the acknowledged 'greats' here—Tolstoy, Pushkin, Gogol, Turgenev, Chekhov, Dostoevsky, and Gorky—but Russian authors of distinction who are comparatively unknown to the English-speaking world are also amply represented. There are excellent notes and a comprehensive introduction." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 173:123 Ja '44 150w

"The word anthology, which means 'a collection of choice literary extracts,' stems from the Greek and implies a gathering of flowers. The task of the compiler of such a work is to arrange a bouquet of offerings. How often the result is no more than a rude plucking of roadside blooms, assembled without sense or pattern! That is why it is especially satisfying to report that 'A Treasury of Russian Life and Humor,' edited by John Cournos, is a lovely bouquet of the most engaging literary blossoms from the Russian scene." Louis Zara

+ Book Week p2 N 28 '43 450w

Booklist 40:141 D 15 '43

+ Commonweal 39:182 D 3 '43 450w

Reviewed by Vladimir Nabokov

— New Repub 110:92 Ja 17 '44 1150w

Reviewed by J. E. Thal

N Y Times p16 Ja 9 '44 440w

Reviewed by Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 19:106 N 20 '43 200w

"Altogether the book would have gained in unity and quality, if the Soviet pieces had been omitted. Such fine examples of Soviet prose as are culled from Babel, Kataiev, Leonov, Sholokhov, Poliakov are too fragmentary for an adequate formation of opinion about this literature. The humor of Zoshchenko may, indeed, be gauged from the one brief sketch cited, but the chapter from Ilf and Petrov's novel hangs in the air. Limited to the authors preceding 1917, the collection would have more proportion, and would more properly present what Mr. Cournos, in his own words, 'should wish to preserve of Russian literature on his own shelf.'" Alexander Kaun

Sat R of Lit 26:18 D 25 '43 950w

COUSENS, THEODORE WELLS. Politics and political organizations in America. 617p $4 Macmillan

329 Political parties—U.S. U.S.—Politics and government. Politics, Practical 42-20410

Textbook in political science, describing political organization in the United States, from George Washington's presidency to the present. Bibliography. Index.

"One is impressed by the earnest effort of Professor Cousens to include all of the relevant material dealing with politics and political organization in America, but disappointed by the fact that the inclusion of so much material has driven the author to a process of cataloging in some instances and over-simplification in others. Use of this book for independent reading will be extremely limited, and its employment as a text will demand extensive collateral reading. Fortunately, Professor Cousens has included an excellent general bibliography of books and articles at the end of his volume." D. E. Heckman
+ — Am Pol Sci R 37:333 Ap '43 650w

"The book was written primarily for textbook use, but it is sufficiently readable to be of interest to the general reader as well." E. A. Helms
+ Ann Am Acad 226:190 Mr '43 680w
Social Studies 33:380 D '42 20w

"Professor Cousens has had an American audience in mind, but the English reader will seldom be at a loss in these clear, well-planned if not strikingly original chapters. A welcome innovation is the large proportion of the space given to party history. Without some knowledge of the background of American parties, understanding of the contemporary scene is impossible. If the resultant picture is very unlike a British political landscape, all the better; it reminds us that America is a foreign land."
+ Spec 169:466 N 13 '42 130w

COWAN, SADA. Bitter justice. 265p $2 Doubleday 43-6284

Mystery story.

"A tangled case, well presented despite some rather glaring inconsistencies in the conduct of one of the persons most deeply involved." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p12 Ap 18 '43 120w

"Good court-room scenes, for those who like 'em, and much emotional conflict. Detecting is unobtrusive but effective."
Sat R of Lit 26:54 Ap 17 '43 40w

COWDIN, EVELYN. All we have built. 247p $2 Mill 43-3706

When Anne Bowman married Dr Philip Raider, she knew there would be Philip's five-year-old problem child to deal with, but she did not know that the doctor's beautiful divorced wife would be in the picture, too. The story is of Anne's valiant and patient struggle to make a real home. The scene is Denver.

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p14 Ap 11 '43 220w

"The author has created a human story and told it entertainingly."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 21 '43 450w

"The theme is developed with a touch of humor and a proper appreciation of child as well as adult psychology." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p17 Ap 4 '43 120w

COWLIN, DOROTHY. Winter solstice. 283p $2.50 Macmillan [8s 6d Cape, J] 43-10327

"A psychological novel . . . laid in the slums of a bleak and dirty industrial town in the English Midlands. . . Alexandra Gollen, when the story opens, has been a helpless and uncomplaining paralytic for nine years, patiently cared for by her two brothers who keep a tailoring shop. . . It is a customer of the shop—a handsome schoolmistress with an enthusiasm for the sport of glider piloting—who accidentally sets in motion the events leading to Alexandra's recovery." N Y Times

"Since the theme is psychological, there is little chance for full characterization, but the outlines of character are clear, and the reins of the narrative are held with such easy skill that the whole story becomes a reality. The book is full of beautiful descriptions of nature, sometimes a bit too lush, but always in place." N. E. Monroe
+ — Cath World 158:107 O '43 250w

"A remarkably able psychological study which is only not pathological because it is handled with such a sure hold upon the humanities. Freud is mentioned, but by the likely people, and he is kept severely in his proper place in fiction." Charles Marriott
+ Manchester Guardian p3 O 30 '42 60w

"'Winter Solstice' is a story unusual both in theme and quality. It is not everyone's dish, but the chances are that the reader who likes it will like it very much indeed." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p6 Jl 25 '43 440w

"Miss Cowlin has a lively imagination, but she should watch this in dealing with character; her twin-brothers are far too whimsical, in consequence they weaken the first half of the book considerably, giving it the unsubstantial quality of a fairy tale." John Hampson
Spec 169:486 N 20 '42 210w

"The writing, despite occasional marks of amateurishness, is vivid and graphic, and if the development of Alexandra's character had been on more attractive lines, 'Winter Solstice' might have made an original and fascinating story. As it is, we are left with the feeling that our natural desire for her recovery has not been justifiably satisfied."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p545 N 7 '42 300w

"Dorothy Cowlin's novel does not strive for the texture of reality, but it is oddly fascinating in its psychological unfolding. . . The story is concerned with happenings of only a decade ago, but it gives the impression of being something from the dim past, largely because of the incredible twin brothers, Peter and Sam Gollen." George Conrad
+ — Weekly Book Review p8 Ag 8 '43 600w

COXE, GEORGE HARMON. Alias the dead. 239p $2 Knopf 43-347

Detective story.

Booklist 39:294 Mr 15 '43

"Mr. Coxe's many fans will find matter for jubilation in this characteristic offering complete with new and improved hero." Will Cuppy
+ Books p20 Ja 17 '43 200w

"Good."
+ Boston Globe p19 Ja 27 '43 50w

"Mr. Coxe's swiftly paced narrative style leaves nothing to be desired in a story that is replete with excitement and surprise." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 31 '43 180w

"An intricate plot, deftly handled."
+ New Yorker 18:64 Ja 30 '43 50w

"First class."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 F 6 '43 40w

Reviewed by Baron Ireland
— Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 24 '43 200w

COXE, GEORGE HARMON. Murder for two. 238p $2 Knopf 43-7383

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p6 Jl 18 '43 180w
Booklist 40:15 S '43

"'Murder for Two' deserves a high rating for puzzlement and for its sizzling narrative style." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p8 Je 20 '43 120w

"Tops."
Sat R of Lit 26:17 Jl 3 '43 30w
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 13 '43 160w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 Je 20 '43 270w

COXE, GEORGE HARMON. Murder in Havana. 242p $2 Knopf 43-13008

Detective story.

"You put down the book realizing that Coxe is an old maestro who can be counted on for a good time. Havana is the locale and gorgeous temptresses are present in appropriate number." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p9 O 10 '43 120w
Booklist 40:95 N 15 '43

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p14 O 17 '43 120w

"A good, fast mystery, with more than its quota of lovely ladies and tall drinks."
+ New Yorker 19:88 O 16 '43 50w

"Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:15 O 9 '43 40w
Time 42:104 N 1 '43 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p22 O 10 '43 250w

COYLE, MRS KATHLEEN. Magical realm. 314p $3 Dutton

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 43-1089

Memories of the author's childhood in County Derry, Ireland, in which she, as the central character, receives the impressions, as if by indirection, and draws from these impressions a portrait of her remarkable family.

Bookmark 4:16 Mr '43

"For all its wealth of intimate life-size figures this book is not simply the story of a family. It is the account of a beginning, an intimate report of a condition that is pure and wild and unmixed. We see with true eyes and feel with the fulness of being until the moment comes that thrusts us out of that single land. Yet even while we are still within it our ultimate course is set. We are living in that hour which, as AE once said of it, is 'thronged with fate.' Kathleen Coyle's book has this quality of fatefulness, a sense of seed sown and growing to its inevitable flower." Pamela Travers
+ Books p5 Ja 17 '43 1400w

"The book has a quality not unlike its title. One is given the feeling of an ancient land that holds its own secrets, and the story of the gardener's wife who had moved her cottage because one of the 'Little People' had come and asked her, seems not at all improbable. Miss Coyle has made a seven league leap since her novel Immortal Ease. To me she is far better in the interpretation than the creation of character. I wish she would experiment again with biography." E. V. Wyatt
+ Cath World 157:103 Ap '43 650w

Reviewed by J. K. Paulding
Commonweal 37:523 Mr 12 '43 700w

"Recommended for its irresistible charm, many hauntingly beautiful passages, and again because it gives fine picture of Irish life that is neither of foxhunting gentry nor the much-begrimed poor." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 68:33 Ja 1 '43 70w

"'The Magical Realm' has the subtlety and eerie resonant power of a beautifully written novel. It has even a novel's pattern, with a story which is disclosed bit by bit until a climax of event and significance is seen. And in its residual emphasis alike on diversity and persistence it has a novel's wise and supremely adult theme." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p4 Ja 17 '43 1200w

"Mrs. Coyle gives us lots of fine character work and some of her best lyrical writing, but the book fades out into scraps of local history."
+ — New Yorker 18:59 Ja 23 '43 60w

"'The Magical Realm' is an exquisite and subtle book. But it is not precious. It is too vital for that. Its sensitive prose is perfectly attuned to its subject. It could have been written only by one who had grown up in Ireland, one who is a poet no less than an accomplished novelist." M. S. Ulrich
+ Sat R of Lit 26:16 F 27 '43 550w

Reviewed by Jessica Potter
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 31 '43 650w
Wis Lib Bul 39:72 My '43

COZZENS, JAMES GOULD. The just and the unjust. 434p $2.50 Harcourt [9s 6d Cape, J] 42-17992

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"This is one of the best legal novels the reviewer has ever read, and he is not given to superlatives... The strength of this book lies not in particular scenes but in the cumulative effect of the long succession of events and conversations, none of them especially exciting. When the reader reaches the last page, he has been given the best account I know of the daily life of ordinary lawyers." Zechariah Chafee, Jr.
+ Harvard Law R 56:833 Mr '43 1800w

"Mr. Cozzens evidently knows his forensic stuff through and through, and obviously has pondered long and to some purpose on the legal aspects of democracy, but his over-deliberate manner of presentation tends to dissipate our interest in his carefully drawn characters." Wilfrid Gibson
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 16 '43 80w

"It would not have harmed this grave, wise book if we had been allowed to feel more certain of the senses and of the heart of the young man. Yet somehow, though they go unproved, we believe in them—as we believe and rejoice in the differentiated philosophies of the three local judges, Abner's father and two others, whose talk of law and of life as viewed by the legally trained form an unusual adornment in a book which, taken as a whole, is wise, instructive and distinguished." Kate O'Brien
+ Spec 170:368 Ap 16 '43 600w

"The story of this trial might well take an intelligent European, as an American critic has put it, into the heart of everyday America. The style has no special distinction, but the characteristic verbal humour of to-day's serious American novel is not lacking and shrewdness in psychological observation is frequently touched with depth."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p185 Ap 17 '43 700w

CRABB, ALFRED LELAND. Supper at the Maxwell house; a novel of recaptured Nashville. 372p $2.50 Bobbs
43-9420

A novel of Reconstruction days in Nashville. One of the high points of the story is the first supper at the newly opened Maxwell House, September 22, 1869.

"Crabb has done an excellent job with his fascinating material. He has produced a book that is well worth reading both from an enjoyment standpoint and from an historical standpoint." Patricia Smith
+ Book Week p6 Je 27 '43 600w

Booklist 39:463 Jl 15 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '43

Reviewed by D. R. Starie
Library J 68:530 Je 15 '43 90w

"The author's love of his adopted city shines through every description. He is at his best in the story of the ministers who brought their choirs and lustily sang down the auctioneer, so that the homes of imprisoned men could not be sold that day. And he makes you wish you could have attended that first magnificent evening, on Sept. 22, 1869, when the dining room doors of the Maxwell House swung open and Uncle Jeff announced with mellow dignity, 'Suppah is served.'" Lorine Pruette
+ N Y Times p4 Jl 11 '43 650w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 27 '43 330w

"Mr. Crabb knows his South and his Southerners and he portrays them excellently. Similarly, he does a notable job of characterization with the men and women who, though Yankee in background, were as concerned with the task of reconstruction as the people rooted in the South. There is an interesting glimpse of President Johnson who in a moment of conflict is swayed by the memory of Lincoln's wisdom and mercy. Among the best characters in the book is that of 'the driver,' a man who becomes the deus ex machina in the lives of the Coles." Rose Feld
+ Weekly Book Review p14 Jl 18 '43 750w

Wis Lib Bul 39:109 Jl '43

CRAFFORD, F. S. Jan Smuts. 322p il maps $3.50 Doubleday

B or 92 Smuts, Jan Christiaan 43-15668

Full-length, sympathetic biography of South Africa's prime minister, a man who has served his own country and the world at large as soldier, statesman and philosopher. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Wendell Johnson
Book Week p1 N 7 '43 450w

Booklist 40:92 N 15 '43

Christian Science Monitor p13 Ja 8 '44 700w

Commonweal 39:40 O 29 '43 10w

"This volume is a happy combination of an absorbing subject and a good biographer. It adds up to an unforgettable picture of a modern statesman who prefers books and ideas and lonely walks for meditating and observing inanimate nature to the warmer company of men."
+ Commonweal 39:98 N 12 '43 700w

"Mr. Crafford, like Sarah Millin in her work on Smuts (1937), analyzes severely, only to make the character greater in the end. Style is journalistic. Exhaustive bibliography. Small libraries that have not bought Sarah Millin's two-volumed book will find useful." K. T. Willis
Library J 68:843 O 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
Nation 158:80 Ja 15 '44 300w

New Repub 109:756 N 29 '43 180w

"Mr. Crafford's biography could not be more timely. . . Fred S. Crafford, a South African high school master, tells his enthralling story well. He leaves his reader with the impression that he is not a professional writer, but a man telling the story as he knows it from first-hand contact with an extraordinary personality, and with those who play the less important roles in a drama of world significance." Mildred McNaughton
+ N Y Times p7 O 24 '43 1050w

"A readable, carefully documented, and apparently objective appraisal."
+ New Yorker 19:95 O 30 '43 70w

Reviewed by Alzada Comstock
Springf'd Republican p7e N 7 '43 800w

"Mr. Crafford's Jan Smuts is a portrait with, figuratively speaking, all the warts showing. Americans should read this book for its interesting and honest presentation of South African affairs. It is also biography at a very high level of disinterested reporting." Bruno Lasker
+ Survey G 33:25 Ja '44 220w

"Mr. Crafford's 'Jan Smuts' is the best and most authentic biography yet published in America, and as such is warmly recommended to all students of history and to all others who desire a factual and unbiased portrait of Africa's greatest living statesman." E. C. Van Wyk
+ Weekly Book Review p6 O 31 '43 1400w

CRAFTON, ALLEN, and ROYER, JESSICA (MRS ALLEN CRAFTON). Complete acted play from script to final curtain. 385p il $3.75 Crofts

792 Amateur theatricals 43-9894

For the inexperienced theater director, this book outlines in simple fashion the problems which will have to be met. Partial contents: The theater in the school; The director: preparation; Choice of plays for production; The director and his cast; Interpretation, revision, and the prompt-book; Stage movement; Rehearsals; Dress rehearsals and performance; The body in acting; The voice in acting; Personality, the theater sense, and imagination; Creating the character; Make-up; Scenery: materials and construction; Lighting: functions and equipment; Costuming the play; Suggestions for period costuming; The stage manager and his crew; Business and publicity; A list of books on the acted play. Index.

Booklist 40:55 O 15 '43

"Recommended for all school and the smaller public libraries." George Freedley
+ Library J 68:528 Je 15 '43 100w

"This book is one which no teacher-director can afford to be without. It embraces every phase of play production in a complete and thoroughly practical manner." A. K. Gary
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 19 '43 450w
Wis Lib Bul 39:156 D '43

CRAIG, HOMER VINCENT. Vector and tensor analysis. 434p $3.50 McGraw

517.2 Vector analysis. Calculus of tensors 43-5843

"Provides a fairly rigorous introduction to the extremely important subjects of vector and tensor analysis. The treatment is especially adapted to those who do not have a thorough knowledge of modern advanced calculus. Transformation and invariantive aspects, particularly of vector analysis, are emphasized. The book is intended primarily for those using vector and tensor analysis as a tool. At the same time, the author takes pains to supply the basis of a sound mathematical foundation at the beginning of the book." (Publisher's note) Index.

Book Week p10 My 9 '43 30w

"Definitions are strict and selection of topics is critical. The book can be recommended without reservation to a large audience comprising teacher and student, engineer and physicist." F. C. Nachod
+ Chem & Met Eng 50:193 D '43 190w

Library J 68:476 Je 1 '43 10w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:29 Ap '43

"The book is certainly a useful addition to mathematical literature." Harry Bateman
+ R of Scientific Instruments 14:317 O '43 800w

CRAINE, HENRY C. Teaching athletic skills in physical education; 215 competitive skills activities for 8 sports. 236p $2.75 Inor

371.732 Physical education and training. Athletics. Sports 42-20241

"Through personal interviews and nationwide questionnaires, the writer endeavored to learn the problems that physical-education teachers most frequently face or have faced in teaching athletic skills. The book presents 215

CRAINE, H. C.—Continued
competitive-skills activities for 8 sports." School & Society

"A welcome contribution to the literature of physical education." W. H. Lauritsen
+ El School J 43:311 Ja '43 700w
School & Society 56:88 Jl 25 '42 40w

CRANE, AIMEE, ed. Marines at war; introd. by Robert L. Denig. 128p $3 Hyperion; for sale by Scribner

940.5497 World war, 1939—Art and the war. World war, 1939—Pictorial works. U.S. Marine corps 43-17735

Water colors and drawings made by nineteen artists, one of them a woman, showing the activities of the marines on their way to Guadalcanal, in action there, and at ease, in moments of terror, routine, or relaxation.

"'Marines at War' is a book to cherish. Years from now, when people ask: 'What was it really like in the Solomons during the last war?' no other answer need be given than to hand them this little 128-page book of pencil drawings, pen-and-inks, water-colors and oils. . . These pictures aren't pretty. They are much more than that. They depict truly what war is like, at least that part of it that Lieut. Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, leader of the unconquerable guys on Guadalcanal, termed, in a division order that was a masterpiece of understatement, 'this modest operation.'" Foster Hailey
+ N Y Times p3 N 28 '43 700w

"The detail and immediacy of many of these pictures is fearfully revealing. What strikes one most is the combined air of youthfulness, of expendability and of toughness in the men, the curiously realistic view of the job they are on and their evident understanding of one another." Iris Barry
+ Weekly Book Review p1 D 12 '43 500w

CRANE, ALAN. Gloucester Joe. 30p il $2 Nelson
43-16590

Picture-story book about a small boy who went to Gloucester, Massachusetts, for a first visit, and was shortly as much a part of the town as if he had been born there.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p44 D 5 '43 100w

"Recommended." Margaret Abildgaard
+ Library J 68:1050 D 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 N 28 '43 150w

CRANE, MRS FRANCES (KIRKWOOD). Pink umbrella. 252p $2 Lippincott
43-11951

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p10 Ag 15 '43 140w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 Ag 15 '43 180w

"Abbott's frequent clashes with a baby-faced, steel-willed police lieutenant enliven a tightly plotted, brightly told tale, with an unexpected finish."
+ Time 42:103 S 13 '43 60w

"Frances Crane's fans have been increasing by leaps and bounds since she entered the mystery ranks with 'The Turquoise Shop' a couple of seasons ago. 'The Golden Box' and 'The Yellow Violet' followed through nicely and 'The Pink Umbrella' simply proves that the author is sure-fire." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p20 Ag 15 '43 400w

CRAVEN, THOMAS, ed. Cartoon cavalcade; assisted by Florence and Sydney Weiss. 456p il $3.95 Simon & Schuster

741.5 Caricatures and cartoons. Humor, Pictorial

Collection of American humorous cartoons with brief critical and historical introductory chapters. Contents: Part one: American humor and the new century; Cartoons from 1883 to 1916; Part two: World War I and the impudent decade; Cartoons from 1916 to 1932; Part three: The new deal; Cartoons from 1933 to 1943; Special note: The artists' names, the sources and dates appear at the top of each page of cartoons. Complete key to source abbreviations.

Reviewed by Leo Lerman
Atlantic 173:127 F '44 360w

"Craven's text is often illuminating, though connoisseurs may find his observations and pointing of the turns a little heavy-handed, sententious and banal. There's no denying the cartoons themselves, though."
+ — Book Week p2 D 12 '43 110w
Booklist 40:160 Ja 1 '44

"If a thing is worth doing it's worth doing well. Don't do it if you can't do it well. So by easy stages the perfectionist finds the excuse for inaction. I have heard the proverb put another way, and in its revised form it seems to me still wiser,—if a thing is worth doing it's worth doing badly. 'Cartoon Cavalcade' was worth doing badly. And that is just how it has been done. If everyone concerned with the making of the book had waited until it was well and truly done, we would probably never have had it." Lovell Thompson
Sat R of Lit 27:11 Ja 15 '44 1000w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 5 '43 400w

"There have been many other collections, or 'albums,' of American graphic humor, mostly the collected works of individual artists or individual publications; for variety, and for a balanced glance at what has made us laugh over the years, and why, Mr. Craven's big joke book probably stands ahead of them all. For many tastes, dozens of his selections will seem feeble and even pointless or silly; on the other hand, the most captious and dyspeptic among us is sure to get a decent share of belly laughs—or 'ventral manifestations of mirth,' as some of the experts call it." Stanley Walker
+ Weekly Book Review p1 D 5 '43 1200w

CRAVEN, THOMAS. Story of painting; from cave pictures to modern art. 254p pl $5 Simon & Schuster

750.9 Painting—History. Painters 43-18836

"This is a comprehensive picture beginning some 30,000 or 50,000 years ago with drawings in Spanish caves and ending with better-known painters of today." Library J

Book Week p2 Ja 2 '44 90w

"Iconoclasts and modern artists of distinction may well take furious issue with author's bland 'God's-in-His-Heaven-and-the-disagreement-of-mere-mortals-troubles-me-not-at-all' tone of text. Nevertheless, the one hundred and one pages may prove invaluable as introductory reading for young people or oldsters who need quick brushing up of dimly-remembered figures and achievements in the art world. Many well-chosen illustrations, some in exquisite colors, enhance physical attractiveness of book whose readability is assured by its anecdotal breeziness and excellent print. Recommended for purchase for intermediate and young people's departments, as well as for general collections that need its balancing qualities to supplement detailed and ponderous histories of art." H. S. Taylor
+ — Library J 68:895 N 1 '43 150w

Reviewed by Christopher Lazare
N Y Times p7 Ja 23 '44 230w

"Sooner or later, in the lives of those personally unacquainted with the arts, a special urge to learn about painting is likely to start. . . They want to know what to see in pictures to them as yet invisible; what to feel in the presence of a painting that now leaves them cold. It is surprising what pains they have often taken to search out such information, and from what scattered sources; now, with admirable lucidity and without a trace of condescension, Mr. Craven produces the book for such a beginner, whatever his calendar age may be. In the case of most of its readers this will be the later teens, but it is meant for any beginner, at whatever age he may begin, and will be a family book because, whoever owns it, everyone will read it." M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p4 D 26 '43 650w

CRAWFORD, KENNETH GALE. Report on North Africa. 206p $2 Farrar

940.5361 World war, 1939—Africa, North. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-14803

A Washington reporter, who spent three months in North Africa in the spring of 1943, discusses the political and military situation there. It is his contention that the British-American decision to adopt the lines of military expediency and power politics was the only possible one. Maps on end papers.

Booklist 40:111 D 1 '43

Reviewed by Robert Bendiner
Nation 157:449 O 16 '43 1450w

Reviewed by Jay Allen
New Repub 109:582 O 25 '43 1350w

"Kenneth Crawford did not arrive in North Africa until five months after our troops had landed and three months after the assassination of Admiral Darlan. The reader may therefore find it difficult to accept everything he says at its face value and may even feel that a great deal of this book could have been written from Washington without the bother and expense of a trip overseas. . . Crawford has devoted large portions of his book to excellent facts on the economy of North Africa, facts which came from standard handbooks but are none the less facts and therefore to be prized. . . It is a controversial book." Philip Hamburger

N Y Times p7 O 17 '43 1450w

"You will find this a clear, judicially written, and freshly informed account of what probably happened and why."

+ New Yorker 19:87 O 16 '43 100w

CRAWFORD, MARY MAZEPPA. Student folkways and spending at Indiana university, 1940-1941; a study in consumption. 271p $3.50 Columbia univ. press [17s 6d King]

378.368 Indiana university. Students. Budget, Personal 43-9555

"A study made to determine the patterns of student consumption at Indiana University to see the variations in spending among different groups on the campus, and to discover the social and economic factors responsible for such variations. Incidentally, it presents detailed information about the activities and social usages of campus life." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. V. Coles
J Home Econ 35:592 N '43 280w

School & Society 57:484 Ap 24 '43 50w

"In its sociological aspects the book is a refreshing and generally revealing piece of writing. Although obviously published by a university press as a doctoral thesis, it ought to sell." J. S. Roucek

+ School & Society 57:690 Je 19 '43 280w

"Careful editing would have improved the book and given the reader more confidence in the data reported. . . In spite of such limitations, the book will be of value to administrators and guidance officers at both secondary-school and college levels, as well as to students of consumer spending. There is the question, of course, of the extent to which a study of spending at Indiana University offers a picture which is typical of other institutions. The author expresses the opinion that it 'does offer a cross-section view which is typical of many other institutions' (p. 20). Although this opinion may be correct, it is the reviewer's belief that other studies will have to be made before the 'many other institutions' can be identified." R. T. Gregg

— + School R 51:501 O '43 750w

CREASY, SIR EDWARD SHEPHERD. Fifteen decisive battles of the world; ed, with nine new chapters and 30 maps, by Robert Hammond Murray. new ed 620p $3 Military service

904 Battles 43-16449

"The new edition is welcome not only as a reintroduction to a book of permanent value but because the editor has wielded critical scissors, excising many of Creasy's discussions or comments which are of no current importance as well as his innumerable footnotes and Latin and Greek tags, which detract from the otherwise smooth-flowing narrative. In addition, portions of James Anthony Froude's spirited story of the Armada have replaced the none too accurate account which Creasy borrowed from Hakluyt. Nine new battles have been added: Tenochtitlan, Quebec, Ayacucho, Gettysburg, Vicksburg, Sadowa, Gravelotte, Sedan and Mukden." Weekly Book Review

"Military literature is fast entering the realm of public reading. Throughout history we note how the interests of many states are involved in the collision between the few. I might add that out of that principle have evolved wars of world sweep, as distance grows shorter. So this powerful work—most ably edited and amplified by Robert Murray—is of prime interest to all who like to grope in the darkened corridors of history. It belongs rightly to that category, but strange as it may seem, if you want action I recommend this book, a thriller from cover to cover." Murray Harris

+ N Y Times p5 D 19 '43 600w

"It is, of course, our intense interest in today's war that has made a new edition of Creasy especially desirable. Creasy enabled the lay reader, through his dramatic simplification of military events, to grasp how battles were fought as well as what their long-term results have been. Mr. Murray, in extending Creasy's work through another century, is successful in doing the same thing, though his somewhat less sober style does offer a contrast." J. I. Greene

+ Sat R of Lit 27:21 Ja 22 '44 700w

+ Weekly Book Review p12 N 28 '43 250w

CRIPPEN, LEE FORBES. Simon Cameron; ante-bellum years. (Men of America ser) 318p $3.50 Miss. Valley press

B or 92 Cameron, Simon 42-50477

Simon Cameron was a Pennsylvania politician and financier, who served as secretary of war in Lincoln's first Cabinet. This biography covers his early life to 1861. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by A. H. Meneely
Am Hist R 48:815 Jl '43 550w

"This study of Cameron is but a portion of a larger work. It unfortunately explains little. Its author is not curious as to causation. There is no clear and sufficient account of Cameron's political technique or the source of his power. Doubtful episodes in Cameron's career are not cleared up, nor does the meat in the sources seem to have been fully devoured. The most important and controversial years of his career are not considered. The story of Simon Cameron—and it is a difficult story to unravel—has yet to be told." R. F. Nichols

Ann Am Acad 227:184 My '43 400w

"It was high time for a biography of Simon Cameron to appear, and this one which comes from the Mississippi Press is fortunate in the writer of it. It is an excellent piece of research work, revealing wide background knowledge of American history of the period, and it is impartial and free from prejudice. The book is not marked by distinction of style, but it is a good readable narrative." R. M. Jones

+ Weekly Book Review p20 F 14 '43 800w

CRISS, MILDRED (MRS G. L. CATLIN). Pocahontas, young American princess; il. by Marc Simont. 286p $2.50 Dodd

B or 92 Pocahontas—Juvenile literature
43-7356

Story of Pocahontas, John Smith, and John Rolfe, told for older girls. Woven into the biography is also the supposed story of Virginia Dare, the first white child born of English parents in America. Bibliography.

Reviewed by Cynthia Cline
Book Week p10 Ag 1 '43 220w

"This is a somewhat dull biography with too many long Indian names."
— Cath World 158:318 D '43 10w

Reviewed by Maude Adams
Library J 68:577 Jl '43 120w

"Written in a lively and picturesque style, and, though in the main true to history, includes some of the legends and controversial incidents as well. . . The author has evidently done considerable research and is familiar with her subject. . . There are perhaps too many jaw-breaking Indian names sprinkled over the pages, but perhaps young readers will enjoy these and find that they add color to the story." Stanley Vestal
Sat R of Lit 26:31 Je 19 '43 350w

"A swift, romantic tale." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p16 My 23 '43 400w

Wis Lib Bul 39:112 Jl '43

CROFTS, FREEMAN WILLS. Double tragedy. [Eng title: Affair at Little Wokeham]. 289p $2 Dodd [8s 6d Hodder] 43-11955

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p6 Ag 29 '43 300w

Booklist 40:60 O 15 '43

"It is a triumph of honest, painstaking and legitimate detective work." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p8 Ag 22 '43 120w

"No surprises in this, but the Inspector's admirers don't seem to expect or want them anyhow. Very good, in its leisurely way."
+ New Yorker 19:68 Ag 21 '43 80w

"Customarily well thought out exercise in deduction and clue chasing with visible criminal frantically trying to elude inexorable sleuth. Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:21 Ag 14 '43 40w

Time 42:103 S 13 '43 50w

"If the author's aim were to get as close as possible to the ordinariness of every day he has succeeded. Those who like fiction for its own sake ought to be satisfied. The 'factual' mind will ask why, if Mr. Crofts likes this style, he does not write about an actual murder."
Times [London] Lit Sup p576 N 27 '43 110w

"We won't say that Mr. Crofts's use of the known-murderer device, borrowed, we believe from R. Austin Freeman, is as effective as it might have been in the hands of that superior author, but it will serve nicely for those who crave old-fashioned snooping and what is known in the mystery trade as fundamental brainwork." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 Ag 22 '43 410w

CROHN, BURRILL BERNARD. Understand your ulcer; a manual for the ulcer patient. 199p il pl $2.50 Sheridan

616.33 Stomach—Ulcers. Duodenum—Ulcer
43-1954

Manual for ulcer patients, describing causes, symptoms, complications, and treatment. The author, an associate in medicine at Mount Sinai hospital and Columbia university, stresses the fact that the book is not a substitute for a doctor. Index.

"The book devotes too much space to the details of symptoms, complications, treatment, both medical and surgical, including illustrations of operations and surgical devices. Overemphasis is placed upon the lack of specific cause of ulcers and the divergence of opinion among medical men as to treatment. This helps neither the patient nor the profession. One wishes that more attention had been given to the hygiene of the digestive tract and an effort to provide mental hygiene guides for the patient." W. H. Brown
— Am J Pub Health 33:1014 Ag '43 180w

Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 2 '43 330w

CRONBACH, LEE JOSEPH. Exploring the wartime morale of high-school youth. 79p pa $1.25 Stanford univ. press

301.1522 Morale. Students. World war, 1939 —Public opinion
43-6603

"In summation this study demonstrates the facts that (1) the outlook of youth on war leaves much to be desired; (2) it will be profitable in the future to devote more attention to individual differences in morale; (3) many of the morale problems revealed here should be of great concern to the school and other agencies interested in preparing youth for life. There is no theory at present that can be accepted as explaining what causes morale and how it may be improved. The findings here suggest many specific approaches which may be valuable for morale-building and, it is hoped, provide bases for further research which will be of both theoretical and social importance." School & Society

Reviewed by C. A. Anderson
Am Soc R 8:615 O '43 380w

School & Society 57:448 Ap 17 '43 130w

CROSBY, LEE, pseud. See Torrey, W.

CROSBY, SUMNER MCKNIGHT. Abbey of St Denis, 475-1122. v 1 211p il pl $7 Yale univ. press [31s 6d Oxford]

726.7 St Denis (abbey) (A42-4224)

"A volume on the early history of the Abbey of St.-Denis. . . Among all the monuments of Christian architecture in France, St.-Denis holds, of course, a particularly important place both because of its long and close connection with the French monarchy and because, through successive building and rebuilding, it constitutes a kind of epitome of French architecture for many different periods and styles. The present volume is but the first of a series of three which Mr. Crosby plans to devote to the Abbey church and its history, and covers only the period from about 475 to 1122, the year in which the famous Suger was elected abbot. The rebuilding of the Abbey church by Suger is to be discussed in the second volume, while the third will be devoted to the thirteenth century rebuilding of Suger's church." Am Hist R

"The volume is a careful and reasonable study of a relatively little-known and confusing period in the history of architecture. Because it was in this period that the formation of medieval style really began in France, Mr. Crosby's book cannot be neglected by those interested in the Carolingian period or in the general history of early medieval architecture in Western Europe." D. D. Egbert
Am Hist R 48:546 Ap '43 1100w

"Only technical students of architecture and of the history of art will get the full benefit of the author's meticulous researches and his careful drawings of plans and architectural details, but no person interested in medieval history can be indifferent to the story of this notable building." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 59:910 Jl 22 '42 260w

CROSS, WILBUR LUCIUS. Connecticut Yankee. 428p $5 Yale univ. press

B or 92 A43-2896

"This is the tale of Uncle Toby, otherwise known as Professor Wilbur L. Cross, former dean of the Graduate School at Yale University, editor of 'The Yale Review,' author of definitive lives of Laurence Sterne and Henry Fielding and four times Governor of Connecticut. Almost exactly one-half his book is concerned with the 1930-'40 decade, after Uncle Toby had been retired from Yale at sixty-eight, presumably as too old for academic service. All he did after that was to run the State of Connecticut for eight years during depression, flood and hurricane, and make a vigorous campaign for a fifth term at the age of seventy-six." (Weekly Book Review) Index.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 172:133 D '43 650w

"This is one of the most unadorned autobiographies ever written by an American scholar. It is delightfully free from illusion and pretense. But it has a magic of its own, and will send many readers to their copies of 'A Sentimental Journey' and 'Tom Jones.' Particularly it will rewaken interest in William Graham Sumner, one of the best minds America has produced." Sterling North
+ Book Week p2 O 17 '43 380w

Booklist 40:77 N 1 '43

Reviewed by J. J. Reilly
Cath World 158:309 D '43 550w

Christian Century 60:1271 N 3 '43 230w

"New England libraries of all sizes will buy this contribution to history of the region. Libraries right away across the country will buy it because it is the straightforward story of a good American. It has honesty and quiet humor. Connecticut Yankee is not brilliantly written. Wilbur Cross minimizes his abilities as teacher, editor, and governor, but he cannot cover his remarkable career, however modest he may be. Excellent book for the youth of the nation to take a look at." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 68:723 S 15 '43 80w

"'Connecticut Yankee' is a book to be remembered, for the example it gives of a purpose tenaciously held and finally accomplished after a long series of disappointments." Odell Shepard
+ Nation 157:444 O 16 '43 1400w

Reviewed by LeRoy Makepeace
New Eng Q 16:655 D '43 1400

Reviewed by Silas Bent
New Repub 109:660 N 8 '43 700w

"Whoever reads 'Connecticut Yankee' with understanding need never despair. Lest this sound too formidable, let it at once be added that readers who may not care to face the political issues involved cannot possibly save themselves from having a good time. For this is, by heck! the real thing, a full and truthful report by a man who maintained peace with himself and the world while he kept everlastingly busy doing what he wanted to do." H. M. Ayres
+ N Y Times p6 O 17 '43 1400w

"Free-flowing and witty, with a good, pithy turn of phrase, and one of the pleasantest autobiographies of the season. Even so, unless you happen to be a pious Yale man, you may find the chapters on college matters rather heavy going."
+ — New Yorker 19:95 O 23 '43 90w

"The ending of this stalwart and amusing autobiography is mellow, and we can be eternally grateful that the ex-Governor has set on the final page his last Thanksgiving Proclamation, for it is a beautiful piece of prose." W. R. Benét
+ Sat R of Lit 26:21 O 16 '43 1000w

"It is one of the best of all portrayals of New England life and character. It includes not only those things which go on behind closed doors when politicians lock horns but the things which go on behind doors that are also closed when faculty meetings are held and college professors, often the keenest politicians themselves, lock their horns over matters of educational policy, administrative control or even personal preferment. . . There are innumerable choice bits and allusions which, with the style of a master craftsman, make 'Connecticut Yankee' easy and delightful reading." R. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 17 '43 1050w

Reviewed by Beulah Amidon
Survey G 32:512 D '43 500w

Time 42:98 N 1 '43 1250w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
+ Weekly Book Review p1 O 17 '43 2100w

Wis Lib Bul 39:158 D '43

Reviewed by J. T. Adams
Yale R n s 33:346 winter '44 1150w

CROUSE, WILLIAM HARRY. Automotive electrical equipment; its operation and maintenance. 232p il $2 McGraw

629.25 Automobiles—Electric equipment
42-23958

"The author explains the theory of operation, maintenance procedures, checks and adjustments, of the electrical units used on passenger cars, trucks, and buses. The purpose of the book is to enable the student to test, adjust, or repair all types of motor vehicle electrical units. The book is based on a series of lectures delivered by the author to instructors in Army schools." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 39:219 F 1 '43

Library J 67:952 N 1 '42 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:4 Ja '43

CROW, CARL. The great American customer. 252p $3 Harper

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions. U.S.—Social life and customs 43-15912

"This is a stirring story of those entrepreneurs who made the American Customer out of a frontiersman, dirt farmer, hunter, trapper, etc., by manufacturing the things he needed, or could be taught to want. The list of individuals and their accomplishments is as long as one's arm; the problems and difficulties they had to overcome through lack of skills, materials and even knowledge of what they were working toward is something to make the eyes pop. It is one thing for a man to lift himself by his own bootstraps, and quite another to begin by making the bootstraps themselves out of nothing at all. Yet that is what the first American manufacturers did." Book Week

---

"Carl Crow is an old and skilled hand at the kind of innocent oversimplification with which this book abounds, and though it reads like a Horatio Alger tale two and a half centuries long, with the ruggedly individualistic American Businessman as the apple-cheeked hero, you do not get too restless. . . In 'The Great American Customer,' which is a tribute to the great American manufacturer and salesman, the great American worker is somehow overlooked." Leo Kennedy
+ — Book Week p17 N 14 '43 420w

Booklist 40:157 Ja 1 '44

"Recommended." Walter Hausdorfer
+ Library J 68:723 S 15 '43 110w

"Mr. Crow is principally concerned with the origins of our industries. He tells little of their later development which, in a way, is too bad. Absorbing as his material is, it is sadly incomplete. He writes as if he had become rather tired of his subject." Stanley Walker
+ — Weekly Book Review p14 N 7 '43 900w

Wis Lib Bul 40:6 Ja '44

CROW, LESTER DONALD, and CROW, MRS ALICE (VON BAUER). Mental hygiene in school and home life; for teachers, supervisors, and parents. 474p $3 McGraw

131.3 Mental hygiene
42-24176

"This book attempts to present in practical form the principles of hygienic adjustments to life. Its basic conception is that personality adjustment is not an accident. Consequently educational institutions have a genuine and direct responsibility for seeing to it that the major factors of the educative process are organized and operated in such fashion that the principles of mental hygiene may be brought to bear on youth day in and day out, in school and out of school." (El School J) Indexes.

CROW, L. D.—Continued

"The authors have presented a book of some merit. It summarizes effectively certain accepted ideas in the mental-hygiene approach to human behavior. The book is well written and should be useful for orientation in elementary classes in education provided there is liberal supplementation by more detailed treatment. The book can be commended also for its stimulating questions at the ends of the chapters, for its selection of references to supplementary reading, and for its detailed subject and author indexes." J. A. Humphreys

+ El School J 43:558 My '43 800w

School & Society 56:364 O 17 '42 60w

CROWE, SYBIL EYRE. Berlin West African conference, 1884-1885. (Royal empire soc. Imperial studies) 249p il maps $6 (15s) Longmans

967.5 Berlin. Conference, 1884-1885. Africa —Politics 43-1313

"There seems to be a real justification for another book on the Berlin Conference of 1884 and 1885. . . S. E. Crowe has used a wide range of sources and has emphasized the actual negotiations before, in, and during the conference rather than merely the results of the negotiations. The book consists of two parts. The first deals with the preliminary negotiations. In this section the author stresses the Anglo-Portuguese negotiations which failed, the Anglo-German estrangement which arose as a result of the friction over German annexation of its West African colony, the creation of a Franco-German entente for a short period, and the rôle of King Leopold of the Belgians. The second part of the book treats the negotiations that took place within and during the Conference. In this section the author stresses the fact that the assembly of the Powers was a West African rather than an African conference, that Bismarck made many blunders during the conference, that the success of King Leopold was due to the support of Bismarck, and that the conference was really a triumph for Great Britain." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by Francis Williamson
Am Hist R 48:787 Jl '43 420w

Reviewed by C. P. Higby
Am Pol Sci R 37:376 Ap '43 230w

Reviewed by A. N. Cook
Pol Sci Q 58:474 S '43 440w

"In general, the book will appeal rather to serious students of history, for whom it will have a special value as a thoroughly scholarly work based on wide research and written in the spirit of scientific detachment. It is supplemented by thirteen appendices, an elaborate note on the sources, and a very useful bibliography."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p262 My 29 '43 650w

CROWTHER, SAMUEL. Time to inquire. 353p $2.75 Day

330.973 U.S.—Economic policy. Industry and state—U.S. U.S.—Politics and government—20th century 42-24020

A study of economic conditions and policies of the last decade or so. The author's purpose is to discover how "we can restore the freedom, opportunity and dignity of the average man."

"Mr. Crowther's exposition is admirably adapted for preliminary study of economic mechanics. Readers when they have mastered its elements can draw their own conclusions. This reviewer highly recommends it for that purpose." T. F. Woodlock

+ — Cath World 156:752 Mr '43 800w

Reviewed by S. B. Barnes
Christian Century 60:15 Ja 6 '43 850w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:574 Ap '43 30w

"The system of private enterprise, the cause of which Mr. Crowther champions, deserves a better case." Nathan Reich

— Weekly Book Review p14 Ag 22 '43 480w

CROY, HOMER. Country cured. 282p $3 Harper

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 43-14871

Autobiography of an American writer, covering the years from a childhood in the 80s on a Missouri farm, thru college and early career as a journalist, to success as a novelist and Hollywood writer.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 O 10 '43 320w

Booklist 40:77 N 1 '43

"The farm, which makes so sound a core for the book, is probably typical of many farms in the Middle West, and a book about it will undoubtedly find readers whose memories are much like Homer Croy's."

Christian Science Monitor p15 D 4 '43 700w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

"Nostalgic book for lovers of stories about period following covered-wagon days, and for those who enjoy modern reminiscences of persons and things with a bit of philosophy on the side." M. E. Clark

Library J 68:665 S 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
New Repub 109:593 O 25 '43 270w

Reviewed by Phil Stong
N Y Times p34 O 31 '43 750w

"The author's troubles as an author are pretty much the usual thing, but his detailed, affectionate rendering of Corn Belt life in the eighteen-eighties and nineties is good stuff."

+ New Yorker 19:99 O 9 '43 80w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p16 O 10 '43 700w

Wis Lib Bul 39:143 N '43

CRUM, WILLIAM LEONARD; FENNELLY, JOHN FAUNTLEROY, and SELTZER, LAWRENCE HOWARD. Fiscal planning for total war. 358p $3 Nat. bur. of economic research

336.73 Finance—U.S. War—Economic aspects. World war, 1939—Finance 42-22247

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"The book is rich in content and is carefully annotated. Unquestionably it is the best treatise on war finance that has yet appeared in this country. It should be read by every student of the subject." Paul Studenski

+ Ann Am Acad 227:175 My '43 1000w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:582 Ap '43 10w

Reviewed by G. J. Stigler
J Pol Econ 51:77 F '43 1350w

"The reader will not find all of his thinking done for him, but he will see here the bold outline of a program of war financing, the gaps in which he may fill in himself if he has the mind. The study is a thoughtful product of scholarship which should provoke wide discussion." A. G. Buehler

+ Pol Sci Q 58:111 Mr '43 600w

CUGLE, CHARLES HURST. Practical navigation. new ed 736p $7 Dutton

527 Navigation 43-6736

"Consists mainly of problems, with a minimum of theory. This fifth edition, expanded by some 170 pages, has been largely rewritten and brought up to date by Lieutenant Commander Stephens, of the U. S. Coast Guard. A new chapter on Time has been added, and all the problems reworked according to recent changes in solution procedure." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 68:476 Je 1 '43 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:31 Ap '43

Special Libraries 34:386 S '43

CULBERTSON, ELY. Summary of the world federation plan; an outline of a practical and detailed plan for world settlement; sponsored by the World federation, incorporated. 64p $1; pa 25c Garden City pub. co.

321.041 International cooperation. Reconstruction (1939-) (W) 43-51095

"Concrete and specific proposals for a positive peace inclusive of all nations and peoples. Part of the plan is to establish now a positive ideal to fight for. The plan is carefully worked out, with diagrams to explain proposed organizations. A summary has appeared in Reader's Digest. This is preliminary to a fuller analysis and explanation to be published later." Booklist

Reviewed by H. L. Katzander
Book Week p1 My 9 '43 650w

Booklist 39:329 Ap 15 '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:154 O '43 80w

"The time has not come, and I trust will never come, for such a symmetrical scheme as Culbertson's—so well thought out that, if you were to tamper with any of its parts, the whole would cease to function. I for one would feel like monkeying with every bit of this fearful and wonderful mechanism. It is a thing of checks and balances: that is to say it is based on the ideas of diffidence and fear. . . . In spite of his cosmopolitan upbringing, Culbertson is deficient in the true international spirit. He exaggerates—here again he is with the majority—the potency of nationalism. . . These reservations do not destroy my sincere admiration for Culbertson's effort—its fine spirit, its incredible ingenuity, the boldness of many proposals. As a challenge, as a syllabus for animated discussion, it is of the highest value. As a definite scheme, it is thoroughly and irremediably unrealistic." Albert Guerard
+ — New Repub 108:865 Je 28 '43 600w

Reviewed by Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 19:86 Ap 10 '43 160w

"The Culbertson plan was first circulated among several hundred experts and publicists last year. It received a continental hearing through a description of it in the February Reader's Digest. Now this and the forthcoming larger book will make it widely available for study. It is worth studying, and even if some supporters root for it with too-blind zeal it should be a potent educational force."
Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 27 '43 850w

CULBERTSON, ELY. Total peace; what makes wars and how to organize peace. 344p maps $2.50 Doubleday

321.041 International cooperation. Reconstruction (1939-) 43-17521

"This book deals essentially with the problems of world settlement after this war. It is written not from the standpoint of winning the war but from the standpoint of winning the peace. . . [It] is more than a mere elaboration and improvement of the Summary of the World Federation Plan. Although a modern plan for collective defense and an international police force is the main purpose of this book, many chapters present new principles of United States foreign policy." Pref.

Booklist 40:157 Ja 1 '44

Reviewed by W. M. Horton
Christian Century 61:144 F 2 '44 1200w

Reviewed by Carlyle Morgan
Christian Science Monitor p16 D 15 '43 360w

"The second part of Ely Culbertson's book on 'Total Peace' expounds his World Federation Plan, which has been discussed in these columns. On third reading, it strikes me as more preposterous than ever: so marvelously intricate that it cannot be altered without collapsing, based on a vast array of facts which are not so, and on a set of ideas which would do credit to Homer Lea, Haushofer, Mackinder and Clare Boothe Luce. But the first part is interesting, because it explains how Culbertson got that way." Albert Guérard
New Repub 109:922 D 27 '43 480w

"Dubious assumptions, precise mathematical formulas in human relations and mechanical action controlled by neat rules of the game should not be permitted to obscure the bold imagination, brilliant analyses and original ideas abounding in this book, and from which much may be gleaned." G. H. E. Smith
+ — N Y Times p12 D 19 '43 750w

"You may object to some of the author's hypotheses, but the book deserves your sharp and earnest attention. Plainly written."
+ New Yorker 19:96 D 18 '43 120w

"If ten educated people were wrecked on a desert island and had no book but this single one to read and to discuss, there is enough controversial matter in it to keep the ten discussing it for ten years, and even then to be in fundamental disagreement at the end of the decade." Norman Angell
Sat R of Lit 26:5 D 11 '43 450w

Reviewed by Emmet Crozier
Weekly Book Review p7 D 12 '43 1050w

CULLITON, JAMES WILLIAM. Make or buy. 130p pa $1.50 Harvard univ. Bur. of business research

658.01 Buying. Efficiency, Industrial 43-2980

"Here is a blueprint of the questions to be raised and answered by a prime contractor before arriving at a decision whether to manufacture or buy materials, accessory equipment, fabricating parts, and supplies." Management R

"This work is extremely well organized. It is concise and yet offers a wealth of case material. Although it is based upon the experience of a number of industrial firms prior to the war, it appears that the analytical approach used in this study could well be adapted to the current problem of subcontracting. It should be of interest not only to the teacher of business management but to management itself, with whom rests the decision of whether to make or to buy." C. N. Davisson
+ J Pol Econ 51:475 O '43 550w

Management R 32:83 F '43 30w

CUNEO, JOHN R. Winged Mars; v. 1, The German air weapon, 1870-1914. 338p il $2.50 Military service

623.74 Aeronautics, Military (42-50171)

"Portrays the development of aircraft as a military weapon in the years preceding the first World War. In this, the first volume of a projected three-volume history, the author focuses attention on developments in Germany from 1870 to 1914 while giving a general outline of military aeronautics in France and England during the same period." N Y New Tech Bks

"The reviewer would raise a few minor questions about details here and there—e.g., the date of the Battle of Fleurus; the variants in the spelling of the name of the German aeronaut, von Tschudi; the spelling of weltkrieg; and occasional uncertainties in grammar. None of these points, however, should be allowed to detract from the solid merit of the book. It is the best volume of its kind which has yet appeared in the English language, and the thoroughness and objectivity with which the author has discharged his task are a credit to himself and to American scholarship." J. D. Squires
+ Am Hist R 48:858 Jl '43 400w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:4 Ja '43

CUNNINGHAM, ALBERT BENJAMIN. Affair at the boat landing. 254p $2 Dutton 43-982

Detective story.

Booklist 39:294 Mr 15 '43

"Grade A story. . . This story is splendidly furnished with Deer Lick scenery and such fearsome fauna as Big Nig, Bo Strange, Paul Kapp, Ord Lamb and Old Ham Nolen, also more killing and the kind of color you seldom

CUNNINGHAM, A. B.—Continued
meet in the detective business. It's plumb full of Professor Cunningham's many merits, his best to date." Will Cuppy
+ Books p15 Ja 31 '43 250w

"Mr. Cunningham's narrative moves at a leisurely pace and has a woodsy flavor that makes pleasant reading for those whose mental horizons are not bounded by brick and cement walls." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 31 '43 180w

"Rewarding."
Sat R of Lit 26:19 F 13 '43 40w

"'The Affair at the Boat Landing' is tops in atmosphere, characterization and deduction."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 7 '43 100w
Time 41:84 Mr 1 '43 30w

CUNNINGHAM, ALBERT BENJAMIN. Great Yant mystery. 252p $2 Dutton 43-9100

Detective story.

"Roden, with complete deliberation and pauses to contemplate nature, finally solves the mystery and apprehends the guilty person. The whole thing is as deliberate as Roden—and as likable, which is saying a lot." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p9 Ag 1 '43 90w
Booklist 40:15 S '43

"Like all the other Jesse Roden stories, this one is well plotted and has a pleasing backwoods atmosphere."
+ N Y Times p6 Jl 11 '43 100w

"Superb local color in this fine story of murder in backwoods America."
+ New Yorker 19:64 Jl 3 '43 70w

"Rather stern stuff."
Sat R of Lit 26:17 Jl 3 '43 40w

"One of the best stories A. B. Cunningham has even turned out, and no admirer of Sheriff Jesse Roden can afford to miss it. . . Like all Mr Cunningham's stories about the sheriff from Deer Lick, 'The Great Yant Mystery' abounds in local color and 'atmosphere.' Furthermore, it's an excellent story, with a very surprising but perfectly logical conclusion. It should create more Cunningham fans." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 11 '43 130w

"Here's a strictly Grade A offering, serious, eloquent, atmospheric and then some." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p9 Jl 4 '43 430w

CUNNINGHAM, FRANK. Sky master, the story of Donald Douglas. 321p $3 Dorrance
B or 92 Douglas, Donald Wills 43-11116

"This biography of Donald Douglas, of Douglas Aircraft Company, is really a story of the development of the airplane from its earliest days." Library J

"'Sky Master' has exactly 100 illustrations, but no index. The author is completely uncritical about Douglas and his firm, but obviously writes out of a long and close acquaintance with them. Unfortunately, Cunningham is as awkward a user of the language as one will find in a five-mile shelf of books." W. F. Morse
— + Book Week p11 Ag 1 '43 410w
Christian Century 60:822 Jl 14 '43 70w

"Interestingly written in a popular manner but will probably appeal to a limited audience; nevertheless, it is recommended for public library purchase." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 68:528 Je 15 '43 40w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p8 Ag 6 '43 460w

"This biography of Donald Douglas reads as if it were written by a member of the publicity staff of one of his own bomber plants. Douglas is undeniably one of the great names in aviation, but in 'Sky Master' he sounds like 'Frank Merriwell at Yale, or Our Hero on the Forty-yard Line.'"
— Weekly Book Review p15 Ag 22 '43 300w

CURIE, EVE. Journey among warriors. 501p $3.50 Doubleday 940.548144 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, French. World politics
43-51157

In November, 1941, the author, daughter of Pierre and Marie Curie, set out on a trip around the world. Traveling under the auspices of the Herald Tribune Syndicate and the Allied Newspapers, Ltd., she visited Africa, the Near East, Russia, Iran, China, and India. Sometimes her dispatches were sent from the scene of battle, as happened in Africa; but always she tried to meet and understand the people of the countries visited. Index.

"Her book is almost too long for war reading. It could have been cut by a third and would have been better for the editing. But have patience, for with her eloquence and her spirit, Eve Curie is a true ambassador of the France we are fighting to regain."
+ Atlantic 171:125 My '43 550w

"There are many sharp and intelligent observations in the book. I know of no other volume that gives such keen insight into the peoples who are fighting this war. For the modern war library, it is a must book." Ernest von Hartz
+ Book Week p2 My 30 '43 1050w
Booklist 39:384 Je 1 '43
Bookmark 4:12 My '43

Reviewed by Ray McPartlin
Boston Globe p17 My 12 '43 470w
Christian Science Monitor p16 My 26 '43 500w

"'Journey Among Warriors' is long and diffuse, and we were annoyed at having to spend all that time reading it, but the point is, we really felt that we had to read it all. It is that good. Not brilliant, not great, but good: the consistently readable record of a very intelligent, sensitive, charming cosmopolitan who knows Europe thoroughly, has learned to know the English and Americans, and now, since her trip, can tell us a great deal that is valuable about the Russians, Chinese and Indians."
+ Commonweal 38:173 Je 4 '43 650w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:157 O '43 80w

"Unusually delightful and unique account. . . Packed with informative details and with imaginative descriptions of places visited. Heartily recommended." E. M. Olcott
+ Library J 68:326 Ap 15 '43 80w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield
Nation 156:781 My 29 '43 1150w

"Into a single volume of 500 pages, Miss Curie has managed to pack every major battlefront of this war. The result, as the continents file by, is an achievement of brilliant writing and shrewd observation which has not been surpassed by any other reporter. . . To call Miss Curie's book the best one any woman has written on this war is inadequate praise, because never before has the whole panorama of the world at war been so honestly, so skillfully and so beautifully presented." W. L. White
+ N Y Times p1 My 9 '43 1000w

"One of the best jobs of world reporting evoked by the current conflict." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:81 My 8 '43 800w

Reviewed by E. C. Carter
Pacific Affairs 16:371 S '43 550w

"Mlle. Curie is a superb reporter. She has a keen eye for minute physical detail. And she would not be the daughter of Marie Sklodowska if she did not have an open and compassionate heart for human interest. . . She has turned out the most memorable verbal photography of the far-flung camp of Liberty that this reviewer has seen. Memorable too are her interviews with the great and the near-great among United Nations spokesmen." H. E. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 26:7 My 8 '43 1050w

Reviewed by T. W. Lamont
Sat R of Lit 26:10 D 11 '43 1050w

"This book is a complete 'must.' . . One hardly knows whether or not to say the portion of her book dealing with Russia is the most important, for certainly the details of her days in China and India have given us a better understanding of the problems of those countries than we have had heretofore. But the chapters on Russia are invaluable."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:2 My '43 500w

Reviewed by Toby Sagalyn

Springf'd Republican p7e My 16 '43 500w

Time 41:101 Je 7 '43 150w

"Her political assessments are not always sound. The book deserves to be read less for them than for her sparkling descriptions, her sympathy with the strugglers in all lands, and her complete devotion to the task of defeating the enemy."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p554 N 20 '43 1050w

"An engrossing book . . . full of superb reporting and of rich probings into the deeper issues of war and peace." W. L. Shirer

+ Weekly Book Review p1 My 9 '43 2150w

Wis Lib Bul 39:84 Je '43

CURRENT, RICHARD NELSON. Old Thad Stevens; a story of ambition. 344p il $3 Univ. of Wis. press

B or 92 Stevens, Thaddeus 43-52549

"Biography of one of the most important figures of one of the crucial periods of American history—the era of Reconstruction." Nation

"Everything considered, Mr. Current is to be congratulated. The book deserves and should win popularity among the general reading public as well as with the special student and scholar." L. F. Crippen

+ Am Hist R 48:821 Jl '43 500w

Reviewed by R. F. Nichols

Ann Am Acad 227:184 My '43 400w

Booklist 39:445 Jl 1 '43

"There is this to be said for Mr. Current's new study: the facts are all here. If the reader takes the facts and then draws his own conclusions, the results will probably be better than if he accepts Mr. Current's appraisals too uncritically."

Christian Century 60:268 Mr 3 '43 330w

"The political implications of the fight Stevens lost and the economic and social results of the fight he won are carefully brought out, but the man himself, one of the most unattractive figures in our history, does not arouse much personal sympathy even in his biographer."

+ — Nation 156:391 Mr 13 '43 60w

"Although Professor Current has presented nothing strikingly new about this sinister figure, he has sifted the chaff from the wheat and written a thorough and well-balanced account. . . The weaknesses and vices of Stevens are openly though not unfairly recorded. It is only in the matter of his economic motives and his influence in the early wedding of the Republican Party to Big Business, that some may sense an overemphasis." A. R. Foley

+ — Pol Sci Q 58:475 S '43 450w

CURTI, MERLE EUGENE. Growth of American thought. 848p il $5 Harper

917.3 U.S.—Intellectual life. U.S.—Civilization 43-14485

"[This] is an account of the growth of the thought of all the American people from Jamestown to Pearl Harbor, as shaped by the various factors and forces—geographical, economic, social and personal—of American history. It is in fact what Professor Curti intended it to be, 'a social history of American thought.' This means that the work . . . reaches out to include man's thought about the world and himself, about his origin and destiny, about the true, the good and the beautiful. It includes the growth of thought in the fields of technology, natural science, philosophy and theology." (New Repub) Bibliographical note. Index.

Reviewed by Wendell Johnson

Book Week p9 O 3 '43 700w

Booklist 40:92 N 15 '43

"Growth of American Thought exhibits enormous industry, the accumulation and organization of an encyclopedic mass of materials and, in general, excellent judgment in its interpretations and evaluations. Since it covers such a vast variety of data in its more than 800 pages . . . it is scarcely to be expected that specialists will wholly approve the author's selection of details or his generalizations upon them in the fields with which they are most familiar. And the reader who is a specialist in none of them, but would like to get an intelligent acquaintance with all, may have the feeling of being overwhelmed by an embarrassment of riches, or of being afloat with a very small raft on a very wide ocean. . . But without the facts, opinions are of little value. The studious, not the casual, reader will find the book a mine of important materials." W. E. Garrison

+ — Christian Century 60:1505 D 22 '43 330w

"In view of Professor Curti's prestige as one of the ablest of the younger American historians, it was hoped that he would succeed in doing for the entire sweep of American intellectual developments what Gabriel had done so exceedingly well for the period of the nineteenth century. The book itself, now that it is in print, neither fully justifies nor completely disappoints these earlier expectations. . . But with all of its limitations, the book remains a useful one. Its excellent bibliographies, its careful marshaling of evidence, and, above all, its sheer success in bringing together within a single outline a vast array of hitherto unrelated facts render it a valuable contribution to American studies. It is to be regretted only that having carried his investigations thus far Professor Curti chose to stop short of producing that kind of history of which his writings in the past have proved him fully capable." D. F. Bowers

+ — J Philos 40:717 D 23 '43 1700w

"Long, compact, filled with historical and literary allusions, book shows immense amount of research and rich historical knowledge. Author is one of foremost historians in this country. Covers same period as Parrington does but has wider range and gives less-detailed attention to literary figures." Margaret Owen

+ Library J 68:665 S 1 '43 90w

"The publication of 'The Growth of American Thought' is an important event in the history of American scholarship. It is also an important event in the development of American democracy. Not since the appearance of Parrington's 'Main Currents in American Thought' in 1927 has there come from our press a work of comparable significance in the field. And the task which Parrington set for himself was far less ambitious and difficult than that which Curti has undertaken." G. S. Counts

+ New Repub 109:524 O 18 '43 1260w

"This prodigious chronicle and synthesis is itself a part of the record of the American intellect. It shares the strength and weakness of its prototype, for it is essentially an optimistic record. But does the record as here presented justify the implications of the word growth in Mr. Curti's title?. . Mr. Curti has explored more of the record than any save perhaps a dozen Americans, and one is permitted to give him the benefit of the doubt. But it should not be forgotten that it is a doubt." J. P. Boyd

+ — N Y Times p5 O 10 '43 2200w

Discussion by J. M. Gambrill

New Yorker 26:15 D 18 '43 550w

Reviewed by Christian Gauss

Sat R of Lit 26:24 O 30 '43 1500w

School & Society 58:336 O 23 '43 50w

" 'The Growth of American Thought' represents a masterly synthesis of what has been accomplished in intellectual history up to date. This book will undoubtedly be widely read for its panoramic view and understanding of the multiple aspects of American culture; it is safe to predict that it will also act as a spur both to teaching and to further research in this field." I. L. Gordon

+ School & Society 58:476 D 18 '43 750w

"In the midst of glittering generalities and naive hosannas concerning 'the American way of life,' this book comes like a refreshing breeze, with its cool, dispassionate analysis of the real basis for the characteristics that make our nation unique. There is no waving of flags and beating of drums to inflame patriotic

CURTI, M. E.—Continued
ardour; instead, there is an implicit challenge to accept the opportunity afforded by the achievements of the past and make our nation truly great. Most impressive of all, is the demonstration of the vast influence that science has had in determining the intellectual climate and spiritual temper in the United States through the entire history of the republic." A. H. Compton & others
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:1 O '43 1050w
Social Studies 35:94 F '44 30w

"An exciting event is the publication of 'The Growth of American Thought.' This is a tremendous feat of scholarship, comparable in insight to Parrington's 'Main Currents in American Thought' but far more ambitious in design. Scholars will be vicariously exhausted by the sheer bulk of materials digested, from old letters and scientific treatises to recent editorials in the Saturday Evening Post and the jungle prose of Father Divine. But the proof of research is in the reading. Ordinary readers will find fascination as well as rich mines of information and interpretation in this 800-page 'social history.'" Marshall Bragdon
+ Springf'd Republican p6 O 23 '43 850w
Reviewed by Nicholas Roosevelt
Weekly Book Review p18 Ja 23 '44 900w
Wis Lib Bul 39:158 D '43

CURTIN, MRS MARY ALICE (MCKENNA), comp. Pilgrims all. 295p $2.75 Bruce pub.
Short stories—Collections 43-15656

Collection of short stories by contemporary Catholic authors. Contents: To the mountains, by Paul Horgan; The farewell party, by Albert Eisele; The hammer of God, by G. K. Chesterton; Black bread, by Teresa Brom; The mockbeggar, by Sheila Kaye-Smith; A little beaded bag, by Morley Callaghan; The peacemaker, by Enid Dinnis; The man who lashed out, by Hilaire Belloc; One night, by Elizabeth Jordan; The threshing ring, by L. L. Wood; Meager legend, by M. M. Colum; A nun no more, by John Fante; The old lady takes a hand, by August Derleth; Angeline's afternoon, by R. K. Byrns; The lady who was always right, by Paul Claudel; The death of the rich man, by Padraic Colum; The woman hanged twice, by J. A. Hammett; A chance for Mr. Lever, by Graham Greene; The return, by Michael McLaverty; The storyteller, by Frank O'Connor; The hand of the master, by Alfred Noyes; Billy, by John Curran; Bread and soul, by George Carver; Lonely lives, by Seán O'Faoláin; The paper costume, by Richard Sullivan; The tempting of Michaeleen, by T. F. Healy; Alarm, by B. B. Brown; Man going home, by Harry Sylvester; Biographical notes.

Cath World 158:219 N '43 110w

"There are several excellent tales. . . Others deserve high ranking. The selections from the two Colums, Grahame Greene, Noyes, O'Faolain and Belloc are disappointing." J. E. Tobin
+ — Commonweal 38:640 O 15 '43 350w

CURTIS, CARLTON CLARENCE, and BAUSOR, SYDNEY CHARLES. Complete guide to North American trees. (New home lib) new rev & enl ed 337p il 69c Garden City pub. co.
582.16 Trees—North America 43-51339

Practical tree guidebook, containing descriptions of 350 trees, as to leaf, flower and fruit. Contents: General key to the Northeastern and Southern trees; The three main groups of trees; General key to the Western trees; Trees of the Northeastern region; The cone-bearing trees; The broad-leaved trees; Trees of the Southern region; The cone-bearing trees, The broad-leaved trees, The monocots; Trees of the Western region: The cone-bearing trees; The broad-leaved trees. Indexes.

"A most complete and usable book. The descriptions are clear and concise." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p4 Ja 2 '44 80w
Booklist 40:148 D 15 '43

CUTHRELL, FAITH (BALDWIN). See Baldwin, F.

D

DACK, GAIL MONROE. Food poisoning. 138p $2 Univ. of Chicago press
615.9 Food poisoning 43-3795

Report by the associate professor of bacteriology of the University of Chicago on the present-day knowledge on food poisoning. Contents: Chemical poisoning in food; Poisonous plants and animals; Botulism; Staphylococcus food poisoning; Salmonella; Alpha-type streptococci in relation to food poisoning; Significance of other bacteria in food poisoning. Infections to be differentiated from food poisoning. Contains case histories, symptoms, and reports on experimental work. Index.

"This book should be in the hands of every dietitian, army and navy mess officer, health department food control and laboratory personnel, as well as in hospital and other institution libraries. It should be consulted frequently before and during any investigation of food poisoning outbreaks." F. A. Korff
+ Am J Pub Health 33:750 Je '43 310w
Booklist 39:349 My 1 '43

"Everyone concerned with food preparation and preservation should have a copy of this readable and authoritative book. The need for such information is especially important today in order that people unaccustomed to food preservation employ safe methods when they undertake to preserve foods as a result of 'Victory' gardens and 'Don't Waste Food' campaigns." F. I. Scoular
+ J Home Econ 35:592 N '43 200w

DAHL, ROALD. Gremlins; from the Walt Disney production; a Royal air force story. [52p] il $1 Random house 43-8278

The inside story of the Gremlins, with their attendant fifinellas, widgets, and spandules, those terrifying little atoms with a grudge against R.A.F. planes and pilots. A pilot named Gus was one of their first objects of hatred, and while Gus was recuperating from the crash, he made plans for the Gremlin training school, which at last softened their hard little hearts.

"Fantasy and humor in typical Disney style. Full-page colored and smaller black-and-white illustrations. Not a necessary item." D. M. MacDonald
Library J 68:530 Je 15 '43 70w
Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p9 Je 13 '43 300w

"Gremlins have not hitherto appeared on this page because those I had found in books and newspapers were not only whimsy but synthetic whimsy. This book is different. It is the Real Thing. . . Walt Disney bases a motion picture on this story. He couldn't do better." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 18 '43 450w

DAHLBERG, GUNNAR. Race, reason and rubbish; a primer of race biology; tr. from the Swedish by Lancelot Hogben. 240p il $2.25 Columbia univ. press [8s 6d Allen, G]
575.1 Heredity [A42-3975]

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Reviewed by E. B. Reuter
Am J Soc 49:93 Jl '43 1400w

"The translation is unusually well done in clear, animated, and very readable English." T. C. McCormick
+ Am Soc R 8:493 Ag '43 330w

"Both the author and the translator have done their best, apparently, to prejudice the reception of this book. The somewhat explosive title is in no way descriptive of the work itself; and in the Foreword the translator describes the author, who is the director of the State Institute of Human Genetics in the University of Uppsala, as 'one of the six living people who know most about heredity.' Now obviously, genetics is not so esoteric as this would indicate, so the statement can only mean that the translator likes to be dramatic. Once the title and the Foreword have been hurdled, however, the reader should be amply rewarded for any time he may invest. The first ten chapters constitute an elementary but remarkably clear and simply written survey of modern genetics. Not a word is wasted, and the illustrations are well chosen." Conway Zirkle
+ — Ann Am Acad 226:197 Mr '43 500w
Booklist 39:286 Mr 15 '43

"The book is not easy to read, and not interesting in a popular sense. Although most of the discussion is devoted to the laws of heredity rather than to racial theory, the objective approach makes the conclusions valuable to anyone interested in racial problems and prejudices." C. T.
+ — Current Hist 4:84 Mr '43 110w

"Dahlberg's Race, Reason and Rubbish should be welcomed by all who wish to begin or to continue their education in what is known about human heredity. Even the plain beginner can understand this 'primer of race biology' with its simple language and its numerous illustrations. . . This book by one of the world's leading biologists and statisticians is a wholesome antidote to the rubbish of Nazi racial ideology." G. B. Johnson
+ Social Forces 21:494 My '43 140w

DAKE, HENRY CARL, and DE MENT, JACK A. Ultra-violet light and its applications; incl. a description of the numerous practical applications found for ultra-violet light and fluorescence in the industries, sciences, and arts. 209p il $3.25 Chemical pub. co.
535.6 Ultra-violet rays 42-20738

"The authors are concerned only with everyday uses of ultra-violet rays. These are now many and important. The police use the rays to examine fingerprints, stains, teeth, hair, raised checks and other forgeries. The Army finds the rays useful in signaling and in the treatment of some afflictions. Advertisers and play producers get weird and striking effects with the rays. There is a whole branch of ultra-violet medicine." N Y Times

"The authors state in the preface that the book is written in a practical non-technical manner. This has certainly been accomplished and the presentation will not be wholly to the liking of the trained scientist. In reading it one has the feeling of vagueness and sweeping generalities. The chemist must object to the use of 'tetrahydroxyflavanol' as a test for aluminum or beryllium without any indications as to which of the tetrahydroxyflavanols is intended." C. F. White
Am Chem Soc J 65:300 F '43 300w

Reviewed by Waldemar Kaempffert
N Y Times p39 N 22 '42 120w

DALGLIESH, ALICE. Little angel; a story of old Rio; il. by Katherine Milhous. 70p $2 Scribner 43-14491

Rio de Janeiro in the early 1800's is the background for this story of a large Brazilian family, especially of its youngest member, Maria da Gloria.

"Katherine Milhous has styled her drawings after the manner of Jean Baptiste Debret, who was one of Brazil's most popular artists, and the result is an extremely handsome book." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p^ N 14 '43 140w

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 29 '43 90w
Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 20w

"This is really a story, but it is based upon the famous drawings of Jean Baptiste Debret illustrating Brazilian life in the early nineteenth century. Hence it seems to me that the interest in the book is more educational than fictional. Well done."
+ Commonweal 39:122 N 19 '43 40w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:407 N '43 70w

"The charm of the book lies in the naturalness of the large family, who seem contemporary, and their complete absorption in the life of their city and its festivals. In the Procession of Santo Antonio the little Maria appears as an angel. The pictures are delightful and a reminder that festivals are inseparable from the life of the countries in which they originate." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 19:422 N '43 70w

"The material has been checked for accuracy by a prominent Brazilian. The pictures by Katherine Milhous and the text owe their inspiration to Jean Baptiste Debret's prints." E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:820 O 15 '43 40w

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist
Library J 68:846 O 15 '43 50w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p6 Ja 30 '44 220w

"The da Silva's celebration of Brazil's Independence Day, the gay street scenes like the 'Battle of the Lemons,' give rich local color to this simple family story, so full of gracious living and exotic charm. It is all infused with warmth and humor." B. W. Shaffer
+ Sat R of Lit 26:36 D 11 '43 320w

"An unusually delightful story of old Brazil. . . Many of the Portuguese traditions are interpreted faithfully and with understanding. The story in itself is sufficient and yet this little book adds another link to the ties that bind the Americas." M. E. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 26 '43 130w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p14 N 14 '43 400w

DALLA VALLE, JOSEPH MARIUS. Micromeritics; the technology of fine particles [advisory ed: Alexander Klemin]. 428p $8.50 Pitman
620.19 Particles 43-5918

"[This work] brings together, for the first time, a mass of scattered information on the behavior of fine particles. These may occur in atmospheric and industrial dusts and in suspensions such as muds and slurries. It tells of the grinding of such particles, determination of their size and shape, effect of particle size on water-boiling capacity of soils and the chemical behavior of small particles." (Weekly Book Review) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter
Book Week p8 Ag 8 '43 120w

"General treatment of the subject is comprehensive, the material is covered mathematically and many different approaches to the several phases of this subject are reviewed. The author has undertaken some critical commentary but in many cases the work reviewed is not integrated. As a text or reference work in the field, this book gives a good statement of the fundamental principles and practical operation of a wide variety of subjects in which this range of particle size is important. It should be useful as a text for the student and as a handbook for the specialist in this field." L. T. Work
+ Chem & Met Eng 50:203 Je '43 400w
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Jl '43
Library J 68:431 My 15 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:48 Jl '43

"Though not a book for the layman, the implications of the subject are so broad that almost every research man and engineer would obtain some valuable ideas for his own field from its pages." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p22 Je 6 '43 180w

DALLIN, DAVID JULIEVICH. Russia and postwar Europe. 230p $2.75 Yale univ. press

327.47 Russia—Foreign policy A43-3785

"Author, Russian by birth, whose recent book on Soviet foreign policy 1939-1942 was well received, analyzes here, in the same sober and detached manner, the Kremlin's outlook on world affairs. He starts out from interpreting Russia's changing attitude toward this war, discusses the 'new nationalism' and the regeneration of the Red Army. Then he explains the fundamental ideas on which the Soviet policy toward England and Germany is based. Finally, he outlines Stalin's probable war aims and Russia's position in postwar Europe, leaving aside the Far Eastern question." Library J

Reviewed by Daniel Bell
Atlantic 173:125 F '44 180w

Booklist 40:177 Ja 15 '44

"Well-informed, coldly scientific, judicious, Mr. Dallin's closely packed chapters disclose the motives, narrate the history, forecast the probable future of Russia's foreign policy. Without waste of words or propagandist leanings, they convey more effectively than any other easily available source the minimum knowledge which must be acquired if one is to discuss the subject in question intelligently." Joseph McSorley
+ Cath World 158:504 F '44 180w

Commonweal 39:234 D 17 '43 750w

"The book, with its none-too-optimistic perspectives, will make useful reading for Americans seriously interested in problems of foreign policy. Recommended for college and public libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 68:957 N 15 '43 110w

"Dr. Dallin is a genuine historian, not a propagandist. Although he is a political exile from Russia he does not aim any factional barbs and arrows at the Soviet regime. At the same time he refuses to sacrifice his intellectual integrity by painting an idyllic picture of the past record and aims of Soviet foreign policy. Some readers may feel that many of the observations and conclusions of this book have been outdated or even refuted by the Moscow and Teheran conferences. But, immensely heartening as the demonstration of military and political unity at these two conferences has been, the real test of the value of these agreements (and of Stalin's attitude toward the Cairo agreement) can come only after the military power of Germany and Japan has been broken." W. H. Chamberlin
+ N Y Times p1 D 26 '43 1400w

DALLIN, DAVID JULIEVICH. Soviet Russia's foreign policy, 1939-1942; tr. by Leon Dennen. 452p $3.75 Yale univ. press

327.47 Russia—Foreign policy. World war, 1939—Russia A42-4649

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Reviewed by R. P. Churchill
Am Hist R 48:790 Jl '43 500w

Reviewed by W. N. Hadsel
Am Pol Sci R 37:943 O '43 850w

Reviewed by V. M. Dean
Ann Am Acad 229:188 S '43 450w

Booklist 39:286 Mr 15 '43

"With every passing day the role of Russia in the modern world becomes a matter of keener discussion. In the present war as in the future peace, it is increasingly apparent that the gigantic power and resources of the U. S. S. R. will be of immense significance. Consequently, a book like the one under review is especially welcome. Its author is a well known Russian emigré who writes, nevertheless, with a cool detachment and a wealth of documentation that make his work scholarly, respect-compelling and always interesting. The translation is clear and stimulating." J. D. Squires
+ Christian Century 60:296 Mr 10 '43 650w

Reviewed by Clifton Macon
Churchman 157:15 F 15 '43 450w

"Considering the meagerness of any sort of official and first-hand documentation, the author has succeeded rather well in his effort to give a balanced account of Soviet diplomacy during recent years." R. G. Woolbert
+ Foreign Affairs 21:586 Ap '43 30w

Reviewed by Ralph Bates
New Repub 110:90 Ja 17 '44 1650w

"Dr. Dallin, an exile from imperial Russia in 1911-1917 and later a member of the opposition in the Moscow Soviet until 1921, has written extensively in the European press on political and economic questions. His volume is a notably successful attempt to present a comprehensive picture of the objectives and methods of Moscow's foreign policy." M. T. Florinsky
+ Pol Sci Q 58:271 Je '43 900w

Reviewed by John Scott
Weekly Book Review p10 Je 20 '43 1200w

"A detailed, systematic, and well-documented study." Michael Karpovich
+ Yale R n s 32:609 spring '43 400w

DALY, ELIZABETH. Evidence of things seen. 247p $2 Farrar

43-9416

Detective story.

"A creditable job, Gamadge, a very creditable job, indeed." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p7 Jl 25 '43 160w

Booklist 40:48 O 1 '43

Bookmark 4:20 My '43

"So ingenious is the plot of this story that we feel safe in predicting that most readers will be completely fooled and will then wonder how they ever happened to muff the solution." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p8 Je 27 '43 140w

"If you want to wake up screaming, here's a story that should serve your purpose and give you a dandy jigsaw workout besides. . . 'Evidence of Things Seen' is a top-notcher of the polite school, unreservedly recommended to those who wander around in Mystery Land." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p9 Jl 4 '43 500w

DALY, ELIZABETH. Nothing can rescue me. 281p $2 Farrar

43-451

Detective story.

Bookmark 5:19 Ja '43

"Here's a treat for particular fans—another smooth Henry Gamadge case fully up to Elizabeth Daly's high standard as demonstrated in 'Unexpected Night,' 'Deadly Nightshade,' and 'Murder in Volume 2.' " Will Cuppy
+ Books p15 Ja 31 '43 300w

"Good."
Boston Globe p19 F 10 '43 40w

"It is all a bit involved, but what mystery isn't?" Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p20 Ja 24 '43 200w

"Gossipy, back-biting characters in a well-handled story."
+ New Yorker 18:64 Ja 30 '43 70w

"Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:19 F 13 '43 40w

DALY, REGINALD ALDWORTH. Floor of the ocean; new light on old mysteries. 177p il maps $2.50 Univ. of N.C. press [11s 6d Oxford]

551.46 Ocean botton 42-50279

Three lectures given in 1941 at the University of Virginia, by the Sturgis Hooper professor of geology at Harvard. Contents: Foundations of the great deep; Submarine mountains; Continental terraces and submarine valleys; Index.

Booklist 39:246 F 15 '43

"Interesting, well-written book." Gordon Rittenhouse
+ J Geol 51:500 O '43 250w

DALZELL, JAMES RALPH, and TOWNSEND, GILBERT. How to remodel a house. 528p il $4.75 Am. tech. soc.

728 Dwellings. Building—Repair and reconstruction. Architecture, Domestic—Designs and plans 42-25993

Instructions, plans, and descriptive text on the remodeling of houses. The various steps are explained in detail, as well as the planning of the whole in relation to the existing structure. Directions for reading architectural plans and specifications are included, and a set of blue prints is enclosed in the back cover. Index.

"Useful to architects, builders, carpenters, and students. Includes a 24-page index."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 27:53 O '42

N Y New Tech Bks 28:24 Ap '43

"Dalzell and Townsend have undertaken to tell home owners, young architects, students, carpenters and mechanics how to remodel a house. The book contains enough material to accommodate all of these, though each will be obliged to make a selective reading. The authors have spared no effort to give detail and pictorial presentation to their suggestions." J. M. Juran
+ N Y Times p32 O 24 '43 280w

Pratt p4 F '43

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p25 Ap 11 '43 200w

DAMON, MRS BERTHA (CLARK). Sense of humus; il. by Claire Leighton. 250p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

630.1 Country life 43-8255

The author of Grandma Called it Carnal (Book Review Digest, 1938) turns her attention to her own New Hampshire farm, and describes the difficulties of gardening among the rocks and lack of humus. Among the characters she describes are Samule, the hired man who had an explanation for everything, and Hannah Sprague, "one of those enviable women who gracefully accept middle age," in her spic and span little village home.

"Here is a book for all who have ever had or who have ever dreamed of having a farm. Mrs. Damon has written with affection and humor."
+ Atlantic 172:121 Ag '43 120w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p4 Je 27 '43 170w

Booklist 39:440 Jl 1 '43

Bookmark 4:10 My '43

"Bertha Damon's jocose reconstruction of her disciplined childhood, in 'Grandma Called It Carnal,' testified to her happy facility in describing the common incidents of daily life with wit and acumen. Readers who enjoyed her earlier work will welcome her new book... Numerous quotations and allusions, brightly stud the pages, a habit of Mrs. Damon's which is entirely in accord with the practices of a good humusist, who carefully gathers leaves and puts them where they will do the most good. She shows how a skillfully applied cover crop can be used to advantage with other forms of culture besides horticulture, and the resultant fruition is gratifying." M. W. S.
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 10 '43 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Jl '43

"Mrs. Damon's brush splatters, but not ineptly, in all directions. She has lived and experienced and read. She is capable of genuine artistry. Even a person soured by the spectacle of pampered city lap dogs and the gruesome sounds of baby talk from certain pets' master or mistress will be forced to admit after reading Mrs. Damon's account of the loss of her aged dog, Mickey, that there can be a wonderful bond between a man and a dog."
+ Commonweal 38:230 Je 18 '43 420w

"Some will label book 'escapist,' but it is also a refreshing whiff of Granite State air; and, mingled with entertainment, are sound sense and suggestive hints for those who attempt to live in northern New England. Popular in any public library." G. E. Brown
+ Library J 68:246 Mr 15 '43 60w

Reviewed by K. B. Murdock
New Eng Q 16:535 S '43 350w

"Bertha Damon's story of her struggle with the Damon New Hampshire place near Lake Winnipesaukee is a gallant history of innumerable defeats and numbered but compensating achievements." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p6 Je 20 '43 450w

"Whether you garden or not, buy, beg or borrow 'A Sense of Humus.' As a matter of fact, it would be best to own it, as you'll want to reread it as the seasons roll round. You'll be happier for knowing 'Samule,' Hannah Sprague, Uncle John Stentor and Bertha Damon. And you'll cherish Mickey in your memory for a long, long time." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 20 '43 470w

"As a contribution to our growing ruraliana, 'A Sense of Humus' maintains marked distinction from first page to last. It is in the top flight of books on that country living in which so many of us are seeking peace and security and an assurance of life's continuance... To the writing of 'A Sense of Humus' Mrs. Damon has brought a facile pen, a ready wit, a quick acceptance of those sentiments invariably bred in people who love the land and a wide reading." Richardson Wright
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Je 13 '43 1050w

Wis Lib Bul 39:106 Jl '43

DAMPIER, SIR WILLIAM CECIL DAMPIER. History of science and its relations with philosophy and religion. imperial 3d ed 597p $2.95 Macmillan [25s Cambridge]

509 Science—History. Philosophy

"Here is presented not a detailed study of any one period or subject, but a broad outline of the development of scientific thought. To incorporate the discoveries made since the second edition in 1930 [Book Review Digest, 1930], the author made extensive changes in the text and included a new chapter to cover the output of the years 1930-1940. His conclusion, elaborated in the chapter on 'Scientific philosophy and its outlook,' is that science can never represent the whole of existence." N Y New Tech Bks

Am Soc R 8:248 Ap '43 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:33 Ap '43

"Sir William's valuable philosophic excursuses seem sometimes to fit rather loosely in their context. In fact, he is not a 'layman's writer' and his method makes his material somewhat inaccessible to those without a scientific training. Despite all this the book is incomparably the best of its kind. To one reader, at least, this seems to make it more than a pity that the author has not seen his way to give more time and attention to its form. In particular, when one considers its philosophic background, it is a peculiar fault that it presents no very adequate or logical division of its material." Charles Singer
+ — Spec 168:588 Je 19 '42 430w

Times [London] Lit Sup p239 My 3 '42 180w

DANIEL, HAWTHORNE. Fogbound; a waterfront mystery; il. by Hamilton Greene. 257p $2 Winston

43-11743

Tale of a family shipping business, with offices in New York and California in the 1850's, and of the fifteen-year-old boy who was instrumental in saving the business for his widowed mother. For grades six to eight.

Booklist 40:49 O 1 '43

"The so-called 'mystery' of the tale is all too easily anticipated, but it contains moments of suspense to entertain some older boys and girls." Eileen Riols
Library J 68:672 S 1 '43 50w

DANIEL, HAWTHORNE—Continued
Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:827 O 15 '43 20w
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 16 '44 220w

DANIEL, HAWTHORNE. Islands of the Pacific. 228p maps $2.50 Putnam
919.6 Islands of the Pacific 43-8041

"Timely handbook of facts about nearly all the Pacific islands north, south, and west of Hawaii: location, climate, topography, peoples, and so on. No war information." New Yorker

Booklist 39:444 Jl 1 '43
Bookmark 4:15 My '43
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:167 O '43 20w

" 'Islands of the Pacific' is not a book for 'reading.' Lyrical descriptions have been omitted. But you will find as many facts about the Pacific as could possibly be crowded into one volume. . . There will be many such handbooks as our world grows larger. Mr. Daniel has made an admirable beginning." J. W. Vandercook
+ N Y Times p31 Je 6 '43 380w
New Yorker 19:87 Je 5 '43 50w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 11 '43 170w

"Essential and condensed information is given on such subjects as geography, climate, flora, and fauna, topography, peoples, languages, resources and government. With minor exceptions the data are accurate and treatment simple and easily grasped. A valuable and handy reference." J. P. Searles
+ Weekly Book Review p14 Jl 25 '43 180w

DANIEL, WALTER GREEN. The reading interests and needs of Negro college freshmen regarding social science materials. 128p $1.60 Teachers college 307 Social sciences—Study and teaching. Negroes—Education. Books and reading 43-3715

"Dr. Daniel's study proposes to answer this question: In view of their interests and needs, what materials related to the social sciences should be made available for the reading of Negro college Freshmen? His analysis of interests is based on returns from 489 Freshmen at Howard University; that of needs, on the judgment of 61 authorities comprising professors of the social sciences, writers in the field, and librarians with some interest and training in these subjects and in book selection. In conclusion he offers fairly specific recommendations for use of the study as a book-selection tool in Negro college libraries." Library Q

Reviewed by J. H. Foster
Library Q 13:353 O '43 1300w
School & Society 56:644 D 26 '42 40w

DANIELS, BRADFORD KEMPTON. Outer edge. 326p il $4 Caxton printers
B or 92 Farm life 43-12596

The author, a Nova Scotian, writer and traveler, contracted jungle fever on his travels and was told his one chance to live was to go to a milder climate and stay outdoors. He went to the state of Washington, bought a farm, and found health in the rigors of running a fruit, dairy, and poultry farm. The story of the farm is told in this book.

Booklist 40:197 F 1 '44

"Honest, American, of-the-soil story of actual experiences. Interesting, informative, well written." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 68:528 Je 15 '43 70w
Weekly Book Review p29 S 19 '43 130w
Wis Lib Bul 39:142 N '43

DANIELS, HARRIET MCDOUAL. Muller hill. 402p $2.75 Knopf
43-51322

Historical novel featuring New York city and the wilderness of Oneida county, New York, from 1795 to 1824. In 1795 a certain mysterious French aristocrat, calling himself Lewis Anathe Muller, arrived in New York city. He was welcomed by New York society—the Stuyvesants, Livingstons, Brevoorts, and others—and shortly he was married to a lovely young girl, a ward of the Stuyvesants. For his Adeline, Muller built a castle on a hill in western New York state, and there they lived for several years. With the restoration of the monarchy in France "Mr Muller" departed, leaving his wife and three children behind. Adeline's foster brother followed him abroad, solved the mystery, and returned to America, to quiet all the fears of the woman he had loved so long. Bibliography.

Booklist 40:114 D 1 '43

"It is unfortunate that Miss Daniels lacks dexterity in manipulating her historical material. 'Oh la la's' and 'egads' fall awkwardly from the lips of her Stuyvesants, Livingstons and Bleeckers; and she seems ill at ease in their sophisticated company. But if her dialogue creaks at the start, the noise is soon drowned out, for the author does have skill as a story teller. The reader will be entertained from the moment Muller's ship sails into the Battery until the satisfying dénouement when he learns why the stranger will never again return." Ruth Boorstin
+ — N Y Times p24 O 10 '43 340w

"Miss Daniel's gift for characterization and for recreating the feeling of a period in a history make for good reading. Her love for her subject and genuine sympathy with her characters charge the story with sincerity." J. P.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 7 '43 220w

"Because the period in which the book is laid is on its own account interesting and dramatic (and for many readers may even have the freshness of unfamiliarity), and because of the striking possibilities in characterization and narration arising from the appearance of a romantic royalist among colonial New Yorkers, it is too bad the canvas is not more boldly and richly drawn." Theresa Alexander
Weekly Book Review p10 O 17 '43 650w

DANZ, LOUIS. It is still the morning. 273p $2.50 Morrow
43-13714

Impressionistic story of an artist, as a child and as a young man. He is known only as Georgie, and the book is written in the stream of consciousness manner. Only two people understood Georgie—his grandfather and a beautiful woman named Sonja—and when his grandfather died it was up to Georgie's Uncle Joe and then Sonja, to get Georgie out of his troubles.

"The story is told almost entirely through vivid, authentic conversation, and the characters have all the comic charm which arises from an accurate record of ordinary human confusion. Mr. Danz's attempts to reproduce Georgie's vague memory and time sense in prose occasionally suggest Gertrude Stein, but his style is by no means so extraordinary as the total absence of punctuation leads one to suspect at first glance."
Atlantic 172:135 N '43 150w

"When you start to read this book, you'll probably say: 'What's all this?' . . By the 50th page, believe it or not, you'll begin to wonder why more authors haven't grasped the fact that normal people are speaking, thinking thoughts and hearing people speak all at the same moment. What seemed at first to be hectic jumbling takes on a rhythm that makes the reading of this book as crisp as a Marx Brothers show. In fact, you're likely to swing along so rapidly you miss some of the delicious humor, sound philosophy or brittle irony in the closely knit phrases. And that's too bad . . . because they're good." Marguerite Lyon

+ Book Week p4 O 10 '43 500w

New Repub 110:62 Ja 10 '44 120w

"There is an innocent, childlike quality to the entire novel, and many small pictures emerge with great clarity and a certain charm. But when George went away to study painting in 'the city where almost everybody likes painting,' the mannered technique and the narrowly limited prose struck a very sour note. By the tenth repetition of that phrase this reviewer was carried out screaming." Lorine Pruette

— + N Y Times p22 O 10 '43 300w

"Georgie's story is told wittily, tenderly and with extraordinary vividness in a fine first novel dealing with the longings, the frustrations, the ecstasies of childhood and adolescence. . . A vivid image, a comment embodying a sudden flash of insight supply the high lights. We are not even told Georgie's surname, or the name of the town he lived in, or Sonja's name. The result is an impressionistic picture, always entertaining and sometimes profoundly revealing." Jennings Rice

+ Weekly Book Review p2 O 10 '43 550w

DARBY, RUTH. Murder with orange blossoms. 217p $2 Doubleday

43-11546

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p10 Ag 1 '43 160w

"Long Island country house affair with numerous amorous complications, chipper chatter, observant detective, and satisfactory solution. Fluff."

— Sat R of Lit 26:25 Jl 31 '43 40w

"Ruth Darby tells this 'tale of a wedding that turned into a wake' with an abundance of good-natured fun and no tears whatever." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 1 '43 200w

DARROW, WHITNEY. You're sitting on my eyelashes. [112p] $2.50 Random house

741 Caricatures and cartoons 43-15646

A selection of this artist's cartoons first published in the New Yorker.

Book Week p2 D 12 '43 40w

"Of course, any good comic will admit that there are only a few basic gags. Mr. Darrow's drunks, dopes and windbags are all first cousins. . . But all of these drawings are funny, regardless of parentage; most of them are hilarious; at least five are sure to have you rolling in the aisle." W. D.

+ N Y Times p7 O 3 '43 450w

New Yorker 19:100 O 9 '43 70w

"Clever as Mr. Darrow's drawings are, one fails to find in them such unforgettable figures as the lascivious libertines of Arno, the stuffy suburbanite women of Helen Hokinson, or the precocious brats of Steig. Moreover, although the artist portrays one phase of his times, his picture is a one-sided one. But perhaps I am captious. For despite my criticism and notwithstanding that I saw many of the drawings in The New Yorker, I looked through the volume with pleasure several times. And I would have done this even had I not been asked to review it." S. J. Woolf

+ — Sat R of Lit 27:18 Ja 1 '44 430w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 10 '43 200w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p4 D 5 '43 100w

DASHIELL, SAMUEL. Victory through Africa. 320p $2.75 Smith & Durrell

940.542 World war, 1939—Africa. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American

43-10040

"There are two parts, intellectually, to Mr. Dashiell's book about North Africa in the two years after France fell and before it got to its feet. One part is a lively newspaper man's account of what it was like to cross from Marseilles to Algiers, Petain reigning, and then to live on in the strange conspiratorial world that lasted until we landed. The second part consists of Mr. Dashiell's views about the political situation in North Africa and France." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by Walter Duranty

N Y Times p6 Jl 11 '43 600w

"Brisk reading, though rather spotty writing."

New Yorker 19:63 Jl 3 '43 70w

"Sam Dashiell is a man of education and experience, a first-class newspaper man with a lively pen. . . I enjoyed his description of the Kasbah in Algiers. . . Equally good are his occasional asides. . . What confuses me are his politics and his political views—if any." E. A. Mowrer

+ — Weekly Book Review p16 Jl 18 '43 1200w

DAUGHERTY, JAMES HENRY. Abraham Lincoln; il. with lithographs in two colors by the author. 216p $3.50 Viking

B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham—Juvenile literature 43-17459

"This book, illustrated with many full-page lithographs in two colors, largest and most important of Mr. Daugherty's series of biographical portraits of American heroes—of which 'Daniel Boone' won the Newbery Medal—has the qualities of portrait and of poem. It tells a great deal: not enough to make it a work of reference but plenty for coherent, sympathetic ideas not only of what Lincoln was and did, but of the steady development of his character and of its interaction with events." Weekly Book Review

"The book is a beautiful one on all counts, and makes a lasting contribution to Americana." M. K. McElderry

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 70w

"It's an all-round satisfying job from jacket to the last page. Daugherty's sincerity and integrity as an artist matches perfectly Lincoln's human appeal and stature. His work shows the muralist's sweep, it overflows the page, it is monumental, but it fills the boots of the heroes he likes to describe." Fritz Eichenberg

+ Horn Bk 20:18 Ja '44 110w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 20:44 Ja '44 70w

"Exactly right in mood, style and atmosphere. . . A beautiful job of bookmaking which may seem expensive but worthwhile." F. W. Butler

+ Library J 69:34 Ja 1 '44 110w

"Its selectivity is one of its most effective qualities. Here are no repetitions of the hoary anecdotes which we knew by heart in the fourth grade to stale our quickening recognition of the man. We see him always in direct relation to his time and his contemporaries; even the terribly tangled panorama of the Civil War is reduced to a startlingly clear perspective, as if we were looking at it over Lincoln's shoulder through his own telescope." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p6 D 19 '43 420w

Reviewed by Edrie Van Dore

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 12 '43 440w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p6 N 28 '43 400w

DAVID, EVAN JOHN. As runs the glass. 312p $2.50 Harper

43-15969

An adventure story which follows the fortunes of the various members of a Maine seafaring family in the post-Revolution period.

Booklist 40:165 Ja 1 '44

"Plot is obvious, with stock villain and heroine, but story is reasonably good adventure for men, with some exciting sea battles. Sabatini flavor. Recommended." H. A. Wooster

+ Library J 68:725 S 15 '43 40w

DAVID, E. J.—Continued

"Mr. David evidently has gone to some pains to make his background historically accurate. Unfortunately, he does not seem to have taken the same care with his characters. The net effect is vaguely reminiscent of 'Richard Carvel'—but a modernized 'Richard Carvel' with Yankee over-tones, which lacks the rounded characterizations that gave that period piece its special quality. . . Nevertheless, from the standpoint of action, particularly at sea, this is a good yarn." Allan Taylor

+ — N Y Times p16 Ja 16 '44 500w

"A good, old-style, period novel. . . Employing a huge amount of interesting detail and a fairly sound feeling for character, Mr. David succeeds not only in evoking the period of Washington's second administration but in telling a good story. Nautically, the novel is probably as right as it sounds, since Lincoln Colcord's name appears among the acknowledgements."

+ New Yorker 19:108 N 20 '43 90w

"Packed with excitement from start to finish. In fact, so interested does one become in the story of the Tudor men that at times the fact that it is an historical romance is forgotten, so don't let your lack of interest in history keep you from reading it, for it is as good a sea yarn as those by our established authors of adventure." H. L. Mitchell

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 160w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p30 N 21 '43 310w

Wis Lib Bul 40:9 Ja '44

DAVIDMAN, JOY, ed. Songs and battle cries of a world at war; war poems of the United nations. 395p $3 Dial press

808.81 Poetry—Collections. World war, 1939 —Poetry 43-18223

"Three hundred poems, one hundred and fifty poets from twenty countries; sponsored by the League of Am. writers." (Subtitle) In her foreword the editor says: "We have included in our definition of the war every conflict that has taken place since Hitler's first rise to power; the ten-year-long fight of China, the tragic battle of Republican Spain against Fascism, and the lonely struggles of German and Austrian anti-Fascists are as much part of the great crisis of our time as what is happening today in Africa. Thus we have been able to include the magnificent fighting poems of German and Spanish refugees, as well as poetry from many Latin American countries not actually at war. We have unfortunately been unable, in the time at our disposal, to procure poems from Jugoslavia, Greece, Belgium, and Holland."

"It is easier to be on the right side than to be a good poet. Of the 300 war poems of the United Nations included in this volume, there are many which, without loss to literature, could be relegated to the attic, if there still be one, where the trunk filled with the rhetoric of personal letters belongs. . . Are any memorable as literature as well? A few." Marion Strobel

Book Week p7 N 28 '43 500w

Booklist 40:194 F 1 '44

Reviewed by Pearl Strachan

Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 29 '44 600w

"There is good reason to complain when an anthologist, like Miss Davidman, presumes for her collection an artistic sanction it patently does not deserve. And not merely to complain, but to protest fiercely, for the Miss Davidmans of the world flourish in wartime, they bloom in every corner, confusing values, smearing values and, ultimately, destroying values. . . If Miss Davidman had chosen to present her poets for what they are: the second-raters with first-rate intentions, we might say that she had done her job. But the significant—and symptomatic—thing about this anthology is not its title. The fact is this. Under the guise of presenting 'War Poems of the United Nations,' Miss Davidman is conducting a mendacious attack against the whole of modern poetry." Sgt. William Abrahams

— New Repub 109:822 D 6 '43 850w

"It is somewhat a misnomer to call the book 'War Poems of the United Nations' since Belgium, Holland, Greece and Yugoslavia are omitted and poets from Argentina are included. 'Poets Against Fascism' would be a more accurate title. Despite the many inadequate translations, there is enough good material to justify the book. In addition, it is the first collection of its kind, the first bringing together of an international brotherhood of poets who fight for progress and who represent a new spirit in the world. As such it is a stimulating and important social document." H. R. Hays

+ — N Y Times p48 N 28 '43 900w

"To sum up, I should say that Miss Davidman's taste as anthologist is not sure, and that her chief need is to know the difference between poetry and propaganda. Names of translators are notably lacking, and I suspect in many cases, Miss Davidman has done the translations herself. The result is in some cases, good; in others, quite undistinguished." J. G. Fletcher

Sat R of Lit 26:26 D 11 '43 700w

DAVIDSON, GABRIEL. Our Jewish farmers and the story of the Jewish agricultural society. 280p $2.50 Fischer, L.B.

630.6273 Jewish agricultural society. Jews as farmers 43-7917

An account of the Jewish Agricultural Society by one who has been associated with it for over 35 years and who is now its managing director. Index.

"The story of the Jewish Agricultural Society is a human narrative of the rebirth of agriculture consciousness among American Jews, an exciting account of a genuine pioneering effort in our own times." Peter Quinn

+ Book Week p11 My 18 '43 250w

Boston Globe p19 My 19 '43 250w

Commonweal 39:428 F 11 '44 30w

Reviewed by E. F. Allen

N Y Times p19 My 30 '43 320w

"The facts are presented in a sober, realistic style, and with an abundance of biographical and statistical details which make Dr. Davidson's book a valuable contribution to the history of agriculture in the United States." Alfred Werner

+ Sat R of Lit 26:38 Je 19 '43 400w

Reviewed by Samuel Price

Springf'd Republican p10 Je 10 '43 800w

DAVIDSON, MRS HELEN (HILLER). Personality and economic background; a study of highly intelligent children. 189p pa $2.25 Columbia univ. press

136.27 Personality. Child study. Class distinction 43-9109

"A study of children having IQ's above 120 to discover whether their personalities reflect 'economic differences' in their backgrounds." School & Society

Reviewed by R. E. L. Faris

Am J Soc 49:283 N '43 200w

"This study deserves some attention on two grounds: in the first place, because its results have not turned out to expectations on the basis of previous similar studies; and second, because it is thorough and carefully done. The workmanship is first class. The main objection that can be leveled against it is the use of income as the sole measure of economic status." M. A. May

+ — Ann Am Acad 230:236 N '43 750w

School & Society 57:692 Je 19 '43 20w

DAVIS, ADELLE. Vitality through planned nutrition. 524p il $2.20 Macmillan

612.39 Nutrition. Vitamins. Minerals in the body 42-23285

Textbook for high school boys and girls. "A guidebook to an understanding of nutrition containing case studies, rules and lists for ready reference, a chapter on 'Buying Health on a Limited Budget,' and an appendix on food analysis and body requirements." (School & Society)

Booklist 39:287 Mr 15 '43

"Controversial points are in some places stated as facts, but such errors are minor and probably unavoidable in presenting so much technical material in readable and usable form. Anyone teaching elementary nutrition would profit by reading this book if for no other reason than to see how one person has been able to present technical material in a simple and interesting form." Grace Steininger

+ — J Home Econ 35:113 F '43 130w

School & Society 56:392 O 24 '42 30w

DAVIS, BETTY ELISE. Young Tom Jefferson's adventure chest; il. by Roberta Paflin. 249p $2 Mill

Jefferson, Thomas—Juvenile literature
42-51180

Adventure story in which the young Thomas Jefferson plays the part of hero. It opens when Tom is a boy of twelve, and closes with his twenty-first birthday, when he has inherited Shadwell, his boyhood home. For boys of ten to twelve.

Reviewed by Dolores Arnold
Book Week p6 Jl 25 '43 140w

Christian Century 59:1595 D 23 '42 10w

"Around known facts, author has woven exciting story of pioneer life that will appeal to boys from ten to twelve. . . Many historical incidents and famous people are part of this lively story." A. M. Wetherell

+ Library J 68:249 Mr 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by L. M. Becker
Weekly Book Review p8 Mr 14 '43 180w

Wis Lib Bul 39:112 Jl '43

DAVIS, DALE STROBLE. Empirical equations and nomography. 200p $2.50 McGraw

510.84 Nomography (mathematics). Equations
43-3440

Textbook on the correlation of engineering test data, combining new techniques with standard methods. The book is an outgrowth of courses given to pulp and paper technical men as well as students of engineering. Index.

"Every so often a book puts in an appearance which, from the hasty viewpoint of a reviewer, seems to be slated to become extremely popular. Mr. Davis' book is in this category, and the reviewer ventures the opinion that the chemical profession will take to this volume like the proverbial duck to water."

+ Chem & Eng N 21:725 My 10 '43 310w

Chem & Met Eng 50:233 My '43 430w

Library J 68:431 My 15 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:12 Ja '43

"The book as a whole seems coherent and well written. The first part, on graphical methods, contains a profusion of illustrative problems, well worked out in detail with many excellent graphs. The directions for the various computations and constructions are necessarily very brief, but usually clear. In the more difficult subject matter near the end, some instructions might have been amplified to advantage. Following each chapter are many problems, varied in nature and chosen from actual experiments, not merely dry tables of numbers to plot. Two errors or misprints appear in the latter portion, but only one particularly mars the sense." A. O. Williams, Jr.

+ — R of Scientific Instruments 14:315 O '43 650w

DAVIS, ELMER HOLMES, and PRICE, BYRON. War information and censorship. 79p pa $1 Am. council on public affairs

940.5405 U.S. Office of war information
43-7303

"A compilation of the public utterances and expositions of policy made by Messrs. Davis and Price, covering the two government agencies they direct." Am Hist R

Am Hist R 48:871 Jl '43 20w

"The volume shows signs of very poor editing—to say nothing of hasty proof reading. Even if Mr. Davis and Mr. Price did, in the course of more or less extemporaneous speaking, vary somewhat from strictly orthodox usage, there is no excuse for allowing ungrammatical phrasing, bad placing of commas, and improper use of dashes to appear in a published volume. One can but conclude that the compilation was prepared in haste with little or no thought of its potential usefulness to other than the casual reader. The casual reader, however, will have seen most of the included material before the appearance of the compilation; it is the student of the ideas and principles set forth in these addresses who might have found the volume of interest and value in studying the place of information and censorship in the total war effort. The student and serious reader will have to look elsewhere; the present volume cannot help him." L. C. Merritt

— Library Q 14:82 Ja '44 700w

Social Studies 34:333 N '43 550w

DAVIS, HARRY MEYER, and FASSETT, FREDERICK GARDINER. What you should know about the Signal corps. 214p il $2.50 Norton

355.34 U.S.—Army—Signal corps
43-51096

"Some history of the development of communication is given with this survey of the signal corps and its functions. Similar to other books in this series, which was formerly entitled What the citizen should know." Booklist

Book Week p6 Ap 25 '43 140w

Booklist 39:327 Ap 15 '43

Bookmark 4:4 My '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:160 O '43 10w

Library J 68:290 Ap 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:52 Jl '43

Reviewed by V. B. Cohen
N Y Times p23 My 16 '43 480w

Reviewed by Arthur Symons
Sat R of Lit 26:24 Ag 21 '43 150w

"The book is recommended by this reviewer, a signal corps officer. Here in nontechnical language the potential inductee and the civilian will find what they should know about a vital branch of the army. Pertinent sketches and an index add to the interest and effectiveness of 'What You Should Know About the Signal Corps.'" Frederick Reinstein

+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 9 '43 500w

"A popular book about such an essential but relatively ignored service has long been needed and now the want is filled capably and entertainingly by two writers who cover the subject with thoroughness and accuracy." P. J. Searles

+ Weekly Book Review p24 Ap 25 '43 600w

DAVIS, MRS LAVINIA (RIKER). Round Robin; il. by Hildegard Woodward. 147p $1.50 Scribner

43-3408

The problem of a new baby in a family where there are already several children is here made into a story for other families faced with the same condition. A wise mother guides her four older children safely thru the difficult time for each of them, until the new baby has become an accepted member of the household.

"Mrs. Davis has drawn real and lovable characters in 'Round Robin' and has told her story in a most entertaining fashion. She has five children of her own and knows something of the serious problems a new little brother or sister may bring. This is a book for the whole family." P. A. Whitney

DAVIS, L. R.—Continued
+ Book Week p6 Mr 21 '43 250w
Booklist 39:356 My 1 '43

"For reading aloud to little children in homes where a new baby has just arrived." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:168 My '43 50w

Reviewed by Claire Nolte
Library J 68:329 Ap 15 '43 110w
Sat R of Lit 26:29 My 15 '43 20w

"All the little Farrells are very real children, good and naughty in turn, and most likeable. This is an excellent story for reading aloud in the family group."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 9 '43 80w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p10 Mr 28 '43 380w
Wis Lib Bul 39:124 O '43

DAVIS, MRS LAVINIA (RIKER). Stand fast and reply. 278p $2 Doubleday
43-15953

When her father was sent overseas just at the same time that the family wealth disappeared, Bitsy Close and her mother and brother went to a farm in Ohio. Slowly Bitsy learned the farm ways and loved them, and at the same time learned to love the farm boy who taught her country ways. For older girls.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p11 N 28 '43 160w
Booklist 40:98 N 15 '43

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 80w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:823 O 15 '43 40w

"Girls will enjoy this junior novel of adjustment despite numerous minor themes and continual stuttering of small brother, Stanty." E. M. Gordon
+ Library J 68:964 N 15 '43 70w

"In her first story for older girls Lavinia Davis reveals the same knowledge of life among contemporary youth as in her books for younger readers. Bitsy is very much a daughter of today, wanting fun but willing to buckle down to the serious business of living and enjoying it. The story of her growing-up is convincing, and so, also, is the setting." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p9 O 31 '43 340w
Wis Lib Bul 40:13 Ja '44

DAVIS, NORBERT. Mouse in the mountain. 249p $2 Morrow 43-452

Mystery story.

"Here's a gay, carefree item for those who don't really care who did it." Will Cuppy
+ Books p12 F 7 '43 150w

"One of the gayest and wackiest mystery novels that have come our way in a long, long time." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p19 F 7 '43 200w

"Carstairs' dignified ferocity and characters' bright dialogue carry off story. Mystery is rather translucent but action is incessant and thunderous. Good fun."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:19 F 13 '43 40w

DAVIS, NORBERT. Sally's in the alley. 224p $2 Morrow 43-13571

Detective story.

"The adventure of Doan and Carstairs are quite unbelievable, but they are also very amusing, except, of course, to the several persons who get killed along the way. Rarely have homicide and detection been made more entertaining." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 S 26 '43 100w
New Yorker 19:87 S 25 '43 70w

"Good and rowdy."
Sat R of Lit 26:27 O 2 '43 40w

"A rich morsel for readers who like them tough and raucous."
Time 42:104 O 11 '43 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 S 26 '43 200w

DAVIS, RAYMOND EARL, and KELLY, JOE WALLACE. Short course in surveying. 330p il $2.50 McGraw 526.9 Surveying 42-24896

"This book presents the essential principles and practice of elementary plane surveying in useful form for rapid training of rodmen, chainmen, instrumentmen, and draftsmen in short courses necessitated by the national emergency. It is a condensation of more advanced textbooks long and widely used in engineering colleges; those subjects have been selected which will lead to a reasonable proficiency in the various phases of surveying in the shortest possible time. . . To supplement the classwork, a variety of field problems are stated." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 39:246 F 15 '43
N Y New Tech Bks 28:35 Ap '43

DAVIS, TENNEY LOMBARD. Chemistry of powder and explosives, v 2. 489p il $3 Wiley
662 Explosives. Fireworks (41-10283)

"[This work] by Dr. Tenney L. Davis, professor emeritus at M.I.T., started out to be one large book, but the first volume was issued in 1941 [Book Review Digest, 1941] to make its valuable contents available without delay. . . The second volume deals with nitric esters (e. g. nitroglycerin), smokeless powder, dynamite and other high explosives, nitroamines and related substances (under which cyclonite, even more potent than TNT, is included) and primary explosives (mercury fulminate, lead azide, etc.)." (Weekly Book Review) Indexes.

"Much of the book is either historical or factual and, therefore, easily readable. It is certainly thorough and scholarly."
+ Book Week p8 My 16 '43 70w
Booklist 39:382 Je 1 '43

"Some handicap exists because of the pressure under which the first volume was written, thus necessitating some scattering of information on a number of topics through both volumes. The merit, however, quite outweighs such relatively minor criticisms. The work serves its purposes well and should be available to all explosives technologists. In elementary courses of instruction it will be useful as a reference. In the training of advanced students for special service in the field, it can be employed as a primary text. Many organic reactions are illustrated by structural formulas." W. J. Huff
+ — Chem & Eng N 21:1216 Jl 25 '43 370w
Chem & Met Eng 50:218 N '43 100w
Library J 68:476 Je 1 '43
N Y New Tech Bks 28:27 Ap '43

"Primarily for chemists, technical terms and structural formulae are used frequently and without apology. But there is much in the book of general interest, particularly historical information. Any person who wants to know about explosives will find these volumes enlightening, even if he is forced to skip the more technical parts." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p14 My 30 '43 300w

DAVIS-DUBOIS, RACHEL. See Dubois, R. D.

DAVISSON, ELIZABETH DERR. Polkadot of the Flying M ranch; il. by Theresa Kalab. 192p $2 Dutton 43-9418

Story of a deer, rescued by a cowboy, and taken to live at the Flying M ranch, where she became the pet of the twins William and

Patsy. When she grew older Polkadot joined her own kind, but every year returned to the ranch to exhibit her fawns. Told as if Polkadot were the narrator.

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:627 Ag '43 70w

"The reader is constantly aware that the speeches made to Polkadot, as well as those made by Polkadot, are a clumsy device for telling the tale. Consequently, one is seldom able to think of Polkadot as an animal, or to become vitally interested in her. . . One can easily understand how an actual occurrence, and a real deer, inspired the writing of this tale. But the author has not succeeded in making her animal heroine convincing. Theresa Kalab has drawn some pleasing pictures." A. T. Eaton
— N Y Times p8 Ag 1 '43 450w

"A strange story which is difficult to classify. Although it is the story of a fawn who is the narrator, it is not successfully a juvenile; although its background is a ranch, it is not a western; although it treats with adult relationships as well, it is not a novel. Each of its elements has a charm, once one has accepted the idea of a talking, rationalizing animal, but somehow it doesn't quite come off."
Springf'd Republican p7e S 26 '43 90w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 22 '43 270w

Wis Lib Bul 39:147 N '43

DAWSON, CHRISTOPHER HENRY. Judgment of the nations. 222p $2.50 (8s 6d) Sheed 261 Christianity and politics. Sociology, Christian. Reconstruction (1939-) 42-22598

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Jl '43
Commonweal 38:15 Ap 23 '43 600w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:6 Jl '43 30w

"Mr. Dawson's work is a tract for the times by a scholar of unusual range of knowledge and synthetic power. . . He raises, very properly, more problems than he solves. The meshes in his net are so large that both the argument and the criticism of it seem at times to slip through them. Some of the conceptions which he employs—the unity of Europe, Western civilisation, a super-national society—need a book each to give them content. But the work, as a whole, is highly suggestive and important. No one can read it without being driven to reflect on principles. And principles are what are most needed today." R. H. Tawney
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 24 '43 400w

Reviewed by C. E. M. Joad
New Statesman & Nation 26:141 Ag 28 '43 1150w

"The whole book, the author explains in the three sentences of his foreword, has taken four years in the writing, and cost greater labour and thought than any of his other books. It deserves to be read with the same anxiety, and the same devotion, which have gone to its writing. The reviewer once taught Mr. Dawson, over thirty years ago, at Oxford. He learned from his pupil, even when he was his teacher. He has learned from him steadily since. He has learned most of all from this book. Yet there are some criticisms which he would venture to suggest. The four years from 1939 to 1943 have been changing and kaleidoscopic years. It is hard to achieve consistency when one is writing in such times. Mr. Dawson, in some passages, and towards the beginning of his book, speaks of Russia as the inventor of totalitarianism and its peculiar home; in others, and towards the end, he includes Russia among the friends and makers of the new order." Ernest Barker
+ — Spec 170:152 F 12 '43 950w

"It is a small book, but the argument, although pellucidly clear, is highly condensed and summarizes much that Mr. Dawson has pleaded at greater length in his other works."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p110 Mr 6 '43 900w

Reviewed by C. W. Hendel
Yale R n s 32:818 summer '43 1150w

DAWSON, CLEO (MRS GEORGE EDWIN SMITH). She came to the valley. 388p map $2.75 Morrow
43-14464

The Rio Grande country, near the Mexican border, from 1905 to 1914, is the scene of this study of a valiant woman's struggle to make a living. Pat and Willy Westall went to the Texas frontier to live on the land, but when Pat was crippled, the burden was too much for Willy. She moved the family to a small town, bought and operated a store, and became a leading figure in her community.

"If you like serious books that carry you along, wide-eyed with excitement, page after page, this is your book! Willy Westall . . . is an unforgettable heroine. Her resourcefulness, her courage, her great mother-heart, make this story inspiring to any woman!" Marguerite Lyon
+ Book Week p4 O 17 '43 270w
Booklist 40:79 N 1 '43

Reviewed by R. A. Cordell
Sat R of Lit 26:18 O 23 '43 430w

"The long journey takes up the first quarter of the book and it is in this part that the author makes best use of her method of narrative writing. Her style is bare and her uniformly short sentences first lull and then irritate the reader. She sets down a mass of commonplace detail that seems to cry for the blue pencil. And yet the very jogging along of bare facts, recounted without artifice, gives the interminable journey its true weight of monotony and horror." Virginia Swain
+ Weekly Book Review p10 O 10 '43 650w

DAWSON, MICHAEL, pseud. Fathoms deep. 187p $2 Sheridan [6s Nicholson]
43-16217

War novel depicting life in a submarine on active service. It contains descriptions of the equipment and routine, as well as the private life and loves of the men themselves.

"It is a simple and moving book, recalling in method the documentary film." Harold Brighouse
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 9 '43 180w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 17 '43 280w
Times [London] Lit Sup p329 Jl 10 '43 60w

"Although not as technical as some of Eric Hudson's stories, 'Fathoms Deep' gives one a vivid sense of the life aboard a British submarine in the North Sea—the vigilance, the monotony, the comradeship and the precision of action which means the difference between success or disaster in combat. Mr. Dawson's novel faces the grim truth, but the effect is inspiring." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p20 O 10 '43 150w

DAWSON, PETER, pseud. See Glidden, J. H.

DAY, CLARENCE SHEPARD. Life with father and mother. 374p $2.75 Knopf
818 New York (city)—Social life and customs
43-51238

Omnibus volume containing the three books: God and My Father; Life With Father; and Life With Mother. The three have been combined and paged consecutively.

Booklist 40:17 S '43

DAY, C. S.—Continued

"The stories in 'Life with Father and Mother' are probably already in your library, under separate covers. If not, this omnibus volume is the best buy in a month of literary Sundays." William Du Bois

+ N Y Times p3 Ag 22 '43 650w

DEAK, FRANCIS. Hungary at the Paris peace conference; the diplomatic history of the Treaty of Trianon. (Carnegie endowment for int. peace. Division of economics and history. Paris peace conference; hist. and documents) 594p maps $5.50 Columbia univ. press

940.31412 Hungary—Foreign relations. Trianon, Treaty of, June 4, 1920. European war, 1914-1918—Hungary 42-19018

"This volume records one of the most important chapters in the diplomatic history of Europe. Although its central theme is the history of the negotiations which resulted in the Treaty of Trianon, Professor Deák has not confined himself to the technique of diplomacy. Instead he has conceived of his subject as one with deep roots in the past and fateful consequences for the future, and in judging the decisions taken and registered in the Treaty he has not lost sight of the political forces which conditioned the whole structure of the State system of Europe and the catastrophic blow which that structure suffered as a result of the first World War." (Foreword) Bibliography. Index.

"As the chief merit of this book its publishers mention that the 'narrative is based on heretofore undisclosed documentary sources' and that the author 'does not present the Hungarian point of view regarding the peace settlement. His approach is from the international point of view, presenting the Danubian area as a whole.'.. The first claim of the publishers can be fully indorsed... Though acknowledging the value of the material of the book, the second claim of the publishers seems to us unwarranted. There is very little international spirit in it, except when the author (following the point of view of Professor Shotwell expressed in his preface) emphasizes, somewhat abruptly, that the fundamental failure of the peace negotiations was 'to deal realistically and constructively with the problem of European peace as an indivisible whole.'" Oscar Jázi

+ — Am Hist R 48:563 Ap '43 750w

Reviewed by Klára Fetter

Am Pol Sci R 37:547 Je '43 1200w

"In several places in the volume there is a tendency, whether intentional or not, to stress disproportionately the Hungarian side of the story and to treat with quite unnecessary harshness those who might see things differently. This tendency is also betrayed in several annotated bibliographical footnotes... Deák's work should serve the purpose of stimulating the interest of all the other parties to explore their own respective sources in order to make it possible for the future historian to present a well-balanced picture of the Treaty of Trianon. But that must wait until the more urgent task, the winning of this war, is achieved." Josef Hanc

+ — Ann Am Acad 224:202 N '42 750w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:373 Ja '43 40w

DEAN, SIDNEY WALTER. Fighting Dan of the Long Rifles; with il. by Manning deV. Lee. 320p $2.50 Macrae Smith co.

B or 92 Morgan, Daniel—Juvenile literature 42-22814

Story biography of General Dan Morgan, beginning when he was a boy of nineteen, and carrying him thru his part in Braddock's defeat, on the terrible march to Quebec with Arnold, and thru the Revolution. For junior and senior high schools. Bibliography.

Booklist 39:143 D 15 '42

"Mr. Dean has written an exciting story of a hero with an indomitable will, fearlessness and a dauntless fighting spirit joined with intelligence and faithfulness. His full bibliography bears evidence to the thorough historical research required for such a compelling biography." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:104 Mr '43 130w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p8 Mr 21 '43 380w

DEBO, ANGIE. Tulsa; from creek town to oil capital. 124p il $1.50 Univ. of Okla. press

976.6861 Tulsa, Oklahoma 43-7340

"Miss Angie Debo of Marshall, Okla., one of the best known historians of the Southwest, and author of works on the Creeks and other Indian tribes, tells in this little book the story of the Lochapokas, of the sad and unwanted hegira from Talassi in Alabama and their life in the new western country they came to love. The founding of Tulsey Town, the bitter trials of Civil War days when the tribes were divided and confused by the issues that had split the encroaching white men, and the rapid evolution of the present industrial and cultural Tulsa, are all here in simple and often moving style." N Y Times

Booklist 40:9 S '43

Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 24 '43 550w

Reviewed by George Horne

+ N Y Times p21 Jl 18 '43 480w

Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 17 '43 500w

"Miss Debo's little book is pretty tepid for so flamboyant a subject. It is to be hoped that the true personality of raucous, garish, unbelievably swashbuckling Tulsa, a D'Artagnan among American cities, will yet be told by some one." P. I. Wellman

Weekly Book Review p24 Je 27 '43 550w

DE CAPITE, MICHAEL. Maria. 312p $2.50 Day 42-50852

Simple, unassuming story of Italian-American families in the United States. The locality is evidently Cleveland, and the central character is Maria, an American, born of Italian parents. Maria submits to an arranged marriage, suffers physical indignity at the hands of her husband Dominic, and tries to bring her children up as good Americans. Misfortune follows her all the way, but in her own way Maria conquers.

Booklist 39:319 Ap 1 '43

"Mr. De Capite writes with the knowledge and feeling of one who is subjectively involved with his story. While his book is not notable in a literary sense, it is highly successful in describing the life of the immigrant in America." Rose Feld

+ Books p10 Ja 17 '43 800w

"Well written, with sympathy, understanding, and sense of minor tragedy. Recommended." J. M. Flexner

+ Library J 68:35 Ja 1 '43 80w

"Mr. De Capite's 'Maria,' although full of expressed feeling, is fairly dull compared to 'Mount Allegro' [by Mangione]; passion without personality turns out to be less good reading than personality without passion." Diana Trilling

Nation 156:137 Ja 23 '43 270w

"For a first novel, this is a remarkably well written book. There are no preconceived or artificially constructed characters here. The people around Maria are as unexpected in their reactions, as colorful in their moods, as life itself. Their emotional ties with the old country make them both miserable and strong. They are not merely people without roots, but people growing new roots in a new country, regardless of whether or not they are aware of it. And this inevitable process of growing and changing becomes in itself a source of power, even if it may spell defeat instead of success in many individual cases." Marianne Hauser

+ N Y Times p5 Ja 10 '43 700w

"Most careful readers will be delighted to observe a growing maturity as the book advances. De Capite can write well (though with some trite phrases and trite situations) and by the end of the book he does. Fortunately, too, the theme has a greater universality than a solitary group of unhappy immigrants in a single Midwestern city." Lee Varley

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 10 '43 410w

DE COSTER, CHARLES. See Coster, C. T. H. de

DEEPING, WARWICK. Slade. 327p $2.50 Dial press [9s 6d Cassell]

43-11463

Mrs Pomeroy, proprietress of a select Private Hotel in a middle-class Victorian community, brings home one day a shy, retiring man to act as porter and general factotum. In time Slade becomes a favorite with both staff and guests, and eventually the facts are revealed as to the relationship between Mrs Pomeroy, Slade, and Mrs Pomeroy's little daughter, Rose.

"Its reading that you must do in the Christmas spirit and you must be most cooperative to get over that initial strain on the credulity to accept a man's leaving a nice comfortable prison to work for a tyrant like Mrs. Pomeroy whom he must 'madam' all over the place. But once you have overcome this obstacle, you will, if you have that spirit already spoken of, find 'Slade' a gentle, pleasant, mellow bit of reading." E. J. Cronin

Book Week p7 Ag 15 '43 230w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Watts

Boston Globe p17 Ag 11 '43 230w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse

Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 6 '43 30w

"For the many readers who loved 'Sorrel and Son,' and who pant for more of the same, Mr. Deeping has provided a story that goes it one better in this Slade and Daughter. A little girl with 'a primrose face' can't help being sweeter than a little boy." Charlotte Dean

N Y Times p7 Ag 1 '43 380w

"This is not one of Mr. Deeping's best books. . . As a novel it may, however, make an appeal to those sentimentalists who do not demand too strict a realism."

Times [London] Lit Sup p353 Jl 24 '43 270w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p17 Jl 25 '43 330w

DEGENHARD, WILLIAM. The regulators. 598p $3 Dial press

43-7380

Historical novel based on the Shays Rebellion in Massachusetts in 1786.

Reviewed by Edith Roberts

Book Week p5 Je 6 '43 900w

Booklist 39:446 Jl 1 '43

"Since Mr. Degenhard has explored his period so thoroughly, it seems obvious that he is pointing a moral here. Though he deliberately drowns his protagonist in the cross-currents of political evolution, he has brought the times alive with a painstaking skill. Despite its dimensions, 'The Regulators' is never dull. Mr. Degenhard has written a novel to end all novels about Dan Shays; and, though you will need stamina to stay with him to the end, he will not let you down." William Du Bois

+ N Y Times p8 My 2 '43 800w

"A cut above the usual historical novels, though perhaps not so active as some."

+ New Yorker 19:74 My 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by N. L. Rothman

Sat R of Lit 26:44 My 22 '43 320w

"Mr. Degenhard has blown the dust of archives from a minor but significant incident, presenting it with clarity and animation." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p12 My 9 '43 600w

DEGERING, EDWARD FRANKLIN, and others. Fundamental organic chemistry. 485p il $3; pa $2 Swift, J.S.

547 Chemistry, Organic 42-23018

"Somewhat different from the ordinary line of textbooks, this volume aims to stress both theoretical and practical aspects of the field in a concise, dynamic, interesting and systematic style. Some 90 pages are devoted to a kaleidoscopic survey of organic chemistry which deals principally with the concept of relative electronegativity in homologous series. The theoretical approach in this section is, as the author states, 'an attempt to systematize organic chemistry, and is offered as a theoretical postulate that may or may not be vindicated by experimental data.' The book [is] a companion to the Quadri-Service Manual and the Work Book of Fundamental Organic Chemistry." Chem & Met Eng

Reviewed by G. A. Hill

Am Chem Soc J 65:743 Ap '43 150w

"Too much space is given to electronic formulas. . . There are numerous repetitions in the text which increase its length. The Wurtz reaction is explained 3 times within 30 pages. There are typographical errors." T. S. Oakwood

Chem & Eng N 21:576 Ap 25 '43 300w

"Instead of being set in type, this textbook has been reproduced by photo-off-set and planographed. Possibly as a result, some of the footnotes and tables of physical properties are not as readable as would be desired. However, as a rule, both text material and illustrations have been reproduced satisfactorily."

+ Chem & Met Eng 50:167 Ja '43 280w

DEJONG, DAVID CORNEL. Across the board. 79p $2 Harper

811 43-3164

Selection of fifty poems, from the author's works which have appeared in such magazines as Poetry, Southern Review, The Nation, Atlantic Monthly, Saturday Review of Literature, Hound and Horn, etc.

"Too much devolves upon the reader. Even the most searching and sympathetic will carry away a feeling that technique steals precedence over sense, and that there is little of a human common denominator. The poet appears to be riding a spangled Pegasus, standing on his hands and balancing balloons with his feet as the horse prances about in a circus ring. The performance is spectacular. . . DeJong is a poet to be watched. A writer with so keen an imagination and with so brilliant a technique could go far if he would write not merely for a group of initiates but for the impending world of the common man." Walter Hendricks

Book Week p7 My 16 '43 950w

Reviewed by David Daiches

New Repub 109:149 Ag 2 '43 60w

Reviewed by Horace Gregory

N Y Times p19 Jl 25 '43 60w

"Though each poem of Mr. De Jong's is recognizably his own, and though his art often finds complete expression in a single lyric, this first book enables us to consider his work in terms of sustained quality, thematic persistence, variety and technical skill. . . Mr. De Jong is above all a contrapuntal poet, but contrapuntal without solution. Words and themes recur many times as in counterpoint. The chief danger of this method is that one may degenerate to the mere sequence of separate poetic remarks and insights without the final summation which true counterpoint achieves. This danger Mr. De Jong does not always escape." Wallace Fowlie

+ — Poetry 62:170 Je '43 900w

DEJONG, D. C.—Continued

"Among contemporary poets who have eschewed intelligibility as a mark of emancipation from the traditional patterns, rhythmic and rhetorical, David Cornel De Jong must be accorded fairly high rank. One always demurs at reporting adversely on a first book of poems, but an author with a string of five novels and innumerable magazine appearances to his credit ought to be able to take it. 'Across the Board,' which De Jong nominates a book of poems is hardly more than a collection of labored words and phrases arbitrarily divided into stanzas, with titles that bear no ascertainable relation to the pieces they purport to describe. . . De Jong's striving to be modern and unorthodoxly poetic results only in a monotonous performance, befuddling to the senses, and entirely futile as far as conveying any meaning or emotion." Gustav Davidson
— Sat R of Lit 26:48 Ap 17 '43 160w

"It is the work of a mature talent—technically sure, sensitively and originally employed." Ruth Lechlitner
+ Weekly Book Review p14 Je 20 '43 550w

DE JONG, DOLA (MRS JAN HOOWIJ). The level land; il. by Jan Hoowij. 164p $1.75 Scribner 43-18201

Story of Holland on the eve of the invasion and just after the blow fell. The family of a doctor living not far from Amsterdam, a typical fine Dutch family, is chosen to carry out this story for young readers.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p7 D 26 '43 320w
Booklist 40:167 Ja 1 '44

"To us it is the most convincing story of the war yet written for young people. It is a deeply moving book written without bitterness and with a faith in life which is heartening. . . In this book which is both gay and tragic the characters are so real one feels quite sure when the war is over that we shall find them again and learn with what fine courage and independence they have lived since the last pages were written. This is a heart-warming book for any age." H. A. Masten
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 D 23 '43 270w

Reviewed by Alice Dalgliesh
+ Horn Bk 19:381 N '43 600w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:40 Ja '44 70w

"Narrative is lively and will interest boys and girls in fifth and sixth grades. Book will increase friendly international feeling." H. M. Clark
+ Library J 69:72 Ja 15 '44 90w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 20w

"This is an important story, because it is an honest picture of a great people." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 26:42 N 13 '43 550w

"The story is gay, with an undercurrent of seriousness, the Nazi invasion is well handled, and most of all it portrays the faith that has carried the people of Holland through the dark years." L. W. K.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 12 '43 110w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p18 N 14 '43 300w

DEJONG, MEINDERT. The cat that walked a week; pictures by Jessie Robinson. 148p $1.50 Harper
43-16877

The little white cat annoyed the neighbors in the city apartment, so they stole him from the little boy who loved him. The cat was taken far out in the country and left to die. But the little white cat fooled his kidnappers; after a long painful week of walking, he found his way home. For ages six to ten.

"An unusually interesting story for 6 to 10-year-olds. The adventures of the all-white cat contain a sort of breathless magic that will keep young readers turning page after page without wanting to set the book aside." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p7 Ja 2 '44 200w

"Recommended." Olive Brain
+ Library J 69:74 Ja 15 '44 50w

"Story told in an artificially simple style with constant repetition. The revelling in cruelty, the story which is not convincing and sentimentality of both style and incident make this entirely unacceptable." Alice Monroe
— Library J 69:74 Ja 15 '44 110w

"Meindert DeJong has a way of rooting his stories in the small homely things we know so well, yet infusing them with a high-tension vitality which adds up to miniature drama with a curious, dreamlike quality. So it is with the adventures of the little all-white cat. . . Despite a stunning disregard of the probabilities of natural science the tale of the little cat's desperate homecoming holds our sympathy in such suspense that, once started, we must see him safe back in his master's lap with a heart felt sense of relief. For children from 6 to 10." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p12 D 26 '43 200w
New Yorker 19:130 D 4 '43 50w

"There is something very touching about the dreamy little story, not in the cat's trials, but in its complete confidence in the goodness of those it meets." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p5 F 6 '44 240w

DEJONG, MEINDERT. Little stray dog; with pictures by Edward Shenton. 51p $1.50 Harper 43-8695

Story for children of six to ten about a small stray dog who was rescued from the dog catcher by a resolute little old lady and an equally resolute small boy.

"A pleasant story for eight- to ten-year-old children." Dorotha Dawson
+ Library J 68:578 Jl '43 50w

"Lovable little dog and boy are wasted on story so filled with unpleasant adults that even a happy ending does not relieve its depressing effect. Too many better dog stories for eight-year-olds to make it necessary to purchase this. Not recommended." J. L. Sauer
— Library J 68:578 Jl '43 40w

"A good dog story for any one up to ten, and the pictures and typographic set-up are admirable." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 1 '43 300w

DE KRUIF, PAUL HENRY. Kaiser wakes the doctors. 158p $2 Harcourt
614.2 Medical service, Industrial. Garfield, Sidney Roy. Kaiser, Henry J. 43-51254

An account of Henry J. Kaiser's plan to furnish medical service to the employees of his shipyards. Told largely thru a sketch of the work and philosophy of Dr Garfield, Kaiser's medical chief of staff.

"The book is easy to read; and one is so strongly caught in the surging tide of great accomplishments that, for the time being at least, he tends to cheer Mr. Kaiser and his medical director and their shining goal just as he would cheer for Galahad and the Holy Grail, or for Horatio Alger, Jr. The author creates this state of mind in his readers by dramatizing ordinarily humdrum situations, by creating hero rôles for his characters, and, to no small extent, by his own Gargantuan enthusiasm. . . Although in hyperbole, it recounts a fine undertaking from which much that is sound may be learned." H. S. Mustard
+ — Am J Pub Health 33:1362 N '43 550w
Am J Soc 49:196 S '43 10w

Reviewed by Ethel Shanas
Am J Soc 49:278 N '43 200w

Reviewed by Ellwood Douglass
Book Week p1 S 12 '43 1250w
Booklist 40:40 O 1 '43
Christian Century 60:1042 S 15 '43 80w
Reviewed by E. L. Keyes
Commonweal 38:543 S 17 '43 180w

"De Kruif's explosive style makes book read like a radio script. Somewhat slender contribution to popular literature on health insurance for the common man, but will appeal to the many De Kruif enthusiasts." J. C. Shipman
Library J 68:665 S 1 '43 60w

"Mr. de Kruif's enthusiasm runs high, and his style is rather flamboyant at times, but his book is a tract to be used as propaganda in an important fight that is just beginning and perhaps his tone is more valuable for the purpose than a cooler, more scientific approach would have been." B. B.
New Repub 109:434 S 27 '43 180w

"The tale not only is engrossing—for de Kruif knows how to marshal his facts and infuse them with life—but of social importance. It leaves no doubt that much can be done to distribute medical care rationally, and at low cost, to what the Bureau of Census calls 'the gainfully employed,' if the Kaisers in industry are given free rein." Waldemar Kaempffert
+ N Y Times p5 S 12 '43 1350w

"Fascinating account of a successful attack on the problem of prepaid, low-cost medicine, but it may be that the author, in his somewhat labored enthusiasm, overestimates the long-term virtues of Kaiser's enlightened paternalism."
— + New Yorker 19:87 S 11 '43 70w

"Paul de Kruif, indefatigable popularizer of matters medical and scientific, has met Henry Kaiser. The impact was terrific. Part of the resulting shower of sparks is now gathered into a breathless book. What Henry Kaiser, between ship launchings, has done to and for American medicine is one of the most important nonmilitary byproducts of this war. For that reason Mr de Kruif's book deserves wide reading, as it is likely to receive because of his large following. It must be added, in candid warning, that as a piece of writing 'Kaiser Wakes the Doctors' is pretty bad." Marshall Bragdon
+ — Springf'd Republican p6 S 11 '43 650w
Reviewed by M. M. Davis
Survey G 32:457 N '43 460w

"As a vision of medical utopia, as a challenge to the imagination and to man's dream of a more perfect tomorrow, this is a good and interesting book, but one which lacks balance. De Kruif ascribes selfishness and reactionism to all doctors opposing prepaid medical care. But more than one eminent doctor has criticized prepaid medical care for better reasons than those. There is the danger of hospitals falling under control of cliques, with staff appointments made for considerations other than ability. There is the fact that under the plan a patient often has no choice of doctors, but takes whoever is available. De Kruif might have done better to recognize some of the criticisms of the other side." J. G. Rogers
+ — Weekly Book Review p5 S 12 '43 1250w
Wis Lib Bul 39:120 O '43

DELAFIELD, E. M. pseud. See De La Pasture, E. E. M.

DE LA PASTURE, EDMEE ELIZABETH MONICA (MRS A. P. DASHWOOD) (E. M. DELAFIELD, pseud). Late and soon. 301p $2.50 Harper [8s 6d Macmillan]

43-9415

In 1914 Valentine Levallois had met and fallen in love with a young Irish painter in Rome. Separated by her parents they did not meet again until 1942 when Colonel Lonergan is billeted in Lady Arbell's home, Coombe. Valentine Arbell is a widow with two daughters and the story of a middle-aged romance is complicated by the nature and actions of the older daughter, Primrose.

"An almost incredibly Edwardian (nice euphemism for hammy) plot is handled in a quite believable manner by E. M. Delafield in 'Late and Soon.' . . Somehow I didn't laugh except when I was supposed to—and there are numerous instances of the author's brilliant, shrewd wit. . . The situation is handled delicately and credibly—with the exception of Lonergan's ability to make trigger-quick decisions. The war background of 'Late and Soon' is a long way off, and altogether it is a novel which can be recommended for relaxing vacation reading." Dorsey McCarthy
+ — Book Week p5 Jl 18 '43 450w
Booklist 40:13 S '43

"Dialogue is amusing, local color good, and characterization fair. Should please those who enjoy humorous English stories of superficial nature." M. P. McKay
Library J 68:429 My 15 '43 70w

"Mrs. Delafield's neat drawing-room comedy is seasoned with characters who invite satire and she provides some clever dialogue, but most of us won't join the author in shedding a tear at the impending doom of England's County way of life."
New Repub 109:294 Ag 30 '43 60w
Reviewed by Philip Toynbee
New Statesman & Nation 25:422 Je 26 '43 50w
Reviewed by Mary Poore
N Y Times p6 Je 27 '43 600w

"The author handles an unpleasant situation with all the delicacy you might expect from her. What you might not expect, though, is a rather deeper feeling and a flexibility of style that put the novel a shelf or two above Miss Delafield's witty comedies of manners. Plenty of wit, too, notably in the author's hilarious ragging of the English ruling classes."
+ New Yorker 19:69 Je 26 '43 110w

"This is not a very long novel as they are measured today, being barely three hundred pages, but it would have gained immensely in effectiveness had it been pruned further by about a hundred pages. Not that it ever lags or seems really padded; Miss Delafield is too good a writer for that. But the love story she tells here is so essentially simple in outline and limited in scope, so delicate in the tone she has given it, that it would have had a more concentrated force within a smaller space, instead of seeming a little dissipated in strength, a little overtold." N. L. Rothman
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:11 Jl 3 '43 250w

"The book has a plenitude of situations, reminiscent of the West End theatre with its dramatic hall-lounge-cum-drawing-room sets and the characters made stagey with tension. All done very neatly, if a little out of date and unconvincing as a whole." John Hampson
— Spec 170:576 Je 18 '43 340w

"A successful amalgamation of 'drawing room drama' with the crass realities of an era in which artificial barriers are being destroyed by war. The result is a series of subtle characterizations as well as some enjoyable storytelling." L. S. Munn
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 27 '43 470w
Times [London] Lit Sup p269 Je 5 '43 330w
Reviewed by Mary Ross
Weekly Book Review p6 Je 27 '43 1100w

DE LEEUW, ADELE LOUISE. Linda Marsh. 263p $2 Macmillan

43-14086

Linda Marsh, tho she had been fairly successful in taking her mother's place at home, felt herself a failure among her high school classmates. How Linda overcame her shyness and came to feel that she "belonged," makes up this story for older girls.

"A natural wholesome story of the present day." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Ja 27 '44 150w

DE LEEUW, A. L.—Continued
Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:823 O 15 '43 30w

"Good example of family relationships and community life under modern wartime conditions. 'Career' book only in sense of personal living, without earmarks of conscious information and moralizing. Sound, sweet, original." Maude Adams
+ Library J 68:848 O 15 '43 90w

"As high school, especially in junior year, is so often an experimental station for the years ahead, Linda's career has more than entertainment value for girls entering the teens." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 N 7 '43 310w

DE LEEUW, ADELE LOUISE. Patchwork quilt; with il. by Cateau de Leeuw. 175p $2 Little 43-15173

Nancy-Jo was getting over measles at her grandmother's house; but there was nothing at all she could do until her eyes were better. So every day she was allowed to select one patch from the quilt which covered her bed, and her grandmother told her a story about the little girl who had worn the original dress, sixty years before. For girls of six to ten.

"If you know a little girl who is home with a cold, or the measles, or anything at all that keeps her in bed, you'll find the 'Patchwork Quilt' an ideal gift. Not that it isn't just as entertaining for a perfectly well little girl, but it has a very special attraction as a read-aloud book for the sick-abed." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p3 N 14 '43 140w
Booklist 40:98 N 15 '43
Reviewed by M. B. Snow
Library J 68:1050 D 15 '43 70w

"Simple joys they were, those of sixty years ago, yet as they come back—in a spirit so exactly right that a writer so young must be congratulated on getting it—they bring gayety to our city children." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p10 N 14 '43 200w

DE LEEUW, HENDRIK. Peewee the mousedeer; pictures by Tibor Gergely. 72p $2 McKay 43-7557

Stories about the clever little mousedeer, the Javanese equivalent of Brer Rabbit.

"Pee Wee's escapades are amusing and highly unedifying. Tibor Gergeley's clever drawings in cartoon style generously supplement text. Will divide children's librarians into camps pro and con, the larger one probably con. Oblong picture book in format; reading difficulty for children nine to eleven." Gertrude Andrus
Library J 68:576 Jl '43 90w

"The text lacks the fine simplicity of the folk tale retold in childlike fashion. . . The happenings and characters never achieve the reality of those in the fanciful animal tale written with genuine imagination." A. T. Eaton
— N Y Times p13 Ag 8 '43 200w
Sat R of Lit 26:27 N 13 '43 50w

"The pictures are consistently funny and there are plenty of them; I'd say they put up a resistance to dull 'comics' by offering funny ones to the nursery." M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p12 My 23 '43 250w

D'ELISCU, FRANCOIS. How to prepare for military fitness; il. by Stephen J. Voorhies. 216p $1.96 Norton
355.07 U.S.—Army—Physical training. Physical education and training 43-6734

"In text and pictures this manual covers physical testing, calisthenics and conditioning exercises, alertness drills, wall scaling and tumbling, military track, wartime swimming, elementary American judo and other forms of close combat, and disarming. It explains many new stunts, dual combatives, and rough and tumble games that help develop necessary agility and stamina and gives plans for a variety of outdoor and indoor obstacle courses." Publisher's note

Book Week p5 Je 27 '43 320w
Booklist 39:420 Je 15 '43

"Physical skills that will be of value and use to the soldiers are concisely and clearly explained. The author speaks with authority, out of his experience in 'hardening' the army's Ranger units." R. T. Berry
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 23 '43 220w

DELL, AMEN. Johnny on the spot. 256p $2 Arcadia 43-5776

Mystery story.

"The plot of this one isn't so bad, but the writing, or rather the point of view of the author, is a little on the puerile side." Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p9 Ap 25 '43 180w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p20 Ap 18 '43 150w

DE MARCO, ROLAND REINALD. Italianization of African natives; government native education in the Italian colonies, 1890-1937. 150p $2.35 Teachers college
371.9 Italy—Colonies. Africa—Native races. Education—Africa 43-13289

"This is a study of the pattern which Italy followed in the education and nationalization of her colonial native populations from 1890-1937. The account is interesting and thoroughly documented. The bibliography is comprehensive." Social Studies

"The author's competence would seem to be entirely adequate, and his sources are impressively numerous. He controls the Italian language perfectly, and has been diligent to include all the relevant documents and unofficial discussions of the subject." M. J. Herskovits
+ Am Soc R 8:738 D '43 550w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:166 O '43 50w

"This is an interesting and timely volume whose only real weakness appears to be in its title. On the basis of its well-documented contents it might more aptly have been called 'Attempts to Italianize the African Natives.' For it covers very well the philosophy and legislation and textbook materials which made up the educational system intended for natives in the Italian colonies of Libya and Italian East Africa during approximately the last half century. But it does not—because in existing circumstances it obviously could not—say much about the actual effectiveness of the Italianizing process." W. C. Langsam
+ Social Educ 7:280 O '43 500w
Social Studies 34:286 O '43 30w

DEMING, DOROTHY. Penny Marsh and Ginger Lee, wartime nurses. 236p $2 Dodd 43-14290

Continues story begun in Penny Marsh, Public Health Nurse, and Ginger Lee: War Nurse (Book Review Digest 1938 and 1942). "After Penny Marsh's husband leaves with the Army Medical Corps, she turns to Red Cross nursing, teaching, and being useful at home. Ginger Lee postpones her marriage to rejoin the Army nurses and is sent overseas. Not spectacular or over-exciting, but gives a clear picture of the qualities and duties required of a nurse, regardless of where she serves." (Wis Lib Bul) For older girls.

"Footnote references to earlier titles in 'Penny Marsh' series seem pointless and tiresome. Format excellent." Maude Adams
Library J 68:848 O 15 '43 80w
Wis Lib Bul 39:162 D '43

DE MONTMORENCY, ALEC. Enigma of Admiral Darlan. 194p $2.50 Dutton

B or 92 Darlan, François. World war, 1939—France 43-5453

Brief biography of Admiral Darlan by a refugee French journalist, a former staff member of Paris Soir.

"It is regrettable that the author is a weak writer; with the materials in his possession, the tragic fate of Darlan could have been presented much more impressively." Eric Voegelin

Am Pol Sci R 37:751 Ag '43 370w

Reviewed by L. P. Lovette

Ann Am Acad 229:189 S '43 400w

Atlantic 171:131 Je '43 120w

"It is a pretty thin book, undocumented and, I should guess, unreliable. . . Throughout the book runs that strange tolerance of the Axis, combined with hatred of Britain and Russia and indifference to the United Nations cause, which are the marks of the Vichyite everywhere." Robert Lasch

— Book Week p5 My 16 '43 310w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:13 Jl '43 80w

"Whether interpretation is proper one or not, study will be valuable in providing background for understanding of France's present position. Public libraries, in particular, will find this useful." L. I. Poste

+ Library J 68:286 Ap 1 '43 100w

"When a book offers startling facts unsupported by any document, it may still have a certain degree of validity if some authority attaches to the author's name, or if the work presents a consistent, plausible hypothesis. In this case, both these conditions are lacking." Albert Guérard

— Nation 156:708 My 15 '43 700w

"It would, I think, be possible to make out some sort of case for Admiral Darlan. . . But I do not think that we shall ever see a hero in him, and it is doubtful whether the historians of the future will ever be able to make him into a martyred patriot. Certainly Mr. de Montmorency has not done so. On the contrary, his book only serves to emphasize the man's overweaning ambition and the deep vein of authoritarianism in him." Varian Fry

New Repub 108:738 My 31 '43 1250w

"This book has the merit that its author knows a great deal more about his subject than those millions who have during the past three years condemned Admiral Darlan as a traitor, or, more recently, sought to extol him as a martyr. It is not an objective book. Mr. de Montmorency never takes any trouble to conceal his approval of the way Admiral Darlan felt and acted in different crises. But neither does he seek to disguise or distort what he knows or believes to have been his hero's aims and motives." P. J. Philip

N Y Times p25 My 9 '43 900w

"Alec de Montmorency presents his evidently biased and seemingly sophist version of the man's history in 'The Enigma of Admiral Darlan'. De Montmorency is a stanch admirer of the admiral and one suspects, a man of strong antirepublican leanings. It is in trying to grasp the royalist, religious and republican factors in French politics that most Americans fail. This book, though no even-handed clarification of these, is somewhat helpful in this regard while reviewing the admiral's personal record and political affiliations." L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 25 '43 650w

"It is difficult to know just how seriously one should take Mr. de Montmorency, who seems himself to be a slightly mysterious character. Moreover, the way in which the book scornfully dismisses de Gaulle as a blind puppet of Britain, and the sourly anti-British note which runs all through it, make it something less than a contribution to inter-Allied harmony. One can understand why there should be a certain gingerliness in the publisher's presentation of it. But, whether it is to be taken literally or as itself only a symptom, it is undoubtedly illuminating as to some of the difficulties confronting the democracies in their relations with France." Walter Millis

Weekly Book Review p2 Ap 18 '43 1350w

DEMPEWOLFF, RICHARD. Animal reveille. 272p il $3 Doubleday

355.68 World war, 1939—Animals in the war 43-16740

Account of the uses to which various animals have been put in the present war. Includes material on mules, camels, dogs, horses, pigeons and cats.

Booklist 40:139 D 15 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

"Recommended for older boys and girls." H. M. Brogan

+ Library J 69:74 Ja 15 '44 110w

Reviewed by Jack Gould

N Y Times p6 Ja 9 '44 480w

"Not only is 'Animal Reveille' good reading, but it is an excellent reference book. It has 50 illustrations, in addition to graphic endpages." C. B. Kibbe

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 5 '43 250w

Reviewed by R. B. Peck

Weekly Book Review p12 N 21 '43 750w

DENCH, ROBERT, and STEWART, ROSEMARIE. Pair skating and dancing on ice; with instructional diagrams and action photographs of the authors. 157p $2 Prentice-Hall

796.91 Skating 43-5694

The authors' "aim has been to discuss pair skating in general and to describe the main pair-skating steps, lifts, and figures. This book is for competitive amateurs and professional show skaters, as well as for those who are interested in pair skating and dancing for their own relaxation and enjoyment." (Pref)

Booklist 39:384 Je 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

DENGEL, MRS VERONICA. Personality unlimited; the beauty blue book; il. by Sylvia Haggander. 495p $3 Winston

613 Beauty, Personal 43-8348

A guide to the care of skin, hair, eyes, feet, hands, and figure, together with the fundamental rules of good health and diet. Also contains chapters on the selection of clothes, good grooming, manners and speech.

Book Week p5 Je 27 '43 600w

Booklist 40:55 O 15 '43

DENISON, MERRILL. Klondike Mike; an Alaskan odyssey. 393p il $3.50 Morrow

917.98 Mahoney, Michael Ambrose. Frontier and pioneer life—Alaska 43-3676

Mike Mahoney was a boy of twenty when he left the home-farm in Quebec, eventually to arrive in Alaska in search of adventure and fortune. He became in time a typical sourdough, except that he never drank or smoked, and tho he knew bad luck, and lost a small fortune or two, at the end of fifteen years he came back home, happily married and with an ample fortune. While this book concludes with a sketch of Mike Mahoney's career since his return to civilization, most of it deals with the adventurous Alaska years.

"This story has the authentic ring of observed experience. It has been geared by an imaginative biographer to a surrounding world of actuality. The whole account makes splendid reading. In a day when war seems to set the pace of all adventuring, it is well to remember that the conquest of the earth and the elements also calls upon a man's full fortitude and ingenuity and leads to fruitful ends." Josephine Herbst

+ Book Week p2 Ap 25 '43 900w

DENISON, MERRILL—Continued
Booklist 39:386 Je 1 '43
Bookmark 4:17 My '43
Cath World 158:412 Ja '44 140w
Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Jl '43
Reviewed by E. P. Nichols
Library J 68:330 Ap 15 '43 80w

"Klondike Mike thought he was lucky when he and his partner spread out on a soiled copy of the Fairbanks Miner 'every kind of gold known to placer mining—flour, dust, wheat grains, nuggets, one nugget alone as big as the heel of a man's hand.' Michael Mahoney is no less lucky in his biography, for Merrill Denison has written with verve and humor, with color and authority." R. E. Berry
+ N Y Times p6 Ap 4 '43 700w

"Mr. Denison's story of Klondike Mike is vivid and fast-moving but essentially superficial. There is little analysis of the background of the gold-seekers, of their eventual destiny, of what the hysteria of the gold rush did to Alaska and the Yukon. But for anyone who wants to know about the hardships and adventures of the old Yukon, this is the best book in many years. It is ideal background for reading about the construction of the Alaskan Highway." R. L. Neuberger
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:22 My 29 '43 500w

"Mr Denison's story of Mike Mahoney is quite free from hero worship, although it is naturally impossible to record some of Klondike's deeds without becoming a little excited. In the long run, he has done both Klondike Mike and Alaska a service in presenting the factual basis of a legend and in giving an apparently uncolored picture of a great episode in history. That the story does not lose its Jack London flavor, even when the fiction is peeled off, is a credit to both the biographer and his subject." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 28 '43 430w

"The Alaska and Yukon that did exist was quite an interesting place at times, though often boring, and a good honest slice of it has been put between covers by Klondike Mike Mahoney, who does the talking, and Merrill Denison, who sets it down in plain, forthright prose. I believe it to be more accurate than most old sourdough tales if for no other reason than that Mahoney did not learn to read until he was fifty-three, many years after he left the creeks with a small fortune." Stewart Holbrook
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ap 4 '43 1300w

DENNIS, CLARA. Cape Breton over; foreword by Angus L. Macdonald; il. with phot. taken by the author. 342p $4.50 Humphries
917.169 Cape Breton island A43-1047

"Miss Dennis has already written two books on her native province: Down in Novia Scotia (Toronto, 1934), and More About Nova Scotia (Toronto, 1937). In Cape Breton Over she continues to record all she has seen and been told on her travels, particularly by the elderly descendants of early settlers. The result is an amorphous mass of folk-lore, description, and local history." Canadian Hist R

Reviewed by Marion Gilroy
Canadian Hist R 24:75 Mr '43 130w
Reviewed by Jacques Ducharme
Springf'd Republican p8 N 4 '43 470w

DENNIS, MORGAN. The pup Himself [il. by the author]. [42p] $1 Viking 43-14818

Himself was hungry, homeless, and friendless when he started out one morning on a series of adventures which finally landed him on the stage of a variety show theater. There Himself did so well in an impromptu act that the Dog Trainer grabbed him before the Dog Catcher could get there, and Himself, as the Clown Dog, became the star of the show. A picture-story book for first readers.

"A picture book that is at once appealing, funny, and exciting."
+ Booklist 40:81 N 1 '43
Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:818 O 15 '43 50w

"Delightful pictures by the author will endear Himself to any lover of dogs although the book is intended for children from five to seven." E. G. Mullan
+ Library J 68:962 N 15 '43 50w

"Can anyone, dog lover or not, resist this ragamuffin of a puppy? Printed in sepia on cream-colored paper, his adventures will lead the children into beauty and laughter." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:30 Ja 29 '44 230w
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 16 '44 150w

DENNISON, ELEANOR ELIZABETH. Senate Foreign relations committee. 201p il $2.50 Stanford univ. press
328.3627 U.S. Congress. Senate. Foreign relations committee. U.S.—Foreign relations 42-19281

History of the part played by the Senate in the foreign relations of the United States. The study is divided into four sections: the first covers the growth of the Committee, methods of appointment, importance of the chairmanship, and procedure. In the second the membership from 1816 to 1940 is analyzed. The third discusses the influence of the Committee, and illustrates important results of an exercise of power inherent in the position of chairman. The fourth analyzes three specific instances of the operation of the Committee, the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty of 1850, Cuban question from 1895 to 1898, and the World Court issue. An appendix gives the complete personnel of the Committee in each Congress from the time the Committee was established. Index.

"The book as a whole is a worth-while and timely treatment of the subject." J. M. Mathews
+ Am Hist R 48:619 Ap '43 500w

"An adequate monograph on the Committee requires far more work than this partial study, which should not have been printed thus prematurely. It compares most unfavorably with Albert C. F. Westphal's recent and much more thorough work on the less important House Committee on Foreign Affairs. Incidentally, the title is a misnomer for the Committee on Foreign Relations, United States Senate." S. F. Bemis
— Ann Am Acad 224:218 N '42 330w

"Readable and reliable monograph." R. G. Woolbert
+ Foreign Affairs 21:370 Ja '43 40w
Reviewed by G. V. Ferguson
Pacific Affairs 16:248 Je '43 140w

DENNISON, LEONIDAS RICHARDSON. Caroni gold; with 30 il. from phot. by the author. 274p $2.50 Hastings house
918.7 Venezuela—Description and travel. Gold mines and mining 43-8916

The author, an American mining engineer, was in Venezuela in 1926, the year of low water in the Caroni river. According to native tradition once in every fourteen years the river becomes low enough to make the search for gold and diamonds in its bed easy and profitable. Mr Dennison, who journeyed to the region to see for himself, became an interested spectator and participant in a gold rush reminiscent for a few weeks of Klondike days.

Reviewed by B. D. Wolfe
Book Week p6 Je 20 '43 700w
Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '43

"The book, written with colorful detail and a fine adventurous swing, will fascinate armchair treasure hunters. It may well serve a more serious purpose. For it is a true story; in all essentials a genuine engineer's report." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p28 My 23 '43 600w

"Mildly interesting, sometimes revealing of the mysteries of the uncharted interior." Hubert Herring

Sat R of Lit 26:7 Je 12 '43 70w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 27 '43 280w

"It is a graphic personal narrative, and gives one a vivid insight into the ways of a primitive people."

+ Weekly Book Review p14 Je 6 '43 150w

DE POLNAY, PETER. Germans came to Paris [Eng title: Death and tomorrow]. 280p $2.75 Duell [12s 6d Secker]

944.08 France—History—German occupation, 1940- 43-51324

Personal reminiscences of the author's life in Paris and occupied and unoccupied France during the months after the French surrender. The author, son of a Hungarian diplomat, was brought up in England and has written a number of novels in English.

"A few of the author's political conclusions are open to dispute. Nonetheless, his experiences and keen observations, so well related, will be a source of wealth for future historians, bent on studying that German freak, Nazism. No doubt, Homeric laughter will resound when they come to the chapter, Deutsche Kulturmission, the German cultural mission." H. L. Reich

+ — Book Week p4 O 31 '43 400w

Booklist 40:112 D 1 '43

Reviewed by Harold Hobson

Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 23 '43 470w

"'The Germans Came to Paris' is less of a thriller than some of the most recent books on escapes from occupied Europe, but it rings true to the last detail and offers a wealth of information as well as some wise reflections on human behavior in war and peace.." E. S. P.

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 N 5 '43 500w

"Throughout there is rather too much about Mr. de Polnay's personality and not enough about the great events around him; all the same this is a valuable, interesting book, which adds a good deal to our understanding of France after defeat." A. J. P. T.

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 S 25 '42 150w

"Mr. de Polnay does not command a very elegant style, but his comments are often acute, and he has a novelist's eye for detail. The first half of his book I therefore strongly recommend." Raymond Mortimer

+ — New Statesman & Nation 24:194 S 19 '42 950w

"'The Germans Came to Paris' is an interesting book about an extremely sordid chapter of the present war. At no time is it breathless or dramatic reading. Rarely even is it sympathetic or moving. Composed of small mosaics of incidents pieced together, it probably gives a very accurate picture of what the German occupation has meant to the average Parisian in terms of his daily life." Catherine Maher

+ N Y Times p8 O 24 '43 750w

Reviewed by Bernard Foley

Spec 169:291 S 25 '42 700w

"'The Germans Came to Paris' is a most interesting book, written as it is in a lighter vein than usual, and without the customary denunciations which have marked so many similar war books." Jacques Ducharme

+ Springf'd Republican p10 N 12 '43 440w

Times [London] Lit Sup p470 S 26 '42 1350w

"Since the book was written at all, it is clear that the narrator did finally succeed in reaching England, which is pleasing and right. What he has to say is spellbinding, in a manner which evokes many strong responses and reactions. It cannot have been an easy book to write, for it is intensely personal and does not by any means glorify the writer. Also, it is written by a man who deeply loves France, so that it is of necessity full of anguish. But the final qualities of 'The Germans Came to Paris' are its scorbutic truthfulness and the very intimate study it gives of France's narrow escape from spiritual death. I recommend it warmly for the light it sheds on a subject of such importance, as well as for its extreme readability." Iris Barry

+ Weekly Book Review p4 O 24 '43 850w

DERLETH, AUGUST WILLIAM. Rind of earth. 148p $2 Press of James A. Decker

811 43-7144

"This new volume of poems by August Derleth has all his characteristic qualities and will please most those who like in his novels the side lights and reflections which have little part in the story. Of greatest popular appeal perhaps are the nature poems in the section Seasons wheeling over, and the character sketches of Sac Prairie people." Wis Lib Bul

Reviewed by Nelson Algren

Poetry 62:52 Ap '43 300w

"Sometimes I think Mr. Derleth may be too musical for his own good, but, in a day when so few poets seem to give the actual movement of a poem any attention, he restores an element that was badly needed." W. R. Benét

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:11 Ag 21 '43 140w

"Mr. Derleth simply remains on the rind of experience and never penetrates to its core. There are pleasant descriptions of the rivers, the fields, the flowers, the trees, the birds; some satiric character sketches and some musical lyrics. But there is never anything vigorous and challenging, or anything penetrating and revealing. Nothing breaks the monotony of the descriptive flow except the emergence of the palest platitudes." Elizabeth Drew

— + Weekly Book Review p8 Ag 29 '43 200w

Wis Lib Bul 39:39 Mr '43

DERLETH, AUGUST WILLIAM. Seven who waited. 230p $2 Scribner

43-1371

Detective story.

"Mr. Derleth's plot construction is labored, and some of the circumstances attending the murders are utterly incredible. This is particularly true of the manner in which the instrument for the first murder is acquired." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p19 F 7 '43 200w

"This is standard Derleth, a regional mystery with an abundance of tricks and some fine scenery around Baraboo, Wis. Now that Mr. Derleth writes novels—and good ones, we understand—wouldn't you think he'd use characters more like people as we know them in the here and now? But maybe Judge Peck is human enough for all. Besides, there's a theory that the puzzle's the thing and Mr. D. knows his puzzles." Will Cuppy

+ — Weekly Book Review p18 F 14 '43 250w

Wis Lib Bul 39:86 Je '43

DERLETH, AUGUST WILLIAM. Shadow of night. 354p $2.50 Scribner

43-15322

Psychological study of a German from Tyrol, who followed a man half way around the world with murder in his heart. Hasso was following the man who shot and killed his beloved brother. In Sac Prairie he caught up with the man, but a gradual change of heart overtook him, and his revenge was not carried out. The story is of the part played by the countryside and the kindly people in effecting that change. The time is the 1840's.

"A psychological novel of the first order, and an adventure tale that is unique and inspiriting. It is good, for a change, to read about the good in our fellow men!" Edith Roberts

+ Book Week p4 O 17 '43 380w

Booklist 40:114 D 1 '43

DERLETH, A. W.—Continued

Christian Science Monitor p8 D 18 '43 600w

"Because 'Shadow of Night' is liveliest in the journalistic passages describing historical events, such as the almost burlesque trial of the lady prohibitionists or the founding of Sac Prairie's first newspaper, one feels that Mr. Derleth's material would have responded more tellingly to straight reportorial treatment. As it now stands, the slender, uninventive, narrative structure fails to carry adequately the double responsibility of history and fiction." V. C. Koch

— + N Y Times p20 O 31 '43 550w

"In spite of Mr. Derleth's living sense of Wisconsin's past and the thoughtful intelligence of his writing the novel is oddly lacking in intensity and is, on the whole, rather cold."

+ — New Yorker 19:87 O 16 '43 140w

Reviewed by Phil Stong

Sat R of Lit 26:21 N 27 '43 400w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 7 '43 440w

"Mr. Derleth, with his quick, appreciative love for nature—human, animal, vegetable and atmospheric—creates a fine, warm background for the good men and women of another day who people the pages of this excellent novel." F. H. Bullock

+ Weekly Book Review p17 O 24 '43 650w

Wis Lib Bul 39:159 D '43

DEROUNIAN, ARTHUR (JOHN ROY CARLSON, pseud) Under cover. 544p $3.50 Dutton

335 Fascism—U.S. Propaganda, German 43-51232

"The author has spent the last ten years or so joining Fascist organizations, both native and foreign, in the United States and collecting material on their members and practices. He comes up with a startling haul of names (some of them prominent ones), dates, and other evidence showing the methods and interconnections of the various groups." New Yorker

"The book is not easy to read, for it is an undramatized, unromanticized collection of facts. But for the good of America it must be read."

+ Atlantic 172:129 S '43 150w

"'Under Cover' is an important book, not only as a history but as a warning that native Fascism will again menace America unless its roots are cut out by common sense, by effective solution of our economic problems, and by the triumph of progressive democracy in our daily life." Robert Lasch

+ Book Week p3 Jl 25 '43 650w

Booklist 40:2 S '43

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley

Cath World 158:104 O '43 140w

Christian Science Monitor p12 O 23 '43 700w

"This is not an easy book to read, even though much of the material it contains is reasonably exciting. Armenians are Orientals, and Orientals—especially from the Near East—have a reputation for loquacity. Mr. Carlson-Pagnanelli lives up to this reputation. We hear that his notes are even more voluminous than his book; we know that his book could have done with drastic cutting, and would have been the better for it. Yet it is a useful book, and one which thoughtful Americans should read, even if their patience is exhausted before they reach its ultimate page."

+ — Commonweal 38:372 Jl 30 '43 650w

Current Hist 5:76 S '43 260w

"Better editing would have improved book, but it should be read." G. W. Hill

+ — Library J 68:570 Jl '43 110w

Reviewed by Victor Riesel

Nation 157:243 Ag 28 '43 700w

Reviewed by L. M. Birkhead

New Repub 109:259 Ag 23 '43 1100w

"It is sordid story, rather sensationally told, and perhaps dated by its sensationalism. Most of it has been told before and told better. As an account of the author's personal experiences, it is sometimes hair-raising, but those who turn to it as a source of additional information about the activities of subversive groups in the United States will find it disappointing. Its documentation includes little material that was not easily obtainable, between 1937 and 1942, by any amateur investigator." E. N. Jenks

N Y Times p8 Jl 18 '43 700w

"Some of the material isn't new, but the inside viewpoint puts it in a fresh light. Better read this."

+ New Yorker 19:63 Jl 24 '43 90w

"These intimate glimpses of traitors, sincere fanatics, and secret agents at work contribute a piece of information which even the testimony at their trials has lacked—the psychology and the motives of such men and women. It is a gallery of trolls; of people so abnormal in their mental and spiritual processes that they seem difficult of comprehension because they stand a little apart from the human race. . . The book throws much new light on the set-up of Nazi intrigue and propaganda in the United States. However, when it comes to the larger aspects of the subject the author is less happy than when he deals with personalities." Will Irwin

Sat R of Lit 26:11 Ag 28 '43 1000w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 25 '43 1000w

"This volume is certainly not literature. It is, however, a stellar job of reporting—a job which brought the investigator (whose real name is not Carlson) into all manner of personal risks as he mingled with members of a score of organizations carrying on propaganda calculated to make America go fascist." C. R. Miller

Survey G 32:460 N '43 490w

Time 42:97 Ag 23 '43 1200w

Reviewed by J. G. Rogers

Weekly Book Review p1 Jl 18 '43 1650w

DERRICKSON, MARIONE R., ed. See Saturday evening post. Post scripts

DE SCHWEINITZ, KARL. England's road to social security; from the Statute of laborers in 1349 to the Beveridge report of 1942. 281p $3 Univ. of Pa. press

360.942 England—Economic conditions. Charities—England. Labor and laboring classes—England 43-8265

History of England's experience with social security, tracing the way from local relief to national social insurance and the Beveridge report. Bibliography. Index.

"This volume is not a mere chronology of English progress, but also a clear and perceptive analysis of the chief problems involved in the administration of poor relief. A valuable bibliography is appended listing the laws, statutes, parliamentary debates, reports of royal commissions, books, and other original source material on the subject. The study contains valuable information for every student of government and of human society, particularly in the United States, where governmental responsibility for abating human distress caused by economic insecurity is so recent an acknowledged obligation." E. A. Weber

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:959 O '43 260w

"To this reviewer Mr. de Schweinitz has performed the very useful service of bringing within the confines of one volume a record and a perspective of six centuries of British experience. The volume is amply documented, with perhaps an over-citation and an over-quotation which may add to authoritativeness but hardly to readability. It is a volume useful not only to the student, but to the administrator, and to those who are now determining our policies for the days to come." A. E. Fink

+ Am Soc R 8:729 D '43 450w

Reviewed by S. A. Queen

Ann Am Acad 230:222 N '43 320w

Booklist 40:2 S '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:164 O '43 10w

"Although intended primarily for the social worker, anyone interested in the problem of security and social insurance will find it a useful and interesting book."

+ New Repub 108:870 Je 28 '43 70w

"We have here a convenient and attractive guide, accurate for the most part and fluently presented, but suffering somewhat from diffidence in providing discussion of the operative forces which brought about change." J. B. Brebner

+ — Pol Sci Q 58:629 D '43 500w

"One of the chief values of this book for the average American with a social conscience is that it gives a rough outline of the general course that we must take if we are to increase the security of the ordinary American. England is several decades ahead of us in this type of social pioneering, so serves to point the way." H. W. Cross

+ Springf'd Republican p10 D 17 '43 440w

Reviewed by Ewan Clague

Survey 79:223 Ag '43 650w

DETZER, KARL WILLIAM, ed. Army reader. 469p $4 Bobbs

355 U.S.—Army. World war, 1939—U.S. 43-17689

A collection of articles dealing with the American army of today in all its various ramifications and from many points of view.

"It seems to me that so long as the editor wanted to cover all parts and activities of the Army, he would have served his readers better by having articles specially written for use in place of the more inaccurate articles he did use. The piece on infantry contains several mistakes of fact on every page, and there are others of similar inaccuracy. Col. Detzer doubtless used the best stuff he could find, but some of it is too bad to be useful in printed form anywhere." J. I. Greene

Book Week p2 Ja 9 '44 200w

Booklist 40:177 Ja 15 '44

"Col. Detzer proposed 'to tell the story of the American Army.' The story is well told to the great benefit of the men of the Army themselves as well as to the profit of civilians." Donald Armstrong

+ Sat R of Lit 27:18 Ja 1 '44 800w

DEUTSCH, BABETTE (MRS AVRAHM YARMOLINSKY). The welcome; with pictures by Marc Simont. 197p $2 Harper 42-51127

Story of a New York boys' school, and of the little German refugee, Ernst, whose friendship with an American boy brought happiness to both of them.

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:102 Mr '43 100w

"Good addition for democracy list for children." A. L. Shea

+ Library J 68:83 Ja 15 '43 70w

"This is the kind of story which we need vitally in America just now, one of tolerance and real hospitality told in terms which boys and girls of 10 to 13 can understand readily, because Thursty and his crowd are average, real boys of today." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 F 7 '43 260w

"The author's portrait of an average, decent, and far from perfect young American of thirteen years is subtle and endearing."

+ New Yorker 19:68 My 29 '43 50w

"Glimpses of a refugee center, apparently drawn from life, are especially interesting. The characters are life-like and the author, who has sons of her own, knows the modern boy's language."

+ Wis Lib Bul 39:17 Ja '43

DE VETTE, WILLIAM A., and KELLOGG, DORCEY E. Blueprint reading for the metal trades. 132p $2.50; pa $1.76 Bruce pub.

744.532 Blueprints. Metal work 42-51254

Contents: The blueprinting process; Working drawings; Sketching; Reading a drawing; Invisible edges; Oblique surfaces; Cylindrical objects; Sectional views; Screw threads; Reading dimensions; Assembly drawings; Finish and finish marks; Limits, tolerances, and allowances; Gearing; Miscellaneous reading problems. Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 28:4 Ja '43

"The straightforward manner in which the authors have treated their subject should quickly dispel the layman's bewildered notions regarding the reading of blueprints." J. E. Englund

+ N Y Times p22 Ja 31 '43 220w

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 22 '43 80w

Wis Lib Bul 39:105 Jl '43

DE VOTO, BERNARD AUGUSTINE (JOHN AUGUST, pseud). Year of decision, 1846. 538p maps $3.50 Little

978 West—History. Frontier and pioneer life —West 43-4191

" 'This book,' writes Mr. De Voto in his first chapter, 'tells the story of some people who went west in 1846.' Upon this unassuming statement is based this monumental narrative of a decisive year in the history of the United States—a year which saw the outbreak of the war with Mexico, Frémont and the Bear Flag Revolt, a great Oregon and California emigration, the conquest of New Mexico, the migration of the Mormons, the conquest of California, Zachary Taylor's campaigns in Mexico, Doniphan's expedition, and the tragedy of the Donner party of emigrants, half adults, half children. These narratives are told as stories in themselves, as related parts of the great national spectacle, and as the culmination of the whole movement of American westward migration from the Atlantic to the Pacific." (Publisher's note) Statement on bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by F. L. Paxson

Am Hist R 49:120 O '43 550w

"Having done considerable research for the sake of historical fiction, I thought I knew the ropes. But De Voto not only delved into material generally unread, he integrated it into the drama of expansion as a playwright integrates his facts into characterizations and dialogue. His period limited him to the events of the single year but when he lowers his third-act curtain he has given his audience a sense of the excitement that waits in the wings of destiny: The Civil War and the imperialism of Manifest Destiny. 'The Year of Decision: 1846' is, incidentally, a well-made book, too, with a clear type page, map end sheets and as handsome a jacket as has appeared in many a season." Louis Zara

+ Book Week p1 Mr 28 '43 900w

Booklist 39:316 Ap 1 '43

Bookmark 4:11 Mr '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '43

Commonweal 38:375 Jl 30 '43 200w

"Over all is laid the rich mosaic compounded of trials and sufferings of westward-trekking settlers. Deeply personal and moving narrative, following closely diaries of 'intelligent eye-witnesses.' " J. E. Cross

+ Library J 68:208 Mr 1 '43 110w

Reviewed by H. N. Smith

New Eng Q 16:497 S '43 1450w

"What emerges is a sort of historical montage. The West has always been a natural for the movies, and Mr. DeVoto seems to have carried some cinematic techniques into prose—sometimes one is reminded of the rather involved organization of D. W. Griffith's 'Intolerance.' Hollywood may in fact unravel some good scripts from 'The Year of Decision.' At its finest points it is both dramatic and pictorial." Richard Hofstadter

+ — New Repub 108:610 My 3 '43 950w

"It is a challenging theory, eloquently stated. But, if history is made by men, as De Voto affirms, the War Between the States might have been avoided at some time between 1846 and 1861 had the men of that period been wiser or more forbearing. . . To say this is not to say that Bernard De Voto has not written a fine book. He has. His outstanding achievement is to bring alive scores of Americans, powerful and humble, pious and irreverent, stupid and far-sighted; and to weave together the story of their doings in 1846 into a single coherent pattern. He has, at the same time, avoided the pitfall of a too logical reconstruction. . . And he has made abundantly clear that the genius of America stems from contact between American men and women and the soil on which their feet are set." R. H. Gabriel

DE VOTO, B. A.—Continued
+ N Y Times p1 Mr 28 '43 1700w

"Mr. DeVoto is ironical when irony is needed, and it is often needed. Jingoes will not care for his book, but on the other hand those who interpret all critical events in the cold light of economic determinism will find Mr. DeVoto's historical sense too rich and various for their taste. 1846 was a year of crass territorial annexation, yet it was also a year of profound national emotion, in which we decided as a people to change our way of life. It is with the drama of that complex resolution that Mr. DeVoto's book deals, and deals magnificently." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:69 Mr 27 '43 950w

"Mr. DeVoto is more than a historian. As he says, this phase of our history has been broken up into parts by the historians, and studied. And not put together. His contribution, modestly put, is in making clear the national orientation of these scattered pieces. To do this he has with remarkable success recreated an era, a national frame of mind, a racial stage in culture, one of those great turning points in history where decisions are made. . . Reading this book you cannot fail to gain a new conception of America as it was in the Forties—and through that conception, of America as it has been since, is now, and forever shall be. . . 'The Year of Decision: 1846,' is Bernard DeVoto's best book to date. And that makes it good enough to become a part of the permanent literature of the nation, and perhaps to mark an apogee in an historical method frequently tried but rarely with such effectiveness as this." P. I. Wellman
+ Sat R of Lit 26:10 Ap 3 '43 1250w
Time 41:98 Ap 19 '43 2050w

"It is the literary equivalent of a Sisley painting that Mr. De Voto presents in his history of the taking of California—an infinitude of small spots that fall into no coherent pattern until one steps back and views the work at a little distance. It is a technique that presents difficulties both in execution and in appreciation, and some find it merely exasperating; but the exercise of a little patience, in this case at least, is richly rewarded, for the reader who comes to page 500 will find that he has before his eyes a picture that is not only gorgeous in its shimmering color but interesting, even a little startling, in its design." G. W. Johnson
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Mr 28 '43 1950w
Wis Lib Bul 39:72 My '43

"Interesting and at times fascinating as these pages are, from them emerge no new basic interpretations. . . This questioning should not obscure the fact that 'The Year of Decision' fulfils the literary purpose of its author. It is good drama. Its characters, great and small, are skilfully woven into an intricate but careful pattern, and they have been brought to life. It is also good history of the Far West. And Bernard DeVoto has earned the gratitude of all who are interested in his native region." H. P. Johnson
+ — Yale R n s 32:822 summer '43 900w

DE VRIES, PETER. Handsome heart. 216p $2.50 Coward-McCann
43-10423

Psychological novel which has as its general theme the slightness of the differences between the acts of the sane and the insane. It tells the story of two brothers, one successful, the other believed to be mad, and of the two women who loved the latter.

"De Vries is a writer who is capable of incisive phrasing, but in 'The Handsome Heart' he frequently appears to be carried away by the thunder of his own rhetoric (some of it magnificently conceived) and plunges into a Wolfian forest of brilliantly colored words. The interior monologues of the characters are strikingly similar and tend to blur their individualities." Jack Conroy
Book Week p2 Jl 4 '43 500w

Reviewed by Marjorie Farber
New Repub 109:116 Jl 26 '43 400w

"If you read 'The Handsome Heart' with your left eye it appears to have qualities of an engaging satire, a sort of spoof on human nature and some of our most solemn ideas. . . There are times when Mr. De Vries writes very well and others when poetic passages bow the reader down in pain." Lorine Pruette
+ — N Y Times p12 Je 27 '43 360w

"The book suffers from Mr. De Vries' inability to make up his mind what sort of book he is writing and how he means to write it. There are parts that seem to justify the dust jacket's claim that this is 'a solid psychological novel of grave intent,' but most of the time he is apparently having a try at nothing more than a light love story with mildly humorous and rather strained complications."
— + New Yorker 19:69 Je 26 '43 110w

"Mr. De Vries's incidental portraits, observations, kernels of humor and wisdom and sorrow in general are so much more important than his story! He has still to learn to sift the flour of his mind more evenly into the gravy of his tale." George Conrad
— + Weekly Book Review p10 Je 27 '43 650w

DEW, GWEN. Prisoner of the Japs. 309p $3 Knopf
940.547252 World war, 1939—Prisoners and prisons. Hong Kong—Siege, 1941. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-8042

Eye-witness account of the siege of Hong Kong and the events thereafter, by an American woman photographer-reporter, sent to the East by the Detroit News. For six months she was interned in Camp Stanley before she was released to come home on the Gripsholm. No illustrations.

"Gwen Dew, an American woman who was caught in Hong Kong when the Japs attacked, has written one of the most powerful and convincing books to emerge from Japan's rape of the British, American and Dutch possessions in the Southwestern Pacific areas." F. S. Marquardt
+ Book Week p2 Jl 4 '43 1000w
Booklist 39:443 Jl 1 '43

"Details of atrocities and conditions not too disturbing. Recommended." E. F. Kelly
Library J 68:473 Je 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by Helen Mears
New Repub 109:293 Ag 30 '43 600w

"One can no more criticize this book of Gwen Dew's than one can criticize the color of blood poured out on a battlefield. Here is life poured out. Here is horror, good sportsmanship, bestiality, tenderness, treachery and nobility—here, in a word, is war. . . The sympathetic feminine quality of this reporter's book does not detract from its almost soldierly analysis of the war movements." C. P. Romulo
+ N Y Times p2 Je 6 '43 1200w

"There is more horror in this book than in any book on the Pacific War that the reviewer has read. If anyone doubts the nature of the enemy in the Far East let him read Miss Dew's account of disemboweled babies and mass-raped British nurses. 'Prisoner of the Japs' is deeply impaled on the sharp, bloody point of a bayonet, symbol of the ghoulish sadism of Japan's little fighting demons. It is a fair book, too, an admirable product of objective reporting and American sportsmanship." H. C. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 26:17 Je 19 '43 500w

"Miss Dew was highly impressed by the wonderful preparation of the Japanese. Their perseverance she calls remarkable and their training utterly thorough. Their terrible cruelty, however, seems unexplainable, but is well described. There seems to be no exaggeration in the book and its very simplicity drives each incident and point home to the reader with extra impact." J. P.

+ Springf'd Republican p10 S 30 '43 550w

Reviewed by J. B. Powell
Weekly Book Review p4 Je 20 '43 1200w

D'EWES, SIR SIMONDS, bart. Journal; from the first recess of the Long Parliament to the withdrawal of King Charles from London; ed. by Willson Havelock Coates. 459p $6 Yale univ. press

942.062 Great Britain—History—Stuarts, 1603-1714—Sources A42-3000

Sir Simonds D'Ewes was an English antiquary and chronicler. The present volume represents his journals from "the first recess of the Long Parliament to the withdrawal of King Charles from London," edited with notes and introductory material by an associate professor of history in the University of Rochester. The specific period covered is from October 12, 1641, to January 10, 1642. Index.

"To ascertain the truth can be costly, and to edit D'Ewes' Journal required time, patience, and skill. Imagination, as well as diligence, was used in searching out facts to authenticate D'Ewes' account of happenings in the Long Parliament. . . Modernized spelling would have saved the editor, the printer, and the reader time, without any loss of textual accuracy. Possibly some of D'Ewes' aberrations, his cancellations, and unfinished sentences, might have been omitted. Obvious minor errors could have been corrected without annotation, and the parallel accounts from other diaries might have been compressed. But when all the possible economies are added up, the net saving would have been slight, and the question of what the editor had left out or touched up would remain to puzzle and harass those who use the Journal." W. H. Dunham, Jr.

+ — Harvard Law R 56:496 N '42 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p332 Jl 10 '43 800w

"In his preface Professor Coates speaks of his edition of D'Ewes as 'useless' research. In a sense he is right; it is likely to be useless because historians addicted to modern fashions in history are not likely to use it. They will probably neglect it because old D'Ewes' patient note-taking, instead of dealing with the impersonal 'forces' and extra-human 'factors' that are the sustaining myths of present-day methodology, reflects with mirror accuracy the unschematic push and pull of human wills that give the shape to history as it is lived. This sort of thing perplexes and annoys the historian who sees only streams of tendency unbroken by the rough play of human hopes and fears, by erring men making mistakes, gauging things wrong, stumbling about in the gloom of human ignorance, and thus making the queer decisions that make history. He is so obsessed by the modern phobia, the dread of not seeing the forest for the trees, that he ends up by seeing an ideal Platonic forest in which there are no trees at all. D'Ewes, assisted by Professor Coates, may serve to remind the modern historian that to understand what the forest is one must know at least something about the trees." J. H. Hexter

Yale Law J 51:1418 Je '42 1500w

DE WITT, JOSEPHINE (MRS THOMAS BENJAMIN LIPTON) Cowboy Ken; pictures by [the author]. [40p] $1.50 Oxford

43-11854

Ken was a small boy with a big ambition—he wanted to be a cowboy just like Buck Stone. On his sixth birthday Ken got a cowboy suit and went to the rodeo where he saw the real Buck Stone, but the best part of the day was the party to which Buck was invited. For ages six to nine.

"Here is a grand book for little boys who like horses and cowboys. . . A most satisfying book, since it is exactly the sort of thing a budding cowboy of 5 to 8 years old might dream for himself." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p9 N 7 '43 140w

"Text may be considered a bit inane by boys old enough to read the long lines, but author's black-and-white pictures opposite every page tell the story with a zest that will delight six- to nine-year-olds." F. W. Butler

Library J 68:728 S 15 '43 70w

DEYARMOND, ALBERT, and ARSLAN, ALBERT. Fundamentals of stress analysis; prepared and ed. by Associated aeronautical staff. v 1 256p $3 Aero pubs.

624.17 Strains and stresses (43-5491)

"The material contained in this volume has been used in a course of study offered under the National Defense Training Program. It assumes that the student is familiar with elementary drafting and blueprint reading and has a basic knowledge of trigonometry, calculus, and mechanics. Chapter headings are: Types of structure; Stress and strain; Forces and couples; Structures with axial loads in members; Beams; Torsion; Section properties; Allowable stresses. The appendix includes a miscellany of information such as commonly used formulas and symbols, properties of various shaped beams and extrusions, mechanical properties of materials, and tables of rivet strength." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:51 Jl '43

DICK, ARTHUR A. Shop mathematics; with basic and functional applications. 230p il $2.40 Ronald

621.75 Machine shop practice. Mathematics 43-12301

"A text for use in high school and vocational school courses. Divided into teaching units with accompanying assignments. Generously illustrated with diagrams and reproductions of working drawings." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter
Book Week p10 S 19 '43 30w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:46 Jl '43

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p36 N 28 '43 100w

DICKENS, CHARLES. Dickens digest; condensed by Mary Louise Aswell; il. by Donald McKay. (Whittlesey house publication) 543p $3.75 McGraw

43-1780

Condensation of four of Dickens' novels: David Copperfield; Oliver Twist; Martin Chuzzlewit; Pickwick Papers.

Booklist 39:319 Ap 1 '43

"Mary Louise Aswell has done a beautiful job. All the characters are there, all the proverbs, all the dramas—the shipwrecks, the horrors, the poor children, the frustrate loves, the humor, the punchbowl. All that is left out is the not now appropriate moralizing, the castigations of wrongs long exorcised—the period pieces which Dickens himself knew to be period pieces when he was publishing these novels 100 years ago in pamphlet form. . . Thus there is no heresy in concentrating Dickens into more readable form for the young and old. Mrs. Aswell has done the editing with the zeal of a true amateur." Dorothy Hillyer

+ Boston Globe p19 F 10 '43 250w

"The volume seems reasonably well adapted to introduce a wide circle of new readers to what is best in Dickens, even though ardent devotees will remain unsatisfied."

+ Cath World 107:107 Ap '43 180w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p4 Ag 26 '43 90w

Commonweal 37:572 Mr 26 '43 60w

DICKENS, CHARLES—Continued

"I, for my part, have no quarrel with her at all. She has taken four of the best-known Dickens novels and reduced them from a million and a half words to a quarter of a million—a six-to-one compression. No two persons would ever compile two identical anthologies and no two persons would 'digest' Dickens or any other author by identical inclusions and omissions. The debate, therefore (and I think there is likely to be one), must revolve around the proposition that the classics are sacrosanct. Alongside Miss Aswell, I am glad to support the negative of this proposition." J. T. Winterich

+ N Y Times p5 Mr 7 '43 1000w

"One can imagine how Charles Dickens would have raved and fumed at the idea that any one could have had the effrontery to make a 'digest' of his work. It would have seemed as presumptuous as offering to Moses a digest of his Ten Commandments. . . And this, indeed, is the attitude of mind in which many of us, lifelong lovers of Dickens, approach the idea. This is—to use a term unknown in Dickens's day—our first 'reaction' to it, or from it. Yet we have to admit that not only has Mrs. Aswell attempted this daring task but has achieved it." Stephen Leacock

+ Sat R of Lit 26:16 Ap 17 '43 3000w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 18 '43 110w

Wis Lib Bul 39:55 Ap '43

DICKINSON, THOMAS A. Aircraft construction handbook. 237p il $2.50 Crowell

629.134 Airplanes—Design and construction 43-10204

"A handbook of aircraft types based upon principles of structure and design, explaining aerodynamics and the nature of aircraft structures, shop practice, and methods of assembly and inspection." (Sat R of Lit) Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by H. C. Spencer

Book Week p9 Ag 22 '43 400w

Library J 68:211 Mr 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:40 Jl '43

Reviewed by Theodore English

N Y Times p23 S 12 '43 200w

"Valuable chiefly to workers in aircraft construction and assembly plants but of interest to anyone who wishes to understand the problems of the aircraft industry. Illustrated by many excellent drawings and photographs." Raymond Holden

+ Sat R of Lit 26:36 Ag 21 '43 60w

Special Libraries 34:386 S '43

"From this book the aircraft worker will get an over-all picture of his profession which should help him to advance." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p26 S 19 '43 100w

DICKSON, CARTER, pseud. See Carr, J. D.

DICKSON, HELEN (MRS HELEN [CAMPBELL] DICKSON REYNOLDS). Captain Peggy of the Mamie L; il. by Marion Merrill. 176p $2 Nelson

43-13834

Adventure story for girls, describing life in and near a logging camp on the Pacific coast. Peggy, the heroine, wanted to go to school so she could learn to be a nurse on the hospital ship which brought medical supplies to isolated settlements. The Mamie L was the stout little boat in which Peggy went back and forth to school. Glossary.

"The book carries a real flavor of the Northwest." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p8 O 31 '43 140w

"Happy adventure, likable people and the tang of the sea make this a book with flavor. Good print and fair illustrations." Margaret Miller

+ Library J 68:894 N 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by Fay Hayden

Springf'd Republican p7e N 14 '43 60w

DICKSON, SALLY, and BLONDIN, FRANCES, eds. New encyclopedia of modern sewing. 320p il $1.98 Nat. needlecraft bur. inc, 385 5th av, N.Y.

646.2 Sewing 43-7210

Progressive description of sewing, beginning with simple articles like pot holders and pinafores and leading up to the more complicated curtains, slip covers, clothing, and even made-over garments. Many illustrations. Index.

Booklist 40:5 S '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

Weekly Book Review p20 S 12 '43 180w

DIESEL PUBLICATIONS, INCORPORATED. Diesel engines; a complete Diesel home study course, originally prepared by L. H. Morrison; rev. by Charles F. Foell. 824p il $8; outside U.S. $9 Diesel publications, inc, 192 Lexington av, N.Y.

621.436 Diesel engines 42-11893

"Consists of forty chapter-lessons based on a Diesel study course prepared by a former editor of Diesel Power, and brought up to date in a revised form by the present editor." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by James Stokley

Books p13 F 7 '43 130w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:9 Ja '43

DIETZ, FREDERICK CHARLES. Economic history of England. 616p il $3 Holt

330.942 Great Britain—Economic conditions. Great Britain—Industries and resources 42-17597

"This volume is intended to give to American students a picture of how Englishmen have made their living over the centuries, how changes in the ways of doing things came about, and how political and social life influenced and have been influenced by economic problems as time went on. Many knotty questions, which have but an antiquarian or local interest, and traditional arguments in old controversies, which may be regarded as settled, have been omitted. In view of the peculiar importance of public finance in economic history, a series of chapters deals somewhat more fully with fiscal problems than is usually done." (Pref) Index.

"Professor Dietz has produced a volume which, without seeming too long or too crowded, surveys the whole field, from Roman Britain to the current problems of war, with an amazing degree of thoroughness and detail. One of its chief virtues lies indeed in the skillful incorporation of the result of much recent scholarly investigation. . . Even the lists of 'Suggested Books for Further Reading,' appended to the various chapters, have a comprehensiveness which far transcends their avowed purpose and utility for the student. . . A few statements of fact are more obscure than inaccurate. English contributions to technology are not always differentiated clearly from those of other nations. A good map of Britain, showing economically relevant place names, would have made a useful addition to a book written expressly for American students." Samuel Rezneck

+ Am Hist R 48:400 Ja '43 210w

"The fullest and most interesting parts of the book are those dealing with the period from the advent of the Tudors to about the middle of the nineteenth century. The section on medieval history is sketchy and frequently obscure. That on the most recent period too often lapses into a mere catalogue of economic facts. But on the period from the completion of national unity to the end of what is usually regarded as the Industrial Revolution, where the author is evidently more at home with his material, he has written a remarkably clear and comprehensive account of the diverse economic life of the English people, with a good many interesting observations on the political and social effects of the economic changes which he is tracing." D. J. McDougall + — Canadian Hist R 24:300 S '43 700w

Reviewed by F. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:373 Ja '43 10w

DIKE, HELEN. Stories from the great Metropolitan operas; il. by Gustaf Tenggren [with a foreword by Edward Johnson]. 247p $2 Random house

782 Operas—Stories, plots, etc. 43-2208

The stories of twenty-five operas selected from the regular repertoire of the Metropolitan opera company of New York. Includes list of the principal characters in the opera, an act-by-act, scene-by-scene story of the action, some dialogue and description of scene, and the chief airs and motives in musical notation.

Booklist 39:322 Ap 1 '43
Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 20w
Commonweal 39:121 N 19 '43 20w

"Good addition where there is interest in opera but not a 'must' for small collections containing The Prize Song [by Weber, Book Review Digest, 1935]. Profusely illustrated by Tenggren in black, white, and color; color plates uneven in quality, with some unfortunate color combinations. Suitable for sixth grade through high school." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 68:213 Mr 1 '43 120w

"A useful and appealing book for the many boys and girls who attend the junior performances of the Metropolitan Opera Guild, and for other young people, too, who listen over the radio and are eager to know what an opera is like on the stage. Older opera-goers will find Miss Dike's book 'a convenient way of refreshing their memories." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p9 Je 6 '43 200w
New Yorker 19:72 My 29 '43 50w

"At the back are biographical notes and in the text every famous and familiar air is indicated in its proper place by a line of music. This method is well adapted to radio listeners, and the book will no doubt be used by many who are older and some who are younger than the young folks to whom Edward Johnson addresses a welcoming introduction." M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p7 F 28 '43 250w
Wis Lib Bul 39:39 Mr '43

DINESEN, ISAK, pseud. See Blixen, K. D.

DINGER, HENRY CHARLES, comp. Questions and answers for marine engineers. 8bks pa ea $1 Simmons-Boardman

621.12 Marine engines. Marine engineering 43-2273

"This series of pamphlets contains questions and answers which have appeared during the past ten years in Marine Engineering and Shipping Review. The answers are not brief but in many instances amount to a discussion of the topic. Engineers preparing for license examinations should find this series helpful." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:12 Ja '43

DINGLE, HERBERT. Mechanical physics. 248p il $2.25 Ronald [5s Nelson]

530 Physics 42-21817

"Requiring no previous knowledge of the subject, this textbook aims to give a vivid general description of physical principles as applied to aeronautics and related subjects." N Y New Tech Bks

N Y New Tech Bks 28:15 Ja '43
Reviewed by Melvin Avrami
N Y Times p19 Jl 11 '43 460w
Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p22 Ap 18 '43 80w

DINGLE, HERBERT. Sub-atomic physics. 272p il $2.25 Ronald [5s Nelson]

530 Physics 43-5331

"The second in a series of volumes being prepared, each dealing with one of the sciences essential to a study of aeronautics, and in a manner suited to the needs of aeronautical students. This volume contains material on the structure of the atom, optics, electricity and magnetism, and supplements volume one which covered the field of mechanical physics." N Y New Tech Bks

N Y New Tech Bks 28:32 Ap '43
Reviewed by S. A. Korff
R of Scientific Instruments 14:306 O '43 800w
Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p22 Ap 18 '43 80w

DISNEY, DORIS MILES. Compound for death. 239p $2 Doubleday 43-18203

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p6 D 26 '43 140w
Booklist 40:166 Ja 1 '44
Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 D 26 '43 100w

"Commendable in that it does not require a set of the Encyclopedia Britannica to unravel the mystery, being written in a pleasant, relaxing style. Miss Disney does not pretend to offer a scientific melange as has been the vogue in some recent who-dun-its." P. J. R.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 12 '43 110w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p8 D 19 '43 400w

DISNEY, DOROTHY CAMERON (MRS MILTON MACKAYE). Crimson Friday. 312p $2 Random house 43-8946

Detective story.

"This might have been a most engrossing tale, because the writing is, as in all this author's books, excellent, the situations original and the characters drawn well enough so that you care what happens to them. But, unfortunately there are two black marks against it: it's overlong, and some important characters and developments are not introduced until the final few chapters. Also nine readers in 10 are going to complain loudly over the denouement." Elizabeth Bullock
+ — Book Week p6 Je 20 '43 300w
Booklist 39:465 Jl 15 '43

"The story is told with all the skill that Dorothy Disney has at her command. In other words, it is a humdinger." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p10 Je 6 '43 240w

"Nice plot undermined slightly by some forced and fancy writing."
+ — New Yorker 19:88 Je 5 '43 90w

"Required reading."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:23 Je 26 '43 40w

"Any jury in its senses would hand Dorothy Cameron Disney whatever award goes with the biggest mystery surprise of 1943, so far. This amazing jolt concerns the past and present of one of the main characters in 'Crimson Friday'; and while we're about it, let's slip the author some sort of ribbon for her killer, too, since this person astonishes almost as much as the other. A handsome wreath might be added on general principles for this frequently violent yet always polite tale of double death." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p21 Je 6 '43 450w

DISNEY (WALT) PRODUCTIONS, INC. Gremlins. See Dahl, R.

DITMARS, RAYMOND LEE. Twenty little pets from everywhere; il. by Helene Carter. 64p $2.50 Messner

591.5 Animals, Habits and behavior of. Pets 43-18474

Descriptions of twenty small animals from distant lands, all of which would make fine pets for little children. They include: the panda, dormouse, tarsier, lemming, sewellel, pika, cacomistle, unau, uakari, jaguarundi, douroucoulis, coati-mundi, kinkajou, agouti, cuscus, koala, mierkat, jerboa, mongoose and reindeer.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p11 F 6 '44 140w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:36 Ja '44 40w

"In a small way these descriptions by the late Dr. Ditmars and the beautifully designed and drawn pictures by Helene Carter form a kind of zoological geography, a handsome and fascinating out for younger children." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p7 D 12 '43 120w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 D 12 '43 250w

DIVINE, ARTHUR DURHAM (DAVID RAME, pseud). Firedrake; the destroyer that wouldn't give up [Eng title: Destroyer's war]. 251p il $2.75 Dutton [6s Murray, J]

940.545 Firedrake (destroyer). World war, 1939—Naval operations 43-51031

Chronicle of the British destroyer, the Firedrake, that valiant member of the flotilla which steamed a million miles in two years. The author was assigned to the Firedrake as a naval correspondent, and his account is based partly on the ship's logs and partly on personal experiences. Illustrated with official photographs.

Booklist 39:272 Mr 1 '43

"This is the sort of book that will have deep interest for men in the naval service everywhere, but for the general reader it will perhaps seem too detailed a record of plain events. They are terribly stirring events, however; the story is told with sustained dramatic intensity, and each incident is brought home in terms of stark reality. . . There is one technical point, however, in the construction of this narrative which seriously injures the effect. This is the constant over-emphasis placed on the indifference of British Officers to the dangers that surround them." Lincoln Colcord
+ — Books p5 F 7 '43 1250w

"H. M. S. Firedrake's story is told here in that unfortunate prose of which English journalists, when trying for effect, seem to be the complete master. . . The book is heavily padded with propaganda, including a rehash of stuff we already know from the papers and a few crocodile tears over French 'decadence.' People are always more important than things and Firedrake is what she is only because of her men. Mr. Divine does not seem to have fully appreciated this, nor does he write well." Harry Sylvester
— Commonweal 37:500 Mr 5 '43 280w

"Tone is distinctly British, many a gin is tossed off. Factual reporting on destroyer life, British Navy, the war. Illustrated. Recommended." H. A. Wooster
+ Library J 68:81 Ja 15 '43 90w

New Repub 108:422 Mr 29 '43 90w

"Mr. Divine's admiration and affection for vessel and company seem to have been strong enough to drive him to the Firedrake's old logs for material covering these very early months of the war when he was not on board. Perhaps his narrative, because of this very enthusiasm, covers too great a time span and, therefore, in its first chapters, lacks the feeling which overflows the rest. The Norway invasion, in which Firedrake played a dauntless role, suffers in this way. Nevertheless there is value in these early pages: They help you to know that Firedrake was a 'destroyer that wouldn't give up'. . . But with Firedrake's arrival at Gibraltar and Mr. Divine's arrival on board, the story brightens with every page." Gibbons Doyle
+ — N Y Times p3 Ja 31 '43 1300w

"Almost any book is the most important of the war these days but there has been considerably less competition for the title of the most interesting. The current volume will do as the British navy's entry in the latter sweepstakes until a better one comes along. In fact it will do very nicely as the best presentation of the British navy and its job that the war has produced, though in form only the story of a single ship." Fletcher Pratt
+ Sat R of Lit 26:17 F 27 '43 470w

"Mr. Divine writes with real enthusiasm in a style rather like the motion of a destroyer at sea—whether or not there is action, you feel a bit exhausted at the end; but his book, excellently illustrated, is one of the best and most authentic accounts of the war at sea which have yet appeared." Colin Mann
+ — Spec 170:104 Ja 29 '43 340w

"A thrilling tale not of fancy but of fact. It brings the war at sea closer and makes it more understandable."
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 30 '43 300w

"There is no mistaking Mr. Divine's immense appreciation of and friendship with his messmates in the Firedrake; nor about their loyalty to and admiration for Admiral Sir James Somerville, their loved commander. A certain number of verbal solecisms may possibly grate on naval readers—'pendant' is the naval spelling, not 'pennant' as Mr. Divine would have it, for instance. But the story is well told."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p40 Ja 23 '43 900w

DIVINE, ARTHUR DURHAM (DAVID RAME, pseud). Tunnel from Calais. 246p $2.50 Macmillan [7s 6d Collins]

42-50769

A mysterious light in a garden house on an English east coast estate leads Alexander Macrae of the British navy intelligence department to the latest Nazi invasion scheme—a tunnel under the English channel from Calais to Dover.

Booklist 39:252 F 15 '43

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p22 Ja 24 '43 280w

"Good."
+ Boston Globe p19 Ja 27 '43 40w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 156:321 F 27 '43 30w

"As a piece of dexterous and literate story telling 'Tunnel From Calais' belongs on the bookshelf somewhere between Helen MacInnes and Manning Coles. A very enviable situation, as connoisseurs will testify." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p32 Ja 24 '43 800w

"Superb adventure story of a proposed invasion of England."
+ New Yorker 18:60 Ja 23 '43 50w

"Dear to the heart of historically-minded romanticists is the idea of building a tunnel beneath the English channel. The idea is perennially new and fascinating, and David Rame has used it to good advantage in his new thriller."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 24 '43 190w

DOBB, MAURICE HERBERT. Soviet economy and the war. 88p $1.25 Transatlantic [3s Routledge]

330.947 Russia—Economic conditions. World war, 1939—Economic aspects—Russia A42-594

"A short summary of four important areas of Soviet economy: the production plans, the collectivization of agriculture, the function of organized labor, and financial and budgetary principles and policy, with relation to Russia's war strength." Booklist

Booklist 39:457 Jl 15 '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 20:574 Ap '42 20w

Reviewed by Maurice Edelman
New Statesman & Nation 23:198 Mr 21 '42 360w

"A useful, compact book, presented with admirable detachment." R. A. Scott-James
+ Spec 167:494 N 21 '41 70w

Times [London] Lit Sup p559 N 8 '41 300w

DOBBINS, JAMES TALMAGE. Semi-micro qualitative analysis. 422p $3 Wiley

544.8 Chemistry, Analytic. Microchemistry 43-11659

"The recognition that fundamental chemistry and laboratory technique are of equal importance in qualitative analysis has led to the adoption of the semi-micro scale for the laboratory work. This system has some decided advantages over the older macro scale. . . In Part I, [of this book] the fundamental laws concerning equilibrium and chemical reactions are studied in detail. . . In Parts II and IV, several of the most important reactions of each ion, both cations and anions, are described in detail. . . In Part III, the systematic scheme of separation of the cations is outlined. . . Part V contains the scheme of analysis for the anions." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 20w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p30 O 31 '43 130w

DOBIE, JAMES FRANK. Guide to life and literature of the Southwest; with a few observations. 111p il pa $1 for sale by Southern Meth. univ.

016.9178 Southwest—Bibliography 43-52682

"An annotated list of literature of the Southwest, used by the compiler for his classes at the University of Texas. He says of it: 'the guide is fragmentary, incomplete, and in no sense a bibliography. Its emphases vary according to my own indifferences and ignorance as well as according to my own sympathies and knowledge. It is strong on the character and ways of life of the early settlers, on the growth of the soil, and on everything pertaining to the range. . . It includes most of the books about the Southwest that people in general would agree on as making good reading.' " Booklist

"The volume is weakest in the section on fiction. There seem to be no provincialisms in the area, no distinction between cattle range and pueblo country, and no coastal plain versus canyon country. But the volume is so genuine, so unpretentious, that no one has the right of criticism. It is what it is, refreshing and a hugely valuable addition to American bibliography. One likes the book and the author." Roderick Peattie
+ Am J Soc 49:279 N '43 100w

Booklist 39:419 Je 15 '43

"J. Frank Dobie could not be dull. Even in bibliography he comes through to the reader pure 'Apache Gold and Yaqui Silver.' " Cleo Dawson
+ Sat R of Lit 26:36 Je 5 '43 320w

DODD, ALVIN EARL, and RICE, JAMES O'NEILL, eds. How to train workers for war industries; foreword by Channing R. Dooley and Walter Dietz. 260p $3 Harper

658.386 Employees, Training of 42-25641

This "manual of tested training procedures" is based on data collected by the American Management Association from all types of industries. The book is in four parts: 'Quick training' of rank-and-file workers; Supervisory training; Apprentice training; General training information. Selected bibliography. Index.

"This book should be of interest to all industrial workers interested in intensive training, whether for war work or civilian supply. It should be of special help to educators engaged in any form of industrial training." D. S. Kimball
+ Ann Am Acad 226:188 Mr '43 380w

Booklist 39:287 Mr 15 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '43

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 10 '43 170w

DODDS, HAROLD WILLIS. Out of this nettle, danger. . . [essays]. 58p $1 Princeton univ. press

940.531 World war, 1939—Peace. Reconstruction (1939-) A43-3601

"The president of Princeton is neither starry-eyed optimist nor pessimist. He does believe that 'this flower, safety,' can be plucked from the nettle of our present dangers if we have the fortitude to grasp it firmly and the skill to grasp it wisely. In fifty pages of compact writing he not only states and defends this faith but expounds principles basic to a social, political and educational philosophy for our turbulent and troubled times." Christian Century

Christian Century 60:1169 O 13 '43 60w

Eng N 131:116 N 4 '43 80w

School & Society 58:271 O 2 '43 10w

DOGGETT, LAURENCE LOCKE. Man and a school; pioneering in higher education at Springfield college. 309p $2.50 Assn. press

267.346 Springfield college 43-15462

"Two institutions in Springfield, Mass., a School for Christian Workers dating from 1885 and a Y.M.C.A. Training School, were merged in 1896 to form Springfield College. Dr. Doggett was president from that year until 1935. A considerable part of the interesting story of this enterprise, especially the earlier part, deals with pioneer work in relating physical training to moral and religious leadership and at the same time giving it academic respectability." Christian Century

Christian Century 60:1338 N 17 '43 100w

Reviewed by G. B. Affleck
Springf'd Republican p7e O 17 '43 1450w

DOHERTY, MARTIN W. House on Humility street; memories of the North American college in Rome. 269p il $3 Longmans

B or 92 North American college, Rome 42-50726

Reminiscences of a former Chicago newspaper man, now a priest. He describes in detail the eight months which he spent as a student at the North American college in Rome, before he was advised to return to America and finish his education for the priesthood in this country. Index.

Booklist 39:291 Mr 15 '43

"An engaging, rollicking book this, in which interest never flags, in which the minor inaccuracies are of negligible importance. It all adds up to an easily intelligible lesson on the nature of the Catholic priesthood, and it will enlighten many a reader who would not, and probably could not, get much out of a spiritual treatise on the priestly vocation."
+ Cath World 156:763 Mr '43 210w

"Here is a warm book written breezily about one man's calling to the priesthood and his first awkward, anxious efforts to obey.

DOHERTY, M. W.—Continued
The fact that the Voice's loudest tones reached him through the din of a newspaper man's routine of police reporting in boisterous Chicago, made the fusion of individual soul-analysis with comment on the collective vices of a great city's unethicals attainable. Because the author fuses well, his story bursts with interest and is readable." J. P. Boland
+ Commonweal 37:257 D 25 '42 650w

DOHERTY, WILLIAM BROWN, and RUNES, DAGOBERT DAVID, eds. Rehabilitation of the war injured; a symposium. 684p il $10 Philosophical lib.

617.99 Surgery, Military. Disabled—Rehabilitation, etc. World war, 1939—Medical and sanitary affairs 43-12102

A collection of articles reprinted from English and American medical journals, grouped under the following heads: Neurology and psychiatry; Reconstructive and plastic surgery; Orthopedics; Physiotherapy; Occupational therapy and vocational guidance; Legal aspects of rehabilitation; Miscellaneous.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 30w
Reviewed by M. F. A. Montagu
N Y Times p17 Ag 8 '43 280w

DONAHUE, ARTHUR GERALD. Last flight from Singapore. 168p il map $2.50 Macmillan

940.544 World war, 1939—Aerial operations. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. Singapore—Siege, 1942 43-17295

A second book by the author of Tally-Ho! Yankee in a Spitfire (Book Review Digest, 1941). In this, the American flyer describes his part with the R.A.F. combat and bombing activities during the Japanese attack on Singapore and Sumatra. The manuscript and photographs were found among Flight Lieutenant Donahue's effects, when he was reported missing, over a year ago.

Booklist 40:194 F 1 '44

"Donahue is no literary artist and he makes no attempt either to dramatize or to underplay his experiences. He tells them in a simple, unvarnished manner, much as if he were sitting down with some friends back home. The result is pretty close to what the real thing must have been." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 9 '44 550w

"Unlike many pilots who cannot write or talk vividly of their war experiences, Donahue makes his readers share vicariously all of his emotions from the time an air mission is being briefed until the pilot has completed it and landed his plane safely at his home base." Victor Keen
+ Weekly Book Review p12 D 12 '43 600w

DONALDSON, CYRIL, and LECAIN, GEORGE H. Tool design. (Rochester tech. ser) 443p il $3.75 Harper

621.9 Machine tools. Gages 43-2069

"This textbook is one of a series developed at the Rochester Athenaeum and Mechanics Institute as part of its program for developing teaching materials which are practical in nature and closely related to the actual requirements of the various jobs in industry. . . A continuous study is made of the skill, knowledge, and attitudes essential to successful functioning in industry. Through this process of analysis, courses of study are developed which combine theory with application and which are not limited to a theoretical discussion of the principles and processes of technology. General methods of tool design, which enable the student to develop ideas into practical specifications for modern manufacturing methods, form the basis of this volume." (Pref) Index.

Book Week p10 My 2 '43 10w
Library J 67:952 N 1 '42 10w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:18 Ja '43
Reviewed by J. M. Juran
N Y Times p20 Ag 15 '43 260w

DOOLEY, WILLIAM HENRY. Textiles. new rev ed 790p il $4 Heath

646.1 Textile industry. Textile fabrics 43-3059

"Authoritative sources of textile information for mill executives, selling agents, designers, interior decorators, stylists, advertisers, and salespeople. Also adapted to meet the educational needs of classes in dressmaking, clothing, costume design, and interior decoration." (Subtitle) "A standard textbook revised to include recent applications of synthetic chemistry to textiles. Mediocre illustrations." (Booklist) Experiments. Index.

Booklist 39:296 Mr 15 '43
Reviewed by F. M. King
J Home Econ 35:306 My '43 100w
Library J 68:211 Mr 1 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:35 Ap '43

DORIAN, FREDERICK. History of music in performance; the art of musical interpretation from the renaissance to our day. 387p il $4 Norton

781.63 Music—Performance. Music—Analysis, interpretation, appreciation 43-2216

Traces the problem of musical interpretation from the days of Palestrina to Schonberg, and ends with a discussion of the Star Spangled Banner. The book is divided into four main divisions: Part 1: The birth of modern interpretation; Part II: Classicism: the script becomes binding; Part III: Romanticism; Part IV: The objective present. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 39:288 Mr 15 '43
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 24 '43 500w
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '43
Reviewed by Margaret Byard
Commonweal 38:568 S 24 '43 390w

"Wide-ranging, stimulating, perhaps not too orderly in arrangement, this original piece of research, first history of musical interpretation in English, will undoubtedly be of great interest to serious students of music." Margaret Owen
+ Library J 67:1011 N 15 '42 120w

"A dignified, readable volume containing much valuable information." Marion Bauer
+ Sat R of Lit 26:26 Ja 30 '43 1100w

"Throughout his diversity of material and heterogeneity of thought the author displays uniform authority and sympathy. There is accurate and wide learning, which nevertheless does not intrude itself as such. In fact, this is not so closely technical a treatment of the subject as to sacrifice congeniality for the ordinarily careful reader. . . [The book] is not only a work of intrinsic distinction, but a deeply needed and serviceable communication." G. S. Dickinson
+ Weekly Book Review p16 F 28 '43 900w

"This is a delightful as well as an important book. It contains a wealth of material gathered from the most authoritative sources. . . . The material is selected with skill and discussed with understanding. The author has known how to provide interest and insight, one would think, for the layman as well as valuable information and an equally valuable integration of available data for the practising musician." Roger Sessions
+ Yale R n s 32:589 spring '43 1200w

DORLING, HENRY TAPRELL (TAFFRAIL, pseud). White ensigns. 280p $2.50 Putnam 43-4180

A story of life in the British navy during war time. Tho largely episodic the novel in the main follows the adventures of a father and his son. The father, Peter Chenies is captain of a converted armed merchantman; Tony Chenies is serving on one of the destroyers the United States turned over to Great Britain.

The climax of the tale is reached in an account of a battle at sea reminiscent of the exploit of the Jervis Bay.

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Book Week p6 Ap 18 '43 230w
Booklist 39:333 Ap 15 '43
Library J 68:249 Mr 15 '43 20w

"So clear-cut a picture could only come from the pen of one who had been through the mill himself and who had the practiced artistry of this retired sea captain. In these pages there is all the salt and the tang of the sea, familiar stuff to an old seadog, but it is rare indeed that we are made to taste it and to smell it, as by Conrad and Taffrail." Murray Harris
+ — N Y Times p10 Mr 28 '43 500w

"'White Ensigns' may not be a full-fledged novel but it's absorbing reading and as contemporary as rationing."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 28 '43 400w

"The author brushes aside all the devices that are supposed to heighten suspense and impart momentum; he doesn't need them. His writing is simple and forthright and stirring, for he is concerned with real people and how they behave under fire." David Tilden
+ Weekly Book Review p12 Ap 11 '43 450w

DORO, EDWARD. Mr Zenith and other poems. 55p $2 Bookman press, room 1102, 480 Lexington av, N.Y.
811 42-51527

Collection of short poems, and one long one, the latter entitled Mr Zenith. "In verse now lyrical, now satiric, now heightened by despair and hope, it is a dialogue between Zenith and the four who are aspects of him, yet solitary. The poem is a study in spiritual and intellectual integration and dissolution." (Sat R of Lit)

Reviewed by Milton Hindus
— Poetry 62:286 Ag '43 150w

"The poem has many remarkable passages, and displays Mr. Doro's gift for the arresting phrase—but on the whole it is a bold attempt rather than a success, and it ends in a rather lame and too-conversational passage. Loose strands of thought and imagination are started when first the four guests confront Mr. Zenith at his door." R. E. Roberts
— + Sat R of Lit 26:7 Jl 24 '43 450w

"The best that can be said of 'Mr. Zenith' is that it has its deft moments. The tone is variously derivative, with the early Eliot preponderating. . . Mr. Doro is happier in a few of the shorter pieces, notably 'Refugees.'" Dudley Fitts
Sat R of Lit 26:9 Ag 28 '43 180w

DOS PASSOS, JOHN RODERIGO. Number one. 304p $2.50 Houghton
43-3612

A fictional portrait of an American demagogue, obviously based on the life and career of Huey Long. The story is told chiefly from the point of view of Chuck Crawford's secretary, Tyler Spotswood, older brother of the Glenn Spotswood who was the hero of Adventures of a Young Man.

"The limitations of the novel are three: First, you never care greatly what happens to any of the characters. Secondly, you never feel Chuck's threat to the United States. It is regrettable that we never see Chuck's power at work in Washington, nor the wreckage which men like him have left behind. And for me, Mr. Dos Passos's writing is still marred by his affectation in coupling words together. . . This habit annoys me more than the coarseness. No, what stands out in this book is the humid, indignant indictment of state politics at their worst. But don't console yourself by thinking that this warning applies solely to the South."
— Atlantic 171:146 Ap '43 550w
Booklist 39:319 Ap 1 '43

"After all, it's quite simple why Catholic novelists in this country don't turn out good books. It's because they can't write like John Dos Passos. They haven't the vigor and they haven't the style. They can't tell a story that moves, jumps, crackles with the American tempo, American language, and that whole vague, at once vulgar-and-noble thing known as the American spirit. Dos Passos has written such a book in 'Number One.' It isn't the first he's written, and probably not the best. But it's still a good book, and this in spite of vulgarity and sexual realism that will offend the more sensitive and even some of the less sensitive."
+ — Commonweal 37:497 Mr 5 '43 650w

Reviewed by Margaret Marshall
Nation 156:384 Mr 13 '43 900w

"Dos Passos has [not] lost any of his expertness; [but] the expertness has become loose. Just as he is dismantling the structure of 'U.S.A.' to tell individual stories again, so there is a kind of decomposition going on in his style. . . Every line is as brisk as it ever was, every word as quick in association; but where once they had an architectural fitness, leading us from character to character, from one stage in history to another, they now come at us in sudden flares, and too rapidly. It is as if Dos Passos just had to get them out, in all their full patter, for fear of losing them; but now they just seem a patter, where once they sounded time." Alfred Kazin
+ — New Repub 108:353 Mr 15 '43 1500w

"It is heartening to report that his new book should be read by every intelligent man and woman in the United States—and I believe that readers will be drawn to it in far greater number than those who read 'Adventures of a Young Man.'. . 'Number One' is, I think, the most impressive piece of work that Mr. Dos Passos has done since 'The Big Money' and it contains the promise that his new cycle of novels will bear the fruits of an accomplishment beyond the acknowledged successes of 'U. S. A.'" Horace Gregory
+ N Y Times p1 Mr 7 '43 1600w

"On the whole, though I rank myself as a Dos Passos man, I cannot do any rooftop shouting for his 'Number One.' It's a smooth-geared, expertly written sharply observed book, but it hardly stacks up against any of the three novels that compose his 'U. S. A.,' having neither their clarity of intention nor their magnitude" Clifton Fadiman
— + New Yorker 19:65 Mr 6 '43 550w

"It can be said of Mr. Dos Passos' Chuck Crawford that he remains alive, colorful, gigantic, menacing, like a bill-board at the turn ahead in the road. Mr. Dos Passos' novel does not crush him, it merely illuminates him. What can be done in the republic to prevent another 'Number One'? If enough readers ask this question, I suspect Mr. Dos Passos will be satisfied." H. M. Jones
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:7 Mr 6 '43 150w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 7 '43 430w
Time 41:78 Mr 15 '43 850w

"A brilliant portrait particularly in its sketch of a political convention, with the various stresses and strains involved. . . For once, a book should have been longer—a hundred and fifty pages more wouldn't have hurt. But if you'd like to know so that you can recognize the particular kind of fascism we could breed in these states, you had better read this story of 'Chuck' Crawford and check certain public utterances by it." S. V. Benet
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Mr 7 '43 700w

"Political villainy of Crawford's kind is not, in itself, comic; it is a genuine threat to our national life, and Mr. Dos Passos knows that it is. That is why he wrote this book. There is a serious discrepancy between his intention and his performance; and once again it would seem that the narrative method is inadequate to express the serious implications of the material. The bits of lyrical prose, in themselves very effective, only increase the reader's sense of the author's straining to achieve more than, within the limits he has imposed upon himself, he possibly can." Mark Schorer

DOS PASSOS, J. R.—Continued

— + Yale R n s 32:x summer '43 450w

DOUGALL, BERNARD. Singing corpse. 206p $2 Dodd

43-605

Detective story.

Booklist 39:321 Ap 1 '43

"This is carefree, easy to read and amusing in spots, with quantities of unrestrained dialogue and a ruthless mood." Will Cuppy

+ Books p20 Ja 17 '43 130w

"Good."

+ Boston Globe p19 Ja 13 '43 20w

"The motive back of all the murders appears to be a trifle obscure, but that may be because parts of the narrative are couched in the peculiar argot that swing musicians use in speaking to each other. Those who understand this lingo may enjoy the book more than we did." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p24 Ja 17 '43 180w

"Well filled with action, tough characters, garish swing band lingo and quick-witted detecting, although payoff is not unexpected. Good."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 Ja 9 '43 40w

DOUGLAS, DAYLE. Haunted harbor. 256p $2 Arcadia

43-8952

A tale of adventure, mystery and romance in the South Seas.

"Continued excitement that wears pretty thin." Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p7 Jl 4 '43 90w

"Read the book if you like, but don't blame us if you are disappointed." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p8 Jl 4 '43 100w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p16 Jl 11 '43 130w

DOUGLAS, JOHN SCOTT, and SALZ, ALBERT. He's in the merchant marine now. 224p il $2.50 McBride

940.545 Merchant marine—U.S. World war, 1939—Naval operations 43-51234

"An account of how apprentice seamen and merchant marine cadet-midshipmen are trained in wartime seamanship. . . Here is described their life aboard and ashore, fighting back with anti-aircraft and machine guns, remaining at their posts until crippled ships limp safely into port." Publisher's note

"Useful and attractive addition to long but valuable series." Eileen Riols

+ Library J 68:673 S 1 '43 10w

"The authors of this book have managed to combine the romance of the profession with the hard facts in admirable balance." Arthur Symons

+ Sat R of Lit 26:25 Ag 21 '43 190w

Springf'd Republican p8 N 8 '43 440w

DOUHET, GIULIO. Command of the air; tr. by Dino Ferrari. 394p $4 Coward-McCann

623.74 Aeronautics, Military 42-50172

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"This source book of air power is suavely written and reads smoothly in translation. It will be widely read not only by those directly connected with civil and military aviation, but also by all those interested in the fast developing strategy of the war—a strategy increasingly dependent on the airplane. The development of aircraft for war purposes is far from having reached maturity. Time is unquestionably on Douhet's side. His book must be regarded as one of the really important works of our time." J. W. Wood

+ Commonweal 37:449 F 19 '43 1050w

"The first edition in English of the writings (four volumes) of the Italian general who is usually regarded as having given the best formulation of the strategy of modern aerial warfare." R. G. Woolbert

+ Foreign Affairs 21:576 Ap '43 30w

"A very distinct service has been rendered American students of war by the publication of the complete American translation of Douhet's volumes on air power. No single work has exerted a greater influence on the theory of war in the air than have the writings of this Italian general who, long before the First World War and at a time when airplanes were largely experimental, plotted future trends with extreme accuracy. It is a fair criticism of the backwardness of our military thinking that this classic in the literature of air power has taken so long to appear in English." D. W. Mitchell

+ Nation 156:462 Mr 27 '43 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p14 Ja 8 '44 700w

DOWDELL, RALPH LEWIS, and others. General metallography. 292p il $3.25 Wiley

669 Metallography 43-5919

"This book is intended for beginning students in metallography or physical metallurgy for engineers as an introductory work to the many specialized books and the vast amount of technical information being published in the field. An attempt has been made to include sufficient material for a one-year course and at the same time to make it concise enough for shorter courses." (Pref) Includes tables on the physical and mechanical properties of metals and alloys. Index.

"The steadily growing importance of metallurgy in all fields of engineering makes the introduction of each new text in metallurgy something of an event. This book is for beginners, yet it is not trivial. Some background in chemistry would help the reader but you certainly don't need to be a chemist."

+ Book Week p11 Je 20 '43 90w

Booklist 39:421 Je 15 '43

"As stated by the authors in the Introduction, this book is intended for beginning students in metallography. It is, therefore, an addition to the group of excellent textbooks on this subject which have appeared during the past few years. It will meet stiff competition in this field, but the newcomer can hold its head high in the distinguished company in which it finds itself. The book is the outgrowth of many years of classroom work in metallography at the University of Minnesota." H. S. Rawdon

J Phys Chem 47:466 Je '43 500w

Library J 68:211 Mr 1 '43 10w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:30 Ap '43

Reviewed by C. M. Cosman

N Y Times p37 O 3 '43 40w

DOWDELL, VICTOR LYLE. Aristotle and Anglican religious thought. 103p $1.50 Cornell univ. press [7s Oxford]

230.3 Church of England. Aristotle 42-18898

"Because English university education has been, until quite recently, largely classical, Aristotle and Plato have affected Anglican thought greatly. In this book the author aims to show the extent of the former's influence. He demonstrates that it has been greater than often realized; both directly through the many writers who studied him with great care and indirectly through those who had delved deeply into the Schoolmen. He regards Bishop Butler as the most significant Anglican Aristotelian. Mr. Dowdell's method is chiefly statistical." J Religion

"The lectures are badly organized and the author gives hardly more than some biographical data on the authors, a statistics of their quotations from Aristotle, and a few of their supposedly Aristotelian statements and ideas. For a more conclusive evaluation of the Aristotelian influence, it would be necessary to consider those statements and quotations in their context and to determine their relative importance as compared with other, competing influences. In spite of these obvious deficiencies, the book makes a valuable contribution to the study of intellectual history." P. O. K.

+ — J Philos 40:362 Je 24 '43 360w

"As one reads this book, one cannot help comparing it to Inge's The Platonic Tradition in English Religious Thought, which so brilliantly shows what it is that that tradition has given to Anglicanism. Dowdell has much more detail than Inge but gives a much less definite understanding of his subject's contribution and a less vivid impression of the full sweep of his influence." A. C. Zabriskie
J Religion 23:73 Ja '43 230w

DOWDEY, CLIFFORD. Tidewater. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 332p $2.50 Little 43-13074

In 1837 Caffey Wade left his home in Tidewater Virginia, with his coach driven by a Negro slave, and his house- and field-hands bringing up the rear with the furniture in wagons. He settled in Tennessee, in a boom town on the banks of the Mississippi and proceeded to battle his way against swindlers, land agents, and other impediments of the frontier. He met two beautiful women, too, and they also figure in this story of an important period in American history.

"You will find here a tightly woven plot and a well-motivated story. You will find intrigue and masterful handling, plus a well-balanced diet of love and adventure. At a time when we are at war against a band of men who are out to destroy our democracy or our nation as a people, it is interesting to read of similar inclinations brooding in the hearts of men many years ago. It is interesting and, as I read this book, reassuring." G. H. Freitag
+ Book Week p9 S 26 '43 340w
Booklist 40:59 O 15 '43

"Continuous action and conversation, with little description or characterization, it contains all ingredients of stock melodrama. Should qualify as script for super-colossal thriller in technicolor." J. S. Cleavinger
Library J 68:725 S 15 '43 70w

"The plot, regrettably, is stock melodrama. . . The difference lies in the background, beautifully and expertly handled. It is as if Mr. Dowdey knows the period so thoroughly and loves it so well that he thinks it supplies all the freshness needed. Perhaps it does. At any rate the lover of a fast-moving action yarn will find it here in a brand new and most appealing dress." N. B. Baker
+ — N Y Times p21 O 10 '43 450w

"'Tidewater' somehow gives the impression of a provincial road company energetically performing a frayed melodrama. This is unfortunate because Mr. Dowdey can put words together with feeling and skill. Yet beyond the book's vivid beginning . . . Mr. Dowdey seems to have written his book like a man doing a routine exercise in routine fiction. His historical research seems superficial and his attempt to relate his love story to the high stakes and hair-trigger politics of the Mississippi valley is never quite convincing." Jonathan Daniels
— + Sat R of Lit 26:44 O 16 '43 200w

"It's a readable novel, a downright exciting one. But besides that it gives a good picture of raw-boned democracy fighting its way to survival through dangerous days for the still-young republic. The author obviously knows his material thoroughly and we may expect further fine stories from him." Edrie Van Dore
+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 26 '43 440w

"'Tidewater' is an exciting yarn and Mr. Dowdey spins it out with a sound eye for characterization and background." R. Y. Williams
+ Weekly Book Review p4 O 10 '43 750w

DOWNER, ALVIN EMERY. Practical mathematics of aviation. 3d ed 120p $1 Pitman
510 Mathematics. Aeronautics 43-11879

"Starting with the review of arithmetic the work builds up to a study of the simple algebraic equation, which is the foundation for evaluating formulas. Formulas lead to graphs —both the reading and the plotting. Ratios, proportions, and percentage follow in order. The right triangle, being of considerable importance, is given major consideration. The final chapter takes in a few of the more simple applications in mechanics. With very few exceptions, the problems and questions included in this book have been taken directly from the field of aviation." (Pref) Index.

Library J 67:1067 D 1 '42 10w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:46 Jl '43

DOWNES, JAMES EDWARD; SINGER, NATHANIEL H. and BECKER, DONALD. Latin America and hemisphere solidarity. 237p il maps $1.40 Heath
980 Latin America. Pan Americanism
43-5472

"This is a basic unit of study on Latin America, with especial emphasis upon the reasons for the attention now being given to Latin America in the United States, and on the obstacles which must be overcome if the Good Neighbor policy is to realize its great potentialities." (Social Studies) Supplementary reading; glossary; index.

"Some sweeping and consequently not entirely accurate statements are inevitable in a book of this type. Yet, some errors must not pass unchallenged. Among them is the extravagantly good-neighborly claim that 'in Costa Rica there is as high a degree of culture and literacy as anywhere in the world.' (p. 22); illiteracy in that country still includes about one-third of the population beyond elementary school age. . . If [this] and similar mistakes are corrected in the second edition, this text can be recommended as a remarkably sound piece of work for its specific purpose." R. F. Behrendt
+ — Ann Am Acad 231:176 Ja '44 500w

Reviewed by Margaret Means
School R 51:504 O '43 750w
Social Studies 34:284 O '43 50w

DOWNES, OLIN, and SIEGMEISTER, ELIE, comps. Treasury of American song; music arr. by Elie Siegmeister; with a new introduction. 2d ed rev & enl 412p $5 Knopf
784 Folk songs, American. Ballads
43-7587

Second edition of an American song book, first published in 1940 (Book Review Digest, 1940). About fifty songs, with music, have been added in this edition. Index.

Booklist 39:431 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky
Book Week p4 Je 6 '43 40w

"All told, going from page to page in this book, one must be both tone-deaf and intellectually a stone if he is not deeply moved by this spectacle of our country being both vigorously and painfully put together." Kenneth Burke
+ New Repub 108:869 Je 28 '43 550w

"This collection is indispensable for any song-minded gathering of Americans." William Schuman
+ N Y Times p8 Je 13 '43 460w

DOWNES, PRENTICE GILBERT. Sleeping island; the story of one man's travels in the great barren lands of the Canadian north. 296p il maps $3.50 Coward-McCann
917.12 Northwest, Canadian 43-8023

An American ex-school teacher, now in war work for the government, whose favorite summer relaxation is exploring the wilds of northern Canada, describes one such trip to Nueltin Lake in the Canadian Barrens. The trip was made in 1939, and contains material about Indians and flora and fauna seldom seen by white men. Illustrated with photographs. Maps. No index.

DOWNES, P. G.—Continued

Booklist 39:444 Jl 1 '43
Bookmark 4:15 My '43

"For all the modern miracles of radio and airplane, the frontier still lies open to the north. Even the most sedentary armchair traveler should find the assurance stimulating. Mr. Downes has included thirty-two photographs and a number of sketch maps of his route. Conspicuously lacking is a detailed map of Canada." Richard Match
+ N Y Times p20 My 23 '43 480w

Reviewed by Merrill Denison
Sat R of Lit 26:24 Je 26 '43 550w

"Simple and strangely moving book." Bruce Hutchison
+ Weekly Book Review p6 My 23 '43 1600w

DOWNEY, FAIRFAX DAVIS. Dog of war; il. by Paul Brown. 153p $2 Dodd

Dogs—Legends and stories 43-14489

A mongrel dog which stayed in Fort Bragg is the central figure. Chinook was trained by Sergeant Andrews and developed such a talent for wire laying that he was sent overseas, where he distinguished himself by saving the lives of two soldiers. For ages twelve to fourteen.

"Fairfax Downey, who knows his background thoroughly, has avoided the danger of writing from the dog's viewpoint, though still getting Chinook's feelings across to the reader. A fine, moving dog story for anyone from 12 up." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p7 O 17 '43 200w
Booklist 40:98 N 15 '43
Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 30w

"Not an important book, sentimental in spots, taxing one's credulity at times, but it gives a good picture of the training of dogs for war purposes. Recommended because of the popularity and timeliness of the subject." Marian Herr
+ — Library J 68:895 N 1 '43 90w

"Major Downey's ease of manner and inside knowledge of the ways of war make the story go without a creak; comedy in a talkative corporal is not overdone, and the soldiers are the real thing." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 O 31 '43 400w

DOWNS, ROBERT BINGHAM, ed. Union catalogs in the United States; sponsored by the Am. lib. assn. Board on resources; contributors: Arthur B. Berthold [and others]. 409p maps $5 A.L.A.

025.3 Catalogs, Union 42-18942

"The four librarians who made this study have based their discussions and conclusions on firsthand investigation of union catalogs throughout the United States." (Booklist) Contents: The administrative, fiscal, and quantitative aspects of the regional union catalog, by L. C. Merritt; Regional union catalogs: a study of services actual and potential, by J. P. Stone; The national union catalog in the Library of Congress, by G. A. Schwegmann, jr; Manual of union catalog administration, by A. B. Berthold; Directory of union catalogs in the United States, by A. B. Berthold. Selected bibliography. Index.

Booklist 39:1 S '42

"Mr. Berthold's part is in many respects a pioneer job. In the past, compilation as well as the administration of union catalogs has largely been a trial and error affair. We are now supplied with standard procedures and recommendations applicable not only to union catalogs but also to bibliographical centers. Added also in the appendix are instructions and forms which will prove useful to the staffs of union catalogs as well as to those who are interested in the workings of those instruments. In criticism of the directory of union catalogs, does it sound too strong if we say that it is an extraordinarily useful tool made almost unusable by poor typography? It is hoped that it can be reprinted in better form and be kept up to date." Rudolf Hirsch
+ — Library J 67:1004 N 15 '42 1200w
School & Society 56:104 Ag 1 '42 70w

"There is no point in pretending that this is an indispensable work for the scholar. The latter can get along without it, but the conscientious librarian cannot. It suffices for the scholar to be aware of the widespread network of book-location service available for the asking. All he has to do is to ask the right person, in this case a librarian who has the information contained in Dr. Downs's book within arm's reach." W. W. Brickman
+ School & Society 58:312 O 16 '43 480w
Special Libraries 33:263 S '42

DRAGO, HARRY SINCLAIR (WILL ERMINE, BLISS LOMAX, pseuds). Brave in the saddle. 220p $2 Morrow

43-11953

Western story.

Booklist 40:15 S '43

Reviewed by G. W. Harris
N Y Times p16 Ag 22 '43 170w

"Perhaps it is because the reek of cordite does not fume through every page that the yarn seems plausible—perhaps it is because everybody seems like anyone you might meet anywhere. The sheriff performs no miraculous feats of either deduction or trailing and neither does Jim, but the two of them keep the story moving at a good enough pace to earn it this drugstore cowpoke's recommendation." B. I.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 29 '43 140w

"Lively, full-bodied yarn." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p10 S 5 '43 80w

DRAGO, HARRY SINCLAIR (WILL ERMINE, BLISS LOMAX, pseuds). My gun is my law. 251p $2 Morrow

42-24044

Western story.

Booklist 39:202 Ja 15 '43

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p12 F 7 '43 70w

"In the decade that he has been writing Western novels Will Ermine has steadily advanced in story-telling skill, in technic and in style. This is one of the best tales he has yet turned out—a galloping, first-class narrative of its kind, exceptionally well written, with scarcely a superfluous word." G. W. Harris
+ N Y Times p24 Ja 17 '43 200w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 22 '42 220w

DRAGO, HARRY SINCLAIR (WILL ERMINE, BLISS LOMAX, pseuds). Stagecoach kingdom. 240p $2 Doubleday

43-16344

Western story.

Booklist 40:166 Ja 1 '44

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p28 D 12 '43 150w

DRAKE, FRANCIS VIVAN. Vertical warfare. 142p $3 Doubleday

358.4 Aeronautics, Military. World war, 1939—Aerial operations 43-11773

An analysis of the bombing program the Allies are using against Germany and arguments for its extension.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 172:120 Ag '43 260w

"A most timely book, one that clarifies the processes of the mounting Allied air assaults on Fortress Europe. It is, moreover, a book that is concisely written and well illustrated." W. F. Morse

+ Book Week p9 Ag 8 '43 470w

Booklist 40:40 O 1 '43

Library J 68:575 Jl '43 40w

"'Vertical Warfare' is a very attractive textbook for the citizen student. Information is skillfully organized; instruments and techniques are described with commendable clarity; the style is at all times rapid and direct. There are, too, several personal accounts of combat by fighter and bomber pilots which provide a leaven of reality and immediacy for the technical material presented. Charts and pictographs give visual point and meaning to many of the subjects considered, while the instructive value of the book is greatly enhanced by the well-chosen collection of pictures." E. E. Morrison

+ N Y Times p7 Ag 8 '43 700w

"Temperately written and sounds fairly plausible. Sixty-two pages of half-tones, including some of the best aerial photographs you're likely to see anywhere, plus diagrams."

+ New Yorker 19:71 Ag 14 '43 110w

Reviewed by H. A. DeWeerd

Sat R of Lit 26:29 Ag 21 '43 1050w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 29 '43 1100w

"Unfortunately Mr. Drake, like so many air-minded enthusiasts, tends to exaggeration, overstatement and even misstatement, and thus produces skepticism in the reader... 'Vertical Warfare' is air propaganda, well written, enlightening in many respects and superbly illustrated. It is a pity that the book is so marred by what, euphemistically, can be called overemphasis." P. J. Searles

— + Weekly Book Review p10 Ap 29 '43 500w

DREPPERD, CARL WILLIAM. American pioneer arts and artists; with foreword by Rockwell Kent. 172p il $4.75 Pond-Ekberg

709.73 Art—U.S. Artists, American 42-51137

"Distinguishing between pioneer and truly primitive American art, the author examines the widespread art expression in the colonies and United States before 1850. His subject is the art of the people, for the most part amateur, naïve expressions, the work of adults, children, artisans, and itinerant painters and sculptors. . . There is a word of advice to collectors on common sense, purposeful collecting of Americana as social history." Booklist

Booklist 39:248 F 15 '43

Reviewed by Clement Greenberg

Nation 156:247 F 13 '43 360w

"Capable, though the writing is a bit dry at times."

+ — New Yorker 18:104 D 5 '42 30w

DRESSER, DAVIS (DON DAVIS, BRETT HALLIDAY, pseuds). Blood on the black market. 218p $2 Dodd

43-9193

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p6 Jl 11 '43 160w

"Exciting."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 Je 12 '43 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p18 Je 20 '43 110w

DRESSER, DAVIS (DON DRESSER, BRETT HALLIDAY, pseuds). Murder wears a mummer's mask. 222p $2 Dodd

43-3662

Detective story.

"This should delight lovers of Western adventure fiction as well as crime addicts who like their literature two-fisted rather than highbrow."

N Y Times p8 Mr 14 '43 140w

"Away from customary Florida surroundings, Mr. Shayne seems somewhat reserved. Background interesting and tale moves swiftly enough. Fair enough."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:16 F 27 '43 40w

"Though Shayne seems different in this odd opus—less brittle and brash—he gets himself a big scene toward the end and delivers an answer that will have to do. Meet this in the right spirit, and you're in for a lark." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p28 Mr 7 '43 230w

DRISCOLL, CHARLES BENEDICT. Kansas Irish. 359p $2.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Driscoll, Florence. Irish in the U.S. 43-7558

This biography of the author's father is the story of an Irish immigrant in America, who finally, after some stops by the way, settled on a farm in Kansas. Equipped with great strength but little knowledge of farming, with a gentle but hard-working wife and a growing brood of children, Flurry (Florence) Driscoll finally managed to rise out of poverty only in the end to be "paid off" and sent back to Ireland by rebellious sons and daughters.

Reviewed by E. J. Cronin

Book Week p3 Je 6 '43 500w

Booklist 39:424 Je 15 '43

"Best of all is the authentic atmosphere of boyhood on the farm, with its chores and difficulties, its games and socials and its exciting happenings. It was a full and strenuous life which fear of Big Flurry could not rob of its zest."

+ Commonweal 38:148 My 28 '43 650w

"Well written and interesting but too long, and similar treatments have appeared too often before. Recommended if another biography of this kind is needed." Katharine Shorey

Library J 68:208 Mr 1 '43 110w

"Big Flurry never managed to analyze his grievances, only to shout that he wished he were in hell when they would not be resolved; but Charles, his youngest son and, one suspects, his favorite, did, and put them down in his book with understanding and tolerance and humor." Mari Sandoz

+ N Y Times p7 My 23 '43 1000w

"As a record of pioneer life and a skillful piece of character development, as well as for the entertainment and information contained in it, 'Kansas Irish' is recommended reading." P. I. Wellman

+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 Ag 21 '43 500w

"'Kansas Irish' is a thoroughly unhappy book, and it probably will provide much interesting material for any psychiatrist who takes the time and trouble to examine it. . . The writing skill shown in this tale of an immigrant Irishman who forsook the sea for a farm is unquestionable; the taste shown in setting it down is perhaps open to doubt." J. C. L.

— + Springf'd Republican p7e My 23 '43 800w

Reviewed by Hubert Herring

Weekly Book Review p6 My 23 '43 1100w

Wis Lib Bul 39:122 O '43

DRISCOLL, JOSEPH. War discovers Alaska. 352p il maps $3 Lippincott

917.98 Alaska—Description and travel. World war, 1939—Alaska 43-4763

Articles on Alaska in wartime—the high cost of living, air transport, Sitka, the new high way, the scarcity of women, our Alaskan brothers, etc. The author is a roving reporter for the Herald Tribune. Photographs. No index.

"Driscoll has done a superb job in reporting the doings of American soldiers and sailors in the Far North. His chapter on The Kodiak Bear, that fabulous Army newspaper, shows that the American has a sense of humor that can make capital of any situation." Ernest von Hartz

DRISCOLL, JOSEPH—Continued

+ Book Week p3 Ap 18 '43 470w
Booklist 39:331 Ap 15 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Jl '43

Reviewed by Alma Savage
Commonweal 38:209 Je 11 '43 90w
Current Hist 4:156 Ap '43 100w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:161 O '43 20w

Reviewed by Jean Potter
N Y Times p6 Ap 4 '43 1050w
New Yorker 19:72 Mr 27 '43 30w

"While never hesitating to lift the curtain on less attractive phases of Alaska life, 'War Discovers Alaska' is a mellow and a kindly book. It contains an excellent appraisal of the long controversial Matanuska colony. Likewise there is a valuable glimpse of some 'unsung soldiers,' the United States Bureau of Mines prospectors searching untiringly for strategic minerals. The book's errors are few and unimportant." Ernest Gruening

+ Sat R of Lit 26:44 Ap 17 '43 1100w

"There are, of course, other books to tell the reader everything Mr. Driscoll does about Alaska—everything, perhaps, excepting the wartime details that are a goodish portion of this volume. But that isn't the point; there always have been such books. Because this is partly news, hot off the griddle, it will find a news-hungry and bigger audience which, in turn, will discover Alaska much as the war and Mr Driscoll did." J. H. Jackson

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ap 11 '43 1050w

DROUGHT, ROSE ALICE. Camping manual. 167p il $2 Barnes, A.S.

796.54 Camping 43-51211

Manual for camp directors, embodying the author's own knowledge gained in "a dozen years of camping experience, in private and in organization camps." Partial contents: Campsite selection and development; Health and safety; Mental health; Feeding the camp; Business management and record keeping; Counselor training; Program; Trips out of camp; General bibliography; Index.

Booklist 39:459 Jl 15 '43

"The pleasures of camping will be increased and the hazards diminished if 'A Camping Manual' be widely read by devotees of the outdoor life. . . Including as it does both theoretical and practical issues that concern all campers, this manual cannot be too highly recommended."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 26 '43 90w
Wis Lib Bul 39:121 O '43

DRUCKER, PETER F. Future of industrial man; a conservative approach. 298p $2.50 Day [10s 6d Heinemann]

330.1 Economic policy. World politics. Reconstruction (1939-). Industry and state 42-21925

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"His marshaling of the facts to prove this economic evolution results frequently in a distortion of history, but nevertheless his conclusions are very provocative. . . The Future of Industrial Man is a stimulating book in that it explains why our industrial society must be a free society for the greatest good of mankind, and why totalitarianism is inimical to these interests." J. H. Landman

+ — Ann Am Acad 227:180 My '43 400w
Bookmark 4:4 Mr '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:577 Ap '43 40w

"An account of the strength and weakness of American political and social institutions and an estimate of the opportunities open to America in a new world order would have been of real interest. Mr. Drucker has ignored this chance. He has been more—and unwisely—ambitious. He has general theories of the movement of European history, of the weaknesses of Rousseau and Marx. . . If Mr. Drucker's command of less well-known parts of history is no better than his knowledge of the ages of Socrates and Burke, his illustrations will but confirm the suspicion that weaknesses of argument are being covered up by rhetorical devices that may deceive the simple-minded and meagrely read." D. W. Brogan

— Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 27 '43 430w

"Mr. Drucker is, obviously, an able man, who has read widely and is keen to put our crisis in a frame which makes it intelligible. But in his anxiety to bring good news to the anxious and the timid, he has refused to tell them starkly how near their feet lie to the abyss. He is in real danger of becoming a kind of political Buchmanite, who will satisfy those who are content with clever superficialities and can then rest at ease in Zion. But for the serious student he does not dig deep enough and he leaves one with the uneasy feeling that he is not aware how deep he ought to dig. With all his gifts, therefore, his work is a hindrance to serious thinking, for it fails to set the nature of the problem in a perspective proportionate to its massive complexity." H. J. Laski

— + New Statesman & Nation 25:128 F 20 '43 850w

Reviewed by T. I. Cook
Pol Sci Q 58:107 Mr '43 1100w
Pratt p9 F '43

"Dr. Drucker has written an able book, in which he travels through all philosophies and a great deal of history—sometimes forgetting his quest, which is, in his own words, to find a non-revolutionary unbroken transition from the free and functioning mercantile society to a free and functioning industrial society.' The quest is an admirable quest; and when he attends to it Dr. Drucker says admirable things. . . There is much that is good, and very much that is stimulating, in Dr. Drucker's book. . . But the fact remains that the book may justly be subjected to criticism. It is overlaid by a general apparatus of philosophy which distracts attention from its central theme. Much of that philosophy is subtle; some of it is sound; but it presents great difficulties to English readers." Ernest Barker

+ — Spec 170:103 Ja 29 '43 850w

"One would suppose that the aim of this book was to help to a new knowledge of individual and public purpose; and in a sense this is the fact. Yet the author is too modest in not offering more of his convictions as to new social objectives. Surely he might have been more explicit, less tentative here. In short this is a book which is likely to arouse strong reader reactions. Agreement is less important than new prods to thought. On this premise I can recommend the book for wide reading." Ordway Tead

+ — Survey G 32:105 Mr '43 600w

"A stimulating, provocative, but not always convincing, book. The central thesis, that we have to think out new social institutions for a new industrial age, cannot be controverted and is important. His contention that we need to find a means of giving the ordinary man a sense of social function and a means of exercising social responsibility is equally incontrovertible."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p155 Mr 27 '43 650w

DRUMMOND, LAURA WINSLOW. Youth and instruction in marriage and family living. 186p $2.35 Teachers college

392.5 Marriage. Family. 42-50712

Analytical report of a study of college courses of instruction in sex, marriage and family life, based on questionnaires sent out to freshmen, seniors and alumni of a number of American colleges.

"The 'summary of findings,' thoughtfully placed at the front, and the 'conclusions and implications' deserve the attention of all curriculum builders and teachers in family life education. Unfortunately the statistical manipulations which are so painstakingly recorded in two chapters seem quite unrelated to the central problem of 'reporting students' suggestions' and might better have been relegated to the appendix. An illusory impression of accuracy is obtained by their presence, and they appear out of place in this treatise which is in every other wise a work of merit." Reuben Hill

+ — Am Soc R 8:488 Ag '43 300w

Reviewed by A. L. Edwards

J Home Econ 35:241 Ap '43 280w

School & Society 56:476 N 14 '42 50w

"If, as shown clearly in this study, the trend points to a desirability for functional instruction in marriage and family living, curriculum planners may profitably secure the aid and advice of young people themselves in setting up suitable criteria. Miss Drummond has pointed the way by blazing an important trail." J. C. Baumgartner

+ Social Educ 8:92 F '44 400w

DU BOIS, JOHN HARRY. Plastics; a simplified presentation of the manufacture and use of the important plastics materials and products with tables of their properties and the basic design information required by engineers and designers. rev ed 435p $3.75 Am. tech. soc.

668 Plastic materials 43-15051

"An enlarged edition of a 1942 book [Book Review Digest, 1942] with new material on the low pressure laminating field and on vulcanized fiber." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 40:97 N 15 '43

Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 30w

"Most of the additional pages in this useful book are concerned with synthetic elastomers, the rubberlike materials." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p14 F 6 '44 40w

DUBOIS, MRS RACHEL (DAVIS). Get together Americans. 182p $1.75 Harper

394 Festivals. U.S.—Foreign population 43-16922

Suggestions for relieving racial tensions in our American life by means of Neighborhood-Home festivals, "get-together" parties for Americans of diverse ancestries in celebration of patriotic or religious holidays, common to all, or peculiar to one particular race or group. Index.

Booklist 40:190 F 1 '44

Christian Century 60:1442 D 8 '43 130w

"Whoever desires to do something real toward solving race problems will make no mistake in taking this little volume as the textbook." H. J. Simpson

+ Churchman 158:16 Ja 1 '44 260w

"Recommended for all libraries, with suggestion that both reference and circulating copies be purchased. Excellent bibliography." M. E. Clark

+ Library J 68:843 O 15 '43 70w

DUBOIS, MRS THEODORA (MCCORMICK). Banjo the crow; il. by Helen Torrey. 141p $2 Houghton 43-4647

Story of a crow, caught because of an injured wing. Banjo became quite adept as a neighborhood pest, but was loved extravagantly by his young host and hostess, who taught him tricks and treated him like a member of the family. For readers eight to ten.

Booklist 39:373 My 15 '43

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p6 O 25 '43 110w

"Here is a fine and spirited story of an unusual pet in a delightful family of adults and children. . . Tommy and Ellen, as well as the grown-ups, are very real in their conversations, and in their reactions to each other. For children of the middle age group." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:100 Mr '43 100w

"A warm-hearted, very human story of a pet crow." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p11 Ap 18 '43 280w

New Yorker 19:68 My 29 '43 50w

Sat R of Lit 26:28 My 15 '43 20w

Reviewed by Gordon Brown

Springf'd Republican p7e N 14 '43 60w

"Seven to twelve is the age for this story, but if you ever had a pet crow—or wanted a crow your parents wouldn't let you have—you might read it yourself before passing it on." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Mr 28 '43 350w

Wis Lib Bul 39:75 My '43

DU BOIS, MRS THEODORA (MCCORMICK). The wild duck murders. 212p $2 Doubleday 43-15966

Detective story.

"Fairly entertaining, if you're not bothered by the author's willingness to go beyond her depth (one character has accomplished the neat trick of wearing holes through the soles of ski boots!), or by Anne's inability to recognize clues which up and hit you in the eye." Elizabeth Bullock

+ — Book Week p23 N 14 '43 90w

Booklist 40:147 D 15 '43

"The narrator devotes far too much space to descriptions of the gowns and hats she wore on various occasions. The book would have been shorter and better without these descriptions, for she does have some thrilling and perilous adventures." Isaac Anderson

— + N Y Times p50 N 14 '43 120w

"This one has to do with botulism, bombs, and un-American activities and will pass the time for you nicely if you don't insist on too much logic in your motives and clues."

New Yorker 19:96 O 30 '43 60w

"Pleasant."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:29 N 6 '43 30w

"Those charming McNeills are back again in a speedy counter-espionage mystery." J. P.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 21 '43 110w

"Taking it by and large and allowing for the war's effects upon who-dunits, this latest adventure of the sleuthing McNeills—Dr. Jeffrey and Anne—struck us as more pleasing than otherwise. . . There are generous amounts of social and political stuff in this one, if you like that in your escape reading. The author's graceful prose helps a lot." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p18 O 24 '43 330w

DUCHARME, JACQUES. Shadows of the trees; the story of French-Canadians in New England. 258p $2.50 Harper

325.2714 French-Canadians in New England 43-5264

Non-fiction account of the French-Canadian in New England, his place in its industrialism and life. It describes in a series of short sketches the Frenchman's migration from the crowded sections of Canada, his struggles to gain a foothold in New England, and his hopes for the future. Bibliography.

"I am sure you will like the way this is written. It is easy, conversational and a good example of what may be called organized rambling." E. J. C.

+ Book Week p12 My 9 '43 230w

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse

Commonweal 38:208 Je 11 '43 220w

"It is all done with a light hand, with stories, anecdotes, easy discussions and rather innocent humor. . . Mr. Ducharme has given us an entertaining and very useful book. Once in a while, perhaps, his Franco-American patriotism leads him a little astray. I do not happen to agree with his position on linguistic sep-

DUCHARME, JACQUES—Continued
aratism; to me (a New England neighbor), the policy seems wrong on this side of the frontier. Mr. Ducharme, however, is no polemist. He is not out to prove things. What he has tried to do is to set down an account of an honest, friendly and simple people engaged in an American adventure, and this he has very capably and pleasantly done." Henry Beston

+ — N Y Times p7 My 2 '43 650w

"It is to be hoped that the story of the Franco-American may be more fully and variously told in history and fiction before he becomes quite indistinguishable. 'The Shadows of the Trees' is a welcome sample of the material which waits to be used." Marshall Bragdon

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 24 '43 1000w

"Some of the book seems rather like a series of informal notes set down at random, without much organization. It might be useful, however, for reference in this special field. It will, of course, be of interest to the Franco-Americans themselves." Rosemary Benet

Weekly Book Review p19 Ap 18 '43 350w

DUDLEY, DOROTHY, and SHERIDAN, JUANITA. What dark secret. 248p $2 Morrow 43-5800

Detective story.

"From the moment Lib Prentiss—Dr. Libitha Prentiss, middle-aged dentist from Chicago—arrived in Honolulu for a long-anticipated vacation, she found anything but peace, relaxation and pleasure. . . Lib is not one to keep her nose out of things. Nor is Angie Tudor, a sharp-eyed young Chinese woman, who is the most engaging detective to turn up recently. Between them, they provide a gratifying amount of suspense, plus some nimble coping with a situation which would leave most people at a total loss." Elizabeth Bullock

+ Book Week p9 My 16 '43 200w

Booklist 39:465 Jl 15 '43

"Plenty of action and good sleuthing." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p12 Ap 25 '43 160w

"Above average."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:25 My 1 '43 30w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p16 My 2 '43 170w

DUDLEY-GORDON, TOM, pseud. of GORDON CAMPBELL, DUDLEY BARKER and TOM GUTHRIE. I seek my prey in the waters [Eng title: Coastal command at war] foreword by Sir Philip B. Joubert de la Ferté. 297p il $3 Doubleday [7s 6d Jarrolds]

940.544 Great Britain. Royal air force. Coastal command. World war, 1939—Aerial operations 43-51164

Account of some of the many adventures of the members of Britain's Coastal Command, the part of the R.A.F. which patrols the surrounding waters, seeking out U-boats, enemy ships, the survivors of torpedoed merchantmen, etc. The authors, writing under a combined pseudonym, are English journalists, officers of the R.A.F. sent out to cover the activities of the Coastal Command.

"The book is a lively account of this service's work in ferreting out Nazi naval units, guarding convoys and sinking U-boats in the waters around the British Isles."

+ Book Week p8 My 23 '43 90w

Booklist 39:384 Je 1 '43

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield

Nation 156:747 My 22 '43 150w

Reviewed by Muriel Rukeyser

New Repub 108:867 Je 28 '43 240w

"Like most action books, 'I Seek My Prey in the Waters' leaves one with the distressful feeling of looking through an overcrowded photo album. But it contains much valuable material, including the personal angle." Murray Harris

+ N Y Times p5 My 9 '43 300w

"As a whole the book lacks backbone and vitality—a fairish specimen of war book, but no more, a workday piece of journalism out of the Sunday supplements." Fletcher Pratt

Sat R of Lit 26:7 My 15 '43 270w

"It is high time such a force be recognized for its sterling qualities and quiet fortitude. The authors, with professional background, write a chapter of little known history and illustrate with remarkably good photographs. As history is so often the summation of individual exploits, 'I Seek My Prey in the Waters' naturally contains a score or more tales of desperate encounters in the air, battles against odds, escapes from hostile elements, thrilling rescues along with the humdrum daily life. The story is absorbing and told in engrossing style." P. J. Searles

+ Weekly Book Review p5 My 23 '43 700w

DUFF, SHIELA GRANT. See Grant Duff, S.

DUGGAN, STEPHEN PIERCE HAYDEN. A professor at large. 468p il $3.50 Macmillan

940.5 Europe—Politics. World politics. Intellectual cooperation 43-15780

"Author, one of America's most distinguished academic statesmen, reviews his life work as director of Institute of International Education, which he has headed since its foundation in 1919. This is autobiography only in parts; Duggan speaks mainly of his manifold experiences abroad in service of his Institute." Library J

Reviewed by Alfred Manes

Ann Am Acad 231:196 Ja '44 330w

Reviewed by F. N. Litten

Book Week p5 D 26 '43 380w

Booklist 40:111 D 1 '43

"Well-written, thought-provoking book should have fairly wide appeal. Strongly recommended for college and public libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 68:767 O 1 '43 100w

"Although in form this is largely a travel book in which the author focuses attention on the peoples and places he has visited, I find it even more valuable for its revelation of Dr. Duggan himself, and for its suggestion of a pattern of living pertinent to our complicated world." John Storck

+ N Y Times p26 N 7 '43 600w

Reviewed by W. S. Lynch

Sat R of Lit 26:46 D 4 '43 650w

Reviewed by Alzada Comstock

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 2 '44 650w

Reviewed by Bruno Lasker

Survey G 33:25 Ja '44 160w

"'A Professor at Large' is interesting and good reading. It has the further merit of having many shrewd observations." Nicholas Roosevelt

+ Weekly Book Review p18 Ja 16 '44 440w

DULL, CHARLES ELWOOD, and IDELSON, MICHAEL NORMAN. Fundamentals of electricity; a pre-induction course at the foundational level; prepared at the request of the War dept. and the U.S. Office of educ. in conformance with official pre-induction training course outline PIT-101. 456p il $2 Holt

537 Electricity. Electric engineering
43-3269

"Following the outline prepared by the War Department the authors have written a work for boys of secondary school age. Contains a series of experiments as well as an appendix of useful mathematical information." (N Y New Tech Bks) Glossary. Index.

Library J 68:290 Ap 1 '43 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:7 Ja '43

Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 22 '43 70w

DULL, CHARLES ELWOOD, and NEWLIN, IRA G. Fundamentals of machines; a pre-induction course at the foundational level; prepared at the request of the War dept. and the U.S. Office of educ. in conformance with official pre-induction training course outline PIT-102. 547p il $2 Holt

531.8 Machinery. Force and energy
43-3305

"Simply written for students untrained in physics and chemistry, this text offers instruction in the elementary laws and shows their application in mechanics, progressing from simple machines like the lever, pulley, and gears to gas engines and the drive mechanism of the automobile." (N Y New Tech Bks) Glossary. Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 28:13 Ja '43

"The book covers basic machine principles: matter, theory of machines, hydraulics, motion, heat, energy, etc., and would serve as a fairly reliable reference for someone who knew his machines. As a text for the beginner, however, it cannot be recommended." R. G. McCloskey

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:32 Ag 21 '43 380w
School & Society 57:195 F 13 '43 30w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 29 '43 80w
Wis Lib Bul 39:105 Jl '43

DULL, CHARLES ELWOOD; MANN, PAUL BLAKESLEE, and JOHNSON, PHILIP GUSTAF. Modern science in our environment. bks 1-3 438;502;598p il bk 1 $1.48; bk2 $1.68; bk3 $1.92 Holt

500 Science 42-11747

"A set of three books for Grades VII, VIII, and IX. This set makes a good selection from the fields of the physical and the biological sciences. The primary goal of the authors was to focus attention on the pupil and his relations to his environment." El School J

"On the whole the books cover very adequately the field of general science and constitute a valuable addition to the literature of the field. The authors recognize the necessity of educating the individual to live an intelligent, healthy physical and mental life." S. P. Phelps

+ El School J 43:313 Ja '43 850w
School & Society 56:135 Ag 15 '42 60w

DU MAURIER, DAPHNE (MRS F. A. M. BROWNING). Hungry Hill. 402p $2.75 Doubleday [10s 6d Gollancz]

43-51190

Long saga of a hundred years, 1820 to 1920, in the lives of two Irish families, the Brodricks and the Donovans. The feud between them began because Brodricks were thought to have stolen Donovan land. When John Brodrick opened the copper mine at Hungry Hill, the head of the Donovan clan predicted failure. At first, success came in the wake of the mine's opening, but thruout the century the family went downhill, and almost always a Donovan was connected with the steps to ruin. In 1920, five generations after the opening of Hungry Hill mine, the old house was burned by the members of the I. R. A.

"'Hungry Hill' contains a wealth of Miss du Maurier's superlatively good writings, and one cannot soon forget the part devoted to Wild Johnnie Brodrick and his mother, Fanny-Rosa. There is but to wish that this extraordinary mother-son story might have been expanded to encompass the whole novel. This would possibly have meant sacrificing the panoramic social implications of the mining enterprise on Hungry Hill, but these are of far less consequence here than Miss du Maurier's art of storytelling, which I regret to see subverted in any way." Edith Roberts

+ — Book Week p4 Jl 4 '43 700w
Booklist 39:446 Jl 1 '43

"Though this is in many ways a fascinating book, it leaves the reader with a sense of dissatisfaction. The descriptive background is beautifully done. The plot is absorbing, though with perhaps a shade too much of the underlying fatalism of the old Greek tragedies. It is the character analysis which fails to be quite convincing."

+ — Cath World 157:667 S '43 230w

Reviewed by O. B. White
Commonweal 38:350 Jl 23 '43 350w

"Excellent characterization. Skilful melodrama, wordy in spots but holds interest. Recommended." E. H. Crowell

+ Library J 68:476 Je 1 '43 40w

"The narrative remains vital to the last page, but as is inevitable in all novels that cover so long a period of time, resolves itself into a series of stories. Some advantage of realism would have been gained if actual and not invented place-names had been used throughout." J. D. Beresford

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 My 7 '43 200w

"Anyone who looks for another 'Rebecca' in Daphne du Maurier's 'Hungry Hill' will be sorely dissappointed; in her new novel Miss du Maurier attempts something much more ambitious and something at which she is much less successful." Diana Trilling

Nation 157:107 Jl 24 '43 500w

"Miss du Maurier is the sort of novelist who could not be dull if she tried, even when she is swimming beyond her depth. True enough, a five-generation study in futility is a big assignment, but she carries it off with resources unimpaired. Perhaps, in the end, she will actually seem a bit fresher than the average American writer. Put that down to the English literary heritage. Writers over there have been turning out multiple-generation novels for centuries, now. 'Hungry Hill' is certainly worthy of a place in that long gallery. Still, we can't help wishing that Miss du Maurier had ventured no farther than the west of England, and left Ireland strictly alone. Each of her Brodricks is a brilliant illustration of an aspect in the Irish character; each is a brilliant surface portrait, and nothing more." William Du Bois

+ — N Y Times p7 Je 13 '43 1000w

"The story has neither the glib expertness of 'Rebecca,' nor, unfortunately, is it the serious study in heredity which the author obviously intends it to be."

New Yorker 19:78 Je 12 '43 90w

"Miss du Maurier's great gift as a novelist lies in her power to give interest to a thoroughly old-fashioned theme, treated in an old-fashioned manner. She does not strain after smartness or sophistication, and obviously enjoys melodrama: and she can hold her readers because, whatever they may think of her subject and her treatment, they cannot accuse her of insincerity." R. E. Roberts

+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 Je 19 '43 700w

"The novel is crammed with many characters but Miss du Maurier succeeds in making them all individual, human and alive. Indeed the reader feels almost as if he were looking on a stage play, so well does each character take his or her part. The book moves from one dramatic scene to another, as the struggle over the mines continues down through the generations, scenes that must be based on the writer's intimate knowledge of how such struggles have taken place in real life among mining people." M. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 13 '43 500w

"Altogether, although Miss du Maurier is skilful enough to maintain the easy flow of her story, there is scarcely a breath of reality to stir the reader to more than passive acquiescence."

Times [London] Lit Sup p221 My 8 '43 360w

"Whatever its weaknesses as a family saga, Miss du Maurier's novel is excellent in its portrayal of the Irish countryside, with its varying moods of seasons and people. She writes with a deep emotional kinship to the land and to those who cherish it for reasons other than the wealth it can produce." Rose Feld

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Je 13 '43 900w
Wis Lib Bul 39:109 Jl '43

DUMOND, DWIGHT LOWELL. History of the United States. 882p maps $5; college ed $4 Holt

973 U.S.—History 42-13216

"Dr. Dumond describes his book as 'a general introduction to the study of United States history.' He has in mind especially the young men and women of today, upon whose minds he desires to impress the slow and often painful growth of our institutions, the matchless environment of the American way of life, and the obligations of intelligent citizenship. . . He covers American history from the founding of Jamestown to the attack on Pearl Harbor. Eight periods are distinguished: 1607-1783; 1783-1825; 1825-40; 1840-60; 1860-76; 1876-96; 1896-1917; 1917-41." (Am Hist R) Index.

"The material is organized into chapters and sections with workmanlike skill. The captions are happily chosen and enable the reader to find his way about with ease. Although Dr. Dumond's field of special interest is the anti-slavery origins of the Civil War and the secession movement, he has not succumbed to the temptation of overemphasizing this phase of American history. The format of the volume is attractive. The text is supplemented by judiciously selected bibliographies, maps, statistical tables, the declaration of Independence, and the Constitution." E. E. Curtis

+ Am Hist R 48:654 Ap '43 180w

"Here is a book which those who do not know about our country should read. Encyclopedic in its information, packed with interesting detail and color, it sets forth many of the important aspects of United States history. Although the reader will find more so-called intellectual and social history than was formerly included in books of this type, the emphasis on the whole is on America's political development." B. L. Pierce

+ Book Week p3 My 23 '43 470w

Social Studies 33:287 O '42 10w

"Good one volume textbooks are not abundant. This one, despite its limitations is well above the average." Oscar Zeichner

+ — Survey G 32:452 N '43 130w

Wis Lib Bul 39:121 O '43

DUNCAN, AMON OCYRUS. Food processing; a guide to selecting, producing, preserving, and storing the family food supply [ed. by Paul W. Chapman]. 544p il $3 Smith, T.E.

664.8 Nutrition. Food. Canning and preserving 42-25408

"This textbook dealing with the home food supply in rural communities provides teaching aids on health and nutrition, the outlay of family income, essential foods, and methods of canning, freezing, dehydrating, slaughtering and curing. Emphasis is placed on community processing facilities such as canneries and freezer locker plants." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 39:246 F 15 '43

N Y New Tech Bks 28:27 Ap '43

DUNCAN, IDA RILEY. Needles and pins; the American woman's complete sewing book. 344p $2.50; school ed $1.92 Liveright

646 Dressmaking. Sewing 43-11710

Complete sewing book for the present day, teaching the care, construction, and conservation of clothing and materials. Contents: Materials; Care of fabrics and garments; Mending; How to take measurements; The grains of the material; Darts; Dress forms; Pattern drafting; Foundation pattern and flat pattern design; Remodeling and renovating; Remodeling the entire garment; Renovating hand-knitted and machine-knitted garments; Miscellaneous; Constructive stitches. Diagrams, bibliography, index.

Booklist 40:5 S '43

"This looks like a college education in how to make or remodel your own clothes. Unlike college, it requires no preparatory course. Every explanation begins at the beginning." Helen Henley

Christian Science Monitor p8 Jl 9 '43 70w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

Reviewed by Ann Stevens

N Y Times p16 Jl 11 '43 280w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 15 '43 200w

Weekly Book Review p25 Je 27 '43 180w

Wis Lib Bul 39:120 O '43

DUNCAN, JOHN BROWN. Heather heritage. 312p $2.50 Liveright

43-3711

Memories of a happy childhood on a Canadian farm, as they appear to the more than middle-aged Gavon Kyle, whose ancestors had made the long trip from Scotland, to settle near the St Clair river. Gavon goes back to Canada, from his home in America, to review the scenes of his youth.

Bookmark 4:18 Mr '43

"Although it is called a novel, this narrative has the flavor and the unaccented drama of autobiography. There are births and marriage and death, and a sense of the continuity of family. There are tragedies and there are days of jubilation." Lisle Bell

Books p11 F 7 '43 200w

"It is a book that every one with a wholly happy childhood—or even patches of youthful happiness—will love; and any one with a keen eye for the rich vagaries of normal human nature must enjoy." J. S. Southron

+ N Y Times p26 Ja 31 '43 750w

"The style of John Brown Duncan is simple and easy flowing and brings alive, by vivid portrayal, the friends, the school, Granny's place and the house on the top of the hill. It is a story that needs no plot for the action and events naturally lead to the important phase of Gavon Kyle's life—his return to the home of his childhood." M. R. Burroughs

+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 30 '43 170w

DUNHAM, CHESTER FORRESTER. Attitude of the northern clergy toward the South, 1860-1865. 269p $3.50 Gray co, 3456 Island av, Toledo, Ohio

973.715 U.S.—History—Civil war—Religious aspects. Clergy 42-50293

"Having explored a wide range of religious newspapers and pamphlet reprints of sermons, Chester F. Dunham has gathered in this little volume a storehouse of material on attitudes toward slavery, abolition, the Dred Scott case, secession, war and the freed Negro. Actually it covers the years 1850-60 as well as those indicated in the title." Springf'd Republican

"The author might, perhaps, have made clearer the connection between the antislavery crusade and the maintenance of civil liberties and of the part taken by the clergy in the war effort, but it is indeed a provocative and a useful book that raises queries as to why some topics are left untouched and others do not receive the attention that one might reasonably expect." A. F. Tyler

+ — Am Hist R 48:367 Ja '43 650w

"The volume is referred to above as 'a collection of quotations.' That is the trouble with it. Mr Dunham has taken his notes, classified them under chapter titles and added connecting sentences and brief concluding paragraphs. The classification is well done and the concluding paragraphs are helpful. But that does not make a book. The author has not digested his material well enough to write flowing text that includes vital quotations simply as part of his own words." S. L. Jackson

— + Springf'd Republican p14 My 15 '42 440w

DUNLAP, CARL HARRY, and HAHN, ENNO R., eds. Electrical and radio dictionary; incl. symbols, formulas, diagrams, and tables. 1943 rev & enl ed 110p $1 Am. tech. soc.

621.303 Electricity—Dictionaries. Radio—Dictionaries 43-4491

Second edition of a small dictionary of electrical and radio terms which first appeared in 1927. Includes electrical formulas, tables, and national electrical code standards.

"This is a revision of a 1927 book and some vestiges of now obsolete terms remain. For instance, cat whisker, which was a common term in the days of crystal receivers. The new word radar and the word radionics fail to appear, but this is not surprising in a list which is only 68 pages in length."

Book Week p8 Jl 4 '43 90w

Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 10w

"The usefulness of this small dictionary is reduced by the arrangement of electrical and radio terms in separate alphabets. No table of contents or index has been provided although in addition to the two main lists, the book includes miscellaneous data such as formulas, symbols, circuit diagrams, etc."

N Y New Tech Bks 28:25 Ap '43

DUNLOP, HAZEL PECKINPAUGH. Let's arrange flowers. 162p il $2.50 Harper

635.9663 Floral decoration 43-8852

"Ideas and experiences of a professional flower arranger and flower show judge distinguish this informal text on flower arrangement. Principles of design, types of holders, containers and accessories, color schemes, materials other than flowers—always an enlivening subject—the reasons for and results of a flower show, and the technique of judging flower arrangement, make up a useful, practical guide." Weekly Book Review

"Here's another in the succession of books which may eventually sweep from the American home the crammed-in bunch of zinnias on the living room table. . . This is quite a good one, practical and usable; and while few of the arrangements pictured are as breathtaking as you will occasionally find elsewhere, neither is there any of the silly stuff such as spearing corn flowers on toothpicks and displaying them a la cocktail sausage, which is the kind of painful 'originality' frequently put forth as 'the modern manner.' "

+ Book Week p9 Je 27 '43 180w

Bookmark 4:9 My '43

"There are thirty-two pages of photographs, in some of which flowers have been more definitely 'arranged' than by those who prize an unstudied appearance, but this is a book rather for exhibitors and those who hope to be, than for ordinary home use."

Weekly Book Review p16 Jl 11 '43 130w

Wis Lib Bul 39:105 Jl '43

DURANTY, WALTER. Search for a key. 313p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

43-3710

In terms of a fictional autobiography, the author reviews the history of Europe between two wars as it appeared to a foreign correspondent. The hero and narrator of the story is Oliver Joby, born and educated in England, crippled in the first World war, thereafter a traveling newspaperman ostensibly interested in political events, privately seeking the key to the meaning of life.

Reviewed by S. E. Hyman
Book Week p3 Ap 11 '43 800w

Reviewed by S. E. Sherman
Library J 68:81 Ja 15 '43 110w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 156:533 Ap 10 '43 100w

"One might conclude that 'Search for a Key' would be a better book if it were straight non-fiction. However, most likely this is not true. The fact that Duranty wanted to write a novel has given a vividness and human depth to the presentation and analysis of many of his political descriptions, which he might not have achieved in a mere journalistic book." Marianne Hauser

+ — N Y Times p12 Mr 14 '43 750w

"There is not much to back up the publisher's claim that this is a novel. It is, however, an interesting memoir (whether it is autobiographical or not doesn't matter), written with grace and originality."

+ New Yorker 19:79 Mr 13 '43 70w

" 'Search for a Key' is the best sort of reading. You do not want to put it down and you have to finish it. And that, I suppose, is about as high a general compliment as can be paid a piece of writing. You are eager to follow the career of Oliver Joby to the end; the only trouble is that when you get to that end, you haven't cared enough about Oliver Joby. He seems a curiously cold, half realized hero. You are much more moved by some of the other characters." Struthers Burt

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:12 Ap 3 '43 900w

"Despite the fact that the hero's search for the 'great eternal truths' intrudes itself into the story too often for comfort, Oliver Toby's global adventures make good reading. And Mr Duranty's sharp unequivocal opinions on a variety of subjects, from Hitler to china-collecting as a hobby, are well worth the reader's attention." J. K.

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e My 9 '43 250w

"The novel has the defects of its virtues. In style a little self-indulgent, a little lacking in the discipline that a stricter form would have imposed on it, a little inclined to resort to rhythmic iambics that readily submit to scansion when a supple, flexible prose would have served his purpose far better—nevertheless and in spite of all this, Mr. Duranty's book has great virtues and has these virtues in abundance." F. H. Bullock

+ — Weekly Book Review p5 Mr 14 '43 1200w

DURYEE, WILLIAM BUDINGTON. Farming for security. (Whittlesey house publication) 250p il $2 McGraw

631.1 Agriculture 43-3828

Practical handbook on the purchase and operation of a farm. Contents: Security in today's world; The kind of farm to buy; Where to look; This or that soil; What price land?; What shall we use for money?; Farm ownership security; Country conveniences; A living from poultry; Successful flock management; The simplest type of farming; Meat-animal production; Bees as income producers; Food from the garden; The family milk supply; Fruits that grow on trees—and bushes; How to prune fruit trees; Ornamenting the country home; Marketing farm products. Includes do's and dont's for each chapter. Index.

Booklist 39:336 Ap 15 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '43

"A sensible and informative book on the possibility of turning to farming as a way of life. . . 'Farming for Security' is not a complete guide on the problem of going back to the land by any means, but it presents fairly and realistically the principal factors which are involved."

+ Commonweal 37:570 Mr 26 '43 550w

"Recommended for medium-sized and large public libraries." Walter Hausdorfer

+ Library J 68:127 F 1 '43 60w

"On the whole, a useful book, modestly conceived and, within its limits, ably put together."

+ Weekly Book Review p21 My 2 '43 550w

Wis Lib Bul 39:50 Ap '43

DUSHAW, AMOS ISAAC. Anti-Semitism—the voice of folly and fanaticism. 116p $1.50 Tolerance press, 2170 Bedford av, Brooklyn, N.Y.

296 Jews—Political and social conditions 43-7428

"The author surveys the fortunes and misfortunes of the Jews, their contributions to Christianity, the reasons why Christians should

DUSHAW, A. I.—Continued
abhor anti-Semitism, and the fallacy of racialism, and ends with a declaration (without much argument) in favor of a Jewish homeland in Palestine." Christian Century

Christian Century 60:770 Je 30 '43 50w

"Thoughtful and socially minded folk who are seriously concerned over anti-Semitism, will find much that is commendable in a small book."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 26 '43 80w

DUSS, JOHN SAMUEL. Harmonists; a personal history. 425p il $3.50 Pa. bk. service
335.973 Harmonists 43-5084

"'Harmonists' equals 'Rappites.' They were one of the most interesting, and for a time one of the most successful, of the many communal experiments in the United States in the early part of the nineteenth century. The narrative of Mr. Duss covers the whole story: the coming of George Rapp from Germany, a mystical 'inner light' separatist, and the founding of his first Harmony colony on the Ohio river 25 miles above Pittsburgh in 1804; the removal in 1815 to New Harmony, Indiana; and the fortunes of the colony in its third location, Economy, on the Ohio 16 miles below Pittsburgh, from 1825, until its legal dissolution in 1905. It is a 'personal history' in the sense that the narrator was long and intimately associated with the colony." Christian Century

"The religious and cultural history of the colony is too complicated for brief summary. Mr. Duss treats it with high intelligence and rare detachment."
+ Christian Century 61:48 Ja 12 '44 390w
New Repub 110:62 Ja 10 '44 90w

DUTT, RAJANI PALME. Britain in the world front. 284p $2 Int. pubs. [5s Lawrence]
940.5342 World war, 1939—Great Britain 43-1908

This book was written in the spring of 1942 and published in London in June. It is concerned with the part Great Britain is playing in the anti-Fascist war with suggestions for improvement. The author is a member of the English Communist party.

Reviewed by L. J. Lee, Jr.
Am Pol Sci R 37:564 Je '43 350w

"Mr. Dutt's best chapter, in my opinion at least, is the one entitled 'The Face of the Enemy.' It offers a thorough analysis of the aims, methods, and dangers of fascism, particularly in its Hitlerite form, and makes very clear the need for a complete anti-Axis victory. Even here, however, where it certainly is not necessary, he distorts facts in order to make some of his points stronger." W. C. Langsam
Ann Am Acad 228:115 Jl '43 360w

"For those who can allow for the exaggerated communist flaunt, who can stand a good deal of jargon without being bemused, and who can fill in the omissions, this is a book well worth reading. The fundamental thesis of Fascism as a universal disease, with its corollary: the differentiation between Nazism and the German people, strongly developed here, is thoroughly sound, and the many indications that Munichism is not dead should be remembered." G. M. A. Grube
+ — Canadian Forum 22:334 F '43 280w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:14 Jl '43 20w
New Statesman & Nation 24:98 Ag 8 '42 250w

"As was only to be expected, there are suggestive and helpful things in what Mr. Dutt has to say, and these are not invalidated by the occasional polemical silliness of his criticisms. . . For the rest, however, apart from any regret the reader may feel (he has no occasion to feel surprise) that Mr. Dutt could not find it in his curiously deviating mind to plan for victory rather sooner than he did, he might have had a better effect if he had attempted a little less in this book. Despite the mildness, never was a Marxian commentator in this country more critically omniscient."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p398 Ag 15 '42 480w

DUTT, RAJANI PALME. Problem of India [Eng title: Guide to the problem of India]. 224p $2 Int. pubs. [4s 6d Gollancz]
954 India—Politics and government 43-11157

"A penetrating and closely-knit analysis of the basic factors in India's political, social and economic life, in which the conclusions are supported by a wealth of actual material drawn from original sources, both Indian and British. Its author, a well-known Left-wing political analyst, has served as editor of the British 'Labour Monthly' since its foundation in 1921, and is recognized as one of the leading students of Indian problems." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by Sudhindra Bose
Am Pol Sci R 37:958 O '43 300w

"While many students of Indian affairs will doubt the soundness of some of Mr. Dutt's conclusions, all will agree that he has done well as a counter propagandist." H. L. Hoskins
Ann Am Acad 231:177 Ja '44 500w

"No writer has at his fingertips more factual material on which we can form our own conclusions about these questions than has R. Palme Dutt. . . The book was written primarily for British readers, but this American edition has value for us as well." Robert Norton
+ Churchman 157:15 S 1 '43 500w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:165 O '43 10w

"To the non-Communist advocate of Indian freedom the chief value of this book will lie in its excellent historical analyses. These are Marxist in method, but even to the reader who rejects the author's philosophy the material presented, not easily to be found elsewhere, will be of real value. . . Less reliable, though always suggestive, are the sections on the Indian national movement and the role of Congress. To the average liberal reader the author's criticism of the Congress resolution on non-cooperation, agreeably temperate in tone, will seem inconsistent."
+ — Nation 157:332 S 18 '43 200w

"This reviewer cannot always agree with Mr. Dutt's Marxian overtones, but finds his central thesis unassailable and his treatment admirable." Anup Singh
+ — New Repub 109:433 S 27 '43 650w

"Palme Dutt gives the impression of proving too much, of deliberately closing his eyes to very real difficulties, or admitting them, as the lawyers say, only by way of confession and avoidance. . . Yet those who can take a heavily loaded book and do their own discriminating will find in Palme Dutt's work a veritable arsenal of arguments for India's freedom." B. D. Wolfe
N Y Times p3 S 5 '43 320w

Reviewed by K. L. Mitchell
+ Weekly Book Review p12 Ag 15 '43 1200w

DU VALL, EVERETT WILLIS. Personality and social group work; the individual approach. 234p $2.50 Assn. press
361.8 Group work. Personality 43-51270

"A practical, comprehensive manual on the principles, methods, and techniques of individualized services in leisure time and informal education programs" (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:54 O 15 '43

"In spite of the fact that this book lacks the central focus the title would indicate, it contains a great deal of important information. There will be differences of opinion as to its value to the practicing group worker, but it is well worth the time of reading and thoughtful choice of applicable material." Gertrude Wilson
+ Survey 79:254 S '43 550w

DWIGHT, CARLTON. Reading blueprints in the machine industries. 144p $2.25 McGraw

744.532 Blueprints. Machine shop practice 43-10589

"Dwight's book is cast in a form more and more widely used in high school and vocational education classes. His units of instruction present a small coherent section of theoretical material followed immediately by a set of illustrative problems." (N Y Times) Index.

"One of the better books on blueprint reading." L. E. Grinter
+ Book Week p9 Ag 29 '43 70w
+ Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:40 Jl '43

Reviewed by R. P. Hoelscher
N Y Times p37 O 3 '43 240w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 22 '43 50w

DWIGHT, HARRISON GRISWOLD, and FRANKFURTER, ALFRED M. Art parade; seeing the past forty years through Art news and the Frick collection. 118p il $3.50 Hastings house

709.73 Art news (periodical). Frick collection, New York. Art—U.S. 43-51255

"This is the story—in pictures—of 'the years in which art grew up in America.' The years were the last 40. They are seen through the medium of the nation's oldest art magazine, Art News, and the great Frick collection in New York. . . Eight of the top-ranking paintings of the Frick collection, none of them ever before published in this form, are included in full-page color plates. They are by El Greco, Velasquez, Piero della Francesca, Bartolommeo, Vivarini, Boucher, Ingres, Renoir and Cezanne." Book Week

Book Week p10 S 12 '43 140w
Booklist 40:42 O 1 '43
Commonweal 38:520 S 10 '43 50w

DWIGHT, MARGARET BRUSH. Winkie Boo, and other poems; drawings by M. Ryerson; fairies and occasional sketches by the author. 65p $2 Dodd

811 Children's poetry 42-21058

A small book of simple verse for the nursery age.

"Friendly, unpretentious verses that will be enjoyed by the nursery age. Although a few are unchildlike in thought and phrasing, and there is considerable unevenness in quality, they are for the most part within comprehension of a three-year-old. Two of the five Christmas poems included are charming." E. D. Briggs
+ Library J 67:955 N 1 '42 70w

"These verses for littlest children may be long remembered by those who listen to them now. For they are written with simplicity and fellow-feeling of what it is to be two years old and grow to be four." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p7 F 28 '43 280w

DYETT, JAMES G. From sea to shining sea. [72p] il $2.50 Oxford

917.3 U.S.—Juvenile literature 43-6126

Photographs and simple text show Americans of different races, working, playing, and engaged in the pursuits of war and peace, all across the country.

Booklist 39:390 Je 1 '43

"If you want a picture of America—these United States—as she is today—of people, working, playing, studying, governing; of big cities, towns, farms, mountains, deserts, forests, rivers, etc.—you will find an interesting and inspirational panorama spread for you in a new book, 'From Sea to Shining Sea.' " F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 24 '43 90w
Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:241 Jl '43 70w

"Expensive but worth it. For school and public libraries." E. A. Groves
+ Library J 68:478 Je 1 '43 110w

"The best book yet of the many which have tried to answer the questions: What is America? What is democracy? Well-selected photographs and good running text really give the feel of the American way of life and of the principles we are fighting for."
+ New Yorker 19:70 My 29 '43 50w

"Adequate."
Sat R of Lit 26:30 My 15 '43 20w

"I can well believe that it 'took several months' to assemble and select the seventy-five fine photographs that with an accompanying text constitute the image of America that this book conveys. They were evidently chosen on a basis of wide knowledge, deep sympathy and catholicity of taste. . . The text, simple and straightforward, does not bother with defining democracy; along with the pictures it shows you how it is working among us." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 My 9 '43 220w
Wis Lib Bul 39:111 Jl '43

DYSON, WALTER. Howard university; the capstone of Negro education; a history, 1867-1940. 553p il $4 Howard univ. Graduate school

378 Howard university. Washington, D.C. 42-5077

"This informative study was intended to be a souvenir of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of Howard University. It depicts the origin and the establishment of the famous institution and traces its growth and progress throughout the various stages of development from 'elementary school' to 'incipient university.' " Ann Am Acad

"Professor Dyson's book is not a definitive history of Howard University, because it leaves certain gaps in the chronology and touches only lightly some very important questions, but its thirty-six chapters represent a tremendous amount of labor and present a sampling of a great deal of source material. . . Professor Dyson deserves high commendation for this valuable contribution to the history of Howard university." G. B. Johnson
+ Am Hist R 48:419 Ja '43 280w

"Professor Dyson has performed a difficult task well. Basing his work upon official documents and other trustworthy sources, he has written a full, general history of the institution with clarity and insight." A. A. Taylor
+ Ann Am Acad 225:258 Ja '43 500w

E

EARDLEY, ARMAND JOHN. Aerial photographs; their use and interpretation. 203p il maps $2.75 Harper

526.98 Geology—Maps. Photography, Aerial 42-24839

"A revised, expanded edition of Interpretation of Geologic Maps and Aerial Photos, with military applications added. Planned for classroom and laboratory use; many photographs and diagrams." Booklist

Booklist 39:204 Ja 15 '43

"Complete and practical volume."
+ Library J 68:431 My 15 '43 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:22 Ap '43

"Professor Eardley goes thoroughly into his subject. Cameras, the preparation of photographic mosaics and interpretive techniques are all discussed. The amount of technical and mathematical knowledge required to make the most of his exposition is not formidable." Waldemar Kaempffert

EARDLEY, A. J.—Continued

+ N Y Times p35 N 22 '42 120w

Reviewed by N. J. Hoff
N Y Times p23 Mr 14 '43 400w

Special Libraries 34:26 Ja '43

EARLE, EDWARD MEAD; CRAIG, GORDON, and GILBERT, FELIX, eds. Makers of modern strategy; military thought from Machiavelli to Hitler. 553p $3.75 Princeton univ. press

355.4 Strategy. Military biography A43-3602

Study of military history from the time of Machiavelli to the present, as evidenced by the men who mapped out or influenced its course. Partial contents: Machiavelli, by Felix Gilbert; Vauban, by Henry Guerlac; Frederick the Great, Guibert, Bülow, by R. R. Palmer; Jomini, by Crane Brinton, G. A. Craig, and Felix Gilbert; Clausewitz, by H. Rothfels; Adam Smith, Alexander Hamilton, Friedrich List, by E. M. Earle; Engels and Marx, by Sigmund Neumann; Moltke and Schlieffen, by Hajo Holborn; Du Picq and Foch, by S. T. Possony and Etienne Mantoux; Churchill, Lloyd George, Clemenceau, by H. A. DeWeerd; Lenin, Trotsky, Stalin, by E. M. Earle; Maginot and Liddell Hart, by I. M. Gibson; Mahan, by M. T. Sprout; Douhet, Mitchell, Seversky, by Edward Warner. Bibliographical notes. Index.

"Undoubtedly this is the most authoritative and comprehensive book about war on its strategic side that the present war has produced, as Quincy Wright's book is on the social side. Twenty experts, some eminent, all competent, collaborated in writing it." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 60:1536 D 29 '43 1300w

"If Dr. Earle's excellent symposium on the trend of military thought since the time of Machiavelli could be made a required subject in every college in the land, it would provide a means of arousing civilian interest in adopting a policy designed to insure the safety of the country." F. L. O.

Christian Science Monitor p8 D 31 '43 600w

"A little too detailed and specialized for the general reader, but excellent as a gift for the officer who likes the Army."

+ Commonweal 39:77 N 5 '43 140w

"It is seldom that any book can lay claim to being unique, yet 'Makers of Modern Strategy' has that distinction. In an extremely meaty volume of 550 pages no fewer than twenty authors, working under the leadership of Dr. Edward M. Earle of the Princeton University Institute of Advanced Studies, have summarized the best thinking and writing on war of the last three centuries. Their work makes readily available much valuable information which could hardly have been obtained in even the best American libraries." D. W. Mitchell

+ Nation 158:76 Ja 15 '44 650w

Reviewed by Max Werner
New Repub 109:818 D 6 '43 950w

"The editor and collaborators of 'Makers of Modern Strategy' have succeeded well in the job they tackled. The tendency among historians to write for other historians more than for the layman is not a frequent fault in the book. The level of the style is high, owing in part to Professor Earle's editing. His own writings have a flow not found too often among American historical writers." J. I. Greene

+ N Y Times p7 O 17 '43 1000w

"Scholarly history. . . Except for Hamilton, Mahan, and Mitchell, though, the American tradition seems, rather curiously, to have been neglected."

+ — New Yorker 19:95 O 23 '43 100w

Reviewed by R. E. Dupuy
Sat R of Lit 26:9 N 13 '43 350w

Reviewed by H. W. Weigert
Survey G 33:26 Ja '44 500w

"Over and above [some] quibblings on the part of a reviewer is the conviction that 'Makers of Modern Strategy' is the most comprehensive and competently written book that has yet appeared covering the development of warfare during the past four centuries. A book for the intelligent civilian who is willing to ponder as well as read, and for every political and military leader." P. J. Searles

+ — Weekly Book Review p5 D 5 '43 1750w

"A book which can do no more than present the main outlines of their contribution to strategic thought, but the net result is a far clearer picture of the basic military mind than could be given from the standpoint of any one set of theories. This is not to say that the book altogether lacks weak spots. Sigmund Neumann on Engels and Marx is chiefly concerned with proving that the former was a competent military critic and fails to demonstrate that his man contributed anything to the art beyond good journalism." Fletcher Pratt

+ — Yale R n s 33:383 winter '44 700w

EASTON, ROBERT OLNEY. Happy man. 221p $2.50 Viking

43-1682

A series of sketches and stories woven into a description of life on a great California cattle ranch. Some of the material has appeared in the Atlantic Monthly.

"Don't miss Robert Easton's first book, Happy Man. It passes as a novel but should be taken as a collection of short stories about Dynamite, a cowhand who stepped right out of Remington's drawings into the present. . . Mr. Easton, his creator, worked on a ranch before he went into the Army and he must have known more than one Dynamite in the flesh. His colorful, authentic narrative is sure promise of what he can give us when the war is over."

+ Atlantic 171:148 Ap '43 270w

Booklist 39:319 Ap 1 '43

"This would seem to be unpromising material for escapism, but Robert Easton so warmly loves the life of a chain cow-hand (which he led before induction into the armed forces) that he succeeds in weaving a happy spell about the rough and thankless round. It is his marvelous tales of ranch house and saloon that do the trick."

+ Commonweal 37:474 F 26 '43 140w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 156:425 Mr 20 '43 210w

"The book has what is necessary—quick narrative, infallible regional feeling, and a not often approached rendition of the vernacular. Mr. Easton is now with a tank destroyer battalion, and is unlikely to write another book for the duration. Doubtless, however, he will keep his ears open, and if he develops as fine a touch with soldiers' idiom as with truckmen's and cowhands', he may well be one of the great writers to interpret the present war." G. R. Stewart

+ N Y Times p7 F 21 '43 650w

"A clear narrative style and a sure sense of authenticity help make up for the fact that the tales really aren't very interesting. If, however, you want to know what ranch hands talk about, these yarns will do as well as any."

+ — New Yorker 19:59 F 20 '43 70w

"Mr. Easton's 'The Happy Man' is full of good writing. One finds in it a happy union of two rather opposite qualities: the slow, easy rhythm of, let us say, 'The Virginian' of famous memory; and a capacity to observe and put down sharply, rich, significant detail. Almost any one of his sketches is a pleasurable experience. The difficulty is that his book is centrifugal rather than centripetal. . . Because Mr. Easton reports both ably and sympathetically, it is to be hoped that he will in another volume solve the problem of structure which his approach to material sets before him." H. M. Jones

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:11 F 27 '43 270w

"Mr. Easton's book is well-written and has a certain fresh joyous quality that is very pleasing." E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 21 '43 220w

"This rather slim and unpretentious book, for all the imperfections which the captious might find in it, is a splendid performance. It was written by a man who obviously knows his material." Stanley Walker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 F 21 '43 1200w
Wis Lib Bul 39:73 My '43

EASUM, CHESTER VERNE. Prince Henry of Prussia, brother of Frederick the Great. 403p il $5 Univ. of Wis. press

B or 92 Henry, prince of Prussia 42-3483

"In this life of the lesser brother of the great Frederick, Professor Easum has given us the first treatment in English of a Prussian prince whom some people, in 1787, wanted to make the king-stadtholder of the new United States." Am Hist R

"A biography of Henry should hardly omit the worst criticisms he made of the king, if only to make the record complete, including his remarks to Catherine of Russia about Frederick's mania for writing verse in camp... Military and diplomatic activities form the bulk of this biography, crowding out Henry's contacts, slight as they were, with Voltaire or Goethe... The military historian would have liked to know whether or not Clausewitz was right in ascribing to Henry a great part in the devising of that cordon system which proved so fatal in the war of the monarchies against revolutionary France... At such points as these there were offered occasions to place Henry in a larger context, to make out of his life something which need not have terminated with his death in 1802... Instead of a wider and straighter frame, the author has chosen the loose framework of the rocaille style." Alfred Vagts
Am Hist R 48:329 Ja '43 650w

"The book is thoroughly documented and is one of the most notable recent contributions to the study of European history."
+ Current Hist 2:463 Ag '42 360w

Reviewed by H. C. Vedeler
Pol Sci Q 58:157 Mr '43 500w

EATON, CHARLES EDWARD. Bright plain. 92p $2 Univ. of N.C. press

811 43-5124

Collection of poems by a North Carolina writer, a student of Robert Frost and Robert Hillyer. Many of the poems have been previously printed in American and Canadian publications.

"Pleasant reading, though not exciting. . . The lines are well put together. The thought is lofty and the vision clear." Pearl Strachan
Christian Science Monitor p10 F 27 '43 50w

"Possesses a quiet, lyrical faculty, with a clean and simple diction." David Daiches
+ New Repub 109:150 Ag 2 '43 20w

Reviewed by Leo Shapiro
Poetry 63:101 N '43 480w

Times [London] Lit Sup p419 Ag 28 '43 150w

Reviewed by Louis Untermeyer
Yale R n s 33:350 winter '44 90w

EATON, EVELYN SYBIL MARY. The sea is so wide. 281p $2.50 Harper

43-3610

Historical novel based on the exile of the Acadians from Nova Scotia in 1755. The heroine is Barbe Comeau, daughter of a wealthy Acadian, whose forefathers had founded the settlement in which they lived. When the evacuation order came, Barbe and her father and their faithful housekeeper were put on one ship, the other members of the family on another. Barbe's ship touched near Williamsburg, Virginia, and their luck was good. The three were allowed to stay and establish a new life for themselves, and there Barbe's English lover found them two years later.

"Evelyn Eaton does a good job in telling of the banishment of these good people from their homeland and of the comparative good fortune of Barbe Comeau and her father after their deportation to far-off Williamsburg, Va." G. V. M.
+ Book Week p6 Ap 4 '43 110w
Booklist 39:319 Ap 1 '43

"Highly recommended." Thelma Brackett
+ Library J 68:210 Mr 1 '43 70w

" 'The Sea Is So Wide' has a rather conventionally romantic and uncomplicated plot. The story moves with swiftness and vigor nevertheless. Evelyn Eaton is not a member of the school which seems to feel that historical novels must be twice as long as any other sort, with all pertinent documents quoted in full. She has done a workmanlike job here, a novel perhaps not quite so distinguished as we had hoped for from the author of 'Quietly My Captain Waits,' but satisfactory by most other standards." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p6 Mr 7 '43 850w

"Miss Eaton writes with a care and seriousness that give solid reality both to the good life of her Acadian farmers and to their later misfortunes. When the scene moves south to Williamsburg, where three of the principal characters finally settle down and find happiness, the local color seems less inherent and more applied than in the earlier chapters. This may be no fault of the author but something in the very nature of curtsying ladies and gentlemen in powdered wigs."
+ — New Yorker 19:66 Mr 6 '43 140w

"Longfellow has told the story once, in his 'Evangeline.' And though his words were flowery, we feel his story on the whole is more realistic than Miss Eaton's. . . It's a timely book to read now in the light of later persecutions, and later need for tolerance, pity, and constructive aid to 1943's stricken people." Edrie Van Dore
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 14 '43 390w

"Although the dialogue is, for the most part, modern in vernacular, the spirit of the time is preserved in accurate details of custom and dress. Occasionally specific historical data are employed—there is, for instance, a letter from Samuel Johnson. 'The Sea Is So Wide' makes colorful reading as a picture of the fortitude of the early Nova Scotia settlers." D. C. Steele
+ Weekly Book Review p10 Mr 14 '43 450w
Wis Lib Bul 39:74 My '43

EATON, JOSEPH W. Exploring tomorrow's agriculture. 255p il $2.75 Harper

334.683 Agriculture, Cooperative 43-9813

"Co-operative group farming—a practical program of rural rehabilitation." (Subtitle) Surveys the Farm security administration's group farming projects in the South, and a few in Indiana, Nebraska, and the Dakotas. Index.

Booklist 39:458 Jl 15 '43

"Informative survey but not very convincing evidence that co-operative group farming is even a good solution to rural social problems. For libraries collecting material on rural sociology and agricultural economics." Walter Hausdorfer
Library J 68:361 My 1 '43 110w

Reviewed by Conrad Taeuber
Pol Sci Q 58:621 D '43 750w
Wis Lib Bul 39:105 Jl '43

EBENSTEIN, WILLIAM. Nazi state. 355p $2.75; text ed $2 Farrar

943.086 Germany—Nazi movement 42-51773

"The author begins with five chapters on the law and politics of the Third Reich, in which he considers the fundamentals of Nazi politics, the structure of the national government, state and local government, the powers and organization of the party and law and justice. In five further chapters Professor Ebenstein takes up what might be called the spiritual aspects of his subject: propaganda and public opinion, the control of art and literature, education, training for leadership, and religion. Two additional chapters report Nazi economic policy and practice and the position of labor. A final chapter discusses the regime's foreign policy." (Books) Index.

EBENSTEIN, WILLIAM—Continued

Reviewed by H. H. Schaff
Am Econ R 33:671 S '43 1100w

"The author's air of detachment does not prevent him from giving judgment on occasions so that the reader is in no doubt with regard to the author's convictions. Eternally suspended judgment—or, more brutally, permanent intellectual paralysis—is not, the reader may rejoice, one of Professor Ebenstein's characteristics. The style is not distinguished and the occasional attempts at humor have a certain flavor of Political Science I (open to sophomores): Nevertheless, the book is valuable and useful and a real service to anyone who seriously attempts to understand the Nazi way of life." C. E. Quainton
+ — Am Hist R 49:150 O '43 280w

"Despite the mass of detailed data, the reader is absorbed from the first to the last page. The book is descriptive in nature. Analysis is incidental and subordinate to the presentation of facts. History is given as background whenever necessary in each chapter. Occasionally the author enlivens his story with an ironical remark or a well-coined phrase, as when he points out that the real formula of Germany's war economy is not 'butter or guns' but 'butter through guns.' The chapters on law and justice, art and literature, education, war economy, and foreign policy are especially good. There are a few errors and omissions." Heinz Guradze
+ — Am Pol Sci R 37:341 Ap '43 600w

Reviewed by Svend Riemer
Am Soc R 8:357 Je '43 800w

"No one can complain at this date of a dearth of books on Hitler's Germany. Yet the present volume is far from being a pointless restatement. Although not intended as a definitive study, it is a significant contribution which requires no apology. Those familiar with the literature on the Third Reich will easily discern the measure of original thought which the author has injected into each chapter. His selections from German sources, for the most part the result of independent re-examination, in themselves would justify the publication of a commentary as comprehensive as this. The same intimate knowledge of the source materials is in evidence in the freshness of the narrative and the competent tracing of more recent war developments." F. M. Marx
+ Ann Am Acad 228:110 Jl '43 500w
Booklist 39:249 F 15 '43

"[This] new study of the Third Reich ranks with the very best of the several books which American and other academic scholars like Schuman, Roberts, Lichtenberger and Neumann have written on the New Germany. Some of these other men's books have been written with more grace and fire, and some have been informed to a greater degree by first-hand observation and experience of life in the Third Reich. None of them, however, manifests a higher quality of painstaking research, a more thorough grasp of even the most esoteric of the relevant German literature, a more impressive marshaling of close-packed, detailed, specific facts, or a keener insight into the nature and meaning of the facts." W. R. Deuel
+ Books p16 Ja 31 '43 1200w
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 26 '43 320w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:12 Jl '43 30w

Reviewed by R. A. Brady
J Pol Econ 51:551 D '43 1300w

"The book complains little and explains much. It combines with extraordinary poise factual information and penetrating analysis. Everything is set out straightforwardly. At times the thoughtful frugality of the presentation is interrupted by just one or two tersely ironic and irate lines—which is like taking a breath of clean air but only in order to return immediately to the duty of exploring the morass which threatens to engulf us all." H. E. Fried
+ Nation 156:174 Ja 30 '43 950w

"A highly competent history of Nazism and a study of the Nazi idea of government as it is applied to almost every phase of German existence. . . The writing is pretty solemn but generally clear."
+ New Repub 108:294 Mr 1 '43 60w

"Not much new stuff, but a fairly thorough job. Occasionally loose in detail, however, and rather awkward."
+ — New Yorker 18:60 Ja 23 '43 70w

"Even in those parts of his book where he succeeds in presenting a fairly comprehensive picture of German institutions (for example, the educational system in chapters 8 and 9), he reveals his limited familiarity with historical and institutional data. His delight in black-and-white juxtapositions and facile generalizations should warn the reader against unreserved acceptance of his judgments." Otto Kirchheimer
— Pol Sci Q 58:442 S '43 600w

Reviewed by Robert Strauz-Hupe
Sat R of Lit 26:4 F 6 '43 1000w
School & Society 57:83 Ja 16 '43 50w

"Since the return of the American newspaper men after the outbreak of the war between the United States and Germany we have had a flood of publications about life inside nazi Germany. Some of them were valuable contributions. Not one of these books, however, gave a comprehensive understanding of the structure and the moving forces of the present political, economic, and cultural set up in Germany. It is just this that this book tries to achieve, and it does it, on the whole, very successfully. . . I regret that Ebenstein sometimes seems to come close to those theories which see in Hitler the outgrowth of special attitudes of the German people. The fact stands that Germany was not the first country to produce a totalitarian dictatorship and is certainly not the only one. A world problem cannot be explained satisfactorily through the attempt to find its roots in one nation, however great its individual responsibility may be." F. W. Sollmann
+ — Social Studies 34:186 Ap '43 480w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 25 '43 70w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
Survey G 32:138 Ap '43 200w

EBERHART, MRS MIGNON (GOOD). Man next door. 281p $2 Random house 43-51152

Detective story.

"A very smooth job." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p9 My 30 '43 90w
Booklist 39:369 My 15 '43

"A good spy story with overtones of romance; tense situations and excellent characterization." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p8 My 9 '43 110w

"Love and espionage in a sound, plausible story."
+ New Yorker 19:84 My 8 '43 80w
Sat R of Lit 26:35 My 15 '43 40w

"It's a caution the way the author provides tall and timely excitement without blowing her nice characters to bits." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p20 My 9 '43 230w

EBERHART, MRS MIGNON (GOOD). Unidentified woman. 228p $2 Random house
Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p8 N 28 '43 110w
Booklist 40:147 D 15 '43

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p44 N 21 '43 140w

"The weather is bad, things keep going splash in the river all night, and you are assured of your full quota of horrors as well as a very workmanlike plot."
+ New Yorker 19:116 N 13 '43 80w

"An intricately plotted and turbulent tale that will satisfy readers who like their romance and mystery adroitly mixed."
+ Time 42:104 D 6 '43 50w

"Mrs. Eberhart's juggling is a treat right up to the last word, with surprises, gooseflesh, honest-to-goodness spinal chills, sympathy for Vicky and all kinds of balls in the air at the right moments. Beside all which 'Unidentified Woman' is a real mystery novel—a far cry from the mere puzzle for key ring enthusiasts. It's one of the top 1943 items." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p30 N 7 '43 500w

EBERLE, IRMENGARDE (PHYLLIS ANN CARTER, pseud). Our oldest friends; il. by Marguerite Kirmse. 147p $2 Holiday

636 Cats—Juvenile literature. Dogs—Juvenile literature. Horses—Juvenile literature 42-50660

Describes the origin and development of the dog, the horse, and the cat, especially in their relation to mankind. Legends and stories revealing the connections of these animals with the early religions of man are included. For age ten and older.

"Stimulating book that should send boys and girls off to read more about early civilizations. Recommended." Alice Brown
+ Library J 68:130 F 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p7 F 14 '43 300w
Wis Lib Bul 39:56 Ap '43

EBERLE, IRMENGARDE (PHYLLIS ANN CARTER, pseud). We'll take the skyway. 233p $2 Crowell

43-453

A group of air-minded young Americans form a glider club, raise money to purchase a glider, and as they grow older they go on to commercial flying. The time is from 1937 to the present. For boys of eleven and twelve.

"Has many good points; the children are natural, their accomplishments within realm of possibility, but story lacks action and suspense. Worth trying out because of need for simply written aviation stories, but it is difficult to predict popularity or use. Good print and make-up; no illustrations." Marian Herr
+ — Library J 67:1107 D 15 '42 100w

"A story brisk and timely in plot but undistinguished in style."
+ Wis Lib Bul 39:18 Ja '43

EBERLE, IRMENGARDE (PHYLLIS ANN CARTER, pseud). Wide fields; the story of Henri Fabre; il. by Fritz Eichenberg. 193p $2.50 Crowell

B or 92 Fabre, Jean Henri Casimir—Juvenile literature 43-15002

Biography of the French entomologist, Jean Henri Fabre, written for young people. Short bibliography.

Reviewed by Betty Swanson
Book Week p10 N 14 '43 300w
Cath World 158:318 D '43 70w

"Miss Eberle's sympathy and understanding make equally real the warm unselfish character of the French peasant, always struggling against poverty, and the unflagging zeal of the great naturalist, in quest of fresh facts about the insects of field and wood. Fritz Eichenberg's pictures add to the sense of Fabre's joy in his researches." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:416 N '43 110w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:593 N 20 '43 10w

"A book of appeal and distinction about a modest, gentle man of France. Memories of old fields and small villages around Avignon, peasant farmers and their simple lives; the indefinably French feelings imparted by a sympathetic author, together create an intrinsic quality. Miss Eberle seems to know and love the soil of France, and to know, too, Henri Fabre and his entomology. The illustrations are in pleasing accord with the text." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p8 N 14 '43 240w

"Miss Eberle has written of this unique naturalist who 'thinks like a philosopher and writes like a poet.' The story has little action. It will appeal, therefore, to the more serious-minded young people who—like Henri Fabre—would penetrate Nature's never-ending mysteries." B. W. Shaffer
+ Sat R of Lit 26:45 N 13 '43 220w

EBY, HERBERT OSCAR. Labor relations act in the courts; a five-year survey and analysis of legal decisions affecting the rights and responsibilities of employers and employees. 250p $3.50 Harper

331.154 Labor laws and legislation. U.S. National labor relations board 43-2726

Summary of court decisions made by the National Labor relations act. Includes every important case decided by the courts since 1937, when the act was held constitutional, and essential information about the background of the cases. Citation index, and text of the act.

"A volume of inestimable value to anyone who needs quick guidance to what is legal under this epoch-making extension of federal power represented by the act. The business executive would do very well to have it on his desk in order that he may know better his rights and obligations; the lawyer will most certainly want it; the labor union official will unquestionably profit by it; and the student of labor relations will be among those grateful for having his path cleared to the interpretations of the act." Herman Feldman
+ Am Econ R 33:708 S '43 260w
Booklist 39:420 Je 15 '43

"Contractors will find this analysis a useful book. . . Laymen using the book will be helped by the fact that the text is not burdened with legal phraseology, yet footnotes and a concise system of references give the lawyer the information he needs to locate the full text of the decisions that are discussed."
+ Eng N 130:128 Mr 11 '43 120w

"A business executive or a labor union official certainly would not be justified in relying on this book, and to a lawyer working in the field most of the material would already be familiar. The volume should have some value, however, as a handbook. Its method is unusual in that, with the exception of short background sections at the beginning of each chapter, the Act is interpreted by means of arrangement of cases, with the essential facts, holding, and brief quotations from the opinion printed. Within the natural limitations of such a plan, the features of the Act are brought into clear focus." + — Harvard Law R 56:1035 My '43 340w
Management R 32:118 Mr '43 40w

Reviewed by W. J. Dunn
Springf'd Republican p6 S 7 '43 300w

Reviewed by Will Maslow
Yale Law J 52:940 S '43 1900w

ECHARD, MARGARET. Before I wake. 243p $2 Doubleday

43-18001

Mystery story.

"The ingredients are well known, but the plot details and, especially, the good writing and character delineation raise this book far above the run-of-the-mine level." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p5 D 19 '43 130w
Booklist 40:199 F 1 '44

"The tale is quite out of the ordinary and well worth reading." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p10 D 26 '43 100w

ECHARD, MARGARET—Continued

"Miss Echard has a knack for stuffing her puzzle with pertinent detail and some of her characters are lifelike as anything, especially Lieutenant Drinkwater, a war hero with another secret. The author's abundant material goes haywire on the home stretch and we found ourself seeking for a more reasonable solution; which is no terrible fault in a story meant to baffle in a simple and non-classic manner. Besides, there's plenty of love interest. Miss Echard is inclined to comment on things in general in a not too deep manner." Will Cuppy

— + Weekly Book Review p8 D 19 '43 350w

ECKERT, RUTH ELIZABETH (MRS E. E. PAULSON). Outcomes of general education; an appraisal of the general college program. 210p $2 Univ. of Minn.

378 Education—Aims and objectives. Colleges and universities. Minnesota. University. General college A43-3790

"Is the General College (University of Minnesota) curriculum, as it has been developing, a valid and valuable one? Does it accomplish its purpose, fulfill the aims of the administrators and the faculty? The author analyzes the records to determine if this curriculum gives the students a knowledge of themselves and their environment, a sense of personal and civic responsibility, and the basic skills necessary to carry on their chosen work." (School & Society) The author is Associate Professor of education and Associate Director of the committee on educational research and of the Bureau of educational research, University of Minnesota. No index.

"The competent, thoroughly readable account . . . should be of interest, not only to professional educators but to the layman who may have to face the problem of deciding what kind of college education is best suited for his son or daughter." Benjamin Fine

+ N Y Times p22 Ja 16 '44 280w

School & Society 58:447 D 4 '43 60w

ECKSTEIN, GUSTAV. In peace Japan breeds war. 326p $2.50 Harper

915.2 National characteristics, Japanese. Japan—Civilization 43-4526

"Dr. Eckstein visited Japan twice when engaged on a brotherly task, his biography of Noguchi, the bacteriologist. This book is a reconsideration of the Japanese character, done since Pearl Harbor. The method he adopts to give readers his second thoughts is a series of first-hand sketches of his observations while living with Japanese families, interspersed with a larger number of sketches of some Japanese personages." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

Reviewed by J. F. Steiner

Am Soc R 8:480 Ag '43 500w

Reviewed by John Goette

Book Week p6 My 30 '43 290w

Booklist 39:331 Ap 15 '43

Christian Century 60:518 Ap 28 '43 230w

"A keen observer and a blunt writer is disclosed in In Peace Japan Breeds War. [Gustav Eckstein] has a curious, clipped notebook-like style, often devoid of verbs but never incoherent. The effect is that of a seeker for truth who is impatient of flowery devices but intent on putting down his personal experiences with Japan and the Japanese since 1924, together with conclusions." R. G.

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 18 '43 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '43

"Dr. Eckstein writes out of a kind of liking for the Japanese, but not in sympathy. And that is not uncommon among those who have seen much of Japan. The feeling is common to many who know Japan, but I have rarely, if ever, seen it so well communicated as in these sketches, communicated with so much charm as well as discrimination." Nathaniel Peffer

+ N Y Times p4 Mr 21 '43 900w

"'In Peace Japan Breeds War' is a short book, written in quaintly uncertain English and based on several visits to Japan the author made during the twenties and early thirties. Half of the book consists of rather pointless anecdotes and legends (Japanese mythology is unquestionably the dullest in the world). The balance, unsystematic and eccentric in its organization, is nevertheless full of perceptions that may help us to understand the nature of the queerest enemy this country has ever fought. . . The Japanese emerge from these pages as a thoroughly unpleasant, feudal-minded people, utterly incapable of distinguishing right from wrong." Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 19:68 Mr 20 '43 400w

"The personal observations reveal a keen eye for psychological details, no small literary skill, and integrity in statement. The author realizes that it is the Japanese mind and character that we need to know. His opportunities were strategical though limited. There are real Japanese in a real setting. Your reviewer could have done with more of them." Hugh Byas

+ Sat R of Lit 26:34 Mr 20 '43 650w

"'In Peace Japan Breeds War' is a misleading title for a compilation of light impressionistic glimpses of Japanese life and history. Dr. Eckstein bases his personal record on a first trip to Japan in 1924 and on later trips while he was getting material for a biography of the Japanese scientist Noguchi." Helen Mears

Survey G 32:406 O '43 120w

"A rambling yet limpid book, of uncommon charm in style, in insight as rich as it is unpretentious. If every U.S. citizen read this book, and digested it, the chances of a durable Pacific peace might be greatly improved."

+ Time 41:68 Mr 29 '43 1250w

"The doctor-author combines a keen sense of observation, undoubtedly heightened by his scientific training, with a warm appreciation of human and artistic values. . . In his snappy, staccato literary style, sometimes as irritating as it is effective, Dr. Eckstein gives us some brilliant flashes which illuminate the character of our formidable foe far more effectively than more pretentious volumes published recently." Joseph Newman

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Mr 21 '43 1150w

"The thing that seriously mars what would otherwise be a most excellent book on the life of the Japanese people is the effect which the war has had on the author. He writes, 'I am admittedly affected in all my judgments by recent events.' He would claim that this change in him enables him to understand the Japanese people better than when he lived among them, but it is far more likely that his 'judgment' is simply one more war casualty, for like so many others who have written on things Japanese since Pearl Harbor, he reinterprets his experience in the light of only the worst aspects of the Japanese character." A. K. Reischauer

+ — Yale R n s 32:800 summer '43 800w

EDDINGTON, WALTER J. Glossary of shipbuilding and outfitting terms. 435p il $3.50 Cornell maritime

623.803 Shipbuilding—Dictionaries 43-7223

"For those in the industry and shipping business. Language of shipbuilding and of three departments of modern ship—deck, engine, and steward's. Appendix has list of equipment and handy tables." Library J

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter

Book Week p11 Jl 18 '43 50w

Booklist 39:421 Je 15 '43

Eng N 131:116 N 4 '43 10w

Library J 68:211 Mr 1 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:34 Ap '43

"This is a book that should be on the reference shelf of any one interested in shipping." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p25 My 23 '43 80w

EDDY, GEORGE SHERWOOD. Portrait of Jesus; a twentieth century interpretation of Christ. 231p $2 Harper

232.9 Jesus Christ 43-15037

Presents the character of Jesus Christ as the apostles knew him, and as he was pictured by Paul. The book was written to convince the men and women of today that Christ is still "the living Christ." Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:157 Ja 1 '44

"Sincerity, reverence, thorough-going study, and an emphasis on practical Christianity invariably characterize Dr. Eddy's writings, and this intimate little volume is no exception. . . For those who can read while yet differing with an author at certain fundamental points—very few in this case—much can be gained by a quiet perusal of this reverent volume of study." M. J. T.

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 Ja 15 '44 550w

EDDY, SAMUEL, and SURBER, THADDEUS. Northern fishes; with special reference to the upper Mississippi valley. 252p il $4 Univ. of Minn.

597 Fishes—Mississippi valley A43-3674

After introductory chapters on the principles of conservation and factors affecting fish populations, more than 150 fresh water fishes are classified by family, with descriptions, habits, range, etc. The locality is Minnesota. Bibliography. Index.

"Altogether this book is eminently usable, wholly authoritative and will meet with a very wide welcome. It is just the book for the actual or potential fisherman, and also for anyone who wants the satisfaction of knowing more about the creatures with whom he shares his occupancy and enjoyment of the earth." J. T. Frederick

+ Book Week p4 Ja 2 '44 100w

Booklist 40:159 Ja 1 '44

EDDY, WILLIAM CRAWFORD, and others. Wartime refresher in fundamental mathematics. 248p $1.40; to schools $1.05 Prentice-Hall

510 Mathematics 43-3032

Refresher course in arithmetic and algebra, based on experience in teaching such a course at the United States naval training school, Chicago. Includes mathematics for army, navy, and marine requirements. Questions and answers at end of each section. Glossary.

Booklist 39:349 My 1 '43

Library J 67:1067 D 1 '42 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:12 Ja '43

"The choice of material is good, the treatment of the material still better. The little book will be welcomed not only in Navy technical schools but by many who desire to brush up their basic mathematics." M. A. Rossanoff

+ N Y Times p31 Ap 18 '43 160w

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p17 Mr 14 '43 180w

EDELSTADT, VERA. Black magic; the story of smoke; il. by Frederick T. Chapman. [46p] $1.50 Knopf

662.6 Coal—Juvenile literature 43-14441

The story of coal from its formation in prehistoric swamps, thru its various uses, to the smoke of the chemist's laboratory of the present. It is told in short, verse-like prose and illustrated in black and white. Contains supplementary informational notes at back of book.

Booklist 40:81 N 1 '43

"It is an unusual book of scientific information, poetic in its presentation. . . Suitable for the middle group." Elizabeth Burr

+ Library J 68:895 N 1 '43 90w

Wis Lib Bul 40:12 Ja '44

EDEN, MRS HELEN (PARRY). Poems and verses. 80p $1.85 Bruce pub.

821 43-12053

Collection of poems by an English Catholic poet, long a contributor to Punch. Her subjects are religion, nature, and a delightful small daughter.

"Always it is unfortunate when the work of a poet is not adequately recognized during the poet's lifetime. And it is unfortunate that the verse of Helen Parry Eden is not more widely known among us because it has qualities which make a strong appeal: lucidity, fancy, and a spirituality that is deeply sincere. . . The present volume is a well chosen selection of her shorter verse, appealing in their spirit and range. . . Mrs. Eden's playful poems have a serious vein; her serious poems have a charming smile upon them. She mingles the high and the low, the great and the small, but never is her work inconsequential." John Pick

+ Cath World 158:410 Ja '44 270w

"Her 'Poems and Verses,' published in this country, as was her 'Whistles of Silver,' can be heartily recommended to all who prize the genuinely rare. Particularly in this day will the beauty and humor of her integrated and adroit verse bring consolation and courage to mothers wherever they be. Her poetry has great variety." W. R. Benet

+ Sat R of Lit 26:23 O 16 '43 230w

EDGINTON, MAY (MRS F. E. BAILY). Stolen honeymoon [Eng title: Best wishes]. 253p $2 Macrae Smith co. [7s 6d Collins]

43-5942

"Tia West was an orphan in London. She had her own dress shop and was doing well when she met Johnny, who seemed to be rich, and they fell in love. He let her down badly, and his severe county mother and the even sterner young woman who was his mother's choice for him were so cruel to her that she agreed to run off to the Seychelles with Carter, who not only looked rich but was." N Y Times

"For war-weary ladies who want a love story to hold their attention, this tale of a girl's choice between love and expediency should answer nicely. No thought or word of war enters into it, so it is probably England between the wars. . . The account of the dueling between Johnny's mother and Tia is clever, and every woman will appreciate it. Nearly all will approve Tia's sometimes doubtful behavior, for her motives are always the best. She wears clothes well, too." Charlotte Dean

N Y Times p16 Je 6 '43 180w

"If 'Stolen Honeymoon' seems a bit on the dull side it is probably because the heroine is not very bright on the subject of men." Lisle Bell

— Weekly Book Review p18 My 2 '43 120w

EDIE, LIONEL DANFORTH. Economics: principles and problems by James E. Moffat [and others] based on the original text by [the author]. 3d ed 1022p $4 Crowell

330.1 Economics 42-23375

"This revision of Professor Edie's text by economists at Indiana University is more than an ordinary revision. It could well be called a new book, although the authors modestly claim only changes and additions, including a new treatment of value and price . . . an even closer tie-up throughout of economic principles and problems; greater emphasis on the rôle of government in economic affairs; greater emphasis on taxation, public expenditure, and public debt, and deficit financing; new chapters dealing with risk, insurance, wartime economy, unemployment, and trends in international trade; less attention to formal history of economic and cultural development in order to permit inclusion of certain of the above subjects; and considerable rearrangement of the contents and enlargement of the book." (Am Econ R) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1926. Index.

EDIE, L. D.—Continued

"The new 'Edie' looks like a useful contribution to our list of textbooks. It will call for time, generally a full year's course. The teacher should have a pretty wide knowledge of the subject, if he is to tie the material up in a consistent whole, for the book, like all collaboration texts, is rather loosely constructed. Since the 'isms' are not considered at all, many teachers will doubtless want to use some extra material on socialism, communism, and fascism; but the heavy emphasis on government functions in this book should lay a good foundation for such study at the end of the course." John Ise

+ Am Econ R 33:138 Mr '43 700w

"Too much elaboration is a danger to be guarded against in a textbook having miscellaneous parentage, where each author is tempted to write a book in his special field. This book might have been strengthened if it had been shortened by, say, three hundred pages. In style the book seems to have been studiously written for the 'middle-C' group of students. Short elementary sentences predominate. Repetitiousness is excessive. . . The middle-C student will love it—if he reads it at all—and the authors entice him to read." Lewis Severson

J Pol Econ 51:273 Je '43 550w

EDMONDS, RANDOLPH. Land of cotton, and other plays. 267p $3.25 Associated pubs.

812 43-5533

One four-act play and four one-act plays, by a Negro playwright. The plays are about Negroes and are intended primarily for Negro audiences. The author is director of dramatics at Dillard university.

Booklist 40:7 S '43

Cath World 158:509 F '44 150w

"The author says that his race is still too unschooled in either writing or seeing plays to permit subtleties of character delineation or technical excellence in plot construction. He need not apologize. The characterization and construction are admirable, even if not subtle, and his technique is well adapted to the expression of what he has to say. The title play deals vigorously and movingly with the plight of tenant farmers and sharecroppers."

+ Christian Century 60:395 Mr 31 '43 100w

"Recommended."

+ Library J 68:328 Ap 15 '43 50w

"This volume is a worthy contribution to Negro drama and it is to be hoped that it will be followed by others." H. L.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 2 '43 330w

Weekly Book Review p10 Jl 25 '43 160w

EDMONDS, WALTER DUMAUX. Two logs crossing; John Haskell's story; il. by Tibor Gergely. 82p $2 Dodd

43-17980

Story for boys from ten to fourteen. It describes the experiences of a teen-age boy left in charge of his mother and several younger brothers and sisters at the death of his shiftless father. Thru the help of a wise old judge and an Indian trapper the boy was given the chance to make good, and he succeeded, thereby changing the family reputation for shiftlessness.

Booklist 40:167 Ja 1 '44

"A sincere and moving book." M. K. McElderry

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 70w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 20:40 Ja '44 70w

"Book is swiftly moving, entirely satisfying success story." B. W. Bell

+ Library J 69:34 Ja 1 '44 80w

"The story has the quality of good homespun, a valuable quality in these days of sleazy fabrics. There is in it the same simplicity and craftsmanship, and the same durability. It will be remembered by readers of 10 to 14 and by adults too." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p7 D 12 '43 380w

Reviewed by Jacqueline Overton

Sat R of Lit 27:32 Ja 29 '44 200w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 9 '44 110w

"The pictures give that versatile illustrator, Tibor Gergely, a chance to match in black-and-white the colored illustrations of the earlier stories. Using this to the best purpose, they follow every turn of the story and reproduce, with singular fidelity, its distinctive spirit." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 D 12 '43 380w

EDUCATORS guide to free films; annotated; 2d ed, completely revised, Sept. 1942; with war time suppl. Jan, 1943; comp. and ed. by Mary Foley Horkheimer and John W. Diffor. 165p pa $3 c1943 Educators progress league, Randolph, Wis.

371.33 Moving pictures in education

"The first edition of this guide was published in 1941. According to the editor's foreword to the second edition the 'Guide has been prepared to meet a felt need for a complete service to provide reliable information on free films' and 'has been developed by correspondence with the issuing agencies and sources. . . The information contained in this Guide provides . . . the basis for an effective visual education program at a minimum cost, in almost every subject and for every grade.' The foreword further states that 'over 500 new films and film strips have been added' and 'the annotations have been even more keenly edited for educational value.' There are listed approximately 2500 films and film strips, including 16mm and 35mm films, both sound and silent, distributed by industrial, governmental and philanthropic sources." Subscription Bks Bul

"Information on each item includes name of the film, size or sizes available, whether sound or silent, number of reels, descriptive paragraph (sometimes only a sentence), running time, terms to users and the agency from which it is available. Carelessness is noted in that occasionally number of reels, running time, and terms to users are omitted. The descriptive paragraphs are very unsatisfactory. . . A 1943 reprint of the second edition, with the addition of a wartime education supplement was issued in January 1943. The supplement consists of 10 pages, inserted between pages 146 and 147, in which the films helpful to wartime courses are reclassified under six headings: Pre-induction, Pre-flight, Home Front, Nutrition and Diet, First Aid, and Physical Fitness and Recreation. The publishers state that a new edition is in preparation and will be ready about September 1943. In view of the lack of sufficient description of many of the films, the lack of evaluation and statement of audience appeal, and the absence of a specific subject index, the Guide is not recommended."

— Subscription Bks Bul 14:26 Jl '43 750w

EDUCATORS index of free materials; annotated edition ed. by John Guy Fowlkes. Prices, one year subscription: Single Index $17.50; with semi-annual revision $24. Three year subscription, single index annually: cash $27; ninety days $28.50; yearly payments (total) $31.50. Three year subscription, semi annual revisions: cash $36; ninety days, $37.50; yearly payments (total) 43.50. Prices include "counselling and installation service" and metal box to hold set Educators progress league, Randolph, Wis.

016.04 Pamphlets—Bibliography

"The free materials listed in this service comprise pamphlets, booklets, charts, and some exhibits, films, slides, and maps. The index is printed on approximately 150 heavy white cards which come to the subscriber in a metal box 5½ x 8¼ x 3¾ inches. The materials listed are organized under nine general headings: Administration, Applied Arts, Fine Arts, Health Education, Language Arts, Science, Social Studies, Special Fields, Visual Education.

Each general heading is in turn subdivided, e.g., one finds under Science, Biology, Chemistry and General Science. Under a tenth general heading called Sources are listed (1) Agricultural Experiment Stations, (2) U.S. Government Offices which have material for distribution, and (3) agencies found within most states from which free materials are usually available. One card called Table of Contents shows the organization of the whole file." Subscription Bks Bul

"The omission of a subject index makes the set very difficult and cumbersome to use. Even the Table of Contents is confusing because of the arbitrary grouping of subjects. . . In the opinion of the Committee the index fails to fulfil the publisher's claims with respect to the amount of help superintendents, principals and supervisors may get from the Index in formulating policies, making plans, organizing teacher-training programs, building curriculum laboratories, etc. The Committee also questions the amount of help which teachers and librarians may expect from the service in preparing teaching units, or organizing activity programs, providing for individual differences, etc. . . . Because the service is poorly organized, difficult to use for specific purposes, fails to grade or to date the materials offered, because much of the material listed is actually not free except in limited quantities, and because the price of the service is high, the Educators Index of Free Material is not Recommended."

— Subscription Bks Bul 13:46 O '42 1050w

EDWARDS, EDWARD J. These two hands. 203p $2.25 Bruce pub.

266.2 Roman Catholic church—Missions 42-50835

"This story of the courageous and successful effort of a sensitive young American missionary priest to overcome fear contains interesting descriptions of life among the natives in the Philippines." Commonweal

"The book is remarkable for the insight it gives us into the lives, activities and customs of the natives, as well as for its vivid characterization."

+ Cath World 156:634 F '43 230w

"Although too obvious in places, it drives its lesson home, and might be called an entirely objective treatment of an intensely subjective theme. A high school boy or girl would thrill to it. The publishers are to be congratulated on the excellent make-up of the volume." Daisy Moseley

+ — Commonweal 37:308 Ja 8 '43 100w

EHRENBURG, IL'IA GRIGOR'EVICH. See Erenburg, I. G.

EICHLER, ALFRED. Murder in the radio department. 253p $2 Gold label 43-16216

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p10 O 31 '43 100w

"Not too deep a mystery but well supplied with pungent details of characters, private lives, and adequate action. Diverting."

Sat R of Lit 26:21 O 23 '43 30w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p28 D 12 '43 100w

EINZIG, PAUL. Can we win the peace? 148p $2 (8s 6d) Macmillan

940.531 World war, 1939—Peace. Reconstruction (1939-) A42-5040

"It is the thesis of this closely argued little book that we can win the peace only if we insure the economic as well as the military disarmament of Germany. He shows how failure to do this was the principal defect of Versailles and after, and indicates how it might be done without reducing the German people to poverty." Nation

"Einzig's Can We Win the Peace? is a powerful work. The reader may refrain from agreeing with all the opinions expressed, but Einzig's thesis merits analysis by all who hope to build a world where there will never be another attempt at world domination by force." S. J. Hemleben

+ Ann Am Acad 229:177 S '43 450w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:5 Jl '43 20w

Nation 156:714 My 15 '43 60w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard

New Repub 108:865 Je 28 '43 120w

"The unattractiveness of Mr. Einzig's case is that, as the economist of Big Business (the 'we' of his title) he sees only one possibility for the future; capitalist interests in a permanent state of war with each other, except for intervals of peace, when one set of interests has its heel on the neck of the other. Capitalism is, in fact, a self-fertilising organism with the seeds of war within it. Mr. Einzig's 'inverted New Order' is little different in principle from Mr. Hitler's New Order."

— New Statesman & Nation 24:178 S 12 '42 190w

"The program for Germany's economic disarmament presented here is drastic and wide-sweeping. . . It cannot be said that the author has clearly established what he set out to prove: that is, that the economic disarmament program advocated could be carried through without any appreciable decrease in the German standard of living. . . To say this obviously does not necessarily lead to the conclusion that such a program should not be adopted." C. W. Wright

Sat R of Lit 26:16 Mr 20 '43 1000w

"'Can We Win the Peace?' cuts sharply across some current ideas about war aims and the shape of things to come, but the point of view it expresses is one of which account must be taken if plans for German disarmament are not again to prove a mockery."

Times [London] Lit Sup p398 Ag 15 '42 800w

EISINGER, JO. The walls came tumbling down. 236p $2 Coward-McCann 43-16886

Detective story.

Booklist 40:199 F 1 '44

"No doubt D'Arcy will be heard from again. We'll be watching." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p50 N 14 '43 100w

"Pretty good."

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:20 N 27 '43 40w

"D'Arcy's detection may not equal that of Sherlock Holmes, but it serves, and it is more skillful than you might expect. Though the author is not above spoofing some of his material, he has gone to the trouble of working an intricate puzzle out to the last gasp—a boon for serious readers." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p46 D 5 '43 450w

ELDRIDGE, SEBA, and others. Development of collective enterprise; dynamics of an emergent economy. 577p $4.50 Univ. of Kan.

334 Cooperation. Government ownership—U.S. 43-1240

This volume contains a report of a five-year investigation of collective enterprise carried on by a group of economists and sociologists at the University of Kansas. By collective enterprise the writers mean "undertakings owned or conducted by groups or associations as such." Indexes.

"It is possible that the greatest contribution of this book lies in method rather than in content. Here we have a group of scholars who worked together in planning and conducting an inquiry. Jointly they formulated their problem and hypothesis, defined their terms, outlined the scope of their task, and considered the kinds of evidence that might be used. Moreover, they carried their project to completion with a minimum of financial outlay. This in itself is a demonstration of 'socialization'!" S. A. Queen

ELDRIDGE, SEBA—Continued
+ — Am Soc R 8:244 Ap '43 480w

Reviewed by E. M. Burns
Christian Century 60:544 My 5 '43 700w

"It is true that the study did not give detailed analysis of some of the critical points at which political and economic theory intersect, such as the way in which interest groups operate as political units or the effect which newspapers or other media of group communication have upon the process of socialization. Nonetheless, this study will be of the greatest interest to social scientists interested in collectivization as a going concern and to social philosophers interested in the dynamics of an emergent economy." A. W. Levi
+ — Ethics 54:66 O '43 550w

Reviewed by G. V. Price
Social Educ 7:379 D '43 600w

ELIOT, THOMAS STEARNS, comp. A choice of Kipling's verse. See Kipling, R.

ELIOT, THOMAS STEARNS. Four quartets. 39p $2 Harcourt
811 43-7996

"These are four long poems, in a new form described by Mr. Eliot as 'quartets.' The first of the four poems is Burnt Norton, which was published as the concluding poem of Mr. Eliot's Collected Poems, 1909-1935. Burnt Norton heralded a sequence; in due course it was followed by East Coker, which was published in this country in The Partisan Review in 1940, and by The Dry Salvages, published in the same magazine in 1941. The sequence has now been completed by Little Gidding, a fourth poem of the same length and in the same form, which appears in this country for the first time in this volume." Publisher's note

---

Booklist 39:422 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by Theodore Maynard
Cath World 157:553 Ag '43 550w

"In reading this book I have, for the first time, been struck by the close similarity between Mr. Eliot's poetry and Dali's surrealistic painting. Both are addicted to the cult of incongruity and irrationality, and both bring to its service an exquisite technique. . . This parallel between Eliot and Dali is not offered in disparagement of either, for both are great artists. I am thinking rather of the light it may throw on Mr. Eliot's claim to be regarded, as a serious thinker. He wishes to be taken seriously, I believe, whether he writes in poetry or in prose. The adoption of this method in poetry seems to me to amount to nothing less than an extreme form of intellectual defeatism—a public notice to whom it may concern that he considers the universe basically irrational, even to the point of negating the principles of identity and contradiction, and the problems of human life, thought and destiny as therefore not susceptible of rational treatment. That is a presupposition which, in my judgment, automatically guarantees the instability of any philosophy or theology which may be built upon it." W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 60:609 My 19 '43 1150w

Reviewed by Pearl Strachan
Christian Science Monitor p11 My 29 '43 230w

"There are people who avoid Mr. Eliot, fearing the difficulties he may present, and we are trying to say that a certain difficulty of a technical nature no longer exists. And now the difficulty of understanding and feeling these poems is a legitimate difficulty, a stimulating difficulty. . . You do not read great poetry unprepared, ignorant or carelessly. Mr. Eliot's poetry is exacting: it has the right to be."
+ Commonweal 38:148 My 28 '43 650w

Reviewed by Delmore Schwartz
Nation 157:102 Jl 24 '43 1550w

"T. S. Eliot's 'Four Quartets' is one of those rare books that can be enjoyed without being understood. I have heard people of good judgment praising it and, in the same breath, confessing that they didn't know what the poet intended to say. Apparently he gave them a few noble visions and a general impression of austerity, learning, goodness and even saintliness." Malcolm Cowley
+ New Repub 108:767 Je 7 '43 1750w

"It has been said in certain quarters, thoughtlessly, I think, that the years of the present World War have failed to produce memorable poetry, and it has been implied that poetry in some mysterious way has failed to live up to great occasions. With Mr. T. S. Eliot's 'Four Quartets' before me I wish to modify the gloomy accusation that the better poets of our time have been 'irresponsible' or have failed to realize the seriousness of living through a difficult hour. . . For those who wish to take heart as against others who are convinced that poetry was among the early casualties of the present war, I strongly recommend a reading of Mr. T. S. Eliot's 'Four Quartets.'" Horace Gregory
+ N Y Times p2 My 16 '43 1400w

"The form and background once straight in our minds . . . we can read the poems for mere enjoyment, for they are certainly as beautiful as anything he ever wrote. The lyrics, especially the second in 'East Coker' and the two in 'Little Gidding,' show what the poet can do in the province of pure emotion when all irony has been eliminated. . . Eliot here stands at a distant remove from the 'aged eagle' role in which he presented himself, with considerable affectation, in 'Ash Wednesday' thirteen years ago. He has learned lessons in patience and sympathy, a firm basis for renewed poetic strength." Louise Bogan
+ New Yorker 19:72 My 22 '43 950w

Reviewed by J. G. Fletcher
Poetry 63:44 O '43 1150w

"Mr. Eliot, with this volume, confirms his stature as an artist. So great is his mastery of the idiom and structure of poetry that, if only he had a little less dislike of the impure, the imperfect, and the human, he might be not only a great artist but a great poet and prophet as well." Raymond Holden
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:11 Jl 24 '43 800w

"The book is, as Mr. Eliot's whole work is, in no sense popular poetry. Written for a highly selected group of readers, the poems of Mr Eliot owe their quality to a serenity of tone that is almost pedantic and depth of inference that is closer to philosophy than it is to lyricism. Granting that these things are already known to any reader of this review who has an interest in Eliot, the chief importance in this book of four groups of related poems is that they represent a deeper, even warmer statement of ideas that have moved through the poet's mind in the last 20 years." Lee Varley
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 23 '43 550w

Time 41:96 Je 7 '43 2200w

"Technically the quartets are full of fascination for scholar and critic. . . Certain values endure, and are never so clearly stated as by music, an art as solid as architecture and as abstract as mathematics, an art built upon time and yet in essence timeless. The strength of the quartets is that they can remind us of music, though they do not ignore the savage noises that too often and too terribly interrupt it." Babette Deutsch
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 18 '43 1500w

"The accent of 'Four Quartets' is grave, sometimes sadly nostalgic, but it is by no means lugubrious. The music as well as the meaning is solemn, and it will not be to everyone's taste. Eliot's counterpoint of private experience and impersonal mysticism is not easy to follow. But few will question the beauty of the communication; few will doubt the perfection of the poet's art." Louis Untermeyer
+ Yale R n s 33:348 winter '44 500w

ELLIOTT, WILLIAM YANDELL, and HALL, HESSEL DUNCAN. British Commonwealth at war. 515p $5 Knopf

940.5342 World war, 1939—Great Britain—Colonies 43-10881

"Study of the British Commonwealth of Nations as a security system under impact of war and of democracy on an international scale. . . Mr. Hall is author of general chapter and one on his native Australia. Appendices and index make this a useful book for all libraries frequented by students." Library J

"You can find nearly everything you wish to know about the immense war organization and effort of the British Commonwealth in this excellently detailed volume." H. K.

+ Book Week p6 S 12 '43 220w

Booklist 40:9 S '43

Current Hist 5:78 S '43 170w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis

Library J 68:361 My 1 '43 120w

"Even though Professor Elliott says that his symposium is a 'tract for the times' in favor of American-British collaboration, the worth of the volume does not arise from any brilliance of argument to that end. Even his own contribution, a short introduction, is calculated as much to offend skeptics as to convert them, and the more lengthy contributions of the junior editor, H. Duncan Hall, are of even more decisively negative worth to 'the cause,' with their hypertrophied moralism, fierce invective, and perfervid imperial patriotism. The worth of the volume, by a stroke of irony, is almost exclusively found in the excellent chapters contributed by the numerous collaborators. These ladies and gentlemen did not feel it necessary to 'sell' anything but information. Their essays are uniformly calm, careful descriptive analyses of the several British countries and their war-time problems. In spite of the fact that the articles are now mostly historical, in that events move faster than printers and binders, they are consistently valuable. Unfortunately, no single outline was followed in preparing them and comparisons and contrasts are difficult to make." C. H. Grattan

Nation 157:245 Ag 28 '43 1700w

"We must not look here for the whole story—the volume is incomplete and even spotty in character. Yet, from the material presented, there emerges a picture of effective war administration that inevitably illuminates American war economy and politics." H. S. Commager

N Y Times p1 Ag 1 '43 1450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p494 O 16 '43 1100w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun

Weekly Book Review p25 S 19 '43 1750w

ELLWOOD, CHARLES ABRAM. Sociology; principles and problems. 408p $1.80 Am. bk.

301 Sociology. Social problems 43-8076

"This is the latest revision and enlargement of a much used textbook. It has been thoroughly revised to incorporate the latest scientific knowledge concerning human relations, the Census of 1940, and a new chapter on the Rural Problem has been included. Contains a fine Glossary, an extensive index and many good teaching aids." Social Studies

"The book is well written, has a glossary and good study aids, but the absence of pictures, charts, and other visual aids decreases its effectiveness for beginning students." Wilbur Brookover

+ Am Soc R 8:749 D '43 150w

Social Studies 34:287 O '43 60w

ELMS, FRANCIS RAYMOND. Our United States, how it grew. 79p $2 Whitman, A.

973 U.S.—History—Juvenile literature 43-78

History of the United States for young readers, told in terms of land growth. Additions are shown on maps, giving states made from each acquisition. Text gives historical background.

"For children from ten to twelve but will be useful with older readers. Price is rather high for book of seventy-nine pages." A. M. Wetherell

Library J 68:249 Mr 15 '43 60w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 21 '43 60w

ELSBREE, WILLARD SLINGERLAND. Pupil progress in the elementary school. 86p il $1; pa 60c Teachers college

372 Education, Elementary

"This book deals with theories and practices —traditional and modern—in the grouping and promotion of elementary-school children." School & Society

"Elsbree's book, though brief, is based on good educational theories, is readable, is worthy of placement in any professional library, and will be helpful to all persons interested in the problems of pupil progress through the elementary school." D. E. Kibbe

+ El School J 44:55 S '43 550w

School & Society 57:612 My 22 '43 20w

ELSTON, ALLAN VAUGHAN. Guns on the Cimarron. 255p $2 Macrae Smith co. 43-9393

Western story.

Booklist 40:15 S '43

"Allan Vaughan Elston, former cowboy, has written much for magazines, but this is his first novel in book form. It is a distinct achievement and also a promise." G. W. Harris

+ N Y Times p16 Je 20 '43 240w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p18 Je 27 '43 130w

ELTING, MARY, and WEAVER, ROBERT T. Soldiers, sailors, fliers and marines; pictures by Jeanne Bendick; navy section directed by Margaret Gossett and her very good navy friends. [100p] il $2 Doubleday

355 U.S.—Armed services—Juvenile literature 43-51289

Colored pictures and brief text answers questions about life in the army, the navy, the air corps, the marines, and merchant marine. For readers of six to ten.

"Presented in a lively, interesting way, with scores of pictures on every page that help greatly toward a clear understanding of the text. An informative and attractive book." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p8 O 31 '43 140w

Booklist 40:81 N 1 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:402 N '43 60w

"This information was checked and verified by military authorities." E. S. Littlefield

+ Library J 68:822 O 15 '43 40w

Reviewed by Marian Cumming

Library J 68:962 N 15 '43 40w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale

Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 20w

"From induction to action this is an ingeniously complete story of men and equipment, certain to satisfy children up to 10 years." Irene Smith

+ N Y Times p26 N 21 '43 200w

"As simple as can be, but containing a surprising amount of information. The small pictures are hardly more than decorations, but since there is one to almost every sentence, they serve to make the explanations doubly clear and to lend gaiety to the book."

+ New Yorker 19:134 D 4 '43 50w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 30 '44 230w

Wis Lib Bul 40:12 Ja '44

EMBREE, EDWIN ROGERS. Brown Americans; the story of a tenth of the nation. 248p maps $2.75 Viking

325.26 Negroes. U.S.—Race question 43-14413

The author has not only revised but rewritten and amplified his earlier work on the Negro, first published in 1931 with the title, Brown America (Book Review Digest 1931). Index.

Reviewed by Bucklin Moon
Book Week p3 O 24 '43 420w
Booklist 40:88 N 15 '43
Canadian Forum 23:261 F '44 550w

"Any white American whose interest in the subject is deeper than the servant problem may profitably read Mr. Embree's 'Brown Americans.' Indeed, the whole inter-racial situation might benefit considerably if not another word were written nor spoken thereon until it is read." Walter Davenport
+ — N Y Times p5 N 14 '43 700w

"Very readable and balanced narrative of the Negro's group history. . . Pithy, provocative, and common sense in its whole approach and statement of the problem, Mr. Embree's clarifying interpretation should have the widest possible reading and consideration from the general public." Alain Locke
+ Survey 80:29 Ja '44 450w

Reviewed by W. E. B. DuBois
Weekly Book Review p36 N 21 '43 1150w
Wis Lib Bul 39:155 D '43

EMMONS, MRS DELLA FLORENCE (GOULD). Sacajawea of the Shoshones. 316p map $2.50 Binfords

Sacagawea—Fiction 43-12456

"The fictionized life of the Shoshone woman who guided Lewis and Clark. . . This is a somewhat rhapsodic account, but the basis is the journals of Lewis, Clark, and other contemporaries, which are quoted at the end of each chapter." Booklist

Booklist 40:59 O 15 '43

"This unpretentious little book can be especially recommended to Girl Scouts, who have fittingly chosen the Bird Woman as their emblem and guiding star." E. G. E.
+ Springf'd Republican p8 O 13 '43 240w

"Mrs. Emmons has delved into the documents and emerged with a life story which is filled with dramatic interest." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p16 Ag 29 '43 130w
Wis Lib Bul 39:145 N '43

ENCYCLOPEDIA Americana . . . [Index vol] 1943 ed 30v v30 $5 Americana corp, 333 N. Michigan av, Chicago

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries

"The Americana Index replaces the Reader's Guide which was formerly issued as volume 30 of the set. It is an entirely new alphabetic index, the primary purpose of which is to bring out the 'hidden' material in the longer articles. The Index is printed four columns to the page. At the top of the inside and outside columns of each page are printed the beginning and ending headings for that page. The headings vary according to the material represented. . . The introductory paragraphs state that 'The Index, although alphabetically arranged down to the very smallest heading, may also be used as a subject index.'" Subscription Bks Bul

"The Americana Index is a vast improvement over the former Reader's Guide volume and should add greatly to the reference value of the encyclopedia. It is recommended for use with the 1941 and later editions of the Encyclopedia Americana."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:41 O '43 950w

ENCYCLOPÆDIA britannica world atlas; with physical and political maps, geographical comparisons, a glossary of geographical terms, political divisions and capitals, a gazetteer index. trade ed 128p $9.95 for sale by Hammond Map43-2

ENCYCLOPÆDIA britannica world atlas; with physical and political maps, geographical comparisons, a glossary of geographical terms, a gazetteer index; and with geographical summaries, world spheres of influence; prepared by G. Donald Hudson; under the editorial direction of Walter Yust. 260,128p $20 Encyclopaedia britannica

912 Atlases Map43-1

"The atlas makes a satisfactory contribution to place geography, providing more than 100,000 named references fully indexed and located by means of the standard letter-number grid system. More than 100 map plates with a number of large-scale inserts were prepared by C. S. Hammond and Company and show the status of the world on September 1, 1939. The cartographic note is utilitarian. . . The 'Geographical Summaries' give a statistical emphasis quite distinct from that of other modern atlases. A short descriptive orientation introduces the statistics presented for the seven world divisions North, Middle, and South America, Europe, Asia, Africa, and Australasia and the Pacific Islands. The statistics use 1938 as the base year for world coverage but are brought up to date when possible. Nine group tables provide ready international comparison for the following: area, population, and type of government; leading agricultural, mineral, and manufactured products; value of foreign trade, major commodities, sources, and destinations; communication facilities; transportation facilities; value of currency in dollars; government expenditure for military purposes; military service and personnel; and military equipment and organization. Fifteen tables for each of 165 countries (about 2500 tables in all) permit greater detail in these topics and some additional subject matter. The use of identical headings and standard United States measures for all quantities and values throughout this series of tables and the alphabetical arrangement within each region make comparison easy. More than 500 carefully selected governmental and institutional sources, detailed in the bibliographies, attest the care exercised in compiling these summaries." Geog R

Reviewed by Walter Millis
Books p10 D 27 '42 400w
+ Christian Science Monitor p8 F 6 '43 200w

"Unfortunately, few of the maps give topography, and there is a rather lop-sided emphasis on American states which leaves too little space for detailed maps of the rest of the world. Moreover, many will quarrel with the fact that certain of the maps seem to accept the results of recent totalitarian aggression without proper explanation. The gazeteer and the extensive statistical summaries will be found most useful." R. G. Woolbert
+ — Foreign Affairs 21:576 Ap '43 90w

"It is gratifying to find an atlas of this character prepared under the technical direction of an American geographer, and both the Encyclopaedia Britannica and Donald Hudson are to be congratulated on the successful achievement." M. J. Proudfoot
+ Geog R 33:347 Ap '43 800w

"A feature which makes special appeal to librarians is found in the excellent bibliographies which list over 500 sources of information from which the statistical data were taken. The price of this atlas seems high, in view of the fact that, while the maps are excellent, the information on them may be found in other atlases as well as through the current maps being published by the National Geographic Society, and also that the information included in the tables is generally available in separate yearbooks. Libraries with limited budgets will want to consider the trade edition, reviewed below. . . The atlas is recommended."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:17 Ap '43 950w (Review of $20 edition)

"For libraries needing an atlas of the world as it was 'when last at peace' and who have no other large atlas published in the 30's, this is recommended."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:19 Ap '43 120w (Review of trade ed)

ENGELN, OSCAR DIEDRICH VON. Geomorphology; systematic and regional. 655p il pl maps $4.50 Macmillan

551.3 Geology. Physical geography 42-22348

Textbook in geomorphology (the study of "the forms of the earth") by the professor of geology at Cornell university. The many illustrations include photographs—both as plates and in the text—diagrams and maps.

Booklist 39:287 Mr 15 '43
Library J 68:290 Ap 1 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:9 Ja '43

ENGLAND, JANE, pseud. See Jervis, V. M. S.

ENTWISTLE, WILLIAM JAMES, and GILLETT, ERIC WALKEY. Literature of England. 292p $2.40 (7s 6d) Longmans

820.9 English literature—History and criticism A43-2729

Brief survey of English literature from the year 500 to 1942. The subject is considered under three main headings: The making of English, and The English classics, both by William J. Entwistle; and Contemporary literature to 1942, by Eric Gillett. Index.

"To attempt to cover the whole field of English literature in 282 pages is to court disaster, and disaster has, in this case, overwhelmed the unfortunate authors of this shockingly bad book. It is totally inadequate in matter and commonplace in style. To put it into the hands of the young would be an educational crime, for it has as much nourishment for the mind as a collection of dry tasteless packets labelled Quinces, Oranges, Peaches, Apples, &c., would have for the body."

— Spec 170:394 Ap 23 '43 140w
Times [London] Lit Sup p198 Ap 24 '43 2100w

EPLER, STEPHEN EDWARD. Honorary degrees; a survey of their use and abuse. 224p il $3.25; pa $2.75 Am. council on public affairs

378.25 Degrees, Academic 43-6115

"A scholarly study of the historical origins and present status of the awarding of honorary degrees. This study contains an extensive bibliography and a full index." Social Studies

Booklist 40:107 D 1 '43

"One would not have supposed that there was enough general interest in the subject to warrant such an intensive piece of research or its publication under such impressive auspices. Amusement rather than indignation is the popular response when academic honors are bestowed on candidates without scholarly or cultural distinction. But Dean Epler unearths some very interesting data in his thorough exploration of the history of the granting of honorary degrees by American institutions, with exhaustive analysis of the practice in seven colleges and universities of different types."

Christian Century 60:667 Je 2 '43 330w

Reviewed by E. E. Aubrey
J Religion 23:297 O '43 100w
Social Studies 34:286 O '43 30w

ERDMAN, MABEL H., ed. Answering distant calls. (Creative personalities, v4) 146p $1.50 Assn. press

922 Missionaries 43-51024

"Volume IV in the 'Creative Personalities' series sponsored by the Student Volunteer Movement. These stories of the lives of men and women of achievement in foreign missions are, in a sense, a religious parallel of the records of patriotic adventure in None More Courageous." Christian Century

Booklist 39:250 F 15 '43
Christian Century 59:1595 D 23 '42 40w

ERENBURG, IL'IA GRIGOR'EVICH. Fall of Paris [tr. from the Russian by Gerard Shelley]. 529p $3 Knopf [10s 6d Hutchinson] 43-6902

Long novel based on the fall of France. It begins in 1936 in the studio of a Parisian artist, and closes in 1940 in the same studio. In between is crowded the story of the French Communists, and the people generally of all classes, as they go on their way to break-up and defeat.

"The story makes great demands on one's knowledge of recent French political history, for it is a story of warring political ideas, a story in which the heroes are young Communists fighting for lost causes after having been betrayed by their leaders. The total picture created here of deception, mistrust, and intrigue is unforgettable. This analytical and exciting story is a distinguished addition to the literature of the fall of France."

+ Atlantic 172:127 Jl '43 150w

"Apart from all political and philosophical considerations and viewed simply from the point of living literature 'The Fall of Paris' is a great book written by a master of the pen at his full maturity, a book that will contribute more to literature than to the explanation, the satisfying explanation, of the fall of a great nation." Konrad Bercovici

+ Book Week p6 Jl 18 '43 650w
Booklist 39:446 Jl 1 '43
— Cath World 157:558 Ag '43 250w
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Jl '43

"No great shakes as a novel or as a satisfactory explanation of the French defeat, this sprawling narrative with hundreds of characters and a number of liaisons seeks to present things from the workers' point of view. To many it will seem straight propaganda. It is valuable indeed in focusing attention on the heroic struggle of European anti-fascists, many of whom were simple workingmen."

Commonweal 38:280 Jl 2 '43 70w

"Though desperately real and moving, is first-class journalism rather than great literature. Amazingly detailed play-by-play account of French political corruption. Ehrenburg's previous novels are little known here—this, which won Russia's Stalin Prize, will be hailed by liberals and intellectuals. Pay collections note." E. L. Lewis

Library J 68:430 My 15 '43 70w

"A work of considerable distinction which offers a welcome reassurance of the vitality of the creative spirit in Soviet Russia to those who feared it might suffer suppression under the dominance of Communistic control." Wilfrid Gibson

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 1 '43 300w

" 'The Fall of Paris' is full of political hope. Also it is pro-Soviet. But it is one of the deadest books I have ever read." Diana Trilling

Nation 156:900 Je 26 '43 360w

"Mr. Ehrenburg received the 100,000-ruble Stalin Prize for fiction and is being widely read in Russia and other countries. One can forgive a nation at war for not producing good novels. It is not so easy to forgive it for singling out one so specious for special honors and for passing it on to the rest of the world as art and history." Saul Bellow

— New Repub 109:367 S 13 '43 550w

"If Ehrenburg had written a straightforward political account of the fall of France he would have produced a stimulating and provocative book. Though what he has done may fascinate many readers, I think for my part that he was ill-advised to use the form of a novel." Philip Toynbee

New Statesman & Nation 25:30 Ja 9 '43 1000w

Reviewed by Elliot Paul
N Y Times p5 Je 6 '43 900w

ERENBURG, I. G.—Continued

"Mr. Ehrenburg is sufficiently professional to move his hundreds of characters—politicians, actresses, artists, soldiers, financiers—around skillfully, but they are drawn with rather journalistic slickness. Troublesome, too, is the author's ascription to the French Communist Party of final and unique political wisdom."

— + New Yorker 19:78 Je 12 '43 100w

"Why an author of his ability, a man who wrote 'La Vie des Autos,' 'L'Usine des Rêves,' etc. should commit the manifold errors of this book, remains a mystery. His Frenchmen don't even sound like Frenchmen—and it's no fault of the translation. For Ehrenburg's characters, bad and good, bourgeois and communist alike, carry on constantly soul-torturing conversations, analyzing their worries with a masochistic glee which one usually connects with a samovar but not with a Paris bistro. Perhaps there is an explanation. 'The Fall of Paris' may have been written to explain the fall of France to the Russian man in the street. It won the 100,000 ruble Stalin prize. It is, so to speak, written for 'inner consumption,' not for the world outside." R. R. Plant

Sat R of Lit 26:19 Jl 10 '43 650w

"There are a great many excellent character sketches. . . But with the obscure characters who are the tragedy's real victims—the works engineer, the actress girl, the two children of the successful politician, the detached, peaceful painter—the author is at his best, although with them, particularly with the last, he loses a little his sense of French character, and reveals himself as a Russian novelist, thereby gaining certain variations of mood and thought which enrich the whole work. So that although one is reminded sometimes, by the book's shape and its theme, of the later work of Roger Martin du Gard, and sometimes of Jules Romains, such comparison would be mainly technical, for psychologically the book reflects light that is not French, and lacking something of French precision, immediacy, and penetration, is compensatorily gentle and touched with lyricism." Kate O'Brien

+ Spec 169:604 D 25 '42 800w

"As political history 'The Fall of Paris' lacks the careful and objective analysis that essayists on foreign affairs can give and as a novel it lacks a subtlety any deeper than front page headlines can show." Lee Varley

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 13 '43 600w

"It was only to be expected that a novel by Ilya Ehrenburg about the downfall of France would be worth reading. Ehrenburg is an uneven writer, fluent and adroit almost to excess, but at his best he exhibits a bold, pointed imagination and a mordant and deftly reasoned irony. . . The sweep of the design compels admiration, and so does the breadth and firmness of Ehrenburg's personal sentiment. He knows France, knows and loves Paris in particular, and love has given him a clarity, a comprehension, an intuitive tolerance to temper the scorn he feels that perhaps few readers would expect to find in him."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p5 Ja 2 '43 950w

" 'The Fall of Paris,' even though it has won the 100,000-ruble Stalin literary prize, can hardly, be called a creative work of art. For all its occasional moving moments, it must be judged, along with many other diatribes, as a harshly brilliant prosecution for a political doctrine." Virgilia Sapieha

+ — Weekly Book Review p6 Je 6 '43 1250w

ERFURTH, WALDEMAR. Surprise; tr. by S. T. Possony and Daniel Vilfroy. 200p il $1 Military service

355.43 Strategy 43-10114

"General Erfurth has long been in the upper bracket of the German High Command. . . General Erfurth wrote 'Surprise' before the present war, thus his examples are drawn principally from 1914-1918 and he makes no reference to recent events. The translators, however, have prepared a magnificent introductory Comment which thoroughly relates Erfurth's theme and arguments to the events of the current conflict." Sat R of Lit

"Elaboration of self-evident truths is of the essence of German military writing, and this book is no exception. It adds little to our knowledge and falls far short of such outstanding modern works as Colonel Colby's 'Masters of Mobile Warfare' and Wavell's book on Allenby and his university lectures on 'Leadership.' . . Nevertheless, this book will be read in military circles, if only for the accurate and detailed description of the main battles of World War I, which, together with Dr. Possony's illuminating comments, form its brightest feature." Murray Harris

N Y Times p20 Ag 1 '43 600w ....

"Dr. Possony's contribution is probably the most important part of 'Surprise.' Certainly by its precision and clarity it shows by contrast just how befogged is some of the 'best' German military literature. Chapter notes, principally illuminating Erfurth's accounts of the principal battles of World War I, are other bright spots of this book; translation plus notes yield detailed and accurate pictures of those engagements which should attract the attention of both officer and layman." J. E. Coleman

Sat R of Lit 26:30 Ag 21 '43 800w

ERMINE, WILL, pseud. See Drago, H. S.

ERSHOV, PETR PAVLOVICH. Little magic horse; a Russian tale; tr. by Tatiana Balkoff Drowne and il. by Vera Bock. [128p] $2.50 Macmillan

891.71 42-50612

The old Russian folktale of the Russian peasant boy and his little humpbacked horse, translated into English verse.

Booklist 39:298 Mr 15 '43

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Books p7 D 20 '42 180w

"Mrs. Drowne knew and loved the original story as a child, and her translation has a liveliness and flavor which come only with secure knowledge of both Russian and English. Vera Bock, too, has a similar background of knowledge. Her pictures are vivid and imaginative, thoroughly Russian and as full of humor as the text."

+ Horn Bk 19:34 Ja '43 110w

"The Little Humpbacked Horse, written over a hundred years ago by Peter Ershoff, was a great favorite with Russian children. . . This translation is the first English translation in rhymed verse. The story reads along easily, and the distinguished illustrations in rose and blue by Vera Bock are a fascinating, droll interpretation of the text. The story is completely Russian: author, translator, illustrator, as well as its original folklore roots, and American children of all ages will enjoy it." R. A. Hill

+ Library J 67:883 O 15 '42 80w

"Has quality of a great hero story and would make excellent reading-aloud material. For boys and girls of fairy-tale age. Vera Bock's decorations are charming. Whole book is beautifully designed." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 68:173 F 15 '43 50w

"This verse translation by Mrs. Drowne succeeds in retaining the humor and drama of the original; the tale moves swiftly, and its varied scenes, the triumph of the hero and the prompt and summary justice meted out to the evildoers are highly satisfactory to young readers. The illustrations in color and black and white are decorative in character and suggest the extravagant humor of the text." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 Ja 31 '43 140w

New Yorker 19:65 My 29 '43 230w

ERSKINE, JOHN. The complete life. 355p $3 Messner

814 43-3348

"The versatile novelist, musician, teacher, and critic gives sympathetic, practical advice to all who would live richly and develop the resources within. Each essay offers concrete suggestions for development of one facet of personality, the topics ranging from manners to marriage, from painting to politics, and including cooking as cultural art. Informal bibliography for each chapter suggests chattily a few books author has found profitable." Library J

Reviewed by Arna Bontemps
Book Week p5 My 30 '43 650w
Booklist 39:422 Je 15 '43

"Writing with no air of superiority, the author impresses his reader with his sincere and earnest desire to be 'guide, philosopher and friend' in the reader's search for the fuller life. This is therefore a book to be read, pondered and acted upon. Indeed, if one but uses its references to other books as a reading list, one would soon acquire an acquaintance with many of the influential books of world literature." H. A. P.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 20 '43 370w
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Jl '43

"Stimulating manual for self-education. Intimate, witty style, nature of material, and author's large following will probably assure wide circulation in popular libraries." J. S. Cleavinger
+ Library J 68:326 Ap 15 '43 100w

"The personal parts of the book are so fascinating that it is almost regrettable that Mr. Erskine did not write an out and out autobiography. But an autobiography is too personal a record to be emulated, and 'The Complete Life' is something to which every one should hope to attain." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Times p9 Ap 25 '43 600w

"I wish Mr. Erskine had given us more autobiography and less moralizing in this book. It is a genial, friendly book; a gallant effort to make people interested in self-improvement; but there is a good deal in it of the commonplace, and an insufficient amount of self-examination and of precise definition." R. E. Roberts
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:8 Ap 24 '43 700w

"It is to Dr Erskine's credit that he dictates no rules. He opens doors that display sources for enjoyable living. His own interests are primarily in music, the arts and teaching. Therefore, his means to a complete life are through these channels. Though 'The Complete Life' may be no source book to happiness, it is a thoroughly enjoyable autobiography of a man who has distinguished himself as a critic, novelist, musician and teacher." H. L.
+ Springf'd Republican p10 Je 23 '43 270w

"Mr. Erskine tempers learning with urbanity and deftly avoids letting any single subject get out of hand. It is perhaps not surprising that the author of the delicious and mannered 'Helen of Troy' should devote much of the discussion of love and marriage to what other literary men have said. Here we come to the realization that it is not the complete life but the cultivated life we are learning about. Like the sundial, we mark only the hours that shine. To say that this is not enough for any man's philosophy is only to quarrel with the title, not to deny the excellence of John Erskine as a guide to the finer things of life." Lorine Pruette
+ Weekly Book Review p6 My 9 '43 750w
Wis Lib Bul 39:106 Jl '43

ERSKINE, JOHN. Philharmonic-symphony society of New York; its first hundred years; with programs of subscription concerts, 1917-1942. 168p il $2.50 Macmillan

785 Philharmonic-symphony society of New York 43-2211

The first third of this volume contains a factual history of the Society, summarizing and adding to the accounts by Henry Edward Krehbiel (1892) and James Gibbons Huneker (1917). The remainder of the book contains the programs of subscription concerts from 1917 to May, 1942.

Booklist 39:350 My 1 '43
Cath World 107:110 Ap '43 300w

Reviewed by R. S. Angell
Library J 67:1011 N 15 '42 110w

"For the most part Mr. Erskine is content to tell the facts. His judgments are implicit rather than explicit. Now and then he makes a point that is important and needs emphasis. . . But this is not the only kind of history that could be written about the orchestra. One wishes that some one would write an unofficial biography, for the conflicts and color of the orchestra's first hundred years, if probed vigorously and critically, would also make a good story." Howard Taubman
+ N Y Times p20 F 7 '43 750w

"The record is, of course, historically interesting and important even though the assumption that venerability goes hand in hand with continuity of artistic excellence may appear somewhat forced, particularly in connection with present disturbances in the Philharmonic organization. However, the parade of star or prima donna conductors, which adds nothing to the Philharmonic's unity or prestige, appears to have ended. And since uprootings and reconstructions are necessary in structures of almost every kind, one may look forward to a more solidly based future for the orchestra and to the hope with which Mr. Erskine's review ends appropriately. The complete programs of the last twenty-five years' performances make up more than half the book and are, in themselves, an interesting and valuable record."
+ Theatre Arts 27:323 My '43 300w

"Mr. Erskine writes wisely of the many problems which will confront symphony orchestras when the acute phase of the present crisis is past, and if not quite so sweeping as J. G. Huneker, a quarter of a century ago, he, too, seems to have no doubts as to the second hundred years of the Philharmonic, which have already begun. The 168 pages are crowded with interesting details. But Mr. Erskine has arranged the subject matter so that it becomes clear and easy reading for the historian of music in America, the host of friends of the Philharmonic and the general public." Chalmers Clifton
+ Weekly Book Review p16 F 21 '43 1300w

ERSKINE, JOHN. Voyage of Captain Bart. 307p $2.75 Lippincott

43-8211

Captain Bart, descended from a family of boat-building New Englanders, would have gone into the family business in their new home in Marietta, Ohio, if it had not been for his strong-minded Aunt Rachel. She wanted to sail the ships, and since she could not, Bart had to go to sea. The main story is about the one woman in Bart's life, a beautiful Spaniard, and their son.

"This book will not help relations with South America. They take their revolutions somewhat seriously; the Honorable Barrego, husband of Capt. Bart's beloved, and the only revolutionist in the book, is an unpleasant, mouldy little fraud. The book seems to be directed to the respectable trade who are supposed to be titillated and shocked. The shock value of the world we live in is so much greater than any this tepid little adventure can produce that not even a very old lady could get much out of it." Josephine Herbst
— Book Week p4 Je 6 '43 400w
Booklist 39:463 Jl 15 '43

"Excellent characterization here and a very good story. All libraries will want." Katharine Shorey
+ Library J 68:289 Ap 1 '43 70w

"Mr. Erskine may be a little confused as to the points of the compass; he may even, to the horror of hardened river rats, refer to the Ohio's high waters as tides, but he knows his way around very well in a town which has left its indelible mark on its children. But he knows his way even better in the complicated mazes of human nature. If the romance of Captain Bart and Marta is conventionally romantic its results are certainly not, for Mr. Erskine is a builder of character rather than plot, and he has created one

ERSKINE, JOHN—Continued
memorable major figure and a number of clearly cut minor ones to amuse and instruct." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p7 My 23 '43 700w

"One of Mr. Erskine's not-nearly-so-good trys."
New Yorker 19:74 My 22 '43 140w

ERTZ, SUSAN (MRS J. R. MCCRINDLE). Anger in the sky. 338p $2.75 Harper 43-16484

Novel depicting the effects of the early years of the war upon one upper class English family—the Anstruthers of Meddenhall. Thru the medium of lengthy conversations, many sides of the conflict are contrasted—English, French, and American. There is a short interlude in America, when the older Anstruther daughter goes to Washington on a Red Cross mission.

"'Anger in the Sky' is both a good book and a bad novel. It is a good book because no one has before stamped onto paper such an authentic picture of the most-bombed people on earth, the people of London after the fall of France. It is an inferior novel because it should never have been a novel in the first place. A story of the force and human drama that characterized the Britons in their resistance to the indiscriminate death from angry skies needs more than a good writer to make it live." Alan Browne
+ — Book Week p12 D 5 '43 430w
Booklist 40:146 D 15 '43

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p3 N 26 '43 150w

"The chief weakness of this story is the fact that nearly all its characters are mere embodiments of various attitudes toward the war and the peace to come. Although Miss Ertz brings home much of the heart-stopping tenseness of a night in the blitz, this is, first, a novel of ideas. An American reader can only be impressed and sobered by the universality of war in England, the apparent determination of most Britons that some more just and peaceful way of life shall come out of this conflict. Miss Ertz's book should help unbombed Americans to understand their point of view." Richard Match
N Y Times p28 D 12 '43 440w
New Yorker 19:106 N 27 '43 110w

"It is a book full of encouragement and goodwill and good feeling, and full, too, of acute observation and understanding of common human emotions. If it seems a little unduly hopeful about the good effects which will result from the war, that is perhaps because the author has seen much at close quarters of what human nature can rise to in times of crisis." Elizabeth Drew
+ Sat R of Lit 26:24 D 11 '43 700w

"Mrs. Ertz makes an attempt to solve some of the many problems that confront the English speaking peoples, but her gift of narrative is really the most satisfying quality of her book." John Hampson
Spec 171:584 D 17 '43 210w

"Miss Ertz's delineations of her characters and the situations into which the war has forced them are executed with that superior skill which British novelists possess in capturing their own milieu. . . Miss Ertz has handled the cross and counter currents of her intricate story with restraint and simplicity, attempting to reconcile humanity and kindliness with the indignity of war against civilian life. Sentiment is ever present in 'Anger in the Sky' but sentimentality never blurs the edge of the novel, which is clearly Miss Ertz's best, since it is the most mature and most sincerely earnest." L. S. Munn
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 400w
Times [London] Lit Sup p564 N 20 '43 180w

"'Anger in the Sky,' in its gentle, brooding way, is a milder 'Mr. Britling Sees It Through' of the second world war." F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p3 N 28 '43 800w

ESTABROOKS, GEORGE HOBEN. Hypnotism. 249p $2.50 Dutton
134 Hypnotism 43-8733

This work by a psychologist explains the nature of hypnotism and its uses—in the scientific laboratory, by the medical profession, in war, and in analysis of the accomplishments of such men as Hitler and Mussolini. The author is Professor of Psychology and Director of Placement at Colgate University. Index.

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Book Week p8 Ag 22 '43 270w
Booklist 40:53 O 15 '43

"A popularization of highly controversial subject by outstanding authority in field in this country." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 68:528 Je 15 '43 120w

"Professor Estabrooks has written a treatise aimed at introducing the average man to hypnotism without subjecting him to the fears and fancies with which this apparently magical art is attended in folklore and in the comic strips. In a large measure he has succeeded, though it is questionable how much interest the public will show in the subject once it has been stripped of its mystery and the promise of dire happenings." T. S.
N Y Times p45 S 26 '43 440w

"While Dr Estabrooks's presentation is entirely informal and often entertaining with its numerous case studies illustrating certain laws and principles of the subject, the book may well be included in the collateral reading of college students and any interested in acquiring a good introduction to hypnotism. It is written with authority, contains an impartial evaluation of the work of pioneer investigators in the field and is generally free of speculation." C. B. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 25 '43 550w

ESTES, MRS ELEANOR. Rufus M; il. by Louis Slobodkin. 320p $2 Harcourt
43-51239

Another story of the Moffat family. Rufus, the hero, aged seven, is a character in his own right. Rufus learns many things—how to write his name, how to knit wash cloths for the soldiers, and how to make a Victory garden, among them. The story ends with the close of the European war.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p46 D 5 '43 320w
Booklist 40:18 S '43

"Here's a good book for reading aloud—good for the whole family." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 N 15 '43 200w
Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '43

"This is a family story with the same kind of humor and pathos that Mrs. Estes always brings into the doings of the Moffats, and the whole family are here in full form. Louis Slobodkin's drawings perfectly fit the text." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:318 S '43 110w

"Warm and engaging story." G. E. Cartmell
+ Library J 68:671 S 1 '43 40w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:827 O 15 '43 60w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 20w

"Rufus is all right and so is his family, as nice a group as ever pulled together through hard times. The period is that of the first World War, which is so skillfully suggested as to seem as contemporary as this one." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p8 O 17 '43 280w

"Rufus M. is solemn, unbeatable, and altogether a child to marvel at and delight in. The pen-and-ink drawings are just right."
+ New Yorker 19:122 D 4 '43 70w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 26:19 S 25 '43 360w

"Eleanor Estes has packed her new book with all the humor, pathos and appeal for which she is distinguished. Rufus is a most engaging little rascal, full of courage and ingenuity, whether he be showing his skill in a Victory garden or in baseball. . . The story and its illustrations are affectionately recommended to readers of all ages."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 19 '43 110w

"This book is, I think, the best Miss Estes has given us." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 N 14 '43 400w

Wis Lib Bul 39:161 D '43

ESTES, MRS ELEANOR. The sun and the wind and Mr Todd [il. by Louis Slobodkin]. [96p] $2 Harcourt

43-3609

Fantasy for nine and ten year olds, based on Aesop's fable of the sun and the wind. Mr Todd, a mild little weather forecaster who had become rather unsuccessful at his weather guessing, was treated to a tall order of weather, and learned some important facts. He had quite a time passing on what he had learned.

Booklist 39:322 Ap 1 '43

"It is a far cry from the Moffats to Mr. Todd, and the little girls who love Janey may be disappointed to have Miss Estes turn to another field. But perhaps the amusing text and dramatic illustrations of this new book will prove equally fascinating to girls and boys." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:102 Mr '43 100w

"I regret that I cannot be more enthusiastic about this book—a sculptor's book with large-page drawings in sepia, many of them excellent, based on one of Aesop's fables. It leaves me wishing it might have been more simply conceived in black and white. The text also seems forced." A. C. Moore

— Horn Bk 19:117 Mr '43 60w

"Vigorous full-page drawings by Louis Slobodkin are thoroughly in mood of this humorous tale." M. M. Clark

+ Library J 68:249 Mr 15 '43 110w

"Any book by the author-artist team of the diverting 'Moffat' books is news, but this one is a disappointment. It is a whimsical extension of the Aesop fable about the dispute between the Wind and the Sun over which is the stronger. The Traveler of the new version is a modern weatherman, Mr. Todd, and such a quaint character. Mr. Slobodkin's big, sculptural pictures in sepia are beautiful but seem thoroughly unsuitable."

— + New Yorker 19:66 My 29 '43 70w

Reviewed by Maria Cimino

Sat R of Lit 26:50 Ap 17 '43 90w

"Louis Slobodkin, the famous sculptor, has drawn some magnificent illustrations full of strength and clever humor. This is a truly fine book in all ways—one to be cherished and enjoyed for many years, one not quickly outgrown. In fact, many adults will more than relish and appreciate this story and these pictures." J. P.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 4 '43 120w

"As quaint and unexpected a yarn as I have lately met. The pictures are noteworthy: their technique is that of the sculpture for which Mr. Slobodkin is famous rather than of the sharp sympathetic drawings with which he illustrated the 'Moffat' books. He fulfills the hard task of putting immortals and mortals into the same picture: much of the time the smiling Sun, secure in the knowledge of ultimate success, and the blustering, uncertain Wind form a vast frame through which one sees as they do from their height, the comic conduct and attitudes of Mr. Todd." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p7 F 21 '43 500w

Wis Lib Bul 39:75 My '43

ESTES, HARLOW (WILSON) (MRS STANLEY GODDARD ESTES). Inconstant flame. 310p $2.50 Dodd

43-13939

Story of a love affair that almost came to grief because of the widely differing temperaments of the two principals.

"The reader is too familiar with the pattern to be much worried over the outcome. In spite of this the story has remarkable vigor and reality." Margaret Wallace

+ — N Y Times p20 Ag 29 '43 360w

"Sharp and sensitive as far as it goes, but not overly penetrating."

New Yorker 19:94 S 18 '43 50w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 31 '43 220w

Reviewed by George Conrad

Weekly Book Review p10 S 19 '43 500w

ETTLINGER, HAROLD. The axis on the air. 318p $2.75 Bobbs

940.54887 World war, 1939—Propaganda. Propaganda, German 43-14231

A survey of the Axis propaganda and the methods Goebbels and his disciples use to influence Germans, the conquered peoples, and those fighting against Hitler. One chapter is devoted to "The Traitors", English and American men and women working for the Axis.

"Ettlinger has written a very worthwhile book. It illuminates the many facets of this war within a war and gives depth to our perception of the obstacles we must surmount to win." K. E. Olson

+ Book Week p4 O 3 '43 600w

Booklist 40:111 D 1 '43

Reviewed by M. E. Clark

Library J 68:665 S 1 '43 40w

New Repub 109:630 N 1 '43 120w

"Mr. Ettlinger has done a competent job of research and analysis which makes all this crystal clear. If only it could have been done two years earlier, it would have spared us a vast amount of unnecessary agony and uncertainty." J. C. Harsch

+ N Y Times p10 O 31 '43 700w

"Mr. Ettlinger's book should be widely read even if we know that only after the war is over shall we know to what degree radio propaganda has contributed to the Nazi victories over Poland, France, and the Balkan countries, as well as to our own victories over Italy and eventually over the Nazis. Not until that time will it be widely realized that psychology can be a deadlier weapon than cannon." H. B. Kranz

Sat R of Lit 26:8 O 23 '43 700w

"An excellently documented appraisal of the axis methods of propaganda." Emanual Slotnick

+ Springf'd Republican p8 O 27 '43 600w

EUSTACE, CECIL JOHN. House of bread; a Catholic journey. 159p $2.25 Longmans

B or 92 Roman Catholic church—Converts

43-14542

"Supplementing author's Romeward (1933), in which he stated basic principles of Catholic teaching, these informal memoirs describe his spiritual pilgrimage from Anglicanism of his youth, his thirteen years in the Roman Church, and, more particularly, his reading and thoughts since the autobiography." Library J

"There is a certain simplicity about the way Mr. Eustace's mind works, a simplicity which generally stops short of naivete and which at its best can be very helpful to those who have no heart for complexity. Not that Mr. Eustace is afraid of serious subjects or serious discussion—he is full of them. But he has a real gift for simplifying and clarifying. Since one of his objects is to guide his readers in their further pursuit of theological, philosophical and spiritual knowledge, this gift lifts his book well above the categories to which it might otherwise be relegated."

+ Commonweal 39:75 N 5 '43 380w

Reviewed by R. J. Hurley

Library J 68:665 S 1 '43 80w

EVERS, HELEN, and EVERS, ALF. Chatterduck [pictures by the authors]. [41p] 50c Rand McNally

43-3613

Picture-story book about a loquacious little duck who made all the other animals nervous

EVERS, HELEN—Continued
with his incessant chatter, until they decided to take measures. After that Chatterduck was a quieter little chap. For ages two to four.

"This is one more amusing successor to 'Copy-Kitten' and carries a moral without malice." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p7 Ap 11 '43 180w

Reviewed by E. G. Mullan
Library J 68:364 My 1 '43 70w

"The pictures are expressive and amusing as we expect from the Evers, and there is a grand lot of sound effects to keep the picture book audience and readers-aloud in a happy uproar." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 4 '43 100w

"This book is for chatterers who won't be offended because, after all, the story is about a duckling. . . Somebody should give this book to authors who think adjectives come in threes." M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p8 Mr 21 '43 180w

EWEN, DAVID. Dictators of the baton. 305p il $3.50 Alliance bk.
781.6325 Musicians. Conducting (music) 43-51025

"Biographical, critical, and personal portraits of thirty conductors of contemporary American orchestras. Supplements but does not supplant Ewen's Man with the Baton [Book Review Digest, 1936]." Library J

Booklist 39:248 F 15 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '43

"Keen, human, objective appraisals by musician who knows the men and has seen them in action at rehearsals as well as at concerts. Highly recommended for all public and school libraries." H. A. Carpenter
+ Library J 68:81 Ja 15 '43 60w

"Mr. David Ewen is already well known as an informed and urbane writer on a variety of musical subjects. He has a smooth clear style, free from snobbery and egotism, examining his temperamental subjects with tolerance and friendliness and when his enthusiasm is kindled, as in two notable portraits of virtuosi of the baton, his writing has engaging warmth and persuasiveness. . . Mr. Ewen has written a valuable and readable book. The layman reader will find it easy going, since whenever the subject matter becomes technical, it is sweetened with anecdotes, and in the case of Sir Thomas Beecham, a few amusing flashes of wit." Chalmers Clifton
+ Sat R of Lit 26:28 Ja 30 '43 1100w

"The method of dealing with one personality after another in a series of portraits is not entirely advantageous. I admire greatly Mr. Ewen's writings, but I begin to feel he ought to pull his books together with some unifying ideas, some generalizations based on the separate portraits. . . He has given us an excellent book even as it stands—readable, instructive and provocative. It is so good that he should now organize himself for less fragmentary history in future." John Erskine
+ — Weekly Book Review p22 Mr 21 '43 550w
Wis Lib Bul 39:26 F '43

EWEN, DAVID, ed. Living musicians. 390p il $4.50 c1940 Wilson, H.W.
927.8 Musicians—Dictionaries. Musicians, American 41-51568

"This is a companion collection to Mr. Ewen's Composers of Today and Composers of Yesterday. Well-known as an author and editor of publications in the music field, Mr. Ewen planned Living Musicians as a reference book which would supply biographical and personal information, not easily available elsewhere, about living concert and opera stars as well as an evaluation of their artistic importance based on the appraisal of outstanding music critics." (Subscription Bks Bul) This book was first entered in the 1941 Book Review Digest.

"This volume is recommended."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:45 O '43 900w

EWEN, DAVID. Story of George Gershwin; il. by Graham Bernbach. 211p $2.50 Holt
B or 92 Gershwin, George 43-13354

Popular biography of a notable American composer of jazz music, written for young readers. Bibliography. Index.

"Good reading for everyone." Phyllis Whitney
+ Book Week p11 S 19 '43 140w
Booklist 40:49 O 1 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43
Commonweal 39:121 N 19 '43 20w

"Notable biography that will prove to be one of most popular in library collections. Fascinating to music lover and will be read by many others, because it is so simply, so humanly told. Written with sincere appreciation and authoritative knowledge of this self-made American who became one of our greatest composers." Sonja Wennerblad
+ Library J 68:729 S 15 '43 70w

"David Ewen's book is a pleasant and workmanlike addition to the early Fall lists, although, truth to tell, it adds little to the familiar biography by Isaac Goldberg (Simon and Schuster, 1931) and the collection of pieces about Gershwin written by his closest friends and published in book form by Merle Armitage in 1938 (Longmans, Green). The author, in fact, generously admits that he derived much of his material from these sources." Bennett Cerf
+ Sat R of Lit 26:16 S 4 '43 800w

"The value of the book for young folks is in making his personality clear and integrating it with its period. One sees Tin Pan Alley just as it is about to crack, and learns why. The feverish, fabulous possibilities of our money-making have their place, but so does the Wall Street crash of '29." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 S 12 '43 450w
Wis Lib Bul 39:126 O '43

EYRE, KATHERINE WIGMORE. Spurs for Antonia; pictures by Decie Merwin. 238p $2 Oxford 43-13339

A ten-year-old is the heroine of this book for young readers. When the great aunt who had brought her up died, Antonia went to live with her father on his California ranch. The stern, repressed man and the brave, lonely little girl, were far apart at first; but Antonia's courage finally won out, and she was rewarded with the spurs which had been meant for boys only.

Booklist 40:82 N 1 '43

"Katherine Eyre has not forgotten what it is like to be a little girl and she has drawn a real and lovable child in Antonia." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:406 N '43 100w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:822 O 15 '43 30w

"A well-written, fast-moving story of a lovable little girl." D. M. MacDonald
+ Library J 68:1008 D 1 '43 40w
N Y Times p22 N 28 '43 120w

F

FABRICANT, SOLOMON. Employment in manufacturing, 1899-1939; an analysis of its relation to the volume of production. 362p $3 Nat. bur. of economic research
338.4 U.S.—Manufactures. Labor and laboring classes—U.S. 43-6978

"Economic study showing significant association between increases in total production and total employment and declines in man-hours, labor costs, and selling prices per unit of output. New technological methods indicate the price of efficiency." Library J

"The technical work is excellent throughout, although there are some mistatements of interpretation and fact. . . Some generalizations appear unwarranted. . . These slight limitations will probably detract little from the usefulness of the work, for it is obviously addressed primarily to the economic historian. Through Mr. Fabricant's labors, the task of analyzing the development of the American scene should be both lightened and improved by the provision of these better factual tools." W. R. Pabst, Jr.
+ — Am Econ R 33:696 S '43 1000w

"The whole analysis is clear-cut, penetrating, and a major contribution to the literature of labor economics. While there are points at which questions arise, as in the conclusions as to most effective lengths of work week (p. 15), the work is so replete with carefully considered and highly significant conclusions as to justify the highest commendation." Dale Yoder
+ Ann Am Acad 229:225 S '43 480w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:10 Jl '43 30w

Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 30w

"Both title and subtitle of this book are precise and careful; their scientific exactness may easily fail to attract the general reader. And yet any intelligent citizen interested in the economic development and outlook of our country would find it highly stimulating." H. L. Herring
+ Social Forces 22:230 D '43 350w

FADIMAN, CLIFTON, ed. Three readers. See Readers club, New York

FAIR, A. A. Cats prowl at night. 280p $2 Morrow 43-11952

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p10 S 26 '43 140w

Booklist 40:48 O 1 '43

"Bertha is as profane and as amusing as ever, and one does not miss Donald Lam half so much as one might have expected." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p8 Ag 29 '43 100w

"Fun, but you may wish occasionally that Donald Lam, her old detective-agency partner, could get leave from the Navy to help his pal out of some of her scrapes."
+ — New Yorker 19:68 Ag 28 '43 50w

"Grade A."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:16 S 4 '43 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 29 '43 190w

"Bertha comes through nobly when things look darkest—isn't that always the way? Her letter to Donald in the last chapter sums it all up. This is one of the best buys of the week—honest weight and professional entertainment for all and sundry." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p10 S 5 '43 220w

FAIRCHILD, DAVID GRANDISON. Garden islands of the great East. 239p il $3.75 Scribner

581.5 Plant introduction. Netherlands Indies —Description and travel. Philippine Islands —Description and travel 43-15231

Account of a collecting trip in the wilds of the Moluccas, the Spice Islands of the East, following on the trail of the explorer-naturalist, Alfred Russel Wallace. The expedition set out in 1939 in a specially built Chinese junk. When the invasion of Holland, in May 1940, closed the ports of the Netherlands Indies to visitors, Dr Fairchild and his party returned to Philippine waters. Copiously illustrated. Map on end papers. Index.

"This book is one of those which adds to the conviction that 'naturalists have more fun than anybody.' Like artists and a few other fortunate mortals, they have a profession in which their work and their play are one. But even among naturalists, Dr. Fairchild is exceptional, for seldom does one close a book with such a warm and friendly feeling for the author." Margedant Peters
+ Book Week p17 N 21 '43 550w

Booklist 40:89 N 15 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '43

"For charm and fascination it is hard to surpass David Fairchild's superbly illustrated 'Garden Islands of the Great East'."
+ Commonweal 39:40 O 29 '43 30w

Reviewed by E. L. Keyes
Commonweal 39:236 D 17 '43 280w

"I have read this book in manuscript and, seeing it again printed, its charm is no surprise. . . This book, more than any other which David Fairchild has written, transmits to his reader, with magic power, that subtle essence of his own enjoyment which is the most elusive and at the same time the loveliest of all those effects a writer may hope to convey." Thomas Barbour
+ N Y Times p8 N 21 '43 1050w

"David Fairchild has an enviable reputation. Not only is he the distinguished botanist who established gardens of beautiful and useful tropical plants in southern Florida to be distributed to other localities in the United States, he is also a weaver of stories of the far places of the world where he has been 'collecting' all his life. Those who delighted in his autobiography, 'The World Was My Garden,' will be equally pleased with his present book."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 N '43 360w

"'Garden Islands of the Great East' is delightful reading, but more than that it is a summation of a great and useful career. Just as Dr Fairchild on his East Indian voyage followed the trail of his hero, the 19th century naturalist, Wallace, so younger men may be inspired by this book to follow this botanical Nimrod's career."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 31 '43 550w

"A satisfying volume from end papers to index. The pages quoted from Marian Fairchild's diary are vivid additions to the text. And the illustrations, which include some of the best botanical photographs this reviewer has seen since Rutherford Platt's 'This Green World,' are accompanied by interesting and informative captions, which add much to the volume." E. W. Teale
+ Weekly Book Review p3 O 17 '43 1300w

Wis Lib Bul 39:158 D '43

FAIRCHILD, HOXIE NEALE. Religious trends in English poetry; v2, 1740-1780, Religious sentimentalism in the age of Johnson. 406p $5 Columbia univ. press

821.09 English poetry—History and criticism. Religion in literature (39-12839)

Second volume of a series of studies tracing the "course of religious thought and feeling as expressed in English poetry from the eighteenth century to our own times." The present volume covers the years 1740-1780, and is designated as "religious sentimentalism in the age of Johnson." Bibliography. Indexes of names and topics. For volume one see Book Review Digest, 1939.

Reviewed by E. G. Clark
Cath World 157:322 Je '43 950w

"Professor Fairchild has the erudition, the critical judgment, the religious interest, the style—and the patience for this work. The last is not the least of the requisite qualifications, for it must have been a weary grind to go through the texts of many of these uninspired versesmiths who are worth reading about but, except for the requirements of a research project, no longer worth reading." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 59:1561 D 16 '42 1100w

FAIRCHILD, H. N.—Continued

"In reading this book I was frequently torn between irritation and admiration. The irritation was that so fine a scholarship as Dr. Fairchild's should have been apparently wasted upon the examination of poets who were for the most part very bad; the admiration was for the scholarship itself and the scholar's graceful literary style. Here, indeed, is a silken purse for the holding of straws. Yet I should add that there are stains on the purse. The author's wit is too often of a sniggering and sneering sort. Several times, too, I was appalled by his heartlessness." Theodore Maynard

+ — Commonweal 37:379 Ja 29 '43 950w

"In this readable and informing book a great deal of excellent prose is devoted to the explanation of a great deal of execrable poetry." J. T. McNeill

+ J Religion 23:218 Jl '43 800w

"Professor Fairchild has not sacrificed the humors of his subject! But this volume as a whole is an erudite and scholarly work which discusses the greater poets like Smart, Cowper, and Collins with as much acumen as it does the lesser examples." W. R. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 26:28 Ap 3 '43 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p234 My 15 '43 2250w

FALCARO, JOE, and GOODMAN, MURRAY. Bowling for all. (Barnes dollar sports lib) 107p il $1 Barnes, A.S.

794.6 Bowling 43-14722

The first half of this book deals with how to bowl, proper equipment, scoring, etc; the second half, with tournaments and teams and their organization, laws, and championship records. The book is a revised and enlarged edition of the authors' Bowling, published in 1940.

Booklist 40:96 N 15 '43

Wis Lib Bul 39:156 D '43

FALK, EDWIN ALBERT. From Perry to Pearl harbor; the struggle for supremacy in the Pacific. 362p $3 Doubleday

950 Eastern question (Far East). Pan Pacific relations. U.S.—History, Naval. Japan —History, Naval 43-2178

A survey of Japanese and United States naval history in the Pacific during the last ninety years with a background of political and diplomatic history. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 39:272 Mr 1 '43

Christian Science Monitor p12 F 16 '43 550w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:16 Jl '43 40w

"At times, the style is involved and author goes off at a decided tangent—a rather surprising fault for a lawyer whose avocation is naval history. Recommended for adult readers with special interest in subject." M. E. Clark

+ — Library J 68:81 Ja 15 '43 80w

"Mr. Falk's book is [not] as dull as are some textbooks. On the contrary it is a highly entertaining and engrossing work, and it is sound, too. . . Rarely does a piece of writing of this length contain so much information as does 'From Perry To Pearl Harbor,' and still entirely avoid being dry reading." Hallett Abend

+ N Y Times p29 Ap 4 '43 1100w

"A popular job, but urbane, well informed, and clearly written."

+ New Yorker 18:62 Ja 30 '43 30w

Reviewed by H. E. Yarnell

Pacific Affairs 16:256 Je '43 420w

"This realistic and spirited volume should make excellent recruiting material for the Navy. A generous bibliography and index heightens its value as background reading." H. C. Wolfe

+ Sat R of Lit 26:10 F 13 '43 850w

Reviewed by Rodney Gilbert

Weekly Book Review p3 F 14 '43 1500w

FALK, KARL HANSSON. Aircraft propeller handbook. rev ed 146p il $4.50 Ronald

629.13436 Propellers, Aerial 43-3975

"The second edition of a practical design book intended for engineers, draftsmen and service personnel of the aircraft industry. The book is simplified as much as possible by the use of charts. A useful handbook." Book Week

Book Week p8 Ap 11 '43 50w

Library J 68:431 My 15 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:15 Ja '43

"The presentation is simple and straightforward, but some of the conceptions are carelessly defined." N. J. Hoff

+ — N Y Times p20 Ag 15 '43 280w

FARGO, LUCILE FOSTER. Prairie Chautauqua; il. by Oscar Ogg. 254p $2 Dodd

43-14769

Story of a three weeks' stay at the Duck Lake, South Dakota, Chautauqua, back in the 1890's. The heroines are two young girls who took all the culture courses, sang in the cantata called Esther, the Beautiful Queen, and even won a prize. For older girls.

"You'll have a lot of fun with this, girls, but your main problem is going to be getting it away from your mothers long enough to read it yourselves. It will take them back to another day which they must remember a bit wistfully." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p12 N 14 '43 180w

"Well written, authentic; book will be a favorite with teen-age girls. Well illustrated by Oscar Ogg with drawings that fit the story and time." B. E. Weston

+ Library J 68:964 N 15 '43 50w

FARJEON, JOSEPH JEFFERSON (ANTHONY SWIFT, pseud). Murder at a police station. 287p $2 Bobbs

43-4728

Detective story.

Booklist 39:355 My 1 '43

"Amusing dialogue, strange complications and stranger clues. You can't afford to miss it." I. A.

+ N Y Times p8 Mr 21 '43 160w

"Gentle, humorous story."

+ New Yorker 19:72 Mr 20 '43 50w

"Good."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:35 Mr 20 '43 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 14 '43 110w

Times [London] Lit Sup p93 F 20 '43 100w

"Sergeant Henry Pork, a frustrated poet, proves himself a satisfactory sleuth in this soft-boiled story of double murder." Will Cuppy

+ — Weekly Book Review p18 Mr 21 '43 200w

FARMER, HERBERT HENRY. Towards belief in God. 252p $2 Macmillan [8s 6d Student]

231 God 43-3143

"Though written to take the place of the author's Experience of God (now out of print) and using the same general approach, this is a new book. The existence of God cannot be demonstrated, says Farmer, but it is as certain as anything can be. The certainty arises not from reflection, though reflection may clarify it and remove objections, but from the 'coercive and pragmatic' contributions of experience. The book is, in large measure, a help to belief for those who want to believe; but this is not the same as wishful thinking. Farmer is, in this reader's opinion, one of the British theologians who are best worth reading. Formerly at Hartford, he is now a professor in Westminster College, Cambridge University." Christian Century

Booklist 39:456 Jl 15 '43

Christian Century 60:519 Ap 28 '43 100w

Reviewed by R. C. Miller
Churchman 157:15 S 1 '43 180w
Reviewed by E. G. Lee
Hibbert J 42:95 O '43 750w

"This is an excellent book to put in the hands of the thoughtful layman who is troubled about the intellectual basis for Christian faith." John Knox
+ J Religion 23:298 O '43 50w

"To some readers the divisions will seem a little too rigid. The reflective element obviously overlaps, at more than one point, the other two; and the problem of evil would have been more relevantly discussed under the second heading rather than in a chapter to itself. But the book is one of the most valuable and suggestive that the S.C.M. Religious Book Club has yet offered to its members, and is worthy of wide reading and debate."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p46 Ja 23 '43 360w

FARMER, WENDELL. Surprise mystery; il. by Alice Harvey. 181p $1.75 Doubleday 43-9927

Mystery for young readers.

"Though it lacks the drama and sparkle of that perennial favorite 'Emil and the Detectives,' by Erich Kastner, 'The Surprise Mystery' is, nevertheless, a satisfying story with characters, both young and old, that the reader believes in and respects. The text and the lively drawings together provide a pleasant little picture of a village and its affairs. For children 8 to 10." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 18 '43 320w

"There is more malefaction in the story than in most junior mysteries—though no murder—but evil-doers are properly laid by the heels, and though the children take part in the process, it is not so large a part as to turn their heads. . . The burglary turns out to be a different business from the real mystery, which is solved at last in a natural, convincing way, and then the pint-size detectives, with the affectionate puppy they use for a bloodhound, drop right back into village routine of ten-year-olds in summer." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Je 13 '43 450w

FARNUM, MABEL ADELAIDE. Seven golden cities. 238p il $2.75 Bruce pub.

973.16 Southwest—Discovery and exploration. Marcos de Niza. Cibola. Vazquez de Coronado, Francisco 43-16105

"Popular account of explorations of Coronado in Southwest four hundred years ago, principally his disastrous journey to Cibola. Three personalities stand out: the Franciscan friar, Fray Marcos de Niza, who was sent on survey trip and whose reports were so erroneous; Estevan, the Moor, who accompanied the Friar and was murdered en route; and the explorer himself, Francisco Coronado. Author investigated all available original source material and supplemented this with visits to the Southwest." Library J

Cath World 157:560 Ag '43 180w
Reviewed by L. R. Etzkorn
Library J 68:428 My 15 '43 110w

FARRELL, JAMES THOMAS. My days of anger. 403p $2.75 Vanguard
43-16086

This fourth book in the saga of Danny O'Neill carries its hero through his college years in the middle nineteen twenties. The earlier volumes were: A World I Never Made, No Star is Lost, and Father and Son (Book Review Digest 1936, 1938, 1940).

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 O 24 '43 500w

"'My Days of Anger' contains sordid and brutal scenes meticulously described. It contains very coarse language. As the reader will gather from any review of this book in any paper, Catholic or not, its place is on the reserved list. . . Most people know already what Mr. Farrell's writing is like. I do not propose to review the book in detail. Studs Lonigan drifted sadly into the gutter. Danny O'Neill fights back. . . In no previous volume has Mr. Farrell kept so clearly defined certain regions of purity and honesty. Never has he developed a character so persistently aware of them." C. G. Paulding
+ — Commonweal 39:44 O 29 '43 1050w

"For some reason or other, in the years since I last read one of his novels, I had got the impression that Farrell was a careless writer. . . But actually Farrell is a meticulous if limited craftsman, choosing both incident and language with thought and skill; in fact, the contradiction between the apparently uncontrolled flow of his narrative (and the rapidity with which novel follows novel) and the care with which each scene is chosen for its place in the whole pattern of the story is one of the paradoxes of his work. . . One of the finest things about Farrell is his love, but even love, and certainly all the accuracy in the world, cannot compensate for his preference for the actionless, the plotless, and the unvarious." Diana Trilling
+ — Nation 157:737 D 18 '43 1150w
Reviewed by Isaac Rosenfeld
New Repub 109:657 N 8 '43 1850w

"This is in many ways a better book than Farrell has done before. . . If there is an accession of tenderness and even a kind of optimism in the present novel, there is also a gain in narrative power and incisiveness. 'My Days of Anger' is considerably shorter than many of its predecessors. One reason may be that Farrell has chosen to exchange the omniscient method (which contributed to the apparent discursiveness of novels like 'Father and Son') for a third-person narrative centering on Danny and Danny's point of view." Carlos Baker
+ — N Y Times p3 O 24 '43 1450w

"Mr. Farrell appears to have retained all his early inclusiveness and to have added no depth of perception to his writing."
— New Yorker 19:93 O 30 '43 140w
Reviewed by Struthers Burt
Sat R of Lit 26:16 N 27 '43 1550w
Time 42:102 N 1 '43 400w

"As always, Farrell achieves his effects by the studied accumulation of prosaic details and incidents, by the conspicuous absence of anything heroic, and by bringing the reader into a physical and spiritual intimacy with his characters that is almost shameless and invariably serves to dissolve their outward pretensions as turpentine does paint. Where other novelists prefer to present their characters in moments of crisis, clothed, so to speak, in their Sunday emotions, Farrell follows his through all their humdrum weekdays—the days which, after all, constitute the bulk of their lives." Milton Rugoff
Weekly Book Review p2 O 24 '43 900w

FARREN, HARRY DESMOND. Industrial guard's manual; what an industrial guard should know. 95p $1.25 Nat. foremen

351.74 Police, Private. Factories—Protection 42-25305

"A manual of procedure for plant guards containing practical suggestions for the training of industrial guards and basic information they need in protecting plants." Management R

Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 30w
Management R 32:118 Mr '43 20w

FARREN, ROBERT (ROIBEARD O'FARACHAIN). This man was Ireland [the song of Colmcille, the exile]. 229p $3 Sheed

821 Columba, Saint—Poetry 43-7296

An epic poem, set forth in various styles and rhythms, retelling the legends of the life of Saint Colmcille (Saint Columba). Author is a young Irish poet. Glossary.

Reviewed by B. M. Kelly
+ Cath World 157:547 Ag '43 900w

FARREN, ROBERT—Continued

"For those who would like to imagine themselves, for a few hours, dreaming in the heather, by the Irish Sea, while the peat smoke rises into the misty blue, and the waves murmur of an innocent 'Golden Age of Gaelic Christianity,' we recommend Robert Farren's 'This Man Was Ireland.' . . There is a harplike beauty in the poems, a haunting, Celtic sweetness, as well as the sturdy ring of the voice of the Christian missionary, when the Picts of Ireland and the Picts of Scotland were still under the influence of the druids, who struggled against kings and bards for popularity." Pearl Strachan

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 5 '43 700w

"For folklorist and student of Gaelic literature, this is a find (glossary alone worth price of book). For average reader, much too profound. Poetry lovers, unless they are schooled in severe forms of authentic Gaelic verse, will find neither solace nor enjoyment in this overly long epic." M. H. Zipprich

Library J 68:246 Mr 15 '43 40w

" 'This Man Was Ireland' represents an attempt to find and use an Irish tradition that is at once religious and Gaelic. The two parts of his intention defeat each other. To make the epic suitably religious, he has embedded it in the pallid 'saints' lives' atmosphere which effectively destroys the Gaelic and the epic spirit, and removes all life and strength out of what should have been a powerful sequence of poems." David Daiches

— New Repub 109:149 Ag 2 '43 100w

"This story Robert Farren tells with imagination, understanding, tenderness and a mastery over words which makes them light up his thoughts as the tapers at Droma Finn illuminated the Vulgate for Colmcille while he copied it in the night. English becomes an Irish language as he uses it to tell his people's epic." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Times p14 Jl 18 '43 320w

"A great deal can be said for Robert Farren's book but not until something has been said against it. The verse forms do not represent an artistic achievement: they are too loosely worked. But the poem has true connection with the folk mind, and in having that it has authenticity; there is breadth in it; it has a boisterousness that is refreshing in a poem today; it has the quaintness and the occasional charming irrelevancy of the folktale; it has humor. And the poet has achieved the feat of getting published a book of poetry of over two hundred pages." Padraic Colum

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:7 Ag 28 '43 1100w

" 'This Man Was Ireland' is a well-told tale full of the religious zeal which was part of the 'golden age' of Christianity in Ireland, and full, too, of the beauty and tragedy which both are always part of things Irish."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 My 26 '43 310w

FARRINGTON, SELWYN KIP. Railroading from the head end. 296p il $3.50 Doubleday

385 Railroads—U.S. 43-2843

"Up-to-date information on modern railroading, beginning with a chapter on the achievements of fast-freight. There is considerable railroad history in the book, and many excellent illustrations." (Wis Lib Bul) No index.

Booklist 39:311 Ap 1 '43

"An authentic and plausible book which every railroad enthusiast, amateur, professional and historian will consider a must on his shelves. It is, fortunately, of the selective order rather than an attempt to embrace a whole field of professional and commercial activity in its scope and touches only the high spots of the most romantic and compelling of contemporary American sagas. It avoids the deadfalls inherent in the wistful souvenirs of antiquity just as it skirts the highly professionalized aspects of a major industry which often baffle and bore the most enthusiastic amateur." Lucius Beebe

+ Weekly Book Review p31 Mr 7 '43 550w

Wis Lib Bul 39:37 Mr '43

FARSON, NEGLEY. Going fishing; il. by C. F. Tunnicliffe. 148p $3 Harcourt [10s 6d Country life]

799.12 Fishing 43-51282

Sketches of the author's fishing experiences over a period of years and in many countries. He begins with his adventures in surf fishing off the New Jersey coast, as a boy of thirteen. From that point he branches off to fishing in England, Scotland, and the continent of Europe, British Columbia, and Chile. Mr Farson has been many things: salesman, journalist, foreign correspondent, and traveler over most of the countries of the globe.

"One doesn't have to be an enthusiast about fishing in order to enjoy 'Going Fishing.' The book is full of good writing, of lively, appreciative sharing of far places and strange people." J. T. Frederick

+ Book Week p4 S 19 '43 250w

Booklist 40:55 O 15 '43

Manchester Guardian p3 O 21 '42 30w

Reviewed by Fowler Hill

N Y Times p22 O 3 '43 480w

Times [London] Lit Sup p514 O 17 '42 800w

"Mr. Farson's 'Going Fishing' will not provide the angler with any new fly patterns, but it has grace and an outdoor charm that repays reading." A. C. Clarke

+ Weekly Book Review p8 O 10 '43 700w

FAST, HOWARD MELVIN. Citizen Tom Paine. 341p $2.75 Duell

Paine, Thomas—Fiction 43-51139

"This is not author's first essay in fiction in time and spirit of Revolutionary period, and he has produced a vivid picture of Paine's mode of writing, idiosyncrasies, and character—generous, nobly unselfish, moody, often dirty, frequently drunken, a revolutionist by avocation. From London to colonial Philadelphia, Valley Forge, Paris under the Terror, and back to his adopted America to be refused even the right to vote, author captures rich flavor of his shifting scenes." Library J

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

Atlantic 172:121 Jl '43 390w

"Paine's real biography still remains to be written. The virtues of this fictional life story are its timeliness, its inspirational force, its sincerity and its very great dignity." Marion Neville

+ Book Week p2 My 9 '43 500w

Booklist 39:368 My 15 '43

Bookmark 4:18 Mr '43

"Mr. Fast's work grows in power. This book is not comfortable, but like a hard, bitter wind." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 My 3 '43 700w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Ap '43

"Antagonisms will be aroused by some strictures on great figures, but it could not be otherwise—being Paine. Recommended." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 68:327 Ap 15 '43 80w

"Perhaps the book about Tom Paine is a bit self-conscious and a little flossier than the Washington book, but certainly not enough so to spoil it. And it is very timely, not alone for its subject but for its method." Diana Trilling

+ Nation 156:676 My 8 '43 330w

Reviewed by George Mayberry

New Repub 108:646 My 10 '43 420w

"To the ever-increasing number of books that deal with the events and the personages of our own brief American past, Howard Fast has made an interesting and valuable addition with his fictionized biography of Thomas Paine. In 'Citizen Tom Paine' he has succeeded, to a laudable degree, not only in sketching a vivid portrait of one of the most extraordinary figures of the eighteenth century, but in projecting it against the stormy background of the times in which he lived and played a part, whose importance has been far too little recognized." Elmer Rice

+ N Y Times p1 Ap 25 '43 1200w

"The first sections of Mr. Fast's novel, describing Paine's life in England, are unskilful and obscure, but the author hits his stride when 1775 is reached, and from that point the story runs on a consistently high level. Paine appears as a fool on occasion, a weakling on occasion, a bad politician always, but also as one of the few men of his time (Franklin was another) who understood the Revolution, who understood 'the inevitability of America' (Mr. Fast's phrase), who, understood that the thirteen quarrelsome jealous colonies bore within them the seeds of a new world." Clifton Fadiman
+ — New Yorker 19:73 My 1 '43 400w

"The novel has power. But, until Mr. Fast learns to combine power with more restraint, more careful accuracy, and more studied art, his books will not last." Allan Nevins
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:8 My 1 '43 750w

"Whether this portrait is the whole of Paine is questionable; but, granting Mr. Fast's clearly avowed sympathy with this strange and twisted character, it is both a provocative and impressive one. Not all saint or all sinner was Paine, but there was enough of each in him to make him kind to both." Rose Feld
+ — Weekly Book Review p3 Ap 25 '43 2000w

Wis Lib Bul 39:109 Jl '43

FAULKNER, EDWARD HUBERT. Plowman's folly. 161p $2 Univ. of Okla. press

631.512 Tillage. Soils Agr43-201

"The author's pet thesis is that the moldboard plow is not only the least satisfactory of all implements ever devised to aid in the production of crops, but directly responsible for practically all of the problems in connection with agriculture which we as a nation of individuals now face. He is equally positive that the substitution of the disk harrow for the plow, combined with the use of green manures (crops grown to be turned under or into the soil to supply humus and plant foods), would, almost overnight, solve all the problems which the plow, that terrible saboteur of civilization, has created." N Y Times

---

Booklist 40:73 N 1 '43

"It is a book that will make an impression. Agriculture has not had enough heresy. It will be good for agronomists to have to prove their plowing." L. M. L.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 S 4 '43 600w

Reviewed by Edward Skillin, Jr.
Commonweal 38:447 Ag 20 '43 350w

Reviewed by Russell Lord
Nation 157:412 O 9 '43 500w

"Here is indeed an unorthodox, an optimistic and a thought-provoking book. Like Don Quixote tilting at a landscape full of windmills, the author charges across the field of present-day horticultural theory and practice, leaving in his wake, one after another, the shattered remains of just about every tenet that has been held by professional agriculturists." F. F. Rockwell
+ — N Y Times p18 Ag 22 '43 600w

Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 Ag '43 390w

"While many will not agree with Faulkner's premises—will not accept the author's limited work as established proof for the many claims advanced—the program is still sound as a beginning point for the enrichment of much American farmland. Widespread attention to this book will get others besides trained agronomists and good management farmers into the war against land erosion." E. W. Kestner
+ — Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 30 '43 1050w

"In spite of his tendency to lead with the chin, Mr. Faulkner's statement is one which American agricultural scientists will neglect at their peril. He has offered them a challenge which cannot be evaded." P. M. Wagner
+ — Weekly Book Review p7 Ag 15 '43 1400w

FAULKNER, HAROLD UNDERWOOD. American political and social history. 3d ed 814p il maps $5 Crofts

973 U.S.—History 43-6787

New edition of a textbook first published in 1937, (Book Review Digest, 1937). "The new edition retains the Jeffersonian 'slant' of the old, and adds a chapter on the first two years of the third Roosevelt administration under the title of 'America Goes to War.'" (Am Soc R) General bibliography. Index.

Am Soc R 8:624 O '43 80w

Social Studies 34:287 O '43 40w

"The material is presented in an orderly and intelligent manner. The book would be of general interest to the reader who wishes an account of the growth of America as a democratic society." Francis Williamson
+ Survey G 32:99 Mr '43 180w

FAUST, FREDERICK (MAX BRAND, pseud). Dr Kildare's search and Dr Kildare's hardest case. 2v in 1 216p $2 Dodd

43-985

Doctor Kildare is on the trail of a mysterious disease which strikes down three men important in the war work. At first the doctor faces ridicule, but he keeps hammering at his idea until he is proved right. The second story describes the effect of a pretty girl on a key man at the Navy yard, and how Dr Kildare solves that difficulty.

"Readers of Max Brand know Blair Hospital and its staff by this time as intimately as though they were convalescing there, but that doesn't seem to diminish their interest in further case histories. The fact is a tribute to the novelist's terse style and sense of the dramatic." Lisle Bell
+ Books p22 Ja 24 '43 80w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p19 F 7 '43 240w

FAUST, FREDERICK (MAX BRAND, pseud). Silvertip's trap. 216p $2 Dodd

43-11960

Western story.

Reviewed by G. W. Harris
N Y Times p16 Ag 22 '43 230w

Reviewed by Baron Ireland
Springf'd Republican p7e S 26 '43 160w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 Ag 22 '43 80w

FAVILL, JOHN. Primer of celestial navigation. 2d ed rev & enl 270p il $2 Cornell maritime

527 Navigation 43-10384

"Revised and enlarged edition of good practical introduction for student navigator on sea or in the air. Will serve as introduction to Bowditch and Dutton." (Library J) Selected bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter
Book Week p9 Ag 29 '43 70w

Booklist 40:61 O 15 '43

Library J 68:669 S 1 '43 50w

FEARING, KENNETH. Afternoon of a pawnbroker, and other poems. 49p $2 Harcourt 811 43-15253

Twenty-one poems, most of which have been previously printed in the New Yorker, New Republic, or Poetry. They are all about contemporary living.

"Fearing's are uneasy, unhappy poems because these are uneasy, unhappy times for the man who can look his social conscience in the face. They are also damnably clever poems: Fearing's needling is always done with the smooth, slick expertness of a hospital houseman with a hypo. But as one injection is much like another, so one Fearing poem tends to become much like the next one, and you are aware that in discarding 'the entire bag of conventions and codes usually associated with poetry' Fearing has created instead his own bag of tricks and devices, so that what was once a fresh manner hardens in time to a mannerism." Leo Kennedy
+ — Book Week p9 S 26 '43 500w

"Witty verse commentary. The sarcasm is gentle." Pearl Strachan
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 O 16 '43 180w

"Excellent modern verse. . . Recommended for small library purchase." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 68:723 S 15 '43 40w

"A considerable change has taken place since Fearing's last volume. His original excitement, the kind of auto-intoxication that produced the unexpected image or the startling juxtaposition, has cooled somewhat and there is little to replace it. With maturity has come a clearer focus and a greater control of his material, but there is a perceptible lack of the imaginative extravagance and casual marksmanship so well adapted to this genre. In all, though, Fearing still succeeds in obtaining a considerable exchange-value from his special brand of direct commerce between the poetic and the unadorned commonplace." William Poster
+ — New Repub 109:628 N 1 '43 600w

Reviewed by Delmore Schwartz
N Y Times p34 N 7 '43 320w

New Yorker 19:87 S 25 '43 50w

Reviewed by Ruth Stephan
Poetry 63:163 D '43 850w

"Extremely entertaining—though it is by no means all entertaining, for Fearing is 'the smiler with the knife.' He is also a deft and original workman, and makes use of everything about him in New York, from a shooting gallery to a juke box." W. R. Benet
+ Sat R of Lit 26:64 O 16 '43 90w

Reviewed by Kerker Quinn
Weekly Book Review p25 O 10 '43 650w

FEENEY, LEONARD. Omnibus. 399p $3 Sheed
818 43-18459

Collection of the author's prose and verse. "Up front is the famous 'Fish on Friday.' There are agreeable sketches built around conversations with barbers, schoolboys, traveling salesmen and invalids. There are metaphysical observations and an essay on Chesterton. And here and there appear resounding, epigrammatic phrases like 'Germany's night is a graveyard where a lone ass brays.'" (Book Week)

Reviewed by Leonard Bullen
Book Week p6 Ja 9 '44 270w

"Father Feeney is one of those unique authors who establishes almost immediately a delightful sense of companionship and intimacy with his readers. A native of Lynn, he has traveled widely and discriminatingly. His eyes and ears are sensitive and sympathetic witnesses to the drama, both tragedy and comedy, of life wherever he finds it. Because of this quick instinct of his, he has an ability to attract to him people and events which are bright with humor—or, at worst, only faintly tinged with a sorrow he shares in pitying and understanding. His writing is gay, innocent and completely charming. He lifts up the heart." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 26 '43 500w

FEILCHENFELD, ERNST HERMANN. International economic law of belligerent occupation. (Carnegie endowment for int. peace. Division of int. law. Monograph ser) 181p $1.50 Columbia univ. press 341.3 Military occupation. War—Economic aspects. International law and relations 42-25880

"Most of the book deals with the interpretation of the relevant articles of the Hague Convention on land warfare supplemented by other sources of law concerning the rights of property, contract, and economic activity in occupied areas. The author, however, points out in the introductory chapters the ways in which changes in conditions may affect the interpretation and application of these rules." Pol Sci Q

"The first elaborate treatment of this topic. For the lawyer, this study is a real treat. It combines wide knowledge of legal theories and practice with a power of interpretation, a faculty of creating appropriate categories and distinctions, and a lucidity of style and arrangement of material which are altogether admirable and up to the best standards of juridical science. Beyond its juristic importance, this study is significant for the political scientist." J. H. Herz
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:368 Ap '43 480w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:4 Jl '43 20w

"The book will be welcomed by international lawyers. Many of the questions discussed are at present arising in connection with occupied areas and more of these questions will arise in the future. It is to be hoped that the literature of international law will be enriched by other studies blending with equal skill the static and dynamic aspects of particular problems of that law." Quincy Wright
+ Pol Sci Q 58:300 Je '43 700w

FEIRER, JOHN L., and WILLIAMS, RALPH O. Basic electricity. 244p il $1.92 Manual arts
537 Electricity. Electric engineering 43-3267

"[This text] was prepared primarily to be used by high school classes in the pre-induction courses for the armed services. The book follows the outline that has been prepared by the War Department and the Office of Education. The purpose of this course is to help in equipping individuals who are about to enter military service with the basic fundamentals that are needed for further specialization in some advanced phase of electricity." (Pref) Index.

Library J 68:431 My 15 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:7 Ja '43

School & Society 57:252 F 27 '43 40w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p22 Ap 25 '43 30w

FELD, ROSE CAROLINE. Sophie Halenczik, American; drawings by Alajálov. 176p $2 Little 43-6809

Short stories about a valiant Czech widow, living in a Connecticut town not far from Bridgeport. Sophie cleaned houses for the more fortunate, but she never lost her dignity. She was determined to be an American, and bring up her four children to be good Americans, and in most respects she was more loyal than the Americans themselves. Shorter versions of most of these stories have appeared in the New Yorker.

"At times some of the stories seem contrived and a little too consciously heartwarming; but these flaws are easily outweighted by at least two extraordinary merits: The character of Sophie is a real creation and the points made about 'foreigners' and genuine 'Americanism' throughout the book are such as to call from the reader a loud 'Hear, Hear!'" Margedant Peters
+ Book Week p6 Je 27 '43 270w

Booklist 39:388 Je 1 '43

Bookmark 4:17 My '43

"The book has no aspirations to greatness, and in that very fact lies its success—a small thing, nicely and pleasingly done." Caroline Butts

+ Boston Globe p17 My 12 '43 300w

"The story is humorous, gay and gallant—and a left-handed but valuable handbook on Americanism." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p17 My 9 '43 750w

New Yorker 19:79 My 15 '43 50w

"Altogether, Sophie is a delightful person, a most attractive and believable character. Her doings are not of great importance, but the book, though slight, has a pleasant, human quality. These sketches of Sophie doing her bit, and speaking her mind, add up to a good story. It may even cause some persons to ponder upon what makes a good American, and to revise somewhat their attitudes towards certain of our foreign-born neighbors who, like the wonderful Sophie, may not speak very good English but are the salt of the earth." Stanley Walker

+ Weekly Book Review p4 My 9 '43 700w

FELKER, CHARLES AURAND. Measuring instruments. 56p il pa 52c Bruce pub.

621.9 Measuring instruments 43-13293

"Brief, practical booklet on use of steel rule, outside and inside calipers, micrometers, vernier calipers, height and surface gauges, protractors and thread micrometers." Library J

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:47 Jl '43

FELKER, CHARLES AURAND, and PAINE, HARRY WARREN. Helical milling. 86p il $2; pa $1 Bruce pub.

621.834 Indexing (machine shop practice). Milling machinery 43-5710

"Helical milling is rather a complex operation requiring both study and a little facility with mathematics. This book has some mathematics on each page but, fortunately, it's really just arithmetic. The book is readable and is said to be the first and only complete text on helical cutting." Book Week

Book Week p10 My 9 '43 70w

Library J 68:431 My 15 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:31 Ap '43

FELLNER, WILLIAM J. Treatise on war inflation; present policies and future tendencies in the United States. 180p $2 Univ. of Calif.

332.414 Inflation (finance). Finance—U.S. U.S.—Economic policy. World war, 1939—Finance 42-36477

"This volume results from a study undertaken for the Bureau of Business and Economic Research at the University of California from October, 1941, to May, 1942. . . Chapter i of the volume attempts a brief general analysis of the causes of war inflation. Chapters ii to vi, inclusive, are concerned with contemporary economic problems, mainly with problems of the American war economy. . . A brief discussion of occurrences between May and October, 1942, is contained in a Postscript." (Pref) Index.

"Professor Fellner has rendered an important service by directing attention to the irrationality and the dangers of our present lock-the-door-after-the-horse-is-stolen policy of war finance. He has made his contribution with clarity of thought and precision of argument. This book is highly recommended to all those who are willing to face the facts of war finance with courage." D. W. Gilbert

+ Am Econ R 33:404 Je '43 1850w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:10 Jl '43 40w

"Professor Fellner's Treatise is an excellent work. The analysis is rigorous; conflicting points of view are presented in a temperate manner; and the conclusions reflect a judicious balancing of the important considerations. The book is concise, and yet significant factors are neither omitted nor unduly skimped in presentation. . . There are a few minor inaccuracies or statements concerning which some doubts may be suggested." L. W. Mints

+ J Pol Econ 51:179 Ap '43 600w

Reviewed by B. R. Andrews

Social Educ 7:378 D '43 310w

"Mr. Fellner's treatise addresses itself to the professional economist, but one cannot help wishing that a larger public may at last become interested enough in economic reasoning to overcome the awe and inferiority complex with which the average layman still reacts to the economic verbiage. . . The charts, statistical appendices, and bibliography are helpful." Toni Stolper

+ Survey G 32:104 Mr '43 230w

FELSEN, GREGOR. He's in the Coast guard now. 200p il $2.50 McBride

351.792 U.S. Coast guard 43-8036

Describes the training for the Coast Guard: the weapons used; the boats, both training ships and base ships; and the courses of study followed. Copiously illustrated.

"The whole thrilling story of the U. S. Coast Guard from the time of its founding to the present is told here in clear, concise language. The book is well illustrated with photographs of the men and ships of the service." J. M. C.

+ Book Week p2 Je 27 '43 180w

"Many boys will be aided in choice of career by author's comprehensive treatment of qualifications, training, and opportunities. Lacking an index, it is still valuable as a vocational handbook. Profusely illustrated with photographs; good for browsing." Eileen Roils

+ Library J 68:578 Jl '43 70w

"The pictures—and excellent ones they are—tell a good part of the story. . . But the pictures cannot tell all. The text [is] written with great economy of words. . . It is a grand book about a tough fighting organization." I. A.

+ N Y Times p32 Je 6 '43 160w

Springf'd Republican p10 Jl 9 '43 220w

FELSEN, GREGOR. Struggle is our brother; il. by Woodi Ishmael. 220p $2 Dutton

43-1890

Mikhail, a Cossack lad, is the hero. With others of his young companions the boy forms a guerilla band, shortly after the German invasion of the Ukraine. They were motivated by one thought—to outwit the Germans, and the story is of the attempts of these brave, half-starved boys and girls to save their native land.

Booklist 39:338 Ap 15 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:104 Mr '43 100w

"Story is thrilling adventure, but it shows war as it is in many phases. If you approve of boys' and girls' knowing war at its worst, then this is a splendid story of courage for your collection. Recommended." J. E. Wooster

+ Library J 68:250 Mr 15 '43 70w

"His story doesn't approach literature in the permanent sense, but it presents in individual terms the stark, indomitable courage in that heroic struggle to save civilization, and for that may well be read by every young American." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p12 F 21 '43 260w

"The book is rather too much the typical adventure story, but the hardships and courage it tells of are real indeed and may be inspiring to twelve- to fifteen-year-old readers."

+ New Yorker 19:67 My 29 '43 70w

"Mr. Felsen's story keeps on the young side of the line—now as irregular as a rail fence—between juvenile and adult fiction. Taking for granted that twelve-year-olds can stand a great deal, it gives them straight action, leaving to their elders psychological reactions and psychic abnormalities with which the adult war novel can, and does, deal." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p7 F 21 '43 320w

FELSEN, GREGOR. Submarine sailor; with a 32 page suppl. of submarine photographs. 208p $2.50 Dutton 43-11138

"Felsen, with usual vivid style, keeps reader keyed to high pitch in this account of eleven weeks aboard the fictional American submarine, 'The Stingbull,' which left an Australian port to land an American agent in Japan. Action galore, and, though Cleve Hawkins, youthful skipper, has to scuttle his own ship, he brings in a Japanese submarine." (Library J) For grades six to nine.

Reviewed by Richard Williams
Book Week p10 N 14 '43 200w
Booklist 40:49 O 1 '43
Reviewed by G. E. Cartmell
Library J 68:672 S 1 '43 60w
Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 10w

"Three or four movies could be made, and probably have been, from the material in this book, in which, on an eleven-week operational cruise, practically everything that can happen to a submarine in the Pacific does happen, along with a few things the reader might be excused for supposing improbable. The strenuous events, however, merely provide scope for demonstrating the capabilities of an American submarine when she struts her stuff, a display that Navyminded boys will appreciate."
New Yorker 19:135 D 4 '43 70w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 17 '43 110w

FELSEN, HENRY GREGOR. See Felsen, G.

FELT, EPHRAIM PORTER. Shelter trees in war and peace. 320p il $2.50 Judd
635.9778 Trees Agr43-202

"A considerable part of this book is addressed to engineers engaged on construction operations that may cause the loss of useful trees if not properly carried out, or may, if executed according to the methods outlined, make possible the preservation of trees that should be maintained for beauty or utility. In an apparent effort to give the book a war character there is woven through its whole fabric a discussion of trees as protection against air attack." Eng N

Booklist 40:73 N 1 '43
Eng N 131:112 S 9 '43 120w

FENISONG, RUTH. Butler died in Brooklyn. 213p $2 Doubleday
43-51219

Detective story.

"This book's more than just a framework for the mystery plot—characters and writing make it a real novel." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p6 Jl 11 '43 150w
Booklist 39:465 Jl 15 '43

"The story offers good puzzlement plus entertainment—the latter particularly when Sammy is on the scene. Sammy, as you may remember, is Nelson's Negro cook and housekeeper." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p10 Je 13 '43 140w

"Detective Sergeant Gridley solves the crime and so will the astute reader, who should be ahead of Gridley about halfway through the book. Nice for those days when you feel inferior."
New Yorker 19:80 Je 12 '43 90w

"Good."
Sat R of Lit 26:40 Je 5 '43 40w

"You may ask yourself from time to time whether or not Miss Fenisong is serious about the horrid deeds she recounts. Yes and no, probably. Her story is nicely plotted for guessers." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p19 Je 13 '43 200w

FENISONG, RUTH. Murder runs a fever. 181p $2 Doubleday
43-17348

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p16 N 28 '43 120w

"Lively yarn of murder and intrigue with personable sleuth, much action, and pleasing dash of romance. Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 N 27 '43 40w

"If Miss Fenisong's characters do not always seem as natural as life, that may be because most of them are disguised as somebody else to play their parts in the popular game of hunt-the-Nazi agents. You can't be sure which ones are subversive until you hit the home stretch, which makes it fine for guessers who like the colorful but somewhat goofy world of fictional spies." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p34 N 28 '43 300w

FENNER, PHYLLIS REID, comp. Giants and witches and a dragon or two; with il. by Henry C. Pitz. 208p $2 Knopf
398.2 Fairy tales 43-16225

Collection of seventeen stories of magic from different countries. Includes the Baba Yaga from Russia, the trolls of Scandinavia, Welsh giants, and a dragon or two, from such sources as Howard Pyle, Joseph Jacobs, Andrew Lang, and Seumas MacManus. Grades four to seven.

"Perhaps the fairy tale went into disrepute for a while because of the monotonous sameness that began to pervade the whole field. But there is nothing monotonous among the new presentations of fairy stories and this is one of the best. . . . All made pleasantly scary with marvelous drawings by Henry C. Pitz." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p16 N 21 '43 90w
Booklist 40:150 D 15 '43
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:33 Ja '44 70w

"Recommended."
+ Library J 68:1050 D 15 '43 60w
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 30 '44 200w

FENTON, CARROLL LANE. Along nature's highway; with il. by the author. 96p $1.25 Day 574 Natural history—Juvenile literature
43-1220

A small book on the beasts, birds, insects and plants found along quiet back roads. Illustrations in black and white.

Book Week p6 Ap 4 '43 200w
Booklist 39:322 Ap 1 '43

"Work is accurate, so far as it goes, and doubtless has place in children's room. However, other books cover each subject so much more fully and attractively that most librarians will not consider it a 'must' book." A. E. Brown
Library J 68:250 Mr 15 '43 80w

"Light and easy to carry, it appears, appropriately enough, at a time when gasoline rationing bids fair to encourage expeditions on foot. . . The author's own enjoyment of out-of-doors is contagious, for he shares his knowledge and enthusiasm without a trace of condescension." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 Mr 7 '43 300w

"This little manual . . . will not help children to hang up records for speed on a hike, but may give them a new outlook upon a road over which they have often gone unheeding, on their way to somewhere else. Dr. Fenton's drawings are especially good for this purpose; neat and precise, they bring out details needed for identification even more clearly than most photographs, while their pictorial quality enlivens every page." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Ap 4 '43 180w

FENTON, CARROLL LANE. Earth's adventures. 207p il maps $3; school ed $2.40 Day

550 Geology—Juvenile literature
43-934

A non-technical geology, prepared for young readers. It describes the changes in the earth's surface from the early ages, to the present day volcanoes and other earth changes. Partial contents: Earth and the solar system; Shooting stars and meteorites; Volcanoes of various kinds; Everyday minerals; Rocks once hot; Winds wear and build; Rains and rivers destroy; How valleys grow old; Lava, geysers and hot springs; Water in the ground; How the sea destroys; From snowdrifts to ice age; What glaciers have done; Lakes of several kinds; Telling the ages of rocks; Ores and useful minerals. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 39:256 F 15 '43

"This is fuller and more advanced than Dr. Fenton's earlier books, Along the Hill and Life Long Ago, but it is an even more fascinating account of the solar system, meteorites, volcanoes and the making of rocks. Fine photographs interpret the text and a list of books for further reading is recommended."

+ Horn Bk 19:44 Ja '43 70w

"Dr. Fenton has done a superb job of pointing out and interpreting changes that are and have been constantly taking place. Many excellent photographs and carefully prepared drawings add much to the clear and simple text. Expensive but of great importance to young students and well worth the investment, if librarians can put it into the right hands. Recommended for children of twelve and older for their own reading and for reading aloud to families of young children." Alice Brown

+ Library J 68:84 Ja 15 '43 90w

Wis Lib Bul 39:56 Ap '43

FENTON, CARROLL LANE. Our living world. 312p il $4.50 Doubleday

575 Biology
43-14645

"Not too elementary outline of biology, including chapters on food, climate, geographical influences, and the modifications we have brought about in our environment." New Yorker

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick

Book Week p4 S 19 '43 60w

Booklist 40:73 N 1 '43

"Comprehensive, packed with authentic information, yet vividly told and eminently readable, 'Our Living World' is an invaluable source book. It stimulates the imagination and gives in compact form information vital to all who wish understanding of themselves, the world they live in, and the path before them." Anita Moffatt

+ N Y Times p34 S 26 '43 700w

"Sound, up-to-date popularization. The format isn't too attractive."

New Yorker 19:78 S 4 '43 50w

"Mr. Fenton has undertaken a very difficult task and performed it with remarkable skill. Only one with a considerable knowledge of biology can appreciate how immense is the store of information on which he had to draw. Yet there is no pedantic show of learning. No technical term is left undefined. The whole development of life becomes a vivid and instructive pageant." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ Sat R of Lit 26:15 S 18 '43 450w

"The whole flavor of the book is informal while at the same time scientifically accurate."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:2 S '43 390w

Wis Lib Bul 39:142 N '43

FENTON, NORMAN. Mental hygiene in school practice. 455p $4 Stanford univ. press

371.71 Mental hygiene. Child study
43-15091

"The major purpose of this book is to suggest practical ways of making schools more effective with respect to the development of personality in pupils. Closely identified with this purpose is the mental health of teachers and their satisfaction with their work. The relations between the school and the community are treated because of their vital importance for mental hygiene, and this is done with special reference to wholesale environment in the home. . . The book was planned to be of practical value to classroom teachers, administrators, and the many laymen who support the program of education." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"A sane point of view, based on a recognition of pupils' needs and supported by research and much practical experience, characterizes Mental Hygiene in School Practice. In a word, the outstanding contribution of this book is its implementing of the causal approach in education." J. B. Geisel

+ El School J 44:247 D '43 450w

School & Society 58:287 O 9 '43 30w

FENWICK, E. P. Inconvenient corpse. 251p $2 Farrar 44-913

Detective story.

"Despite some nicely ghoulish spots, the story goes along rather mildly." Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p6 D 26 '43 140w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p22 Ja 9 '44 120w

"Exciting and well-written exercise in untrammeled emotions—although as 'mystery' it's outside the canon. Interesting."

+ Sat R of Lit 27:21 Ja 8 '44 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p10 Ja 2 '44 100w

FERGUSON, JOHN DE LANCEY. Mark Twain: man and legend. 352p il $3 Bobbs

B or 92 Clemens, Samuel Langhorne (Mark Twain, pseud)
43-8401

"This book aims to trace in detail Mark Twain's career as a writing man, passing over lightly, or ignoring, his multifarious nonliterary doings. I have tried to examine the forces which made him a writer, to tell how he wrote his books and why he wrote them as he did. Wherever possible I have allowed him to explain things in his own words." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"Prof. Ferguson has produced an excellent biography, one that will be most keenly and adequately appreciated by the intelligent reader, the student and the scholar." Walter Hendricks

+ Book Week p8 Ag 1 '43 850w

Booklist 40:11 S '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '43

"A very solid, picturesque, human book."

+ Nation 157:565 N 13 '43 50w

"Mr. Ferguson has assimilated his material. He does not present it en bloc, and though he gives adequate credits in his acknowledgments, he rarely finds it necessary to say 'as so-and-so has pointed out.' The result is a freely flowing narrative; only the specialist will recognize the mosaic basis, so carefully has it been overlaid. Mr. Ferguson does not have an indispensable contribution (like Benson or Miss Brashear); neither does he have a fresh, challenging point of view, like DeVoto's in 'Mark Twain's America.' But one can still say that his book is now the best place to begin the study of Mark Twain." Edward Wagenknecht

+ — N Y Times p8 Je 13 '43 550w

"Persuasive and well written."

+ New Yorker 19:79 Je 12 '43 70w

"Mr. Ferguson has deliberately limited his study to those aspects of Mark Twain's life which have direct bearing on his development as a man of letters. He thus avoids the pitfalls of psychological or sociological analysis, but he also loses much of the color and vitality inherent in his subject. His book is a conscientious weighing of relevant facts in sequence rather than a biography, yet it is too much of a narrative to realize its possibilities as literary criticism. The result is informative rather than entertaining or stimulating." R. E. Spiller

FERGUSON, J. DE L.—Continued

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:15 Ag 7 '43 600w

"A stimulating picture of the writer as well as a careful and incisive analysis of his working methods." Cyril Clemens

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 6 '43 600w

Time 41:101 Je 7 '43 100w

"In these days of omniscient biographers, bellicose critics, and pretentious historians this unassuming life of Mark Twain is a most gratifying piece of work. In the preface the author modestly says that his aim was to trace in detail Mark Twain's career as a writing man. This he has done and more. In the case of Mark Twain the literary career can not be divorced from the materials of ordinary biography." Russell Blankenship

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Je 27 '43 1100w

Wis Lib Bul 39:107 Jl '43

FERGUSSON, ERNA. Chile. 347p il $3.50 Knopf

918.3 Chile—Description and travel

43-2441

A thoughtful North American's travel book dealing with a South American country increasingly important to the United States. Miss Fergusson, author of books on Venezuela, Hawaii, etc. writes more of the people themselves than of their politics and history.

"From Miss Fergusson's other books on Latin America, her Guatemala and her Venezuela, we should know what to expect: human interest, and charm in the writing. Her Chile possesses these qualities to a high degree. Readers who have been impatiently awaiting these fruits of her 1941 trip to Chile may buy this attractive volume with the assurance that they are getting the best book on the country in our language." W. R. Crawford

+ Ann Am Acad 227:188 My '43 430w

Booklist 39:318 Ap 1 '43

Bookmark 4:15 Mr '43

"The book is easy reading, with many interesting and amusing anecdotes, but adds little or nothing to contemporary study in a world at war for life. Unfortunately the last chapter, headed 'Cultural Relations,' appears to be a fireside tract on how to improve relations with South American republics, and a generous boost for the Office of Co-Ordinator of Inter-American affairs. It does not seem necessary to make a flying trip around South America to write this chapter. The Office in question has virtually an army right here at home writing the same patent-insides for all who care to read." J. R. Lewis

— + Current Hist 4:218 My '43 600w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:17 Jl '43 10w

Nation 156:677 My 8 '43 180w

"'Chile' is light, popular reading, but before completing the book one obtains a reliable composite picture of our southernmost Good Neighbor." Randle Elliott

+ New Repub 108:356 Mr 15 '43 400w

"A vivid, stimulating book of fact, narrative and comment." Alvaro De Silva

+ N Y Times p4 Mr 7 '43 800w

"Erna Fergusson, the 'outsider,' brought to her ample stay in Chile the trained heart of one who understands people. She had already exercised her gifts to good effect by introducing us to the people of Mexico and Guatemala and Venezuela. Now in her 'Chile,' she has done what no other writer has begun to do so well, has made us feel the peculiar appeal of the people who inhabit this curious geographic creation known as Chile." Hubert Herring

+ Sat R of Lit 26:39 Ap 10 '43 360w

Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 6 '43 270w

"It is a precarious business writing about other peoples' countries. Erna Fergusson has proved her right to tackle it. She makes no claim to an explanation of the intricate puzzle pattern of Chilean life. She offers no generalizations. She simply tells how Chile looked to her and introduces scores of Chileans, one by one; lets them speak. When you lay the book down, you have been in Chile." Hubert Herring

+ Weekly Book Review p5 F 28 '43 1100w

FERNALD, MRS HELEN (CLARK). Jonathan's doorstep; decorations by Nedda Walker. 280p $2.25 Longmans

43-51263

Jonathan's doorstep was laid before his Massachusetts home in 1691, but this story of his house is dated 1940. Caroline Cornelia Thacher, Jonathan's descendant, did not like the tourists who trailed thru her home but it was a tourist, altho an unusual one, who saved the historical old house when the family went bankrupt. For older girls.

"This is a book which carries a deeply significant message for young people today." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p1 N 14 '43 390w

Booklist 40:49 O 1 '43

Christian Century 60:1042 S 15 '43 30w

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 70w

Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 30w

"There are point and purpose behind this excellent love story of a girl who learns to see herself a member of the world community through association with some courageous young people from oppressed lands." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:321 S '43 100w

Reviewed by F. W. Butler
Library J 68:729 S 15 '43 100w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:823 O 15 '43 70w

"The style seems stilted at times, the dialogue not always spontaneously youthful but this is, nevertheless, a readable story of a young girl facing hard responsibilities squarely." E. L. Buell

+ — N Y Times p6 S 19 '43 280w

Sat R of Lit 26:62 O 16 '43 250w

"This interesting novel should prove to be stimulating reading for adolescent boys and girls. . . A book of this kind does much to implement the study of American history and the problems of American democracy." R. H. McF.

+ Social Studies 34:378 D '43 300w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 5 '43 240w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p36 N 14 '43 480w

Wis Lib Bul 39:148 N '43

FERNALD, JOHN. Destroyer from America. 155p $1.75 Macmillan [7s 6d Cape, J]

43-160

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"Lieutenant Fernald, non-professional in writing as well as on the sea, presents an absorbing story of his ship and crew—in a few months the two became fused in a fighting unit—whose deeds have aided in keeping open a cargo and troop bridge across the Atlantic." P. J. Searles

+ Books p2 F 7 '43 800w

"The style is clipped, unemotional and, for a non-professional writer, quite good, but a number of recent books along similar lines, among them Nicholas Monsarrat's 'H. M. Corvette,' have been superior jobs."

New Repub 108:294 Mr 1 '43 120w

Spec 171:94 Jl 23 '43 170w

"The author being an R.N.V.R. officer, one expects the matter-of-fact restraint, the unwillingness to become excited by the mere presence of death, characteristic of a race bred upon the sea and skilled in language that the sea itself would speak." Robert Littell

+ Yale R n s 32:x spring '43 90w

FERRARS, ELIZABETH. Neck in a noose [Eng title: Your neck in a noose]. 272p $2 Doubleday [8s 6d Hodder]

43-4269

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p10 Mr 21 '43 160w
Booklist 39:321 Ap 1 '43

"Good plot, swift action, entertaining dialogue." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p7 F 28 '43 60w

"Nice puzzle, nicely written."
+ New Yorker 19:68 F 27 '43 60w
Times [London] Lit Sup p5 Ja 2 '43 120w

FERRE, NELS FREDERICK SOLOMON. Return to Christianity. 76p $1 Harper

261 Christianity 43-13859

"The four lectures which constitute this book voice a strong appeal for the recovery of a 'radical' Christianity—one which goes to the root of Christian truth, faith, love and action. The need for this arises because the reach of science stops short of defining ends and values, because traditional theology has failed by reason of its obscurantism, because modernism has failed on account of its lack of religious dynamic. 'We need a new theology organically combining faith and reason, . . . a religious knowledge that dares to see and know that the Lord is good and ever dependable, . . . a radical Christianity that so unmistakably shows the signs of the spirit that . . . men will own the source because they cannot deny the effects.'" Christian Century

Booklist 40:87 N 15 '43
Christian Century 60:1075 S 22 '43 130w

Reviewed by J. B. Pratt
Crozer Q 21:67 Ja '44 600w

"A sober, scholarly, highly intelligent and not seldom profound exposition of basic Christianity." J. H. Holmes
+ Weekly Book Review p42 N 14 '43 300w

FERRINI, VINCENT. Injunction. 56p pa 50c Sand piper pubs, box 524, Lynn, Mass.

811

Collection of verse in a mood of protest against the ugliness and discomfort of factory life, and other social problems, instigated by the war.

"Provocative and often unpleasant, but certainly worth mention. . . Dismal as most of the poems are, and we feel they result from having suffered or witnessed suffering, they contain much food for thought in connection with industrial conditions in the peace to come." Pearl Strachan
Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 19 '43 380w

"Too many of Ferrini's poems, in spite of the skill and effectiveness of individual passages, consist of lines that ring out monotonously one after the other, frittering away suddenly to an end, with no inevitability—as though the poet just got tired and stopped." David Daiches
— + New Repub 109:150 Ag 2 '43 60w

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Poetry 63:105 N '43 330w

FETRIDGE, WILLIAM HARRISON, ed. Navy reader; with foreword by John Downes. 443p il maps $3.75 Bobbs

359 U.S.—Navy. World war, 1939—Naval operations 43-9958

Anthology of more than fifty articles which have appeared in magazines, newspapers, and books about the navy. It is designed to help the new naval officer or enlisted man to understand the navy better. Illustrations, maps, diagrams, and glossaries, but no index.

"This book is factual and (judging by a quick glance through its pages, pictures and maps) very exciting reading, too." A. C. Spectorsky
+ Book Week p5 Je 20 '43 140w

"Lt. Fetridge's 'Reader' is a volume that can be read with pleasure and profit by the seasoned naval officer, the youngest ensign, greenest boot and by every civilian in our land." F. W. Priestman
+ Book Week p2 Je 27 '43 600w
Booklist 39:457 Jl 15 '43

"Lieutenant Fetridge has accomplished a great service for the Navy. Surely no thinking public can read the stories of the deeds of these young patriots, their accomplishments and what will be expected of them in gaining the ultimate victory, without realizing their vital duty to the spirit of American manhood so splendidly portrayed in this book." J. K. Richards
+ N Y Times p7 Jl 4 '43 600w

Reviewed by R. G. Albion
Sat R of Lit 26:14 N 13 '43 180w
Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 Ag '43 360w

"'The Navy Reader,' informative and engrossing, is worthy of thorough reading and will bear dipping into at odd moments for many a long day thereafter." P. J. Searles
+ Weekly Book Review p19 Jl 11 '43 750w

FEUCHTWANGER, LION. Double, double, toil and trouble; tr. by Caroline Oram. 375p $2.75 Viking

43-5943

"The theme of this novel of Germany in the 1930's was suggested by the life of Hitler's soothsayer. A handsome man, with some sensibility, no scruples and a capacity for pleasing all kinds of women—even the honest ones—he waxed great as quickly and exuberantly as a toadstool and was as easily knocked from his pedestal when the time came." Books

"As a story it all seems a bit unreal. But, then, to most people the whole Nazi world is unreal."
Atlantic 171:131 Je '43 90w

Reviewed by Arnold Gingrich
Book Week p3 My 2 '43 500w
Booklist 39:368 My 15 '43

"Coolness of presentation makes the incredible more real and repellent. Recommended." Catherine Van Dyne
+ Library J 68:327 Ap 15 '43 80w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 156:676 My 8 '43 240w

Reviewed by Robert Gorman
New Repub 109:28 Jl 5 '43 150w

"If the novel has excitement and speed, as well as flashes of penetration into Nazi character, it also has its passages of sleazy and sensational prose. These flaws may be the fault of Mr. Feuchtwanger's translator, but I suspect not. Mr. Feuchtwanger belongs in the company of those gifted writers whose talents are of uneven durability. They have learned the craft of telling a story and telling it better than most of their contemporaries, and beyond that point their interest in the quality of their performance seems to wane." Horace Gregory
+ — N Y Times p7 Ap 25 '43 700w

"Feuchtwanger's portrait of Hitler, who is prominent in the book, is incisive without being quite convincing. The author emphasizes his 'demonic,' superstitious, peasantlike quality, but he does not show us the ruthless politician, the tireless schemer for world enslavement. The dimensions of his Hitler seem too limited." Clifton Fadiman
+ — New Yorker 19:76 Ap 24 '43 300w

"The plot is, as always in Mr. Feuchtwanger's novels, rich in epical detail, swift in its motion. . . The translator, Caroline Oram, has done a good job, considerably better than the translators of 'Paris Gazette.'" F. C. Weiskopf
+ Sat R of Lit 26:5 Ap 24 '43 700w

"'Double, Double, Toil and Trouble' does not rank with Lion Feuchtwanger's most powerful

FEUCHTWANGER, LION—Continued
novels but it does reflect his great talent for story-telling and characterization." M. R. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 25 '43 550w

Reviewed by Mary Ross
Weekly Book Review p4 My 2 '43 900w

Reviewed by Mark Schorer
Yale R n s 32:viii summer '43 100w

FEUER, LEON ISRAEL. Why a Jewish state? introd. by Abba Hillel Silver. 94p $1 Smith, Richard R.

296 Zionism 42-51090

"A lucid statement of the case for a Jewish state in Palestine. . . Within the brief compass of seventy pages, Rabbi Feuer states the Jewish problem in its physical, political and spiritual aspects, offers a glimpse into the ancient Jewish state, the exile, the emancipation, the development of modern Zionism, the analysis of the term 'Jewish nationhood,' the Hitler decade of horror and the conditions which are likely to pervade Europe after the war. The survey leads him to the advocacy of Palestine as a Jewish state to be an internationally sanctioned objective." Books

"The argument, moderate in tone but firm in conviction, is characterized by logic rather than by passion. Stylistically the book is unpretentious, yet its style is adequate to its purpose, possessing clarity rather than eloquence." Israel Goldstein
+ Books p24 Ja 17 '43 480w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:587 Ap '43 10w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 1 '43 50w

FICTION catalog, 1941; a subject, author and title list of 5050 works of fiction in the English language with annotations; comp. by Dorothy E. Cook, Isabel S. Monro; assisted by Elizabeth S. Duvall. (Standard catalog ser) 789p price on application Wilson, H. W.

016.8 Fiction—Bibliography 42-36364

A selected list of the best works of fiction for library use arranged in alphabetic order. Includes books for young people, translations from various languages, mystery and detective stories, etc.

Booklist 39:106 N 15 '42

"This is the most practical and effective American bibliographical tool yet provided for the intelligent, constructive use of fiction, in broad contemporary range, in general library service. It has long been needed. Although not so strong or so finely welded as had been hoped, it is a notable achievement, doing for the first time with American mechanical efficiency what Baker's Guide to the Best Fiction, in scholarly English fashion, did a decade ago to unlock the storehouse of fiction in English. Indeed, this new Fiction Catalog will doubtless take its place as an 'American Baker,' more limited in scope and on a lower level of critical judgment, but simpler, more varied, and, of course, with the added value of immediate timeliness." H. E. Haines
+ — Library Q 13:162 Ap '43 3700w

FIEDLER, ARKADY. Squadron 303; the story of the Polish fighter squadron with the R.A.F. 182p il $2 Roy pubs. [6s Davies]

940.544 Great Britain. Royal air force. Squadron 303. World war, 1939—Poland (W) 43-4047

The story of the Polish fighter squadron under English command, describing the squadron's part in the battle of Britain. The author, who is also Polish, reveals that all the names used are fictitious, but it is hoped that a new edition with real names will be issued after the war. One interesting chapter is on the "fantastic biological process" which seems to fuse man and his machine during battle.

Booklist 39:316 Ap 1 '43

"Told with spirit and will be eagerly read by boys and men. Will have special appeal in communities which include Polish citizens. Heartily recommended." G. E. Brown
+ Library J 68:170 F 15 '43 40w

"It is an episodic story, a little overwritten perhaps, but it does indicate something of the especial dash of the Polish pilots, which has long been recognised by their British comrades. Mr. Fiedler attributes it to the Polish cavalry tradition, and it is certainly true that good horsemen usually make good pilots." C. R.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 S 4 '42 150w

"Arkady Fiedler is a Polish man of letters, and with rare literary skill has shown us that these countrymen of his now serving in the R.A.F. are knights of the sky 'sans peur et sans reproche.'" Murray Harris
+ N Y Times p3 Ap 11 '43 320w

"Raw drama, done in a somewhat hyped-up style, but engrossing stuff all the same."
+ — New Yorker 19:67 F 27 '43 30w

"The author tells his story simply, graphically, without heroics. The glorious facts speak for themselves. . . This little book makes stirring reading. And it is a natural for boys, much more thrilling and provocative than the tales of derring-do combat flying put out by the fiction writers. Librarians are going to find their circulation figures zooming when they put Fiedler's 'Squadron 303' in the juvenile department." H. C. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 26:18 Mr 27 '43 400w

"Arkady Fiedler reveals a fine command of the English language. A trifle flamboyant to English readers, perhaps, his writing is nevertheless wonderfully expressive, making air fights real and breath-taking even to those whose feet have always been tied to the ground."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p398 Ag 15 '42 500w

Reviewed by Paul Sapieha
Weekly Book Review p12 Mr 21 '43 1000w

FIELD, BEN. Outside leaf. 237p $2.50 Reynal 43-16345

A story of the tobacco growers of the Connecticut valley. Moe Miller, son of a gentle, unsuccessful Jewish father, has taken over the family farm intent on making it pay. His ambitions are threatened by the coming of the Polish-Irish girl, Mary, but in time the conflict between them is resolved.

"Quite apart from his style, Field has written an interesting first novel which gives every indication of his ability to tell us about his chosen subject without that irritating feeling so many authors of regional novels give their readers—of having the region thrust insistently into ears, mouth, eyes and throat. He understands farm life from a background of first-hand experience, presumably in the Connecticut setting of 'The Outside Leaf,' and he tells his story with imaginative sympathy." August Derleth
+ Book Week p19 N 14 '43 480w

"There are certain things to be said in praise of Mr. Field's book: it is written with an effective sparseness; it takes as much trouble with its secondary characters as with Moe; and it is as informative as an encyclopedia article on the process of raising tobacco. These are negligible virtues, however, when we take into account its horribleness as an exposition of what the progressive novelist thinks meaningful in life." Diana Trilling
— + Nation 158:51 Ja 8 '44 450w

"It is a story as old as the first immigrant ships, but one that takes on new life and warmth from the farm setting which Mr. Field knows so well and describes in such bold, rich, strong language. The book has too many repetitious scenes and the middle part lags badly, but the end, in which the orthodox family finally becomes reconciled to the warm-blooded young shicksa whom their only son has married, is told with great beauty and sensitivity." J. H. Preston
+ — New Repub 109:860 D 13 '43 300w

Reviewed by N. B. Baker
N Y Times p24 N 28 '43 500w

"Field has written with such vigor and unity of effect and beauty that his book seems one of the best novels of the season." N. L. Rothman
+ Sat R of Lit 26:13 D 11 '43 400w

"Most of the time Mr. Field writes of these people with dignity and humor. He conveys a real sense of their worth. . . But Mr. Field frequently lapses into vulgarity. Some of his farmers speak pretty broadly; that is excusable because they happen to be that sort of people. Sometimes, however, the author apes his characters." Herbert Kupferberg
+ — Weekly Book Review p23 N 28 '43 700w

FIELD, LAURENCE N. Johann Sebastian Bach. 166p $1.50 Augsburg

B or 92 Bach, Johann Sebastian 43-6611

The dean of religion and professor of hymnology at Luther college, Decorah, Iowa, wrote this biography of Bach because he considered that other biographers have "scared away the average music lover" with their wealth of minutiae. They also have "missed Bach the Christian individual and church member." Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Felix Borowski
Book Week p9 My 30 '43 340w

"It is unfortunate that a typographical error on the first page puts the date of Bach's birth ten years too late, that the author has so little appreciation of pre-Bach music (p. 22), that it is implied (p. 89), doubtless inadvertently, that Bach invented the tempered scale, and that Frederick the Great is repeatedly referred to as 'the emperor.' But the author's admiration for Bach is sincere, his interpretation of Bach's religion is correct, and his work should have a wholesome influence in persuading Lutherans and others to make larger use of this great heritage of religious music."
+ — Christian Century 60:610 My 19 '43 260w

FIELD, PETER, pseud. Powder Valley vengeance. 248p $2 Morrow

43-1015

Western story.

Booklist 39:294 Mr 15 '43

"Another lively and lusty yarn detailing certain new exploits of Powder Valley's famous trio of trouble-shooters: Pat Stevens, Sharpshooter Sam Sloan and big one-eyed Ezra." G. W. Harris
+ N Y Times p20 Ap 4 '43 200w

"Lively, amusing." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p24 Ap 25 '43 50w

FIELD, RICHARD MONTGOMERY, and STETSON, HARLAN TRUE. Map reading and avigation; an introduction. 129p il maps $2.50 Van Nostrand

629.13254 Navigation (aeronautics). Maps 42-23135

"This book has been prepared to supply essential material for introductory courses in map reading and aerial navigation. . . It requires only a prerequisite of elementary algebra and plane geometry. It assumes no further mathematical or scientific background and is specifically designed for beginners." (Pref) Index.

Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:29 Ap '43
School & Society 56:364 O 17 '42 20w

FIELD, WOOSTER BARD. Introduction to architectural drawing. 2d ed 245p il pl $3 McGraw

744 Architectural drawing. Lettering 43-6954

Second edition of a book first published in 1932 (Book Review Digest, 1933). "The first edition covered only the more advanced stages of drawing as applied to architecture alone. In this edition the groundwork of orthographic projection has been added." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 39:431 Je 15 '43
Eng N 131:112 S 9 '43 50w
Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 30w

FIELDS, JOSEPH. Doughgirls; a comedy. 204p $2 Random house

812 43-5545

Comedy about busy Washington, D.C., in wartime and a group of beautiful young American girls and one Russian heroine who make life exciting for themselves, the men they love, and the exasperated hotel management.

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '43

"Good reading. Will not be available for amateur production for a long time. Recommended."
+ Library J 68:328 Ap 15 '43 60w

"It is cheap, vulgar and tawdry, but put together to move swiftly and rouse much mirth in those who like that sort of thing." Alfred Werner
Weekly Book Review p16 Ag 15 '43 60w

FILLER, LOUIS. Randolph Bourne; introd. by Max Lerner. 158p $3; pa $2.50 Am. council on public affairs

B or 92 Bourne, Randolph Silliman 43-15147

Biographical and critical essay on an American author who, after a brief but notable career, died in 1918.

New Repub 109:862 D 13 '43 110w

Reviewed by Weldon Kees
N Y Times p22 O 31 '43 1050w

"For those who find stimulating the mutual interaction between society and those who write its critical literature, Louis Filler's latest book will prove most rewarding. Author of that excellent volume on the early 1900s, Crusaders for American Liberalism [Book Review Digest, 1939] he has now given us a charming and solid essay on the life and significance of 'Randolph Bourne.'" S. L. Jackson
+ Springf'd Republican p10 O 20 '43 750w

FINCH, VERNOR CLIFFORD, and others. Elementary meteorology. 301p il maps $1.76 McGraw

551.5 Meteorology 42-25429

An introductory text especially designed for secondary school students covering the principles of meteorology and their application to aviation. The authors state in their preface that they have taken a substantial portion of the opening chapters of The Earth and Its Resources as a basis for this book. Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 28:13 Ja '43

Reviewed by C. E. Buell
N Y Times p18 Ja 17 '43 160w

FINE, BENJAMIN. Educational publicity. 320p il $3 Harper

371.2 Publicity. Advertising—Schools 43-5630

"A compendium of information, case material and tested suggestions on the whole field of publicity for educational organizations and movements. It is written to supply guidance to such educational groups as superintendents, principals, boards of education, parent-teacher associations, teacher organizations, colleges, and all other groups trying to acquaint the public with the activities of educational organizations." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"Although the present volume represents a departure from the established pattern of recent books in this field, wherein school news is accorded a less conspicuous place in the public relations program, it has the value of providing a comprehensive and authoritative discussion of the particular phase of public relations with which school people are least conversant. It is refreshing, moreover, to read an intelligent discussion of the problems and the values of school publicity without the obscurantism which arises from calling it by some other name. The book will certainly be accepted as a timely contribution to the literature of school and public relations." N. B. Henry

FINE, BENJAMIN—Continued
+ El School J 43:557 My '43 750w

"The authority of experience and a brisk style of writing are found in this manual by the Education Editor of the New York Times. Mr. Fine's book is explicit and practical in its aid to publicity directors and writers for schools, colleges and other educational organizations. . . One significant aspect of the book is the light it throws on the attitude of the press toward intelligent and newsworthy releases." E. F. A.
+ N Y Times p16 My 30 '43 260w
School & Society 57:420 Ap 10 '43 60w
Wis Lib Bul 40:6 Ja '44

FINEBERG, SOLOMON ANDHIL. Overcoming anti-Semitism. 225p $2 Harper

296 Jews—Political and social conditions
43-5046

Discussion of anti-Jewish prejudice in the United States, written by a rabbi who is a past national chaplain of the Jewish war veterans of the United States. He points out the danger to democratic America if this problem is not solved. The central theme of the book seems to be "A soft answer turneth away wrath." Selected bibliography.

Reviewed by A. M. Lee
Ann Am Acad 230:242 N '43 380w

Reviewed by Peter Quinn
Book Week p11 My 16 '43 310w
Booklist 39:363 My 15 '43

Reviewed by J. E. Ross
Cath World 157:549 Ag '43 450w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:157 O '43 10w

"While written primarily for Jewish readers, it is well adapted for general reading and has added virtue of presenting concrete proposals and plans applicable to any community. Recommended for all libraries." D. R. Starie
+ Library J 68:286 Ap 1 '43 70w

"The book is primarily intended for Jews. Gentiles might read it with profit to discover what kind of spiritual suffering is caused by various forms of discrimination. The study does not pretend to be a profound analysis of the whole racial issue. It seeks only to deal with the immediate problems of Gentile-Jew relations."
Nation 156:677 My 8 '43 110w

"Mr. Fineberg himself displays so much magnanimity, clear thinking and freedom from rancor that his book cannot fail to do good." Edward Wagenknecht
+ N Y Times p32 O 31 '43 350w

"Sanity and sobriety mark the entire presentation. Rabbi Fineberg has no illusions. He knows the full gravity and stubbornness of the problem. . . There are, however, weaknesses in the author's argument." Milton Steinberg
+ — Survey G 32:459 N '43 600w

FINGER, CHARLES JOSEPH. High water in Arkansas; il. by Henry C. Pitz. (Story parade picture bk) [28p] 50c Grosset
43-8252

"When Tad North was called to the microphone to receive a hero medal after an Arkansas River flood, he made a speech short as Andrew Jackson's famous one about the Union: 'It just all came about like it did.' Charles J. Finger, who knew this country and its people clear through to the heart, speaks in his stead, and with Pitz's lively pictures in color makes flood danger and rescue completely real." Weekly Book Review

"Much can be told in a few pages if you know how to tell the truth as Charles Finger did. This is a notable addition to the Story Parade Picture Books." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Je 20 '43 280w
Wis Lib Bul 39:125 O '43

FINK, DAVID HAROLD. Release from nervous tension. 232p $2 Simon & Schuster

131 Psychology, Pathological. Mental hygiene 43-9913

A practicing neuro-psychiatrist explains how habit patterns affect the glands and the behavior of organs; and gives a chapter on the interbrain and its part in nervous discord. Then he describes a ten weeks course in relaxation. Partial contents: How relaxation works; Action leads to freedom; Play is good medicine; Every man his own analyst; Treat yourself to a fresh start; Are you allergic to some people? Try on a new attitude.

"Dr. Fink's book is a soundly scientific job of work, and at the same time very entertaining and lively reading." Leo Kennedy
+ Book Week p8 Ag 22 '43 500w
Booklist 40:53 O 15 '43

"It is all very stimulating reading, and there is not a doubt in the world that the general adoption of these teachings would insure happier living all around—perhaps even make for a better peace!" M. S. Ulrich
+ Sat R of Lit 26:24 Jl 31 '43 390w

"On recreation, allergies to people, self-analysis and mental attitude, the book offers sound counsel and unhackneyed ideas. And the discussion of words as the triggers of action is an admirable study of the evolution of speech, not merely as the art of communication, but as a weapon for good or ill in the history of the human race." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p12 Ag 1 '43 450w

FINLEY, JOHN HUSTON, 1904-. Thucydides. 344p maps $3.50 Harvard univ. press

888.2 Thucydides A42-4938

"Mr Finley leaves to his readers the pleasure of discovering similarities and making comparisons between the war Thucydides chronicled and the one we are engaged in now. His book is an analysis of the historian and his work, with due attention to the political and intellectual background against which Thucydides must be seen. As such it is an absorbing addition to the literature on the subject, and one which sends the reader back to the perennially fascinating pages of the 'History of the Peloponnesian War' with heightened interest." Springf'd Republican

"The volume is a double-header; and were it not, it might prove something exhausting for an ordinary reader to get through. One small book, however, can be negotiated, even if it does call for close attention; then another, and the task is accomplished. Good intellectual practice, and profitable study of a subject that after all pertains to the present time as much as to the original democratic days of Pericles." W. P. T.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Mr 27 '43 600w

Reviewed by C. N. Cochrane
+ — Class Philol 39:57 Ja '44 3150w

"What others have tried to do recently in a superficial way to relate the experience of the Greek world to the problems of our own, this study does objectively and profoundly, and with a sober eloquence of style worthy of the author's family tradition." E. P. Richardson
+ Commonweal 37:380 Ja 29 '43 650w

Reviewed by R. O. Fink
N Y Times p20 Mr 28 '43 500w

"Mr. Finley studies Thucydides from many angles and gives us a picture that is at once new and valuable, but he carries his learning so lightly that reading him is a sheer delight." C. A. Robinson, Jr.
+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 F 6 '43 400w

"It is an opportune time for a new book on the Greek historian and John H. Finley, Jr., associate professor of Greek and Latin at Harvard, provides an excellent one in 'Thucydides.' "
+ Springf'd Republican p10 D 4 '42 750w

FISCHER, ERIC. Passing of the European age; a study of the transfer of western civilization and its renewal in other continents. 214p $2.50 Harvard univ. press

901 Civilization—History. Europe—Civilization A43-3208

"Develops interesting hypothesis that Western civilization in Europe, due to many causes—among them nationalism, class struggle, economic and imperialistic rivalries—is declining, just as all previous civilizations have declined. This culture, however, will not become extinct but is even now shifting to new centers outside Europe, mainly the Americas, Australia, Siberia, and South Africa. Two world wars accelerate but otherwise do not affect result." Library J

"In presenting his thesis, Fischer was obviously hampered by overabundance of material, which did not allow him to digest the more detailed aspects of some of the claims. However, in general, the main facts which he presents are so significant in themselves that they survive mistreatment. The subject matter in itself gives the book distinction." J. S. Roucek
+ — Ann Am Acad 231:172 Ja '44 450w

"Written in clear and penetrating style, this book by the European scholar is easy to read even for the layman, translating scholarship into easily intelligible terms." Emily Schossberger
+ Book Week p6 N 28 '43 550w

"Brief, challenging, and original contribution to philosophy of history, which could have been vastly improved by greater clarity of presentation. Will interest more philosophical reader but not likely to have very wide popular appeal." G. W. Wakefield
Library J 68:723 S 15 '43 120w

"Fascinating stuff, academically presented."
+ New Yorker 19:107 N 6 '43 50w

"While drawing on an impressive fund of erudition to buttress his thesis, Fischer never permits scholarship to become pedantry. Nor does he labor his points to coincide with preconceived conclusions. His writing, though cool and academic, is devoid of the technical jargon of the social scientist and hence without that irritating double talk which social philosophers of lesser stature sometimes confuse with learning. As befits his task the author is wholly objective about the changes he decribes. The reader, however, will be excused his thinking of them in terms of value judgment." W. S. Lynch
+ Sat R of Lit 26:36 O 30 '43 1100w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 650w

FISCHER, LOUIS. Empire. 101p $1 Duell

954 India—Politics and government. Great Britain—Colonies—India. World war, 1939—Peace 43-17774

A study of the British administration of India and the effects of it on the after-war problems. The author considers British administration bad "and finds that England has no right to be in India at all. He argues that we cannot make a good peace without seeing that India is freed, for 'if the problem of colonies is not solved other wars will follow this one.' Empires, he exclaims, will be the great threat to peace after this war." (N Y Times)

Reviewed by Jean Douglass
Book Week p6 Ja 16 '44 310w
Booklist 40:157 Ja 1 '44

Reviewed by W. F. Sands
Commonweal 39:381 Ja 28 '44 100w

"Highly recommended." Katharine Shorey
+ Library J 68:1005 D 1 '43 110w
New Repub 110:126 Ja 24 '44 180w

"Mr. Fischer writes, as always, with force. But it is the emphasis of a lawyer with a brief rather than of a judge sifting the evidence. Is such an approach more helpful here than it would be in an English writer discussing the problem of the Negro in the United States? Probing for the mote in your neighbor's eye with a needle is an old established custom, much honored by the British themselves in the days of Lord Palmerston. But if Mr. Fischer's object is to persuade England to free India it is doubtful whether he has furthered it." John MacCormac
N Y Times p8 D 12 '43 1050w

"Mr. Fischer is unquestionably an able reporter. Those sections of the book which are based on first-hand observations, interviews, and documents are both informative and convincing. He is less successful, however, when he assumes the role of political theorist and seeks to generalize about the problems of 'empire' and 'imperialism.' " K. L. Mitchell
+ — Weekly Book Review p14 D 12 '43 750w

FISH, HELEN DEAN. Pegs of history; a picture book of world dates; drawings by Rafaello Busoni. 44p $2 Stokes

902 History, Universal—Pictorial works 43-13619

"There are twenty of [the dates] all told, beginning with 4 A.D., the opening of the Christian era, and ending with 1941 and the Atlantic Charter with its freedom, vision, and faith in the ultimate truths first made evident in 4 A.D. Each date is allotted a page of text faced by a strong, vivid illustration made by Rafaello Busoni, who believes that pictures to illustrate truly should not repeat the text, but complete it." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p6 O 24 '43 180w
Booklist 40:63 O 15 '43

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p6 Ja 13 '44 240w

"A standby for the whole family."
+ Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 30w

"The important moments are well chosen and perhaps by means of these silhouettes boys and girls will find it easier to remember the notable dates. A good list of books worth reading in connection with these days is printed at the end of the book." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:414 N '43 70w

Reviewed by Fritz Eichenberg
Horn Bk 20:23 Ja '44 120w

"This is a book to treasure." R. W. Stewart
+ Library J 68:826 O 15 '43 40w

"Well done. Attractive format. Whether such book would be very useful in average library, however, is debatable." Claire Nolte
Library J 68:848 O 15 '43 70w

"Perhaps not the soundest way to teach anyone to remember dates, but girls and boys struggling with history textbooks will find it a painless and even pleasant one."
New Yorker 19:134 D 4 '43 40w

" 'Pegs of History' could prove a real boon to many children and young people who are reading history. It may serve as a refresher to older heads as well." Jacqueline Overton
+ Sat R of Lit 26:61 O 16 '43 300w
School & Society 58:192 S 11 '43 20w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p10 N 14 '43 380w
Wis Lib Bul 39:162 D '43

FISHBEIN, MORRIS. National nutrition. 192p $1.75 Bobbs

613.2 Nutrition 42-14028

Chapters on food and nutrition, written for the layman. Contents: What is national nutrition?; Hollow hunger and hidden hunger; Essential food materials; Commonsense and the family food; Review of vitamin facts and follies; Commonsense and your weight; Meat eating vs. vegetarianism; The hygiene of food:

FISHBEIN, MORRIS—Continued
Food and the war. The author is editor of The Journal of the American Medical Association, and Hygeia.

"This little book is presumably addressed to laymen as it includes material previously published in The Saturday Evening Post, Red Book Magazine and Hygeia. It seems well suited to the purpose, as it is readable, even amusing in parts, and more than reasonably accurate. . . The intelligent layman who reads it will be interested, amused, and moderately instructed." F. G. Boudreau
+ Am J Pub Health 33:1129 S '43 140w
Booklist 38:436 Jl 15 '42

FISHER, AGNES, pseud. See McEwen, J. E.

FISHER, CLYDE. See Fisher, G. C.

FISHER, MRS DOROTHEA FRANCES (CANFIELD). Our young folks. 329p $2.75 Harcourt
362.7 Youth 43-51294

Study of the youth problem today, and the difficulties to be faced with the youth of the post-war days. The author maintains that we have failed to train our youth to work in an industrial society, and that this question which is being ignored during wartime, will be of major concern after the war is over. Index.

"The exploratory character of her thinking about the NYA, the CCC, equal rights for women in business, the danger of treating money as an end, and cognate topics makes even arid statistics bloom with new meaning. A far more radical book than meets the eye." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 173:124 Ja '44 180w

"Dorothy Canfield Fisher has no pat and perfect answer. But she does know that adults must once again take the responsibility, working with children to teach skills, inculcating character and teaching responsibility. She does not get down to brass tacks and analyze the obscenity of production-for-production's sake instead of production-for-humanity's-sake. But she does a good job on secondary evils. Parents who want to know what their youngsters will be up against after this war had better read this one from cover to cover." Sterling North
+ — Book Week p2 O 10 '43 320w
Booklist 40:71 N 1 '43

Reviewed by M. H. Bro
Christian Century 61:177 F 9 '44 500w

"All librarians will not only want to buy for their libraries but will want to urge their adult public to read this challenging book." D. R. Starie
+ Library J 68:767 O 1 '43 90w
New Repub 109:694 N 15 '43 90w

"Adults will find here fresh facts and lively expressions of many of their own half-formed thoughts and submerged feelings. Perplexed young people—the very subject of the book—will discover that there are those who understand the urgency of their needs." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p24 O 17 '43 750w

"A simply written and helpful book, but the author tends to overlook the large political issues involved."
+ — New Yorker 19:99 O 9 '43 70w

"The reading of this book has brought back to me the excitement with which I read, some fifteen years ago, Mrs. Fisher's 'Why Stop Learning?' In this book, as in that, she makes education a dramatic adventure." B. W. Overstreet
+ Sat R of Lit 26:26 O 30 '43 700w

"'Our Young Folks' is packed full of wisdom. It is a book to be read seriously and with determination to heed its message." H. M. Harris
+ Survey 78:352 D '43 550w

"This is the book of a woman who herself finds life good and is eager, because she believes in her fellow human beings, that all should have a chance to share fully in the joys of achievement, personal relationships and the sense of being a part of the life of one's time. It is written as concretely and informally as if she herself had stepped out of the garden or kitchen of her Vermont home to tell you, face to face, how she sees the job of being a youngster and an adult. To some extent for youngsters, but more especially for their elders, it is a sharp and invigorating challenge." Mary Ross
+ Weekly Book Review p12 N 7 '43 1050w
Wis Lib Bul 39:141 N '43

FISHER, GEORGE CLYDE. Story of the moon. (Am. museum of natural hist. Science ser) 301p il $3 Doubleday
523.3 Moon 43-4068

Study of the moon, describing its origin, its motions, place as a celestial body, its real size, its effect on the tides, and the plains, mountains, and craters on its surface. Contains a chapter on myths about the moon, and one on other satellites. For the layman. The author is honorary curator of the Hayden planetarium. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 39:313 Ap 1 '43
Bookmark 4:6 Mr '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '43
Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:31 Ap '43

"What we have, is not only a book on the moon but a book that covers a good deal of astronomy besides. For good, instructive reading Dr. Fisher is hard to beat." Waldemar Kaempffert
+ Sat R of Lit 26:36 My 15 '43 320w

"Dr. Fisher's achievement in presenting so much data, so clearly, in the limited space of these pages is a notable one. 'The Story of the Moon' takes its recognized place in the series of fine books popularized for the benefit of the layman."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:2 F '43 390w

"A tale told by a master. . . With the fine half-tone illustrations it is undoubtedly, as the publisher claims, one of the most complete books ever written about the moon."
+ Weekly Book Review p22 Ag 15 '43 230w

FISHER, M. F. K., pseud. See Parrish, M. F. K.

FISHER, VARDIS. Darkness and the deep. 296p $2.50 Vanguard
43-3878

Primitive man, just after his change from tree man, but before the invention of language, is the subject of this novel. It describes in detail the lives and reactions of a group of these ape-like creatures, living in the jungles, engaged in little but food getting and procreation. The dawning of human intellect in the man-creature, Wuh, is pictured step by step, and the first cave home set up by his chief wife, Murah.

"If you feel, like Wordsworth, that 'the world is too much with us'; if you would like a few hours of complete escape from the welter of war books and at the same time are tired of the ingenuous blood and thunder of the cloak and sword school of historical romances, then this book is a rare find for you, and you'll treasure it as a vision of pure delight. . . The 'backdrop' prefatory portion contains some of the most beautiful and imagination-igniting prose that he, or anybody else, has written in many a moon. And the therapeutic effect of the book as a whole, as a quick shot of relief from Weltschmerz, ought to be enormous." Arnold Gingrich
+ Book Week p4 Mr 21 '43 1200w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 156:462 Mr 27 '43 70w

"The most serious criticism of this book, from the scientific point of view solely, is the humanizing of creatures that were still far below the human level. This reviewer is of course not shocked or disturbed by the facts of evolutionary kinship with the worthy anthropoid people; he is proud of even a quite remote relationship with creatures so free from hypocrisies and premeditated fiendishness; he can certify to the cumulative evidence of man's origin from the ancestors of the gorilla and the ancestors of the chimpanzee; but from the Ho-whas, the Whus, the Hwahs and the Ghaks of this story—No!" W. K. Gregory
+ — N Y Times p5 Mr 21 '43 950w

"Mr. Fisher's book is, of course, a freak, but a pretty successful one. It's not easy to write interestingly of men and women who have not yet developed a brain, but Mr. Fisher manages to get around the difficulty. 'Darkness and the Deep' is the product of an almost too conscientious study both of modern anthropology and of recent researches (particularly those of Yerkes) into the behavior of apes. I rather liked it. It's a great relief from realistic novels whose characters are just as simple-minded as Mr. Fisher's primitives but haven't the romantic attraction of remoteness in time." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:79 Mr 13 '43 200w

"The first forty-eight pages of the book . . . has style, compression, clarity, and a beauty of language which gives to its material what literature gives to anything it touches—subjective meaning for the reader. . . It is a tribute to Mr. Fisher's skill as a novelist that with these simple characters he has fashioned an absorbing narrative, putting into it an amazing amount of scientific knowledge without detracting in the slightest from the movement of the plot, which centers, as it does in all novels, around the emotional lives of the performers." Thomas Sugrue
+ Sat R of Lit 26:22 Mr 27 '43 950w

" 'Darkness and the Deep' is the first of a projected series of novels in which Mr. Fisher proposes to tell the story of human development and in so doing hold the mirror up to civilization. This opening tale is pretty dark and pretty deep, not recommended for the ultra-refined. But I must say that it is an extraordinary bit of virtuosity. Here is the Old Ape-Man for you, your ancester and mine, or so they say." F. T. Marsh
Weekly Book Review p6 Mr 21 '43 850w

FISHER, VARDIS. The mothers; an American saga of courage. 334p $2.50 Vanguard

Donner party—Fiction 43-14815

Re-telling of the tragic journey of the Donner Party on the way to California in 1846. The tale of disaster, starvation, and death in several guises, is told from the point of view of the mothers of the party.

"Marvelous Americana. Brilliantly written tragedy. It was such trials as these which tested an earlier generation of Americans, producing the substance of a great nation and a great literature." Sterling North
+ Book Week p2 O 10 '43 500w

Booklist 40:79 N 1 '43

"Fictionized biography at its best. Excellent writing and characterization. Libraries owning Stewart's Ordeal by Hunger may not need. Recommended." M. P. McKay
+ Library J 68:668 S 1 '43 90w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 157:506 O 30 '43 180w

"Man's conquest of the American frontier is a theme that must always engage our novelists; man's struggle with nature is a classic pattern, and a classic trap for the unwary. At least, there must be some compensation of philosophy along the way, or some hope of reward, if the novelist is to hold the reader emotionally. Mr. Fisher's own novel 'Children of God,' illustrates this point magnificently. . . In 'The Mothers,' his characters merely go to pieces in a snow-bound cul-de-sac. Nature, in all its malevolence, holds every trump in the game the Donners are playing. And nature, opposed by these wraiths that once were men, is a boring villain after more than three hundred pages." William Du Bois
N Y Times p6 O 3 '43 750w

"A document having to do with human endurance and courage as well as human cowardice and selfishness in the final press of circumstance. The author and publisher assume a more general familiarity with this tragic episode in our pioneer history than probably exists and give no date and very little background to the record."
New Yorker 19:97 O 9 '43 160w

"Vardis Fisher's story of the Donner Party is cast in fictional form, but it adheres to the known facts almost as closely as the historical account of that ill-fated expedition, 'Ordeal by Hunger,' which George Stewart wrote a few years ago. And to the telling of this often-told tale, Fisher brings the artistry of the novelist and the skill of an experienced narrative writer." P. V. Stern
+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 N 6 '43 500w

"It has been said that a psychological novel will be the only real contribution the Donner story is able to make to imaginative American literature based upon the historical past. Telling the appalling tale of hunger and death through one body and one mind would be very difficult. Mr. Fisher has taken an easier way, scattering his tremendous and vital energy through many characters and many events. Perhaps, just now that is enough. There are mothers in this world who need to read about the courage of other mothers in other times." Virginia Sorensen
Weekly Book Review p3 O 3 '43 1050w

FISHMAN, NATHANIEL. Married woman's bill of rights; with an introd. by Dorothy Kenyon. 282p $2.50 Liveright

396.2 Woman—Law. Marriage law 43-51280

In simple, non-technical language this book explains many points of American law which may affect the married woman. Topics discussed include separation and divorce, adoption of children, common-law marriage, homes for the aged, insanity, joint safe-deposit boxes, and citizenship. Index.

Am J Soc 49:196 S '43 20w

Reviewed by S. P. Breckinridge
Am J Soc 49:275 N '43 400w

Booklist 40:54 O 15 '43

"Something of a hodgepodge but good reference material not readily found elsewhere." L. M. Kinloch
+ — Library J 68:570 Jl '43 60w

"Thoroughly practical, the book is easy to read, informative and copiously illustrated with actual cases as they have been tried in courts all over the country. It is more than a reference book, it is a document of vital interest to many women."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 29 '43 90w

FITHIAN, PHILIP VICKERS. Journal and letters, 1773-1774; a plantation tutor of the Old Dominion; ed. with an introd. by Hunter Dickinson Farish. new ed 323p $4 Colonial Williamsburg

B or 92 Virginia—Social life and customs 43-12674

The author of this journal was a young graduate of Princeton, designed eventually for the ministry, who spent a year in Virginia as tutor to the numerous children of Robert Carter III of Nomini Hall. His day by day record contains character sketches of his pupils and their parents, friends and relatives, pictures of life in an aristocratic house of the period, and some comment on social and political questions of the day. Excerpts from Fithian's journal of 1775-1776 were published in 1934 (Book Review Digest, 1934). An earlier edition of the journal, published in 1900, has long been out of print.

Reviewed by Margaret Williamson
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 14 '43 900w

FITHIAN, P. V.—Continued

"It is fortunate that the Williamsburg Restoration Historical Studies have made available the diary and letters that young Fithian wrote at Nomini Hall. They give a fresh, human, and altogether charming picture of plantation life on the eve of the Revolution." Grace Adams

+ Nation 157:478 O 23 '43 600w

"The Fithian diary is a standard source book, familiar to all who are studious or curious in the period, and the region, that cradled Washington and the Lees. It is the general reader's misfortune that it had been out of print for so long a time. Mr. Rockefeller's Williamsburg Foundation and Dr. Farish have performed a public service in making possible the enlargement of the circle of readers of a work so valuable—and entertaining. Added entries and letters increase the value and enhance the entertainment, and Dr. Farish's introduction handsomely assists the reader in forming his own perspective, as his footnotes fortify the information." H. I. Brock

+ N Y Times p14 Jl 25 '43 650w

"Altogether, this is an invaluable book for students of life in the Southern colonies, and a most entertaining volume for the amateur lover of Americana. The editors of the Williamsburg Restoration Historical Studies are to be congratulated upon giving us the first satisfactory edition of the work. An earlier and incomplete version of the diary, published in 1900, is long since out of print. This handsome book presents the journal in full—and there is none of it that we would spare." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 Jl 17 '43 700w

Reviewed by L. B. Hill

Springf'd Republican p10 S 17 '43 900w

"As a source book this Virginia diary is invaluable. It also makes good reading. It has none of those dreary repetitions found in so many diaries. Indeed, it may be classed as not only one of the most important of our diaries but one of the most enjoyable. Mr. Farish has contributed a charming, informative introduction and supplied all the necessary footnotes so that the reader knows the connections of every one he meets." Richardson Wright

+ Weekly Book Review p7 Jl 18 '43 1200w

FITTS, DUDLEY, ed. Anthology of contemporary Latin-American poetry. 667p $3.50 New directions

861.08 Spanish American poetry—Collections. Portuguese American poetry—Collections 43-485

"Ninety-five poets from twenty-one Latin-American countries, including even some of the Caribbean islands. The poems, in Spanish, Portuguese, and French, appear face to face with capable and sensitive translations. The editor 'has aimed at presenting a picture of the most important poetic activity of the past quarter century.' The translations emphasize meaning rather than music and some controversial works have been omitted in the interests of hemispheric solidarity, but the writers' tendencies, talents, and influences are clear. Title, introduction, etc., are given in Spanish as well as English, making the book two-way in all respects." (New Yorker) Index.

Booklist 39:249 F 15 '43

"There has been criticism of the translations, and of the selections made by Dudley Fitts. . . Certainly the poems selected from the immense treasury by Chilean poets, Pablo Neruda who fought in Spain, and Gabriela Mistral, first woman poet of great influence and the first poet to translate the ballads of the Indians into a fortifying current of tradition and beauty within the context of Chilean thought, are not their best. But the translator's job is a thankless one. This is the first real introduction to Latin American poetry for Anglo Americans who have only a hazy knowledge of Spanish but a great deal of goodwill. The translator is to be congratulated for his success in incorporating so much of the major work by contemporary Latin artists. The galaxy is limitless." Josephine Hambleton

Canadian Forum 22:358 Mr '43 700w

"The value of a book of this sort is unquestionable. It is the first collection in English translation of the contemporary poetry of what to us is an unknown culture. The translations, which are for the most part excellent, stand beside the original poem so that the two may be read together. This method preserves the full flavor, melody and undertone which of necessity suffer in translation and which go unappreciated by those who attempt the original without a full knowledge of the language. The Brazilian selections represent a very special contribution in that they are the first Brazilian poems to be translated into English, excepting only isolated works or fragments scattered in critical studies and in magazines, etc." Louisa Byles

+ Cath World 157:215 My '43 600w

"The translations are always faithful. . . The anthology is more than a mere dictionary of quotations: it gives us a panorama of Latin American culture as viewed, in their various manners, by 95 sensitive human beings." N. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Mr 6 '43 700w

"For the average North American reader this volume is a kind of tourist's trip through Latin American poetry. In it he will find that south of the Rio Grande they write verses about love, and death, and children. About goat pens, and legs, and dawn, about mangoes and Indian girls in spring. Sometimes they are preoccupied with rain; sometimes they are drunk with bright color. . . Perhaps this is all the average reader wants to know about Latin American poetry. If so, he will be content with this book. But the best poets in countries to the south merit a better introduction here. Their poetry is a living part of their life, and if this is the best attempt we can make at turning it into our tongue, we'd better learn to read it in its original Spanish, or Portuguese, or French and stop making anthologies that only distort one of Latin America's most cherished art forms." Mildred Adams

— Nation 156:168 Ja 30 '43 1200w

"The first thing that strikes us is the unity of feeling and poetic tradition. As one reads it is almost impossible to guess the land of birth of most of those poets. They write not for the separate country but for all the lands of related culture and speech. In so far as one can distinguish among them, the groupings are regional rather than national. But the poets transcend the loose regional boundaries and draw sustenance simultaneously from the same masters and address themselves to the continent." B. D. Wolfe

+ New Repub 109:493 O 11 '43 1200w

"This book is perhaps the most important effort thus far on the part of North Americans in the rather testy business of appealing to and understanding the Latin-American temperament. . . Such an anthology has the double importance of exposing the most vigorous side of the Latin-American temperament to North American eyes. For it is through poetry that the real Latin-American can most easily be seen and known. His poetry expresses his way of life in its many phases, his point of view about the world in all its facets. Thus, because of the sheer vitality of such poetry, Mr. Fitts's book presents a colorful panorama of Latin-American contemporary thought." Lloyd Mallan

+ N Y Times p21 F 7 '43 1600w

"An interesting job."

+ New Yorker 18:63 Ja 30 '43 140w

"The translations, on the whole, are competent, some of them truly excellent. . . Most of the poetry selected is first-rate. . . But, oh how difficult it is to find anything one wants in the maze of four different indices, each in two languages at least, which fill close on one hundred pages at the end of the volume! Surely, some simpler system might have been devised." Edouard Roditi

+ — Poetry 62:231 Jl '43 600w

"Leaving aside technicalities, this book is a worthy contribution towards the better understanding of our Latin neighbors. Poetry has such a predominant place in the intellectual life of the Southern part of our hemisphere, that through this anthology one can get a fairly good insight into the Latin-American mind. . . The panoramic view offered by Mr. Fitts is not only a sound introduction to the study of contemporary Latin-American poetry, but also a fundamental step towards establishing a lasting basis for mutual friendship between the Americas." J. J. Arrom

+ Sat R of Lit 26:30 Ap 10 '43 600w

Reviewed by S. M. Gross
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 18 '43 850w

Reviewed by B. D. Wolfe
Weekly Book Review p15 Ap 4 '43 1350w

FITZGERALD, BRASSIL. Never surrender. 271p il $1 Ginn

920 43-12763

"A series of original biographies—stories of men of today and yesterday whose lives personify the qualities that Americans love and admire. Included are accounts of such men as Emile Zola, Simon Bolivar, Wilfred Grenfell, Winston Churchill, and Franklin D. Roosevelt." Social Studies

School & Society 57:692 Je 19 '43 20w

"Each account is authentic, interesting, and followed by some useful, stimulating teaching devices. The pictorial illustrations are appropriately chosen."
+ Social Studies 34:286 O '43 70w

FITZHUGH, ROBERT TYSON, ed. Robert Burns; his associates and contemporaries; ed. by DeLancey Ferguson. 133p $3 Univ. of N.C. press

B or 92 Burns, Robert 43-11638

Compilation of several manuscripts by friends and associates of Robert Burns, namely the Train, Grierson, Young, and Hope manuscripts, and Burns' own Journal of the Border Tour. All are reported to be hitherto unpublished. They contain some unfamiliar anecdotes and poems by and about Burns. There is an introduction on Robert Burns, his tradition and his work, and the significance of these manuscripts. Index.

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 14 '43 450w

Nation 157:565 N 13 '43 30w

School & Society 58:64 Jl 24 '43 40w

"Professor Fitzhugh, of the University of Maryland, has included in this little volume, along with a forthright introduction, five documents of prime value to biographers of Robert Burns, and not without flashes of interest for the casual reader. . . The most pertinent thing to say about these documents is that they should have been published a century or more ago." G. F. Whicher
+ Weekly Book Review p18 O 10 '43 600w

FITZSIMMONS, CORTLAND. Tied for murder. 218p $2 Lippincott

43-10421

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 Jl 25 '43 120w

"Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:25 Jl 31 '43 40w

"We'd call this an easy-to-read story with a timely setting and plot." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 1 '43 250w

FLACK, MARJORIE (MRS WILLIAM ROSE BENET). New pet [il. by the author]. [32p] $1.50 Doubleday

43-51231

Two small children, living in a little red house in the country, long for a pet—a dog, a kitten, a rabbit, or a bird. Finally their mother goes away and they are told that the "nicest kind of pet" is coming. The new baby brother is at first a let-down, because of his lack of interest, but gradually he assumes his place in the house and in their affections. For children at picture book age.

"This is more than an interesting story and an attractive picture book for very young readers. It is a book which will help small boys and girls to understand and accept the new baby in the home." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p10 S 12 '43 140w

Booklist 40:18 S '43

"In addition to its being an attractive picture book, parents will find it a psychologically sound one to use in adjusting small brothers and sisters to arrival of a new baby." M. M. Clark
+ Library J 68:671 S 1 '43 80w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:818 O 15 '43 80w

"Little children are interested in babies, and boys and girls who have small brothers and sisters will enjoy the description of experiences they will recognize. Written with thorough understanding of children, 'The New Pet' should help the next to the youngest in the family to adjust happily to the fact that he is no longer the baby in the house." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 29 '43 200w

New Yorker 19:119 D 4 '43 40w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 8 '43 150w

FLAMM, IRVING HERBERT. Economic program for a living democracy. 342p $3 Liveright

330.973 U.S.—Economic policy. Industry and state. Democracy 43-427

"Bold plea for a planned democratic economy. Choice before us is not between democracy and dictatorship, but rather between a totalitarian planned economy (facism) and a democratically planned system based on principle of social utility. Goal can be reached by democratic techniques without violence and without expropriating the capitalist owner. Much of book is devoted to blueprint for a 'Proposed Reorganization Plan.'" Library J

Reviewed by G. H. E. Smith
Am Pol Sci R 37:380 Ap '43 70w

"Mr. Flamm has drawn from many sources—Soviet experience, technocrats, co-operatives, Henry George, and the lessons of his own legal practice. His book is informed, thoughtful, tolerant, and may play its part in getting us ahead." Broadus Mitchell
+ Ann Am Acad 229:179 S '43 450w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:5 Jl '43 30w

"A 'where do we go from here' book that should interest many readers now speculating on the shape of things to come. Preface is courteous apologia for author's emphasis on legal profession as an especially well-fitted instrument in social reorganization." J. C. Shipman
+ Library J 67:793 S 15 '42 120w

Reviewed by R. D. Calkins
Pol Sci Q 58:460 S '43 600w

"It is an interesting thesis, and worthy of sincere and intelligent analysis and understanding. If Mr Flamm's 'capitalist approach to a planned economy,' as he calls it, could be made required reading for all capitalists, we would have an infinitely more intelligent society than is now the case. Here is a proposal which allows for the continuation of capitalist enterprise, provided it can demonstrate its efficiency. And for those of us who believe in and advocate the evolutionary, as over against the revolutionary, method of bringing about change, it is heartening to see such a thorough-going and intelligently realistic approach to a problem that must be faced and solved. If Mr Flamm's constructive attitude can set the standard for our thinking there is still hope for capitalism." H. W. Cross
+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 14 '43 1150w

FLANAGAN, HALLIE FERGUSON (MRS PHILIP HALDANE DAVIS). Dynamo. 176p il $2.75 Duell

792 Vassar experimental theatre 43-51199

Except for the four years during which she worked on the Federal Theatre Project, Mrs Flanagan was head of the Vassar Experimental Theatre from 1925 to 1942. This book relates the story of its organization and of some of the productions given. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 39:441 Jl 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

Reviewed by John Gassner
Current Hist 4:409 Ag '43 1100w

"Mrs. Flanagan's book is stylistic and not always clear but unfailingly interesting. Should appeal, not only to Vassar graduates, but to all concerned in educational theater. Recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 68:361 My 1 '43 110w

New Repub 108:870 Je 28 '43 110w

"A good history of a college theatre." Lewis Nichols
+ N Y Times p8 My 23 '43 750w

Reviewed by Helen Lowe
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 11 '43 470w

"Hallie Flanagan's book is characteristically vigorous and challenging. . . Though every theatre must attack its problem from its own point of view, must make its own selections, its own experiments, its own mistakes, this account of one highly imaginative, varied and energetic group will be invaluable to others working in the field."
+ Theatre Arts 27:629 O '43 450w

FLANAGAN, JOHN T. James Hall, literary pioneer of the Ohio valley. 218p $2.50 Univ. of Minn. [11s 6d Oxford]

B or 92 Hall, James 41-46232

Biography of pioneer judge and writer, who spent twelve years of his life in Illinois and thirty-six in Ohio. "This first book about Hall, published 109 years after he had made his most significant pioneer contributions to the literature, history, and education of the Middle West, presents a biography, studies of Hall as romancer and historian, literary critic, storyteller, and poet, his characteristic ideas, and his critics; a complete list of his published works, excluding magazine articles, and a bibliography of sources on which each chapter is based." (Am Hist R) Bibliographical comment. Index.

Reviewed by F. W. Scott
Am Hist R 48:373 Ja '43 350w

"Mr. Flanagan's chronicle is rich, his criticism thorough and commendably cautious. His study may well lead to a popular 're-discovery' of James Hall and to an investigation of Hall's contemporaries." Kerker Quinn
+ Books p15 F 15 '42 600w

FLAVIN, MARTIN. Journey in the dark. 432p $2.75 Harper

43-15647

"Against the sweep and growth of sixty years of American life, ending with the present, Martin Flavin tells an impressively moving story about a 'successful' man. 'Journey in the Dark,' this year's Harper prize novel, is the story of Sam Braden but it is also the story of the little town of Wyattville, Iowa, where he was born in 1883, and the story of Chicago, where he amassed his wealth. The town changed, the boy changed, the great city of the West changed, the years putting their mark on all of them. America was on the march, carrying with it the strong and the ambitious, and Sam Braden was both strong and ambitious." Weekly Book Review

---

"'Journey in the Dark' is so real that after reading the last page your own life seems to be the dream, this book the actuality. Vicarious experience can go no further." Sterling North
+ Book Week p2 O 24 '43 320w

Booklist 40:114 D 1 '43

Reviewed by N. E. Monroe
Cath World 158:410 Ja '44 160w

"A solid enough performance but it lacks distinction."
Commonweal 39:100 N 12 '43 70w

"Run-of-the-mill novel. Good old theme of self-made individualist; new wrinkle is implausible halo of Rooseveltian liberalism which crowns his fading hours. Recommended only for libraries buying a great deal of fiction." E. L. Lewis
— + Library J 68:768 O 1 '43 40w

"Smelling quite ripe for Hollywood, 'Journey in the Dark' is a 'popular' novel in the very worst sense." D. T. Bazelon
— New Repub 109:659 N 8 '43 350w

"Setting aside some echoes of Dos Passos's 'newsreels,' which clot the even flow of the novel's action, Mr. Flavin is himself; he isn't trying to write like somebody else. He has taken a superficially uninteresting man and made him interesting. That alone is no mean achievement. He has also made a plain Middle Western business man a symbol of all these United States." Horace Reynolds
+ N Y Times p4 O 24 '43 850w

"The book is intelligent and conscientious, and mirrors a representative cross-section of American life during the last sixty years." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:94 O 23 '43 130w

Reviewed by Wallace Stegner
Sat R of Lit 26:7 N 13 '43 900w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 3 '43 110w

"The author has caught the warp and woof of the American pattern of life during the half century which marks the limits of his own lifetime. . . As happens so often in such chronicles the earlier episodes are the more successful. Perhaps this is because as one grows older the minor and less memorable experiences of life fade out of the recollection, leaving only the essential and enduring aspects of experience behind. . . Nevertheless the story as a whole is intensely interesting, and perhaps for younger readers it is the recent part which will seem most credible." R. J. Conklin
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e O 24 '43 900w

"What makes this novel so profoundly moving is Sam's instinctive recognition, as the story unfolds, of the places in his life where he had failed in essential integrity and decency, some of them seemingly little things, many of them vitally significant. . . The narrative, the incidents, the dialogue are welded in powerful fashion. No review can succeed in transmitting the art, the integrity and the dramatic rightness of this book. On all counts, 'Journey in the Dark' is an unusually satisfying novel." Rose Feld
+ Weekly Book Review p1 O 24 '43 1650w

Wis Lib Bul 39:159 D '43

FLEMING, BERRY. Colonel Effingham's raid. 279p $2.50 Duell

43-51062

After an active military life Colonel W. Seaborn Effingham, U.S. Army, retired, returned to his native city, Fredericksville, Georgia. The time is 1940. The townspeople learned to their dismay that Colonel Effingham did not intend to remain retired. The Colonel's patriotism was a going concern, and the fight he put up against corruption was something which could not be ignored.

"This is our native storytelling and our native humor at their best."
+ Atlantic 171:148 Ap '43 240w

"'Colonel Effingham's Raid' is excellent satire and, like all good satire, it expertly blends contraries—here, humor and there a deep seriousness. Moreover, Fleming writes as with a surgeon's scalpel for, on almost every page, he cuts through the fat, deep but painlessly." E. J. Cronin
+ Book Week p4 Mr 14 '43 550w

Booklist 39:320 Ap 1 '43

Bookmark 4:18 Mr '43

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 17 '43 150w

"Slight but flavorful." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 68:172 F 15 '43 80w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 156:389 Mr 13 '43 150w

"Colonel Effingham is meant to embody the democratic conscience, but all too often the gentleman of the Old South who models aged whiskey on the billboards stands in for him. The style of the book, which has prevented the emergence of a single sentence written in modest English, is an affected melange of Confederate history and the Manual of Arms."
— New Repub 108:518 Ap 19 '43 150w

"Mr. Fleming has had the good sense to stay out of his home county long enough to regain a sense of proportion. . . Unlike the Faulkners and the Marches he can separate his characters from the dank heat-waves that engulf them; and, unlike the Caldwells and the Weltys, he never confuses psychopathia sexualis with true drama. Nor does he permit a gift for mordant satire to obscure his real concern for America, and America's future. . . With the publication of this novel he deserves to rank among the best of his contemporaries. He has tilted brilliantly with the ogres of privilege and probed the dry-rot of Dixie politics to the heart." William Du Bois
+ N Y Times p5 F 28 '43 1050w

"Mr. Fleming's light-hearted sketch of his native Deep South has a pleasingly un-Faulknerian sanity. He makes fun of his countrymen with an affection that nevertheless has its ironical underside. His laughter is constant but never superficial. Perhaps his story might better have been conceived on a somewhat less modest scale. I wish, too, that the pleasant little romance which threads it had been less mechanically contrived. But as a satiric comedy of local mores it seems to me about as good a job as any produced by a Southern writer during the last few years." Clifton Fadiman
+ — New Yorker 19:57 F 20 '43 450w

Reviewed by R. R. Plant
Sat R of Lit 26:19 Mr 27 '43 800w

"Mr. Fleming has set up his comedy adroitly, if a little mechanically. Good humored, it carries a certain amount of sting, as well as some remarks upon Southern character worth noting." S. V. Benet
+ Weekly Book Review p5 F 28 '43 750w

Reviewed by Mark Schorer
Yale R n s 32:x summer '43 80w

FLETCHER, GUSTAV LUDWIG; MOSBACHER, IRVING, and LEHMAN, SIDNEY. Unified physics; matter in motion. rev ed 713p il $1.80 McGraw

530 Physics 43-12331

Second edition of a high school textbook first published in 1936. Two appendixes on the Elements of aeronautics, and on Weather have been added to meet demands of pre-induction courses in high schools.

Booklist 40:97 N 15 '43

Reviewed by J. M. Juran
N Y Times p49 N 21 '43 10w

FLETCHER, ROBERT SAMUEL. History of Oberlin college; from its foundation through the Civil war. 2v 503;507-1004p il maps $5 priv ptd Oberlin college, Oberlin, Ohio

378 Oberlin college 43-11580

"In tracing the history of Oberlin College, which was first to admit Negro students and first to grant degrees to women, from its religious beginnings in 1833 to the [end of the Civil war], the author of this work, as he states in the preface, accomplished his 12-year task with an eye upon the larger American scene in its 'social, intellectual, and political' aspects." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index at end of volume two.

Reviewed by H. J. Haskell
Sat R of Lit 27:3 Ja 1 '44 3150w
School & Society 57:708 Je 26 '43 60w

"A comprehensive, authoritative, thoroughly documented history of one of America's finest colleges."
+ Social Studies 34:286 O '43 60w

"The literary style and historical workmanship are excellent. Occasional passages have a somewhat repetitious sound, but this is probably inevitable in as intensive a study as this." H. E. Davis
+ Social Studies 34:374 D '43 1450w

FLEWELLING, RALPH TYLER. Survival of western culture; an inquiry into the problems of its decline and resurgence. 304p $3 Harper

901 Civilization, Occidental. Individualism 43-9336

"An American professor who has been influenced but not converted by Spengler takes up the formidable problem of the destiny of Western culture. He endeavors to apply the quantum theory, which has gained ground in modern physics, to history. Without blinking the challenge to individual personality which the modern age presents, the author finds some ground for hoping that there will be no catastrophic breakdown of civilization in the fact that education and a minimum of culture are far more widely distributed than in any previous era. He stresses the importance of spiritual reformation and finds comfort in some modern scientific theories which attribute inherent activity to the atom." (Atlantic) Index.

Atlantic 172:123 Ag '43 90w

"Professor Flewelling is always the personalist throughout the discussion, and those who are not philosophically of his school will not feel the cogency of his case at every point. But it must, I think, be said that his book, if it does not answer all the questions or resolve all the doubts as to the future of our culture, is nevertheless a needed tonic for a tired and disheartened world." C. S. Braden
+ — Christian Century 60:1265 N 3 '43 1400w

Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 21 '43 700w

"This is a book that will repay considerable study. . . In many ways this volume might well be termed an answer to Spengler's The Decline of the West." W. P. Sears
+ Churchman 157:14 D 1 '43 120w

"This book is honest in purpose, obviously sincere, has many acute observations and sound judgments on the confusion in the thinking of the times, and as such is a valuable piece of evidence as to what some people, perhaps many, are thinking in these days of crisis. There is, however, no sure indication in it that the author in his dogmatic rejection of all 'absolutes' has taken into account the supreme importance of analogy in all metaphysics, or the essential difference between 'mystery' and 'magic'. Both are of vital relevance to the matter of that 'dogma.' To the Catholic the 'hope' that he holds out for survival of Western Culture has, naturally, no appeal whatever. Nor is there anything new in Professor Flewelling's arguments for the entertainment of that hope." T. F. Woodlock
+ — Commonweal 38:325 Jl 16 '43 650w

Reviewed by Frederick Burkhardt
Crozer Q 20:337 O '43 750w

Reviewed by John Storck
N Y Times p18 Je 20 '43 600w

"The Survival of Western Culture is a civilized and humanizing message on the pitfalls and choices which are now before Western man."
+ Time 42:104 Jl 19 '43 230w

FLEXNER, HORTENSE (MRS WYNCIE KING). North window, and other poems. 78p $2 Coward-McCann

811 43-4123

Short, clean-cut poems, which are in essence notes on present-day life.

"It is refreshing to come upon a poet who knows her limitations and works well within them. This book of short poems by Hortense Flexner shows a restrained poetic skill quietly and completely employed in the field to which it is most congenial. . . This is a kind of poetry that is easy to dismiss as low-pressured and not very significant; but this would be unjust. The cleanness of line here and the absence of cliches in those very places where they are most difficult to avoid—as well as the originality of the perceptions which form the subject matter of the poems—remove this poetry quite out of the 'bright thought for the week' category or the class of versified uplift." David Daiches

FLEXNER, HORTENSE—Continued

+ Book Week p4 Ap 4 '43 430w
New Yorker 19:71 Mr 20 '43 10w

"Miss Flexner's concern with the measurement, the appraisal of living in all its acts and forms reminds one of Emily Dickinson. To illustrate this quality [see] Miss Flexner's Divine Plan. . . Another of Miss Flexner's best poems, from a somewhat similar area of appraisal, is Mortal Grain. . . Fifteen or twenty of Miss Flexner's seventy-four poems in North Window approach in quality the poems I have quoted. Many of the others are far less satisfactory. Several good poems are marred by an inexactness of imagery or a superficial joining of parts. Some of the collection are fragmentary, sketches or beginnings of poems rather than completed works. Particularly, most of the free verse poems impress me as incomplete, hasty and preliminary transcriptions of experience." Thomas Howells

+ — Poetry 62:280 Ag '43 550w

"If perhaps her poetry is too much preoccupied with bitter inquiry and unresolved speculation, it is always interesting, always provocative. If she offers, so far as I can see, no solution to the problems of man's habitation of this planet, it is because she has formulated none for herself, and she will not sidestep an issue or accept a premise which she has not thought through herself. The cold light which falls through her North Window is not comforting or flattering, but it leaves no corners in ambiguous shadow." S. H. Hay

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:12 Jl 24 '43 280w

"Perhaps this type of poetry will make no strong popular appeal, for the confirmed poetry-clipper-outer is too often baffled by the unusual, either in meaning or in expression. But the reader who accepts Miss Flexner's medium generously, and who is willing to lend to it her concentrated attention, will be richly rewarded."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 5 '43 360w

"Pattern and order inform everything she writes. Her scope is not large, but within it her talent is a fully developed one. Each poem is neat, elegant, concentrated, polished, bringing the delight of deft craftsmanship, and of complete adequacy between inspiration and expression." Elizabeth Drew

+ Weekly Book Review p23 S 19 '43 430w

FLEXNER, JENNIE MAAS. Making books work; a guide to the use of libraries. 271p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

028.7 Libraries—Instruction in use 43-16566

"This book is intended to put the reader, the user of books and libraries, in the way of finding what he wants." (Foreword) Contents: Where you begin; The book; How the catalogue is made; The catalogue—how it is filed and meant to be used; Reference books; More reference books; Bibliography for the general reader; The library's special services; The use of the library in wartime; Books for your own library.

Booklist 40:139 D 15 '43

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ Publishers' Weekly 144:2093 D 4 '43 600w

"Miss Flexner, through her own long experience as reader's adviser at the New York Public Library, and through consultation with many librarians throughout the country, is splendidly equipped to lead the reader to an intelligent understanding of the methods and tools which make it possible to locate any material in the library and to find what he wants most expeditiously." L. A. Eastman

+ Sat R of Lit 26:28 D 11 '43 750w

"This is a timely, much-needed book."
+ Weekly Book Review p17 Ja 9 '44 350w
Wis Lib Bul 40:5 Ja '44

FLEXNER, WILLIAM WELCH, and WALKER, GORDON L. Military and naval maps and grids; their use and construction. 96p pa $1 Dryden

623.71 Cartography. Maps 43-2946

"A useful summary of cartography, particularly its war-time uses, is [this text] prepared for the Naval V-7 course at Cornell originally. The principal projections of military interest and their properties are described and there are a number of problems for the student." Weekly Book Review

---

"This is an excellent textbook for students whose math is limited and as an introduction to the study of the principles upon which various map projections are built. It is in no sense a book for the drawing of maps or for the interpretation of maps. Contours and other symbols used in map drawing are not included. A good but not lengthy bibliography and an index for ready reference are included." J. C. Penn

+ Book Week p10 Ap 18 '43 340w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p16 Mr 21 '43 50w

FLIGHT, JOHN W., and FAHS, MRS SOPHIA BLANCHE (LYON). Moses, Egyptian prince, nomad sheikh, lawgiver; drawings by Dorothy Bayley. 146p $1.75 Beacon press

221.92 Moses—Juvenile literature 42-20134

Story of the life and work of Moses, written for children. The Bible text, on which each chapter is based, is printed as a separate section and in different type.

"A well written and handsomely produced account."

+ Christian Century 59:1122 S 16 '42 30w

"Scholarship is happily combined with popular appeal in as accurate and as fascinating a portrait of Moses as we are likely to have for some time to come. The story is told for children with a simplicity and freshness rarely found in material written-down for younger minds; besides being interestingly written it shows the meticulous regard for detail which one would expect on the part of such an Old Testament scholar as Professor Flight, of Haverford College." J. B. Pritchard

+ Crozer Q 20:70 Ja '43 300w

"Touched by imagination and free from the repetitions found in the Bible version." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 18:346 S '42 70w

"Dr. Flight, and his collaborator Mrs. Fahs, have done an exceptional piece of work in making the story of Moses intelligible and interesting for children." E. J. Chave

+ J Religion 23:73 Ja '43 110w

FLIKKE, MRS JULIA (OTTESON). Nurses in action; introd. by L. L. Gardner. 239p il $2.50 Lippincott

355.34 U.S.—Army—Army nurse corps 43-5054

Information on all branches of the American army nurses corps, with historical and personal accounts of nurses under fire in former wars and in the present world war. The author is superintendent of Army Nurse Corps, with a colonel's rank. She is first American woman to hold so high a military title.

Book Week p6 My 23 '43 140w
Booklist 39:347 My 1 '43
Bookmark 4:5 My '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '43

"Timely, readable handbook. . . Indispensable for prospective volunteers, absorbing for all girls, with its glimpse of the day's work in England, Iceland, Australia, Alaska, and New Caledonia. A must book for young people's collections." M. C. Scoggin
+ Library J 68:251 Mr 15 '43 110w

Reviewed by Lucy Greenbaum
N Y Times p6 Ap 11 '43 700w

School & Society 57:448 Ap 17 '43 30w

"From the bombing of Pearl Harbor to Bataan the story takes on the intensity of the occasion: without laying claim to literary style, its subject is presented clearly."
+ Weekly Book Review p27 Ap 11 '43 200w

Wis Lib Bul 39:82 Je '43

FLINT, MRS ELIZABETH CANFIELD. Pine tree shield; a novel based on the life of a forester. 251p il $2.50 Doubleday
43-9803

Under a slight guise of fiction, Mrs Flint tells the story of her husband's career in the Forestry service from 1909 to his death in 1935.

Booklist 39:426 Je 15 '43

"Long and factual but brings one close to elements and human nature, and its sincerity holds interest to end. Eight half tones. Recommended for both adult and young people's collections." H. R. Burdett
+ Library J 68:430 My 15 '43 110w

"Why the book has appeared as a novel rather than as an autobiography is a question inviting speculation, but lying too far afield. The novelistic emphasis, however, seems a pity. The reader taking up the book as a novel may be disappointed—in spite of two narratives of forest fires which are top-notch under any classification. But any one wanting to know how our great Forest Service grew and took form will find here a highly readable and authentic memoir." G. R. Stewart
+ N Y Times p10 My 30 '43 550w

"Mrs. Flint's novel probably gives a good and fair picture of life in the forest service as she and her husband, and hundreds of other men and women, have known it. She packs her pages with information about tree succession, the effects of weather on fire, and methods of fighting fire in the woods. She herself served as lookout and some of the best pages deal with life high on a mountain peak watching for smoke below." Stewart Holbrook
+ Weekly Book Review p10 Je 6 '43 1050w

Wis Lib Bul 39:85 Je '43

FLINT, MARGARET (MRS LESTER WARNER JACOBS), ed. Dress right, dress; the autobiography of a WAC. 174p $2 Dodd 355.34 U.S. Army. Women's army corps.
43-14477

A story of the Wacs in training based on the letters and diaries of two real girls, tho the story is given semi-fictional form.

Booklist 40:88 N 15 '43

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p10 N 7 '43 400w

"The strongest impression made by the latest of the WAC books is that it is not only an inside story, but straight reporting, meant neither to draw others in or to keep them out."
+ Weekly Book Review p14 O 17 '43 250w

FLOHERTY, JOHN JOSEPH. Inside the F. B. I.; foreword by J. Edgar Hoover. 191p $2 Lippincott 351.74 U.S. Federal bureau of investigation. Crime and criminals—Identification 43-10987

Inside story of the scientific methods of the Federal bureau of investigation. Contains stories of some outstanding recent cases. No index.

Reviewed by Richard Williams
Book Week p11 O 10 '43 160w

Booklist 40:18 S '43

"The wonder of it is that the lively pen of the author did not get around long ago to the thrilling subject of the F.B.I. for both inclination and ability fit him to chronicle the career of J. Edgar Hoover and his invaluable organization. These pages contain not merely a series of fascinating crime stories taken from life, but also an enlightening and intriguing description of the scientific methods employed by the agents and technicians of the Federal Bureau of Investigation."
+ Cath World 157:670 S '43 150w

"Mr. Floherty tells a graphic story, giving details of the battle against crime waged through finger printing, X-rays and other scientific methods by the intelligent, courageous Special Agents and Technicians. His examples of the detection of gangsters, spy rings and saboteurs are as exciting as a mystery story." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:328 S '43 100w

"Except for a few good stories, has none of dramatic appeal of Floherty's other books. Lack of index limits reference use. Recommended, with definite reservations, for large collections or for those where interest in F.B.I. is already strong." M. C. Scoggin
Library J 68:673 S 1 '43 100w

"This is a good book for law-abiding youths, an even better one for those who are not." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p24 N 7 '43 280w

"Mr. Floherty's book is a vivid, concise, and clear account of this extraordinary organization and its chief. Americans should read it. It will increase legitimate pride in themselves and their country." Struthers Burt
+ Sat R of Lit 26:16 Ag 14 '43 700w

School & Society 58:64 Jl 24 '43 20w

"Mr. Floherty has reported a difficult subject in a manner which compels one to turn the book's pages to the end." E. W. K.
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 17 '44 220w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p7 O 10 '43 350w

Wis Lib Bul 39:119 O '43

FLYING OFFICER X, pseud. See Bates, H. E.

FOLEY, DANIEL J., and MEIKLE, CATHERINE E. Vegetable gardening in color; foreword by J. Horace McFarland; sketches by Mary J. Mowry. 255p $2.50 Macmillan
635 Vegetable gardening 43-41

Short convenient picture-encyclopedia showing the more important vegetables, herbs, and berries. Arrangement is alphabetical. Includes chapters on planning and planting a garden, insects and diseases, garden tools, storing vegetables for winter use, and cooking hints. Index.

Reviewed by J. H. Burdett
Book Week p4 Mr 28 '43 360w

J Home Econ 35:242 Ap '43 50w

Reviewed by Norman Taylor
N Y Times p2 Ap 11 '43 40w

Reviewed by E. C. Grayson
Sat R of Lit 26:24 F 27 '43 70w

"One is inclined to wonder if we have not already a sufficient variety of vegetable-growing instruction books, but then comes the second thought that some of them are not nearly so clear and usefully informative as this newcomer to the ranks." R. S. Lemmon
+ Weekly Book Review p19 Je 6 '43 150w

FOLEY, MARTHA (MRS WHIT BURNETT), ed. Best American short stories, 1943; and the Yearbook of the American short story. 428p $2.75 Houghton
Short stories—Collections

Contents: This healthy life, by Vicki Baum; Boundary line, by Warren Beck; Frenchman's ship, by Kay Boyle; The pleasures of solitude,

FOLEY, MARTHA—Continued
by John Cheever; The dream of Angelo Zara, by Guido D'Agostino; Samuel Blane, by Murray Dyer; The bear, by William Faulkner; Beginning of wisdom, by Rachel Field; A partnership with death, by Vardis Fisher; What do you see, dear Enid? by Grace Flandrau; Time's end, by Robert Gibbons; Threnody for Stelios, by Peter Gray; Who lived and died believing, by Nancy Hale; The peach stone, by Paul Horgan; The enchanted, by Laurette MacDuffie Knight; The little black boys, by Clara Laidlaw; Love is for lovers, by Mary Lavin; Young man in an astrakhan cap, by Edita Morris; Knife-like, flower-like, like nothing at all in the world, by William Saroyan; An argument in 1943, by Delmore Schwartz; Preach on the dusty roads, by Irwin Shaw; My public, by Margaret Shedd; Chip off the old block, by Wallace Stegner; Death and my uncle Felix, by Alison Stuart; Dawn of remembered spring, by Jesse Stuart; The women, by Richard Sullivan; The catbird seat, by James Thurber; Homecoming, by Jessie Treichler; Philadelphia express, by Jerome Weidman; Asphodel, by Eudora Welty. Biographical notices.

"In such a plentiful and varied concoction there must be something for everyone's taste —for those who like a touch of war in their stories and for those who do not. One notes with regret that the stories are more often imbued with seriousness than with humor, with atmosphere than with plot. As of yore the neatly turned story has been forsaken for the presentation of a slice of life."

+ — Atlantic 172:129 O '43 100w

"Perhaps Miss Foley is a little too likely to accept literary intention for literary achievement. I should prefer less of the results of painfully self-conscious endeavor to be artistic —stories less ambitious and more articulate, less pretentious and more sound. William Saroyan's typically titled 'Knife-like, Flower-like, Like Nothing at All in the World' is a case in point. When Saroyan hits the mark he is very good. When he misses he is very bad. This time he misses. Delmore Schwartz' 'An Argument in 1934' and Eudora Welty's 'Asphodel' are unmistakably literary in intention. That is as much as one can honestly say for them. To balance these are fine stories in good number. One of the finest is Irwin Shaw's 'Preach on the Dusty Roads.' There's nothing lacking here. Wallace Stegner's 'Chip off the Old Block' and Robert Gibbons' 'Time's End' are firmly achieved. Richard Sullivan's 'The Women' is as fine and true a story as I have read in many years." J. T. Frederick

+ — Book Week p2 S 26 '43 200w

Booklist 40:47 O 1 '43

"Deserves a place because its varied moods reflect something of American life in a year of crisis. It is a well edited piece of work, representative in its selections, and with biographical and bibliographic material of value to writers and readers alike. That many of these stories are not worthy of much consideration is not Miss Foley's fault." N. E. Monroe

+ — Cath World 158:109 O '43 270w

"We rather liked Miss Foley's current bouquet. It is only fair to admit that a friend of ours read the book and found the whole thing quite depressing, but frankly, we're inclined to think our friend is too easily depressed. True, not many of the stories could qualify as light, cheerful reading, and a few, such as John Cheever's 'The Pleasures of Solitude,' leave a slightly bad, musty taste in the mouth, but even Mr. Cheever's effort has a solid point to it and is well turned out, and after all, life is no bed of roses, or at least didn't seem to be last time we looked. . . The most wonderful story in the book, or any other such book in our memory, which in itself is worth several times the price of admission, [is] 'The Little Black Boys' by Clara Laidlaw. This is the first fiction ever published by Miss Laidlaw but if she never publishes another word in her whole life, she will still be a great writer in our estimation, and probably get into Heaven as well, on the strength of this one story alone. It is not only an extremely beautiful and moving thing on any standard, but it says more about charity and immortality, and says it more powerfully, than any odd carload of sermons we can remember offhand."

+ Commonweal 38:565 S 24 '43 650w

Commonweal 39:40 O 29 '43 20w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 157:415 O 9 '43 150w

Reviewed by Isaac Rosenfeld
New Repub 109:461 O 4 '43 1250w

"Miss Foley has avoided both the experimental and the commercially slick (if you except Faulkner's ponderous story of a bear hunt from The Saturday Evening Post), but a good half of the book leans heavily toward another kind of slickness: the dull, pretentious, or merely tired imitation of art. . . It is hard to believe that this collection of lavender and old cliché represents 'America in miniature in the fateful year 1943,' as the dust jacket wittily claims." Marjorie Farber

— + N Y Times p7 O 3 '43 1050w

"On the whole, pretty good reading."

+ New Yorker 19:87 O 2 '43 60w

Reviewed by Struthers Burt
Sat R of Lit 26:24 O 2 '43 700w

"This year's issue is very like the other years' books. For readers long familiar with the series there will be no disappointment in the 1943 edition for it is quite as satisfactory as it would be were O'Brien himself still living to carry on his work." Lee Varley

+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 3 '43 550w

"An interesting and varied collection, solid and well rounded." Barbara Woollcott

+ Weekly Book Review p8 O 10 '43 550w

Wis Lib Bul 39:159 D '43

FOLLETT, MRS HELEN (THOMAS). Islands on guard [the story of the Lesser Antilles] with maps by F. A. Fanale and photographs. 170p $2.50 Scribner

917.29 West Indies 43-8020

History and description of the West Indian islands, presented so clearly that it becomes a conducted tour of the islands in peace time. Contains many excellent photographs and an index. Companion volume to the author's Ocean Outposts (Book Review Digest, 1942). For junior and senior high schools. Index.

Reviewed by Richard Williams
Book Week p7 Jl 11 '43 180w

Booklist 39:432 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:242 Jl '43 40w

"Excellent material on the little-known islands of the West Indies." Sonja Wennerblad

+ Library J 68:576 Jl '43 70w

"Nothing could be more timely than Mrs. Follett's latest book, 'Islands on Guard' . . . for here in vivid, informal and extremely readable fashion is told the story of that important group of islands, so much in the public consciousness at the moment, since they guard the approach to the Panama Canal. . . Many fine photographs show typical scenes." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p7 Je 20 '43 390w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Sat R of Lit 26:40 Je 19 '43 20w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 27 '43 160w

"The style is conversational, which means that its usefulness begins earlier than that of most books that the teens also will read. . . It is excellent, varied entertainment for a young student who needs something more than his schoolbooks to make him realize the riches of this part of the American story." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 Je 6 '43 350w

FOLSOM, JOSEPH KIRK. Family and democratic society; with chapters in collaboration with Marion Bassett. 755p $4 Wiley

392.3 Family. Social conditions. Marriage 43-3456

"This sociological study [first entered in Book Review Digest, 1934], is almost entirely rewritten, with some change of emphasis and an enlarged bibliography." (Booklist) Indexes.

"There are minor points which one might take issue with, but the book as a whole is so meaty, so applicable, and so genuinely helpful that it would be cavilling to dwell upon them. Every course in marriage and the family would certainly profit by extensive assignments in this valuable book." Jessie Bernard

+ — Am J Soc 49:262 N '43 700w

Reviewed by A. J. Todd

Am Soc R 8:487 Ag '43 500w

Booklist 39:431 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by Esther McGinnis

J Home Econ 35:590 N '43 250w

"The book as a whole not only reveals a wide and discriminating familiarity with the literature dealing with domestic experience, but also uncovers Dr. Folsom's personal aquaintance with the tragedies and successes associated with family life." E. R. Groves

+ Survey 79:157 My '43 250w

FOOTNER, HULBERT. Death of a saboteur. 282p $2 Harper

43-3202

Detective story.

"The story's more than plausible; it's utterly realistic, yet intensely exciting." Elizabeth Bullock

+ Book Week p8 Mr 14 '43 400w

"O.K."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:18 Mr 13 '43 40w

"This is Hulbert Footner's liveliest puzzle in quite some time—a racing, lurid and continuously readable tale in decidedly modern dress." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p28 Mr 7 '43 230w

FORBES, ESTHER. Johnny Tremain; a novel for old and young; with il. by Lynd Ward. 256p $2.50 Houghton

43-16483

In 1773 the orphan, Johnny Tremain, aged fourteen, was apprentice to a Boston silversmith. The boy was clever and knew it, and he lorded it over the other apprentices until that day when a silver crucible broke and severely burned his right hand. For a time Johnny was an outcast, but eventually became a dispatch rider for the Committee of public safety. He met Otis, Hancock, Paul Revere, and the Adamses, and played his part in the early days of the Revolution. On the battlefield of Lexington he learned that his useless hand could be cured, and then he could go back to his trade. For older boys and girls.

"This is Esther Forbes at her brilliant best. She has drawn the character of Johnny with such sympathy and insight that he may well take his place with Jim Hawkins, Huck Finn and other young immortals. And, like the books in which these heroes appear, 'Johnny Tremain' is a book for young and old. Youth, particularly, will get from it as live and clear and significant a picture of a great period in American history as has recently been penned." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p4 N 28 '43 450w

Booklist 40:150 D 15 '43

Cath World 158:317 D '43 50w

"The author of 'Paul Revere,' a Pulitzer Prize winner, has put into this all her knowledge of Revolutionary Boston, and with consummate skill has created an unforgettable character—proud, gifted Johnny Tremain." M. K. McElderry

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 130w

"The publication of Johnny Tremain gives young people an outstanding novel of Revolutionary days in Boston, and may well be counted a red-letter event in children's books." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:413 N '43 210w

"Welcome addition to young poeple's lists. Heartily recommended." F. A. Boyle

+ Library J 68:965 N 15 '43 90w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale

Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 20w

"Miss Forbes calls this a novel for young and old, and adults will read it for its richness of color, its wit and humor, its illumination of a noble period, but it would be unfair to compare it to her major novels, for basically, in scope and concept, it is a novel for the teen age, and as such the most distinguished one we have had in years." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p5 N 14 '43 700w

"A distinguished and continually interesting story."

+ New Yorker 19:124 D 4 '43 70w

"This story of Johnny Tremain is almost uncanny in its 'aliveness.' Esther Forbes's power to create, and to recreate, a face, a voice, a scene takes us as living spectators to the Boston Tea Party, to the Battles of Lexington and of North Creek." M. G. D.

+ Sat R of Lit 26:44 N 13 '43 500w

"The designation of Johnny's story as a novel 'for young and old' is an apt one and should not be allowed to scare off either. It is a book that will catch and hold the attention of anyone who likes a good story, it is not too 'historical' to alienate young people whose daily fare is made up of landings on Bougainville, and not too 'young' to be overlooked by adults. The writing, naturally enough, is superb, with Miss Forbes's ability to make an event of 1½ centuries ago read like a war communique from Italy." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 21 '43 390w

"The sub-title, 'a novel for old or young,' will serve if you bear in mind that the young will read for Johnny's sake and the old for the sake of Esther Forbes. Here is history treated with a realism that may be an eye-opener to boys brought up on conventional boys' books. The Revolution goes through the story with a rush and scramble and in its surge men and boys alike are caught up. . . The book's chief value is that it brings back Boston and the road to Lexington in a year when boys of sixteen had to be adult." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 N 21 '43 450w

FORBES, GERALD. Flush production; the epic of oil in the Gulf-Southwest. 253p il map $2.75 Univ. of Okla. press

338.2 Petroleum industry and trade

42-24766

"Mr. Forbes, a newspaperman of long experience in the Southwest and a trained historian, began his investigations five years ago. His history deals with all phases of oil development in the six states of Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and New Mexico, from the year of the first effective production in 1886 until the present." Springf'd Republican

"While Flush Production promises to appeal most to persons interested in regional aspects of American industry and petroleum in particular, the lucid style and high-lighting incidents make for more general interest. Inclusion of additional maps would assist readers not already intimately familiar with southwestern geography." W. E. Hoadley, Jr.

+ Ann Am Acad 227:178 My '43 550w

Booklist 39:217 F 1 '43

Springf'd Republican p6 D 28 '42 390w

FORBES, KATHRYN. Mama's bank account. 204p $2 Harcourt

43-4313

Collection of short stories all about one family. They were Norwegian immigrants, settled in San Francisco, and presided over by a loving, understanding mother. Each story is an episode in the life of some member of mama's family, but mama is the real heroine each time.

"There is brisk humor in these sketches—in Mama's tilts with the medical profession, in Dagmar's first day at school, in Papa's airplane project. Even in moments of near-tragedy, Kathryn Forbes sustains her determinedly cheerful tone."

+ Atlantic 171:129 My '43 90w

FORBES, KATHRYN—Continued

"This book is frankly sentimental, but not at all offensively so. It's amusing, gently ironic and well written, making real people of Mama, papa, the girls and Nels, and all the aunts. If there are any who may excusably be called 100 percent American, they are people like this Norwegian family, who brought with them from the old country traits of courage, honesty and straight thinking which we like to think make up the American character. If you have a friend who is sick, or if you are feeling low yourself, get a copy of 'Mama's Bank Account.' It will make you feel much better." D. McC.

+ Book Week p6 Mr 21 '43 270w

"An amusing, gently ironic and well-written account of the lives of some thoroughly good people." Dorsey McCarthy

+ Book Week p7 Je 27 '43 50w

Booklist 39:333 Ap 15 '43

Bookmark 4:19 Mr '43

"Mama is a wonderful woman. Her daughter has written her a fine tribute. She has also written a lovely and moving book. Expect more from her pen." D. H.

+ Boston Globe p15 Mr 31 '43 350w

"These sketches, which do not quite form a continuous story, leave one with a warm and friendly feeling toward the human race."

+ Christian Century 60:362 Mr 24 '43 70w

Reviewed by J. G. E. Hopkins
Commonweal 37:652 Ap 16 '43 140w

"Good to read aloud. Will be popular. Recommended." E. H. Crowell

+ Library J 68:248 Mr 15 '43 40w

"One would enjoy hearing more about the family. But there is a certain rightness in the length of the book. Its brief pages tell simply and sincerely a great deal about the spirit of a family, something which many a longer book has not accomplished." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p22 Mr 28 '43 700w

"Once in a very blue moon indeed, a book by a virtually unknown author appears without fanfare or even much more than hope on the publisher's part, which is so completely endearing that it must be shared by all who read it. Such is 'Mama's Bank Account'" E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 21 '43 220w

"'Mama's Bank Account' is a heart-warming little book, a little on the sentimental and adoring side, but wholly charming and refreshing." Rose Feld

+ Weekly Book Review p12 Mr 21 '43 700w

Wis Lib Bul 39:55 Ap '43

FORD, COREY. Short cut to Tokyo; the battle for the Aleutians. 141p $1.75 Scribner

940.542 World War, 1939—Aleutian islands
43-51169

"Informal eyewitness report from the Aleutians, including a description of the islands, an account of the first Japanese attack, stories from the airmen who have done our fighting, and so on." New Yorker

Reviewed by F. S. Marquardt
Book Week p3 Je 20 '43 220w

Booklist 39:385 Je 1 '43

Bookmark 4:13 My '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Jl '43

"Corey Ford's 'eye witness account of our least-known and loneliest front' merits not only praise, but the earnest recommendation that it be read and digested by the public whose votes send men to govern the nation, and by those men so sent to govern." J. R. Lewis

+ Current Hist 4:274 Je '43 500w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:159 O '43 20w

"If the Aleutians form a short cut to Tokyo, they also could be a short cut to our Pacific Coast. Now, for the first time, Mr. Ford tells lucidly—and perhaps a bit too briefly—just what the score is. If his book awakens more people to the real situation in Far Western Alaska—which is part of the United States and has been invaded—it may well prove one of the most useful weapons of the war." Jim Marshall

+ N Y Times p3 My 9 '43 1050w

New Yorker 19:76 My 22 '43 40w

"Writing with the double advantage of having done some exploration of the islands of Attu and Kiska and other parts of the Aleutian chain in the Summer before Pearl Harbor, and then of having spent some months there with our flying forces last Autumn and Winter, Corey Ford, in his 'Short Cut to Tokyo' is able to present a timely and vivid picture of our present campaign against the Japanese southwest of Alaska." Hallett Abend

+ Sat R of Lit 26:17 Je 19 '43 380w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 4 '43 400w

Reviewed by Ruth Gruber
Weekly Book Review p5 Je 6 '43 1750w

Wis Lib Bul 39:108 Jl '43

FORD, COREY, and MACBAIN, ALASTAIR. From the ground up; il. by John T. McCoy, jr. 197p $2.50 Scribner

358.4 U.S.—Army—Air corps. Aeronautics, Military 43-4091

In fictionized form for junior high school boys gives an account of the training of an army flier, from his acceptance for the service until he is a full-fledged member of a bomber team.

Booklist 39:312 Ap 1 '43

N Y New Tech Bks 28:38 Jl '43

Springf'd Republican p6 S 2 '43 330w

Wis Lib Bul 39:57 Ap '43

FORD, FRANCIS ALAN. Know your navy now! 84p il pa 50c Cornell maritime

359 U.S.—Navy 43-1738

"A booklet of 300 questions and answers on all phases of life in the navy—personal, technical, and official." N Y New Tech Bks

---

N Y New Tech Bks 28:31 Ap '43

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p25 My 23 '43 30w

Reviewed by P. J. Searles
Weekly Book Review p26 My 23 '43 30w

FORD, LESLIE, pseud. See Brown, Z. J.

FORD, LOUIS RANDOLPH. Practical marine Diesel engineering. 4th ed 642p il $6 Simmons-Boardman

621.436 Diesel engines, Marine. Marine engineering 43-4152

"Added chapters on electrical machinery and deck auxiliaries are the principal changes from the third edition [Book Review Digest 1942]." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 39:371 My 15 '43

Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:9 Ja '43

"A thoroughly useful work in everyday English. . . Anyone who can read simple mechanical drawings will learn much from the clear and numerous illustrations. It is a well-known and highly regarded book brought up-to-date." A. F. Johnson

+ N Y Times p31 O 24 '43 100w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p25 My 23 '43 50w

FOREMAN, CAROLYN (THOMAS) (MRS GRANT FOREMAN). Indians abroad, 1493-1938. (Civilization of the Am. Indian) 248p il $3 Univ. of Okla. press

970.691 Indians of North America 43-18445

"A rather sizable bibliography would be required to include all those books written by Europeans who visited North America and committed to print their impressions of the aboriginal inhabitants. . . Carolyn Thomas Foreman has reversed that procedure. She journeyed abroad, and from national archives and the files of old newspapers gathered the story of the red men who willingly or under compulsion visited Europe; who they were and why they went and—so far as the record tells—what they thought of the strange lands and people they saw." N Y Times

---

Reviewed by Hoffman Birney
N Y Times p4 Ja 2 '44 750w

Reviewed by E. G. Eastman
Springf'd Republican p10 D 10 '43 750w

FOREMAN, LEONARD LONDON. Road to San Jacinto. 285p $2.50 Dutton
43-3849

Historical novel of adventure and adventurers in the Texas War of Independence.

Booklist 39:426 Je 15 '43

"Authentic historical background, genuine battle scenes, plus mystery and romance make this book usable with average high school student who has never found history too interesting. Similar in style to The Renegade by same author." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 68:366 My 1 '43 60w

"The fast pace of the story and the colorful epoch it portrays counter certain faults of style and characterization. Readers who like Western adventure with an accurately drawn historical background will find in 'The Road to San Jacinto' plenty of both." Allan Taylor
+ — N Y Times p16 Ap 11 '43 500w

" 'The Road to San Jacinto' is a well-told story of intrigue, courage, heroism and loyalty which should interest many readers despite the plethora of novels dealing with this phase of our history." Lois Boyle
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 11 '43 480w

"Of all the tales which have sprung up in the path of intrepid Davy Crockett, 'The Road to San Jacinto' is just about the tallest and shootin'-est." Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p17 Ap 4 '43 270w

FORESTER, CECIL SCOTT. Rifleman Dodd, and The gun; two novels of the Peninsular campaigns. 340p $2.50 Little [42-14077]

Two short novels of the Peninsular war. In the first an English soldier is cut off from his fellows and for several weeks wages minor warfare on his own against the French. In the second a huge field artillery piece is the protagonist. Abandoned by the French it is taken over by guerrillas who make it the nucleus of their fighting force. Rifleman Dodd was first published in England in 1932 under the title: Death to the French. The Gun was published in the United States in 1933 (Book Review Digest, 1933).

Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Book Week p5 Ap 11 '43 550w
Booklist 39:371 My 15 '43

"Before he became the most readable of living sea-storytellers, C. S. Forester (Captain Horatio Hornblower) wrote two novels still scarcely known to U.S. readers. . . They are not quite up to the best of his seagoing stories, but thanks to Forester's interest in the men and minutiae of military tactics, they are well out of the class of most 'historical novels.' "
+ Time 41:71 Mr 29 '43 600w

FORESTER, CECIL SCOTT. The ship. 281p $2.50 Little 43-5899

A tale of a naval engagement in the Mediterranean in 1942. The story is told, following item for item the captain's report, as it appeared to various members of the crew of a British light cruiser on convoy duty.

"I suspect the story has its genesis in the daring of Admiral Vian, who fought his convoy to Malta with a seamanship Nelson would have admired. The writing is clean, terse, unimpeachably masculine." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 172:125 Jl '43 90w

"Inspired, magnificent, incredibly good—what can one say that is adequate about this masterpiece by C. S. Forester? For this book comes near to being or is—the book about the war so far. Of course you'll want to read it. I can't imagine anyone who won't read it." Edith Roberts
+ Book Week p3 My 30 '43 700w
Booklist 39:388 Je 1 '43
Bookmark 4:18 My '43

" 'The Ship' is a robust, tingling, amazingly exciting piece of adventure from chapter one to the last line." J. H. Powers
+ Boston Globe p18 My 19 '43 280w
Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 9 '43 490w

"This is a book to instil confidence in the courage and proficiency of the British Navy, who with the RAF have stood their guns when the going was roughest. It is neither soul-searching nor profound; in fact 'The Ship' is a volume to devour at a single sitting."
+ Commonweal 38:126 My 21 '43 500w

Reviewed by Charles Marriott
Manchester Guardian p3 My 28 '43 150w

"Mr. Forester's latest novel is a perfect encyclopedia of naval information, only accidentally fictionalized but fascinating technical reading. Of course, as in all the sea-battle stories of this war which I have read, in proportion as the technical information of 'The Ship' is detailed and clear, the people are misty and oversimplified." Diana Trilling
+ — Nation 156:816 Je 5 '43 140w

Reviewed by Robert Gorman
New Repub 109:27 Jl 5 '43 150w

"I have read only two earlier books by this relatively prolific writer, and both were better than the novel under review. But this is far from making The Ship a bad or even unsatisfying book. Never was that unfairly despised word 'competent' better deserved." Philip Toynbee
+ — New Statesman & Nation 25:372 Je 5 '43 180w

"Mr. Forester's narrative is accurate, lucid and thrilling. To give a comprehensible account of a modern naval action so that laymen can see it is a remarkable feat. . . If there be a fault in the book it is the incessant holding up of a really exciting action to tell us long stories of the backgrounds of various ranks and ratings. Very interesting, no doubt, but out of place in a tale of high-speed fighting." William McFee
+ — N Y Times p6 My 16 '43 800w

"A compelling and completely satisfactory tale." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:75 My 15 '43 900w

"The author has put an orchestral quality into his novel. 'The Ship' is a symphony of steel and oil and cordite—and men. To read it is to experience, even though vicariously, the concentrated drama and heroism of a modern naval battle." P. V. D. Stern
+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 Je 26 '43 300w

"Some people may have found 'The Ship' over-technical in its naval terms. I, the most untechnical man of my acquaintance, did not find it so. The Ship's author spent several weeks on the cruiser and in this final battle he brings forth all his surpassing powers to picture the character, the alertness, the complete intrepidity, the never-say-die qualities of

FORESTER, C. S.—Continued

The Ship and of all its crew and—wonder of wonders—there is tender romance in it, as well." T. W. Lamont

+ Sat R of Lit 26:7 D 11 '43 410w

"This is a book to commend to those who appreciate a detailed and beautifully simple account of an expert job, written by an expert." Kate O'Brien

+ Spec 170:508 My 28 '43 150w

"If you're one of those who like a spine-tingling sea story, put 'The Ship' on your 'must' list. It's a fine, salty, satisfying book." G. K. Moriarty

+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 16 '43 300w

"Readers may smile at Author Forester's decisive shell, may find his officers and rated men akin to Superman in their efficiency and devotion to duty. But they will leave The Ship with a compendium of knowledge about her innards."

+ Time 41:92 My 17 '43 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p245 My 22 '43 750w

"The amount of action and detail, the scene of battle, the full proportions of an intense naval engagement, that the author has managed to get into his narrative, are little short of amazing. This, plainly, is something he knows all about; no one can read 'The Ship' without realizing its essential accuracy. A vivid picture of fighting on the sea with modern naval weapons has been unfolded before our eyes, and it leaves an overwhelming impression. It brings us nearer to the war than any book this reviewer has yet read." Lincoln Colcord

+ Weekly Book Review p3 My 16 '43 1450w

FORSTER, GUIDO FREDERICK, and CADY, EDWIN LAIRD. Naval reserve guide. 339p il $2.50 Cornell maritime

359.351 U.S.—Navy—Naval reserve 43-2272

Manual on the problems of qualifying for the United States naval reserve. The first part of the book covers the details involved in applying for a commission; the second takes up the personal side of life in the naval reserve. Contains an alphabetical list of questions and answers on who knows what among enlisted personnel. Index.

Booklist 39:270 Mr 1 '43

"Needed, as there is scarcity of material on subject."

+ Library J 67:952 N 1 '42 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:14 Ja '43

"Those hoping to get a commission in the reserve, and many others whose interest is, these days, more than academic, will find indispensable a book of advice, 'Naval Reserve Guide.' . . It is a highly readable and informative guide."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 F 19 '43 300w

FORSYTH, WILLIAM DOUGLASS. Myth of open spaces; Australian, British and world trends of population and migration. 226p maps $4.25 Stechert [17s 6d Melbourne univ. press; Oxford]

325 Emigration and immigration. Population. Australia—Emigration and immigration. Great Britain—Emigration and immigration [43-8410]

"A study of Australian, British, and world trends of population and migration. . . [The author's] thesis is, broadly, that there is no longer a sound basis for mass emigration from thickly populated lands to the 'open spaces': overseas migration, he contends, 'has now made its major contribution to human welfare' and has ceased to be a refuge from our economic ills." Manchester Guardian

Reviewed by Minnie Belle

Am Econ R 33:915 D '43 650w

"This work is unfortunate in its foreword by D. B. Copland, whose use of such mystical claptrap as 'racial purity' might completely mislead students or even prevent them from reading a most valuable study." Howard Daniel

+ Ann Am Acad 230:240 N '43 500w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:5 Jl '43 40w

"The author of this mature book is a Research Fellow of the University of Melbourne and was formerly Research Secretary of the Australian Institute of International Affairs. A Rockefeller Foundation fellowship enabled him to pursue his studies in Europe, attending various conferences, visiting specialized institutions, and making contact with leading scholars in the field of population and migration. The result is a valuable synthesis, written from an Australian viewpoint but covering the whole problem of European migration and resettlement." J. B. Condliffe

+ Geog R 33:691 O '43 850w

"These are fascinating subjects and Mr. Forsyth's suggestive treatment of them deserves to be widely read." A. P. W.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 16 '43 250w

"In spite of [certain] flaws this book represents a valuable addition to the available material on population and migration, which are fields of such great contemporary importance that every scholarly addition is welcome." H. P. Fairchild

+ — Pol Sci Q 58:466 S '43 350w

"This is a well-written book, lucid in argument, packed with statistics; it is an important contribution to demography."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p232 My 15 '43 550w

FORTUNE, MRS JAN (ISBELLE), and BURTON, JEAN. Elisabet Ney. 300p il $3 Knopf

B or 92 Ney, Elisabet 43-3124

Biography of the grandniece of Marshal Ney of Napoleonic fame. Elisabet Ney became a famous sculptor and a noted feminist in nineteenth century Germany, where she was trained by such men as Kaulbach and Rauch. Among her friends were Alexander von Humboldt, Schopenhauer, Gottfried Keller, and others. After a successful career in Europe, she came to the United States, bought a ranch in Texas, and spent the rest of her life there. Index.

"Elisabet Ney's meteoric career that flared across one continent and sputtered out on another, is preserved with understanding and humor and no sentimentality in this biography by Jean Burton." Leo Kennedy

+ Book Week p2 My 2 '43 800w

Booklist 39:353 My 1 '43

"Large libraries will need for their art collections. Small libraries will stress appeal to club-women but might mark it 'Poison for Men.'" D. R. Starie

Library J 68:170 F 15 '43 90w

"Jan Fortune and Jean Burton have traced the history of this strange woman. Her life makes good reading; some of it is fascinating and some gets a bit bogged down in famous European names—names without portraiture." Lorine Pruette

+ — N Y Times p20 Ap 18 '43 1050w

"Jan Fortune and Jean Burton have told this dramatic tale with restraint but with clear consciousness of the inherent richness of their biographical material." K. P. Stokes

+ Sat R of Lit 26:18 My 8 '43 900w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 18 '43 550w

Time 41:100 Ap 5 '43 1200w

"The book does more than trace a female comet; it recalls vividly, in scene after scene, the romanticism, the socialism and the rising nationalism that flourished across the Channel from Victorian England, headquarters of the empire. Obsessed with eastern Europe, and both mooning over and mauling the Victorians and Edwardians, we seem to have let vanish from our minds much that would help us cope with middle Europe today." Euan Evans

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ap 18 '43 1150w

FOSDICK, HARRY EMERSON. On being a real person. 295p $2.50 Harper

137 Conduct of life. Personality 43-3138

Essays based on twenty years of experience in dealing with the personal problems of men and women, who have come to Dr Fosdick for help. The book "does not talk much about religion, any more than a happy family talks about love. It is there, it moves, it works, it justifies and makes alive. At this hour, in a world uprooted, nothing else works. But this does." (Books) Index.

Booklist 39:311 Ap 1 '43

Bookmark 4:3 Mr '43

Reviewed by B. L. Conway
Cath World 157:554 Ag '43 470w

"The reader ought to be warned, I think, against using this book or any of its class as incentive to diagnosing the personality defects of his family and friends. Let him employ it rather as a guide to self-examination. . . Dr. Fosdick does not go out of his way to bring religion into this discussion. It comes in naturally and inevitably, partly because fundamental human interests are religious in the larger sense, and partly because religion even in the most specific and restricted sense is closely related to the process of becoming a real and whole person." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 60:361 Mr 24 '43 950w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Jl '43

Reviewed by E. C. Herrick
Crozer Q 20:248 Jl '43 1150w

"It seems superfluous to review and praise a book which from its publication up to the date this is written has been selling a thousand copies a day, but it is gratifying that such a book should appear and should be so received. For it is psychologically and religiously sound and constructive. It is bound to be greatly helpful to many who can never have the privilege of Dr. Fosdick's personal ministrations. And it is characterized by that high degree of artistic skill which marks all the author's work." C. T. Holman
+ J Religion 23:214 Jl '43 700w

"Dr. Fosdick's system possesses something of the completeness of Dante's 'Divine Comedy,' and consequently every reader will encounter himself somewhere in the book. The author says in his introduction that, for the most part, he has pictured his readers in terms of the people who have come to him for help. But I can think of no one who will not find what he has to say of great personal value—'integrated' and 'unintegrated' readers alike. . . Dr. Fosdick is no intellectual sissy, nor is his book any exhortation to idiot cheerfulness. Instead, he has approached practical personal problems with the kind of philosophical insight possible only to a real person." T. L. Collins
+ N Y Times p4 Mr 14 '43 1300w

"Out of the depths of his long experience in dealing with sick souls, Dr. Fosdick has written one of the most helpful books in this field I have ever read. He uses psychological concepts constantly, but with a deeper interpretation and application than is often given." E. H. Johnson
+ Survey G 32:263 Je '43 380w

"There can be little doubt that of all his books the appeal—literally the personal appeal—of this one will be strongest, and that it will be taken to heart by the greatest number. It is the considered result and effective marshaling of personal experience of a man called upon to share the sorrows, anxieties, frustrations of many men." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p9 Mr 28 '43 1050w

Wis Lib Bul 39:50 Ap '43

"The reader does not wonder what is the source of Dr. Fosdick's power. He has an unequalled gift for writing lucid prose. He is a master in the use of illustration. His style is epigrammatic. 'At the very best, a person completely wrapped up in himself makes a small package.' But the reader is satisfied that the book is wise and immensely helpful because the man who wrote it is 'A Real Person,' the contagion of whose spirit is irresistible and the impact of whose personality makes for wholeness." J. C. Schroeder
+ Yale R n s 32:812 summer '43 1050w

FOSDICK, HARRY EMERSON. Three meanings: prayer, faith, service. 3bks in 1 768p $2.50; also separate ea $1 Assn. press

248 Christian life

An omnibus volume containing "Dr. Fosdick's three best known books, The Meaning of Faith, The Meaning of Prayer and The Meaning of Service." (Christian Century)

"As one dips in these pages, the thing that impresses is that they do not 'date.' What Dr. Fosdick was saying in 1915 has just as much point in 1942. That's a test which few books, even of a devotional character, can pass."
+ Christian Century 59:1494 D 2 '42 200w

"No finer books on the meaning of Christian devotion have been written in the last several generations." John Knox
+ J Religion 23:74 Ja '43 40w

FOSS, JOE. Joe Foss, flying marine; the story of his flying circus as told to Walter Simmons; il. with photographs. 160p $2.50 Dutton

940.544 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—Aerial operations. World war, 1939—Solomon islands 43-14937

Major Foss holds at present the rank of foremost American ace having shot down twenty-six Japanese planes in the fighting over the Solomons last winter. His book tells something of his early life, and then gives a detailed account of his war experiences.

Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Book Week p17 N 14 '43 400w

Booklist 40:142 D 15 '43

"An exciting and unusually interesting story. . . Joe Foss emerges not only as the greatest American ace of this war but as an able observer of that heroic battle." F. E. I.
+ N Y Times p40 O 31 '43 500w

Reviewed by Raymond Holden
Sat R of Lit 26:16 N 20 '43 180w

"The story of Joe Foss is one in which every American may take pride. American enterprise and ingenuity in a very real sense produced Joe Foss the ace and his many valiant companions in the battles of the sky, the men to whom so many owe so much." Lynn Carrick
+ Weekly Book Review p4 N 14 '43 850w

FOSTER, BENNETT. Man tracks. 249p $2 Doubleday

43-9096

Western story.

Booklist 40:15 S '43

"The close-knit story is told with a skill and conviction that makes this one of the best Western novels in many moons. One of the younger writers of Westerns, Bennett Foster is a Westerner and knows the life of which he writes." G. W. Harris
+ N Y Times p16 Je 6 '43 240w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 Je 20 '43 90w

FOSTER, MRS CONSTANCE (JACKSON). This rich world; the story of money; il. by Crockett Johnson. 159p $2 McBride

332.4 Money—Juvenile literature 43-6188

The history and theory of money and credit set forth in simple language for younger readers with amusing cartoons illustrating important points. Bibliography.

Booklist 39:373 My 15 '43

FOSTER, C. J.—Continued

"For younger children than Majer's Our Country's Money or Leeming's From Barter to Banking. For grades five to seven." Eleanor Kidder

Library J 68:433 My 15 '43 80w

"We have had several previous attempts—none of which, to my way of thinking, quite came off—to start children at a fairly early age on an acquaintance with economics by a book for them about money, telling what it is, has been and might be. This time we have an uncommonly good little book of this kind, written for nine years or older, lively, sensible and up-to-date." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p10 My 16 '43 380w

Wis Lib Bul 39:87 Je '43

FOSTER, ELIZABETH. Gigi; the story of a merry-go-round horse; il. by Ilse Bischoff. 118p $2 Houghton

43-16551

Story of a handsome merry-go-round horse, first seen in a famous Vienna park. Fate takes him to France, then to the Caledonian market, and finally to America where he meets once again his favorite rider, now a grown woman.

"Ilse Bischoff's illustrations are as charming as the story. This is one of the top books of the season." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p46 D 5 '43 400w

Booklist 40:116 D 1 '43

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 29 '43 90w

Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 30w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:319 S '43 100w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield

Library J 68:820 O 15 '43 40w

Reviewed by Margaret Miller

Library J 68:1008 D 1 '43 40w

"Sometimes gay and sometimes wistful, the story has a gracious and happy ending young readers will find entirely satisfactory. Ilse Bischoff's drawings have beauty and humor. They catch the charm and gaiety of Vienna of long ago, of childhood and of merry-go-round horses at their most magnificent. This is a volume designed with distinction, and in spite of war conditions a beautiful piece of book-making." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p24 N 21 '43 300w

"Only one with a real knowledge of and love for the streets of Vienna, Paris, and London could have written this book with such charm and understanding as Elizabeth Foster has done. Occasionally a note of nostalgia creeps in. One suspects that Gigi is a part of her own childhood memories. No touch of sadness, however, has been permitted to steal into Ilse Bischoff's illustrations. They are entirely delightful and in tune with the period." Jacqueline Overton

+ Sat R of Lit 26:29 N 13 '43 600w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 7 '43 110w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p6 N 14 '43 350w

FOSTER, WILLIAM HARNDEN. New England grouse shooting [il. with drawings by the author]. 193p $8.50 Scribner

799.24 Grouse. Hunting—New England

42-25613

"William Foster was skeet editor of Outdoor Life for many years before his death. . . The book goes back to grouse shooting as it was in [earlier] days . . . and on up to the present time. . . There is a chapter devoted to the way that a gun should be bored for grouse shooting, and the best loads to use, also the proper hunting clothing to wear, and many other items of interest to the sportsman." Springf'd Republican

"William Foster was a sportsman of the old school, and surely knew his 'partridges.' He grew up at a time when there were plenty of them and had ample time to hunt them and study their ways and habits, as he was not only a sportsman but a naturalist. The information given in this book will prove of great value not only to the novice but to the old timer." C. L. Kites

+ Springf'd Republican p6 F 22 '43 440w

+ Weekly Book Review p17 Ap 18 '43 100w

FOWLER, MRS DOROTHY (GANFIELD). The cabinet politician; the postmasters general, 1829-1909. 344p $3.75 Columbia univ. press [25s Oxford]

383.4 Postal service—U.S. U.S.—Politics and government

43-10238

History of the position of postmaster-general from 1829-1909. The author explains that she has limited her study to these years because "it was in 1829 that the office of Postmaster-General became a Cabinet position, and by 1909 the political pattern of giving the position of Postmaster-General to the foremost politician of the party had been established. Another reason for the termination of the study in the year 1909 was the unavailability of the correspondence of later participants. Through the use of a mass of material, involving a large amount of research, Mrs. Fowler has certainly made good her claim that the Postmasters-General have been the outstanding politicians of the President's Cabinet." (Am Pol Sci R) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by E. S. Brown

Am Pol Sci R 37:951 O '43 380w

"This book is interesting and well written, and the story is the story of politics in its most interesting phase, namely, the Presidential campaign phase. Histories of politics have not been so frequent in the last few years as they were a generation ago. But a book like The Cabinet Politician is not only good reading, but it is also profitable reading from the standpoint of both politics and history. The Columbia University Press has done nicely in the preparation of the volume from a physical point of view, as the book is pleasing to look at and easy to handle." O. P. Field

+ Ann Am Acad 231:188 Ja '44 900w

FOWLIE, WALLACE. Clowns and angels. 162p $2.50 Sheed

840.9 French literature—History and criticism

44-295

"Studies in modern French literature." (Subtitle) Contents: Part I, The example of France: The novel; The theatre; Poetry; Gide; France; The artist. Part II, The contemporary hero; André Gide, the non-Catholic tradition; François Mauriac, the Catholic tradition; Jules Romains, the novel of good will and the world of evil; The world of Proust and Shakespeare. Part III, The poet's creation: Charles Baudelaire, the experience of religious heroism; Paul Claudel, the metaphysics of a poet; The poet and the mystic; The modern poet. Index.

"Fowlie writes brilliantly of these elusive, complicated characters, with his admirable flair for the poetic and sense of the ultimate. He hopes apparently for the integration of Faith and Art as well as Nature and Grace in these long divergent channels of French utterance. His critical faculty should prove invaluable in resensitizing the American mind to the spiritual essence of Art and Letters." Albert Durant

+ Book Week p6 Ja 9 '44 160w

"Mr. Fowlie's criticism is helpful from a literary standpoint (some of his thoughts on poetry and mysticism in the last section are interesting), but we feel that, as a Christian guide, his wisdom is far from flawless." M. M. Donnelly

+ — Cath World 158:406 Ja '44 550w

Reviewed by Ramon Guthrie

New Repub 109:753 N 29 '43 650w

FOX, ERNEST FRANKLIN. Travels in Afghanistan. 285p il $4 Macmillan

915.8 Afghanistan—Description and travel 43-5858

Account of a trip to Afghanistan between September, 1937, and June, 1938, taken in order to discover oil and other minerals. Seventeen hundred miles of the trip was taken on horseback. Part of the way was over such rough country, that the author had to go on foot. Geographical directory.

Booklist 39:444 Jl 1 '43

Bookmark 4:15 My '43

"Written in leisurely manner, with excellent descriptions of the country. Customs and characteristics of many types of people are drawn with understanding and keen observation. Point of view of the scientist gives added interest. Will be enjoyed by serious reader." E. McE. Olcott

+ Library J 68:127 F 1 '43 100w

Nation 157:52 Jl 10 '43 80w

"The book leaves an impression of scrupulous fairness; it is packed with detailed information about a land and a people of whom most of us know very little; and though melodrama has been most carefully avoided, one feels that during Captain Fox's long journey murder and sudden death were often lurking just around the corner." L. M. Field

+ N Y Times p18 My 23 '43 850w

"Anybody who ever plans to go to Afghanistan will find in this book exactly what he will want to know. The rest of us will read it with interest for the insight it gives concerning a little-known people, partly nomadic, partly urban, and the information that it contains concerning landscape and climate, resources and transport facilities, customs and industries of a section of Asia that seems destined to become increasingly important in the world community in the next few years."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 My '43 300w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 16 '43 600w

Reviewed by Hiram Blauvelt

Weekly Book Review p18 My 16 '43 1600w

Wis Lib Bul 39:121 O '43

FOX, MRS HELEN (MORGENTHAU). Gardening for good eating; drawings by Louise Mansfield. 262p $2.50 Macmillan

635 Vegetable gardening 43-6248

Turning from gardening chiefly with herbs and flowers, the author has lately devoted part of her time and skill to gardening with vegetables specialising in little-known or forgotten varieties. Her book is intended for the small, home vegetable gardener and contains chapters on soils and fertilisers, garden plans, and cultural instructions. There are also included a number of recipes for cooking vegetables. Index.

"The subject matter of Mrs. Fox's book is so good and her arrangement so interesting that I regret that the writing isn't better. Reading of such pleasant subjects should be more pleasant in itself than the often careless style of this book tends to make it." J. T. Frederick

+ — Book Week p4 My 23 '43 140w

Bookmark 4:7 My '43

"As might be expected from this author, there is nothing hackneyed or commonplace about the pages of 'Gardening for Good Eating' Naturally, she deals with the essentials of good practice: soil, starting of seeds, sowing, cultivation, insects, canning and storing. But the body of the book is refreshing and unusual." F. F. Rockwell

+ N Y Times p20 Je 13 '43 360w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 9 '43 110w

Reviewed by R. S. Lemmon

Weekly Book Review p19 Je 6 '43 110w

Wis Lib Bul 39:121 O '43

FOX, SELINA FITZHERBERT, comp. Chain of prayer across the ages; forty centuries of prayer, from 2000 B.C; arr. for daily use; with index of subjects and authors; introduction by Ernest Milmore Stires. new Am ed 319p $2 Dutton

264.1 Prayers 43-51099

"This anthology of prayers selected from the devotional literature of the Hebrew-Christian tradition of all countries, languages and ages has been revised, enlarged and reprinted more than a dozen times since its first publication thirty years ago. The arrangement includes pages of morning prayers for twenty-six weeks, evening prayers for four weeks, and prayers for many special days, occasions and needs." Christian Century

"This is one of the most unusual anthologies ever made. We have had anthologies of every conceivable character, but never has there been such a collection as this. . . As devotional literature it is unsurpassed. As an opportunity for studying the changes in prayer technique it is of great value. We can trace the spiritual development of the ages and detect the evolving ideas which men have had concerning God." Preston Bradley

+ Book Week p9 Ap 25 '43 430w

Booklist 39:336 Ap 15 '43

"This is probably the best collection of its kind in existence."

+ Christian Century 60:330 Mr 17 '43 80w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 3 '43 250w

Reviewed by John Knox

J Religion 23:226 Jl '43 50w

Reviewed by Morris Burroughs

Springf'd Republican p7e My 2 '43 170w

FRAAS, ARTHUR P. Aircraft power plants. 472p il $4.50 McGraw

629.13435 Airplane engines 43-10182

"For aeronautical engineering students and men in training as maintenance officers in armed forces. Aircraft engine design, testing, installation, operation, and maintenance. Assumed that reader has basic knowledge of college physics, thermodynamics, and fluid mechanics." (Library J) Index.

Book Week p11 S 12 '43 80w

Library J 68:575 Jl '43 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:39 Jl '43

"This book will be gratefully received by the engineering executive as a single source of specific information for the education of power-plant engineers, as a source of more general information for those others who work on the fringes of the power-plant group and whose knowledge of power plants could stand a little polishing up." T. A. Wells

+ N Y Times p51 N 14 '43 300w

FRANCIS, WILLIAM. Bury me not. 252p $2 Morrow

43-1014

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p14 F 14 '43 200w

"Macabre story and inclined to be vulgar, but hilarious in spots."

New Yorker 18:72 F 13 '43 70w

"Pretty tough."

Sat R of Lit 26:16 F 27 '43 40w

Time 41:84 Mr 1 '43 30w

FRANCK, HARRY ALVERSON. Rediscovering South America; il. with 65 reproductions of phot. most of them by the author. 453p $5 Lippincott

918 South America—Description and travel 43-1880

"Random wanderings from Panama to Patagonia and back, reviewing a continent the author covered, mainly on foot, a generation ago." (Subtitle) Describes the changes which the author found on this second journey to South America, after thirty years. His trip took him thru the Panama canal, down the west coast, and up the east.

FRANCK, H. A.—Continued

Reviewed by B. D. Wolfe
Book Week p6 Ap 11 '43 650w

Booklist 39:274 Mr 1 '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:17 Jl '43 10w

Nation 156:677 My 8 '43 180w

"'Rediscovering South America' is far from being a profound book, but it is an entertaining one, and the sixty-five photographs which illustrate it are above the average." W. A Roberts
+ Weekly Book Review p16 F 28 '43 480w

Wis Lib Bul 39:40 Mr '43

FRANK, BRUNO. One fair daughter; tr. from the German manuscript by Claire Trask. 261p $2.75 Viking

43-14766

Story of Austria and Poland during the years 1913 to 1939. An Austrian nobleman, who gave up his army career to marry a Jewish singer, begins the saga. The child of this marriage is the fair daughter of the title. The girl grew up in the years of the New Order, kept her loyalty to her Jewish forebears with passionate intensity, and thereby paved the way for tragedy.

"Beautiful, noble book." Klaus Mann
+ Book Week p4 O 24 '43 650w

Booklist 40:94 N 15 '43

"The plight of the Jews under Hitler is described with great feeling, but the story itself seems unreal and the characters are wooden. The author is too close to the tragedy of Germany's brutal expansion, and too self-conscious in his use of literary devices, to give the story its full value." N. E. Monroe
+ — Cath World 158:411 Ja '44 60w

Reviewed by J. C. Cort
Commonweal 39:211 D 10 '43 500w

"Not all details of novel are convincing, but author has caught atmosphere of a generation that was doomed. Recommended for public libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ — Library J 68:768 O 1 '43 110w

"Mr. Bruno Frank in this novel reveals the predicament of the sophisticated novelist when he attempts to deal with the raw material of our time. With insight and courage Mr. Frank tackles a vital subject. . . But Frank's talent was meant to be used in a less brutal epoch than our own. His Vienna of 1913 lives. His Poland of September, 1939, cannot be said to live in the same fashion. The crash of events dwarfs his protagonists to such an extent that the individual characters occasionally seem fabricated, romanticized and, at moments thinly unreal." E. K.
N Y Times p16 O 24 '43 550w

"There are some moving scenes of courage and faithfulness as well as of brutality and sadism, but on the whole Herr Frank doesn't seem to have been trying terribly hard."
New Yorker 19:94 O 23 '43 110w

Reviewed by E. H. Carlson
Springf'd Republican p7e N 21 '43 500w

"Except for an occasional error of spelling in Polish words, the translation from the original German of the book flows smoothly along. As in the other books by Bruno Frank, so too in this latest one, there is an air of historical perspective and objectivity. But 'One Fair Daughter' plumbs a new depth of compassion. It is especially moving to any one familiar with the background. But no matter how unfamiliar, how alien are the experiences which it describes, the book cannot fail to bring those far-off people closer than ever before to Americans." Virgilia Sapieha
+ Weekly Book Review p2 O 24 '43 950w

FRANK, WALDO DAVID. South American journey. 404p $3 Duell

918 South America—Description and travel
43-8671

"Personal history of what the author felt to be a mission down through South America: Brazil, Uruguay, Chile, Peru, and Argentina, where Mr. Frank was insulted by Fascists. He gives an account of that adventure here." (New Yorker) Index.

"A novelist and essayist of distinction, Frank is also our best North American writer on South America. The insight, the patient observation and the love expressed in the pages of 'South American Journey' quickly put to shame the brittle and facile surface observations which characterize most of the numerous recent books about our neighbors to the south. Frank really knows his South America and really makes us know it." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p2 Ag 8 '43 120w

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley
Cath World 157:557 Ag '43 340w

"If you want to see South America through Mr. Frank's eyes, and like his way of seeing things, you will probably like this book. The reader who may go to South American Journey for his first introduction to life in the lands to the south of us should be advised to provide himself with a good map, a stack of biographies on the continent's great men, and at least two or three history books on Latin America. For without these it is to be doubted that he will find Mr. Frank's book either too interesting or too valuable." W. C. Kernan
Churchman 157:14 O 1 '43 330w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '43

"There are ways in which to review this book. You could make it seem ridiculous and conceited and unworthy even of the talents of its author. Or you could brush aside a tear and exclaim, the pity of it all. Or you could honestly admit that its virtues in some magical way make you forget its faults. And the last would be the most honest."
Commonweal 38:147 My 28 '43 700w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:168 O '43 40w

"Rich in feeling, this book is a most sensitive interpretation of heart and mind of Latin America. Particularly notable for its sympathetic understanding of the people of Argentina. Will appeal, not only to adult reader interested in hemispheric solidarity, but also to anyone deeply concerned with future of democracy and the 'People's War.' Recommended." Julia Sabine
+ Library J 68:428 My 15 '43 50w

"You will turn over quickly the inevitable sentimental pages which tell of sexual encounters, and you will shortly come upon vigorous and manly things. After these will come embarrassing egotisms—egotisms so appalling that one wonders whether Frank dare be caught doing anything so common as listening to the Eroica. Hard upon the heels of these things will follow passages of insight quite unspoiled by petulance, egotism, or any other middle-aged emotion." Ralph Bates
+ — Nation 156:869 Je 19 '43 1000w

"It must be admitted, Frank is careless and prejudiced. Few recent travel books have contained so many misspelled place and proper names. . . This may not be significant, but it is parallel to a lax attitude masked by the assumption of ubiquity and omniscience." Lincoln Kirstein
+ — New Repub 108:866 Je 28 '43 1100w

"A surpassingly good book. Nothing in fiction would be richer in salty human values, nothing in political thought could be more penetrating than this account of his journey. Here Frank the novelist, Frank the poet and Frank the philosophic interpreter are fused together; and the final result is a book that will live. This new book has the sharp immediacy of unexpected events and decisions made from day to day." Lewis Mumford
+ N Y Times p5 My 23 '43 800w

"An impressive book, lyrical, warm, and penetrating, with not too much of the author's evangelical mysticism."
+ New Yorker 19:75 My 22 '43 70w

Reviewed by Hubert Herring
Sat R of Lit 26:15 Je 19 '43 700w

"Many of his notes on Brazil, Chile, and Argentina reveal keen insight into the realities of the social struggle waged between a stubborn feudal order and new men with new ideas. His book would be a better one were he content to write simply—as he can write, when minded—and if he could forget Waldo Frank. There is substance in the book for any reader willing to overlook its incredible egotism." Hubert Herring
+ — Yale R n s 33:150 autumn '43 170w

FRANKAU, GILBERT. World without end. 444p $2.75 Dutton
43-2473

The adventures of a twentieth century soldier in love and war, with war predominating. Miles Radcliffe, an Englishman, was in every war worth mentioning, beginning with the first World war, and ending with the present. The two women who influenced the other side of his life were a South American widow, and a young Irish girl, the latter rescued by Radcliffe.

"This novel is oleographic, coarse, Ouida up to date and its grip like a vise." Harold Brighouse
— Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 9 '43 50w

"This is the simplest mythology of escape, harmless, ludicrous and already creaking in all its joints. A film could have told the story better, and in a quarter the time." Philip Toynbee
New Statesman & Nation 26:59 Jl 24 '43 650w

"The thirteen 'books' of the novel, with the strongest of the interest focused on the Chaco War between Paraguay and Bolivia, are as packed with action as a Dumas novel—but a hard-boiled twentieth-century Dumas stripped to the bone of illusion and sentiment. You will not look here for nuances of character indicated by psychology, but for portraiture, direct and positive, its riddles of personality explainable, eventually if not at sight, by cool, objective fact." J. S. Southron
N Y Times p22 F 21 '43 700w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 14 '43 250w

"Mr. Frankau, apparently at home in those various parts of Europe and the Americas visited by Miles, carries his story through with his usual energy and his attention to the minutiae of life, so many of which a less conscientious novelist would take for granted. The technique is as clear-cut as a steel engraving, and every line tells us something, though it may be on occasion something we do not particularly want to know."
Times [London] Lit Sup p317 Jl 3 '43 300w

"As a fighting man, Miles Radcliffe remains slightly synthetic. He is neither a cold-blooded warrior nor a soldier dedicated to his vocation. He fights because fighting is 'fun.' It seems to us that Mr. Frankau has struck a discordant note for these times." Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p12 F 21 '43 430w

FRANKEN, ROSE D. (LEWIN) (MRS WILLIAM BROWN MELONEY). Another Claudia. 279p $2.50 Farrar 43-4272

This volume carries on the story of Claudia and David from the summer of 1941 to the summer of 1942.

"I liked the first half of this novel much better than the second half. In the preferred part is the same old lighthearted family with their farm. . . But in the second half of the book Miss Franken attempts the war and tragedy and here, I believe, she falls short." E. J. C.
+ — Book Week p9 My 16 '43 250w
Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Ap '43

"Perhaps not in a class with Mickey Mouse or Donald Duck, but in a class, say, with Andy Hardy, Rose Franken's Claudia is one of America's current minor institutions. . . According to how you look at it, Miss Franken's creation is either one step ahead of the game or a cultural lag. For instance, it is 1942, but Claudia, whose husband is about to go to war, makes it adorably feminine to be ignorant of geography and politics, and to be cute about insurance. . . And yet I enjoyed reading 'Another Claudia' much more than I've enjoyed many more serious novels. The writing is simple and adequate. If there isn't much action, there is a good substitute for action, the sense of something doing every moment and every page full of the recognizable details of day-to-day living. And after all, so few writers have anything to add to life, it is rather a relief to read someone who makes no pretense to doing more than reflect it." Diana Trilling
+ — Nation 156:748 My 22 '43 1000w

"In this book Claudia grows up and Miss Franken makes a very skillful, interesting and convincing picture of the painful process." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p7 Ap 18 '43 650w
New Yorker 19:79 Ap 24 '43 50w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p18 My 2 '43 430w

FRANKLIN, ALBERT BARNES. Ecuador; portrait of a people. 326p il $3.50 Doubleday 918.6 Ecuador—Description and travel
43-51194

Account of life in present-day Ecuador, and of the people who inhabit this South American country which resembles Switzerland in scenic beauty. "This is a portrait of a country, not a clinical report on it. A few Nazis did get into the book. But only in about the proportion of one to one hundred that were encountered." (Foreword) Index.

Booklist 39:445 Jl 1 '43

"Dr. Franklin himself informs us that he has a Ph. D. from Harvard. Perhaps this accounts for his somewhat difficult style of writing, which is elliptical, to use the mildest adjective that comes to mind. But his book is none the less a serious piece of work in all the plethora of publications on Latin America provoked by events of our day. . . Those who wish a good selection of books on our Latin neighbors should not miss this one. The author makes his chosen subject live, despite the hurdles of his English, he likes Ecuadorians."
+ Commonweal 38:205 Je 11 '43 140w

" 'Ecuador, Portrait of a People' is exactly what its title implies. Furthermore, it is sympathetic without being sticky, colorful without being gaudy. Which places it among the all too few books on Latin America with a real claim to importance." Lloyd Mallan
+ Current Hist 4:341 Jl '43 550w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:168 O '43 20w

"Tempered and sympathetic account." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 68:428 My 15 '43 110w

"This excellent portrait of the people of Ecuador is by a man who, unlike some others who have capitalized on the growing interest in the countries of Latin America by writing a quick book on all of them, has taken the time to absorb something of the spirit of the country which he describes. If one adds to this the fact that he speaks Spanish, likes the people, knows their history and their literature, and writes easily and engagingly, it is evident that we have ample reason for expecting a book every bit as good as this one is." C. A. Hutchison
+ N Y Times p19 Je 13 '43 800w

"This is no travel book, no history, no economics disquisition—it is better than such can ever be, it gives the human stuff without which no one can understand this land and people, so long buffeted from within and without." Hubert Herring
+ Sat R of Lit 26:7 Je 12 '43 270w

FRANKLIN, A. B.—Continued
"A fine over-all picture of this country of three races."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 Je '43 90w
Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 4 '43 550w

"It is a delight to discover a writer on Latin America—or on any country for that matter—who realizes the significance, and the pleasure, to be found in the chance acquaintance; in the traveling companions aboard a bus, a train, or a river launch, in idlers in a park, among workers in mines or fields, in groups of young intellectuals eagerly discussing life. These are the people of Mr. Franklin's 'Ecuador.' And from his varied contacts with human beings he builds a comprehensive picture; always concrete and definite, never abstract or impersonal." Blair Niles
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Je 6 '43 1100w

"Many readers will doubtless wish to discount his ultra-sympathetic estimate of García Moreno but, in general, his interpretations seem accurate and careful. This is not the last book about Ecuador that will or should be written, but as an addition to our knowledge of a country which another writer has called 'Ecuador the Unknown' it is definitely helpful." R. H. Fitzgibbon
Yale R n s 33:171 autumn '43 280w

FRANKLIN, JOHN HOPE. Free Negro in North Carolina, 1790-1860. 271p maps $4 Univ. of N.C. press
326.8 Negroes—North Carolina 43-5988

History of the free Negro in North Carolina in pre-Civil war days—from 1790 to 1860. The material is based on much examination of original sources. The author considers the legal status of the free Negro, his place in the economic life of the state, and his social and religious life. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by O. C. Cox
Am Soc R 8:492 Ag '43 410w

"The style is clear and vigorous, and those who take the time to read the book will be well paid for their effort. This is a welcome contribution for those who are interested in this almost neglected phase of Negro life." W. S. Savage
+ Ann Am Acad 229:211 S '43 450w

"Mr. Franklin has done an admirable piece of work in his study, and goes deeper into social and economic factors dragging the free Negro down than many older scholars." George Streator
+ Commonweal 38:325 Jl 16 '43 500w

"Although this book was not written for the general public, everyone who has an intelligent interest in the Negro problem in the United States will gain much understanding of the problem by reading it. . . Quite aside from the value of the study itself, this book is an indication of the growing number of competent Negro scholars who are making worth-while objective studies of the Negro in the United States." E. F. Frazier
+ Sat R of Lit 26:36 Je 19 '43 500w

FRANZERO, CHARLES MARIE. The house of Mrs Caroline. 334p $2.75 Howell, Soskin 43-15960

"C. M. Franzero is an Italian journalist and political writer, for the last twenty years an expatriate in London. . . [His novel is a] loose, rambling story of the changing fortune of an aristocratic Piedmontese family during the first three decades of this century." Weekly Book Review

---

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 N 7 '43 250w
Booklist 40:146 D 15 '43

"Written in the old-fashioned manner, leisurely and detailed, 'The House of Mrs. Caroline' is an excellent family study of an Italy that is only a memory now. Mr. Franzero, who resigned his position in protest to Italy's declaration of war in 1940, is now finishing a second volume on the Ferreros and Andrades. This news disposes of the only serious criticism of his book—as a novel, it is uneven, almost plotless, and presents no conclusion." Catherine Maher
+ N Y Times p6 O 31 '43 550w

"The House of Mrs Caroline has the ingredients of a first-rate family novel but through structural weakness and unsteadiness of purpose it becomes a feeble explanation of Italy's acceptance of fascism." E. S.
— + Springf'd Republican p7e D 12 '43 280w

Reviewed by T. L. Collins
Weekly Book Review p12 O 31 '43 600w

FREAR, DONALD ELISHA HARDING. Chemistry of insecticides and fungicides. 300p il $4 Van Nostrand
632.951 Insecticides. Fungicides 42-21141

"An account of the chemical substances used primarily in agriculture and to some extent in industry as a protection against the attacks of insects and fungi upon plants and their products. It does not cover the protection of animals and their products from attacks by these organisms. It is of value and interest to public health because of the use of preparations of arsenic, fluorine, thallium, and other toxic substances as protective sprays upon fruits and vegetables and as poisons for destructive rodents. Detailed directions are given for the various chemical processes used in testing for the presence and amounts of these toxic substances." (Am J Pub Health) Chapter references. Subject and author indexes.

"A number of errors have been noted. . . In spite of these blemishes the book presents an up-to-date account of the chemistry of insecticides and fungicides. It will be useful as a reference as well as a textbook, and the reviewer recommends it as required reading for all entomologists seeking to control insects with chemicals." R. C. Roark
+ — Am Chem Soc J 65:126 Ja '43 270w

Reviewed by C. A. Kofoid
Am J Pub Health 33:179 F '43 250w

"Usefulness of the work, in the opinion of this reviewer, could have been further increased by including more data in convenient tabular form, such as analysis or specifications of leading products now on the market, comparative physical constants, orders of toxicity to insects, toxicity to warm-blooded animals, etc. . . However, Frear has made a pioneer and worth-while contribution to the field of insecticides and fungicides and he is to be commended for the thoroughness with which he has reviewed the available literature on the subject." J. R. Callaham
+ — Chem & Met Eng 49:186 N '42 650w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:28 Ap '43

FREBERG, CARL ROGER, and KEMLER, EMORY NEUDECK. Elements of mechanical vibration. 193p $3 Wiley
620.1 Vibration 43-11831

"Vibration problems are the heart of aeronautical and mechanical design. The subject has been treated at great length elsewhere, but this is one of the first attempts to break it down into its simpler elements. The book starts with undamped systems and the authors take time to explain some of the less familiar mathematics." (Book Week) Bibliography. Index.

"This is the sort of book that will form a text for a first course in vibrations. It is an excellent book for this purpose." L. E. Grinter
+ Book Week p11 O 31 '43 70w
Library J 68:575 Jl '43 20w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 10w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:52 Jl '43

FREE and inexpensive educational materials; including Sources of visual aids. Special report no 17. $1 per letter, or free to purchasers of a new set of the World books encyclopedia or Childcraft (teachers series). c1941 Quarrie reference library, Chicago

016.04 Pamphlets—Bibliography

"According to the publishers, 'this bibliographical compilation is not in general circulation,' but, 'photographically reproduced copies for the use of librarians, school superintendents, principals and teachers' are available. Its aim, as stated in the introduction, is to supply teachers and educators with information concerning free and inexpensive material which emanates from sources too numerous and varied to be generally known. The types of material comprise pamphlets, booklets, leaflets, mimeographed material, and visual aids, such as: motion pictures, maps, posters, charts, etc. Annual editions have been publishd since 1937. Since the usefulness of such a bibliography depends on its accuracy and up-to-dateness, the foreword states that immediately before publication each item is rechecked for availability. In accordance with this policy the 1941 edition has had all out-of-print material eliminated and items that are essentially commercial or too mechanical for general use omitted. . . This bibliography is arranged alphabetically by subject and under subject by source. . . Annotations, descriptive and evaluative, are included for each entry and indicate features of special interest to teachers. In some cases teaching units with grade levels are noted. Numerous cross references are to be found at the end of many of the sections." Subscription Bks Bul

"The format of the bibliography is pleasing. In arrangement and type of material the first consideration has been given to the teacher and her needs; however, public libraries, desirous of building up a pamphlet file, will find here much material of value to them. . . The chief drawback of the bibliography is that it is an annual publication only, and therefore cannot list new material immediately upon its appearance. The bibliography is too expensive for separate purchase since most of the materials are listed in other current sources. Therefore, in view of its price and infrequent revision, it is not recommended for purchase."

— + Subscription Bks Bul 13:48 O '42 650w

FREEHOF, SOLOMON BENNETT. Small sanctuary; Judaism in the prayerbook. 302p $2 Union of Am. Hebrew congregations

296 Jews—Liturgy and ritual 42-22779

"An interpretation of the Jewish prayerbook which reveals the religious ideas and ideals of Judaism." (Cleveland Open Shelf) "The Jewish Prayerbook was a product of the synagogue and stands historically as a literary link between the Old Testament Scriptures and the Talmud. Rabbi Freehof's work as professor of liturgy in Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati, has given him scholarly knowledge in this field, and as rabbi of important congregations he has had experience in devotional leadership." (Christian Century)

"This will be of obvious value to Jews, but it is to be recommended also to Christians who wish to gain insight into the meaning and spirit of Jewish religious life."

+ Christian Century 60:52 Ja 13 '43 110w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Jl '43

FREEMAN, DOUGLAS SOUTHALL. Lee's lieutenants; a study in command; v. 2, Cedar mountain to Chancellorsville. 760p il maps $5 Scribner

973.7 U.S.—History—Civil war. Confederate states of America—Biography (42-24582)

The second volume in the author's "multiple biography" of Lee's officers carries the story from July, 1862 to June 1863. For volume I see Book Review Digest, 1942.

"The high standard of scholarship and style set by Dr. Freeman in his R. E. Lee has been maintained throughout the present work. Considered together, as they should be, these two works will not only constitute a major contribution to the history of the period but will set a standard for American military biography." H. A. DeWeerd

+ Am Hist R 49:121 O '43 750w

"Of this second volume of Freeman's monumental work it need only be said that it holds its own with the first, or perhaps is a little better." John Erskine

+ Book Week p2 My 2 '43 900w

Booklist 39:329 Ap 15 '43

Bookmark 4:12 Mr '43

Reviewed by C. W. Thompson

Cath World 157:437 Jl '43 600w

"Dr. Freeman writes on a scale with a meticulous attention to detail which make his work seem almost beyond criticism. If there is any fault to be found it is that he hardly pays sufficient attention to the blunders of the Union commanders."

+ — Christian Century 60:490 Ap 21 '43 240w

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 9 '43 550w

Reviewed by Paul Kiniery

Commonweal 38:16 Ap 23 '43 550w

"The one serious complaint to be made against Dr. Freeman's work concerns its maps. True, there are plenty of them, but they might well have been fewer and better." Keith Hutchison

+ — Nation 157:21 Jl 3 '43 600w

"The third and concluding volume of this work, not yet published, might make a great difference in our judgment of the whole; yet even in these two volumes Mr. Freeman has achieved what nobody could have predicted and what I for one did not believe possible. He has gone again over the ground of his 'R. E. Lee,' given us the same campaigns and battles, the same scenes and leaders (only more of them), and has succeeded in writing a different book." Allen Tate

+ New Repub 108:644 My 10 '43 480w

"In spite of the overwhelming detail, it is a magnificent job in which men whose names and deeds are now legendary come and go in their habit as they lived. If the thread of strategy is lost for most of us in a maze of action which is as confusing to the reader as it was to the actors, the actors stand out all the more vividly." H. I. Brock

+ N Y Times p5 Ap 4 '43 800w

"More readable and more concerned with personality than the earlier volume; a little longer, too, but equally marked by the author's clear organization and unfailing scholarship."

+ New Yorker 19:88 Ap 10 '43 140w

"Jackson, of course, dominates this volume. Mr. Freeman's study of him is the best ever written, and is scrupulous in pointing out the qualities that sometimes caused trouble: his intense secretiveness, his failure to insist on good staff work, his occasional weakness at maneuver, the obstinacy or intellectual arrogance of his quarrels with Hill and others. This realism in no way detracts from the brilliance of Jackson's battles or the importance of his achievements. Mr. Freeman's second purpose, to write a detailed military history of Lee's army, is fulfilled with great thoroughness." Bernard De Voto

+ Sat R of Lit 26:16 My 29 '43 1100w

Reviewed by L. B. Kromer

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 4 '43 750w

Time 41:104 My 3 '43 100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p260 My 29 '43 1100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p14 Ja 8 '44 700w

Reviewed by H. S. Commager

Weekly Book Review p5 My 9 '43 1700w

Wis Lib Bul 39:108 Jl '43

Reviewed by H. A. DeWeerd

Yale R n s 33:185 autumn '43 1050w

FREEMAN, JOSEPH. Never call retreat. 756p $3 Farrar

43-2472

Paul Schuman, a Viennese professor of history and a liberal, comes as a refugee to

FREEMAN, JOSEPH—Continued
America. But though he has escaped into freedom and potential happiness he suffers mentally, and finally he seeks the help of a psychiatrist. The doctor persuades him to tell the story of his life and these somewhat rambling, lengthy reminiscences make up the book.

Atlantic 171:129 My '43 90w

"Freeman has given Paul a fine teacher's passion for sharing what he knows, and the Europe of 'Never Call Retreat' is of full dimension. Paul himself emerges as one of the few completely realized Europeans that I know of in contemporary fiction. . . When Schuman comes to America the book goes on a different level. For some reason it seems impossible to write about the complications here with anything like the honesty or fullness that is demonstrated in works dealing with Europe. The last chapters are a narrow squeak; Paul in America is frankly fatuous, and it is not only Paul; it is the author. But no one should hesitate for that, 'Never Call Retreat' is sometimes overwritten, sometimes too rhetorical but it is an imaginative vision of the reality beyond reality for all that." Josephine Herbst

+ — Book Week p3 My 23 '43 1050w

Booklist 39:354 My 1 '43

Reviewed by L. E. Cannon
Christian Century 60:667 Je 2 '43 650w

"Characterization is good, but book will prove slow reading for those who want 'lots of conversation.' " M. P. McKay
Library J 68:82 Ja 15 '43 80w

"Among contemporary novels Joseph Freeman's 'Never Call Retreat' must claim a special place for itself. It is serious, scholarly, and ambitious. Its theme is one of the greatest available to the modern novelist—the relation of the individual to the forces of history. If, then, it is twice as long as it should be and if, as fiction, it suffers severely from its heavy burden of erudition, these faults may be seen as the faults of excess and forgiven in the light of the enormous task Mr. Freeman set himself. Less easy to forgive, of course, are the woodenness of Mr. Freeman's central character, Professor Schuman, and the naivete of his women characters." Diana Trilling

+ — Nation 156:460 Mr 27 '43 1100w

"This book is too long by nearly four hundred pages and two hundred thousand words. . . The trouble seems to be that he insisted on putting everything into his first novel, as if it were one of those big packing boxes where Thomas Wolfe kept his manuscripts mixed with old shoes and undershirts and coffee pots. . . Once it has been unpacked—and that is not an easy task for the reader—the story itself has a tragic power that is rare in our times." Malcolm Cowley

+ — New Repub 108:386 Mr 22 '43 1250w

"Conscious as we are in the end of Mr. Freeman's high intention, the book in no way bogs down as a moral tract or a scientific case history. The narrative is powerful and filled with dramatic action and color. The characters are fully realized and memorable." Stanley Young

+ N Y Times p1 Mr 14 '43 1250w

"Joseph Freeman's 756-page 'Never Call Retreat' is one of those massive novels for which you are bound to feel respect. It is the product of long and careful thought, it is thoroughly educational, and its sentiments are admirable. I do not quite know why it is not the great novel it is obviously intended to be. Perhaps one reason is that, though infinitely better written than the fictions of Upton Sinclair and Robert Briffault, it has something of their 'constructed' quality." Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 19:78 Mr 13 '43 320w

"Non-Communists may dislike the Christian-Communist analogy; Communists will in all likelihood call Herzfeld a dangerous sentimentalist. Yet this book ought to be read by both, to be argued and thought upon. It seems to me the first effective attempt to lift a great modern schism into the climate of moral appraisal." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 26:6 Mr 6 '43 950w

"From its faults as much as from its virtues, especially by its bone-crushing sincerity, the book becomes large and impressive. The watchful, sympathetic reader will find that Freeman has done something both courageous and important. More often accidentally than not, Never Call Retreat is an almost endlessly revealing record of the typical liberal-to-leftist mind and spirit, with all its hopes, doubts and occupational diseases as limpid as amber."

+ — Time 41:100 Ap 26 '43 500w

" 'Never Call Retreat' is more than a novel, more than the tale of one man's life. It is a treatise on political and cultural history as well. Indeed, that is the book's weakness as a work of fiction: there is too much cultural and political discussion; too much erudition is demanded of the reader. It should be read for its absorbing story of an unusual life, and also for its thought-provoking argument and historical interpretation. On both scores it makes a deep demand upon attention and respect." Rose Feld

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Mr 14 '43 1200w

"Never Call Retreat reads like an endless editorial from one of the liberal weeklies, and its dialogue like broken columns of PM. Here again is a novelist who fails utterly to rise above the level of good will and a literal record of current history." Mark Schorer

— Yale R n s 32:viii summer '43 230w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott
Yale R n s 33:vi autumn '43 180w

FREEMAN, MRS MAE (BLACKER), and FREEMAN, IRA MAXIMILIAN. Fun with science. 60p il $1 Random house

530 Physics—Juvenile literature 43-51085

Large photographs and short text present "easy experiments of young people," embodying easy scientific principles. Some of the experiments could be used as parlor tricks.

"Unlike the vast majority of 'children's books,' this is not a 'delightful tale' or fairy story, in which the facts are sugar-coated. Instead, 'Fun with Science' is really fun—a flock of enjoyable, simple experiments carefully selected to illustrate basic scientific principles. Many of them have also a secondary value as mystifying parlor tricks, although they were not intended to be so used." Van Dyke Tiers

+ Book Week p7 Ap 11 '43 350w

Booklist 39:338 Ap 15 '43

"Authors' purpose is to present certain scientific principles in simple entertaining way. Even though some impatient nine-and ten-year-olds may slide over the explanations and race on to the experiments themselves, more than a little value should accrue." M. B. Snow

+ Library J 68:329 Ap 15 '43 60w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 30w

"An admirable easy-science book and a handsome one, for the junior-highschool age group and younger. Clear photographs and text demonstrate experiments to explain the principles of physics. The experiments require no special equipment and the great thing is that they work and are fun. A book guaranteed to keep the home humming."

+ New Yorker 19:70 My 29 '43 50w

"Chances are good that the young experimenter will learn more about certain basic principles of science than he usually does from dining table tricks, for in this presentation reasons why things take place are woven into the experiments, not tacked on so they can work loose." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 My 30 '43 380w

Wis Lib Bul 39:111 Jl '43

FRENCH, JOSEPH LEWIS, ed. Great sea stories. rev ed 491p $2.50 Tudor

43-51315

"Revised and enlarged edition of excellent collection of some of greatest adventure stories of the sea. Includes such variants as Poe's imaginative 'Descent into a Maelstrom' and Cecil Brown's eye-witness account of the sinking of the 'Repulse.' Nor are the classics neglected: Stevenson, Melville, London, and others are well represented." Library J

Booklist 40:97 N 15 '43

"Recommended for young people's collections, especially where the old two-volume edition is not present." K. R. Loff

+ Library J 68:730 S 15 '43 70w

"Here is a veritable mass of good reading, whether for seamen or landlubbers. The one serious lack of the volume is that it contains nothing by Joseph Conrad." G. W. Harris

+ — N Y Times p14 D 12 '43 320w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 12 '43 300w

FREUD, ANNA, and BURLINGHAM, DOROTHY TIFFANY. War and children. ltd ed 191p $3.50 Medical war bks, 227 W. 13th st, N.Y.

136.7 Child study. World war, 1939—Children 43-51246

Histories and case studies about the effects of bombing and fires on present-day English children. For the past three years the author, daughter of Sigmund Freud, and her associate, an American psychologist, have operated three nurseries for the Foster Parents' plan for war children.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p8 Ag 15 '43 410w

Booklist 40:9 S '43

"It is the most gripping and moving volume this reviewer has read in the vast literature of World War II." Otto Zausmer

+ Boston Globe p15 Ag 4 '43 300w

Reviewed by A. C. Washburne
Commonweal 39:76 N 5 '43 1100w

Reviewed by Florence Davis
J Home Econ 35:589 N '43 150w

"The information gathered here should be invaluable to American parents, teachers, and any others who have to do with care of children, either in war or peace. Every public library may count it a must, not only to purchase the book, but also to make every effort to gain readers who can profit by a sound and human approach to child problems, written in readable English without the 'patter' which so often mars otherwise useful books and drives away the laymen who need them." G. E. Brown

+ Library J 68:528 Je 15 '43 140w

"The book should prove fascinating reading for all who are concerned about children in war time. While eminently sound and thoughtful, it is brief and free from forbidding psychological jargon. One wishes it had been more carefully edited to eliminate repetitions and occasional grammatical errors. But these are minor flaws in an otherwise excellent piece of work." H. G. Sternau

+ Nation 157:303 S 11 '43 800w

"Written in non-technical language, it is a vivid narration, backed by painstaking observation and trained interpretation."

+ New Repub 109:294 Ag 30 '43 120w

"The value of this book to peacetime America is the fact that it shows the paramount importance to a child of a stable home. It becomes clear that a 350-pound bomb, if it fails to kill or mangle a child, will do it infinitely less damage than divorce." W. L. White

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 18 '43 750w

Reviewed by M. W. MacDonald
Survey 79:254 S '43 350w

FREUND, MRS GLADYS (LYNWALL) PRATT. American garden flowers; il. by Rudolf Freund. 50p $1 Random house

582.13 Flowers 43-51054

Descriptions of sixty-nine common flowers, vines and shrubs, prefaced by notes on the structure and classification of flowers in general. The author was for eighteen years a member of the department of education of the American museum of natural history. Illustrations in color and in black and white. Index.

Booklist 39:297 Mr 15 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:100 Mr '43 60w

"Illustrated by Rudolf Freund with gay color plates in profusion and excellent marginal drawings of flower parts, root types, and fruiting methods. Artist was for five years with the department of preparations of the Museum." A. E. Brown

+ Library J 68:250 Mr 15 '43 90w

"A useful and interesting reference book for beginners and for those who have already learned the pleasures of growing things, this would tempt even the most reluctant gardener to action with its many illustrations by Rudolf Freund, more alluring than any seed catalogue's in their remarkably true-toned colors." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p11 Mr 14 '43 200w

New Yorker 19:71 My 29 '43 20w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p8 Mr 14 '43 180w

Wis Lib Bul 39:39 Mr '43

FREY, CHRIS J., and KOGUT, STANLEY S. Metal forming by flexible tools. 193p il $3 Pitman

671 Metal work. Forming tools 44-100

"A technical work of interest to engineers and others concerned with sheet metal design and shaping, particularly in airplane manufacture. Chapter headings are: Introduction; Press equipment; The rubber die; Forming; Flanging; Spring-back; Blanking; Types of drop hammers; Die manufacture; Hammer operation; The power brake." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 40:191 F 1 '44

Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 10w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:47 Jl '43

FREYN, HUBERT. Free China's new deal. 277p $2.50 Macmillan

330.951 China—Economic conditions 43-14369

"In spite of Japanese penetration and control of large percentage of China's agricultural, mining, and industrial areas, and despite blockade of all ocean shipping, Chinese economy shows surprising vigor. First part considers natural resources of unoccupied area and their effective use through government action; takes up also vital question of government finance and control of inflation. Second part deals with modernization in each of provinces." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by D. T. Cheng
+ Ann Am Acad 231:180 Ja '44 600w

"It is a useful and a heartening account, calculated to point up our respect for an ally to whom little more than lip service is given, by showing how arduous is the task that China has undertaken and how resolutely she is fulfilling it." Peter Quinn

+ Book Week p9 N 21 '43 320w

Booklist 40:107 D 1 '43

"Scholarly. Recommended for all who wish to know whatever facts are available about economy of modern China." Walter Hausdorfer

+ Library J 68:666 S 1 '43 80w

"Mr. Freyn's book is less diverting reading than dramatic accounts of guerrilla thrusts in the dark of the moon. But it will be of value long after the war. It is a sort of reference book in condensation and it fills a need. We need facts about China now as much as opinions and ideas." Nathaniel Peffer

+ N Y Times p8 O 31 '43 550w

"'Free China's New Deal' is a rather debatable title for an important and, even in its statistical details, exciting book. Exciting because its seemingly dry statistical figures tell an eloquent story of the revolution which is transforming China's agrarian and industrial economy. . . The reader cannot expect to find all the answers, but he will find in this book enough food for thought to make him eager to turn to more detailed studies. One serious flaw, however, must be mentioned: 'Free

FREYN, HUBERT—Continued
China's New Deal,' especially its second part, deserves the subtitle 'An Outline of China's Economic Geography.' It is therefore incomprehensible that this important study is not documented by a single map." H. W. Weigert
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:13 Ja 1 '44 850w

Reviewed by R. S. Scott
Springf'd Republican p10 N 10 '43 550w

"There is no technical jargon in this book; it is even seasoned with quite a bit of human interest. Although the book is the work of an employee of a Chinese publicity agency, I am confident that it is also honest, for I have found quite a few passages in which Mr. Freyn has made revelations which a propagandist would have kept to himself. I cannot refrain from pointing out to the publishers that the book abounds in typographical errors which no good proofreader would have overlooked; and that the reckless addition of zeros to some of Mr. Freyn's figures makes them absurd and does the author an injustice." Rodney Gilbert
+ — Weekly Book Review p2 N 21 '43 1350w

FRICK, CONSTANCE. Dramatic criticism of George Jean Nathan. 165p $2 Cornell univ. press

792 Drama—History and criticism. Nathan, George Jean 43-4015

"Miss Frick has made an interesting investigation and survey of Nathan's critical career in her study. . . Actually there is little new about either Nathan or his work in her book. It is rather a balancing and analyzing of his theories and practice across the years with extensive quotations from his own books." N Y Times

Reviewed by George Freedley
Library J 67:950 N 1 '42 70w

Reviewed by Stark Young
New Repub 109:29 Jl 5 '43 650w

"In drawing heavily on Nathan's own writings Miss Frick has displayed wisdom and skill, allowing Nathan to make his own points in his own characteristic manner. She has illuminatingly outlined the man and his work and given a complete picture of his influence and importance. In addition she has improvised a useful and often richly entertaining book." T. Q. Curtiss
+ N Y Times p24 F 7 '43 450w

"When a critic has poured forth as many words as George Jean Nathan has in the pursuit of his craft, the landmarks, the fixed points in his critical credo, tend to be buried in the deluge. The situation is made to order for the cool, scholarly mind. Constance Frick has plunged into the flood, drained off the rhetoric and mapped out the lay of the land. If what emerges is a mind more orderly and more grounded in fundamentals than the month-by-month reader may have suspected, that is all to the good."
+ Theatre Arts 27:324 My '43 170w

Times [London] Lit Sup p393 Ag 14 '43 360w

"For us Mr. Nathan remains the most reliable and sensitive dramatic critic of our current stage; when he plays Devil's advocate there is usually hypocrisy as opposing counsel, and we find Miss Frick's book a useful study." W. P. Eaton
+ Weekly Book Review p20 Mr 21 '43 850w

FRICKEY, EDWIN. Economic fluctuations in the United States; a systematic analysis of long-run trends and business cycles, 1866-1914. 375p $5 Harvard univ. press

338.54 Business cycles. U.S.—Economic conditions A43-559

"A statistical analysis of economic trends and cycles during the period 1866-1914, by an associate professor of economics at Harvard. There are tables and charts." Foreign Affairs

"Because of the shallowness of the analysis, the book is useful primarily for reference purposes, as a compendium of the results of extensive statistical calculations applied to a selected number of economic series. Even so, its usefulness is reduced by failure to supply the original series upon which the analysis has been performed." Simon Kuznets
— + Ann Am Acad 229:220 S '43 650w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:10 Jl '43 30w

"Professor Frickey has set his sights high. His objectives have been to view the problem of time-series analysis against a broad theoretical horizon, to devise a fresh method of statistical analysis, and to apply this method to an extensive and significant body of economic data. He has gone far in meeting his objectives. He is to be congratulated for hitting the mark as frequently as he does. The general reader will find the volume less interesting than will the specialist. That is a cost of turning economics into a science. To that transformation this report makes a significant contribution." Solomon Fabricant
+ — Pol Sci Q 58:616 D '43 1650w

FRIEDMAN, LEE MAX. Jewish pioneers and patriots; with a pref. by A. S. W. Rosenbach. 430p il $2.50 Macmillan

296 Jews in the U.S. 43-557

A series of articles on Jews in America, and the part they have played in the life of the United States. Material is grouped under seven main headings: Presidents and some Jewish problems; Judaism in America; Fighters for principle; Jews and books; Jews in American society; Jews in the economic life of America; American soldiers. Bibliography. Index.

"Friedman's book is stronger in matters of detail, incidents, episodes, and personalities, than it is in the sphere of generalization. Hence it will be of less interest to sociologists than to the older type of historian. Nevertheless the book, like the monographs of Broches, has much material necessary for the making of generalizations. These studies suggest the importance of further research, not only in episodes and personalities, but of larger movements. Above all, these studies, worthy though they are, also suggest the importance of relating specific facts to a social framework." Merle Curti
+ — Am Soc R 8:490 Ag '43 230w

Reviewed by Peter Quinn
Book Week p11 My 16 '43 180w

Booklist 39:381 Je 1 '43

"Thoroughly entertaining and informative." H. L.
+ Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 23 '43 300w

"In scholarly manner, and without any attempt at propaganda, this book presents various phases of the record of the Jews in America." G. S. Hellman
+ Weekly Book Review p35 O 3 '43 800w

FRIER, WILLIAM T. Elementary metallurgy. 207p $1.75 McGraw

669 Metallurgy. Metallography 42-24243

"This text is a compilation of notes that the author has used for several years in teaching the subject of metallurgy in the General Electric Technical Night School of the Erie works, General Electric Company, Erie, Pa. The aim is to present the subject in such a manner as to be easily understood by students in technical institutes, war production courses, vocational high schools, and the like, even though they may have had little preliminary knowledge of metallurgy or chemistry." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 39:195 Ja 15 '43

"Concise language and good organization of the subject matter make for pleasant reading. Profuse illustrations amplify the material which is presented. The chapters contain definitions and questions so that the book may well be used for self instruction by the uninitiated."
+ Chem & Met Eng 50:191 D '43 50w

Library J 67:952 N 1 '42 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:13 Ja '43

FRISKEY, MARGARET. House that ran away; a read-it-yourself story; pictured by Lucia Patton. 32p $1 Whitman, A.
43-17322

Picture-story book about Peter, Patsy, and their little brother, Bill. The children built a playhouse, with the help of Uncle Joe, and then one day the house got up and walked away. The story tells why, and what the children and Uncle Joe did about it.

"A subject dear to the heart of any child." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p7 D 19 '43 90w

"Manuscript print, vocabulary scaled to preschool child but easy reading for beginners." F. W. Butler
Library J 69:33 Ja 1 '44 60w
Springf'd Republican p7e F 6 '44 90w

FROHSE, FRANZ, il. Atlas of human anatomy. See Williams, J. F. Atlas of human anatomy

FROMAN, LEWIS ACRELIUS, and MASON, SCOTT B. Industrial supervision. 341p $2.50 Foundation press
658.31 Factory management. Employment management 42-22135

"The authors have limited their book to the fundamentals of supervision, omitting specialized duties, but the scope is wide, from personnel work to safety, manufacturing costs, quality control, and relations with unions." Booklist

Booklist 39:287 Mr 15 '43
Library J 68:129 F 1 '43 40w

FROST, FRANCES MARY, ed. Legends of the United nations. (Whittlesey house publication) 323p $2.50 McGraw 398.2 Legends 43-14971

Retells forty-seven characteristic folk tales of sixteen foreign lands and the United States. The countries are: Great Britain, Poland, China, Norway, Russia, Greece, Czechoslovakia, India, United States of America, Netherlands, Mexico, France, Yugoslavia, Brazil, Canada, Australia, Belgium.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p4 N 14 '43 70w
Booklist 40:98 N 15 '43

"A collection of the favorite stories—some beautiful, some strange—told to boys and girls in our allied countries for generations, retold with charm."
+ Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 20w

"The format of the book resembles that of a well-made textbook. The type is clear and well arranged. There is no frontispiece, and the illustrations are disappointing. The six pen-and-ink drawings are too toneless to appeal to children accustomed to the richly illustrated trade editions of today. The chief merits of the volume are its timeliness, the inclusion of new material, and the suitability of its style for those boys and girls who find the content of many anthologies too difficult to read." Evangeline Colburn
+ — El School J 44:247 D '43 380w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:404 N '43 50w

Reviewed by H. M. Brogan
Library J 68:965 N 15 '43 30w

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist
Library J 68:965 N 15 '43 70w

"The selections offer wide ranges of variety, seem well chosen for their typical qualities and are retold with zest and humor by Frances Frost." I. S.
+ N Y Times p16 N 14 '43 240w
New Yorker 19:133 D 4 '43 20w

Reviewed by Julia Emery
Social Educ 8:89 F '44 300w

"Now that folk tales are not so easily accessible, these will be especially appreciated by story tellers, although the wording is less quaint and formalized than in earlier sources. Special effort has been given to authenticity. Refugee children will recognize with delight the stories of their homeland so beautifully retold." M. E. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 17 '43 110w

"Sometimes the story is modified, as in 'Dick Whittington,' but as this constantly takes new forms in pantomime productions, so long as the outline is preserved, it remains within the canon. A melodious style, adapting itself to each country just enough to preserve its atmosphere, keeps the same general tune through the book, giving it unity in diversity and making it easy for story-tellers to memorize." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 O 24 '43 350w

FROST, JAMES V. Pre-service course in automotive mechanics. 545p il $2.50; school ed $1.96 Wiley
629.2 Automobiles 43-4535

Secondary school textbook covering a full year of study in automotive mechanics. Follows the outline prepared by the War department and the Office of education. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 39:429 Je 15 '43
Library J 68:431 My 15 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:4 Ja '43

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p12 S 5 '43 90w

FROST, ROBERT. Come in. 192p $2.50 Holt
811 43-4880

Collection of some eighty poems, selected from Frost's published works, with introduction and comments by Louis Untermeyer.

"The title is typically Frostian with its suggestion of friendliness and talkativeness. It sounds as if the poet is inviting you to become acquainted. Those of us who know him need no urging to step in. Those who have not experienced that pleasure will be instantly surprised and pleased. . . The only criticism one could make regarding the commentary is that Untermeyer need not have been so much on the defensive in regard to the poet, particularly this poet. Nearly every modern reader has come across something of Frost's." F. J. Bishop
+ — Book Week p8 Ap 18 '43 850w
Booklist 39:351 My 1 '43
Bookmark 4:10 Mr '43

Reviewed by Theodore Maynard
Cath World 157:552 Ag '43 200w

Reviewed by Pearl Strachan
Christian Science Monitor p10 My 1 '43 90w

"This is a charming introduction to Robert Frost, the man, and to his poetry—a choice book for your own library." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p4 Ag 26 '43 100w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:172 My '43 70w

"Louis Untermeyer makes no claim that these are the best of Frost. Apparently his intention has been simply to select from Frost's seven published volumes a number of poems which lend themselves to five general categories: stories, people, places, animals and things. Whatever Untermeyer's purpose in editing this volume, it is not a clearly defined one. And therein lies its real fault—if such a word can be applied to any book of poems by Robert Frost. As a bringer-together the book is certainly not satisfactory. . . Considered as an introduction to Frost for new readers, the book only serves to remind that Frost is one of those superb poets whose poetry is so exact and lucid that he needs no one to speak for him: his poetry speaks for itself." T. L. Collins
N Y Times p12 Ap 11 '43 600w

FROST, ROBERT—Continued

"One of the most distinguished volumes of poetry to appear in a long while." A. M. Jakeman

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 4 '43 360w

"Frost has long tried to write poetry like the living speech of men & women. He has succeeded: of all distinctive U.S. poets, the New England laureate is perhaps the least mystifying. But Editor Untermeyer feels that Frost's readers will profit by added interpretations and comment. . . Editor Untermeyer's comments contain a variety of information. The danger is that they may make it difficult to see the poems for the chewinks."

Time 41:100 Ap 12 '43 240w

"A charming book for everyone, and particularly for young people coming for the first time to an awareness of poetry. . . If only for 'Choose Something Like a Star' this fresh presentation of well loved poems would be a memorable book." G. F. Whicher

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ap 4 '43 650w

Wis Lib Bul 39:71 My '43

FRYKLUND, VERNE CHARLES. Trade and job analysis. 167p $1.75 Bruce pub.

658.511 Job analysis. Vocational education 42-15684

"Outline of underlying principles of trade and job analysis, which can be applied to any occupation requiring instruction. Author, the director of teacher-training classes at Armored Force School, Fort Knox, Kentucky, shows necessity for making analysis, describes functions of typical workers in industry, distinguishes between trade and job analysis and job description, job specifications, and organization and flow charts." Library J

Reviewed by H. A. Von Urff
Library J 67:627 Jl '42 90w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p25 Mr 28 '43 80w

FRYKLUND, VERNE CHARLES, and SECHREST, CHARLES H. Materials of construction. 276p il $2.75 Bruce pub.

620.1 Building materials 43-4246

"Non-technical work for elementary, trade, and high schools on the origin and fabrication of materials used in building and machine shop work." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 68:431 My 15 '43 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:5 Ja '43

FULLER, IOLA. Shining trail. 442p $3 Duell 43-51208

Novel based on the Black Hawk war. It opens in 1824 when the Sauk Indians of Illinois were still a proud and numerous people. When lead was discovered on Sauk lands, the Americans tried every way to get rid of the Indians. Black Hawk attempted to stave off trouble with the whites, but his efforts were of no use, and the war began. It ended only with massacre.

Atlantic 172:129 Jl '43 120w

"Miss Fuller's history, despite her prefatory statement that the incidents of the novel 'are based on historical fact, with no liberties taken,' is questionable, to put it mildly. . . Despite all this, it ought not to be thought that 'The Shining Trail' is without merit; Miss Fuller's intentions were clearly to put forth as comprehensive an account as possible of the Sauk way of life and in this she has certainly succeeded admirably." August Derleth

+ — Book Week p4 Jl 4 '43 650w
Booklist 39:463 Jl 15 '43
Bookmark 4:18 My '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Jl '43

Reviewed by H. A. Wooster
Library J 68:476 Je 1 '43 70w

" 'The Shining Trail' is a kind of folk epic, and its roots are primarily historical. Nevertheless, there is a warmth and intimacy to the story, a mellowness and humor, which derives from the skill with which Miss Fuller portrays her Indian characters and from the full-bodied life which she gives to them. . . As one who has almost a phobia against books about Indians, I found 'The Shining Trail' moving and liked it a lot." E. H. Walton

+ N Y Times p4 Je 20 '43 950w

"Because of her rare understanding and knowledge of Indian ways, Miss Fuller writes vividly and absorbingly of life in a Sauk village and on the warpath and draws a picture of the noble Chief Black Hawk that you won't forget in a hurry. Oddly, the book is quiet in tone despite its content."

+ New Yorker 19:69 Je 26 '43 110w

Reviewed by E. G. Eastman
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 18 '43 440w

"In a time when most historical novels are as cheap and as bad as they are profuse, Miss Fuller has written a historical novel about Indians that is as fine as anything I have read in a long time. I think it should be read and praised and acclaimed." Howard Fast

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Je 27 '43 750w

FULLER, JOHN FREDERICK CHARLES. Armored warfare; annot. ed. of Lectures on F.S.R. III (operations between mechanized forces); foreword by S. L. A. Marshall. 208p $1 Military service

355 Military art and science. Mechanization, Military 43-14026

"The present book is a reprint, with numerous explanatory and corrective notes, of an essay first published in 1932 and representing the author's well-reasoned, decided views upon mechanization and motorization of armed forces. Primarily it is a technical treatise giving in great detail the tactics to be employed in tank operations. Basically the teachings are sound and in accordance with age-old principles. But practically armored warfare has not gone in the direction predicted by General Fuller." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky
Book Week p2 Ag 15 '43 300w

"This is still a 'must' book for all students of the art of war, and that should include every officer of field rank." Murray Harris

+ N Y Times p20 Ag 22 '43 800w
Times [London] Lit Sup p616 D 25 '43 600w

"The author is fully aware of the fluid condition of today's war and in numerous notes corrects previous opinions which events have proven untenable. 'Armored Warfare' is mainly directed toward professionals and to them it will be of great value; for, though not always accurate as to prediction, it does lay down sound and valid tactical principles."

+ — Weekly Book Review p20 S 12 '43 380w

FULLER, JOHN FREDERICK CHARLES. Decisive battles of the U.S.A. 416p maps $4 Harper [18s Hutchinson]

973 U.S.—History, Military 42-50000

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Booklist 39:249 F 15 '43
Bookmark 4:12 Mr '43
Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 12 '43 230w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:581 Ap '43 20w
Times [London] Lit Sup p47 Ja 23 '43 1750w

"[General Fuller] accords generally with the best and latest American writings in the field —but his analyses are always stimulating and convincing. Nowhere is the grim Confederate fiasco at Gettysburg, with its confusion of conflicting plans, mussy verbal orders and bewildering indecision, more ably narrated. But this criticism is far from one-sided. Washington's stature, for example, suffers not at all from this book and Fuller's treatment of Pershing's leadership of the A. E. F. reaches heights of real praise." F. P. Todd

+ Weekly Book Review p18 Ap 11 '43 850w

FULLER, RAYMOND TIFFT. Now that we have to walk; exploring the out-of-doors. 256p $2.50 Dutton

574 Natural history. Walking 43-2964

"[The] author pleads: Give up the passive and vicarious pleasures of modern man. Take up a nature hobby and go after it. Walking, infinitely varied and good in itself, will open the way to an 'empire of hobbies'. Walk by night, in winter, in April, in May, with the children, in the marshes—but walk!" (Library J) Bibliography.

"In spite of the author's unorthodox style, which is as much a strain on the mind as it would be on the eyes if the book were set in six point type, and his over-fondness for italics, the book is evidence of much keen observation, and much originality of thought." L. D.

+ — Book Week p6 Mr 21 '43 270w

Booklist 39:313 Ap 1 '43

Bookmark 4:6 Mr '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

"One of the most delightful and unusual books on outdoor life and the mysteries of nature that I have read." G. O. Kelley

+ Library J 68:208 Mr 1 '43 110w

"'Now That We Have to Walk' is not all fancy. Written by a nature enthusiast who is also a scholar, it is a handy guidebook for the novice who wants to know such diverse things as how to treat a snake bite, how to plant trees or plaster walls and even where to go for further information. But more than such useful facts, it is the author's keen observations of animal life which make this book pleasant reading." Nona Balakian

+ N Y Times p25 Mr 28 '43 340w

"One of the most attractive books of this new year."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:4 Mr '43 250w

"There are several things about the Fuller work that are quite reminiscent of Thoreau and his writings. In the first place, Nature is not taught through routine pedagogic formulas but the reader catches a new enthusiasm and interest in the subject through the story of the author's very informal and highly interesting explorations and observations. Furthermore, one senses the innate curiosity and patience, in Fuller, which are part of the essential equipment of every true naturalist." C. B. M.

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 15 '43 550w

Weekly Book Review p15 Mr 14 '43 140w

Wis Lib Bul 39:71 My '43

FULLER, TIMOTHY. This is murder, Mr Jones. 246p $2 Little 43-4188

Detective story.

"The reader is privileged to listen in on one of the best and most original mystery yarns in a long time." Elizabeth Bullock

+ Book Week p11 Ap 4 '43 270w

Booklist 39:355 My 1 '43

"Familiar ingredients of chills and laughter expertly blended." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p10 My 23 '43 100w

"First class."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:35 Mr 20 '43 40w

"Jupiter Jones, hero of 'Harvard Has a Homicide' and other carefree mysteries, outdoes himself in this amusing tale of three fiendish killings in a radio set-up." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p18 Mr 14 '43 180w

FUNG, KWOK-YING. China; photographs arranged and edited by Fritz Henle. 192p $5 Holt

915.1 China—Civilization. Photographic books 43-9488

Collection of photographs of China, showing the cities, the hills, valleys, rivers, and mountains, and the people of China. Each picture has a short paragraph of description. Pictures and text are arranged under headings: architecture and sculpture; religion; education; life and livelihood; into tomorrow.

"In the past week in commemoration of six years of heroic resistance, two important books on China have been published. The first is a collection of the highly readable speeches of the Christian Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. The second is a large portfolio of breath-taking beauty containing some of the most exquisite photographs of China ever caught with sensitive lens." Sterling North

+ Book Week p3 Jl 11 '43 250w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick

Book Week p6 Ag 15 '43 120w

Booklist 40:11 S '43

"Most timely is the appearance of this book, for many persons must be looking for a quick introduction to America's ally in the East. The author writes in a style that is touched with poetic feeling at the same time it conveys warmly an appreciation of the Chinese as people who can be understood as human beings by any sympathetic person."

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 S 18 '43 180w

Commonweal 38:496 S 3 '43 140w

"Those who wish an introduction to Chinese civilization, and who seek to appreciate the kaleidoscopic nature of modern Chinese life with its constantly changing blend of old and new, will welcome the beautiful pictorial survey of Chinese life by Kwok Ying Fung." K. L. Mitchell

+ New Repub 109:463 O 4 '43 120w

Reviewed by Chen Yi

N Y Times p7 Jl 18 '43 360w

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 Jl '43 300w

"These photographs, beautiful in themselves for the most part, explain China's strength, it seems to me, as no one could do it in words. [The] text is pleasant reading, simple and instructive—like a good guide in a great gallery, he knows when to stop and step back and let the visitor get his own impressions." Rodney Gilbert

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Jl 18 '43 270w

Wis Lib Bul 39:158 D '43

FUNK, JOHN CLARENCE. Stay young and live! common sense about health in war time. 144p $1.75 Dietz

613 Hygiene 43-8461

"The author, who is director of education in Virginia's State Department of Health . . . sponsors no fads or frills; he has no advice to offer which doesn't apply to peace time as well as war time. Basically, he preaches the doctrine of moderation—in diet, in exercise, in expenditure of energy. For medical counsel, he thinks that the family doctor is better than the family radio." Weekly Book Review

"Middle-aged people who want to retain or improve their health so as to be able to cope successfully with the strains and trials of wartime living will find sensible advice here." M. N.

+ Book Week p6 My 23 '43 180w

+ Weekly Book Review p14 My 2 '43 280w

FURBAY, ELIZABETH JANE (DEARMIN) (MRS JOHN HARVEY FURBAY). Top hats and tom-toms. 307p il $3 Ziff-Davis

916.66 Liberia 43-17341

The author lived for three years in Monrovia, capital of Liberia, while her husband was head of the College of West Africa. Her book contains some notes on Liberian history, but is devoted chiefly to observations on present day manners and customs.

FURBAY, E. J. D.—Continued

Reviewed by Bucklin Moon
Book Week p11 N 28 '43 320w
Booklist 40:163 Ja 1 '44
Cath World 158:413 Ja '44 160w

"A worthwhile addition to material on this subject. Recommended." D. R. Homer
+ Library J 68:957 N 15 '43 80w
New Repub 109:757 N 29 '43 120w

Reviewed by Jonathan Daniels
Sat R of Lit 26:12 D 11 '43 650w

FURFEY, PAUL HANLY. History of social thought. 468p $2.75 Macmillan 301 Sociology—History 42-36372

"It traces the history of human thought about economic, political, and cultural life from prehistoric times to the present day and, while devoting major attention to the West, devotes chapters also to the ancient Near East and to the Far East. Social thinkers are presented in their own historical setting, and brief summaries of the main features of their thought are given. A selected bibliography of primary and secondary sources is appended." (J Religion) Index.

"While certain chapters (e.g. the one on the New Testament) give the expected special interpretations, the non-Catholic finds much less of special slanting than is found in most of the recent textbooks intended for Catholic consumption. In fact, the reviewer noted a refreshing urbanity and breadth of view, and relatively little of the militant and stubborn dogmatism often found. At the same time, he seemed to discern the absence of many of the great 'seminal' ideas that have given 'precious individuals' conceptions of and stimuli to glorious and often fruitful adventures in social thinking and institutional reorganization." J. O. Hertzler
+ — Ann Am Acad 226:196 Mr '43 400w
Cath World 157:222 My '43 230w

"Dr. Furfey's competence in his field is well established. Apart from his recognized scholarship, he has evinced a practical interest in social problems, as his work with the Negroes in Washington attests. But more than academic maturity was needed to write this volume. Its most attractive characteristic is its organization and balance." J. N. Moody
+ Commonweal 37:331 Ja 15 '43 490w

"The author states in the preface that although he has written his book from the Catholic viewpoint he has tried to deal fairly with divergent opinions. On the whole, he has succeeded well in this effort. Many biblical scholars will probably raise a skeptical eyebrow when they read that Catholic scholars have defended successfully the Mosaic authorship of the whole Pentateuch (p. 61); Protestant readers will be surprised to find the statement that 'Non-Catholic writers almost always . . . represent Christ as an attractive social leader like Mo Tzu'. . . They will also be disappointed to find that neither the Anabaptists nor the Quakers, the English Christian socialists of the nineteenth century nor the social gospel movement in America are even mentioned. However, one is only too well aware of similar shortcomings on the Protestant side, and therefore these criticisms are not intended to overshadow the profound scholarship and painstaking labor which breathe from every page of Dr. Furfey's book." Herbert Gezork
+ — Crozer Q 20:256 Jl '43 500w

"A timely and useful book. . . The treatment is, on the whole, very objective, though he betrays a Catholic bias in dealing with Luther and Calvin and is one-sided in his treatment of the seventeenth-century naturalists. . . The principal value lies in a healthy combination of social theory with social life, so that Dr. Furfey escapes the abstractness so often characteristic of such works." E. E. Aubrey
+ — J Religion 23:74 Ja '43 200w

FURMAN, ABRAHAM L., ed. Mystery companion. 438p $2.75 Gold label
44-165

Collection of short mystery and detective stories, none previously published. Contents: Active duty, by Richard Sale; The body in the ostrich cage, by Vincent Starrett; The sword of God, by Hal Hode; The Greek Poropulos, by Edgar Wallace; Bond of reunion, by Carl Carmer; Believe it or die, by Philip Ketchum; Yours truly, Jack the Ripper, by Robert Bloch; The street of the little candles, by J. F. Cooke; The blackout murders, by A. V. Elston; "You're killing me!" by Dale Clark; If the dead could talk, by Cornell Woolrich; America's most famous murder, by G. L. Porter; The judge finds the body, by Geoffrey Homes; The phantom slayer, by Fritz Leiber, Jr.; Tears of the virgin, by T. G. Springer; Me and his majesty and trouble, by J. C. Stacey; Death in a gray mist, by Frank Owen; A pair of gloves, by Carl Carmer; The man in the cask, by Vincent Starrett.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p5 Ja 2 '44 180w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p18 D 12 '43 140w

"A few good stories but, as whole, collection is not above average."
Sat R of Lit 26:38 D 11 '43 20w

"You'll find a generous amount of varied reading in this collection . . . some much better than others and all worth the attention of omnivorous fans." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p46 D 5 '43 500w

FURNIVALL, JOHN SYDENHAM. Educational progress in southeast Asia; with a supplement on Training for native self-rule, by Bruno Lasker. 186p $2 Inst. of Pacific relations
370.959 Education—Asia 43-12704

"Besides giving an illuminating comparative survey of prewar educational methods and policies in Malaya, Burma, Thailand, Indo-China, the Netherlands Indies, and the Philippines, the author discusses many problems of education and cultural adjustment likely to emerge after the war in the colonial regions of Asia. Bruno Lasker contributes a Supplement, 'Training for Native Self-Rule.'" (School & Society) Index.

"The book is a depressing story of excellent intentions and very disappointing results." L. A. Mills
Am Pol Sci R 37:1133 D '43 350w

"The essay is full of stimulating ideas, and one can only regret that its 'supplemental' character required a condensation which leaves little room for fuller exposition." J. O. M. Broek
Ann Am Acad 231:179 Ja '44 500w
Booklist 40:61 O 15 '43

"Between his historical introduction and his conclusion Mr. Furnivall has filled the pages of his short study with good reading and good sense." Sir Frederick Whyte
+ Manchester Guardian p3 S 22 '43 320
School & Society 58:128 Ag 21 '43 60w

FUSON, REYNOLD CLAYTON, and SNYDER, HAROLD RAY. Organic chemistry. 506p $3.50 Wiley
547 Chemistry, Organic 42-19812

"Textbook designed primarily to familiarize the beginner with the principal types of organic compounds, together with particular emphasis on the use of organic reactions in synthesis." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"With the appearance of this text, the instructor who has been considering the desirability of the survey and review type of first year course in organic chemistry now has available an excellent text for such a course." A. H. Blatt
+ Am Chem Soc J 65:125 Ja '43 300w

"In a book of this type naturally certain things must be omitted for the sake of new material, but some teachers may find the treatment of terpenes too sketchy, others may find a lack of pertinent physical chemistry, and many may note a very brief treatment or the absence of some of the more usual subject matter. This book is distinctly more advanced than the average text written for the first year of organic chemistry. Although it is 'tailor-made' the organization permits great flexibility in its use and also full latitude in choosing the pitch of the course. In spite of the above criticism, the book presents an unusual and up-to-date account of organic chemistry and should prove to be an excellent text in courses of the survey and review type. The reviewer enjoyed reading it and feels that many practicing chemists might find it interesting. The publishers should be congratulated on the quality of printing and the attractive make-up." S. N. Wrenn

+ — Chem & Eng N 21:575 Ap 25 '43 600w
N Y New Tech Bks 27:54 O '42

G

GABRIEL, RALPH HENRY. Main currents in American history. 221p $1.50 Appleton-Century

973 U.S.—History 43-558

"The chapters in the present volume were prepared as lectures for the educational program of the Second Army that was carried out in the winter and spring of 1942. The emphasis on American history in this course was the result of the desire of Lieutenant General Ben Lear, who commanded the army, to give his men an understanding of the fundamentals of the American democratic pattern. . . The entire course of lectures has been published with some adaptations, under the title School of the Citizen Soldier. . . These chapters have been reprinted from that volume." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 39:272 Mr 1 '43

"The reviewer misses Negro history, immigrant history, labor history, and the history of women, among the main currents of growth and democracy. Would not the moment of universal service be a timely one to give these human elements proportional representation in the official chronicle? The book is frequently an eloquent one, and one which should serve successfully its double task of information and inspiration." C. A. Barker

+ — New Eng Q 16:331 Je '43 350w

GABRIELSON, IRA NOEL. Wildlife refuges. 257p il maps $4 Macmillan

719.36 Wild life, Conservation of 43-4885

"The story of the national wildlife refuge system administered by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service. . . Enough of the history and status of all types of refuges in North America has been included to give an overall picture of present conditions." (Pref) Illustrated with photographs. Bibliography. Index.

"This is a fascinating book even for the reader who approaches it disinterestedly. For it is the story of huge flocks of birds and herds of animals that roam the wildlife refuges, and of the romantic aspects of America's belated attempt to restore a primitive magnificence to this continent." Leonard Dubkin

+ Book Week p11 Je 27 '43 550w
Booklist 39:350 My 1 '43
Bookmark 4:9 My '43

"Authoritative and comprehensive, the book is an invaluable reference and an inspiring record of accomplishment in what had long seemed a losing fight. It is, besides, fascinating reading in its own right and should bring many visitors to the parks and wildlife refuges when travel is again unrestricted." Anita Moffett

+ N Y Times p8 Ap 25 '43 460w

"For everyone interested in conservation this should be a reference book to stand where the hand will go out to it with ease whenever a fact is to be verified or statistics to be checked." D. C. Peattie

+ Sat R of Lit 26:36 My 15 '43 400w

"While the information on the national refuges is from the files of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service or from published material based on them, the story has really been written 'against a background of personal observation, in the course of which every major national refuge, except one, has been visited at least once,' as well as most of those in Alaska, most of our national parks, some of the Canadian and Mexican ones, and many state and private refuges."

Scientific Bk Club R 14:4 Ap '43 390w
Springf'd Republican p6 My 3 '43 650w
Wis Lib Bul 39:83 Je '43

"The seventeen chapters of this book provide a one-volume library on conservation in America. No other book on the subject I have ever encountered contains so much meat —well cooked and well seasoned. To any one who has become confused by the multitude of conflicting voices crying in the vanishing wilderness, this volume will present a clear, fair and well rounded picture of the problems and progress of wildlife restoration." E. W. Teale

+ Weekly Book Review p15 My 9 '43 800w

GACH, GENE. In the army now. 283p $2 Dodd

355.12 U.S.—Army—Military life 42-24777

Personal narrative of the author's day-by-day experiences as a draftee, recruit, and private in the army.

"Light, sometimes hilarious, a bit cynical, with undertones of seriousness, 'In the Army Now' will reintroduce five million men in the service to friends and relatives they left behind." P. J. Searles

+ Books p21 Ja 17 '43 700w

Reviewed by S. E. Hyman

New Repub 108:254 Mr 15 '43 120w

GAFAFER, WILLIAM MCKINLEY, ed. Manual of industrial hygiene and medical service in war industries; issued under the auspices of the Com. on industrial medicine of the Division of medical sciences of the Nat. research council; prepared by the Division of industrial hygiene, Nat. inst. of health, U.S. public health service. 508p il $3 Saunders

613.6 Hygiene, Industrial

"This book is intended not only as a source of information for industrial physicians who must meet the changed conditions in industries converted to war purposes, but as a guide for those who patriotically volunteer to take the places of industrial physicians who have gone into the service. Contains 20 illustrations." Chem & Eng N

"Whatever faults the book has are inevitable in a compilation of individual contributors. Nevertheless, each is a specialist and an authority in his field and the executive, personnel manager, safety engineer, or others concerned with the conservation of manpower in industry should read this book. The chemist who seeks complete information on specific poisoning hazards of industry must continue to refer to other sources." W. C. L. Hemeon

+ — Chem & Eng N 21:1466 S 10 '43 250w
Chem & Eng N 21:1655 O 10 '43 50w
Library J 68:626 Ag '43 40w

"The entire treatment is very practical, with much specific advice. Medical men in industry will find the book of value but those in management could also read it with profit, to understand a problem they may not otherwise fully appreciate." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Jl 4 '43 250w

GAG, WANDA, tr. and il. See Grimm, J. L. K. and W. K. Three gay tales

GAIDAR, ARKADII PETROVICH. Timur and his gang; tr. by Zina Voynow; il by Zhenya Gay. 151p $1.75 Scribner 43-16875

This story of Russian boys and girls tells how young Timur organized a "gang", not to indulge in destructive pranks and hoodlumism, but to help the families of Red Army men. The scene of the story is a small community near Moscow, the story ends with the beginning of the war between Russia and Germany

---

"Timur may be the Tom Sawyer of Russia, but I doubt that he will appeal to our children in the same way. The story changes viewpoint so often and so suddenly that it is impossible to identify oneself with one character long enough for interest to remain high. . . It is a book which should be read and which should be given to children to read because of the important role it has played in Russia. But to this one reader at least, the translation seems unnatural and unconvincing." P. A. Whitney
Book Week p46 D 5 '43 320w
Booklist 40:167 Ja 1 '44

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:37 Ja '44 120w

"Interesting, thought-provoking and fortunate in its title." K. H. McAlarney
+ Library J 69:73 Ja 15 '44 80w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 10w

"If the story does not conform to our usual American pattern the point to remember is that this is a pure Russian product, not recast in translation. The publisher plans to present an authentic story of young people from each of our Allied countries. The Russian contribution to better understanding is a valuable book for young Americans 10 to 14, which shows with mounting intensity and uttermost restraint the spirit of Soviet youth in humble service to its cause." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p8 N 14 '43 330w

"The story is no less exciting and inspiring for being as true as yesterday's battle news. In fact it's an important part of the war news and the war effort." E. C. T.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 26 '43 70w

"The exploits of Timur's boys, with the aid of energetic girls, sound rather like those of the Junior Commandos of Little Orphan Annie, and the book has much the same relation to literature that she has to art. But our Superkid is fantasy: Timur, fact." M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p18 N 14 '43 150w

GALDSTON, IAGO. Behind the sulfa drugs. 174p $2 Appleton-Century
615.1 Chemotherapy. Sulfonamides 43-4902

Brief history of chemotherapy from the time of Paracelsus to the discovery and use of the sulfa drugs of the present. Contents: Chemotherapy ancient and modern; At the end of the rainbow; Microbes and dyes; Death to the microbes; Paul Ehrlich: The saga of Salvarsan; The doldrum years; The triumph of chemotherapy; Stay of execution—not full pardon. Index.

Reviewed by E. A. Bliss
Am J Pub Health 33:1369 N '43 270w

"A book that reads like an intriguing novel." Israel Davidsohn
+ Book Week p4 My 16 '43 170w
Booklist 39:349 My 1 '43

"Excellent, very readable history. . . Recommended." H. A. von Urff
+ Library J 68:170 F 15 '43 20w
New Repub 109:54 Jl 12 '43 90w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:41 Jl '43

Reviewed by A. H. Compton & others
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:1 Mr '43 1150w

"Though simply and entertainingly written, 'Behind the Sulfa Drugs' is not a book for those who like their medical and scientific reading bubbling with melodrama and half-truths. This brief history of chemotherapy will completely disillusion anyone who conceives of research as a jaunty progression from one miracle to another." M. R. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p8 Ap 21 '43 650w
Wis Lib Bul 39:71 My '43

GALE, LEAH, ed. Favorite bedtime stories; il. by Miss Elliott. [52p] 50c Random house
Fairy tales 43-15364

Contents: The brave little tailor; The Bremen town musicians; The nightingale; Sleeping beauty; Jack and the beanstalk; Toads and diamonds; Beauty and the beast; Why the sea is salt; The fisherman and his wife; The elves and the shoemaker; Rumpelstiltskin; The white cat; Rapunzel. Also combined with Favorite Nursery Stories, in one volume with the title: Favorite Tales of Long Ago ($1 Random house 43-15366)

Booklist 40:116 D 1 '43 (Review of Favorite Tales of Long Ago)

"Illustrations by Miss Elliott are unusually attractive. They have gay color and humor, with amusing marginal motifs in sepia, all making a very attractive book for third- and fourth-grade readers. Recommended." J. E. Wooster
+ Library J 68:893 N 1 '43 80w (Review of Favorite Tales of Long Ago)
New Yorker 19:132 D 4 '43 60w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 7 '43 50w

GALE, LEAH, ed. Favorite nursery stories; il. by Miss Elliott. [38p] 50c Random house
Fairy tales 43-15367

Contents: Jack the giant killer; The emperor's new clothes; Bluebeard; Snow White and the seven dwarfs; The real princess; Hansel and Gretel; Cinderella. Also combined with Favorite Bedtime Stories, in one volume with the title: Favorite Tales of Long Ago ($1 Random House 43-15366).

Booklist 40:116 D 1 '43 (Review of Favorite Tales of Long Ago)

Reviewed by J. E. Wooster
+ Library J 68:893 N 1 '43 80w (Review of Favorite Tales of Long Ago)
New Yorker 19:132 D 4 '43 60w

"The pictures are beautifully done and each page is charmingly decorated. Children will appreciate the lovely coloring in these pictures and the aptness of the small sketches." J. P.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 7 '43 50w

GALLAGHER, RORY. Lady in waiting; an intimate journal of a labor of love; with sketches by Barsis. 243p $2.50 Daye
618.21 Pregnancy 43-11539

Witty journal of a young mother-to-be, awaiting her first baby. The prenatal care books fail to work, but Pat's wife carries on, and the baby arrives safely, but a little off schedule.

"The publishers seem to think that their offering will shock people on some strange moral ground, thereby indicating that they know nothing of morals. If one is to criticize the book adversely, it must rather be on the obvious ground of bad taste and of wackiness. Of course there are funny things connected with pregnancy just as there are funny things connected with every common human activity and state. But it would take a sure literary genius to make a book out of such matter."
Commonweal 38:592 O 1 '43 140w

"Entirely nontechnical and amusing but, nevertheless, helpful book. . . This lady has a grand sense of humor—only for very brief intervals does she take herself seriously—and consequently writes a most entertaining account that will be thoroughly enjoyed by all parents and parents-to-be." Lena Ruppert

+ Library J 68:529 Je 15 '43 50w

"The funniest description of waiting for junior that has appeared in years. . . Every woman who has had a baby will recognize herself in this lady in waiting, and every husband will probably recognize his wife." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 11 '43 220w

GALLAGHER, WESLEY. Back door to Berlin; the full story of the American coup in North Africa. 242p il $2.75 Doubleday

940.542 World war, 1939—Africa, North. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-51290

An Associated Press correspondent, attached to General Eisenhower's headquarters, gives in terse but readable fashion the story of the African campaign, from the first plans to the expulsion of the Germans. He also explains the reasons for the Allied dealings with Darlan and Vichy.

Atlantic 172:131 N '43 120w

Booklist 40:75 N 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '43

"Terse, exciting, factual." J. H. Berthel
+ Library J 68:666 S 1 '43 110w

Reviewed by Jay Allen
New Repub 109:581 O 25 '43 1200w

"Mr. Gallagher is a straightforward writer with a critical eye, a realist who was willing to accept our dealing with Darlan but never for a moment admired or approved of the late not-too-lamented admiral. His judgment on Darlan as a person seems eminently sensible. . . Gallagher's faith in General Eisenhower and his wonderment at the man's talents glow through every page." Philip Hamburger
+ N Y Times p6 S 26 '43 900w

"'Back Door to Berlin' is a valuable addition to the number of books written about the occupation of North Africa. Mr. Gallagher has written a tight and accurate book. Unfortunately, without a map it is hardly possible to follow the military actions. And most of the detailed accounts of hand-to-hand fightings rather confuse than elucidate the strategic situations of one of the most spectacular exploits in all history." H. B. Kranz
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:5 S 25 '43 650w

"It is a factual account, rather than a personal one; it is guiltless of master-minding and heroics alike; and it is written in a simple, clean, unemotional and spirited style and a fast-moving tempo. . . But by far the greater part is the stirring story of the military operations themselves, told both in lively detail and in broad sweep and purpose." W. R. Deuel
+ Weekly Book Review p6 S 26 '43 1050w

GANGULEE, NAGENDRANATH. Freedom to achieve freedom; constituent assembly for India. 304p $5 Norton [16s Allen, G.]

954 India—Politics and government. Constitutional conventions [A43-974]

"The Indian nationalists repudiate the assertion that the British Parliament has the sovereign right to decide India's political destiny, and demand the convocation of an elected Constituent Assembly in order to frame the constitution for India. But there still appears to be somewhat nebulous thinking about the concept, the purpose and the method of a Constituent Assembly for India. In this book, the author attempts to clarify the issue by a survey of the Constituent Assemblies in Europe and the United States of America. . . The author then examines the problem of summoning a Constituent Assembly for India. He deals with the Government of India Act of 1935 and sets forth in clear terms why it has failed to meet Indian National demand." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by H. P. Goss
Am Pol Sci R 37:1131 D '43 220w

"A statement, logical if not entirely reasonable, of the point of view of the Congress Party, by a former professor at the University of Calcutta." R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:165 O '43 30w

Times [London] Lit Sup p26 Ja 16 '43 420w

GARBEDIAN, HAIG GORDON. George Westinghouse; fabulous inventor; with photographic supplement. 235p $2.50 Dodd

B or 92 Westinghouse, George 43-3490

Biography of one of America's most famous inventors. As a boy George Westinghouse was not a good scholar, but was fascinated with his father's machine shop. At thirty-five he became famous, with his invention of the Westinghouse airbrake, and from then to his death at sixty-eight he was constantly working on new mechanical devices. Will be useful in junior and senior high schools.

Booklist 39:338 Ap 15 '43

"Well written and readable biography. . . Recommended for boys and girls twelve to sixteen." Emily Hutson
+ Library J 68:330 Ap 15 '43 110w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p8 Je 20 '43 550w

GARBUTT, MRS KATHARINE (KENDIG). Michael, the colt; il. by Bernard Garbutt. (Nursery bks) 38p 85c Houghton

Horses—Legends and stories 43-51128

Story of a colt named Michael, with many drawings, showing his course from babyhood to the time when he was taken to the country to live with other horses and colts, and learn to play.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p9 My 23 '43 130w

Booklist 39:373 My 15 '43

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 1 '43 50w

"The soft, appealing drawings show a new baby colt learning to manage its movements as a young animal must. A suitable story is told in simple style which will interest and please a five-year old." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:170 My '43 50w

Reviewed by J. E. Stromdahl
Library J 68:478 Je 1 '43 70w

"A simple, friendly text, with endearing drawings obviously made by some one who loves horses and knows them well."
+ N Y Times p16 My 16 '43 100w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Sat R of Lit 26:27 My 15 '43 30w

Sat R of Lit 26:29 My 15 '43 20w

"This story is so true of a colt that it is true of babyhood in general, as the best stories of young animals are. It makes a proper introduction of horses to a tiny city child." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p9 My 23 '43 350w

Wis Lib Bul 39:87 Je '43

GARD, ALEX. Sailors in boots. [32p] $1 Scribner

741.5 Drawings. U.S.—Navy—Pictorial works 43-4435

"Alex Gard is the Russian-born artist whose 'Ballet Laughs' made a hit two years ago and whose drawings have decorated the dramatic section of the New York Herald-Tribune (and one wall of a swank Gotham restaurant). During the last war Mr Gard served in the Russian navy. In this one he enlisted as a quartermaster in our navy; he went through regular 'boot' training at Norfolk last year. The by product is this slim book of drawings." Springf'd Republican

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 21 '43 110w

GARD, ALEX—Continued

"There is just enough caricature to be funny and not enough to hurt the feelings of a youth who has just put on the leggings that are 'boots' of the apprentice seaman—a youth whose efforts to play the man the pictures represent with something very like affection. Gard has been a favorite caricaturist on the dramatic section of the Herald Tribune, and before that in Paris on 'Le Matin.' "
+ Weekly Book Review p26 Mr 7 '43 250w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Case of the buried clock. 244p $2 Morrow 43-6286

Detective story.

"If you've never met that smooth, detective-lawyer Perry Mason (a most unlikely eventuality) don't waste time reading what I have to say about him; go out and get this book." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p11 My 23 '43 200w
Booklist 39:389 Je 1 '43

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 My 16 '43 80w

" 'The Case of the Buried Clock' is Erle Stanley Gardner's latest Perry Mason story and it's well up in front with the best of them."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 16 '43 170w

"This volume arrives at a moment when the market is not overstocked with mystery masterpieces. Decidedly, the whodunit of the week." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p21 My 16 '43 500w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Case of the drowsy mosquito. 248p $2 Morrow 43-13073

Detective story.

"Not the best of Gardner's prolific crop, but well worth reading." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p8 S 19 '43 110w
Booklist 40:48 O 1 '43

"This is typical Erle Stanley Gardner stuff, without a dull moment in it." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p8 S 12 '43 80w
New Yorker 19:87 S 11 '43 70w

"Very good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:29 S 18 '43 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e S 19 '43 220w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 S 12 '43 200w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Case of the smoking chimney. 250p $2 Morrow 42-51968

Detective story.

Booklist 39:225 F 1 '43

"Here is Mr. Gardner in genial, jocular and sometimes whimsical mood. Okay." Will Cuppy
+ Books p13 Ja 10 '43 350w

"We sincerely hope that Gramps Wiggins will be with us again soon."
+ N Y Times p8 Ja 10 '43 180w

"Very good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 F 6 '43 40w

"To this reviewer our hero is pretty incredible. Perhaps Mr Gardner or his publishers may have guessed Gramps would be hard to swallow, for on the jacket we find a picture of his prototype. Anyway, it's a good quick story done in the author's familiar style."
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 24 '43 180w
Time 41:88 F 1 '43 30w

GARDNER, MURRAY FRANK, and BARNES, JOHN LANDES. Transients in linear systems; studied by the Laplace transformation; v. 1, Lumped-constant systems. 389p $5 Wiley

621.3192 Transients (electricity). Transformations (mathematics) (43-366)

"Volume 1. Lumped-constant systems. Simplest and most practical presentation of advanced mathematical methods for handling, not only ordinary intro-differential equations, but also difference and partial differential equations. Systematic presentation of how to set up physical problems in mathematical form." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"An excellent book designed for first year graduate students in electrical engineering."
+ Book Week p10 My 2 '43 10w
Library J 68:431 My 15 '43 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:30 Ap '43

Reviewed by S. O. Rice
R of Scientific Instruments 14:316 O '43 900w

GARNER, MRS ELVIRA. Little cat lost; pictures by Diana Thorne. [28p] $2 Messner 43-14767

Picture-story book about a kitten, Bagatelle, discarded by her wealthy family, but after a period of lonesomeness and distress, discovered by two children and carried home by them.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p8 N 14 '43 110w

"Bagatelle is a green-eyed kitten brought up at first in luxury, and then turned out into a cold world. His efforts to find a friend are shown in engaging pictures by a master hand. His adventures are not sad enough to hurt sensitive feelings and soon the right children find him." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:402 N '43 50w

"A book that will awaken in young children a sympathy for mistreated animals. Beautiful full-page illustrations in color by Diana Thorne. Recommended." Olive Brain
+ Library J 68:1008 D 1 '43 40w

"A story with a happy ending that children from 5 to 8 will enjoy." A. T. E.
N Y Times p24 N 14 '43 220w

"Here are the best kitten pictures of the year, practically life size, in convincingly natural colors, with a story that is strongly appealing to little children who own any animal." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p7 N 14 '43 300w

GARRARD, PHILLIS. Jenny's secret island; a story of Bermuda; il. by Dan Sweeney. 277p $2 Winston 43-5930

Story of a vivacious young girl living on an island in the Bermudas. There is a shipwreck and a mystery to keep things moving in this story for older girls.

"The story is warm, human and adventurous, possessing that intangible something which demands that I rank it as a favorite book." V. L. Bangs
+ Book Week p8 My 30 '43 160w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p10 My 27 '43 50w

"A good title, unusual background full of color and sunshine, an adequate mystery, and a plot that might be possible, though it seems unlikely. . . Style is lively, characterization good." Gertrude Andrus
+ Library J 68:578 Jl '43 70w

"Do not recommend." E. A. Groves
— Library J 68:578 Jl '43 100w

"This story for older girls is light but fundamentally sound in its understanding of teen-age temperament. The dialogue is briskly youthful and the vivid Bermuda background makes this tantalizing but very pleasant reading for a stay-at-home vacation." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p16 Je 27 '43 200w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Sat R of Lit 26:40 Je 19 '43 50w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p18 My 23 '43 450w

GARRIGOU-LAGRANGE, REGINALD. The one God. 736p $6 Herder

231 God. Thomas Aquinas, Saint—Summa theologica 43-11888

"This volume is by no means a repetition or a summary of Father Garrigou's already well known works on God: His Existence and His Nature, and on Providence and Predestination. As the sub-title indicates, it is a commentary on the first twenty-six questions of the Summa Theologica. It is concerned primarily with direct exposition of the Catholic and Thomist doctrine, and only incidentally with the teaching of their opponents." Cath World

"Dom Bede Rose is to be congratulated on his translation, which in spite of the difficulty of the subject, is lucid and most readable."
+ Cath World 157:665 S '43 290w

"The work is admirably printed and presented, and should be of great usefulness to seminaries and to all students of theology."
+ Commonweal 38:472 Ag 27 '43 60w

GARRISON, CHARLOTTE GANO, and SHEEHY, EMMA DICKSON. At home with children; the guide to pre-school play and training. 256p $2.50 Holt

649.5 Play. Children 43-6187

"The authors of this book discuss play in a practical, concrete manner, carrying it through various stages necessary for the satisfactory development of children of every temperament. Suggestions graduate from first toys for the child who is ready only for clumsy repetition, to play which requires the development of real skill. There is a chapter on play indoors and one on play outdoors. In the section called 'Children Like to Make Things' the creative urge comes in for its fair share of discussion. . . There is one [chapter] on first introductions to music: the guiding of the child's interest in rhythm until he can make distinct rhythms of his own and is ready to listen to more complicated sounds made by others. Here again a musical library is suggested. Further chapters are given over to art and science in the life of the very young child." (Book Week) Chapter bibliographies. No index.

"This is the sort of book for which I searched in vain when my own daughter was growing into her first need for toys. There were plenty of books to guide me in raising a healthy baby, but at that time there was none given over wholly to the playtime life of the preschool child. . . The whole book is a particularly fine guide for parents." P. A. W.
+ Book Week p7 Ap 25 '43 250w
Booklist 39:364 My 15 '43
Bookmark 4:8 My '43

Reviewed by J. E. Wooster
Library J 68:479 Je 1 '43 70w

"If you so much as play peek-a-boo with a baby on week-ends, don't miss this book." C. M.
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 8 '43 290w

"Parents can learn a good deal from a book of this nature, provided that they use it sensibly. Most mothers and fathers have neither the time nor the temperament to devote as much attention to their children as child guidance experts consider desirable, and very few could begin to supply all the play equipment that children could utilize to advantage in the nursery or the yard. Nevertheless, most parents could profit by the useful general information on children's habits and preferences in entertainment to be found in 'At Home with Children' and they will also find many helpful suggestions on specific points having to do with toys, tools, children's books and phonograph records." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 2 '43 400w

"Concrete suggestions to parents as to places in which children play and things to play with are included in this thoroughgoing guide to preschool training, but, though given prominence in the book, are not its only claim to usefulness in homes or nursery schools. Quite possibly its greatest value to young mothers will be in its ability to convey a strong sense of the importance of play in the little child's life, and of the thought that should be given to it by those who have his life in charge before he goes to school."
+ Weekly Book Review p16 My 9 '43 270w
Wis Lib Bul 39:82 Je '43

GASSNER, JOHN, and NICHOLS, DUDLEY, eds. Twenty best film plays. 1112p $3.50 Crown

812.08 Moving picture plays 43-17501

Scripts of twenty-one movies of recent years, with two introductory chapters: The screenplay as literature, by John Gassner; The writer and the film, by Dudley Nichols. Contents: It happened one night, by Robert Riskin; The women, by Anita Loos and Jane Murfin; My man Godfrey, by Morrie Ryskind and Eric Hatch; Here comes Mr. Jordan, by Sidney Buchman and S. I. Miller; Rebecca, by R. E. Sherwood and Joan Harrison; Wuthering Heights, by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur; The grapes of wrath, by Nunnally Johnson; How green was my valley, by Philip Dunne; Make way for tomorrow, by Vina Delmar; Little Caesar, by F. E. Faragoh; Fury, by Bartlett Cormack and Fritz Lang; Mr. Smith goes to Washington, by Sidney Buchman; The life of Emile Zola, by Heinz Herald and others; Juarez, by John Huston and others; Mrs Miniver, by James Hilton and others; This land is mine, by Dudley Nichols; The good earth, by Talbot Jennings and others; All that money can buy, by Dan Totheroh and S. V. Benet; Stagecoach, by Dudley Nichols; Yellow Jack, by Edward Chodorov; The fight for life, by Pare Lorentz.

Booklist 40:141 D 15 '43

"This anthology has long been needed. For all libraries regardless of size. Highly recommended."
+ Library J 69:72 Ja 15 '44 70w

"A major part of most screen plays is not dialogue but stage setting, skeleton indications of movement and visual emphasis. And a large part of that very visual element, as it finally evolves on the screen and bestows on the film its particular character, can never be caught on paper. So the person who reads these film plays must be willing to call his visual imagination strongly into play and to look for other than purely literary qualities in the writing. This does not mean that the dialogue itself is barren of interest or drama or laughs. It Happened One Night is still a hilarious tale, and even Here Comes Mr. Jordan, whose humor depended so much on visual contradictions, emerges in print as a warm and appealing fantasy. . . But perhaps the most satisfactory script from the reader's point of view is The Good Earth where dialogue is at a minimum and the story is propelled more often than not by visual means."
+ Theatre Arts 28:62 Ja '44 1100w

"This welcome collection is not intended to teach any one how to write scenarios, though it might conceivably do so. The screen plays included are, indeed, a sort of approximation of the various kinds of scripts actually used on the studio stages or in the cutting and recording rooms. The chief pleasure that they afford is unquestionably that of recollection." Iris Barry
+ Weekly Book Review p14 Ja 16 '44 950w

GATES, DORIS. Sensible Kate; a story; il. by Marjorie Torrey. 189p $2 Viking 43-51256

Ten-year-old Kate was red headed and freckle faced and no one could call her pretty, but everybody called her sensible. Kate was an orphan, passed about from one relative to another until she found a home with Nora and Christopher, who certainly needed someone sensible added to their household. For grades four to six.

GATES, DORIS—Continued

"I hope this book will find its way into the hands and hearts of a great many little girls from 8 to 10. In 'Sensible Kate' Doris Gates (who will be remembered for 'Blue Willow' last year) has written a heart-warming story of real worth." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p6 N 14 '43 270w

Booklist 40:49 O 1 '43

"Here is a rare book, an unusually live story about real, friendly people set in the midst of a little California seaside town, and Marjorie Torrey's pictures are just right." F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 N 15 '43 180w

"Kate had more than sense. She had the kind of personality which endeared her to the people who knew her. Her story will be a favorite with girls of the middle age group." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:407 N '43 90w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:822 O 15 '43 70w

"Viewpoint is adult, and Kate more introspective than normal little girls her age. Read and test before buying freely." R. O. Bostwick
Library J 68:962 N 15 '43 80w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p8 Ja 9 '44 280w

"Miss Gates has shown unusual sympathy and understanding of children in this book. Kate will stand out among the characters in books for boys and girls, as Janey Larkin stood out in 'Blue Willow.' Marjorie Torrey's drawings are excellent." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 26:33 D 11 '43 250w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p8 D 12 '43 450w
Wis Lib Bul 40:11 Ja '44

GATTI, ATTILIO. Adventure in black and white; il. by Kurt Wiese. 172p $1.75 Scribner 43-8277

Adventures of an American boy and his native friend Loko-Moto, in Africa. Bob is lost in the jungle, and is taken in by friendly pigmies. He is separated from Loko-Moto for a time, but the two are re-united and help to solve the mystery of a saboteur. For boys of ten to twelve.

"The writer knows his Africa and makes his story convincing as well as exciting." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:238 Jl '43 70w

"Swift-moving modern adventure story for boys ten to twelve." Dorotha Dawson
+ Library J 68:576 Jl '43 40w

"The sum total adds up to a rip-snorting tale, not of the classic proportions of 'Saranga,' but one which is exciting enough to be a good substitute for 'Superman'—and a much more amusing one." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p16 Je 27 '43 380w
New Yorker 19:126 D 4 '43 50w
Sat R of Lit 26:34 N 13 '43 40w

"This story is for boys of 10 to 12. It has adventure, mystery and everything that boys treasure and enjoy." J. N. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 20 '43 200w

"Thronging excitements are in the story, and a fairly transparent mystery, and the ever-alluring jungle, and lots of boy-talk, carried on in moments of emergency with as few words as cubs or kittens use to tell each other all about it." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 18 '43 550w

GATTI, ATTILIO. Killers all! 245p il $2.75 McBride
916 Africa—Description and travel
43-10511

Accounts of a score of thrilling adventures in Africa, with wild beasts and barbaric natives. Partial contents: The pit of death; White man's nonsense vs. barbarism; My enemy—the buffalo; A living corpse kills the killer; Revenge is done; The worst killers of them all; The-men-who-dance-with-the-dead; A hater of elephants; Death of a jungle autocrat.

Booklist 40:57 O 15 '43

"Recommended for all, teen age and up, who enjoy travel and adventure." D. F. Lucas
+ Library J 68:428 My 15 '43 80w

"There is substance enough here for six volumes, and 'Killers All!' might have been more satisfying, though perhaps less thrilling, if Commander Gatti had taken six volumes to it." Margaret Wallace
N Y Times p22 Jl 18 '43 300w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 1 '43 550w

"The whole book savors of a Hollywood story made without benefit of a technical director." Stuart Cloete
— Weekly Book Review p10 Jl 4 '43 1150w

GATTI, MRS ELLEN MORGAN (WADDILL), and GATTI, ATTILIO. Here is Africa; il. with phot. by Attilio Gatti and others; maps by Raymond Lufkin. 166p maps $2.50 Scribner
916 Africa—Description and travel 43-14718

An introductory chapter gives a brief picture of the whole continent of Africa. There follows an outline of the life and customs of the people of each part of the continent, from north to south. Illustrated with many photographs. For junior and senior high schools. Index.

Booklist 40:99 N 15 '43

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 70w

"Fine photographs of industry and occupations, of natives and of the physical features of the countries add to the value of this book, for the casual reader, as for the school pupil." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:414 N '43 60w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Burr
Library J 68:895 N 1 '43 130w

"It would be difficult to select any one outstanding feature of this book, there are so many. It has clarity, it bridges distance, it emphasizes modern travel accessibility. It implies future opportunity." J. H. Fifield
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 19 '44 440w

"Attilio Gatti's eye for the picturesque takes in words as well. The photographs of natives are fine, the witch doctor being a masterpiece of portraiture." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 30 '44 200w
Wis Lib Bul 40:13 Ja '44

GATTY, HAROLD. Raft book; lore of the sea and sky. 149p il pa $3.25 George Grady press, inc, 445 W. 41st st, N.Y. 18
527 Navigation 43-13455

"A volume which, with its accompanying maps and tables, provides directions and courses for men of World War II who find themselves in lifeboats and rafts, adrift at sea without knowledge of navigation." N Y Times

"The yachtsman and the student of navigation will read 'The Raft Book' with great interest. . . The man adrift will read it as a matter of life and death. The book goes in all Army lifeboats." R. E. Berry
+ N Y Times p7 Ja 9 '44 400w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt
Sat R of Lit 27:19 Ja 15 '44 270w
Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 5 '44 750w

GAUL, ALBRO TILTON. Picture book of insects; il. with phot. by the author. 41p $1.50 Lothrop
595.7 Insects—Juvenile literature 43-51125

Brief descriptions of twenty common insects with a full-page photograph and a life-size silhouette for each. An introductory section tells something about insects in general and a final section tells how to build up an insect collection.

Booklist 39:373 My 15 '43

"The book can be read and used by readers from 8 to 12. The child thoroughly interested in insect collection will want eventually to supplement this with fuller volumes. But it makes an excellent 'first book,' and its fine photographs and clear, direct text will arouse an initial interest." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p8 Ag 1 '43 140w

Reviewed by F. A. Stebbins

Springf'd Republican p7e My 2 '43 130w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 Ap 4 '43 230w

Wis Lib Bul 39:87 Je '43

GAY, CHARLES MERRICK, and PARKER, HARRY EWING. Materials and methods of architectural construction. 2d ed 636p il $6 Wiley

690 Building. Building materials 43-14106

"Changes in this new edition, which has almost the same pagination as the first edition (1932) [Book Review Digest, 1933], include revisions of the chapters on heavy timber construction, light wood framing, reinforced concrete, and steel construction. Other minor changes have been made to bring the text in line with the latest practices." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 40:149 D 15 '43

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:40 Jl '43

GAY, ROMNEY, pseud. See Britcher, P.

GEE, WILSON PARHAM. Social economics of agriculture. rev ed 720p il maps $4 Macmillan

323.354 Agriculture—Economic aspects. Agriculture—U.S. Sociology, Rural 42-23853

Revised edition of a text first published in 1933 (Book Review Digest, 1933). "A fair amount of new material has been inserted and to keep the book within reasonable size several chapters were omitted." Booklist

"A general course in agricultural economics and rural sociology should do three things: it should describe the real world; it should provide a grasp of the tools of analysis; and it should show how these tools may be used in solving problems. Professor Gee's book meets the first of these requirements but fails adequately to meet the other two. Whether they can be adequately met in any single course or book is problematical; for a broad general course, the material is there and the teacher can easily supplement it with additional material." A. C. Bunce

+ — Am Econ R 33:188 Mr '43 850w

"If there are any criticisms which this reviewer would make, keeping in mind the purpose of the book, they are that in the first place the book tries to cover so much that it must necessarily be done only in summarial fashion. In the second place, these summaries of topics are not clearly woven together by any central viewpoint or conceptual thread running through the book. . . However, this and other minor shortcomings of the book might well serve as challenges to teachers to make their own contributions to their own courses." E. J. Niederfrank

+ — Am Soc R 8:368 Je '43 800w

"Students will have little equipment when they finish the volume with which to think about new problems. A readable handy-reference volume does not qualify as a serious college text." C. A. Anderson

Ann Am Acad 226:187 Mr '43 200w

Booklist 39:254 F 15 '43

"In the ten years since the first edition of this college textbook was published a wealth of new material has appeared in the two fields which it covers, agricultural economics and rural sociology. Although the task of revision was difficult and demanding, for the most part the author, who is professor of rural economics at the University of Virginia, has succeeded well. . . The inadequate treatment of farm labor is perhaps the major defect of the volume." LaWanda Cox

+ — Social Educ 7:137 Mr '43 600w

Reviewed by B. O. Williams

Social Forces 21:484 My '43 400w

Social Studies 34:47 Ja '43 40w

GEER, ANDREW. Mercy in hell; an American ambulance driver with the Eighth army. (Whittlesey house publication) 264p il $2.75 McGraw

940.547 World war, 1939—Medical and sanitary affairs. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-10158

Account of the author's experiences with a company of volunteer ambulance drivers, the American Field service corps, in Bombay, Damascus, the Syrian desert, the Libyan campaign, and with the British Eighth army on the drive toward Tunisia. Map on endpapers. Photographs.

"Occasionally one gets the feeling that Geer and his fellow volunteers are taking a sightseeing trip through the battlefields long before they have become historical monuments. But it's an interesting, well-told trip, with plenty of souvenirs, some A-1 Baedekering, including maps and realistic photographs, and an excellent military analysis of the seesaw road from Cairo to Tunis." Joseph Frank

+ Book Week p2 Jl 25 '43 650w

Booklist 40:43 O 1 '43

